Child Welfare Policy Manual

Policy

The child welfare policies of the Department of Human Services, Division of Family and Children Services (DFCS), are intended to:

1. Promote and protect the welfare of children by:
 - a. Supporting child abuse prevention programs;
 - b. Receiving and investigating reports of suspected child abuse;
 - c. Providing protection to children who are victims of abuse; and
 - d. Providing services to families to increase caregiver protective capacity.
2. Provide for the temporary care of children whose families cannot ensure their safety and/or meet their basic care needs.
 - a. Foster care services focus on strengthening and rebuilding families to facilitate the child's safe and timely reunification with their family.
 - b. When reunification is not possible within a reasonable period of time, foster care promotes the permanency of children by arranging for placement in another safe, stable, nurturing home.
 - c. While in care, the comprehensive needs of children are assessed, and services arranged and/or provided to promote their well-being.
3. Provide adoptive homes for children who are in the permanent legal custody of DFCS through the termination of parental rights or a voluntary surrender.
 - a. Documentation of the child's needs, child specific recruitment, and matching services are provided in an effort to identify an adoptive home that can meet the child's needs.
 - b. After adoption placement and finalization, adoption services focus on the provision of services to support and strengthen the new family.
4. Provide extended foster care (EFC) for young adults who meet the eligibility criteria and sign a voluntary agreement, to assist them in transitioning to successful adulthood.
 - a. EFC is a voluntary continuation of foster care case management services available to eligible young adults who do not achieve legal permanency in foster care by age 18. EFC provides the opportunity for the young adults to maintain a safety net while they practice their independent living skills.
 - b. EFC aims to maximize young adults' ability to support themselves, have adequate community support, and learn the necessary life skills.
 - c. The juvenile court has oversight of a young adult's participation in EFC.

Practice Guidance

The Georgia Division of Family and Children Services is committed, through its child welfare programs, to ensuring the safety, permanency and well-being of Georgia's most vulnerable citizens. DFCS has adopted a three-pillar approach to achieve the goals set forth in the strategic plan and to realize its vision and mission. This serves as a framework for the organization's overall approach to child welfare services.

1. The first pillar includes the establishment and adoption of a research-based practice model that will serve as the foundation to keep kids safe and strengthen families.
2. The second pillar focuses on developing a robust workforce with expertise and training.
3. The third pillar addresses constituent engagement to build consensus and collaboration among partners, staff, and stakeholders.

Description of Programs

1. Title IV-A: Federal funds to states for Temporary Assistance for Needy Families (TANF). The TANF program is designed to help needy families achieve self-sufficiency. States receive block grants to design and operate programs that provide assistance to needy families so that children can be cared for in their own homes, and to reduce the dependency of needy parents by promoting job preparation, work and marriage. TANF services are provided through the DFCS' Office of Family Independence.
2. Title IV-B: Title IV-B of the Social Security Act includes two components, referred to as subparts 1 and 2.
 - a. Subpart 1 is a discretionary grant program composed primarily of the Stephanie Tubbs Jones Child Welfare Services (CWS) program. CWS funds can be used for a broad variety of child welfare services including, but not limited to, the prevention of maltreatment, family preservation, family reunification, services for foster and adopted children, and training for child welfare professionals. Examples of services or activities that may be supported include investigations of child abuse or neglect, homemaker services, respite care, family or individual counseling, caseworker visits to children whether in their own homes or in foster care, case planning and case review services for children in foster care, pre/post-adoption support services, and emergency assistance.
 - b. Subpart 2, the Promoting Safe and Stable Families (PSSF) program, has both capped entitlement and discretionary funding components. This program primarily funds family support, family preservation, time-limited reunification, and adoption-promotion and support activities (see policy 18.2 Support Services to Preserve or Reunify Families: Promoting Safe and Stable Families \(PSSF\)).
3. Title IV-D: Title IV-D of the Social Security Act authorizes federal assistance for state-run child support enforcement programs. These funds help cover the operational costs involved in child support enforcement, which help parents establish paternity, initiate new child support orders, and collect unpaid child support, among other services. Child Support Services are provided through the Department Human Services, Division of Child Support Services.
4. Title IV-E: Title IV-E of the Social Security Act addresses major components of child welfare. Its focus is on providing safe and stable out-of-home care for children who are in out-of-home care due to child maltreatment or other circumstances until they are able to achieve permanency in their placement by being safely returned home, placed permanently with adoptive families, or placed in other planned arrangements. Title IV-E funds are available for monthly maintenance payments for the daily care and supervision of eligible children, administrative costs to manage the program, training of staff and foster care providers, recruitment of foster and adoptive parents, adoption assistance, and implementation and operation of a Comprehensive Child Welfare Information System (CCWIS).
5. Title XVI: Title XVI benefits, also known as Supplemental Security Income (SSI), are needs-based disability benefits that are administered by the Social Security Administration. Applicants do not need to have any work credits in order to qualify for Title XVI benefits. SSI is designed to help aged, blind, and disabled people (including children under age 18), who have little or no income, and it provides cash to meet basic needs for food, clothing, and shelter (see policy 12.4 Adoption Assistance: Supplemental Security Income \(SSI\) and Adoption Assistance Benefits).
6. Title XIX: Title XIX of the Social Security Act authorized the Medicaid program. Medicaid is a joint state-federal program. Its purpose is to provide health care to individuals who have low incomes, including persons who are blind or disabled. States, territories, and the District of Columbia must meet certain requirements to receive matching funds from the federal government to participate. The match rate is based on the poverty level within the state.

7. Title XX: Title XX of the Social Security Act, also referred to as the Social Services Block Grant (SSBG), is a capped entitlement program. Thus, States are entitled to their share, according to a formula, of a nationwide funding ceiling or "cap," which is specified in statute. Block grant funds are given to States to help them achieve a wide range of social policy goals, which include preventing child abuse, increasing the availability of childcare, and providing community-based care for the elderly and disabled.
8. CAPTA: The Child Abuse Prevention and Treatment Act (CAPTA) provides Federal funding to States in support of child abuse and neglect prevention, assessment, investigation, prosecution, and treatment activities and also provides grants to public agencies and nonprofit organizations, including Indian Tribes and Tribal organizations, for demonstration programs and projects.

The child welfare policies format is as follows:

1. Codes/References: Applicable federal and state laws.
2. Requirements: Policy statements/actions/directives based on the federal/state law or practice. Federally mandated requirements from title IV-E of the Social Security Act are italicized. Requirements set forth by federal law included in this section are stated exactly or as close as possible to the language in the law.

Types of Policy Correspondence

1. Child Welfare Services Manual Transmittal: Provides the purpose and a brief overview of new or revised child welfare policies that are published on ODIS. CWSMTs are disseminated electronically to all DFCS staff and is accessible in Appendix A of the CWPM.
2. Child Welfare Services County Letter: Provides new or revised child welfare policy in advance of a CWSMT when there is a need to communicate more immediate policy changes to staff. CWSCLs are published in Appendix B of the CWPM.
3. Child Welfare Services Memorandum: Provides clarification or reinforces policy and/or practice.

Policy Dissemination

Uniform dissemination of policy is critical for consistency and integration of policy into practice. The three primary reasons for dissemination are:

1. Awareness: staff are aware of any changes to the work, as well as required activities and outcomes.
2. Understanding: staff fully understand the scope of the policy and are equipped with the skills and knowledge to carry out their responsibilities.
3. Action: staff take necessary actions to implement the change in practice resulting from new or revised policy.

Each manager/supervisor should ensure that policy dissemination efforts are providing information not only for awareness, but for understanding and action. The most successful dissemination strategies actively engage staff and deliver what they need in a clear and concise manner. The strategies should vary to suit different learning styles. Therefore, trainings, case reviews and summits can be developed differently and delivered in various formats to adjust to the policies being disseminated, and to achieve the biggest impact.

Policy Guidance and Consultation

All staff are responsible for reviewing policies to gain an understanding of the provisions and seek clarification when needed. Staff should seek policy guidance and clarification through their regular supervisory channels, and then through the Regional FPS who have policy expertise. The Regional FPS provides policy guidance within each program area, advise how policies impact the work, and support integrating new policy into practice. To obtain further policy clarification or support, the Regional FPS should contact the Policy and Regulations Unit at PPPDUnit@dhs.ga.gov.

Policy and Regulations Unit (PRU)

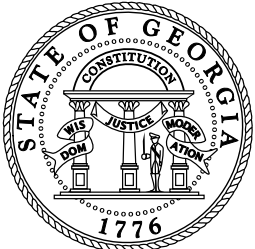

The PRU is responsible maintaining and disseminating child welfare policies. This includes but is not limited to:

1. Publishing and maintaining the CWPM on ODIS.
2. Researching, analyzing and interpreting relevant state and federal laws, regulations and guidance for applicability to child welfare policy and practice.
3. Developing and updating child welfare policies to align with state and federal laws as well as best practices.
4. Maintaining a transparent, collaborative and consensus-based policy development process through the engagement of subject matter experts, internal and external stakeholders, focus groups, workgroups, the Policy Advisory Committee (PAC), and policy surveys.
5. Disseminating policies statewide via the CWSMT or CWSCL.
6. Partnering with the Regional FPS to disseminate newly released policies via their regional dissemination procedures.
7. Partnering with Training and Professional Development to support updates to the training curriculum or other training materials/tools.
8. Partnering with Georgia SHINES to support system enhancements.
9. Providing targeted policy training and ongoing policy consultation and support for all levels of staff.

U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, Office for Civil Rights and the Georgia Department of Human Services’ Settlement Agreement, OCR Transaction Number: 09- 102792

Requirements

In accordance with the requirements of Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 (“Section 504”) and Title II of the Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990 (“ADA”), the Division of Family and Children Services (DFCS) will:

1. Be prohibited from discriminating against qualified individuals with disabilities on the basis of disability in its services, programs, or activities.
2. Assure that no qualified individual with a disability shall, by reason of such disability, be excluded from participation in or be denied the benefits of its services, programs, or activities, or be subjected to discrimination by any such entity.
3. Not exclude any individual with a disability from the full and equal enjoyment of its services, programs, or activities, unless the individual poses a direct threat to the health or safety of themselves or others, that cannot be mitigated by reasonable modifications of policies, practices or procedures, or by the provision of auxiliary aids or services. When “direct threat” is the justification for the screening out of individuals with disabilities, the decision must be based on individualized assessments that rely on the following:
 - a. Current medical evidence or the best available objective evidence in determining:
 - i. The nature, duration, and severity of the risks;
 - ii. Probability that potential injury will occur; and
 - iii. Whether reasonable modification in policies, practices, or procedures will mitigate the risk.
 - b. The actual abilities and inabilities of the prospective adoptive or foster caregiver.
 - c. Decisions must never be made based on speculation, stereotypes, generalizations, or unfounded fears about individuals with disabilities.

 A “direct threat” to the health or safety of others are factors that can be applied to justify the use of disability-related screening criteria for prospective adoptive and foster caregivers. Direct threat is defined as a significant risk of harm to the health or safety of others that cannot be eliminated by modifications in policy, practice, or procedures or by the provision of auxiliary aids or services. An agency is not required to permit an individual to participate in or benefit from a service when “that individual poses a direct threat to the health or safety of others.”

4. Make reasonable modifications in policies, practices, or procedures when the modifications are necessary to avoid discrimination on the basis of disability, unless DFCS can demonstrate that making the modifications would result in a fundamental alteration in the nature of a service, program, or activity or would result in undue financial and administrative burdens. The determination of whether a modification is reasonable depends on the specific facts of each case and is not based on generalizations and stereotypes.

 The term “reasonable modifications” is sometimes referred to as “reasonable accommodations.”

5. Conduct individualized assessments of qualified individuals with disabilities before making foster care and adoption program application and retention decisions, using the individualized assessment tool and consider, on a case-by-case basis, requests for reasonable modifications (see policy 14.11 Resource Development: Individualized Assessments; and the “Individualized Assessment Tool” for Prospective & Existing Foster Caregivers).

6. Eliminate any eligibility criteria for participation that screens out or tends to screen out a person with a disability, or any class of individuals with disabilities from full and equal enjoyment in such participation, unless it can be established that such requirement is necessary for the provision of a service, facility, privilege, advantage, or accommodation.
7. Not place a surcharge on a particular qualified individual with a disability or any group of qualified individuals with disabilities to cover the cost of measures, such as the provision of auxiliary aids or program accessibility, that are required to provide nondiscriminatory treatment required by Title II of the ADA and Section 504.
8. Not retaliate against, intimidate, threaten, coerce, or discriminate against any individual for the purpose of interfering with any right or privilege secured by Title II of the ADA, or because the individual has made a complaint, testified, assisted, or participated in any manner in an investigation, proceeding, or hearing.
9. Ensure that no party, as defined by O.C.G.A. § 15-11-2(52) (e.g., the state, a child, parent, guardian, legal custodian) is denied child placement, child custody, visitation, guardianship, foster care, or adoption solely because the party has a disability (including a party who is Legally Blind) as prohibited by the ADA/Section 504 and O.C.G.A. § 30-4-5.
10. Ensure that no prospective or existing foster/adoptive caregiver is discriminated against or denied the opportunity to participate in the foster care or adoption programs, solely because of such individual’s disability (including individuals who are Legally Blind) as prohibited by the ADA/Section 504 and O.C.G.A. § 30-4-5.
11. Ensure that communications with applicants, participants, members of the public and companions with disabilities are as effective as communications with others.

Please also refer to the DFCS MAN3600: Section 3601 Americans with Disabilities Act/Section 504. Refer to policy 19.26 Case Management: Case Management Involving Substance Abuse or Use for specific guidance pertaining to ADA and individuals with a history of substance use disorders, current substance use disorders and those participating in medication assisted treatment.

This policy of non-discrimination is equally applicable to all DFCS staff, volunteers, interns, contractors, grantees, agents and providers of services.

Procedures

Upon request by or on behalf of qualified individuals with disabilities, DFCS staff, volunteers, interns, contractors, grantees, agents and providers of services will:

1. Make reasonable modifications in policies, practices, or procedures on a case-by-case basis as provided by federal law, unless DFCS can demonstrate that making the modifications would result in a fundamental alteration in the nature of a service, program, or activity or in undue financial and administrative burdens. The determination of whether a modification is reasonable depends on the specific facts of each case and is not based on generalizations and stereotypes.

- a. Social Services Case Managers (SSCM) have the responsibility and authority to offer, grant, and implement necessary reasonable modifications to customers with disabilities, if such modifications can be readily provided.
- b. While SSCMs are authorized to grant customer requests for reasonable modification, they do not have the authority to deny, in whole or in part, such requests or to otherwise refuse requests for reasonable modifications. If SSCMs are unsure about whether a reasonable modification can or should be provided, they shall be required to consult with a Social Services Supervisor (SSS) at the time the request for reasonable modification is received or as soon as reasonably possible thereafter (be sure to adhere to DFCS' reasonable modification request processing timeframes, if/when applicable).
- c. If a supervisor agrees that a reasonable modification can and should be provided, the SSCM will be required to provide the requested modification to the customer. However, if the SSS recommends that the request for reasonable modification be denied, the SSS shall be required to submit that recommendation for review and written decision by the appropriate Regional ADA/Section 504 Coordinator.
- d. Direct all written requests for reasonable modifications, made by or on behalf of applicants and participants with disabilities in the foster care and adoption programs, to the Regional ADA/Section 504 Coordinator, if assistance is needed.

Contact the County DFCS Office or the DFCS State Civil Rights, ADA/Section 504 Coordinator to obtain information about the Regional ADA/Section 504 Coordinator.

2. Regarding a housing situation ONLY, ask for information, if necessary, to determine whether an applicant or participant who has requested a reasonable modification has a disability-related need for the modification, when the individual's disability and need for the modification are not readily apparent or known.
3. Keep the medical records and other health information of applicants and participants in the foster care and adoption program confidential.
4. Ensure meaningful and equal access to services for the sensory impaired, including by all entities contracting with the Department for the provision of services.
 - a. The ADA/Section 504 protect individuals who are sensory impaired ("SI"). SI individuals either have no ability or a limited ability to see and/or hear. Sensory impairments are considered physical impairments under the ADA.
 - b. The DFCS Civil Rights and ADA/Section 504 Coordinator provides technical guidance and assistance to DFCS offices and programs in securing interpreter services for the sensory impaired and auxiliary aids. To contact the DFCS Civil Rights and ADA/Section 504 Coordinator, please refer to the list of DFCS ADA/Section 504 District and Regional Coordinators found on the DFCS Nondiscrimination and Disability webpage: dfcs.georgia.gov/adasection-504-and-civil-rights.

5. Assess requests for reasonable modifications on a case-by-case basis.
 - a. Seek approval from the County Director of the local DFCS Office before taking action which might adversely affect the ability of applicants and participants with disabilities to participate in the foster care and adoption program;
 - b. The Regional ADA/Section 504 Coordinator will serve as the second level reviewer/approver in cases where the prospective or current foster caregiver has a known disability;
 - c. The Regional ADA/Section 504 Coordinators may contact DFCS' ADA/Section 504 Coordinator at the State Office if technical assistance is needed.
6. Consider whether a parent or prospective parent is having difficulty with program requirements due to the disability of the child. For instance, if regular visitation is required but the child cannot meet with the parent due to medical care the child is receiving, then the program requirements will likely need to be modified.
7. Adhere to the key provision of the ADA which prohibits imposing or applying eligibility criteria that screen out or tend to screen out individuals with disabilities, unless the criteria can be shown to be necessary for the provision of the services. Applicants with disabilities must be assessed on an individualized basis and determinations regarding their parental capacity must be based on objective facts and not on stereotypes or generalizations about individuals with disabilities. Additionally, such determinations must consider the individual's existing supports, as well as any disability-related reasonable modifications or services the DFCS could provide to ensure the individual can fully and equally participate in DFCS' foster care program.

Although the ADA contains no specific definition of reasonable modification and no specific limits are established for what is reasonable, examples are provided. Providing a reasonable modification may take many forms including, but not limited to:

1. Policy, practice, or procedural modifications;
2. Deferral from certain activities;
3. Extensions of deadlines;
4. Granting of waivers;
5. Making existing facilities readily accessible to and usable by an individual with a disability;
6. Alteration of existing facilities;
7. Acquisition or construction of additional facilities;
8. Relocation of a service or program to an accessible facility;
9. Provision of services at accessible alternate sites;
10. Acquiring or modifying equipment;
11. Providing services for the sensory impaired, such as qualified readers, taped text audio recordings, and Brailled materials.

Practice Guidance

Title II of the ADA prohibits discrimination against a qualified individual with a disability in programs, activities, and services of public entities. It applies to all state and local governments, their departments, and agencies, and to any entities with which a government agency contracts for services. DFCS must ensure that its service providers agree to comply with the provisions of the ADA when providing services to DFCS and its clients. DFCS is prohibited from making decisions based on unfounded stereotypes, such as application and retention decisions in the foster care and adoption program, about what individuals with disabilities can do, or how much assistance they may require.

Qualified Individual with a Disability

Title II of the ADA defines a “qualified individual with a disability” as “an individual with a disability who, with or without reasonable modifications to rules, policies, or practices, the removal of architectural, communication, or transportation barriers, or the provision of auxiliary aids and services, meets the essential eligibility requirements for the receipt of services or the participation in programs or activities provided by a public entity.” Title II protects “qualified individuals with disabilities” and non-disabled individuals (and entities) that have an association or relationship with someone who is known to be disabled (e.g., the parent of a child with a disability).

Disability Defined under the ADA

Disability is defined as a physical or mental impairment that substantially limits one or more of the “major life activities” of such individual, a record of such an impairment, or being regarded as having such an impairment. The phrase “major life activities” includes, but is not limited to: caring for one’s self, performing manual tasks, seeing, hearing, eating, sleeping, walking, standing, sitting, reaching, lifting, bending, speaking, breathing, learning, reading, concentrating, thinking, writing, communicating, interacting with others, and working. It also includes the operation of a major bodily function, including but not limited to: functions of the immune system, special sense organs and skin, normal cell growth, and digestive, genitourinary, bowel, bladder, neurological, brain, respiratory, circulatory, cardiovascular, endocrine, hemic, lymphatic, musculoskeletal, and reproductive systems. The operation of a major bodily function includes the operation of an individual organ within a body system.

The ADA provides examples of various “impairments” that constitute protected disabilities. Protected physical or mental impairments include, but are not limited to, such contagious and noncontagious diseases and conditions as orthopedic, visual, speech and hearing impairments, cerebral palsy, epilepsy, muscular dystrophy, multiple sclerosis, cancer, heart disease, diabetes, mental retardation, emotional illness, specific learning disabilities, HIV disease (whether symptomatic or non-symptomatic), tuberculosis, drug addiction, alcoholism (but not current illegal drug use). Protected mental and psychological disorders include, but are not limited to, mental retardation, emotional or mental illness, organic brain syndrome, and specific learning disabilities.

The ADA excludes homosexuality, bisexuality, transvestism, transsexualism, pedophilia, exhibitionism, voyeurism, gender identity disorders not resulting from physical impairments, or other sexual behavior disorders, compulsive gambling, kleptomania, pyromania, current illegal drug use and psychoactive substance use disorders resulting from current illegal use of drugs.

Legally Blind as Defined by O.C.G.A. § 30-4-5 (2019)

As referenced in this policy, the phrase “Legally Blind” means:

1. Having vision that is 20/200 or less in the best corrected eye; or
2. Having vision that subtends an angle of not greater than 20 degrees in the best corrected eye.

Supportive Parenting Services as Defined by O.C.G.A. § 30-4-5 (2019)

Supportive parenting services are services that may assist a Legally Blind parent or prospective Legally Blind parent in the effective use of nonvisual techniques and other alternative methods to enable such parent or prospective parent to successfully discharge parental responsibilities.

Foster and Adoptive Caregiver Applicants and Participants with Disabilities

The purpose of the DFCS foster care and adoption program is to promote the safety and well-being of children in DFCS' care. As defined by the Administration for Children and Families, foster care means 24-hour substitute care for children placed away from their parents or guardians and for whom the title IV-E agency has placement and care responsibility (45 C.F.R. Section 1355.20). The recipient of the services of the DFCS foster care program is the child in foster care. DFCS seeks to identify qualified individuals to partner with it in caring for, supervising, protecting and promoting the welfare of children in foster care because of abuse or neglect, twenty-four hours a day and seven days a week.

DFCS is prohibited from establishing policies and practices that categorically limit or exclude qualified individuals with disabilities from participating in the DFCS foster care and adoption program. Individuals with disabilities must be treated on a case-by-case basis consistent with facts and objective evidence. Upon request from qualified foster care and adoption program applicants with disabilities, DFCS will make reasonable modifications and provide auxiliary aids which would not fundamentally alter the nature of the service, program, or activity, or result in undue financial and/or administrative burdens. The determination of whether DFCS is required to provide a prospective or current foster caregiver an auxiliary aid or modify its policy, practice, or procedures is a fact-specific, case-by-case inquiry that depends on DFCS individually assessing the disabled prospective or current foster caregiver.

For instance, DFCS may modify its training courses to extend the frequency and/or duration of the courses to accommodate a prospective or current foster caregiver whose disability is connected to the modification request. DFCS may also provide a qualified interpreter for a training course and translate applications/course materials to provide a meaningful opportunity for the prospective or current foster caregiver to participate.

DFCS is not required to permit an individual to participate in or benefit from the services, programs, or activities when that individual poses a direct threat to the health or safety of a child(ren) in DFCS care. In determining whether an individual poses a direct threat to the health or safety of others, DFCS must make an individualized assessment, based on reasonable judgment that relies on current medical knowledge or on the best available objective evidence, to ascertain: the nature, duration, and severity of the risk; the probability that the potential injury will actually occur; and whether reasonable modifications of policies, practices, or procedures or the provision of auxiliary aids or services will mitigate the risk (see policy 14.11 Resource Development: Individualized Assessments).

DFCS shall make reasonable modifications in policies, practices, or procedures when the modifications are necessary to avoid discrimination on the basis of disability, unless DFCS determines that the modification would fundamentally alter the nature of the foster care and adoption program or would result in undue financial and administrative burdens. Considerations for requests for reasonable modifications, such as those concerning respite care, are to be evaluated on a case-by-case basis and processed in accordance with policy 1.4 Administration: Non-Discriminatory Child Welfare Practices \(Procedures section\). Denials of requests for reasonable modification are to be made by the State DFCS Civil Rights, ADA/Section 504 Coordinator (or by the DFCS Division Director or his/her designee). Questions should be directed to the appropriate Regional ADA/Section 504 Coordinator and the State DFCS Civil Rights, ADA/Section 504 Coordinator.

How should applicants and participants in the foster care and adoption programs make requests for reasonable modifications?

Requests for reasonable modifications made by or on behalf of applicants and participants with disabilities in the foster care and adoption programs shall be handled as described in this policy and MAN3600: ROOT:ada-section-504.pdf. Refer to the Forms and Tools section below for a link to the directory of the Regional ADA/504 Coordinator. The directory includes the State and Regional ADA/504 Coordinators and provides a list of counties in each region. The local County Department may also be contacted for information on how to reach the Regional ADA/Section 504 Coordinators.

ADA Application to DFCS Service Providers

DFCS collaborates with many service providers in an effort to provide an array of services to meet the needs of the children and families served. The ADA requirements also apply to agencies and private entities that have entered into contracts or agreements with DFCS. DFCS must ensure that its service providers agree to comply with the provisions of the ADA when providing services for DFCS.

Complaints

Complaints alleging disability discrimination are to be filed within 180 days of the date of alleged discrimination. For more information about filing a complaint, refer to policy 1.4 Administration: Non-Discriminatory Child Welfare Practices and policy 1.16 Administration: Civil Rights Complaint Process.

If additional information is needed regarding DFCS' civil rights/disability compliance, refer to dfcs.georgia.gov/adasection-504-and-civil-rights. The DFCS Civil Rights, ADA/Section 504 Coordinator may also be contacted at 1-877-423-4746.

Title IV-E of the Social Security Act (Section 45 CFR 1356.67)

Requirements

Indian Child Welfare Act

The Division of Family and Children Services (DFCS) will:

1. Comply with all rules, regulations and provisions of the Indian Child Welfare Act (ICWA).

ICWA applies to children residing in Georgia who are members or eligible for membership and has a biological parent who is an enrolled member in a federally recognized Indian tribe.

2. Ensure that any child who is a member of a federally recognized Indian Tribe, or eligible for membership and has a biological parent who is an enrolled member, and is subject to removal, placement and/or any other legal action involving DFCS, is afforded all rights under the ICWA to promote the stability and security of Indian Tribes and their families.
3. Prevent the unnecessary and arbitrary removal of Indian children from their families and Tribes, placing an Indian child who must be removed in an available and safe foster and adoptive home that reflects the unique values of American Indian culture, and adhering to the placement requirements of ICWA.

4. Make every effort to determine if a child is a member or eligible for membership in an Indian Tribe, beginning at intake and continuing throughout DFCS' involvement with the child and family.

DFCS must comply with ICWA from the earliest stages of a child welfare case.

5. Provide notification by registered or certified mail, return receipt requested, whenever there is a pending involuntary proceeding about placement or termination of parental rights involving a child who is or is believed to be a member or eligible for membership in an Indian Tribe, to:
 - a. The Indian child's parents, Indian custodian, and the Indian child's Tribe.
 - b. The United States Secretary of Interior, Bureau of Indian Affairs if the identity or location of the parent, Indian custodian, and the Tribe cannot be determined.
6. Adhere to the ICWA guidelines for placement of an Indian child:
 - a. Ensure that active efforts are made prior to removing the Indian child from his or her parents or Indian custodian, ordering an involuntary foster care placement, termination of parental rights, and during an out-of-home placement, to promote reunification.
 - b. Make a foster care placement only if there is a determination, supported by clear and convincing evidence that the continued custody of the child by the parent or Indian custodian is likely to result in serious emotional or physical damage to the child.
 - c. Place the child in the following placement preference order for a foster care placement:
 - i. A member of the child's extended family;
 - ii. Another member of his or her Tribe or another Indian family, if a suitable extended family member is not available;
 - iii. A foster home licensed, approved, or specified by the Indian child's Tribe;
 - iv. An Indian foster home licensed and/or approved by an authorized non-Indian licensing authority; or
 - v. An institution for children approved by an Indian Tribe or operated by an Indian organization which has a program suitable to meet the Indian child's needs.
 - d. Place the child in the following placement preference order for an adoptive placement:
 - i. A member of the child's extended family;
 - ii. Other members of the Indian child's Tribe;
 - iii. Other Indian families.

Refer to policy 10.1 Foster Care: Placement of a Child for additional guidance.

7. Adhere to pre-trial requirements:
 - a. Inform the courts in an emergency, voluntary, or involuntary child custody proceeding whether DFCS knows or has reason to know that the child is an Indian child.

- b. Treat the child as an Indian child, unless and until it is determined on the record that the child does not meet the definition of an “Indian child”, if there is reason to know, but DFCS does not have sufficient evidence to determine that the child is or is not an “Indian child”.
 - c. Confirm that DFCS exercised due diligence to identify and work with all Tribes of which there is reason to know the child may be a member or eligible for membership, and to verify whether the child is in fact a member or is eligible for membership.
8. Transfer jurisdiction of any state court proceeding to the Tribe when the proceeding involves the removal or termination of parental rights of an Indian child not residing within a reservation.

An Indian Tribe has exclusive jurisdiction over any custody proceeding involving an Indian child who resides within the reservation of such Tribe. Although the tribal court may decline jurisdiction, they are still entitled to participate.

9. Obtain voluntary consents for foster care (voluntary placement agreement) or relinquishments (voluntary surrender) in writing.

A consent given prior to, or within 10 days after, the birth of an Indian child is not valid.

- a. Consent must be brought to a court of competent jurisdiction and certified by the judge or the court. Prior to accepting the consent, the court must explain to the parent or Indian custodian:
 - i. The terms and consequences of the consent in detail; and
 - ii. The limitations on withdrawal of consent.
- b. The court must certify that the terms and consequences of the consent were explained on the record in detail in English (or the language of the parent or Indian custodian if English is not the primary language) and were fully understood by the parent or Indian custodian.

The consent is not valid until it is recorded before the court and certified by the judge or the court.

- c. The voluntary consent for foster care placement may be withdrawn by the child’s parents’ or Indian custodian for any reason at any time and have the child returned;
 - d. The consent for termination of parental rights may be withdrawn at any time and for any reason prior to the entry of the final decree of termination and have the child returned;
 - e. The consent for an adoptive placement by the parent or Indian custodian may be withdrawn at any time for any reason prior to the entry of the final decree of adoption, and have the child returned;
 - f. Return the child as soon as is practicable, upon the child’s parents’ or Indian custodian’s written request to terminate the VPA or voluntary surrender.
10. Allow all who are party to an emergency, foster care, or termination of parental rights proceeding, time to examine all reports and other documents filed with the court.
11. Document in detail all findings and outcomes of a case involving an Indian child to ensure that the ICWA standards are being met.
12. Maintain a record of every voluntary or involuntary placement of an Indian child and make the record available within fourteen (14) days of a request by an Indian child's Tribe or the Secretary of the Interior.

13. Engage non-federally recognized Georgia Tribes with the consent of the tribal families whenever DFCS becomes involved with a child who is a member of a Georgia Tribe:
 - a. Inform the courts during each proceeding whether DFCS knows or has reason to know that the child is a member of a Georgia Tribe.
 - b. Partner with the family to involve the Georgia Tribe as a formal or informal support for participation in case planning and decision-making.
 - c. Prioritize out-of-home placements within the tribal community.

Transfer of Responsibility for Placement and Care to a Tribal Agency

DFCS shall establish and maintain procedures for the transfer of responsibility for the placement and care of a child under a State title IV-E plan to a Tribal title IV-E agency or an Indian Tribe with a title IV-E agreement. At a minimum, DFCS' transfer procedures:

1. Are established and maintained in consultation with Indian Tribes;
2. Do not affect a child's eligibility, receipt of services, or payment under title IV-E or the medical assistance program operated under title XIX;
3. Establish eligibility for title IV-E at the time of transfer, if an eligibility determination is not already completed; and
4. Provide for essential documents and information necessary to continue a child's eligibility under title IV-E and Medicaid programs under title XIX to the Tribal title IV-E agency or an Indian Tribe with a title IV-E agreement, including but not limited to the following:
 - a. All judicial determinations to the effect that continuation in the home from which the child was removed would be contrary to the welfare of the child and that reasonable efforts described in section 471(a)(15) of the Act have been made;
 - b. Other documentation the State agency has that relates to the child's title IV-E eligibility under sections 472 and 473 of the Act;
 - c. Information and documentation available to the agency regarding the child's eligibility or potential eligibility for other Federal benefits;
 - d. The case plan developed pursuant to section 475(1) of the Act, including health and education records of the child pursuant to section 475(1)(C) of the Act; and
 - e. Information and documentation of the child's placement settings, including a copy of the most recent provider's license or approval.

Procedures

Indian Child Welfare Act

The Social Services Case Manager (SSCM) will:

1. Engage the child (if age appropriate) and family:
 - a. During the initial contact to determine if the child and/or family are of Indian heritage or if the child may be eligible for membership in a federally recognized Indian Tribe.

- b. Each time the case is transferred from one worker or program to another, the receiving SSCM must confirm that verification of Indian heritage and tribal membership has previously been completed.
2. Identify and obtain contact information for the Tribe, if the parent or child states that they are of Indian heritage, or if it is determined that the parent, guardian, or Indian custodian is a member of an Indian Tribe, or if the child may be eligible for tribal membership. Refer to www.bia.gov or tribalinformationexchange.org for assistance in locating Tribe information.
3. Document Indian heritage and tribal membership on the Person Detail in Georgia SHINES.
4. Immediately notify the Indian Tribe by email and/or telephone when there is a pending proceeding in Georgia involving the placement of an Indian child. Notify them that the Indian child is being or has been removed.
5. Complete the applicable ICWA Notification (see Forms and Tools) and send it registered or certified mail with return receipt requested to the following:
 - a. The child's parents, guardian (or Indian custodian), and the Tribe with copies of the petition.
 - b. The United States Secretary of Interior, Bureau of Indian Affairs if the identity or location of the parent or Indian custodian and the Tribe cannot be determined. The Secretary has 15 days after receipt of the notification to provide the requisite notice to the parent or Indian custodian and the Tribe.

United States Department of Interior
Bureau of Indian Affairs (BIA), Eastern Regional Office
545 Marriott Drive, Suite 700
Nashville, TN 37214

Notice may be sent via personal service or electronically, but such alternative methods do not replace the requirement for notice to be sent by registered or certified mail, return receipt requested.

6. Inform the courts during each proceeding whether DFCS knows or has reason to know that the child is an Indian child.
7. Treat the child as an Indian child if there is reason to know that the child is an Indian child, unless and until it is determined on the record that the child does not meet the ICWA definition of an "Indian child".
8. Make "active efforts" prior to removing the Indian child from his or her parents or Indian custodian (see Practice Guidance for examples of active efforts).
 - a. When seeking foster care placement or termination of parental rights, the court must be satisfied that active efforts have been made to prevent the breakup of the Indian family, and that these efforts have been unsuccessful.
 - b. Active efforts must also be made during an out-of-home placement to promote reunification.
 - c. Active efforts must be documented in detail in the case record.

Active efforts are also applicable to VPAs and voluntary surrenders.

9. Make a foster care placement only if there is a determination supported by clear and convincing evidence that the continued custody of the child by the parent or Indian custodian is likely to result in serious emotional or physical damage to the child.
 - a. A foster care placement proceeding cannot be held until at least ten days after receipt of notice by the parent (or Indian custodian) and the Tribe (or the U.S. Secretary of Interior).
 - b. The parent, Indian custodian, the Tribe and the Secretary can, upon request, be granted up to 20 additional days to prepare for the proceeding.
 - c. Testimony of one or more qualified expert witnesses must be included in the proceeding.

10. Place the Indian child in the following placement preference order:

- a. A member of the child's extended family;
- b. Another member of his or her Tribe or another Indian family if a suitable extended family member is not available;
- c. A foster home licensed, approved, or specified by the Indian child's Tribe;
- d. An Indian foster home licensed and/or approved by an authorized non-Indian licensing authority; or
- e. An institution for children approved by an Indian Tribe or operated by an Indian organization which has a program suitable to meet the Indian child's needs.

Preference options must be strictly followed. Placement of an Indian child into a non-Indian home is the last option or alternative after all other options have been exhausted.

11. In any adoptive placement, give preference in the following order:

- a. A member of the child's extended family
- b. Other members of the Indian child's Tribe
- c. Other Indian families

Preference options must be strictly followed. Placement of an Indian child into a non-Indian home is the last option or alternative after all other options have been exhausted.

12. Terminate any emergency removal or placement of an Indian child immediately when the removal or placement is no longer necessary to prevent imminent physical damage or harm to the child.

13. In a termination of parental rights (TPR) proceeding, evidence beyond a reasonable doubt must be presented, including testimony of qualified expert witnesses that the continued custody of the child by the parent or Indian custodian is likely to result in serious emotional or physical damage to the child.

A TPR proceeding cannot be held until at least ten days after receipt of notice by the parent (or Indian custodian) and the Tribe (or the U.S. Secretary of Interior).

14. Obtain voluntary consents for foster care (VPA) or relinquishments (voluntary surrender) in writing and have them recorded before a court of competent jurisdiction and certified by the judge or the court.

- a. Request the Special Assistant Attorney General (SAAG) petition the court to record the consent before the court and obtain the judge/court certification.
- b. Provide a copy of the completed Voluntary Placement Agreement to Place a Child in Foster Care (Authorization) form to the SAAG for submission to the court with the petition.
- c. Participate in the proceeding to certify the consent.
- d. Obtain a copy of the judge/court certification and upload to Georgia SHINES External Documentation:
 - i. The completion and signature of the judge or court official on the VPA form; or
 - ii. Other documentation of the certification provided by the court signed by the judge or other designated court official.
- e. Upon written request from the parent or Indian custodian to terminate the VPA or voluntary surrender return the child as soon as is practicable.
- f. Provide a copy of the signed termination request to the court via the SAAG.

(For more detailed information on VPA and voluntary surrender refer to policies 20.6 Special Circumstances: Voluntary Placement Agreement; 10.2 Foster Care: Placement of a Child via a Voluntary Placement Agreement \(VPA\); and 20.7 Special Circumstances: Voluntary Surrender; 17.12 Legal: Voluntary Surrender of Parental Rights).

15. Allow each party to an emergency, foster care, or termination of parental rights proceeding, to timely examine all reports and other documents filed with the court.
16. Maintain a record of every placement of an Indian child and make the record available within 14 days of a request by an Indian child's Tribe or the Secretary.
17. Document all activities, findings, and outcomes in Georgia SHINES within 72 hours of occurrence to ensure that the ICWA standards are being met. The following are required to be documented in the case record:
 - a. Whether the court found that continued custody of the Indian child by the parent or Indian custodian is likely to result in serious emotional or physical damage to the child;
 - b. Whether the evidence presented for foster care placement or TPR included the testimony of one or more qualified expert witnesses (QEW);
 - c. All of the active efforts that were made to prevent removal prior to the child entering out-of-home care, as well as active efforts made to promote reunification throughout the child's stay in out-of-home care;
 - d. Whether prior to foster care placement or TPR, the court concluded that active efforts were made to prevent the breakup of the Indian family and that those efforts were unsuccessful;
 - e. Whether the court determined, on the record or in writing, a good cause to depart from ICWA placement preferences; and
 - f. Whether the foster parent(s) is a member of an Indian Tribe, and the name of the Tribe.

Georgia Tribes

The SSCM shall:

1. Engage the child (if age appropriate) and family, during the initial contact, to determine if the child and/or family are members (or eligible for membership) of a Georgia Tribe.
 - a. Identify the Tribe and obtain the contact information for the Tribe.
 - b. Document Indian heritage and tribal membership in Georgia SHINES on the Person Detail page.
2. Inform the courts during each proceeding whether DFCS knows or has reason to know that the child is a member of a Georgia Tribe. The court may allow the child's Tribe to participate in the child custody proceeding upon request of the Tribe.
3. Work with the family to involve the Tribe as a formal or informal support for participation in case planning and decision-making.
4. Consider the child's family and community connections to the Tribe when selecting a placement resource or provision of services. Refer to policy 10.4 Foster Care: Selecting a Placement Resource for additional guidance.

Transfer of Responsibility for Placement and Care to a Tribal Agency

When transferring responsibility for the placement and care of a child under a state title IV-E plan to a tribal title IV-E agency or an Indian Tribe with a title IV-E agreement, the SSCM will:

1. Complete the referral to Rev Max to determine child funding eligibility (see policy 9.3 Eligibility: Applying for Initial Funding).

An eligibility determination must be made prior to transfer.

2. Contact the tribal agency within seven business days of determining the child is a member of the Tribe to discuss possible transfer of responsibility of placement of the child.
3. Establish the date and time of physical transfer of the child upon determination by the Division and tribal agency of the Tribe's ability to assume responsibility for placement of the child.
4. Provide the tribal agency with the documents and information necessary to continue a child's eligibility under title IV-E and Medicaid within ten business days of initial contact:
 - a. Judicial determinations to the effect that continuation in the home from which the child was removed would be contrary to the welfare of the child and that reasonable efforts have been made;
 - b. Other documentation the state agency has that relates to the child's title IV-E eligibility;
 - c. Information and documentation available to the agency regarding the child's eligibility or potential eligibility for other federal benefits;
 - d. The case plan, including health and education records of the child; and
 - e. Information and documentation of the child's placement settings, including a copy of the foster home or group home's license or approval.

The Social Service Supervisor (SSS) will:

1. Ensure the SSCM has determined if the child is of Indian heritage, or if the child is a member or eligible for membership in a federally recognized Indian Tribe.

2. Ensure the SSCM provides appropriate and timely notifications to the child’s parents, guardian (or Indian custodian), and the Tribe, or to the BIA, if the Tribe cannot be located.
3. Be accessible to the SSCM to provide guidance and consultation regarding:
 - a. Active efforts;
 - b. Placement preferences;
 - c. Informing the court if DFCS has a reason to know the child is an Indian child;
 - d. Documentation of ICWA-related activities;
 - e. Engaging families of Georgia Tribes; and
 - f. Transferring responsibility for the placement and care of a child to a tribal title IV-E agency or an Indian Tribe with a title IV-E agreement.

Practice Guidance

Indian Child Welfare Act (ICWA)

The Indian Child Welfare Act of 1978 was enacted by Congress to address the alarming rate of removals of American Indian children from their homes for foster care and adoptive placements. ICWA established standards, as well as a protocol, for providing child welfare services to assure that agencies meet the cultural needs of Indian children requiring out-of-home placement and to protect the continued existence and integrity of Indian Tribes. ICWA seeks to protect the rights of the Indian child as an Indian and the rights of the Indian community and Tribe in retaining its children in its society. It gives the Indian child’s parents or Indian custodian and their Tribe the right to intervene or request transfer to their tribal court of any proceedings involving out-of-home placement or termination of parental rights of an Indian child.

If the child is a member of, or eligible for membership in, a federally recognized Indian Tribe, the family, the Indian custodian, and the Tribe have rights under ICWA. These rights apply to any child protection case, adoption, guardianship, termination of parental rights action, runaway, or truancy matter involving the placement of an Indian child (including foster care placements, termination of parental rights, pre-adoptive placements, adoptive placements, both voluntary and involuntary placements, transfers of placement and placements due to failed adoptions.)

1. “Foster care placement” means any action removing an Indian child from the parent or Indian custodian for temporary placement in a foster home or institution or in the home of a guardian or conservator where the parent or Indian custodian cannot have the child returned upon demand, but where parental rights have not been terminated;
2. “Termination of parental rights” means any action that may result in the termination of the parent-child relationship;
3. “Pre-adoptive placement” means the temporary placement of an Indian child in a foster home or institution after the termination of parental rights, but prior to or in lieu of an adoptive placement; and
4. “Adoptive placement” means the permanent placement of an Indian child for adoption, including any action resulting in a final decree of adoption.

Locating Information on Federally Recognized Tribes

As of February 2020, there are 574 federally recognized Indian Tribes. No federally recognized Tribes are located in Georgia. Tribes are continually applying for federal recognition, so the number of approved tribes may increase over time. It is important for staff to exercise due diligence in researching tribes, as their recognition status may have changed. The federal Bureau of Indian Affairs (www.bia.gov) provides information on federally recognized tribes and their contact information. Visit the BIA website and search the Quick Links for resources related to the ICWA, and the Complete List of Federally Recognized Tribes.

Children Belonging to a Federally Recognized Tribe

If a child residing in Georgia belongs to one of the federally recognized Tribes, it is important to comply with ICWA from the earliest stages of a child welfare proceeding. The SSCM must address the following requirements in ICWA:

1. Notification to child's parents, guardian (or Indian custodian), and the Tribe regarding State proceedings involving the child and their right to intervene;
2. Notification to the Court that the child may belong to a federally recognized Tribe;
3. Special placement preferences for Indian children;
4. Active efforts to prevent the breakup of the Indian family; and
5. Use of tribal courts in child welfare matters (the Tribe has a right to intervene in State proceedings or transfer the proceeding to the jurisdiction of the Tribe).

Emergency Removal of a Child

Nothing in the ICWA shall be construed to prevent the emergency removal of an Indian child to prevent imminent physical damage or harm to the child. The emergency removal or placement shall terminate immediately when it is no longer necessary to prevent imminent physical damage or harm to the child and cannot last more than 30 days unless the court makes certain determinations. The SSCM must proceed expeditiously with child custody proceedings, transfer the child to the jurisdiction of the appropriate Indian Tribe, or return the child to the parent(s) or Indian custodian, as appropriate.

Indian

"Indian" is a term used in United States federal language, including the Indian Child Welfare Act, to refer to any person who is a member of a federally recognized American Indian Tribe or Alaska Native Village, or who is an Alaska Native and a member of a Regional Corporation.

Indian Child

Any unmarried person who is under age 18 and is determined by the Tribe, Bureau of Indian Affairs, or Department of the Interior, to be:

1. A member or eligible for membership of an Indian Tribe as determined by the Tribe and/or Nation, the Bureau of Indian Affairs (BIA), or the Department of the Interior; or
2. Eligible for membership in an Indian Tribe as determined by the Tribe and the biological child of a member of an Indian Tribe.

Indian Custodian

Any Indian who has legal custody of an Indian child under applicable Tribal law or custom or under applicable State law, or to whom temporary physical care, custody, and control has been transferred by the parent of such child. An Indian may demonstrate that he or she is an Indian custodian by looking to Tribal law, Tribal custom or State law.

Tribal Membership

What constitutes membership in a Tribe varies from Tribe to Tribe, and final determination of membership lies solely with the Tribe. Tribal membership is not an arbitrary label assigned at the discretion of the parent. If an Indian child who is a member or eligible for membership in more than one Tribe, the Indian Tribe with which the Indian child has the more significant contacts and connection shall be the child's Tribe.

Evidentiary Standards

Clear and convincing evidence: To prove a foster care placement is necessary for an Indian child, the SSCM must show enough convincing evidence that the judge believes it to be true.

Beyond a reasonable doubt: To prove a termination of parental rights is necessary for an Indian child, the SSCM must show enough evidence that leaves the judge with no reasonable doubt of the damage to the child. This is the highest level of proof required under the law.

ICWA Protection for Parents and Indian Custodians

ICWA also provides several protections for parents or Indian custodians of an Indian child. These protections include the right to revoke voluntary consents to placements and to adoptions at any time prior to a decree of termination or adoption. Any consent given prior to, or within ten days after the birth of the Indian child shall not be valid. If consent is withdrawn, the Indian child shall be immediately returned to the parent or Indian custodian. After a Decree of Adoption is entered based on a voluntary consent, the parent may petition the court to vacate the adoption decree based on fraud or duress. Upon a finding that consent was obtained through fraud or duress, the court shall vacate the adoption decree and return the child to the parent. However, no adoption decree in effect for at least two years may be challenged on this basis.

If an adoption decree is ever vacated or set aside, or the adoptive parents voluntarily consent to termination of their parental rights, the Indian child shall be returned to the biological parent or prior Indian custodian absent a showing that return is not in the best interests of the child.

Active Efforts

ICWA requires that states provide active efforts to:

1. Provide remedial and rehabilitative services after an investigation and before a decision is made to place the child out of the home, and
2. Provide reunification services after the child has been removed in order to prevent the breakup of the family.

Active efforts are more intensive than reasonable efforts. For example, reasonable efforts might be only a referral for services, but active efforts would be to arrange for the best-fitting services and help families engage in those services. ICWA's active efforts standard requires caseworkers to walk the parent or Indian custodian through each step of the case plan, and to assist them in accessing the services and meeting the obligations under the plan. These efforts may include, but should not be limited to: assisting the parent or Indian custodian in their efforts to access food, medical treatment, safe housing, parenting classes, emergency phone service, substance abuse treatment, transportation to/from services, day care, or whatever other services will assist the parent in retaining custody of the child. There must be a reasonable connection between the service offered and the issue that caused the child's removal in the first place. In other words, the active efforts must be clearly designed to facilitate reunification of the child and the family.

Placement of Indian Children

The Interstate Compact on the Placement of Children (ICPC) applies to interstate placements under ICWA when the intent is to have the receiving state supervise the placement. However, Tribes are not part of the ICPC and thus if a child is to be placed into tribal custody, the ICPC would not come into play. If an Indian child is transferred to a tribal jurisdiction in another state, the ICPC may apply. The ICPC is not required for a child to be transferred across state lines into tribal jurisdiction. However, if the Tribe would like the sending state (Georgia) to continue making payments to the foster family located within tribal jurisdiction, the Tribe may contact the state within which it is located and request them to utilize the ICPC for the transfer. DFCS would then work with the state of the receiving Tribe to continue making payments.

Qualified Expert Witness

Under ICWA, a "qualified expert witness" is someone who can provide the court with knowledge of the social and cultural standards of the Indian child's Tribe to diminish the risk of any cultural bias. The testimony of a qualified expert witness is required in order to make a foster care placement or termination of parental rights for an Indian child. A qualified expert witness can be identified with help from the child's Tribe, the BIA, or Indian organizations, and is meant to be a person with more knowledge than the average social worker or anthropologist. The social worker assigned to the Indian child may not serve as a qualified expert witness in child custody proceedings concerning the child.

Georgia Tribes

Pursuant to O.C.G.A. §44-12-300, the State of Georgia officially recognizes as legitimate American Indian Tribes of Georgia the following tribes, bands, groups, or communities:

Georgia Tribe of Eastern Cherokee
P.O. Box 1993
Dahlonega, Georgia 30533

Lower Muscogee Creek Tribe
106 Tall Pine Drive
Whigham GA 39897

Cherokee of Georgia Tribal Council

If a child is a member of a Georgia Tribe, he or she must have the opportunity to maintain connections with their Indian heritage as well. The SSCM can conduct placements consistent with ICWA placement preferences even though not technically required. Tribal members would likely meet requirements as nonrelated extended family members because tribal communities tend to be related or close-knit communities. Consider the child’s tribal members as viable options for holiday visits, tutors, mentors, Court Appointed Special Advocates, etc.

If the child’s Tribe is seeking federal recognition and is granted such recognition, formal ICWA case services, such as active efforts to prevent the breakup of the Indian family and placement preferences, will then be required. If ICWA active efforts are attempted before the federal recognition, it is less disruptive for the child than having to change services and placement to make them in accordance with ICWA.

Pursuant to O.C.G.A. §19-9-43, the court may allow the child’s Tribe to participate in the child custody proceeding upon request of the Tribe. If the court permits the Tribe to participate in the child custody proceeding, the Tribe may do the following with the permission of the court: be present at the hearing; address the court; request and receive notice of hearings; request to examine court documents relating to the proceeding; present information to the court that is relevant to the proceeding; submit written reports and recommendations to the court; and perform other duties as requested or approved by the court.

Practice Guidance

Title IV-E State Plan

Under section 471(a) of the Social Security Act, as a condition of receiving title IV-E funding, states, territories, and tribes must have a title IV-E plan that is approved by the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services (HHS), Administration for Children and Families (ACF). The title IV-E plan is a single document that applies to all three title IV-E program components (foster care, adoption, and kinship guardianship).

The title IV-E plan ensures direct financial assistance is made available to eligible children under the title IV-E program. Further, it ensures that the state will adhere to federal plan requirements primarily intended to ensure children's safety, permanence, and well-being, and shall be in effect and mandatory in all political subdivisions of the State. A title IV-E plan must be submitted to ACF using a "pre-print". The "pre-print" is a form that lists title IV-E provisions and provides a space for the title IV-E agency to fill in the relevant law, regulation, or policy indicating compliance with the given provision. Once the state plan has been submitted to HHS and approved, it remains in effect until amendments are required. An amendment is required if there is any significant and relevant change in the information or assurances in the plan, or the organization, policies or operations described in the plan (see policy 1.9 Administration: Public Inspection of CFSR Material and Availability of Plans).

Monitoring/Review Processes

1. The monitoring process includes components of Georgia's Comprehensive Child Welfare Information System (CCWIS), also known as Georgia SHINES, statewide quality assurance review process, Title IV-E review process, and internal audits. Georgia SHINES has reporting tools available for child welfare staff to monitor compliance, which are Georgia SHINES and LENSES reports. Additionally, there are interfaces between Georgia SHINES and other state systems; some interfaces support a business process (e.g. Medicaid application) and some provide access to client information – either to access data or retrieve and store in Georgia SHINES.
2. Quality Case Reviews (QCR): The Quality Assurance (QA)/Child and Family Services Review (CFSR) Unit conducts the Quality Case Reviews (QCR) to evaluate the quality of services provided to children and families. QCR also improve overall safety, permanency, and well-being outcomes for children and families by improving the quality of case work provided by county and regional staff.

3. Continuous Quality Improvement (CQI): The CQI process uses performance consulting as a method to build consistent practice models for all levels of field staff in Child Welfare. Trends that are identified in CQI reviews and reports are used by local agency leaders and stakeholders to improve child welfare, leading to better outcomes for children and families.
4. The Revenue Maximization Quality Assurance Unit reviews cases for documentation and data system processing. These reviews check for compliance with Federal and State laws, regulations, directives, official issuances and departmental policies on a bi-annual basis. The Unit also conducts the Quality Assurance Regional Review to address gaps in knowledge through ongoing staff training.
5. Independent Audits: Periodic and independent audits provide the DFCS leadership team with information to promote improvements in accountability and stewardship within DHS. The Internal Audit Unit often works in tandem with the Investigative Services Unit.

Practice Guidance

Volunteer Services Program

The quality of the Volunteer Services Program depends, in part, upon the degree of administrative investment made by the agency in the planning, direction and support of the program. When recruiting and selecting a volunteer, give attention to the skills, abilities, and interests of the volunteer and how these fit the specific needs of the position. During the application process, ask prospective volunteers to provide information regarding their background, skills and abilities as well as their specific interests. Selection of the volunteer should be based on their area of interest as well as the specific need of the agency and the ability of the volunteer to meet them.

Cooperation and communication are critical components of an effective Volunteer Services Program. Good communication between all parties ensures that the appropriate services are provided and that the volunteer is being appropriately utilized. This cooperative effort will impact positively on the volunteers, agency, children and families served and the community.

Volunteers

Volunteers are persons who contribute services or resources to the agency without financial compensation. DFCS encourages the appropriate involvement of volunteers in providing direct and/or indirect services to children and families. Volunteerism can be mutually rewarding to the volunteer and the agency as it fulfills a desire of individuals/groups to share their interests, abilities and resources for the benefit of the community, while providing useful services for the agency. As such, volunteers should be assigned meaningful tasks/activities that are beneficial to the agency as well as the volunteer. Volunteers should also be provided with the appropriate access to material, equipment and information necessary to complete the performance of assigned tasks.

There are two types of volunteer services:

1. Direct volunteer services: These are services provided directly to children and families under the supervision of agency staff. These services may include, but are not limited to, transporting clients, coordinating/conducting workshops, providing recreation, mentoring, and telephone outreach.
2. Indirect volunteer services: These are services that support children and families served by DFCS. Indirect volunteer services may also include serving at DFCS-sponsored community events (I.e. clothing drive, food pantry, holiday toy collection, prom events, and in-kind services). Volunteers providing indirect services do not have direct contact with children and families.

Volunteer Services Recruitment and Retention

The Volunteer Services Coordinator (VSC) plays a critical role in the strategic recruitment of volunteers. All volunteer opportunities should be advertised within DFCS as well as in the community to obtain a larger pool of potential recruits. The VCS should purposefully engage staff about their needs to conduct and target recruitment efforts on staff needs. As DFCS values input from a wide variety of external stakeholders from all cultural and socioeconomic segments of the community, VSC's are encouraged to attend Community Advisory Boards and other community gatherings to promote a presence of DFCS in the community. The visibility of the VSC in the community connects community resources to DFCS and raises awareness about the mission and values.

To support recruitment and retention of volunteers, the VSC should:

1. Provide clear information on the volunteer role and performance expectations.
2. Provide diverse opportunities for volunteers to enhance their skills and volunteer experience.
3. Value the volunteer's time by ensuring they are assigned tasks that are productive and worthwhile.
4. Provide training opportunities for volunteers;
5. Ensure supervision is provided to the volunteer;
6. Provide constructive feedback to the volunteer;
7. Ensure volunteers have regular opportunities to provide feedback on their responsibilities and experiences;
8. Provide ongoing formal or informal recognition of and/or reward the volunteer's contribution, including but not limited to:
 - a. Appreciation luncheon/dinner
 - b. Presentation of certificates or plaques
 - c. Letters of appreciation
 - d. Recognition party

Room, Board, Watchful Oversight Providers

RBWO Minimum Standards includes standards for volunteers in sections 1.1, 6.27, 13.27, 13.32, 31.1 and 31.4. Sub-contractor roles are addressed in sections 9.1 & 13.42. The RBWO Minimum Standard 13.27 requires that providers who utilize volunteers must have a policy that governs their activities. Volunteers used to meet any RBWO staffing requirements must follow all requirements outlined for regular staff. Volunteer policy must include the following:

1. A completed application for volunteering;
2. A Fitness Determination Letter from DHS Office of Inspector General;
3. A documented assessment of the volunteer which includes a face-to-face interview;
4. A driving record check on any volunteer expected to transport children;
5. Review of at least two references (if the volunteer has previous child-caring experience or fostering/adopting experience, agency/employer references must be obtained);
6. Orientation and training of the volunteer (including Mandated Reporter training);
7. Signing of a confidentiality agreement; and
8. Maintenance of a file on the volunteer to include all related volunteer documents, hours worked, and duties performed.

Confidentiality

Volunteers are responsible for maintaining the confidentiality of client information and are guided by all confidentiality and HIPAA privacy laws (see policy 2.5 Information Management: Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act \(HIPAA\) and 2.6 Information Management: Confidentiality/Safeguarding Information). Volunteers may only have access to the minimum amount of information needed to carry out their job responsibilities. Volunteers must not be included in staff discussions that include confidential client information, or have access to confidential information on staff computers, if that information is not necessary for their role.

Practice Guidance

Child and Family Services Plan (CFSP)

The CFSP is a five-year strategic plan that sets forth the vision and the goals to be accomplished to strengthen the states' overall child welfare system.

Annual Progress and Services Reports (APSR)

The APSR provides annual updates on the progress made toward accomplishing the goals and objectives in the CFSP. Completion of the APSR satisfies the federal regulations by providing updates on a state's annual progress for the previous fiscal year and planned activities for the upcoming fiscal year.

Title IV-E State Plan

Under section 471(a) of the Social Security Act, as a condition of receiving title IV-E funding, states, territories, and tribes must have a title IV-E plan that is approved by the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services (HHS), Administration for Children and Families (ACF). The title IV-E plan is a single document that applies to all three title IV-E program components (foster care, adoption, and kinship guardianship).

The title IV-E plan ensures direct financial assistance is made available to eligible children under the title IV-E program. Further, it ensures that the state will adhere to federal plan requirements primarily intended to ensure children's safety, permanence, and well-being, and shall be in effect and mandatory in all political subdivisions of the State. A title IV-E plan must be submitted to ACF using a "pre-print". The "pre-print" is a form that lists title IV-E provisions and provides a space for the title IV-E agency to fill in the relevant law, regulation, or policy indicating compliance with the given provision. Once the state plan has been submitted to HHS and approved, it remains in effect until amendments are required. An amendment is required if there is any significant and relevant change in the information or assurances in the plan, or the organization, policies or operations described in the plan (see policy 1.7 Administration: Monitoring, Reviews, Reporting and Independent Audits).

Child and Family Services Review (CFSR)

The CFSR is a federal-state collaborative effort designed to help ensure that quality services are provided to children and families through state child welfare systems. They are reviews of state child welfare programs and practice that identify strengths and challenges in state programs and systems, focusing on outcomes for children and families in the areas of safety, permanency, and well-being. The process addresses each systemic factor under review including the statewide/Tribal information system; case review system; quality assurance system; staff training; service array; agency responsiveness to the community; and foster and adoptive parent licensing, recruitment and retention. Reviews also address the outcome areas of safety, permanence, and well-being of children and families served by DFCS using data from AFCARS and NCANDS. State/Tribal agencies found not to be operating in substantial conformity shall develop a program improvement plan.

Child Abuse Prevention and Treatment Act (CAPTA) Plan

CAPTA provides funds for states to improve their child protective systems. To be eligible to receive these funds, a state must submit a plan including certain assurances related to how it will operate its CPS system; establish and support citizen review panels; and, to the "maximum extent practicable," annually supply to certain child abuse and neglect data to the Department of Health and Human Services (HHS). States must also perform a range of prevention activities, including addressing the needs of infants born with prenatal drug exposure, referring children not at risk of imminent harm to community services, implementing criminal record checks for prospective foster and adoptive parents and other adults in their homes, training child protective service workers, protecting the legal rights of families and alleged perpetrators, and supporting citizen review panels. Once approved by the Children's Bureau, a state's CAPTA Plan remains in effect for the duration of the state's participation in the CAPTA Development and Operation grant program, but must be periodically reviewed and revised as necessary by the state to reflect changes in the state's strategies and programs.

Program Improvement Plans (PIP)

States prepare a Program Improvement Plan to develop or enhance policies, training, and practice identified as needing improvement to increase positive outcomes for children and families. The plan must address any outcome domains or systemic factors that are not in substantial conformity and their associated items.

The Quality Assurance (QA)/Child and Family Services Review (CFSR) Unit conducts targeted QCR to evaluate the quality of services provided to children and families and barriers to permanency. QCR also improve overall safety, permanency, and well-being outcomes for children and families by improving the quality of case work provided by county and regional staff.

The DFCS Placement and Permanency Section reviews data and information on a regular basis regarding children remaining in care for 24 months or longer. The foundational objective of OPM is to ensure that children placed in RBWO care are safe from abuse and neglect. OPM also provides training and technical assistance to providers to support their ability to meet quality of care and performance expectations. OPM partners with stakeholders in the review of the RBWO Minimum Standards to ensure they continue to meet safety and quality standards as outlined in policy 14.1 Resource Development: Safety and Quality Standards.

Practice Guidance

Sex trafficking is one form of human trafficking. Human trafficking is most commonly for the purpose of sex trafficking or sexual servitude, forced labor or for the extraction of organs or tissues, including surrogacy. It is a serious public health problem that negatively affects the well-being of individuals, families, and communities. Human trafficking occurs when a trafficker exploits an individual with force, fraud, or coercion to make them perform commercial sex or work. This type of violence exploits women, men, and children across the United States and around the world.

Perpetrators of human trafficking often target people who are poor, vulnerable, living in an unsafe situation, or searching for a better life. Many victims are women and girls, though men and boys are also impacted. Victims can come from all backgrounds, races, ethnicities, sexual orientations, gender identities, citizens, non-citizens, and income levels. Victims can become trapped in different locations and situations, and do not have to be physically transported between locations to be victimized. Victims are often controlled through assault, threats, false promises, perceived sense of protection, isolation, shaming, and debt.

Youth who are victims of sex trafficking are often seduced, coerced or forced into trafficking. For example, youth with a history of abuse and neglect or who are homeless are more likely to be exploited. Traffickers will identify a youth’s vulnerabilities and prey upon their normal desires for love, attention, or material items, and the meeting of basic needs, such as shelter or food. Many victims of sex trafficking do not see themselves as victims and will make efforts to protect their abuser. Victims of sex trafficking may have suffered significant psychological, physical and sexual abuse and may exhibit anxiety, depression, and post-traumatic stress syndrome.

Consequences of sexual violence, including sex trafficking, can be immediate and long term, including physical and relationship problems, psychological concerns, and chronic health outcomes.

Practice Guidance

The Child and Family Services Improvement Act of 2006 requires all states to have a disaster plan in place to address how the state's child welfare agency will ensure a continuity of child welfare services in the wake of a disaster. This disaster plan should incorporate how services along the child welfare continuum from intake through adoptions will be provided. The plan should include procedures for locating the children and families involved with the child welfare agency and ways to ensure their safety and well-being. Since all emergency response efforts begin and end at the local level, it is incumbent upon the state to support the development of county plans and to facilitate emergency response as needed.

Discussion

The Division of Family and Children Services (DFCS) is committed to achieving safety, permanency, well-being and self-sufficiency for children and families served. In serving Georgia’s most vulnerable residents, DFCS manages information that is highly confidential, sensitive, and privileged. Information management is not limited to the processes of gathering, inputting, and record-keeping of case information. It also includes proper storage, restriction of use and disclosure of information. DFCS has the responsibility to have safeguards in place to prevent the unauthorized disclosure of information.

DFCS serves as the gatekeeper of information and carefully considers any request for information. Requests may take the form of written requests from individuals served by the agency, legal subpoenas, Ledbetter requests, Open Records Request, or requests for public access to information on cases resulting in a child fatality or near fatality. When confidential information is determined to be releasable, DFCS makes limited, specific disclosures as indicated by law.

DFCS adheres to confidentiality standards not only to preserve the privacy of an individual; but also, to foster relationships of respect and trust between individuals and professionals who may provide necessary and needed assistance. The state of Georgia has entrusted DFCS with the responsibility of providing child welfare services to families in need. Families served by DFCS share personal information about themselves and expect that disclosures will not occur except under certain circumstances, including for the purpose of establishing necessary services. The child welfare agency relationship with families relies on the family’s confidence that what they reveal will not be shared with others.

DFCS has the responsibility to explain to families the agency’s privacy practices and any anticipated reasons for disclosure of confidential and protected health information required or permitted by law. Families are advised when their express permission, otherwise known as consent, is necessary for release of their confidential information. Prior to obtaining consent, DFCS ensures that an individual is given the opportunity to make a voluntary and informed decision to consent to the disclosure of confidential information. Individuals are provided with accurate, adequate, and relevant information necessary for them to have a full understanding of the authorization they are considering. DFCS informs individuals what confidential and protected health information is subject to release and the intended purpose and recipients of the release of information prior to obtaining the individual’s written consent. Individuals should be given the opportunity to ask questions to clarify any confusion. Once the proper information is provided and the individual expresses an understanding then they are enabled to make a proper and knowledgeable decision regarding consent. DFCS is committed to ensuring that informed consents are ethically obtained and used for specific purposes permitted by law.

Requirements

Georgia’s Statewide Automated Child Welfare Information System, also known as Georgia SHINES, is the official comprehensive case management and data collection system for the Georgia Division of Family and Children Services (DFCS). It serves as the legal case record of the State of Georgia’s involvement with families and serves a crucial role in informing decision making and supporting caseworkers’ interactions with children, youth and families. The data collected in Georgia SHINES is used to enhance program efficiency and improve outcomes for families served while also for federal and state reporting requirements. Additionally, Georgia SHINES facilitates information sharing with other agencies that serve families which enhances cross system collaboration and coordination of services.

DFCS staff will record all case activities and payments in Georgia SHINES, including but not limited to the following:

1. Child Protective Services (Intake, Investigations, Family Support Services, and Family Preservation Services)
2. Foster Care Services

3. Adoption and other Permanency Services
4. Resource Development
5. Fiscal Support Services

DFCS staff will document all activities (casework services) performed in support of the services provided to or on behalf of an individual or family unit in the appropriate case and stage, within a maximum of 72 hours of occurrence. It is best practice to document events on a case as soon as possible to ensure all available information on a child and family is readily available.

Intake reports must be documented immediately upon the receipt of the intake information.

DFCS will shall upload all information received from service providers, stakeholders and community partners, informal supports, etc. into the appropriate case stage in Georgia SHINES External Documentation within a maximum of 72 hours of receipt. Information includes but is not limited to the following:

1. Court orders
2. Medical and mental health reports
3. Educational reports
4. Photographs
5. Service provider reports

Procedures

Practice Guidance

The Georgia SHINES case management system documents progress toward outcome achievement and serves as the foundation of decisions regarding child safety, permanency and wellbeing. It is also a vital resource for the agency in providing continuity of services to children and families and as serves as a resource when court action is needed on a case.

Georgia SHINES also serves as an administrative tool used to provide information to state and county administrators. Some information retained in Georgia SHINES may also be seen by auditors, the legal community and, in some instances, the media. Therefore case records must contain factual information collected, assessed and accurately documented by DFCS staff. In addition, information must be entered in a timely manner in order to maintain the integrity of the information, and to ensure information is available to assist in decision making regarding a case.

Primary Client

The Georgia SHINES system will automatically populate the primary client for services, based on the client relationship selected.

1. For Child Protective Services (CPS) stages, the primary client will be the primary caretaker and the relationship displayed in the person tab will be Primary Caretaker (PK).

2. For the Foster Care Family (FCF) stage, the client relationship will be displayed as “self.”
3. For the Foster Care Child (FCC) stage, the primary client will be the child in care and the relationship reported in the person tab will be “self.”
4. For the Adoption (ADO) stage, the primary client will be the child free for adoption and the relationship reported in the person tab will be “self.”
5. For the Foster Adoption (FAD) stage, the primary client will be the foster/adoptive resource and the relationship reported in the home information tab will be the name of the foster/adoptive parents or the name of the Child Placing Agency (CPA) resource.

Adoption records will be retained, sealed and locked in Georgia SHINES; the previous process of retaining hard copies of adoption records is no longer applicable.

The Georgia SHINES case records on siblings not placed for adoption in the same home will be prepared separately per the procedures outlined in this section. Material that is pertinent to more than one sibling should be duplicated and included in each child's Georgia SHINES case record.

The Data Quality Unit conduct reviews to evaluate the quality and integrity of AFCARS data in cases in which the placement for a child in foster care has been changed to an adoptive placement in Georgia SHINES. The DQU utilizes a review instrument that incorporates the 37 AFCARS data elements and adoption quality standards into 14 questions. The review guide is divided into four sections - biological family demographics, legal, adoptive placement information and a section that focuses on person and case mergers due to duplicates within Georgia SHINES. AFCARS errors identified during the review are shared with the county department to be rectified. The Data Integrity Specialist (DIS) are available to assist the county departments with resolving AFCARS errors identified during the review. DQU's review may occur pre/post adoption finalization but shall occur prior to case closure or progression to the PAD stage in Georgia SHINES.

Practice Guidance

The adoption assistance case is to be maintained by the county department following finalization of the adoption so information will be available for the ongoing management of adoption assistance benefits. Adoption assistance cases contain confidential information of a child whose adoption has been finalized and must be kept secure. The adoption assistance records will contain documentation of the Rev Max Title IV-E determination, but court orders and other information used by Rev Max to make their Title IV-E determination are not to be maintained in the adoption assistance records.

A child who has been approved for adoption assistance payments is automatically approved for non-recurring funds and the adoption Assistance Agreement serves as the agreement for all adoption assistance benefits. The adoption assistance case record documentation includes the necessary documentation for non-recurring adoption assistance.

Adoption (Private/Independent)

There are four types of independent adoptions.

1. Non-Relative (Third Party) - Adoption of a child usually arranged by an attorney, physician or other individual with the direct involvement of the biological parents; if the child or adoptive parents reside in another state, the provisions of the Interstate Compact on the Placement of Children must be followed.
2. Relative - Adoption of a child by a relative as defined as any relation by blood, marriage or adoption.
3. Step-Parent - Adoption of a child by the spouse of one of the birth/legal parents where the other birth/legal parent is deceased or his/her parental rights have been terminated either voluntarily or by court action.
4. Confirming Adoption (Domestication of Foreign Decree) - Adoption of a child who has already been adopted in a foreign country. The purpose being to secure a decree in the United States, which entitles the child to a Georgia birth certificate.

Adoption Assistance Agreement

This is a legal and binding agreement between the agency and the adoptive parent(s) regarding adoption assistance benefits. It establishes types, duration, amount(s) of benefits, and other agreed upon stipulations. A fully executed adoption assistance agreement refers to an adoption assistance agreement that was negotiated with the adoptive parent(s); reviewed and discussed with the adoptive parent(s); and all the required signatures and dates were obtained.

Supplemental Security Income (SSI)

Supplemental Security Income is a monthly benefit for persons who are disabled or who have functional limitations as determined by the Social Security Administration.

Termination of Parental Rights (TPR)

Termination of Parental Rights is the process for severing all legal rights between a child and his/her parent, except the right of the child to receive child support from his/her parent and inherit from and through his/her parent until a final order of adoption is entered. The child shall maintain the right to pursue any civil actions against his/her parent. The relationships between the child and his/her siblings and extended family remain intact until terminated by final order of adoption. Court orders terminating parental rights shall be without limit as to duration.

Voluntary Surrender of Parental Rights

This refers to when the legal parent(s) of a child relinquishes his/her rights and obligations to his/her child or children. A validated voluntary surrender of parental rights is where the 10-day revocation period has expired.

Public Law 104-191 Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act (HIPAA) of 1996

J.J. v. Ledbetter Consent Decree

Requirements

The Division of Family and Children Services (DFCS) staff, volunteers, interns, contractors, agents, and providers of services will:

1. Comply with the Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act (HIPAA) which establishes minimum federal standards for protecting the privacy, access, use and disclosure of Protected Health Information (PHI).
2. Ensure that PHI and Personally Identifiable Information (PII) is not unlawfully disclosed.
3. Not disclose PHI to any person, agency or contractor without first obtaining informed consent via a valid Authorization for the Release of Information (ROI) from the owner of the PHI that has been notarized or signed in the presence of a DFCS staff that either knows or has identified the individual releasing the PHI (see policy 2.6 Information Management: Confidentiality/Safeguarding Information for the components of a valid ROI).

To disclose substance use disorder patient information, a valid ROI may identify either an organization/entity or a specific individual within an organization/entity to whom the information is being released (see Practice Guidance: Substance Use Disorder Treatment Records).

4. Allow disclosure of PHI, when appropriate, without prior written consent to:
 - a. A business associate acting on behalf of DFCS if:
 - i. There is a properly executed business associate agreement (BAA) in place;
 - ii. The BAA between DFCS and the business associate contains assurances that the released PHI and any PHI created as a result of the contract will remain confidential; and
 - iii. The PHI will only be used for the intended purpose for which DFCS has contracted.
 - b. A medical provider for treatment, payment or health care operations.

 DFCS may disclose PHI when services are being provided to the individual and his/her child(ren) and the individual has legal custody of the child(ren). Examples include sharing PHI of the caregiver or children with treating physicians, hospitals or other treatment providers. However, if the caregiver does not have legal custody, look to confidentiality and “J.J. v. Ledbetter” for guidance on releasing PHI (see Practice Guidance: Inapplicability of J.J. v. Ledbetter When Requesting One’s Own PHI).
 - c. Public health providers.
 - d. Government agencies tasked with preventing or controlling disease, injury, or disability and meeting public health needs.
5. Allow disclosure of PHI, when appropriate, without prior written consent if requested in writing to:
 - a. Other child protective agencies, bound by similar confidentiality statutes, investigating child abuse and/or neglect
 - b. A court or grand jury subpoena. The local County Director must contact DFCS Office of General Counsel (OGC) to review the subpoena and provide guidance regarding the request
 - c. A District Attorney/Solicitor-General. The local County Director must contact the OGC to review and provide guidance regarding the request
 - d. Law enforcement. PHI may be disclosed to law enforcement only if law enforcement is investigating a report of known or suspected child abuse or neglect. PHI requested to assist law enforcement with investigating other crimes, including probation violations, shall not be released
 - e. The Governor, Lieutenant Governor, Attorney General or Speaker of the House. See O.C.G.A. § 49-5-41(a)(10) for procedure
 - f. The Office of the Child Advocate
 - g. Court Appointed Special Advocate (CASA), only upon presentation of a court order appointing that CASA as a Guardian Ad Litem for the child
 - h. A Child Advocacy Center operated for the purpose of investigating known or suspected child abuse and treatment
 - i. Citizen Review Panels
 - j. The Child Fatality Review Board
6. Disclose only the minimally necessary PHI needed to accomplish the intended purpose of the use, disclosure or request.

7. Promptly inform an individual suspected to be a victim of abuse, neglect, or domestic violence or their personal representative that their PHI has been or may be disclosed to a government authority including a social service or protective services agency, authorized by law to receive reports unless:
 - a. Informing the individual would place the individual at risk of serious harm; or
 - b. It is reasonably believed that the personal representative is responsible for the abuse, neglect, or other injury. (See Practice Guidance: Personal Representative)
8. Document any disclosure of PHI disclosed without a valid ROI in the Georgia SHINES case record. Include the following components in the Contact Narrative:
 - a. The date of each disclosure;
 - b. The name and address, if known, of the person who received the PHI;
 - c. A brief description of the PHI disclosed;
 - d. A brief statement of the purpose of the disclosure that reasonably informs the individual of the basis for the disclosure or, in lieu of such a statement, a copy of the written request for disclosure.
9. Upon receipt of a request for an accounting of disclosures from the owner of the PHI (see Practice Guidance: Right to Accounting of How and Why PHI was Disclosed):
 - a. Notify the OGC immediately.
 - b. Respond no later than 60 days after the receipt of the request.
 - c. Provide the requested accounting of disclosures made up to six years prior to the date of the request.
 - d. If multiple disclosures are made during the accounting period, include the frequency, periodicity, or number of disclosures made during the accounting period and the date of the last disclosure.
 - e. Provide such accounting once in a 12-month period without charge. Subsequent requests for accounting in the 12-month period can assess a reasonable cost-based fee (i.e. supplies, labor, postage).
 - f. Document in Georgia SHINES the accounting that is provided to the individual including the individuals and department responsible for receiving and processing.
10. Provide copies or access to an individual to review his/her own PHI within the case record, within ten (10) business days of receipt of the request.

An individual's request to access their own PHI may be denied on the grounds that access may result in risk of harm to the individual or to another person. However, prior to any decision to deny access, the DHS Privacy Officer should be consulted to review the request and any related documentation at privacy@dhs.ga.gov.

11. Prevent the re-disclosure of PHI unless consistent with HIPAA.
12. Employ reasonable procedures to safeguard PHI from potential disclosure in any form including paper documents, verbal communications, emails, computer screens, cellular phones, fax machines, copy machines and printed documents.
13. Report any suspected or known unwarranted disclosure of PHI or other known breach of HIPAA to the DHS Privacy Officer at privacy@dhs.ga.gov.

14. Keep a record of each breach in compliance with applicable regulations or requirements through the DHS Privacy Officer.

Procedures

DFCS will:

1. Upon initial contact with an individual served by DFCS, provide him/her with the Notice of Privacy Practices.
2. Implement reasonable procedures to safeguard PHI in any form (e.g. paper documents, verbal communications, emails, computer screens, cellular phones, fax machines, copy machines and printed documents).
3. Prior to disclosure of any PHI, including sharing information at family meetings, family team meetings, multidisciplinary team meetings or staffings, etc.:
 - a. Inform the individual that their PHI is protected by HIPAA, and if third parties will be present at the meeting, and disclosure of PHI is necessary for case management services, their prior written authorization is needed to disclose PHI during the meeting.
 - b. Obtain the individual's written consent via a valid ROI, to disclose the PHI to the specified parties for this specific meeting in accordance with policy 2.6 Information Management: Confidentiality/Safeguarding Information.

(See policy 19.3 Case Management: Solution-Focused Family Team Meetings for additional information).

If the individual refuses to sign the ROI, DFCS staff shall not disclose the PHI unless the third party has been removed from the meeting or the third party/parties is included in one of the categories listed in the Requirements. In these cases, consent is not needed to release PHI.

4. Upon receipt of a request to review PHI:
 - a. Verify the identity of the requestor by viewing their state issued identification.
 - b. Verify the validity of the request.
 - i. The requestor must be asking for their PHI; or
 - ii. The requestor must be the parent/guardian or custodian of the child for whom information is being requested.

If the case record contains information that would be detrimental to the child, then the information shall not be released to the parent. For example, the child has disclosed to the doctor that the stepfather is inappropriately touching her, and she is afraid to tell her mother. It would be permissible NOT to release that information. In that situation, immediately contact the DFCS OGC.

- c. Respond to the request by providing reasonable access to the information or providing copies of the requested information, within 10 business days of receiving the request.

The county staff is solely responsible for ensuring that the request is met within the 10-day timeframe.

- d. Charge reasonable copying fees not to exceed $0.25 per page.
5. Document the discussion regard HIPAA in of Georgia SHINES Contact Narrative and upload signed Notice of Privacy Practices and copies of any signed Authorization for Release of Information into External Documentation within 72 hours of receipt.

Practice Guidance

Protected Health Information

Individually identifiable health information held or transmitted by DFCS or a DFCS business associate, in any form or medium (electronic, paper or oral) which relates to the past, present, or future:

1. Physical or mental health condition of an individual;
2. The provision of health care to an individual; or
3. Payment for the provision of health care to an individual

PHI includes but is not limited to:

1. Drug screens
2. CCFA reports or documents
3. Parenting assessments
4. Psychological evaluations or counseling reports
5. Medication information
6. Portions of case plans which include medical or psychological information or health status information

Substance Use Disorder Treatment Records

In July 2020, the Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration (SAMHSA) provided updated guidance on a substance use disorder (SUD) patient's ability to consent to the disclosure of their own information. SAMHSA acknowledged that prior regulations created barriers to SUD patients' ability to disclose their information and coordinate benefits, care, and other services. With a goal to empower SUD patients to consent to the release and use of their PHI however they choose, consistent with statutory and regulatory protections designed to ensure the integrity of the consent process, the regulations which required written consent to disclosures of SUD patient information to name the specific individual to whom disclosure could be made were made less restrictive. Beginning August 14, 2020, the regulations allow SUD patients to include the name of an organization/entity (i.e. the Social Security Administration) or an individual to whom disclosures can be made in a valid consent to release information. With this allowance, SAMHSA hopes to facilitate information exchange while balancing effective SUD care and legitimate privacy concerns for patients seeking SUD treatment.

Inapplicability of J.J. v. Ledbetter When Requesting One’s Own PHI

An individual is entitled to receive his/her own PHI. J.J. v. Ledbetter does not apply to the PHI of the parents, guardians or custodians and children in their custody (see policy 2.10 Information Management: J.J. v. Ledbetter Parent or Guardian Request for Information). When the county receives a request from the parents, guardians or custodians for their own PHI or the PHI of children in their custody, the county is solely responsible for ensuring that the request is met within the 10 day time limit. Under HIPAA, it would be inappropriate to refer the individual to a third party to retrieve their drug screens, medical records or psychological records if the records are a part of DFCS’ record. If the requested information is not contained in the DFCS case record, DFCS is not obligated to assist individuals in obtaining the information. However, DFCS must provide a letter to the individual that DFCS “does not object” to the third party disclosing the individual’s own PHI to him/her.

Personal Representative

When an individual is suspected to be a victim of abuse, neglect, or domestic violence they, or their personal representative, should be informed that their PHI has been or may be disclosed to a government authority including a social service or protective services agency, authorized by law to receive reports, unless doing so would place the individual at risk of serious harm or it is reasonably believed that the personal representative is responsible for the abuse, neglect, or other injury. “Personal representatives,” as defined by HIPAA, are those persons who have authority, under applicable law, to make health care decisions for a patient.

Procedure for Unlawful Disclosure of PHI/Breach of HIPAA

DFCS has a duty to mitigate the impact of any incidents of unlawful disclosure of PHI. As soon as DFCS knows or is notified that an incident of unlawful disclosure may have occurred, the DFCS Office of General Counsel and DHS Privacy Officer should be notified immediately. The appropriate mitigation steps should be implemented at the direction of the Privacy Officer. Without delay, a Data Breach Security Incident Reporting Form must be filled out and submitted to the Privacy Officer at privacy@dhs.ga.gov.

Business Associate

A person or organization, other than a DFCS employee, that performs certain functions or activities on behalf of, or provides certain services to DFCS that involve the use or disclosure of PHI. Examples of business associates include, without limitation, contracted service providers, vendors, translation services (V.A.R.S.) and foster parents. Before PHI is disclosed to business associates, the business associate must have a business associate’s agreement with DHS/DFCS. The business associate agreement may be included in the contract between DFCS and that person or organization. PHI may be shared among business associates without further consent from the individual.

Common Identifiers

Demographic information connected to an individual’s PHI. Common identifiers include, but are not limited to, name, sex, address, date of birth and social security numbers. Common identifiers are protected by HIPAA only if used to identify PHI. Even if these identifiers are not used to identify PHI, confidentiality of this information must still be maintained under Georgia law.

Request to have PHI Corrected

If an individual believes their PHI record is inaccurate, they may request that the record be amended. DFCS must make reasonable efforts to comply if the PHI:

1. Was created by DFCS, and
2. Is part of the case record, and
3. Is available for inspection under the law, and
4. Is inaccurate or incomplete.

The local DFCS office must contact the DFCS OGC if a request is made to correct a DFCS created case record(s) with regard to PHI.

Right to Accounting of How and Why PHI was Disclosed

With the exception of disclosures made pursuant to a valid ROI, an individual may request an accounting (a list) of all disclosures of PHI made by DFCS or its business associates within the prior six years leading up to the date of the request. The local DFCS office must contact the DFCS Office of General Counsel (OGC) immediately upon receipt of any request.

Sanctions

The law imposes severe disciplinary measures upon DFCS and its employees, contractors or others who violate the privacy and security requirements of HIPAA. Disciplinary actions can take the form of retraining, written reprimands, terminations or dismissals. Significant civil monetary penalties may be assessed for DHS/DFCS.

Training and Compliance

All DFCS offices are required to have the poster version of the Notice of Privacy Practices exhibited in waiting areas and other appropriate public spaces. DFCS are required to complete mandatory new employee and annual HIPAA training to prevent the unlawful disclosure of PHI.

 6. Request the individual's informed consent via the Authorization for Release of Information (ROI) prior to disclosure, when disclosure of confidential information is not expressly permitted by law but is necessary for case management services. When a ROI is needed, it must include the following to be valid:
 - a. Name of each specific person, provider or agency to whom the information is being released;

10. Ensure safeguards are in place to prevent the unauthorized disclosure of information in any child abuse and neglect registry maintained by the State, and to prevent any such information obtained from a child abuse registry from being used for a purpose other than conducting background checks in foster and adoptive cases.
11. In the use of child welfare records in court proceedings, section 471(a)(8) of the Act shall not be construed to limit the flexibility of DFCS in determining policies relating to public access to court proceedings to determine child abuse and neglect or other court hearings held pursuant to title IV-B or title IV-E of the Act, except that such policies shall, at a minimum, ensure the safety and well-being of the child, parents and family (see policy 17.6 Legal: Public Access to Dependency Proceedings).

Practice Guidance

Confidentiality

As a child welfare agency committed to maintaining confidentiality, DFCS ensures safeguards are in place to prevent the unauthorized disclosure of information. At the initiation of every case, DFCS staff explains to individuals being served the protections their information is provided and any anticipated disclosures that may be required by law. It is vital that DFCS adhere to confidentiality standards established by law as families place their confidence and trust in child welfare staff. Families deserve the respect and personal autonomy fostered by preserving confidence and personal privacy.

Tips for protecting confidential client information:

1. Only access the minimum amount of case information needed to carry out your job responsibilities.
2. When requesting services, staff will release only the information that is required by law or needed to arrange for services or to fulfill administrative requirements.
3. If confidential material is mailed, it should be sent “certified” and “registered”.
4. When copies of client information are used for ad hoc consultation (e.g., staffing, case reviews, case conferencing, or education planning) and are not needed for the permanent file of the consultant, case management staff are expected to retrieve the copies and destroy them.

5. Properly dispose of confidential information through shredding.
6. Ensure confidential information on your computer is secure. For example, lock the computer before you step away, block the computer screen from the view of passers-by, protect your passwords, etc.
7. Keep paper files in locked file cabinets with the key in a separate secure location.
8. Discussions that include confidential client information should be held in locations such as an office or conference room to prevent passers-by from hearing confidential information.

Family Meetings and Confidentiality

DFCS uses family meetings (i.e., FTM, Transition Roundtable, informal family meetings) to bring together family members and other family supports, including kin, friends, members of the family's faith community and professionals who in partnership create, modify and implement case plans/action plans, or make critical decisions regarding child safety, permanency, and well-being.

Bringing a family together with a solution focused team of support contributes to a variety of potential benefits but may also create a scenario where confidential information is discussed. Prior to the convening of a family meeting, the SSCM must explain to parents/guardians/legal custodians:

1. Their privacy rights
2. They are not required to share their private information with anyone including family members
3. Releasing private information verbally or in writing is their choice
4. They can provide consent through the signing of ROI

Case Record

O.C.G.A. §49-5-40(a)(9) defines "record" as including documents, books, maps, drawings, computer based or generated information, data, data fields, digital images, photographs, video images, audio recordings, and video recordings. Certain items within the case record may not be shared when the individual or agency who is making the request does not need the information contained in such records to carry out its legal responsibilities to protect children from child abuse and neglect. The safety of the children, reporters, and other individuals mentioned in these documents must be considered when providing access to records. These include names (children, reporters, individuals who were interviewed or provided information, etc.); social security numbers, dates of birth; addresses; phone numbers; information about a child who is not the subject of the report; medical, mental health, and substance abuse information that does not specifically relate to findings of abuse or neglect; and Information provided by law enforcement.

Releasing Information in a Manner that Preserves Confidentiality

When releasing confidential information, as permitted by law, to specified individuals or entities certain protections must be in place to prevent further disclosure of the information. Reasonable and appropriate security measures should be established to protect confidential information. When it is necessary to convey sensitive or confidential information, that information must be sent via a secure encrypted email. This information may include any information pertaining to a child welfare case of a current or former client, inclusive of investigative and health information, regardless of whether the information is stripped of identifying details or is otherwise considered confidential pursuant to law. DFCS, as a covered entity, must implement technical security measures to guard against unauthorized access to electronic protected health information (ePHI) that is being transmitted over an electronic communications network. Specifically, the encryption of ePHI during transmission over electronic communications networks with business associates should be used, when possible, to avoid access by unauthorized entities. Local offices have the flexibility to determine when, with whom, and what method of encryption to use. (See the DHS Encrypt Sending and Recipient Instructions in Forms and Tools).

Grand Jury

A panel of citizens that is convened by a court to decide whether it is appropriate for the government to indict (proceed with a prosecution against) someone suspected of a crime.

Subpoena

An order from the court requiring the production of documents or requiring a person to appear in court.

Child Abuse Protocol Committee

A multidisciplinary, multiagency committee was established for each county to define standard procedures and practice for responding to child abuse and neglect. The purpose of the Child Abuse Protocol is to ensure cooperation between all agencies involved in a child abuse case. This coordination increases agency efficiency and minimizes trauma for the allegedly abused child by the legal and investigatory process. In addition, it ensures that treatment is provided for the child, the family, and the perpetrator (see policy 1.15 Administration: Child Abuse Protocol).

4. Review any response to a subpoena for production of documents prior to sending to the SAAG and DFCS OGC for review.
5. Ensure the SSCM or other DFCS staff understands the testimony being compelled by the subpoena and ensure proper preparation for court.
6. Ensure the SSCM or other DFCS staff timely appearance at a legal proceeding when compelled by subpoena.

Types of Subpoenas

Subpoenas are formal written orders usually issued by a court upon the request of any party to a legal proceeding to compel (1) testimony by a witness or (2) production of evidence (i.e., documents) at a time and place specified by the subpoena. A subpoena can be served on an individual at any place within the state.

The Subpoena for Attendance of a Witness may compel an individual's attendance at any legal proceeding (i.e., court hearings, depositions, etc.) to provide testimony under oath. This subpoena may be quashed (nullified) upon the filing of a motion by the SAAG or DFCS OGC.

The Subpoena for the Production of Documentary Evidence may compel any individual to produce the evidence designated in the document. The Court may Quash (deny) or Modify a Subpoena for Production of Documentary Evidence upon the motion of the SAAG or DFCS OGC, at or before the time compliance is compelled, if it is found to be unreasonable or oppressive. The Court may also condition denial of the motion on the party providing reasonable costs of producing the evidence.

DFCS staff must consult their SAAG or the DFCS OGC to determine the action to be taken in response to any subpoena and what compliance is required.

Subpoenas for Collateral Hearings

In general, records can be subpoenaed only in relation to a court hearing. Contact the SAAG or DFCS OGC if subpoenaed to a non-related judicial hearing (i.e., divorce proceedings, custody disputes between parents, civil litigation, criminal proceedings unrelated to child abuse, etc.). If the subpoena falls outside the exceptions, the SAAG/DFCS OGC determines whether the issue falls under an allowable exception and may prepare a motion to quash the subpoena.

Fees and Travel

A witness can be subpoenaed anywhere in the state of Georgia and receives a minimal fee per day while in attendance. Since this function is performed on office time, the witness fee is tendered to the county director. Payment of fees cannot be demanded to force attendance.

The subpoena is not valid if a witness resides outside the county (or DFCS employee works in an office outside the county) where the testimony is required, unless the subpoena is accompanied by tender of the witness fee for one day’s attendance plus mileage for traveling expenses to and from the residence (or office) by the nearest practical route. If subpoenaed to testify outside the state, seek guidance from the SAAG or DFCS OGC who will advise whether attendance is required.

1. Make child welfare records available for public inspection and copying upon request in accordance with state and federal law to comply with the Open Records Act (ORA) of Georgia.

All public records shall be open for personal inspection and copying, except those which by order of a court of this state or by law are specifically exempted from disclosure.

2. Accept written requests by e-mail or facsimile transmission in addition to any other methods of transmission approved by the agency.
3. Release child welfare records to any adult upon request, when such requests are made in accordance with the ORA if the records are applicable to a child who at the time of his or her fatality or near fatality was:

DFCS is not required to produce records in response to a request if such records did not exist at the time of the request.

Procedures

County Director

1. Upon receipt of the ORA request for child welfare records, immediately notify the DHS Office of General Counsel (OGC) of the request for information.
2. Submit the case record to the DHS OGC by the following business day after receiving the request, via overnight mail or hand-delivery.

The County Director is responsible for informing the Regional Director of the receipt of the open records request.

The DHS Office of General Counsel will handle the response to the request including, as applicable, the following:

1. Preparing records;
2. Estimating applicable charges/fees; and
3. Communicating with the requestor.

Practice Guidance

Open Records Act of Georgia

The General Assembly of Georgia has declared its legislative intent of the ORA to align with public policy in favor of open government. Open government is essential to a free, open, and democratic society; and public access to public records should be encouraged to foster confidence in government so that the public can evaluate the expenditure of public funds and the efficient and proper functioning of its institutions. The General Assembly further finds and declares that there is a strong presumption that public records should be made available for public inspection without delay. The ORA should be broadly construed to allow the inspection of governmental records. No public officer or agency shall be required to prepare new reports, summaries, or compilations not in existence at the time of the request.

Open Records Officer

The Department of Human Services will work diligently in fulfilling requests for documents in accordance with the Open Records Act. As authorized by O.C.G.A. § 50-18-71 (b) (2), the Department has designated an Open Records Officer. Official requests for records under the Open Records Act must be made directly to the Open Records Officer. Official Open Record Requests can be sent to the Open Records Officer:

1. By email at openrecordsdhs@dhs.ga.gov; or
2. By mail to:

Georgia Department of Human Services
Office of General Counsel
Attn: Open Records Officer
47 Trinity Avenue SW
Atlanta, Georgia 30334

Public Record Definition

All documents, papers, letters, maps, books, tapes, photographs, computer based or generated information, data, data fields, or similar material prepared and maintained or received by an agency or by a private person or entity in the performance of a service or function for or on behalf of an agency or when such documents have been transferred to a private person or entity by an agency for storage or future governmental use.

Near Fatality Definition

The Child Abuse Prevention and Treatment Act (CAPTA) defines “near fatality”, as “an act that places a child in serious or critical condition as certified by a physician.”

Applicable Charges for ORA Request

An agency may impose a reasonable charge for the search, retrieval, redaction, and production or copying costs for the production of records. An agency may charge a fee for the copying of records or data, not to exceed 10 cent(s) per page for letters or legal size documents or, in the case of other documents, the actual cost of producing the copy. In the case of electronic records, the agency may charge the actual cost of the media on which the records or data are produced.

Response to ORA Request

In any instance in which an agency is required to or has decided to withhold all or part of a requested record, the agency shall notify the requester of the specific legal authority exempting the requested record or records from disclosure by Code section, subsection, and paragraph within a reasonable amount of time not to exceed three business days or in the event the search and retrieval of records is delayed, then no later than three business days after the records have been retrieved.

In any instance in which an agency will seek costs in excess of $25.00 for responding to a request, the agency shall notify the requester within a reasonable amount of time not to exceed three business days and inform the requester of the estimate of the costs, and the agency may defer search and retrieval of the records until the requester agrees to pay the estimated costs unless the requester has stated in his or her request a willingness to pay an amount that exceeds the search and retrieval costs. In any instance in which the estimated costs for production of the records exceed $500.00, an agency may insist on prepayment of the costs prior to beginning search, retrieval, review, or production of the records. Whenever any person who has requested to inspect or copy a public record has not paid the cost for search, retrieval, redaction, or copying of such records when such charges have been lawfully incurred, an agency may require prepayment for compliance with all future requests for production of records from that person until the costs for the prior production of records have been paid or the dispute regarding the payment has been resolved.

 - ii. Contact the District Attorney or local law enforcement:
 1. To determine if criminal action is likely to be brought against the parent/guardian; and
 2. About whether allowing access to the case record by the alleged maltreater may jeopardize a criminal proceeding.
-  If the parent/guardian made an oral request, ask them to submit the request in writing. Assist them in completing the written request, if needed.
- b. Determine whether the alleged child abuse occurred in a third-party setting to identify what information may be accessed.

 - 2. Establish procedures in the county department to ensure the accountability for any funds collected.
- e. If the information requested is classified as un-releasable:
 - i. Provide a written general statement within 10 calendar days of the receipt of the request by the parent/guardian to obtain or view the documentation in the case record, to include:
 - 1. A list of what documents or portions thereof have been withheld and why.
 - 2. A list of primary sources for each item withheld and a general statement as to the type of report that was withheld.

4. Ensure proper redacting or removing of information that cannot be released.
5. Ensure that un-releasable information is not released and that proper information on primary sources is provided.
6. Ensure the timely release of information.

Practice Guidance

Inapplicability of J.J. v. Ledbetter When Requesting One's Own Protected Health Information (PHI)

An individual is entitled to receive his/her own PHI and the PHI of all children in his or her custody. J.J. v. Ledbetter does not apply to the PHI of the parents or guardians or children in their custody. Therefore, when the county receives a request from the parents or guardians for their own PHI, the county is responsible for ensuring that the request is met within 10 calendar days.

Under HIPAA, it is inappropriate to refer those who request their own PHI to a third party to retrieve their drug screens, medical records or psychological records, if they are a part of the DFCS record. If the requested information is not contained in the DFCS record, the county is not obligated to assist the parent/guardian with obtaining the record. However, DFCS must provide a letter to him/her stating that DFCS “does not object” to that third party disclosing that persons own PHI to that individual.

The County or Regional Director shall make this determination based on the specific case circumstances. Consultation with the DFCS Office of General Counsel (OGC) is recommended.

Procedures

Upon receipt of the request for findings and information regarding a child fatality or near fatality resulting from child abuse the County or Regional Director or their designee will:

1. Review the request to determine whether the request meets the requirements for disclosure. All requests must be in writing.

If the request is pursuant to the Open Records Act (ORA) immediately notify the Office of the General Counsel in accordance with policy 2.9 Information Management: Open Records Act of Georgia. If the request is received from the media, legislators, or county officials adhere to policy 2.7 Information Management: Contacts with Media, Legislators, County Officials.

2. Immediately consult the DFCS Office of General Counsel regarding the request.
3. Provide the summary within three business days of the request at no cost to the requestor if the request meets the requirements for disclosure.
 - a. Only the information applicable to the subject child who died or suffered a near fatality should be disclosed; and

- b. Privileged and confidential information should not be disclosed (see policy 2.5 Information Management: Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act \(HIPAA\) and 2.6 Information Management: Confidentiality/Safeguarding Information).

Practice Guidance

CAPTA Requests vs Open Records Request

For CAPTA eligibility, states shall have provisions which allow for public disclosure of the findings or information about the case of child abuse or neglect which has resulted in a child fatality or near fatality. A response for records pursuant to a CAPTA request shall include only the summary of information contained in the case record. No identifying information about the child is provided. When a CAPTA request is received by the county department, the County Director or Regional Director is responsible verifying the request and providing the summary free of charge, and within three days of receiving the request.

In contrast, a response for records pursuant to the Open Records Act includes the child's case record with protected information redacted from the record. The County Director must immediately notify the DFCS Office of General Counsel (OGC) upon receiving an Open Records request in accordance with policy 2.9 Information Management: Open Records Act of Georgia, and submit the case record to the DFCS OGC by the following business day after receiving the request, via overnight mail or hand-delivery. The OGC will respond to the request.

Near Fatality Definition

The Child Abuse Prevention and Treatment Act (CAPTA) defines “near fatality” as “an act that places a child in serious or critical condition as certified by a physician.”

Discussion

The Division of Family and Children Services (DFCS) engages colleagues, the community, families and children with courtesy and respect in order to translate our values and principles into practice. DFCS has the authority and obligation to receive and assess reports of child abuse (maltreatment) that meet the statutory and regulatory definitions of child abuse where the alleged maltreater is in a caregiving role.

When reporters are concerned about the maltreatment of a child and want to make a Child Protective Services (CPS) report, DFCS is available and accessible to the community continuously 24 hours a day, seven days a week via a CPS Intake Communication Center (CICC) at (1-855-GA-CHILD).

CICC began implementation in September 2013 to address the growing need for a statewide child abuse and neglect reporting hotline to improve customer service with the community when reporting alleged abuse and neglect as well as to standardize the Intake Assessment process.

DFCS emphasizes a customer service model approach for conducting the Intake Assessment (IA) and as such requires a high degree of responsiveness to the reporter including showing:

1. Respect and courtesy in all interactions with the reporter;
2. Interest in all aspects of the reporter's account and concerns;
3. Patience which allows the reporter to tell his/her story;
4. Empathy for feelings and circumstances the reporter may be experiencing;
5. Support to the reporter for contacting DFCS with his/her concerns.

The Intake Assessment begins the process of comprehensively assessing child safety by gathering information to assist in locating the problems and behaviors in the everyday life of the family that led to the maltreatment concerns; as well as information that will help to build partnerships with families in identifying solutions to address child safety. The reporter's knowledge of and relationship with the family may not always result in their ability to adequately respond to questions detailed in the intake assessment. Therefore, it may be necessary to guide the reporter in communicating their knowledge of present danger situations or impending danger safety threats, child vulnerability, diminished caregiver protective capacities, and child and adult functioning by asking questions, clarifying responses and affording the reporter the opportunity to correct or expound upon the information reported.

Many reporters fear the caregiver's response to CPS intervention and may elect to report their concerns anonymously. The identity of persons who report allegations of child abuse or neglect is kept confidential. Reports of child abuse or neglect allegations from persons who wish to remain anonymous will be accepted; however intake staff encourage all reporters to provide contact information so follow-up can occur if more information is needed. An intake report received from an anonymous reporter does not diminish the reporter's credibility or the seriousness of their concerns. Likewise, intake reports received from reporters whose knowledge of the family is limited is not discounted or dismissed. The information shared determines DFCS' response to an intake report.

DFCS CICC staff may be the first point of contact that individuals or agencies interact with in order to obtain information about community resources to strengthen a family and to report their concerns about a child's safety and/or well-being. The Centralized Intake Specialist (CIS) must possess the skills necessary to gather sufficient information by engaging reporters to assist in determining the reason for contacting the agency. In addition, the CIS must determine when to refer reporters to community resources and/or to gather information regarding child abuse, also referred to as child maltreatment.

There are four objectives for the Intake process:

1. To provide information to individuals or agencies requesting access to agency or community resources on behalf of themselves or other families;
2. To provide the community a point of contact for expressing concerns about children who may be in need of protection;
3. To assist individuals who are reporting their concerns, provide behaviorally specific, detailed information about families that will assist DFCS in initiating the Initial Safety Assessment (ISA);
4. To determine the agency's response to the report of alleged child maltreatment including whether the allegations of maltreatment meet policy and Georgia statutory requirements.

The intake assessment encompasses the requirement to screen case participants via information systems maintained by DFCS (Georgia SHINES, Gateway, County Master Files, IDS Online, Master Index, Placement Central) as well as other available state agency databases (Georgia Medicaid Management Information System, Sex Offender Registry, Board of Pardons and Paroles, Department of Corrections Offender Query). Safety screenings are a critical part of the Intake Assessment and have a direct impact on the intake assessment decision-making process. Information included in safety screenings that are gathered from each database (DFCS and other State Agency resources) must be carefully reviewed, analyzed, and the results considered during the intake assessment process. The result of the analysis is a critical factor in identifying patterns of behavior and drives the response/intervention to ensure child safety. A Safety Screening analysis includes, but is not limited to:

1. Prior allegations of maltreatment;
2. Specific findings concerning the prior allegations of maltreatment;
3. Ages of the child(ren);
4. Number of prior reports that indicate repeated instances or repeated suspicions of abuse or neglect;
5. Severity of prior reports including both substantiated and unsubstantiated incidents;
6. Specific maltreater information, including if he/she still has access to the children and/or is serving in a caregiver role;
7. Responsiveness of the caregivers to DFCS, and the outcome of previous interventions and/or services provided;
8. Cooperation with the Office of Family Independence concerning benefits;
9. Sex Offender Registry information;
10. Department of Corrections information;
11. Pardons and Parole information.

An intake decision is made after conducting the intake assessment which includes analyzing information gathered related to the six areas of family functioning, including the analysis of the safety screening information. The following are the possible intake decisions:

1. Screen In: There are allegation(s) of maltreatment based on the information gathered
 - a. Case is assigned for an Initial Safety Assessment
 - i. Response time assigned Immediate: Present Danger is Indicated
 - ii. Response time assigned (up to)24 hours: Impending Danger is Indicated
 - iii. Response time assigned (up to) 5 weekdays: There is no Present or Impending Danger Indicated
 - b. Case is assigned Special Investigation: All Special Investigations are assigned response times of Immediate to 24 hours. Immediate response is based on Present Danger Indicated. All others are assigned (up to) 24 hours response time.
2. Screen In: Case is assigned to Investigation due to Special Circumstances
3. Screen In: Policy Violation Assessment: There are no allegations of maltreatment based on the information gathered, however an assessment is needed to determine if there is a violation of foster care policy by the placement resource. Response time for Policy Violation Assessments are 24 hours.
4. Screen Out and Refer: There are no allegations of maltreatment based on an analysis of the information gathered, however the family can benefit from services to strengthen caregiver protective capacity and child vulnerabilities.
5. Screen Out: There are no allegations of maltreatment based on an analysis of the information gathered.

Requirements

The Division of Family and Children Services (DFCS) will:

1. Receive reports 24 hours a day, seven days a week, of known or suspected instances of child abuse, including reports of physical or mental injury, sexual abuse or exploitation or negligent treatment or maltreatment of a child under circumstances that indicate that the child’s health or welfare is threatened.

In Georgia, this includes child abuse (maltreatment) in the forms of physical injury or death, neglect, emotional abuse, sexual abuse or sexual exploitation, prenatal abuse, an act or failure to act that presents an imminent risk of serious harm to the child’s physical, mental or emotional health, and trafficking a child for labor servitude (labor trafficking). For the purposes of child abuse reports, the term “child” shall mean an individual who has not yet attained 18 years of age and who is not an emancipated minor.

2. Be available and accessible to the community continuously 24 hours a day, seven days a week via CPS Intake Communications Center (CICC) at 1-855-GACHILD (1-855-422-4453).
 - a. Ensure County Divisions are accessible 24 hours a day to respond to allegations of child abuse by:
 - i. Keeping current the list of available staff in the On-Call tab in Georgia SHINES;
 - ii. Clearly listing numbers for reporting after office hours intake reports to the CICC at 1-855-GACHILD (1-855-422-4453);
 - iii. Providing the emergency 911 center, local law enforcement and providers of emergency medical services with the telephone number of the County Director and administrative staff responsible for the emergency after-hours response; and

- iv. Assuring that a message is recorded for the principle agency telephone line directing the reporter to call 1-855-GACHILD (1-855-422-4453) to make reports during periods of office closure.
- b. Have a minimum of two listings in the local telephone directories and when possible, include a listing under emergency telephone numbers. Local phone listings should include:
 - i. A specific listing of "Child Abuse and Neglect Reports" under Division of Family and Children Services, listing the CPS Intake Communications Center contact number 1-855-GACHILD (1-855-422-4453); and
 - ii. A separate alphabetical listing in the white pages, which reads "Child Abuse and Neglect Reports" and contains the CPS Intake Communications Center contact number 1-855-GACHILD (1-855-422-4453).
3. Receive intake reports via telephone, fax, other electronic submission (i.e., email, online form, etc.), mail, and in-person interviews.

Mail, faxes and other electronic submission that meet the three components of a report are considered as having received an intake report. The date and time the intake report is received via telephone, affixed on the fax/fax cover, the mail was received in the agency, or on the email shall be used as the intake report date.

4. Immediately contact the reporter to gather additional information when the intake report was received via telephone, fax, other electronic submission or when there is insufficient information to determine whether there is indication of child maltreatment.

Refrain from contacting anyone other than the reporter to obtain information regarding the Intake Assessment as it is viewed as initiating the Assessment. Additional individuals may only be contacted to determine the location of the alleged maltreated child or the family.

5. Engage the reporter to gather information to complete the Intake Assessment.
6. Follow a three-stage information collection process: Introduction, Exploration, and Closing when gathering information from the reporter for completion of the Intake Assessment.
7. Review the Intake Assessment to determine whether the allegation of maltreatment contains the following three required components:
 - a. An alleged maltreater in a caregiving role.

Reports alleging labor trafficking, sexual exploitation or sex trafficking do not require the alleged maltreated to be a caregiver.

- b. A child from birth to under the age of 18 and who is not an emancipated minor.
 - c. Known or suspected allegations of child abuse per Georgia statute (O.C.G.A. §19-7-5) and DFCS policy.
8. Inform all reporters of the following:
 - a. The ability to make an anonymous report.

- b. Child welfare records are confidential, and your identity will not be disclosed, unless otherwise permitted by the law.
 - c. It may be necessary for the reporter to appear in court if court action is initiated to protect the child.
 - d. The law provides protection from civil or criminal liability when the report is made in good faith.
9. Inform all mandated reporters:
- a. Of the ability to request whether the investigation is ongoing or completed, and if completed whether child abuse was confirmed (substantiated) or unconfirmed (unsubstantiated) for the child concerning whom the report was made. If requested, notification will be provided within five calendar days of the request.
 - b. If school personnel, that DFCS shall provide written notification within 24 hours of the receipt of an intake report to the school personnel who made the report.
 - c. That DFCS shall provide written notification within five calendar days of completing the investigation to the school counselor from the school the child was attending at the time of the reported abuse, advising of the disposition (substantiated or unsubstantiated) of an intake report assigned as an investigation. If a school does not have a school counselor, this disclosure shall be made to the principal.
10. Immediately enter all intake reports into Georgia SHINES, but no later than the end of the shift in which the intake report was received.
-  Intake Assessments containing present danger situations shall be entered no later than two hours of the receipt of the intake report.
11. Thoroughly evaluate the Intake Assessment to make an intake decision in accordance with policy 3.2 Intake: Making an Intake Decision.
12. Immediately provide notification of all intake assessments that contain allegations of child abuse to the appropriate law enforcement agency or district attorney. In addition, if the parent/guardian of the alleged victim child is on active duty in the armed forces of the United States provide notification to the military law enforcement and Family Advocacy Programs. Include any pictures accompanying the intake report in the notification (see policy 3.25 Intake: Sharing Intake Reports with Law Enforcement, District Attorney or Military).

Procedures

Intake Assessment Process

The Centralized Intake Specialist will:

1. Introduction: During this stage, set the tone for the call by initiating a dialogue with the reporter in a professional and courteous manner.
 - a. Briefly explain the Intake Assessment process;
 - b. Inform the reporter of the ability to make an anonymous report. When the reporter wishes to remain anonymous, the Intake Assessment process will continue;

- c. Explain confidentiality:
 - i. Child welfare records are confidential, and your identity will not be disclosed, unless otherwise permitted by the law; and
 - ii. It may be necessary for the reporter to appear in court, if court action is initiated to protect a child.
 - d. The law provides protection from civil or criminal liability when the report is made in good faith;
 - e. Obtain the reporter's name, telephone number and address, relationship to child(ren) and family, if applicable;
 - f. Allow the reporter to begin sharing his/her concerns without interruption, if possible; and
 - g. Respond with empathy to the reporter if he/she has emotional reactions to the information being shared and redirect the reporter when necessary to ensure pertinent information is gathered that is relevant to the family's functioning and potential maltreatment/safety issues.
2. Exploration: During the exploration phase, assist the reporter by moving toward a more focused interview approach in order to fill in any gaps in information gathered during the Introduction stage.
- a. Obtain the name, date of birth, address, and current location of all alleged victim children;
 - b. Obtain the name, date of birth, address, and current location of all caregivers and other household members (parents, grandparents, significant other, 3rd party caregivers, etc.). Attempt to gather the names and demographics on both mother and father regardless of where the child(ren) reside;
 - c. Ask the reporter if the child and/or parent/primary caregiver have, or is believed to have, American Indian heritage (see policy 1.6 Administration: Indian Child Welfare Act \(ICWA\) and Transfer of Responsibility for Placement and Care to a Tribal Agency);
 - d. Ask the reporter whether the parent/guardian of the alleged victim child(ren) is on active duty in the armed forces of the United States, and where he/she is stationed; and
 - e. Probe for additional information surrounding the allegations of child abuse, including when and how the maltreater abused the child, the harm/affect to the child, the likelihood of reoccurrence, and current safety of the child.
3. Closing: During this final stage of the Intake Assessment, ensure that all essential information has been collected from the reporter.
- a. Confirm the following information gathered:
 - i. The reporter's name, telephone number and address, relationship to child(ren) and family.
 - ii. The demographic information of the family (names, ages, relationship of household members, identification of caregiver(s) and address).
 - iii. Names of other persons including relatives who may have knowledge of the family.
 - iv. Location of the child(ren).
 - b. Review the information ask clarifying questions. Identify and note all gaps in information.

- i. Is there enough information to determine who is included in the family and where they are right now?
- ii. Is there enough information about the children and any vulnerabilities?
- iii. Is there enough information to determine how the caregiver and other family/household members function day-to-day?
- iv. Does the information (negative or positive) indicate the family's current situation, condition, or dynamics?
- v. Does the information indicate the presence of child maltreatment?
- vi. Does the information indicate any threats to child safety?

Examples of information needing clarification would be statements such as a caregiver “seems depressed”, “often drinks alcohol”, or “seems aggressive.” These are vague descriptions that need a behavioral or observable context in order to qualify this information as a present danger or impending danger situation during the decision-making process.

- c. Ask if he/she has any additional information that he/she feels is important to share that may not have already been revealed;
 - d. Seek the reporter's opinion regarding what he/she believes needs to happen in terms of intervention;
 - e. Obtain any information regarding worker safety;
 - f. Inform the reporter of the next steps in the intake process;
 - g. If the mandated reporter is school personnel:
 - i. Obtain the name of the child's school, school counselor or principal and document this information in the Additional Comments section in Georgia SHINES.
 - ii. Inform that DFCS will provide a written notice acknowledging receipt of the report of suspected child abuse via the Mandated Reporter Letter (see policy 3.24 Intake: Mandated Reporters).
 - iii. Inform of the ability to obtain the status of an intake report assigned as an investigation, including whether the investigation is completed or ongoing.
 - iv. Explain if the intake report was assigned as an investigation, DFCS will provide written notification within five calendar days of concluding the investigation to the school counselor of the school the child was attending at the time of the reported abuse, advising of the investigation disposition (substantiated or unsubstantiated). If a school does not have a school counselor, this disclosure will be made to the principal.
 - h. Thank the reporter for contacting DFCS and end the call.
4. Analyze the information gathered during the contact with the reporter:
- a. Begin to consider and establish CPS jurisdiction for the referral, acceptance for CPS intervention, and assignment based on allegations of maltreatment and the indication of a present or impending danger;

Reports alleging labor trafficking, sexual exploitation or sex trafficking do not require the alleged maltreater to be a caregiver.

- b. Determine if the intake report contains the three required components for an allegation of child abuse;
- c. Thoroughly and clearly document the reported information in the narrative section of the Intake Assessment in Georgia SHINES using the reporter's words;
- d. Conduct all required safety screenings, as outlined in policy 19.9 Case Management: Safety Screenings;
- e. Complete a thorough review and analysis of DFCS history and document in Georgia SHINES (see policy 19.10 Case Management: Analyzing DFCS History);
- f. Review the information reported to evaluate indicators of child maltreatment. Review the definitions of child abuse and select the category of child abuse and the corresponding maltreatment code(s) in Georgia SHINES based on the circumstances of the reported allegations; and
- g. Review the information reported to determine if there is any indication of present or impending danger (see policy 19.11 Case Management: Safety Assessment). Select the corresponding present or impending danger under each applicable Family Functioning Area. If the Intake Assessment is determined to contain a present danger situation:
 - i. Immediately staff the Intake Assessment with the Centralized Intake Specialist Supervisor to confirm the existence of a present danger situation.
 - ii. If it is determined that a present danger situation exists, contact the County Division CPS jurisdiction by telephone and inform them of the need for an immediate response.

Law Enforcement Requests for Immediate Assistance

If law enforcement contacts the CICC requesting immediate assistance, the CICC will:

1. Obtain the reason the officer requires DFCS assistance and his/her contact information.
2. Immediately notify the County Division of law enforcement's request.
3. Inform the officer that it may be necessary to contact him/her again to follow up if an Intake Assessment is necessary.

If the officer is unavailable, follow up with the County Division to provide the information needed, if applicable.

County Division Receipt of Intake Reports

1. When intake reports are received by telephone, mail, fax or other electronic submission (i.e., email, online form, etc.) the County Division will immediately forward the correspondence to the CPS Intake Communication Center (CICC) at CPSIntake@dhs.ga.gov.
2. When a reporter calls the County Division to make a report, forward the reporter call to the CICC line 1-855-GACHILD (1-855-422-4453); however, the County Division may take the Intake Report and relay the information to the CICC.
3. When a reporter comes directly to the County Division to make a CPS report:

- a. Refer the reporting source to the CPS Intake Communication Center (CICC) line 1-855-GACHILD (1-855-422-4453) to take the report while in the County Office; and
- b. If the reporter prefers to make the Intake Report face-to-face, the County Division will take the report and immediately relay the information to the CICC for entry into Georgia SHINES.

When the County Division is taking the Intake Report if available, utilize a three-way call with the CICC in order to participate in the information gathering process with the reporter.

CICC Receipts of Intake Reports by Mail, Fax or Other Electronic Submission

When an intake report is received via mail, fax or other electronic submission (i.e., email, online form, etc.) the Centralized Intake Specialist will:

1. Analyze the information contained in the correspondence to determine if the correspondence contains the three required components.
2. Contact the reporter by telephone to gather additional information.
3. Upload a copy of the report received and the email acknowledgement from electronic submission (acknowledgement that the reporter was notified of receipt of the report) to Georgia SHINES External Documentation.

Practice Guidance

Caregiver means any person providing a residence for a child or any person legally obligated to provide or secure adequate care for a child including his/her parent, guardian or legal custodian; person responsible for the care of a child; other adult that continually or at regular intervals live in the home; a foster parent; an employee of a public or private residential home, childcare institution, day- or childcare facility; school personnel.

1. Primary caregiver: The person living in the household who assumes the most responsibility for childcare.
2. Secondary caregiver: A parent or other person living in, or frequently in, the household who shares with the primary caregiver the routine responsibilities for childcare. A significant other residing in the home may be a secondary caregiver even though this person has limited childcare responsibility and may not have any legal relationship or obligation to do so.

Any person identified as a caregiver for a child should be entered as a principal in Georgia SHINES and all screenings completed and evaluated for any impact on child safety (see policy 19.9 Case Management: Safety Screenings).

Person Responsible for the Care of a Child Means

1. An adult member of a child's household;
2. A person exercising supervision over a child for any part of the 24-hour day; or
3. Any adult who based on his or her relationship to the parent, guardian or legal custodian or a member of a child's household has access to such child.

Anyone designated as a person responsible for the care of a child should be entered as a principal in Georgia SHINES and screened in all systems for any history that could affect child safety (see policy 19.9 Case Management: Safety Screenings).

Reports Involving Alleged Maltreaters who are not a Caregiver or Person Responsible for the Care of a Child

If the allegations are regarding a maltreater who is not a caregiver, or a person responsible for the care of a child, the report should not be automatically screened out without attempts to gather information about a caregiver's knowledge, willingness, and ability to protect the child from the alleged maltreater. When a third party is identified as an alleged maltreater, attempts must be made to gather and analyze information regarding the caregiver's knowledge of the alleged abuse or neglect and the caregiver's level of protection of the child during the alleged abuse or neglect or afterwards. If it becomes apparent during the Intake Assessment that the child's caregiver was not negligent, nor involved in any form of abuse and the third party maltreater is not a caregiver of the child, then DFCS will screen out these Intake Assessments and refer the case to law enforcement. An exception to this rule is in reports alleging sexual exploitation or human trafficking (labor or sex trafficking). Persons not considered third parties are:

1. Foster parents
2. Non-custodial parent living outside of the home
3. School or childcare personnel acting in a caregiver role

Case Name Descriptors

1. Place in the name of the primary caregiver.
2. Place in the name of the minor parent when the minor parent is the primary caregiver for their child.
3. Place in the name of each primary caregiver or legal custodian when allegations of maltreatment are received regarding multiple families living in the same residence.
4. Place in the name of the caregiver from whom the child was removed when allegations of maltreatment are received that occurred prior to a child entering foster care.
5. Place in the name of each legal caregiver when it is determined the same alleged maltreater has abused or neglected multiple child victims.

Intake Interview Skills

The Intake Interview^[1] is predominately focused on information gathering and problem identification. The Centralized Intake Specialist is assisting the reporter to provide information and at the same time identifying and interpreting possible maltreatment, present danger situations, and impending danger safety threats. In order to gather the most information possible, the Centralized Intake Specialist must be able to use critical thinking skills to formulate logical questions based on the information the reporter is communicating. There are seven types of interviewing skills that can be used during an interview that will assist the Centralized Intake Specialist in gathering relevant information related to child maltreatment and the indication of present danger situations or impending danger safety threats. (See Intake Introduction Script)

1. Open-Ended Questions: These questions allow the reporter to expand on a previous question or topic, and do not lend themselves to a "yes" or "no" answer.

Example: "What happened?"

2. Closed-Ended Questions: These questions are used to ask for specific information and can generally be answered with "yes" or "no."

Example: "Have you seen the child with bruises before?"

3. Reflective Listening: This technique essentially involves making a guess as to what the reporter means or is trying to communicate. The first step in reflective listening is to think reflectively. You do not necessarily know what people mean, so you have to reflect on what they must mean and make a reasonable guess. Reflective listening statements can be as simple as repeating a word or two in order to keep the reporter talking. It can be helpful to reflect how the reporter seems to be feeling as he or she speaks.

Example: "So what you are saying is you are angry", or "You are frustrated because..."

4. Suppressing and Refocusing: This technique is used to stop non-productive content or feeling in an interview and to redirect the reporter to more appropriate topics. This technique should be used very selectively and only when the interviewer is certain that the content is not relevant to the report. To use this technique, acknowledge what the reporter has said and then say, for example, "I would like to talk with you now about what you actually saw happen to Susan. Tell me when you observed this." This skill is also helpful when a reporter is off topic, rambling, or repeating the same content. It is applied by redirecting the conversation to the topic that the interviewer wants to gather information on while acknowledging what the reporter has said.

Example: "I recall you saying that Mr. Simpson...Now I would like you to tell me about the older child in the home. What was his name...oh David... Tell me about him."

5. Probing: This skill is essential to collecting sufficient information and is applied by starting with open-ended questions. As the reporter provides information, the Centralized Intake Specialist will continue to move toward more detail with more closed ended questions, such as when, how often, when was the last time, etc.

Example: "Tell me about what happened. Tell me what you know about the family. What about Mom? Tell me about Dad. Does he seem to get angry often? How often have you noticed these angry outbursts? When was the first time? When did you most recently notice him being angry with the little boy?"

6. Affirming: Affirming is done in the form of selective statements of appreciation and understanding. This technique helps to demonstrate empathy. Affirming can send the message that the Centralized Intake Specialist recognizes that the reporter has a perspective and understands what the reporter's perspective is. Affirming is also used to send a message that the Centralized Intake Specialist acknowledges a reporter's right to feel a certain way.

Example: "I understand that it must be frustrating for you when you feel like you are not being heard."

7. Summarizing: This skill can be used to change topics with a reporter or to wrap up the call during the closing phase. The Centralized Intake Specialist will connect and draw conclusions regarding material and information that was discussed and reinforces what was said during the call. This technique will enable the Centralized Intake Specialist to prepare the reporter to move along to another topic or to close out the call. The Centralized Intake Specialist should offer an overall summary at the end of the call, including any step(s) the reporter agreed to take (i.e., contact collaterals, advise the family of a service, etc.).

Example: “So, Ms. X, you have called today to express concern about Jimmy not receiving enough food due to Mom having insufficient income. Jimmy is in generally good health. We agreed that you would take Mom to Little Sisters Food Center to show her how to access food there. You also offered to take her there whenever she may need to go.”

Intake Reports Across County Lines

When allegations of child abuse are reported regarding a child in County A and it is determined the child is a resident of County B, County A must notify County B of the intake report and both counties will coordinate case management activities including identifying which County will have the responsibility to make the face-to-face contact with the child to ensure child safety. When an immediate response is deemed necessary, County A will be responsible for making face-to-face contact with the child in order to assess safety. Some examples are:

1. Intake report received from law enforcement in County A, requesting an immediate response to a home or the allegations indicate an immediate response is needed. The address given for the children indicate they are residents of County B and are visiting in County A. County A should provide the immediate response.
2. Intake report received from law enforcement in County A indicates the children are being taken into protective custody and need to be placed into foster care in County A. The legal residence of the children is County B. County A should complete the immediate case management activities that are required, including the assessment for child safety. Both counties should coordinate all other activities. County B should make every effort to attend the preliminary protective hearing in County A. A transfer of court jurisdiction should occur to County B.
3. When allegations of child abuse are reported regarding a child whose primary caretaker is in jail/prison, the intake report will be assigned to the County Division of the primary caregiver’s legal residence prior to their incarceration, regardless of the location of the child(ren).
4. When allegations of child abuse are reported regarding a child in a hospital in County A and it is determined that the primary caretaker resides in County B, the intake report shall be assigned to County B where the primary caregiver resides.

 When it is determined that an intake report made to County A should have been made to County B, reassign the Intake Assessment in Georgia SHINES to County B immediately. County A should notify County B by telephone when this circumstance exists. Use of email may be appropriate; however, it is the responsibility of County A to ensure that County B is aware of the Intake Assessment assignment. The reassignment of the Intake Assessment in Georgia SHINES does not change the original response time assigned to ensure child safety.

Intake Reports Opened in Error

If a user accidentally opens an intake report in Georgia SHINES and the Centralized Intake Specialist has not selected alleged victims, allegations, disposition, or safety threats, then the intake may be marked as “opened in error” and closed.

Reports of Juvenile Drug Use

Persons that have reasonable cause to believe that a child is habitually using, in an unlawful manner, any controlled substance or marijuana, as defined by Georgia law is encouraged to report such information to the child’s caregiver and to DFCS. If the person exercising loco parentis control over the child is a member of any school, social agency or similar facility, the person in charge shall make the report. DFCS shall receive the information as an intake report then subsequently “Screen Out” and “Refer to Juvenile Court” if there are no allegations that accompany the report of juvenile drug use that are indicative of child abuse by the caregiver.

Child Abduction Response Team (CART)

The CART is a multi-disciplinary team authorized to investigate the abduction or endangerment of children in Georgia and is only activated upon the request of a sheriff, police chief, the attorney general, the district attorney, or designee of any of the aforementioned. CART pulls resources together allowing for a rapid and organized response to missing children.

A family involved in a CART may not necessarily come to the attention of the local DFCS office or require DFCS intervention. A DFCS state office representative serves as the CART liaison who will provide DFCS information to the CART. The DFCS state office representative may contact any local DFCS County office to obtain information about the family involved in a CART and may request the support of county staff. When directed by the DFCS state office representative, CICC should enter an intake report in Georgia SHINES noting a CART has been activated and specifying who directed the initiation of the CART intake report. If the County Division is directly contacted concerning a CART and DFCS intervention is required, the County Division will contact the CICC to relay intake report information.

Rights and Duties of Legal Custodian

A legal custodian is a person who has been given legal custody of a child by order of a court; or may be classified as a public or private agency, or other private organization licensed or otherwise authorized by law to receive and provide care for a child. The legal custodian has the right to physical custody of a child, the right to determine the nature of the care and treatment of such child, including ordinary medical care and the right and duty to provide for the care, protection, training and education and the physical, mental and moral welfare of such child, subject to the conditions and limitations of the order and to the remaining rights and duties of such child’s parent or guardian.

Categories of Child Abuse

1. Physical injury/Physical abuse
2. Neglect
3. Emotional abuse
4. Sexual abuse or Sexual exploitation
5. Prenatal abuse of a child by a parent

6. An act or failure to act that presents an imminent risk of serious harm to the child’s physical, mental, or emotional health
7. Trafficking a child for labor servitude (labor trafficking)

For additional guidance and the definitions of the categories of child abuse see Forms and Tools: Maltreatment Codes.

3.2 Making an Intake Decision

	Georgia Division of Family and Children Services Child Welfare Policy Manual
	Chapter:	(3) Intake
	Policy Title:	Making an Intake Decision
	Policy Number:	3.2	Previous Policy Number(s):	N/A
	Effective Date:	November 2023	Manual Transmittal:	2023-03

Codes/References

- O.C.G.A. § 19-7-5 Reporting of Child Abuse and Neglect
- O.C.G.A. § 49-5-41 (a) (5) Persons and Agencies Permitted to Access Records
- Child Abuse Prevention and Treatment Act (CAPTA)

Requirements

The Division of Family and Children Services (DFCS) will:

1. Thoroughly evaluate the Areas of Family Functioning, analyze DFCS history, results of other types of screening, and assess all other information gathered to determine child safety and well-being and whether an allegation of child abuse (maltreatment) exists. This determination results in a decision whether to screen-in or screen-out the Intake Assessment.

This includes reports involving current or historical incidents of child abuse, irrespective of how long ago the incident may have occurred (see Practice Guidance: Reports Involving Historical Incidents of Child Abuse).

2. Analyze and consider DFCS history when making an intake decision.
3. Screen-in and assign Intake Reports to the Initial Safety Assessment when allegations reported meet the Georgia statute and DFCS policy requirements for child abuse (maltreatment). Assign to the Initial Safety Assessment (ISA) for response within the following timeframes to ensure child safety and wellbeing:

- a. Immediate: a present danger situation is indicated.
- b. 24 hours: an impending danger safety threat is indicated and there is no indication of a present danger situation.
- c. 5 weekdays: child abuse (maltreatment) is indicated, however there is no indication of a present danger situation or impending danger safety threat.

Immediate and 24-hour response times are calculated from the date and time of receipt of the Intake Report. 5 weekdays response times are calculated from the day of receipt (day one is the date the Intake Report is received) and official state holidays count towards the 5 weekdays response time.

4. Screen-in and assign Intake Reports to ISA with an immediate or 24-hour response time when a new intake is received on a family with a protective service alert, and:
 - a. The previous case with the alert was an ISA, Family Support Services or Investigation and the allegations were not assessed.
 - b. The previous case with the alert was in Family Preservation Services and the safety issues were not resolved.
5. Screen-in reports of abuse on children who are not residents of Georgia when the intake assessment contains the three required components, and the following circumstances apply:
 - a. The alleged maltreatment occurred in Georgia; and
 - b. The alleged perpetrator resides in Georgia.

Reports involving human trafficking shall be screened in regardless of where the maltreatment occurred or the state of residence of the victim child.

6. Document justification to support case assignment, including the impact of DFCS history when determining the existence of an allegation of maltreatment, a present danger situation or an impending danger safety threat.
7. Assign all Intake Reports that are screened in immediately or by the end of the shift in which the report was received.
8. Screen-out Intake Reports that do not meet Georgia statute and DFCS policy requirements for child abuse (see policy 3.1 Intake: Receiving Intake Reports).
9. Screen-out and refer to early intervention or prevention services any Intake Report that does not meet Georgia statute and DFCS policy requirements for child abuse but indicates the family may have non-safety related needs and community resources could provide support to the child and/or family.
10. Allow County Directors to override the CICC intake acceptance decision, prior to response time expiration, when the County Director determines the intake assessment does not meet criteria for assignment and provides the rationale for the override decision. This authority does not include changing the response timeframe assigned by CICC.

The override authority extends to Regional Safety Field Program Specialists (FPS) or Lead

11. Maintain an override review process within each region. Conduct monthly quality assurance reviews of intake reports overturned by the region.

Procedures

Upon the exploration of the Areas of Family Functioning based on the reporter's familiarity and knowledge of the family, the CPS Intake Communications Center (CICC) Centralized Intake Specialist (CIS) will:

1. Review the information recorded in the Narrative section of the Intake Assessment and apply the information to the corresponding sections for each area of family functioning;
2. Conduct, analyze and document all screenings as outlined in policy 19.9 Case Management: Safety Screenings.
3. Analyze DFCS history as outlined in policy 19.10 Case Management: Analyzing DFCS History and document a summary of the analysis in the Case Manager Justification section of the Intake Assessment.
4. Analyze the reporter's concerns and Family Functioning information gathered during the Intake Assessment and determine if the reported information meets DFCS policy requirements for child abuse and assign the maltreatment code(s) that represents an evaluation of all information gathered from the reporter and screenings.

It is critical to obtain as complete and as thorough information as possible at intake so that the most appropriate intake disposition can be made. When information is unknown or insufficient at intake regarding child safety, it increases the concern, not decreases it.

5. Upon establishing that an allegation of maltreatment exists:
 - a. Determine if there is an indication of a Present Danger situation or Impending Danger Safety Threat in any of the areas of family functioning using the Georgia Safety Threats tool, see policy (19.11 Case Management: Safety Assessment); and
 - b. Select the corresponding safety threat box in the appropriate Family Functioning Area and provide a justification for the presence of a present danger situation or impending danger safety threat; or justification as to why the child(ren) is considered safe in the corresponding family functioning area.
6. Immediately notify the Centralized Intake Specialist Supervisor (CISS) when a Present Danger situation is indicated, so notification can be provided to the County Division for immediate response to ensure child safety.
7. When it is determined that the Intake Report will be screened in for the Initial Safety Assessment based on the presence of an allegation of maltreatment, and the indication of a safety threat (present danger or impending danger), assign for Initial Safety Assessment for response within the following timeframes to ensure child safety and wellbeing:
 - a. Immediate: a present danger situation is indicated.
 - b. 24 hours: an impending danger safety threat is indicated and there is no indication of a present danger situation.

- c. 5 weekdays: an allegation of child abuse (maltreatment) is indicated; however, there is no indication of a present danger situation or impending danger safety threat.
8. When it is determined that the allegations in the Intake Assessment do not rise to the level of maltreatment:
 - a. Screen-out: No agency intervention needed; or
 - b. Screen-out and refer: Non-safety related needs were identified, and community resources could strengthen and support the family and/or child. Clearly document the family's identified non-safety related need in Georgia SHINES. See policy 3.26 Intake: Screen out Refer Process.
-  Document the notification to the appropriate County Division and oversight authority (as applicable) of the Intake Assessment being screened out.
9. Document in the Intake Assessment's Case Manager Justification Section in Georgia SHINES justification to support case assignment (Initial Safety Assessment, Investigations, Special Investigation, Policy Violation, Screen-out, Screen-out and Refer), including the impact of DFCS history when determining the existence of an allegation of maltreatment, a present danger situation or an impending danger safety threat.
 10. Participate in a supervisory staffing with the CISS to discuss the intake disposition. Be prepared to discuss the information gathered, intake disposition recommendations and how the gathered information supports the recommendations.
 11. Submit the Intake Assessment in Georgia SHINES to the CISS for approval.

Centralized Intake Specialist Supervisor

1. Evaluate the information contained in each Intake Assessment and the CIS's justification statement to ensure the appropriate intake recommendation including the response time assigned.
2. If the recommended disposition and response time is appropriate, approve the intake recommendation from the CIS by documenting in the Supervisory Justification Section of the Intake Assessment the reasons the recommendation was approved.
3. If the recommended disposition and/or response time is not appropriate or additional information/justification is needed to support the recommendation made by the CIS:
 - a. Reject the intake disposition recommendation by documenting in the Supervisory Justification Section of the Intake Assessment the reason(s) for the rejection; and
 - b. Discuss and provide guidance to the CIS if the Intake Assessment is insufficient to determine the appropriate intake disposition.
4. Assign the completed and approved Intake Assessment to the appropriate County Division in Georgia SHINES.
5. For approved screen-out and screen-out and refer Intake Assessments:
 - a. Screen-out Intake Assessments involving a Child Death/Near Fatality/Serious Injury (CD/NF/SI): Submit the Intake Assessment for second level approval in accordance with policy 3.13 Intake: Intakes Involving Child Death, Near Fatality or Serious Injury.
 - b. Screen-out and refer: Assign the Intake Assessment to the County Division to initiate the referral to a community-based prevention or early intervention services in accordance with policy 3.26 Intake: Screen-out and Refer Process.

Practice Guidance

At intake, it may not be possible to gather enough information from the reporter to meet all the safety threshold criteria. The CIS and CISS must then consider the information provided by the reporter and any patterns and trends identified from an analysis of the DFCS history and other types of screening; in order to make a professional judgment regarding the existence of Impending Danger safety threats. The threshold for evaluating this information during the Intake Assessment process is to take the information and consider “if it were true.” In other words, if what the reporter stated during the Intake Assessment were true, would the information indicate a severe, observable, out of control situation that was about to occur involving a vulnerable child? If the answer is yes, then an Impending Danger safety threat exists.

In order to make an informed decision the CIS and CISS must possess the ability to think critically about the information received during the Intake Assessment. This does not mean that the CIS and CISS jump to conclusions or make assumptions about negative family conditions based on their own values. The CIS and CISS must be able to apply critical thinking skills in order to determine what significant negative family conditions are alleged to exist. These conditions may or may not have involved an “incident” or event that has already occurred. The CIS and CISS must be able to adequately articulate their thought process and application of Impending Danger safety threat criteria. (See Georgia Safety Threats).

Making an Intake Decision with Limited Information

There are times when an Intake report is received that contains minimal information concerning allegations of abuse or the location of a child/family. In such circumstances, it is imperative to follow up with the reporter as soon as possible in order to obtain additional information. If the reporter is unable to give sufficient additional information or is unable to be contacted, consider the provided information in conjunction with any history regarding the family that may be available. If prior history is indicated, a detailed analysis of the information in the prior case record will be necessary. When there is a pattern of behavior indicative of child maltreatment or concerns for a child’s safety that can be established based on the DFCS history, ensure child safety by screening in for assignment. A review of the history may also reveal information as to where a family may be located based on their last known address and/or family members who may be able to be contacted. If the reported information is insufficient to either identify or locate a child and/or family and there is no history available or applicable to assist in locating them, the intake report may be considered for a screen out.

Intake Reports Involving Sexual Activity between Minor Children (Child on Child)

When reports are received that indicate two minor children have been engaged in sexual activity, the caregiver or person responsible for the care of the child must be evaluated to determine if any information indicates inadequate supervision/inadequate care and protection or any other applicable maltreatment contributed to the inappropriate sexual activity. Information gathered shall include the required components of a CPS report to be assigned (see policy 3.1 Intake: Receiving Intake Reports).

Example of a report that should be assigned: Two minor siblings are reported to be having sexual contact. Neither child was in a caregiver role or responsible for the care of a child. One of the children has a history of sexual inappropriate behavior (fondling other children's private parts and exposing themselves to other children). The caregiver is aware of the child's behavior and regularly leaves the children home alone without any adult supervision. When the caregiver became aware of sexual contact between the minors, the caregiver did not follow up or seek any assistance. In this instance the report may be considered for screened in.

Example of a report that may be considered to be screened out/screened out and referred: There are no indications of inadequate supervision or any other maltreatment on the part of the caretaker (no history of molestation, DFCS history of inadequate supervision, history of perpetration, etc.) and the family is reacting appropriately to deal with the issue (counseling, not allowing access etc.). In this instance the report may be considered for a screen out/screen out refer depending on the individual family circumstances and any other needs identified during the intake report.

Intake Reports Involving Alleged Maltreaters who are not a Caregiver or Person Responsible for the Care of a Child

If the allegations are regarding a maltreater who is not a caregiver, or a person responsible for the care of a child, the report should not be automatically screened out without attempts to gather information about a caregiver's knowledge, willingness, and ability to protect the child from the alleged maltreater. When a third party is identified as an alleged maltreater, attempts must be made to gather and analyze information regarding the caregiver's knowledge of the alleged abuse or neglect and the caregiver's level of protection of the child during the alleged abuse or neglect or afterwards. If it becomes apparent during the Intake Assessment that the child's caregiver was not negligent, nor involved in any form of abuse and the third party maltreater is not a caregiver of the child, then DFCS will screen out these Intake Assessments and refer the case to law enforcement. An exception to this rule is in reports alleging sexual exploitation or human trafficking (labor or sex trafficking). Persons not considered third parties are:

1. Foster parents
2. Non-custodial parent living outside of the home
3. School or childcare personnel acting in a caregiver role

Intake Reports Involving Non-Resident Children

When an Intake Report is received regarding children who are not residents of Georgia and the report does not meet the criteria for assignment consideration, no action is taken unless the other state's child welfare agency makes an official request (i.e., courtesy interview). All Intake reports screened out for failing to meet the assignment criteria must be assessed to determine the need to refer the report to the state of the child's residence.

Due to the nature of human trafficking cases, and the need to secure the immediate safety of the child, reports involving a child that may be a victim of human trafficking (the child is currently located in Georgia), must be evaluated based on the information related to child maltreatment and should not be screened out solely based on the child's state or country of residence (see Human Trafficking Case Management Statewide Protocol).

Reports Involving Historical Incidents of Child Abuse

When an intake report is received that indicates the allegations of abuse occurred months or even years prior to the date of the intake report, thoroughly analyze the allegations of maltreatment with respect to how it impacts the areas of family functioning (extent of maltreatment, maltreatment context and circumstances, family developmental stages, family pattern of discipline, caretakers' patterns of behavior, child functioning, and family support). In addition to a thorough analysis of family functioning, special consideration should be given to:

1. The severity of the allegations;
2. Any prior DFCS involvement with the family including, the number of prior reports, nature of these reports and outcomes, severity of the reports, patterns observed, interventions implemented with the family, etc. (see policy 19.10 Case Management: Analyzing DFCS History);
3. Whether the alleged child victim is visible or isolated from mandated reporters or the community.

This includes school, daycare, or children who have been withdrawn from school to be homeschooled under circumstances which the reporter believes is an effort to circumvent the school or DFCS' oversight of the child(ren).

4. If the alleged victim has reached the age of 18 at the time of the report, are there other children in the home that may be unsafe.

The result of the analysis determines whether the intake report should be screened in for assignment. Intake reports of historical incidents of abuse should not be screened out based on the time that has passed since the alleged incident.

Person Responsible for the Care of a Child Means

1. An adult member of a child's household;
2. A person exercising supervision over a child for any part of the 24-hour day; or
3. Any adult who based on his or her relationship to the parent, guardian or legal custodian or a member of a child's household has access to such child.

Anyone designated as a person responsible for the care of a child should be entered as a principal in Georgia SHINES and screened in all systems for any history that could affect child safety (see policy 19.9 Case Management: Safety Screenings).

Practice Guidance

Caregiver Substance and/or Alcohol Use or Abuse

Substance use or abuse may lead to multiple challenges for parents and their children. It can negatively affect the ways in which parents interact with and care for their children, which can increase the risk of maltreatment. Parental substance use or abuse may lead to difficulty with emotion regulation and decreased parental involvement and supervision. These negative parenting behaviors also place children at risk for medical and behavioral issues, serious injuries, and educational problems. For children in foster care, the parent's use of illicit drugs has a significant negative impact on the length of time to permanency.

Prenatal Abuse

The Child Abuse Prevention and Treatment Act (CAPTA) includes provisions to address infants prenatally exposed to substances, requiring states to implement a Plan of Safe Care to address the infant's well-being needs once identified as affected. In 2016, the Comprehensive Addiction and Recovery Act (CARA) was signed into law reframing how states deal with prenatal exposure to substances. CARA requires infants exposed to any type of drug (legal or illegal) are assessed and provided services through a Plan of Safe Care.

Affected

An infant "affected" by prenatal exposure to substance use means:

1. The infant is experiencing symptoms of withdrawal, or exhibiting harmful effects in his/her physical appearance or functioning due to exposure to substances (legal or illegal); or
2. The infant has tested positive for the presence of a substance or a metabolite thereof in his/her body, blood, urine or meconium; or
3. The infant has symptoms of a Fetal Alcohol Spectrum Disorder; or
4. The mother testing positive for illegal substances at the birth of the infant; or
5. The mother testing positive for prescription drugs due to misuse at the birth of the infant; or
6. The mother self-disclosed at the birth of the infant a substance or alcohol use problem and use during pregnancy.

Controlled Substance

A controlled substance is generally a drug or chemical whose manufacture, possession, or use is regulated by a government (federal or state law). This may include illegal drugs and prescription medications.

Current Use of Drugs

Current drug use means the illegal use of drugs occurred recently enough to justify a reasonable belief that a person's drug use is current. Examples of current use include a positive drug screen or a newborn exhibiting withdrawal symptoms from the unlawful use of a controlled substance.

Fetal Alcohol Syndrome Disorder (FASD)

FASD diagnostic conditions include:

- Type I: Fetal Alcohol Syndrome with confirmed maternal exposure.
- Type II: FAS without confirmed maternal exposure.
- Type III: Alcohol-related birth defects (ARBD).
- Type IV: Alcohol-related neurodevelopmental disorder (ARND).

Symptoms of FASD can include facial abnormalities, growth deficiencies, skeletal deformities, organ deformities, central nervous system handicaps, and behavioral problems. These symptoms can have lifelong implications for children who were exposed to alcohol in the womb; however, some children with FASD who receive special education and adequate social services are more likely to reach their developmental and educational potential than those who do not receive those services.

Practice Guidance

The CAPTA and the Born-Alive Infants Protection Act of 2002 requires that child welfare agencies respond to reports of medical neglect including the withholding of medically indicated treatment from disabled infants with life-threatening conditions, and applies to born-alive infants. The Act requires the following:

1. Coordination and consultation with individuals designated by and within healthcare facilities with regard to responding to medical neglect.
2. Prompt notification to CPS by the individuals designated within healthcare facilities of cases of suspected medical neglect.
3. At a minimum, DFCS will pursue any legal remedies as may be necessary to provide medical care or treatment for a child when such care or treatment is necessary to prevent or remedy serious harm to the child.

The Act gives DFCS the authority to pursue any legal remedies that may be necessary to prevent the withholding of medically indicated treatment from disabled infants with life threatening conditions.

Born-alive means the complete expulsion or extraction, at any stage of development, of a member of the homo-sapiens species from his or her mother who regardless of whether the umbilical cord has been cut, or whether the expulsion or extraction occurs as a result of natural or induced labor, cesarean section or induced abortion after such expulsion or extraction, possesses life.

Practice Guidance

Human Trafficking

Human trafficking involves the exploitation of people through force, coercion, threat, and deception and includes human rights abuses such as debt bondage, deprivation of liberty, and lack of control over freedom and labor. Trafficking can be for purposes of sexual exploitation or labor exploitation.

Sex Trafficking

Sex trafficking or commercial sexual exploitation of children (CSEC) is defined as the recruitment, harboring, transportation, provision, obtaining, patronizing, or soliciting of a child for the purpose of a commercial sex act. Severe forms of trafficking in persons means sex trafficking in which a commercial sex act is induced by force, fraud, or coercion, or in which the person induced to perform such act has not attained 18 years of age. This intake type includes allegations of a prostituted minor.

A person commits the offense of trafficking an individual for sexual servitude when that person knowingly:

1. Subjects an individual to or maintains an individual in sexual servitude;
2. Recruits, entices, harbors, transports, provides, solicits, patronizes, or obtains by any means an individual for the purpose of sexual servitude; or
3. Benefits financially or by receiving anything of value from the sexual servitude of another.

Sexual servitude means any sexually explicit conduct or performance involving sexually explicit conduct for which anything of value is directly or indirectly given, promised to, or received by any individual, which conduct is induced or obtained:

1. By coercion or deception;
2. From an individual who is under the age of 18 years;
3. From an individual whom the accused believes to be under the age of 18 years;
4. From an individual who has a developmental disability; or
5. From an individual whom the accused believes to have a developmental disability.

Victims of sex trafficking/sexual servitude may have suffered significant psychological, physical and sexual abuse and may exhibit anxiety, depression, and post-traumatic stress syndrome. Many victims of sex trafficking do not see themselves as victims and will make efforts to protect their abuser. In situations where the child's caregiver has not been identified as the maltreater, DFCS must engage the reporter in obtaining information regarding caregiver protective capacity and what efforts have been made to protect the vulnerable child.

Labor Trafficking

Federal defines a "severe form of [labor] trafficking in persons" as the recruitment, harboring, transportation, provision, or obtaining of a person for labor or services through the use of force, fraud, or coercion in order to subject that person to involuntary servitude, peonage, debt bondage or slavery.

Georgia law states a person commits the offense of trafficking a person for labor servitude when that person knowingly subjects another person to or maintains another person in labor servitude or knowingly recruits, entices, harbors, transports, provides, or obtains by any means another person for the purpose of labor servitude.

Georgia defines labor servitude as work or service of economic or financial value which is performed or provided by another individual and is induced or obtained by coercion or deception. Types of labor exploitation include domestic servitude, restaurant work, janitorial work, sweatshop factory work, and migrant agricultural work.

Practice Guidance

Unaccompanied homeless youth Includes youth not living in the physical custody of his/her parent or guardian and who lacks a fixed, regular, and adequate nighttime residence. This includes youth awaiting foster care placement who meets the requirements of McKinney-Vento. Unaccompanied homeless youth often face unique barriers to enrolling and succeeding in school. Without a caregiver to advocate for them and exercise parental rights, they are sometimes denied enrollment and remain out of school for extended periods of time. Unaccompanied youth may not understand their educational rights or know how to acquire this information.

According to McKinney-Vento the term homeless children and youths means individuals who lack a fixed, regular, and adequate nighttime residence and includes:

1. Children and youths who are sharing the housing of other persons due to loss of housing, economic hardship, or a similar reason; are living in motels, hotels, trailer parks, or camping grounds due to the lack of alternative adequate accommodations; are living in emergency or transitional shelters; are abandoned in hospitals; or are awaiting foster care placement.
2. Children and youths who have a primary nighttime residence that is a public or private place not designed for or ordinarily used as a regular sleeping accommodation for human beings.
3. Children and youths who are living in cars, parks, public spaces, abandoned buildings, substandard housing, bus or train stations, or similar settings.
4. Migratory children who qualify as homeless for the purposes of this subtitle because the children are living in circumstances described in (1) through (3) above.

The McKinney-Vento Homeless Assistance Act^[2] section 106 (b)(2)(F) ensures educational rights and protections for homeless children that includes school stability and transportation. The Child Abuse Prevention and Treatment Act (CAPTA) require that the needs of homeless children be addressed. Unaccompanied youth have the same rights as other students experiencing homelessness. They specifically have the right to:

1. Remain in their school of origin to the extent feasible.
2. Transportation to and from the school of origin.
3. Immediately enroll in a new school serving the area in which they are currently living even if they don't have typically required documents.
4. Equal access to programs and services such as gifted and talented education, special education, vocational education.

When a child is eligible for school stability and transportation under the McKinney- Vento Homeless Act of 2002, County Department staff will contact the DFCS Educational Programming, Assessment and Consultation Unit (EPAC) at EPAC@dhs.ga.gov (see policy 3.2 Intake: Making an Intake Decision).

Practice Guidance

Children in DFCS Custody

Children in the legal temporary or permanent custody of DFCS.

DFCS Foster or Adoptive Homes

DFCS foster homes provides temporary care for children in foster care. Similarly, DFCS adoptive homes provide care for children in foster care, however, the adoptive parents have formally committed to adopting the child(ren) in their home. In addition, DFCS kinship foster homes or kinship adoptive homes, share the same corresponding responsibilities and requirements though the caregivers are kin to the children placed in their home. DFCS County Departments through Regional Resource Development are responsible for evaluating, approving and monitoring DFCS foster or adoptive homes.

Child Placing Agency (CPA) Foster or Adoptive Homes

CPA foster homes provides temporary care for children in foster care. Similarly, CPA adoptive homes provide care for children in foster care, however, the adoptive parents have formally committed to adopting the children in their home. CPA foster and adoptive homes are evaluated, approved and administered by a CPA. A CPA is any institution, society, agency, or facility which places children in foster homes for temporary care or in prospective adoptive homes for adoption. Office of Provider Management (OPM) and Residential Child Care Licensing (RCCL) are the oversight authorities for CPA foster or adoptive homes.

Special Investigations – Maltreatment in Care (MIC)

When intake reports are received alleging a child in DFCS custody has been abused, regardless of who has been alleged as the maltreater the intake report must be classified as MIC in Georgia SHINES. Alternatively, when intake reports are received alleging a child in DFCS custody was abused prior to the child entering DFCS custody, the intake report is coded as a Special Investigation-Not Maltreatment in Care.

The relationship of the alleged maltreater may be different from the relationship selected on the Georgia SHINES Allegation Detail page and what is identified on the Person Detail page of the alleged maltreater. For example, the child may be in the foster care kinship placement of his aunt. On the aunt's Person Detail page, the relationship is primary caregiver; however, if the aunt is the alleged maltreater, the aunt will be identified on the Allegation Detail page as the kin caregiver, not the aunt.

Policy Violations

Policy Violations are actions performed by a DFCS agent that may breach any DFCS policy and/or RBWO Minimum Standards, but do not constitute child abuse. For additional information on policy violations see policy 14.22 Resource Development: Policy Violations.

Oversight Authority

Office of Provider Management (OPM)

The OPM contracts with and monitors Child Caring Institutions (CCI) and CPA provision of RBWO services. OPM employs various data, on-site, records review and collateral report mechanisms to monitor provider's adherence to RBWO Minimum Standards and contractual obligations which direct performance expectations regarding the safety, permanency and well-being of children. The foundational objective of OPM is to ensure that children placed in RBWO care are safe from abuse. OPM also provides training and technical assistance to providers to support their ability to meet quality of care and performance expectations. Send notifications of the Intake Report to OPM at opmreports@dhs.ga.gov.

Residential Child Care Licensing (RCCL)

The RCCL unit inspects, monitors, licenses, and registers a variety of childcare facilities. The purpose of our work is to ensure that facilities and programs operate at acceptable levels, as mandated by State Statutes and by rules and regulations adopted by the Department of Human Services (DHS) Board of Human Services. Practice Guidance

Near Fatality

Near fatality means as an act that, as certified by a physician, places the child in serious or critical condition. Once the child meets this criterion then the allegation of “near fatality” should be marked along with any other type(s) of maltreatment.

Serious Injury

Serious Injury means bodily injury that involves substantial risk of death, extreme physical pain, prolonged and obvious disfigurement, or prolonged loss or impairment of the function of a body part, organ, or mental capability. Examples include burns, head trauma, blunt trauma, internal bleeding, multiple bruising and contusions, lacerations of organs, broken bones and amputation.

Intakes Involving Child Deaths with Unknown Information

When intake reports are received with minimal to no information regarding the circumstances of a child’s death, engage the reporter by asking follow up questions. Asking the reporter follow up questions about the death may trigger information that they may have regarded as insignificant. Inquire about how the reporter became aware of the child’s death and others who may have knowledge of the circumstances surrounding the child’s death.

When intake reports are received alleging a child in DFCS custody has been abused, regardless of who has been alleged as the maltreater the intake report must be classified as MIC in Georgia SHINES. Alternatively, when intake reports are received alleging a child in DFCS custody was abused prior to the child entering DFCS custody, the intake report is coded as a Special Investigation-Not Maltreatment in Care.

The relationship of the alleged maltreater may be different from the relationship selected on the Georgia SHINES Allegation Detail page and what is identified on the Person Detail page of the alleged maltreater. For example, the child may be in the foster care kinship placement of his aunt. On the aunt’s Person Detail page, the relationship is primary caregiver; however, if the aunt is the alleged maltreater, the aunt will be identified on the Allegation Detail page as the kin caregiver, not the aunt.

Child Fatality Review Committees

The multidisciplinary Child Fatality Review Committee reviews all deaths of children ages birth through age 17 years. County Departments designates a representative to serve on the local Child Fatality Review Committee based on the County’s Child Abuse Protocol and Child Fatality Review Committee requirements. See policy 1.10 Administration: Child Fatality Review.

Special Circumstance CD/NF/SI-No Maltreatment - Screen-out

Each death or serious injury of a child is tragic; however, DFCS is only responsible for investigating CD/NF/SI in which child abuse is believed to have caused or contributed to the CD/NF/SI. Engagement with the reporter to determine their intent in notifying DFCS is needed. The call type Special Circumstance CD/NF/SI-No Maltreatment should only be used to screen-out intake reports:

1. Involving a child death or serious injury as the result of a documented pre-existing medical condition (illness and disease), and the death was expected and there are no allegations of child maltreatment.
2. When the reporter is calling solely based on their organization’s protocol to advise DFCS of all CD/NF/SI; The reporter does not believe child abuse caused or contributed to the CD/NF/SI and there are no allegations of child maltreatment.

Example: A healthcare professional indicates their hospital protocol is to notify DFCS of all child deaths, and reports a child died from a preexisting medical condition known to the physician, without allegations of maltreatment.

Example: A healthcare professional indicates their hospital protocol is to report all CD/NF/SI to DFCS and reports a child was severely burned in house fire, without allegations of maltreatment.

Example: A child in DFCS custody was born with a terminal medical condition. The child dies from the known medical condition while under the care of a physician at the time of death.

When the reporter makes a CD/NF/SI child abuse referral and CICC assesses the Intake Assessment as a screen out based on the information not meeting Georgia statute and policy requirements, special circumstance should not be used; the case would be screened out as Special Investigation CD/NF/SI.

Practice Guidance

Georgia law requires that students attend a public or private school or participate in a home study program from their sixth to their 16th birthday. Public kindergarten is available in every school system, but it is not mandatory. Parents/guardians/legal custodians who teach their children at home are required by law to submit to the GaDOE an annual Home Study Program Declaration of Intent Form within 30 days after establishment of a home study program and by September 1st annually thereafter. In the event that a child is withdrawn from a public school without a declaration filed and that child stops attending a public school for a period of 45 days, the school is required to refer the matter to DFCS to conduct an assessment to determine whether the withdrawal of the child from school was to avoid educating the child.

Practice Guidance

Intake reports involving Juvenile or Superior Court with no maltreatment generally include a request by the court for DFCS to conduct a home evaluation, assess family functioning, conduct interviews, etc. These requests could be a result of DFCS filing a petition with the court or a private dependency case. The court request should not automatically be processed as a Special Circumstance. Regardless of the intent of the reporter, the information contained in the request must not include maltreatment and must be assessed for maltreatment and safety concerns. When there is information that indicates allegations of maltreatment, the case cannot be processed as a Special Circumstance and must be processed in accordance with policy 3.1 Intake: Receiving Intake Reports.

Examples of Intakes Reports That Should be Assigned as Special Circumstance Juvenile or Superior Court (No Maltreatment):

- Court requests DFCS conduct a home study on a potential caregiver other than a parent or legal custodian (guardianship, private dependency, temporary custody).
- Court requests for DFCS to complete an assessment of a parent to regain custody following guardianship or temporary custody being granted to a third party. The family does not have an open case with DFCS.
- Court requests DFCS assess a parent's ability to meet the needs of a child with delinquency issues who will be released from a Youth Detention Center (YDC) on a given date.

Examples of Intake Reports That Should Not be Assigned as Special Circumstance Juvenile or Superior Court (No Maltreatment):

- The court is requesting a DFCS investigation when the offending parent does not have current access to the child, however the report indicates a history of domestic violence in the home (unknown if child was present at the time of the incident) and the child is afraid of both parents. The intake assessment should be assessed for maltreatment allegations.
- The court requests for DFCS to assess the parent's ability to meet the needs of a child following the youth's detainment in YDC. The parent refuses to allow the child back in the home.

Practice Guidance

The CHINS law in Georgia was created in acknowledgement that certain behaviors or conditions occur within a family or school environment that indicate a child is experiencing serious difficulties. The goals of the law are to:

1. Intervene with services and corrective actions to protect the child from making choices that can have a negative impact on his/her future and protect the integrity of the child's family.
2. Make family members aware of their contributions to their family's problems and to encourage them to accept the responsibility and participate in any program of care ordered by the court.
3. Provide a child with a program of treatment, care, guidance, counseling, structure, supervision, and rehabilitation to assist in becoming a responsible and productive member of society.
4. Ensure the cooperation and coordination of all agencies having responsibility to supply services to any member of a family referred to the court.

A complaint alleging a child is a child in need of services may be made by any person, including a law enforcement officer, who has knowledge of the facts alleged and believes them to be true. A prosecuting attorney may file a complaint alleging a child is in need of services or intervene in such a manner to present the interest of the state as a parens patriae.

The court will summons the child, their parent/legal custodian, DFCS and any other public service agency or institution requiring them to appear before the court to answer the allegations of the CHINS petition. A copy of the petition shall accompany the summons.

Children in Need of Services (CHINS) is:

1. A child adjudicated to be in need of care, guidance, counseling, structure, supervision, treatment, or rehabilitation and who is adjudicated to be:
 - a. Subject to compulsory school attendance and who is habitually and, without good and sufficient cause, truant (having ten or more days of unexcused absences in the current academic year) from school.

- b. Habitually disobedient of the reasonable and lawful commands of his or her parent, guardian or legal custodian and is ungovernable or places himself or herself or others in unsafe circumstances.
- c. A runaway defined as a child who without just cause and without the consent of his or her parent, guardian, or legal custodian is absent from his or her home or place of abode for at least 24 hours.
- d. A child who has committed a status offense applicable only to a child.

A status offense means an act prohibited by law, which would not be an offense if committed by an adult.

- e. A child who wanders or loiters about the streets of any city or in or about any highway or any public place between the hours of 12:00 Midnight and 5:00 A.M.
 - f. A child who disobeys the terms of supervision contained in a court order which has been directed to such child who has been adjudicated a child in need of services; or
 - g. A child who patronizes any bar where alcoholic beverages are being sold unaccompanied by his or her parent, guardian or legal custodian or who possesses alcoholic beverages.
2. A child who has committed a delinquent act and is adjudicated to be in need of supervision but not in need of treatment or rehabilitation.

CHINS Involving Schools

If a petition seeking an adjudication that a child is a child in need of services is based on a complaint filed by a school official, such petition shall be dismissed unless it includes information which shows that:

1. The legally liable school district has sought to resolve the expressed problem through available educational approaches; and
2. The school district has sought to engage such child's parent, guardian, or legal custodian in solving the problem, but any such individual has been unwilling or unable to do so; that the problem remains; and that court intervention is needed.

If a petition seeking an adjudication that a child is a child in need of services is based on a complaint filed by a school official involving a child who is eligible or suspected to be eligible for services under the federal Individuals with Disabilities Education Act or Section 504 of the federal Rehabilitation Act of 1973, such petition shall be dismissed unless it includes information which demonstrates that the legally liable school district:

1. Has determined that such child is eligible or suspected to be eligible under the federal Individuals with Disabilities Education Act or Section 504 of the federal Rehabilitation Act of 1973; and
2. Has reviewed for appropriateness such child's current Individualized Education Program (IEP) and placement and has made modifications where appropriate.

Practice Guidance

Georgia’s safe haven law, the Safe Place for Newborns Act of 2002, provides an opportunity for mothers in crisis to safely relinquish their newborn babies to designated locations. The purpose of the law is to protect newborns from endangerment by providing mothers an alternative to abandonment. The Act shields the mother from prosecution for abandonment or neglect if the following requirements are met:

1. The newborn baby must be no more than 30 days old; and
2. The newborn is left in the physical custody of a paid or volunteer agent, employee, or member of the staff who is on duty at a medical facility, fire station, or police station.

The mother is not required to provide identification upon leaving the newborn at an approved safe haven location; however, if she is willing, the individual receiving the newborn should obtain her name and address. The Act also has provisions for the medical facility, fire station, and police station to notify DFCS at the time the newborn is left. Upon notification, DFCS shall take physical custody of the child within six hours. Upon taking physical custody, DFCS shall promptly bring the child before the juvenile court.

Practice Guidance

The Child Abuse Prevention and Treatment Act (CAPTA) includes provisions to address infants prenatally exposed to substances, requiring states to implement a Plan of Safe Care to address the infant's well-being needs once identified as affected. In 2016, the Comprehensive Addiction and Recovery Act (CARA) was also signed into law and reframed how states are required to deal with prenatal exposure to substances, ensuring infants exposed to any type of drug, legally prescribed or used illegally, are assessed and provided services through a Plan of Safe Care.

Intakes involving prenatal exposure (no maltreatment) deals exclusively with infants' prenatal exposure to substances that were legally prescribed and used as prescribed by the mother during pregnancy. Intake reports involving prenatal exposure (no maltreatment) do not contain allegations of prenatal abuse or child abuse.

Examples of Intakes Reports that Should be Assigned Special Circumstance Prenatal Exposure (No Maltreatment)

1. The infant is prenatally exposed resulting from the mother's use of prescribed medication for an illness. The mother is following her medication and treatment plan, as verified by her health-care provider.
2. The infant is prenatally exposed resulting from the mother being given prescribed medication during the delivery process.
3. The infant is prenatally exposed due to the mother's participation in a Medication Assisted Treatment (MAT) program for a substance use disorder. The mother is in compliance with her medication and treatment plan, as verified by the substance treatment provider and her health-care provider.

Examples of Intake Reports that Should Not be Assigned as Special Circumstance Prenatal Exposure (No Maltreatment)

1. The mother tested positive for an illegal substance (including marijuana) at the birth. The intake assessment should be assessed using policy 3.4 Intake: Intakes Involving Substance Use or Abuse, Prenatal Abuse or Fetal Alcohol Syndrome Disorder.
2. The mother tested positive for an illegal substance at the birth, but the infant tested negative for the presence of a substance or a metabolite thereof in his/her body, blood, urine or meconium. The intake assessment should be assessed using policy 3.4 Intake: Intakes Involving Substance Use or Abuse, Prenatal Abuse or Fetal Alcohol Syndrome Disorder.
3. The mother tested positive for an illegal substance during prenatal visits, but she tested negative at the birth. The infant's meconium test result is pending. The intake assessment should be assessed using policy 3.4 Intake: Intakes Involving Substance Use or Abuse, Prenatal Abuse or Fetal Alcohol Syndrome Disorder.

Affected

An infant "affected" by prenatal exposure to substance use means:

1. The infant is experiencing symptoms of withdrawal, or exhibiting harmful effects in his/her physical appearance or functioning due to exposure to substances (legal or illegal); or
2. The infant has tested positive for the presence of a substance or a metabolite thereof in his/her body, blood, urine or meconium; or
3. The infant has symptoms of a Fetal Alcohol Spectrum Disorder; or
4. The mother testing positive for illegal substances at the birth of the infant; or
5. The mother testing positive for prescription drugs due to misuse at the birth of the infant; or
6. The mother self-disclosed at the birth of the infant a substance or alcohol use problem and use during pregnancy.

Controlled Substance

A controlled substance is generally a drug or chemical whose manufacture, possession, or use is regulated by a government (federal or state law). This may include illegal drugs and prescription medications.

Practice Guidance

In limited circumstances, DFCS may use a voluntary placement agreement to support families experiencing a short-term crisis that cannot be met by their own resources. An executed voluntary placement agreement allows DFCS to provide care and supervision of the child for a time-limited period without court action to help stabilize the short-term crisis. When a child enters foster care via a voluntary placement agreement, DFCS maintains the same rights and duties as if DFCS had a court order for temporary custody. The parent, guardian or legal custodian has the right to have the child returned upon submitting a written request.

DFCS is under no obligation to accept a voluntary placement agreement. DFCS may execute a Voluntary Agreement to place a child in foster care when:

1. The family is experiencing a short-term crisis with an anticipated end date within 90 calendar days.

 Voluntary placement agreement may be in effect a maximum of 90 calendar days with the possibility of one additional 90 calendar day extension.

2. No safety issues or imminent risk of child abuse exist.

 DFCS must not accept a Voluntary Placement Agreement if family circumstances clearly indicate that the child is in imminent danger of child abuse and/or court involvement is necessary.

 - b. Assign the Special Circumstance to the County Department's CICC POC.
4. Screen-out the Intake Assessment when the information gathered does not meet the criteria for a Special Circumstance Voluntary Surrender of Paternal Rights.

Intake Assessments that do not meet the criteria for a Special Circumstance Voluntary Surrender of Parental Rights must be processed and assessed in accordance with policies 3.1 Intake: Receiving Intake Reports and 3.2 Intake: Making an Intake Decision.

Practice Guidance

A voluntary surrender of parental rights legally severs the parent-child relationship and allows the child to be adopted. CICC may initiate a Special Circumstance Voluntary Surrender of Parental Rights when the parent (biological or legal) does not have an active child welfare case and the intake is not assessed to include child abuse. A voluntary surrender of parental rights may be executed in an active case without opening a new Special Circumstance Intake Assessment.

When allegations of child abuse are present, the intake cannot be processed as a Special Circumstance and must be assessed in accordance with policy 3.1 Intake: Receiving Intake Reports.

A voluntary surrender of parental rights differs from abandonment. Abandonment is present when a parent's conduct shows an intent to forgo or a desertion of parental rights, such as by leaving the child for six months or longer without communication, visitation or providing provisions for the child's support (food/clothing/shelter).

For more information on Voluntary Surrender of Parental Rights, see policy 17.12 Legal: Voluntary Surrender of Parental Rights.

Human Trafficking

Human trafficking involves the exploitation of people through force, coercion, threat, and deception and includes human rights abuses such as debt bondage, deprivation of liberty, and lack of control over freedom and labor. Trafficking can be for purposes of sexual exploitation or labor exploitation.

Sex Trafficking

Federal law defines sex trafficking as the recruitment, harboring, transportation, provision, obtaining, patronizing, or soliciting of a child for the purpose of a commercial sex act. “Severe form of [sex] trafficking in persons” means sex trafficking in which a commercial sex act is induced by force, fraud, or coercion, or in which the person induced to perform such act has not attained 18 years of age.

Georgia law defines sexual servitude as any sexually explicit conduct or performance involving sexually explicit conduct for which anything of value is directly or indirectly given, promised to, or received by any individual, which conduct is induced or obtained:

1. By coercion or deception;
2. From an individual who is under the age of 18 years;
3. From an individual whom the accused believes to be under the age of 18 years;
4. From an individual who has a developmental disability; or
5. From an individual whom the accused believes to have a developmental disability.

Labor Trafficking

Federal defines a “severe form of [labor] trafficking in persons” as the recruitment, harboring, transportation, provision, or obtaining of a person for labor or services through the use of force, fraud, or coercion in order to subject that person to involuntary servitude, peonage, debt bondage or slavery.

Georgia law states a person commits the offense of trafficking a person for labor servitude when that person knowingly subjects another person to or maintains another person in labor servitude or knowingly recruits, entices, harbors, transports, provides, or obtains by any means another person for the purpose of labor servitude.

Georgia defines labor servitude as work or service of economic or financial value which is performed or provided by another individual and is induced or obtained by coercion or deception. Types of labor exploitation include domestic servitude, restaurant work, janitorial work, sweatshop factory work, and migrant agricultural work.

Coercion

Federal law defines coercion as:

1. Threats of serious harm to or physical restraint against any person;
2. Any scheme, plan, or pattern intended to cause a person to believe that failure to perform an act would result in serious harm to or physical restraint against any person; or
3. The abuse or threatened abuse of the legal process.

Georgia law defines coercion as:

1. Causing or threatening to cause bodily harm to any individual, physically restraining or confining any individual, or threatening to physically restrain or confine any individual;
2. Exposing or threatening to expose any fact or information or disseminating or threatening to disseminate any fact or information that would tend to subject an individual to criminal or immigration proceedings, hatred, contempt, or ridicule;
3. Destroying, concealing, removing, confiscating, or possessing any actual or purported passport or other immigration document, or any other actual or purported government identification document, of any individual;
4. Providing a controlled substance to such individual for the purpose of compelling such individual to engage in labor or sexual servitude against his or her will; or
5. Causing or threatening to cause financial harm to any individual or using financial control over any individual.

Deception

1. Creating or confirming another's impression of an existing fact or past event which is false and which the accused knows or believes to be false;
2. Maintaining the status or condition of an individual arising from a pledge by such individual of his or her personal services as security for a debt, if the value of those services as reasonably assessed is not applied toward the liquidation of the debt or the length and nature of those services are not respectively limited and defined, or preventing an individual from acquiring information pertinent to the disposition of such debt; or
3. Promising benefits or the performance of services which the accused does not intend to deliver or perform or knows will not be delivered or performed. Evidence of failure to deliver benefits or perform services standing alone shall not be sufficient to authorize a conviction under this Code section.

Commercial Sex Act

The term "commercial sex act" means any sex act on account of which anything of value is given to or received by any person.

Debt Bondage

The term "debt bondage" means the status or condition of a debtor arising from a pledge by the debtor of his or her personal services or of those of a person under his or her control as a security for debt, if the value of those services as reasonably assessed is not applied toward the liquidation of the debt or the length and nature of those services are not respectively limited and defined.

Practice Guidance

The Terrell Peterson Act gives a physician, licensed to practice medicine in the state of Georgia and who is treating a child, the authority to take or retain temporary protective custody of a child without a court order, without the consent of a parent, guardian, or legal custodian, if:

1. The physician has reasonable cause to believe that the child is in a circumstance or condition that presents an imminent danger to the child’s life or health as a result of suspected abuse; and
2. There is not sufficient time for a court order to be obtained for temporary custody of the child before the child may be removed from the presence of the physician.

The law requires a physician holding a child in temporary protective custody to make a report of the suspected child abuse; therefore, the reporter type must be a physician licensed to practice medicine in this state or a healthcare professional calling on behalf of the physician.

Mandated Reporters in Georgia

Mandated reporters, in many instances, have long standing relationships and a unique perspective on the children and family for which they are reporting child abuse. 1. Physicians licensed to practice medicine, physician assistants, interns, residents
2. Hospital or medical personnel
3. Dentists

Some organizations use designated delegates to make CPS reports. If the organization uses a designated delegate, persons that are employees or volunteers at a hospital, school, social agency, or similar facility shall notify the person in charge of such hospital, school, agency, or facility, or the designated delegate, and the person notified shall make the report. DFCS does not use designated delegates.

Mandated Reporting Outside Professional Duties

The Georgia Supreme Court found in May v. State that the mandated reporter statute only required mandated reporters to report child abuse for children whom they “attend” in direct connection with their duties in the profession, occupation, employment or volunteer work by which the reporter is identified as a mandated reporter.

Requirements of a Mandated Reporter Per O.C.G.A. §19-7-5 Reporting of Child Abuse

Mandated reporters are required to report known or suspected instances of child abuse in the following manner:

1. Make an oral report by telephone or other oral communication or a written report by electronic submission or fax, immediately, but in no case later than 24 hours from the time there is reasonable cause to believe suspected child abuse has occurred, by telephone to 1-855-GA-CHILD or otherwise and followed by a report in writing, if requested by DFCS.
2. Ensure that reports contain the names and addresses of the child and the child’s parents or caregivers, if known, the child’s age, the nature and extent of the child’s injuries, including any evidence of previous injuries, and any other information that the reporting person believes might be helpful in establishing the cause of the injuries and the identity of the alleged maltreater.

Mandated Reporter Training

DFCS shall provide Mandated Reporters training related to their obligation to report known or suspected child abuse. Such trainings can be provided in person or available online at the following links:

1. Mandated Reporter Training
 - a. Select Course Menu;
 - b. Scroll to Health and Safety Section; and
 - c. Select Mandated Reporters: Critical Links in Protecting Children.
2. Mandated Reporter Training for Medical Professionals

Building Community Partnerships with Mandated Reporters

Mandated reporters within the local community are an important resource and can be a wealth of information for DFCS at any point during the life of a case, from intake through case closure. Increased collaboration with mandated reporters may result in more informed case decisions. Further, building partnerships with mandated reporters provides DFCS the opportunity to educate on their obligation to report suspected child abuse. Law enforcement, school personnel, medical and mental health professionals are some of the mandated reporters who may be involved with the families DFCS serves. They often have built relationships with the children and families, allowing them to provide unique perspectives and insights. It is important for DFCS to nurture and develop relationships with mandated reporters to foster collaborative work, mutual growth, and better outcomes for children and families. Examples of ways DFCS can cultivate this partnership include:

1. Conducting meet and greets with local law enforcement, including county sheriff's offices and local police departments, Department of Community Supervision staff or other related partners.
2. Participating in Back-to-School initiatives with county and city school systems to connect with local DFCS staff, educate on making a CPS referral and explain DFCS responses and track assignments.

Additionally, to better develop an understanding of each mandated reporter's role and responsibilities regarding child welfare in Georgia, DFCS should be providing training to mandated reporters on a regular basis and participating in other multi-disciplinary activities within the community.

	Policy Number:	3.27	Previous Policy Number(s):	4.1
	Effective Date:	March 2023	Manual Transmittal:	2023-01

Codes/References

N/A

Requirements

The Division of Family and Children Services (DFCS) will:

1. Use administrative openings to address child safety threats identified during a case review of a closed child welfare case, when it is unrelated to a new report of abuse or neglect.
2. Administratively open a case in Georgia SHINES upon the directive of State, Regional or County Administration using the report date of the original intake.

Procedures

The CPS Intake Communications Center (CICC) will:

1. Input the Intake Assessment in Georgia SHINES, document:
 - a. All pertinent information from the original intake including the alleged maltreatment and the case ID number.
 - b. The name of the individual who provided the directive for the administrative open.
 - c. The safety threat identified during the case review.
 - d. The classification of the intake report as an administrative open

When conducting an administrative open on a special investigation, the rekey must remain classified as a special investigation.

2. Notify the legal and boarding (if applicable) County Director(s) and County Department's CICC Point of Contact(s) (POC) of an administrative open Intake Assessment.

Practice Guidance

Administrative openings should only be utilized in limited circumstances to immediately assure child safety. Families deserve the opportunity to raise their children without unwarranted DFCS oversight and intervention. The family expects DFCS involvement to end with case closure. While safety threats must be addressed during the open case, rare exceptions may occur when DFCS realizes unmitigated safety threats exist in a closed case. Administrative openings allow DFCS to re-engage the family for the safety threat identified in the prior case. The original intake date demonstrates the re-assessment of the previously closed case, and not the initiation of a new case/report.

An administrative opening is not appropriate when:

1. There is a new report of child maltreatment. This situation requires a new intake report.
2. A second level screen out review or other type of internal CICC review overturns the original disposition. This situation requires a rekey of the original intake report using the original report date.
3. A user accidentally closed an intake assessment or case in Georgia SHINES and the case needed to remain open.

1. Receive Information and Referral (I&R) requests when the following criteria is met:

3. Approve the I&R requests that meet the I&R criteria in Georgia SHINES.

Practice Guidance

I&Rs are a type of non-incident request that involve a caller seeking information without an intent to report child abuse, and the information is not assessed to contain child abuse. For example, a caller may request assistance locating a community resource, such as mental health services or a clothing bank. Callers may be referred to Prevent Child Abuse Georgia 1-800-CHILDREN to assist them with services in their area. Additionally, reporters may request assistance with DFCS services, such as reaching their assigned child welfare or Office of Family Independence (OFI) case manager, or they may need to be referred to a program within the Department of Human Services, such as Adult Protective Services (APS).

When the information gathered from the caller indicates allegations of maltreatment or an intent to make a CPS report, the case must be processed in accordance with policy 3.1 Intake: Receiving Intake Reports. For example, when a caller discusses a specific incident to determine if an intake report is warranted, the information should be processed in accordance with policy 3.1 Intake: Receiving Intake Reports.

Practice Guidance

The CHINS law in Georgia was created in acknowledgement that certain behaviors or conditions occur within a family or school environment that indicate a child is experiencing serious difficulties. The goals of the law are to:

1. Intervene with services and corrective actions to protect the child from making choices that can have a negative impact on his/her future and protect the integrity of the child's family.
2. Make family members aware of their contributions to their family's problems and to encourage them to accept the responsibility and participate in any program of care ordered by the court.
3. Provide a child with a program of treatment, care, guidance, counseling, structure, supervision, and rehabilitation to assist in becoming a responsible and productive member of society.
4. Ensure the cooperation and coordination of all agencies having responsibility to supply services to any member of a family referred to the court.

A complaint alleging a child is a child in need of services may be made by any person, including a law enforcement officer, who has knowledge of the facts alleged and believes them to be true. A prosecuting attorney may file a complaint alleging a child is in need of services or intervene in such a manner to present the interest of the state as a parens patriae.

The court will summons the child, their parent/legal custodian, DFCS and any other public service agency or institution requiring them to appear before the court to answer the allegations of the CHINS petition. A copy of the petition shall accompany the summons.

Children in Need of Services (CHINS) is:

1. A child adjudicated to be in need of care, guidance, counseling, structure, supervision, treatment, or rehabilitation and who is adjudicated to be:
 - a. Subject to compulsory school attendance and who is habitually and, without good and sufficient cause, truant (having ten or more days of unexcused absences in the current academic year) from school.
 - b. Habitually disobedient of the reasonable and lawful commands of his or her parent, guardian or legal custodian and is ungovernable or places himself or herself or others in unsafe circumstances.
 - c. A runaway defined as a child who without just cause and without the consent of his or her parent, guardian, or legal custodian is absent from his or her home or place of abode for at least 24 hours.
 - d. A child who has committed a status offense applicable only to a child.

 A status offense means an act prohibited by law, which would not be an offense if committed by an adult.
 - e. A child who wanders or loiters about the streets of any city or in or about any highway or any public place between the hours of 12:00 Midnight and 5:00 A.M.
 - f. A child who disobeys the terms of supervision contained in a court order which has been directed to such child who has been adjudicated a child in need of services; or
 - g. A child who patronizes any bar where alcoholic beverages are being sold unaccompanied by his or her parent, guardian or legal custodian or who possesses alcoholic beverages.
2. A child who has committed a delinquent act and is adjudicated to be in need of supervision but not in need of treatment or rehabilitation.

Discussion

As the designated child welfare agency in Georgia, the Division of Family and Children Services (DFCS) is legally mandated to respond to reports of known or suspected instances of child abuse; including physical or mental injury, sexual abuse or exploitation, or negligent treatment or maltreatment under circumstances that indicate that the child's health or welfare is threatened.

DFCS has a two-track differential response system to address accepted reports of known or suspected child abuse. The tenets of differential response systems as recognized by the Child Welfare League of America and the American Humane Association are incorporated into Georgia's practice model, which includes:

1. Response options (track assignments) established via state policy with two discrete response pathways for accepted child abuse reports. This includes Investigations and Family Support Services (FSS).
2. Pathway assignment based on an Initial Safety Assessment (ISA) and a determination that a child is safe or unsafe.
3. The initial non-investigative pathway assignment to the FSS program can change to Investigation at any time a safety threat (present or impending danger) is identified.

4. In the non-investigative, FSS pathway:
 - a. A family assessment is required; however, families may accept or refuse services so long as there are no safety concerns;
 - b. There is no formal determination of child maltreatment; and
 - c. No one is named as a maltreater.
5. In the Investigative pathway:
 - a. A full family functioning assessment is required, during which a determination is made regarding whether the parent(s) have sufficient caregiver protective capacities to protect a child and meet the child's well-being needs;
 - b. A determination regarding child safety and whether maltreatment occurred is made and a formal finding recorded;
 - c. Families are linked to formal or informal supports/services to strengthen them; however, the participation in these supports/services is not voluntary; and
 - d. When necessary, the removal of a child from the custody of the parent(s) may occur through court action when a child's safety and well-being is determined to be in danger, and in-home services are insufficient to control or eliminate the safety threat(s).

To determine the track assignment for an accepted report of maltreatment, an ISA is conducted. The ISA is designed to provide an initial response to the reported maltreatment within an assigned timeframe of immediate, 24 hours, or five weekdays of the intake report to assess the safety of the alleged victim child(ren). After the initial response, DFCS has up to an additional 72 hours from the expiration of the assigned response time to complete the ISA process. This includes seeing all household members, making a safety determination, and track assignment.

The ISA provides a more comprehensive method of determining the level of intervention that may be required as the initial assignment to FSS or Investigations is made based on a discussion with the alleged victim child and his or her family, instead of relying solely on the information received during an intake report. Once contact is made with the family and the information is discussed with the Supervisor if there is an indication of a safety threat(s) the case is assigned to the Investigations track. If there are no indications of a safety threat(s) the ISA is assigned to the FSS track. Best practice requires that the same Social Services Case Manager (SSCM) conducts the ISA and FSS assessment to facilitate continuity in information gathering, partnership and consensus building with the family.

There are exceptions to ISA's that are required to be assigned to the Investigations track regardless of the identification of safety threats.

DFCS utilizes a Solution-Based Casework (SBC) Practice Model. Grounded in a framework of safety, and wedded to full family engagement, the SBC practice model is best thought of as the architecture that holds our practice to a consistent focus on safety outcomes. At the heart of SBC is the belief that by building a partnership with the family, a true focus on developing pragmatic solutions to the everyday problems in life the family is facing can be developed. Documenting and celebrating the successes of the family are also acknowledged and provide a framework for the family to sustain positive change moving forward. By using the SBC model, the case manager is able to follow a conceptual map for family-centered practice from assessment through case closure.^[1]

DFCS believes in a family-centered approach to working with families. At the core of this family-centered practice is the belief that children have a right to be safe and secure, to be with their families, to be associated with their culture and to experience the least trauma or interference in their lives as is possible. Parent(s) and children have the right to family, integrity, privacy, and due process when their constitutional rights may be deprived by a government entity. Parent(s) also have the right to be informed and involved, have, and care for their children and receive prompt responses regarding their children.

The scope of DFCS intervention should be the least intrusive necessary and no greater than what is absolutely essential to assess child safety, to implement actions, services and controls that assure a child’s safety, and to make a determination regarding the need for ongoing or permanency services. To that end, the ability to engage the family during the ISA process prior to making a decision regarding the level of DFCS intervention provides an opportunity for a more consistent and informed decision concerning the level of response needed for the accepted report of child abuse.

Initiating the Assessment (ISA, Investigations, Special Investigations, or FSS)

Initiating the assessment is defined as making or attempting to contact the family or another person who can provide information essential to the disposition of the investigation or assessment.

 CPS Communication Center (CICC) contacting the family or another person during the intake assessment phase to determine the location of the alleged maltreated child does not constitute initiation of the assessment.

Response Time

Response time means the date and time from the receipt of an intake report to the time of making face-to-face contact with the alleged victim child(ren). Receipt of an intake report means the date and time a report alleging child abuse is received by DFCS from a reporter.

Parent(s)

Parent(s) is used to refer to person(s) legally obligated to provide or secure adequate care for a child including his/her parent, guardian, or legal custodian.

Practice Guidance

Child Abuse Protocol

Georgia law (O.C.G.A. §19-15-2) requires that each county establish a written Child Abuse Protocol (CAP) to be used in investigating and prosecuting cases arising from alleged child abuse. The purpose of the CAP is to ensure cooperation and coordination of investigative activities between all agencies involved in a child abuse case so as to increase the efficiency of all agencies handling such cases, in an effort to minimize trauma for the allegedly abused child and ensure that treatment is provided for the child, family and perpetrator. The CAP includes but is not limited to the following:

1. Procedures to ensure that the protocols are followed by each agency in the county that handles child abuse cases.
2. Circumstances under which law enforcement officers shall and shall not be required to accompany DFCS investigator when investigating reports of child abuse.

In making this determination, the need to protect the alleged victim and to preserve the confidentiality of the report shall be considered.

3. Procedures to be used in investigating and prosecuting cases arising from alleged child abuse.
4. Procedures to be used when child abuse occurs in a household where there is family violence (e.g., between past or present spouses, persons who are parents of the same child, parents and children, or other persons living or formerly living in the same household).
5. Procedures to be used in investigating and prosecuting cases arising from sexual abuse and exploitation.
6. Methods used in coordinating treatment programs for the child, the family, and the perpetrator.
7. Procedures to be followed concerning the obtainment and payment for sexual assault examinations.

Joint Investigations with Law Enforcement

Law enforcement^[2] is the criminal investigative agency in the community and often must investigate the same incident, involving the same people, as DFCS. In many communities, this involves a parallel investigation where DFCS and law enforcement must work as a team and in collaboration with one another. The team approach to these investigations is more desirable as it allows both law enforcement and DFCS to avoid potential conflict and to improve investigative outcomes. Assistance or joint investigations with law enforcement is required for all serious and/or complex reports of abuse or neglect (including, but not limited to, sexual abuse, severe physical abuse, serious injury^[3], child death, near fatality^[4], and/or chronic, severe neglect) and should be conducted as outlined by the local Child Abuse Protocol. A joint investigation may include:

1. Developing a plan to complete the investigation.

2. Responding with law enforcement.
3. Frequent and open communication, particularly at the following critical communication points:
 - a. Completion of interviews;
 - b. Filing a dependency petition;
 - c. Prior to the return of the child victim to the home at any time during the life of a case;
 - d. Prior to the return of an alleged maltreater to the home at any time during the life of a case;
 - e. Reassessment of safety to include a change in the safety plan or change in placement; and
 - f. Disclosure of information about the criminal conduct.
4. Refraining or delaying an interview with the alleged maltreater due to a criminal case.

Requests by Law Enforcement to Refrain or Delay Interviewing Alleged Maltreaters

Law enforcement may request DFCS refrain or delay interviewing the alleged maltreater due to a criminal case. The SSCM still has a primary obligation to ensure child safety. In this situation open and clear communication with law enforcement is necessary so that each agency understands what is required.

When the alleged maltreater has access to the alleged victim child(ren) and a safety determination cannot be made without conducting an interview, communicate directly with law enforcement to coordinate the interview or to obtain a transcript of the interview conducted by law enforcement. When it is determined that the SSCM will not be conducting a separate interview with the alleged maltreater, a list of questions or information that is needed from the individual(s) can be provided to law enforcement to ask the during the interview. DFCS must initiate an assessment within the assigned response time. If law enforcement is not able to respond jointly within the response time established by DFCS, explain to the law enforcement agency that DFCS must proceed with assessing child safety.

Case Manager Safety

The SSCM should consider a request for law enforcement officers to go with them based on the location of the visit, the time of day/night, or the history of the subjects involved. Often the presence of law enforcement during a case manager's visit with a family has a stabilizing effect and thus helps to ensure the safety of all parties involved. Additionally, law enforcement's authority is more widely accepted than CPS authority. Law enforcement can also be called for assistance when it becomes necessary to remove children from their home. Law enforcement has the authority to take custody of children, when the legal requirements are met, without a court order.

Requirements

The Division of Family and Children Services (DFCS) will:

1. Prepare for the Initial Safety Assessment (ISA) to direct and focus case management activities.
 2. Complete the ISA within 72 hours of the assigned response time:
 - a. Conduct a private face-to-face purposeful contact with the alleged victim child(ren) within the response time to assess and address child safety.
- i When a new intake report is received and screened in on an active case, a new ISA must be initiated within the assigned response time.
- b. Take action when present or impending danger is identified.
 - c. Begin an assessment of family functioning.
 - d. Make a safety determination.

- e. Determine track assignment to Family Support Services (FSS) or Investigations.
3. Adhere to Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act and confidentiality provisions outlined in policies 2.5 Information Management: Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act \(HIPAA\) and 2.6 Information Management: Confidentiality/Safeguarding Information.
4. Keep the identity of the reporting source confidential (see policy 2.6 Information Management: Confidentiality/Safeguarding Information).
5. Analyze DFCS history to ensure a thorough assessment of safety and family functioning.

If the analysis of DFCS history reveals that a previous ISA, FSS or Investigations was closed due to the family being unable to be located and the previous allegations were not assessed, assess both the previous and current allegations of maltreatment.

6. Use court intervention and/or request support from law enforcement to interview or observe a child when prevented from doing so, and safety cannot be assured (see policy 17.1 Legal: The Juvenile Court Process).
7. Engage each household member face-to-face and privately to discuss the maltreatment allegations and assess child safety and family functioning. This includes the following individuals:
 - a. Alleged victim child(ren)
 - b. Each parent
 - c. All adult household members
 - d. Other children in the home
 - e. Alleged maltreater(s)

This includes alleged maltreaters identified as a person responsible for the care of a child, but do not reside in the home. In such instances, if the alleged maltreater does not have access to the child, the interview with him/her may be conducted upon track assignment.

8. Inform the individual subject to a child abuse report (alleged maltreater) of the allegations made against him/her at the time of initial contact, whether face-to-face or by telephone.

The Social Services Case Manager (SSCM) must be certain he/she is speaking to the alleged maltreater. To protect the confidentiality of the family, if the identity of the alleged maltreater cannot be confirmed, do not discuss specific allegations.

9. Conduct a visual assessment of all children to determine if any injuries or signs maltreatment exist.
10. Observe the physical home environment, including every room in the home to determine if it is safe and appropriate to meet the needs of each child.
11. Assess and discuss safe sleep practices with any parent who has an infant (up to one year of age) in the home. Take action to remedy unsafe sleeping situations prior to leaving the home (see Forms and Tools: Infant Safe to Sleep Guidelines and Protocol).
12. Make a safety determination in consultation with the Social Services Supervisor (SSS) prior to concluding each purposeful contact with the child, parent custodian, adult household member, and/or alleged maltreater; and take immediate action to control the identified safety threats if the child is unsafe.

13. Engage any child(ren) in the legal custody of the parent(s) in a face-to-face purposeful contact(s) who do not reside in the home concerning child safety and family functioning.
14. Engage collateral contacts who can provide relevant information for assessing maltreatment allegations, child safety, and family functioning.
15. Request state criminal history record information of adult household members when criminal history may impact child safety, in accordance with policy 19.8 Case Management: Criminal Records Checks.
16. Afford all rights under the Indian Child Welfare Act (ICWA) to any child who is a member of a federally recognized Indian Tribe, or eligible for membership and has a biological parent who is an enrolled member and is subject to removal, placement and/or any other legal action involving DFCS to promote the stability and security of Indian Tribes and their families (see policy 1.6 Administration: Indian Child Welfare Act \(ICWA\) and Transfer of Responsibility for Placement and Care to a Tribal Agency).
17. Report to law enforcement immediately (no later than 24 hours) and refer the child to an available victim assistance organization, as certified by the Criminal Justice Coordinating Council when a child identifies as being a known or is a suspected victim of sex trafficking/sexual servitude. See Forms and Tools: Human Trafficking Case Management Statewide Protocol.
18. Immediately report any new, known, or suspected instances of child abuse to the CPS Intake Communications Center (CICC) as outlined in policy 3.24 Intake: Mandated Reporters.

Safe Sleeping Recommendations for Infants up to One Year of Age

Caregivers of infants (birth to 12 months old) must be informed of conditions that constitute a safe sleeping environment and that reduce the risk of Sudden Infant Death Syndrome (SIDS)/Sudden Unexpected Infant Death (SUID), also known as “crib death”. At minimum, caregivers should be advised of the three primary safe sleep recommendations of the American Academy of Pediatrics (AAP) commonly referred to as the ‘ABCs’ of safe sleep:

Alone – The baby’s sleep area should be close to, but separate from, where caregivers and others sleep. The sleeping area should be free of soft objects, toys, and loose bedding.

Back – Infants should always be placed on their back to sleep for naps and at night.

Crib – Place infants on a firm sleep surface, such as on a safety-approved crib mattress, covered by a fitted sheet.

Further additional information and guidance regarding safe sleeping and SIDS/SUIDS see Infant Safe to Sleep Guidelines and Protocol in Forms and Tools.

Practice Guidance

All contacts made with parents and their children provide an opportunity to build a trusting and supportive partnership. Contacts should be well planned and have a clear purpose. In order to thoroughly assess a child's safety, permanency, and well-being, it is important to assess the functioning of the family that is caring for the child. Some key principles to consider when conducting purposeful contacts include:

1. Recognizing the family providing care as a system
Each member of the family, including the child, has a role and responsibilities within the family. If any one person is unable to fulfill their responsibilities, then the whole family is impacted.
2. Engagement and partnership building
Purposeful contacts are not only about engaging and building a relationship with the caregiver, but also about engaging and building a relationship with the entire family including absent parents.
3. Involvement of families and youth
Because each member of a family has a role and responsibilities, it is essential to obtain input from all family members when assessing family functioning. When family members are engaged, this will re-affirm their significance in ensuring the success of the family system.
4. Recognizing all members are individuals
Each family member will adjust differently to challenges to everyday life tasks. It is important to recognize the individuality of each family member and the impact DFCS involvement has on their lives.
5. Cultural awareness
Each family has their own culture. Culture impacts family rituals and traditions. As family functioning is assessed, being respectful of all cultures involved and how they impact the functioning of the family is important for engaging families and developing partnerships.
6. Empathy, authenticity, and transparency
During purposeful contact with family, be mindful of empathy, authenticity, and transparency. When engaging families, it is important to identify their thoughts and feelings even if we may not always agree. Be genuine and open in communicating with all family members and recognize your accountability regarding the success or failure of the family. Purposeful contacts are also a time for the family to hold us accountable for what we may or may not be doing on behalf of the family who has joined in partnership with us.
7. Remaining focused on safety, permanency, and well-being throughout the process.

Observing Children for Physical Signs of Maltreatment

Observing children for physical signs of maltreatment is an important part of ensuring child safety. To determine if there is cause to believe a child has been physically harmed, consider the following:

1. Non-verbal cues from the child or the caregiver that raise concern.

2. The age and special needs of the child. Young children and those with certain special needs are especially vulnerable and may not be able to verbalize when they are being abused or neglected. Therefore, the SSCM cannot depend on the child to say how they are feeling and must be keenly aware of non-verbal cues. For instance, if the child is wincing or drawing back slightly, it may be an indication of pain.
3. Statements made by the child, other children/household members/collaterals, etc. that indicate him/her may have been subjected to physical harm or neglect, etc.
4. Physical indicators of maltreatment such as suspicious injuries, marks, cuts, bruises, areas of swelling, protruding limbs, damaged skin, malnourishment, unexplained weight loss, lethargy, severe tooth decay, matted hair, pungent body odor, etc.
5. The child resides with the caregiver or other individual that harmed the child or another child.
6. The child indicates that physical discipline is being used; or that inappropriate methods of discipline is utilized by the caregiver or others in the home.

The SSCM may need to view areas of a child's body that are covered by clothing to observe for signs of maltreatment and determine if the child needs medical treatment. This may require that the child (or caregiver for younger children) adjust their clothing. This can be embarrassing and anxiety provoking for the child. SSCMs must be sensitive to the child's level of comfort and make every effort to reduce their discomfort. This can be accomplished by having an adult present that the child knows and trusts, and by asking the child or the caregiver (for children four years and under or those with special needs) to adjust one area of a child's clothing at a time. Asking the child or the caregiver to raise a child's pant leg or shirt sleeve one at a time, is less invasive, while allowing the SSCM to observe for signs of maltreatment. The child should never be fully unclothed. When possible, arrange for a staff person of the same sex as the child to conduct the observation.

Assessing Injuries

Some characteristics of injuries are considered red flags and warrant further scrutiny, these include but are not limited to:

1. Injuries on children who are not mobile, especially infants.
2. Injuries on protected surfaces of the body, such as the back and buttocks, ears, inside the mouth, the neck, arms or legs, and underarms.
3. Multiple injuries in various stages of healing (i.e., skin injuries, lesions of varying ages, bruises).
4. Patterned trauma, even if the object used to commit the abuse cannot be determined.
5. Injuries that routine, age-appropriate supervision of the child should have prevented.
6. Significant injury with either no explanation or an explanation that is not plausible.

The SSCM may also need to observe the scene of the injury, to ascertain whether the caregiver and/or child's statement of what happened is plausible.

1. Ask the caregiver and/or child to show him/her exactly what happened, and where.
2. Note anything about the physical environment that refutes the statement(s) provided. For example, if the caregiver claims that the child fell out of bed and hit their head on the floor, causing a severe bruise, the SSCM should look at the bed, the floor, and height from the bed to the floor. Is the floor carpeted? Is it plausible that the injury occurred on the carpeted floor?

3. Obtain a detailed, precise timeline of events surrounding the incident or track the sequence of events. The more detailed the history, the more likely the assessment of the injury will be accurate. This can be helpful when communicating with medical staff to determine if the injury could have been caused in the manner described by the caregiver and/or child.

Deliberate Information Gathering (DIG)

Seek to understand the caregiver, his/her point of view, story, and experience. That means to dig deeper for the information needed in order to understand the person, the situation and how these help explain both threats to child safety and caregiver protective capacities. The DIG^[5] idea is to be very deliberate in gathering information and seeking to understand while behaving very naturally. The following interpersonal techniques can be used while gathering information:

1. Attending Behavior

Attending behavior refers to focusing attention on the caregiver rather than the SSCM's agenda or line of questioning. Attending behavior involves "matching" a caregiver's nonverbal behavior by consciously manipulating and controlling the SSCM's own nonverbal skills and responses. Primary attending behaviors include eye contact, facial expressions, body language, posturing and gesturing, following, reflecting and vocal qualities-tone and pace.

2. Open Questions

Open questions help to remove the SSCM from the responsibility of "carrying" the interview by establishing a conversational quality to the interaction. Open questions cannot be answered "yes" or "no" or in just a few words. Open questions require the caregiver to elaborate with a wider range of responses. Open questions are the "what" and "how" type questions.

3. Closed Questions

Closed questions should be used to restrict or narrow the focus of a caregiver's response. Closed questions should be used purposefully when precise detail and greater clarity is needed from the caregiver. As an exception, closed questions may be used more frequently when there are time constraints or when the SSCM is interviewing a caregiver who is very concrete or is not very verbal.

4. Paraphrasing

The primary intent of paraphrasing is to facilitate the clarification of statements, issues, and concerns. Paraphrasing may involve the SSCM selecting and using a caregiver's own keywords. Paraphrasing involves formulating the essential message that the caregiver is conveying and then stating that message back to the caregiver in the SSCM's own words. When paraphrasing, check for accuracy of the statement by concluding the paraphrase with a simple question such as, "Is that correct?" or "Does that sound accurate?"

5. Encouraging

This technique serves to keep people talking about a particular topic, issue, or concern. Encouraging may be as simple as using a slight verbal prompt, such as "uh-huh", "I see", "go on", or "then what?"

6. Conversational Looping

Conversational looping is a skill for gathering information that first involves the SSCM identifying some key general topic or area for discussion with a caregiver (e.g., approach to parenting, problem-solving, dealing with stress, etc.). Once a topic has been identified, begin the conversation with a broad non-threatening open question. As the conversation progresses related to the identified topic, continue with a line of questioning (primarily open-ended) based on previous caregiver responses that progressively moves the discussion toward a more specific and intimate inquiry. A key to effective conversational looping is the ability of the interviewer to maintain a caregiver's focus on a particular topic, which will then enable the interviewer to gather more detailed information from the caregiver about the issue, concern, or topic inquiry.

Example: Parenting Approach

“So, how would you describe yourself as a parent?”

“Where do you learn parenting skills from?”

“What brings you the most satisfaction as a parent?”

“How does what you're saying relate to your feelings about being a single parent?”

The content areas that are explored through conversational looping or for any technique are the six family functioning areas.

7. Reflective Listening Statements

Reflective listening statements involve the SSCM's attempts to interpret what a caregiver believes, thinks and/or feels, and then state the SSCM's interpretation back to the caregiver. The interpretation of what the caregiver is communicating is based on both verbal responses and nonverbal cues from the caregiver. A statement is used rather than a question because the statement is less likely to produce caregiver resistance, and, further, a statement triggers the caregiver to re-examine the accuracy of his/her perceptions and thoughts.

Example:

Caregiver: “I may have a couple of beers every once in a while, with my friends, but I don't have a drinking problem.”

SSCM: “For you, drinking is no big deal...it's just something you do socially with your friends?”

Separating Intentions from Actions

An individual can experience differing even conflicting feelings about any given situation. It is not uncommon to have two thoughts on the same subject “I would like to..., but I am scared”. Individuals who may have caused harm to a child also experiences these conflicting feelings. “He deserved to be punished for not following the rules..., but I didn't mean to hurt him. “He just would not stop crying, I was exhausted and wanted to sleep..., but I didn't mean to shake him that hard.”

Separating intentions from actions means joining in partnership with the part of the person's thoughts (intentions) related to not wanting this event to occur again, while helping them to acknowledge their unacceptable actions. Two methods used to help separate intentions from actions are:

1. Normalizing Family Struggles

Normalizing is a form of empathy (understanding) that acknowledges the family's problems is part of the struggle of negotiating difficult life cycle stages, as well as strengths and efforts in coping with the problems. It also helps families learn that many others are in the same situation. It does not downplay or dismiss the problem. It also does not condone or endorse the harmful behavior.

For example, can you remember failing a test in college to only find out the majority of the class failed the test too? It does not remove the failing grade, but deep down it does make you feel a little better that others are in the same situation. Sometimes knowing others failed too provides confirmation that the test was difficult.

It is not unusual for families to start off defensively in their relationship with the case manager. Sometimes a simple introduction can evoke a defensive response from the family. Normalizing can enable an assessment to be more complete by minimizing the possibility of the family or individual becoming defensive and refusing to engage with the case manager. When a partnership is not established, information is not being shared openly, therefore obstructing the gathering information process (assessment). Normalizing a family’s struggles can reduce the risk of defensive behavior by the family by attributing the family’s problems to struggles associated with difficult life cycle stages.

Problem	Normalizing Language
Father who locked his teenage daughter in the basement to prevent her from leaving the house during the night while he sleeps.	“Teenagers today sometimes fail to understand the dangerous out in the world and the struggles to keep them away from harm. I found it so difficult when dealing with my teenage daughter, particularly if I knew she was hanging with the wrong crowd. You must feel horrible, how did the evening start?”
A mother who has neglected her children due to drug use (previous sex abuse victim by the biological father).	”Single mothers say all the time how hard it is raising children alone; I can only imagine how difficult it is to focus on the constant demands of raising two children while simultaneously trying to overcome the abuse you sustained as a child. It must be so hard. Tell me when you noticed things were more than you could handle?”
A mother who (education) neglects her children.	“As a parent, I found mornings extremely stressful. It took all I had to get the children up and out of the house to catch the school bus on time. I am sure it is especially difficult for you when your child makes up illnesses to avoid going to school and you do not have a car to transport him to school if he misses the bus. Tell me when this began.”
Foster mother spans a child in foster care in her home. (policy violation assessment)	“A lot of foster parents have expressed how challenging it is to integrate a child into their home when the child may have come from a home with different rules or values. How did this all get started?”
Relative placement resource who spanked a child in foster care placed in their home who is diagnosed ADHD.	“Relatives who agree to be a placement resource for the child often experience problems adhering to the no spanking guidelines required by DFCS, especially when they have cared for the child before the child went into foster care and was able to use physical discipline with the child. Tell what behaviors you were trying to deter?”
Adolescent in foster care who is experiencing problems adjusting to the school environment after being brought into foster care.	“I understand you are trying to focus on school, but it is hard to focus after being removed from your family and placed into foster care. Teenagers have told me how difficult it is returning to school after being brought into foster care and everyone at school is aware of the situation. Tell me about that.”
Adolescent in foster care who is having a problem establishing his career objectives for the creation of the WTLF.	“Teenagers often have trouble pinpointing their career path, it seems so far off and not like a big deal at this age. Let’s talk about it, what things are you good at?”
Adoptive parents who are experiencing doubts about adopting a child.	“This is not uncommon, several adoptive parents have expressed their apprehension to adopting a child following the adoptive placement, you are not alone, and adding a member to your family is a difficult process. Tell me about your concerns.”

Problem	Normalizing Language
A non-custodial parent who has a limited bond with the child wants to be a relative placement. (Relative care assessment)	“Parents who do not live with their child and only see the child sporadically, say it is very challenging to establish and maintain a bond with the child, particularly when the relationship with the caregiver who is caring for the child each day is strained. Tell me about that.”
A non-custodial parent who has a limited interaction with the child wants to be a relative placement. (Relative care assessment)	“I understand you were trying to get yourself financially established before engaging in your child’s life because you wanted to have something to offer your child. Parents who are not involved in their child’s life or have limited interactions with their child often say it is difficult to just show up when you have nothing tangible to offer. Tell me about this.”

2. Externalizing the Problem Pattern

Externalizing the problem allows the family or individual to detach themselves from their problem. Externalizing the problem does not mean minimizing the personal responsibility or shifting blame, rather, it allows the individual to view the problem as something that is separate from their identity as a person. In short, the person is not the problem, the problem is the problem. Language that externalizes the problem can reduce criticism, blame, and guilt. If one of the family members has an “anger” problem, externalizing the problem will free up the family to work on the problem rather than exhausting energy opposing each other or defending themselves. This opens up the opportunity for the SSCM to work with the family to address the problem.

For example, asking the individual, “How long have you struggled with the problem of controlling your temper?” “Has the anxiety problem been around for a while?” “Can you see how anxiety has limited your family from engaging in fun activities?” “If your family wasn’t plagued with the anxiety problem, what kind of activities would your family enjoy?”

Problem	Externalizing Language
Mother who beats her child (prior abuse victim)	“Maybe you would like to put an end to this cycle of violence that has been passed on to you; would you like to be one to defeat this monster and keep it from hurting future generations.”
Stepfather who slapped his teenage stepdaughter	“When you described those episodes when everybody gets into it and you end up losing it, you seemed to be saying that you hate these episodes because they keep you from being the father you really want to be to your stepdaughter.”
Mother who neglects her children due to depression	“This dark curtain that you mentioned, tell me about a time when you fought back, or slipped by, or fooled this dark curtain that descends on you.”
A mother who neglected her child due to drug use.	“When you said you vowed not to be like your mom and use drugs and not care for your children, you seemed to be saying the drug use keeps you from being the mother you really want to be to your children.”

Engagement of the Noncustodial Parent

Engagement of noncustodial parents is more than contacting them inquiring as to their interest in being involved with the child(ren). It requires trying to understand their situation and why they may feel the way they do. It is important to be aware of certain dynamics that may come into play in this process. Their behavior may be in response to previous negative experiences they have had with the custodial parent, preconceived notions about how they are perceived by others regarding the status of their parental involvement, or they may be reluctant because of their views about the child welfare system. Engagement of noncustodial parents can be facilitated by educating them on the process and exploring with them their possible role and how they can be a resource for the child(ren). The discussions with the custodial parent surrounding the involvement of the non-custodial parent need to occur during the development of the case plan. Engagement should revolve around the noncustodial parent's presence/engagement in the child's life, caregiving abilities, cooperative parenting, and emotional contributions to the child. A determination must be made about the non-custodial parent involvement with the child and their ability to contribute the outcomes of the case plan prior to establishing contact standards for the non-custodial parent.

Observing Parent/Guardian and Child Interaction

Direct observation of parent and child interactions: What is the quality of the parent and child bonding? Does the parent engage the child in developmentally stimulating activities? Does the parent handle the child roughly or is there an apparent comfort level in providing for the child's needs? Does the parent identify the child's needs and respond to them in a nurturing way? Does the child seem fearful of the parent? Parent-child interaction in the parents' home should be observed prior to reunification.

Hearing and seeing how the parent and child communicate: Is communication verbal, non-verbal, physical, positive, negative, passive, more negative than positive?

Determine if progress on the specified steps of the case plan are met: What changes in the parent's interaction with a child are observed since the previous meeting and/or the implementation of service provisions (i.e., counseling, parenting skills training)? Is the parent learning and practicing better ways of parenting? Are they utilizing their action plan to avoid, interrupt or escape situations that would usually lead to high-risk behaviors? Does the parent redirect the child when unwanted behaviors are noticed? If service provision is effective, there should be evidence of enhanced parenting skills.

These are only a few of the many insights that may be gained from direct observation of parent and child interactions. Using what is directly observed as a major component of case decision making is vital. A case decision based only on what is reported by the parent is never sufficient.

Why to Make Contacts in the Home

It is important to visit children in the home environment to assess safety and gain an understanding of the child's living conditions. It is recommended that contacts be made in the home as often as possible. There is helpful information that may be gathered when interacting with parents and children in their home environment and it is important to make firsthand observations of the home environment to which the child may be returning.

Announced or Unannounced Home Visits

The nature of the reported allegations and the initial indication of the existence of a present danger situation or impending danger safety threat must be the first consideration when determining whether to make an announced or unannounced visit.^[6] If there is a present danger situation, this requires an immediate response, regardless of where the child is located. When a present danger situation is not apparent initially, the nature of the allegations and DFCS history, as well as the consideration of whether an interview could be tainted by an adult are important considerations when determining whether to do an announced or unannounced visit. Making an unannounced visit should be associated with timeliness, immediacy, or emergency situations. Unannounced visits are not discouraged when they are appropriate, but they should be necessary and justified based upon the individual circumstances of the case and its history. Supervisory consultation and guidance are an integral part of the discussion when preparing to engage a family during CPS intervention. A family needs to know that CPS is not there to “catch them doing something”, but to take action to protect a child. Therefore, there needs to be a specific, immediate, and clearly observable reason that a case manager makes an unannounced visit.

When a case manager is trying to build a partnership and consensus with a family, he/she must remember that courtesy and mutual respect are core components of building effective and sustainable solutions to the difficult tasks or situations identified by a family. When possible, a scheduled visit with a family can be an effective, convenient, and efficient process for all parties. The visit can be set to a time that is mutually convenient and include all household members. This alleviates the need to make multiple visits to complete interviews; saving time and effort for the case manager and caregiver(s) and shows an effort to be courteous and respectful of the family and their time.

Purposeful Contacts When the Caregiver or Child Resides in Another County

County A may request County B to conduct a purposeful visit with a caregiver or child who is residing or temporarily living in County B if County A cannot conduct the visit. Both counties should have a discussion prior to the visit to address case plan goals, the purpose of the visit and frequency of the visits. The assigned SSCM in County B should be added as a secondary SSCM in Georgia SHINES so that they may document the visit.

Safe Sleeping Recommendations for Infants up to One Year of Age

Caregivers of infants (birth to 12 months old) must be informed of conditions that constitute a safe sleeping environment and that reduce the risk of Sudden Infant Death Syndrome (SIDS)/Sudden Unexpected Infant Death (SUID), also known as “crib death”. At minimum, caregivers should be advised of the three primary safe sleep recommendations of the American Academy of Pediatrics (AAP) commonly referred to as the ‘ABCs’ of safe sleep:

Alone – The baby’s sleep area should be close to, but separate from, where caregivers and others sleep. The sleeping area should be free of soft objects, toys, and loose bedding.

Back – Infants should always be placed on their back to sleep for naps and at night.

Crib – Place infants on a firm sleep surface, such as on a safety-approved crib mattress, covered by a fitted sheet.

Further additional information and guidance regarding safe sleeping and SIDS/SUIDS see Infant Safe to Sleep Guidelines and Protocol in Forms and Tools.

Motor Vehicle Safety Recommendations

Children are sensitive to heat as their body temperature can heat up three to five times faster than an adult’s. Children will die if their body temperature exceeds 107 degrees. Even at a temperature of 60 degrees outdoors, the temperature inside a car can exceed 110 degrees. The U.S. Department of Transportation (DOT) National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA) recommends the following precautions to take in order to avoid child heatstroke.

1. Never leave a child unattended in a vehicle – even if the windows are partially open or the engine is running, and the air conditioning is on;
2. Make a habit of looking in the vehicle – front and back – before locking the door and walking away;
3. Ask the childcare provider to call if the child does not show up for care as expected;
4. Do things that serve as a reminder that a child is in the vehicle, such as placing a phone, purse, or briefcase in the back seat to ensure no child is accidentally left in the vehicle or writing a note or using a stuffed animal placed in the driver’s view to indicate a child is in the car seat;
5. Always lock your vehicle when not in use and store keys out of a child’s reach, so children cannot enter unattended. Teach children that a vehicle is not a play area;
6. A child in distress due to heat should be removed from the vehicle as quickly as possible and rapidly cooled.

Pictures

Pictures are useful for documenting injuries and/or the condition of the home environment; and may be used as evidence in an investigation or in court.

1. When taking pictures to document injuries, ensure the following:
 - a. The caregiver and the child are informed of the need for taking the pictures.
 - b. Each photograph should have one identifier present (i.e., piece of the child’s clothing), at least one photograph should include the child’s face and the clothing, to assure that the evidence collected demonstrates the series of pictures of the same child.
 - c. Use measurable objects (i.e., ruler, coin, pencil) to depict the size of the injury. Photograph the object that caused the injury (whether the injury was accidental or not).
2. When taking pictures of the condition of the home related to safety hazards to the children, include all the areas that demonstrate a safety hazard, such as inside and outside the home, including the yard, when applicable.

If the safety hazard is an infant unsafe sleep situation, take a picture of the area in which the infant currently sleeps.

3. All pictures should be identified with the following information: the individuals who took the photo, the date it was taken, name and date of birth of the alleged child victim, and if applicable the address where the injury occurred or the home with the safety hazards.

Documenting Purposeful Contacts

All visits must be documented on the Contact Detail page in Georgia SHINES within 72 hours of the contact. A narrative must be completed for each Contact Detail. At a minimum, the documentation entry must include:

1. The type of contact (e.g., face-to-face, announced, unannounced, etc.).
2. The date the contact occurred.

3. Person(s) present at the visit.
4. The purpose of the visit.
5. What was discussed.
6. Where the visit occurred.
7. Whether the caregiver or child was interviewed privately. If the child was not interviewed privately document the reason(s) why this did not occur.
8. Summary of information (What happened at the visit):
 - a. The developmental stage of the family and the everyday life task in which the family is struggling;
 - b. Sequencing of the event/situation that is causing concern;
 - c. Safety, permanency, and well-being issues discussed;
 - d. Consensus developed with the caregivers;
 - e. Child and parent's involvement in safety planning;
 - f. Safety determination (safe or unsafe);
 - g. Safety plan management; and
 - h. Change that was noticed and celebrated with the caregiver(s).
9. Observations of the home environment, children for injuries or signs of maltreatment and interactions of family members.
10. Any concerns or red flags identified.
11. Next steps and the plan for addressing identified issues or concerns, as well as documentation of issue resolution.

Discussion

As the designated child welfare agency in Georgia, the Division of Family and Children Services (DFCS) is legally mandated to investigate reports of known or suspected instances of child abuse and neglect, including physical or mental injury, sexual abuse or exploitation, or negligent treatment or maltreatment under circumstances that indicate that the child's health or welfare is threatened.

The Investigation track is utilized when an Initial Safety Assessment (ISA) indicates a present danger situation, an impending danger safety threat, or the reported maltreatment allegations fall into specific categories requiring the assignment of the report to investigation. Investigations is a non-voluntary intervention with families with the following goals:

1. Assess and determine if children are safe.
2. Assess and determine if maltreatment occurred.
3. Assess and determine if the parent(s) have sufficient caregiver protective capacities to protect a child.
4. Assess and determine the need for formal or informal supports/services to strengthen caregiver protective capacities.

5. Intervene to protect children when parent(s) are unable or unwilling to do so through:
 - a. Seeking court action.
 - b. Developing an in-home or out-of-home safety plan.

During the investigation, families are engaged using DFCS' Practice Model as informed by Solution-Based Casework (SBC). SBC is best thought of as the architecture that holds our practice to a consistent focus on safety outcomes. At the heart of SBC is the belief that by building a partnership with the family, a true focus on developing pragmatic solutions to the family's everyday problems can be achieved. Documenting and celebrating the successes of the family are also acknowledged and provide a framework for the family to sustain positive change moving forward. By using the SBC model, the case manager is able to follow a conceptual map for family-centered practice from assessment through case closure.^[1]

Objectives of Investigation

1. Continue the assessment of child safety by interviewing and observing all children that live in the home and/or have access to the alleged maltreater.
2. Engage all household members in order to gather information related to how the family functions on a day-to-day basis.
3. Engage individuals subject to the child abuse or neglect allegations to gather information regarding child safety and maltreatment.
4. Develop and manage an in-home or out-of-home safety plan when present danger situations or impending danger safety threats are identified.
5. Meet the emergency needs of the family that are apparent at the onset or during the course of the investigative process.
6. Conduct a structured, thorough collection and analysis of information which includes a review of the family's DFCS history, response to prior intervention, and engagement of individuals who are knowledgeable about the family.
7. Keep parent(s) informed and appropriately involved throughout the decision-making process.
8. Determine the existence of child maltreatment consistent with Georgia statutes and DFCS policy.
9. Link the family to community resources that will strengthen the family, or initiate ongoing DFCS case management, including Family Preservation Services or Foster Care, when applicable.

Parent(s) Children's and Rights During Investigation

1. Children have a right to be safe and secure, to be with their families, to be associated with their culture and to experience the least trauma or interference in their lives as is possible.
2. Parent(s) and children have the right to family, integrity, privacy, and due process.
3. Parent(s) also have the right to be informed and involved, have, and care for their children and receive prompt responses regarding their children.

Initiating the Assessment (ISA, Investigations, Special Investigations, or FSS)

Initiating the assessment is defined as making or attempting to contact the family or another person who can provide information essential to the disposition of the investigation or assessment.

CPS Communication Center (CICC) contacting the family or another person during the intake assessment phase to determine the location of the alleged maltreated child does not constitute initiation of the assessment.

Practice Guidance

Joint Investigations with Law Enforcement

Law enforcement is the criminal investigative agency in the community and is often investigating the same allegation as DFCS. When this is the case, CPS and law enforcement must work as a team to coordinate investigative activities. The team approach is desirable as it allows both law enforcement and DFCS to avoid potential conflict and to improve investigative outcomes. Joint investigations with law enforcement may be requested for all serious and/or complex reports of abuse or neglect (including, but not limited to, sexual abuse, severe physical abuse, serious injury, child death, near fatality, and/or chronic, severe neglect) and should be conducted as outlined by the local Child Abuse Protocol. A joint investigation may include:

1. Developing a plan to complete the investigation;
2. Responding with law enforcement;
3. Frequent and open communication to discuss the status of the case; and
4. Obtaining and sharing information in a timely manner, particularly following critical communication points:
 - a. Completion of interviews;
 - b. Filing a dependency petition;
 - c. Prior to the return of the child victim to the home at any time during the life of a case;
 - d. Prior to the return of an alleged maltreater to the home at any time during the life of a case;
 - e. Reassessment of safety to include a possible change in the safety plan or change in placement; and
 - f. Disclosure of information about the criminal conduct.

In addition to joint investigations, DFCS also engages law enforcement when case managers must visit a potentially dangerous location and situation. Case managers should consider a request for law enforcement officers to accompany them based on the location of the visit being made, the time of day/night, or the history of the subjects involved. The presence of law enforcement during a case manager's visit with a family has a stabilizing effect and thus helps to ensure the safety of all parties involved. When it is necessary to remove children from their home, law enforcement officers are often called upon for assistance. Law enforcement has general authority to take custody of children if the legal requirements are met.

Resolving Discrepancies or Conflicting Information

Often, during an Investigation, there are discrepancies in information collected or there are conflicting accounts regarding the allegations of child abuse. It is important to resolve discrepancies or conflicts to ensure that the information gathered accurately supports the investigation determination. Some ways to address these situations include but are not limited to:

1. Reviewing the information gathered again to determine what information is needed to resolve the issue(s).
2. Seeking supervisory assistance to review the information or develop a plan to resolve the issue(s).
3. Conducting additional interviews with the family members, reporter, collaterals, etc.
4. Engaging subject matter experts to assist in the review of evidence or to discuss the information via a staffing or consultation.
5. Requesting additional professional assessments or evaluations for the child(ren) or caregiver(s).

Requesting Criminal History Record Information

There are times when a criminal history check must be conducted for each adult in the household, such as during an emergency removal of a child placed the legal custody of DFCS but remaining in a placement household such as a relative, pending full approval. In these situations, a GCIC/NCIC criminal history records check must be conducted for each adult person in the placement household. Other instances when a criminal history check is warranted is when there is an indication that an individual who has a caregiving role for a child(ren) may have criminal history that impacts child safety; or when an individual's behavior indicates he or she may be, or have been, involved in criminal activity that could impact child safety.

When a criminal history record check is requested, it is critical that DFCS follow guidelines established by the Office of Inspector General (OIG) and Georgia statutes. Pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 49-2-14, DFCS may receive from any law enforcement agency criminal history information, including arrest and conviction data and any and all other information which may be provided pursuant to state or federal law which is relevant to any adult person who resides in a home where children in the custody of DFCS have been or may be placed or which is the subject of a CPS referral, complaint or investigation.

When Is a New Intake Report Required Versus Adding a New Maltreatment Code

When an intake report is received, an allegation code that corresponds to a maltreatment definition is assigned. This code is tied to the alleged victim, and should correspond to the specific allegations of maltreatment that are captured in the intake assessment. Sometimes, however, during the course of Investigation or Family Support Services (INV or FSS), new information is obtained that may or may not require a new intake report.

When completing an investigation, if the SSCM determines that the original maltreatment code that was assigned at intake is incorrect, then at the conclusion of the investigation, the original code should be unsubstantiated and the correct maltreatment code added on the allegation detail page in Georgia SHINES. A new intake report is not required in this situation, as the new maltreatment code that was added is applicable to the originally alleged victim child, the original person identified as the alleged maltreater, and the original allegations of maltreatment. If additional maltreatment codes need to be added that are related to the original incident that was reported, these codes may be added on the allegation detail page at the conclusion of the INV without making a new intake report.

EXAMPLE: At intake allegations of substance abuse were received concerning a mother and her baby. The allegation code of N3 was assigned based on the mother's use of the illegal drugs and lack of supervision. During the course of the Investigation, the SSCM determined that the child tested positive at birth for illegal substances and was classified as affected by medical personnel. This was not known at intake. The allegations are related to the original report of substance abuse, and since the child tested positive at birth, now the maltreatment code of CE4-Prenatal Exposure applies and should be added along with the N3 code that was originally captured in the intake report.

During an FSS case, maltreatment determinations are not applicable, therefore, no maltreatment code adjustments need to be completed in Georgia SHINES. Documentation should denote the specific issues that the SSCM was working with the family on resolving related to the original maltreatment allegations made in the intake report.

In both FSS and INV when there is a new event or incident of maltreatment, then a new intake report must be made to the CPS Intake Communications Center (CICC) to capture the information. This also applies when a new or different child is determined to be a victim of a maltreatment regarding a different incident than was originally reported in the intake. This new report must occur so that the child is captured as a victim of abuse or neglect and a record of the incident captured. The new case that is created in Georgia SHINES can be merged upon the immediate safety of the new victim child being assured through the ISA process.

The same is true when a new maltreater is identified during the course of a CPS assessment (ISA, FSS or INV) related to a different maltreatment incident. The new CPS Intake will provide the record of the alleged maltreatment event, and the new malteater identified, and can also subsequently be merged into the existing case in Georgia SHINES.

EXAMPLE: A father is identified in an intake assessment as the alleged maltreater. The allegations reported from the school stated that the father is beating his child, leaving marks and bruises. During the course of the investigation, it is also discovered that the mother is using drugs and leaving all the children in the home unsupervised. A new intake report should be completed to capture the new allegations of N3-inadequate supervision and the different alleged maltreater (the mother). The two investigations can subsequently be merged in Georgia SHINES. In this situation simply adding a new maltreatment code cannot suffice due to the new/different "event" or "incident" that occurred. The allegations of inadequate supervision are completely independent of what was originally reported and they contain not only new allegations of maltreatment from a different reporter (the SSCM), there are also new victims (other children in the home) and a different maltreater (the mother), therefore a new intake report is required.

Requests by Law Enforcement to Refrain or Delay Interviewing Alleged Maltreaters

Law enforcement may request DFCS refrain or delay interviewing the alleged maltreater due to a criminal case. The SSCM still has a primary obligation to ensure child safety. In this situation open and clear communication with law enforcement is necessary so that each agency understands what is required.

When the alleged maltreater has access to the alleged victim child(ren) and a safety determination cannot be made without conducting an interview, communicate directly with law enforcement to coordinate the interview or to obtain a transcript of the interview conducted by law enforcement. When it is determined that the SSCM will not be conducting a separate interview with the alleged maltreater, a list of questions or information that is needed from the individual(s) can be provided to law enforcement to ask the during the interview.

If it is determined that the child is unsafe, prior to leaving the home, take immediate and appropriate action to control the safety threats to ensure child safety by:
 - a. Developing and implementing with the caregiver an in-home or out-of-home safety plan; and/or
 - b. Initiating court/legal intervention.
17. Immediately report to the Georgia Bureau of Investigation (GBI) (no later than 24 hours) any child or youth who the agency identifies as being a known or suspected victim of sex trafficking/sexual servitude; or red flags exist that suggest a child might be a sex trafficking/sexual servitude victim and follow the procedures outlined in the Commercial Sexual Exploitation/Domestic Minor/Sex Trafficking Case Management Protocol in Forms and Tools.
 If the GBI was notified at the time of intake or during the ISA, a second report is not required.
18. Conduct private face-to-face purposeful contacts at a minimum of every 14 calendar days when there is an out-of-home safety plan (temporary alternative to foster care (TAFC) or voluntary kinship arrangement) and the child remains in the home of the kinship caregiver(s) to evaluate conditions of return, caregiver capacity and family functioning to assess child safety in accordance with policy 8.2 Family Preservation Services: Purposeful Contacts With Families Receiving Family Preservation Services.

Procedures

Preparation

The Social Services Case Manager (SSCM) will:

1. Thoroughly review the intake assessment and the Initial Safety Assessment (ISA) documentation and analyze the following information:
 - a. Allegations of maltreatment;
 - b. Analysis of DFCS history from Intake and ISA;
 - c. Results of safety screenings;

If all safety screenings were not completed during the Intake or ISA, conduct required screenings (see policy 19.9 Case Management: Safety Screenings).

- d. The developmental stage(s) of the family. What developmental issues might the family be facing based upon their developmental stage? What specific task(s) is the family having difficulty with (see policy 19.2 Case Management: Family Developmental Stages and Tasks).
 - e. If intimate partner violence/domestic violence (IPV/DV) is suspected or alleged, refer to the IPV/DV Guidelines and Protocol in Forms and Tools for additional guidance;
 - f. If substance abuse is suspected or alleged, also see policy 19.26 Case Management: Cases Involving Substance Abuse or Use.
2. Verify confidentiality and safeguarding of information was shared with the parents and signed copies of the following uploaded to Georgia SHINES External Documentation:

The reporter is not considered a collateral contact. Confidentiality must be maintained.
 4. When a new report is received on an active FSS case, carefully review the new intake report to be able to have an in-depth discussion with the family about what task(s) were supposed to occur and what tasks did and/or did not occur.
 5. Develop a plan for the visit:
 - a. Determine strategies for engaging the family members separately as well as a group. Discuss information gathering approaches, including persons to be engaged, order, and when purposeful contact will occur. Consider factors such as subject matter, DV/IPV, child safety, etc., when determining how or whether to convene the family together.
 - b. Prepare a list of questions to ensure all issues/concerns are addressed.
 - c. Determine the need to contact another county/state to conduct the interview or observation of a child or adult when the child or adult is located in another county; and
 - d. Identify potential child safety and family service needs.
 6. Determine the need for interpretation services for non-English speaking individuals or auxiliary aids for sensory impaired individuals. If required, Limited English Proficiency and Sensory Impaired Customer Services (LEP/SI) is used to assist DFCS in providing meaningful language access to customers. Contact LEP/SI via lepsi@dhs.ga.gov. The use of family members as interpreters is not appropriate.
 7. Identify possible collaterals (see policy 19.16 Case Management: Collateral Contacts).
 8. Participate in a staffing with the SSS to present and discuss strategies for continuing the assessment, and reconfirm what was determined regarding the challenges the family was facing in their everyday life during the ISA.
 9. Gather forms and other required material, including but not limited to:
 - a. A Caregiver's Guide to a Child Protection Services (CPS) Investigation (Brochure)
 - b. Authorization for Release of Information
 - c. Notice of Case Record Information Available to Parents/Guardians

- d. HIPAA Notice of Privacy Practices
 - e. Safe Sleep for Your Baby educational resources
 - f. Suggestions for Parents/Tip Sheet
10. Document the analysis of DFCS history and any preparation activities in Georgia SHINES Contact/Summaries as early as possible, but no later than within 72 hours of the occurrence.

Child/Youth

The SSCM will:

1. Engage the child in a private face-to-face conversation as part of the assessment of child safety, permanency, and well-being. Use age and developmentally appropriate language and questions to assess and discuss:
 - a. Each maltreatment allegation;
 - b. The extent and circumstances of the maltreatment including the sequence of events that led up to and followed the incident (maltreatment) that everyone is concerned about, and including but not limited to the following:
 - i. Who was present during the incident;
 - ii. How the destructive behavior (i.e., child left home alone, the child was disciplined with an extension cord, etc.) occurred;
 - iii. When does this problem occur;
 - iv. Who was involved; Who was not involved;
 - v. Who did what and when;
 - vi. What usually occurs prior to the problem;
 - vii. What did the maltreater say about the problem after it occurred; What did others say about the problem after it occurred;
 - viii. How did he/she feel leading up to, during and following the problematic issue/event; and/or
 - ix. Have there been similar situations or events when the caregiver(s) or alleged maltreater(s) were able to manage without destructive behavior?
 - c. Any needs, concerns, or fears of the child;
 - d. Extracurricular activities or interests of the child;
 - e. Involvement with absent parent(s)/non-custodial parent(s) and their families;
 - f. Child's current living arrangement, including who resides in the home;
 - g. Family relationships and role of each household member;
 - h. Physical, educational, medical, and mental health needs; and any services the child is receiving; and
 - i. If the youth is identified as an Unaccompanied Homeless Youth:
 - i. Reason(s) for the homelessness and potential solutions;

- ii. Level of parental care and supervision, and length of time without parental care and supervision;
 - iii. Other persons that may be providing support to the youth;
 - iv. Youth's access to education.
2. Observe all children for physical signs maltreatment. If the child is four years old and under, or there is cause to believe any child has been harmed:
 - a. In the least invasive manner possible, observe areas of the body that may be clothed.
 - i. Explain to the caregiver and child the reason for observing areas of the body that may be covered by clothing.
 - ii. Arrange for an adult to be present when possible (e.g., caregiver, non-offending parent or legal guardian, relative, foster parent, school nurse, daycare staff, etc.).
 - iii. If the child is four years old and under, ask the caregiver to adjust one area at a time (e.g., raising a shirt sleeve, pant leg, raise the shirt to view their back, etc.), ask them to replace the clothing before proceeding to the next area of the body. Take pictures of any injuries noted.
 - iv. If the child is older than four and is capable, ask the child to adjust their own clothing as outlined above.

 If a full examination is needed, a medical provider may be used.

3. If observation of the child uncovers injuries or other signs of maltreatment:
 - a. Determine whether there are any additional injuries that are not immediately apparent. Is there bruising or is the area sensitive to the touch? Does the child complain of discomfort or pain;
 - b. Gather information around the circumstances surrounding the injury and the parent's knowledge and response to the injury by asking who, what, when, where and how. What was used to cause the injury (ex: hand, fist, belt, bat, extension cord)? Describe the object that was used to cause the injury. Where did the incident that resulted in the injury occur (ex: bedroom, bathroom, grandma's kitchen?);
 - c. Evaluate and determine whether injuries to the child, or the condition of the child requires an immediate medical or psychological evaluation or medical treatment;
 - i. Whenever there is a question of whether or not a child needs to be examined by a medical professional, have the caregiver seek a medical consultation (e.g., 24-hour nurse helpline, poison control center).
 - ii. If medical treatment is recommended from the consult, insist the caregiver take the child to be examined by a medical professional within a specific timeframe.
 - d. Document any observed injuries or physical signs of maltreatment by taking quality pictures and/or a detailed written description.

 Pictures can also be used to document a lack of maltreatment, injury, or condition.

4. Make a safety determination, in consultation with the SSS, prior to concluding each purposeful contact with the child (see policy 19.11 Case Management: Safety Assessment). If it is determined that the child is unsafe take immediate and appropriate action to control the safety threats to ensure child safety by:

- a. Developing and implementing with the caregiver an in-home or out-of-home safety plan (19.12 Case Management: Safety Plan & Management); and/or
 - b. Initiating court/legal intervention (see policy 17.1 Legal: The Juvenile Court Process).
5. Notify the caregiver when an interview with a child has been completed without prior caregiver permission immediately upon completion of the interview. It is not the responsibility of the child to notify the caregiver.

Parent (Custodial/Non-Custodial), Caregiver, Adult Household Member or Alleged Maltreater

The SSCM will:

1. Engage each parent (custodial or non-custodial), caregiver, adult household member and alleged maltreater in a private face-to-face conversation to assess child safety, permanency, and well-being.
 - a. Describe the investigation process. Answer any questions he/she may have and provide a copy of the Caregiver's Guide to a Child Protective Services (CPS) Investigation.
 - b. Explain DFCS' obligation to maintain confidentiality and safeguard information to prevent unauthorized disclosure:
 - i. Personal information provided during the completion of the investigation will be kept confidential (see policy 2.6 Information Management: Confidentiality/Safeguarding Information).
 - ii. DFCS cannot share protected health information (PHI) with any person, agency, or contractor without prior written authorization from the owner of the PHI, unless otherwise permitted by law. Provide a copy of the HIPAA Notice of Privacy Practices and obtain signature(s). See policy 2.5 Information Management: Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act \(HIPAA\).
 - iii. The type of information that will be maintained in the DFCS case record and of the information that can and cannot be released to the parent(s) upon request. Provide a copy of the Notice of Case Record Information Available to Parents/Guardians and obtain signatures (see policy 2.10 Information Management: J.J. v. Ledbetter Parent or Guardian Request for Information).
 - c. Obtain demographic information regarding caregivers, household members, alleged maltreaters and absent/non-custodial parents, if not completed in the ISA. This information can be used to complete the genogram.
 - d. Assess and discuss with each caregiver, adult household member, and alleged maltreater:
 - i. Each maltreatment allegation;
 - ii. The extent and circumstances of the maltreatment including the sequence of events that led up to and following the challenging family incident:
 1. Who was present during the incident;
 2. When does this problem occur;

3. Who was involved? Who was not involved;
 4. Who did what and when;
 5. What occurred prior to the problem;
 6. What did the maltreater(s) say about the problem after it occurred? What did others say about the problem after it occurred;
 7. How did he/she feel leading up to, during and following the problematic issue/event;
 8. What was he/she thinking leading up to, during and following the problematic issue/event;
 9. What was he/she doing leading up to, during and following the problematic issue/event; and
 10. What solutions were tried in the past to resolve the problem? Why does he/she believe those solutions have not been successful?
- iii. The everyday life situation(s) that are challenging to manage that make the child unsafe or put the child at risk for maltreatment.
 - iv. Circumstances in which the family was able to manage the challenges they identified within their everyday life routines and how they were able to successfully manage these challenges without leading to an unsafe situation or maltreatment;
 - v. Family developmental stages and tasks, including any cultural or health issues that are impacting the tasks the family must carry out on a day to day basis;
 - vi. Family's pattern of disciplining their children;
 - vii. Adult functioning/physical adult patterns of behavior, including parents absent from the home and their involvement and role in the family;
 - viii. Child/youth development and functioning;
 - ix. Family support system and resources, including information on non-custodial parents, maternal and paternal relatives and other persons who have demonstrated an ongoing commitment to the child(ren);
 - x. The whereabouts of household members not present during the visit. Arrange for them to be interviewed prior to the conclusion of the assessment.
- e. Discuss with the caregiver(s), alleged maltreater(s), and other household members when injuries or signs of maltreatment were discovered during the observation of the child:
 - i. When did the injury take place? Who was present during the incident that resulted in the injury?
 - ii. Was an object used to cause the injury (ex: hand, fist, belt, bat, extension cord)? Describe the object that was used to cause the injury (example: black belt with studs). Observe the object used to cause the injury.
 - iii. Where did the incident that resulted in the injury occur (ex: bedroom, bathroom, hallway, etc.)? Observe the specific location in the home where the incident occurred.
 - iv. Document the observation of the object or location of where the incident and/or injury occurred by taking quality pictures and/or a detailed written description.
 - v. What was the caregiver's response to the injury or being notified of the injury? Was medical treatment sought?

- vi. Has the child suffered any other injuries or does the child have a history of injuries; and
 - vii. Whenever there is a question of whether a child needs to be examined by a medical professional, have the caregiver seek a medical consultation (e.g., 24-hour nurse helpline or poison control center). If medical treatment is recommended from the consult, insist the caregiver take the child to be examined by a medical professional within a specific time-frame.
 - f. Identify with the caregiver the personal issue(s) one or more caregiver has that makes caring for the children difficult as it relates to child safety and risk. Identify skills that the individual possesses that help to manage unwanted behavior.
2. Observe the family functioning and interactions around everyday tasks:
 - a. Parent/caregiver-child interaction:
 - i. How the caregiver(s) relates to the child;
 - ii. Whether the caregiver(s) appears to be calm, gentle, relaxed, and confident about parenting or if the caregiver appears anxious, easily frustrated, inattentive, indifferent, or detached; and
 - iii. What the caregiver(s) communicates to the child non-verbally (e.g., looks, touches, and gestures).
 - b. Interactions of all household members; and
 - c. The caregiver's ability to meet the needs of all children under their care and supervision.
 3. Assess the physical home environment to determine if it is safe and appropriate to meet the needs of each child:
 - a. Examine every room in the home for present or potential environmental concerns or hazards. Take appropriate action to remedy environmental concerns or hazards (i.e., loose wires or cords, alcohol or beer bottles, any drug paraphernalia, broken glass or windows, medications or toxic cleaning items that are in reach of small children) prior to leaving the home;
 - b. Review the sleeping arrangements for all household members;
 - c. When an infant under one year of age is in the home, assess and discuss safe sleep practices with the caregiver(s). Take appropriate action to remedy unsafe sleep situations prior to leaving the home such as helping a caregiver to prepare a safe sleeping area for an infant (see Infant Safe to Sleep Guidelines and Protocol in Forms and Tools);

 A caregiver's willingness or unwillingness to address a safe sleep environment must be considered when evaluating caregiver protective capacities and documented in Georgia SHINES.
 - d. Take pictures and/or document in writing the condition of the home when concerns or hazards are identified, this includes inside and outside of the home, including the yard, porch, etc.
 4. Discuss motor vehicle safety precautions including not leaving children unattended in cars (see Practice Guidance: Motor Vehicle Safety Recommendations).

5. Build a consensus with the caregiver(s) regarding the family and individual problems identified by summarizing how the old plan does not seem to be working very well and how it seems a new plan needs to be developed to address the identified problems.

Family level challenges are not applicable in cases involving sexual abuse or domestic violence.

6. Request an Authorization for Release of Information (ROI) be signed when it is necessary to obtain information about family members and/or initiate referrals. Obtain the signature of the subject of whom you are requesting information or the custodian or guardian of the child whom you are requesting information. Blank ROIs should not be requested. ROIs should be completed related to a specific request for information at the time signatures are obtained.
7. Notice and celebrate the caregiver(s) positive behavioral change.
8. Make a safety determination, in consultation with the SSS, prior to concluding each purposeful contact with the parent, caregiver, adult household member or alleged maltreater (see policy 19.11 Case Management: Safety Assessment). If it is determined that the child is unsafe, prior to leaving the home, take immediate and appropriate action to control the safety threats to ensure child safety by:
 - a. Developing and implementing an in-home or out-of-home safety plan with the caregiver (see policy 19.12 Case Management: Safety Plan & Management); and/or
 - b. Initiating court/legal intervention (see policy 17.1 Legal: The Juvenile Court Process).
9. Thoroughly explain what will happen next and answer any questions he/she may have in relation to the Investigation process.

Analyzing Information

Upon the completion of each purposeful contact, the SSCM will:

1. Immediately report to the CICC any new known or suspected instances of child abuse, neglect and/or exploitation using the guidelines outlined in policy 3.24 Intake: Mandated Reporters.
2. Review and analyze the information gathered during the interview(s). Identify inconsistencies or discrepancies and develop a plan for resolving them. Follow up on inconsistencies and document when and how resolved.
3. Make necessary safety decisions in response to information gathered during interviews and the visit to the home in consultation with the SSS.
4. Consult with the SSS and/or other subject matter experts (i.e., Permanency Consultants, Regional Adoption Coordinator, Field Program Specialist) for assistance as needed.
5. Obtain the SSS signature of approval on the safety plan developed with the family, if applicable during contact with the child/family.
6. Document purposeful contacts in Georgia SHINES within 72 hours of occurrence, including updating the Person Detail Page and uploading any pictures, safety plans or documents to External Documentation.
7. Conduct safety screenings on additional household members or caregivers revealed during purposeful contacts who were not identified at intake or ISA (see policy 19.9 Case Management: Safety Screenings).

8. Engage individuals identified as collateral contacts to obtain pertinent and purposeful information for:
 - a. Determining child safety, well-being, and permanency;
 - b. Assessing caregiver protective capacities, and family functioning; and
 - c. Monitoring progress, and managing the safety plan; and when applicable, satisfying the Conditions for Return (see policy 19.16 Case Management: Collateral Contacts).
9. Make appropriate referrals necessary to implement needed services (see policy 19.17 Case Management: Service Provision).
10. Follow up on commitments made during the visit.
11. Identify areas for discussion and follow up during the next visit.

Supervisor's Role

1. Ensure purposeful contacts are occurring according to policy or as frequently as necessary to assess and ensure safety and determine family functioning.
2. Use the following reports to track purposeful contacts:
 - a. Investigations Response Time Report (Georgia SHINES); and
 - b. Log of Contacts (Georgia SHINES).
3. Assist the SSCM in preparing an agenda to ensure purposeful contacts are focused on the everyday life situations the family is having difficulty managing that makes the child(ren) unsafe or at risk.
4. Ensure he/she is accessible to provide guidance and consult with the SSCM to discuss:
 - a. Information gathered concerning areas of family functioning;
 - b. Present danger situations or impending danger safety threats identified;
 - c. A safety determination (safe or unsafe);
 - d. The development of an in-home or out-of-home safety plan to control the present danger situation or impending danger safety threats; and/or
 - e. The sufficiency of the safety plan to mitigate safety threats.
5. Document the supervisory staffing in Georgia SHINES within 72 hours of occurrence.
6. Ensure purposeful contacts are documented timely in Georgia SHINES within 72 hours of the occurrence, including pictures and observations.
7. Determine the sufficiency of the purposeful contacts through a Georgia SHINES documentation review, considering the following:
 - a. Does the documentation support the purposeful contact(s) conducted and provide sufficient information to assess child safety and current family functioning;
 - b. Is the information gathered sufficient to support the safety decision;
 - c. Was the family engaged in manner that is conducive to building a partnership;
 - d. Was the discussion with the family focused on the everyday life tasks the family is struggling with;

- e. Are inconsistencies documented that need to be resolved; and
 - f. Are there any services that have been identified that need to be linked to the family?
8. When inconsistencies or follow up is needed based on the review of documentation provide feedback and guidance to the SSCM in order to resolve the inconsistencies and ensure service provision as necessary and document when resolution has occurred.

Practice Guidance

All contacts made with parents and their children provide an opportunity to build a trusting and supportive partnership. Contacts should be well planned and have a clear purpose. In order to thoroughly assess a child's safety, permanency, and well-being, it is important to assess the functioning of the family that is caring for the child. Some key principles to consider when conducting purposeful contacts include:

1. Recognizing the family providing care as a system
Each member of the family, including the child, has a role and responsibilities within the family. If any one person is unable to fulfill their responsibilities, then the whole family is impacted.
2. Engagement and partnership building
Purposeful contacts are not only about engaging and building a relationship with the caregiver, but also about engaging and building a relationship with the entire family including absent parents.
3. Involvement of families and youth
Because each member of a family has a role and responsibilities, it is essential to obtain input from all family members when assessing family functioning. When family members are engaged, this will re-affirm their significance in ensuring the success of the family system.
4. Recognizing all members are individuals
Each family member will adjust differently to challenges to everyday life tasks. It is important to recognize the individuality of each family member and the impact DFCS involvement has on their lives.
5. Cultural awareness
Each family has their own culture. Culture impacts family rituals and traditions. As family functioning is assessed, being respectful of all cultures involved and how they impact the functioning of the family is important for engaging families and developing partnerships.
6. Empathy, authenticity, and transparency
During purposeful contact with family, be mindful of empathy, authenticity, and transparency. When engaging families, it is important to identify their thoughts and feelings even if we may not always agree. Be genuine and open in communicating with all family members and recognize your accountability regarding the success or failure of the family. Purposeful contacts are also a time for the family to hold us accountable for what we may or may not be doing on behalf of the family who has joined in partnership with us.
7. Remaining focused on safety, permanency, and well-being throughout the process.

Observing Children for Physical Signs of Maltreatment

Observing children for physical signs of maltreatment is an important part of ensuring child safety. To determine if there is cause to believe a child has been physically harmed, consider the following:

1. Non-verbal cues from the child or the caregiver that raise concern.
2. The age and special needs of the child. Young children and those with certain special needs are especially vulnerable and may not be able to verbalize when they are being abused or neglected. Therefore, the SSCM cannot depend on the child to say how they are feeling and must be keenly aware of non-verbal cues. For instance, if the child is wincing or drawing back slightly, it may be an indication of pain.
3. Statements made by the child, other children/household members/collaterals, etc. that indicate him/her may have been subjected to physical harm or neglect, etc.
4. Physical indicators of maltreatment such as suspicious injuries, marks, cuts, bruises, areas of swelling, protruding limbs, damaged skin, malnourishment, unexplained weight loss, lethargy, severe tooth decay, matted hair, pungent body odor, etc.
5. The child resides with the caregiver or other individual that harmed the child or another child.
6. The child indicates that physical discipline is being used; or that inappropriate methods of discipline is utilized by the caregiver or others in the home.

The SSCM may need to view areas of a child's body that are covered by clothing to observe for signs of maltreatment and determine if the child needs medical treatment. This may require that the child (or caregiver for younger children) adjust their clothing. This can be embarrassing and anxiety provoking for the child. SSCMs must be sensitive to the child's level of comfort and make every effort to reduce their discomfort. This can be accomplished by having an adult present that the child knows and trusts, and by asking the child or the caregiver (for children four years and under or those with special needs) to adjust one area of a child's clothing at a time. Asking the child or the caregiver to raise a child's pant leg or shirt sleeve one at a time, is less invasive, while allowing the SSCM to observe for signs of maltreatment. The child should never be fully unclothed. When possible, arrange for a staff person of the same sex as the child to conduct the observation.

Assessing Injuries

Some characteristics of injuries are considered red flags and warrant further scrutiny, these include but are not limited to:

1. Injuries on children who are not mobile, especially infants.
2. Injuries on protected surfaces of the body, such as the back and buttocks, ears, inside the mouth, the neck, arms or legs, and underarms.
3. Multiple injuries in various stages of healing (i.e., skin injuries, lesions of varying ages, bruises).
4. Patterned trauma, even if the object used to commit the abuse cannot be determined.
5. Injuries that routine, age-appropriate supervision of the child should have prevented.
6. Significant injury with either no explanation or an explanation that is not plausible.

The SSCM may also need to observe the scene of the injury, to ascertain whether the caregiver and/or child's statement of what happened is plausible.

1. Ask the caregiver and/or child to show him/her exactly what happened, and where.
2. Note anything about the physical environment that refutes the statement(s) provided. For example, if the caregiver claims that the child fell out of bed and hit their head on the floor, causing a severe bruise, the SSCM should look at the bed, the floor, and height from the bed to the floor. Is the floor carpeted? Is it plausible that the injury occurred on the carpeted floor?
3. Obtain a detailed, precise timeline of events surrounding the incident or track the sequence of events. The more detailed the history, the more likely the assessment of the injury will be accurate. This can be helpful when communicating with medical staff to determine if the injury could have been caused in the manner described by the caregiver and/or child.
4. Document the caregiver's/child's words in quotes. Whenever possible, do not paraphrase. Clarify vague references to times, places, or observers.

Documenting Injuries

As injuries fade, photographs are needed to document the injuries, which may be used as evidence in an investigation or in court. When taking photographs of injuries (bruises, lacerations, etc.), ensure the following:

1. The caregiver and the child are informed of the reason for taking the photographs.
2. At least one photograph includes the adult witness with the alleged child victim.
3. Each photograph should have one identifier present (i.e., piece of the child's clothing), at least one photograph should include the child's face and the clothing, to assure that the evidence collected demonstrates the series of photographs of the same child.
4. Use measurable objects (i.e., ruler, coin, pencil) to depict the size of the injury. Photograph the object that caused the injury (whether the injury was accidental or not)
5. All photographs should be identified with the following information: the individuals who took the photo, the date it was taken, name and DOB of the alleged child victim, and if applicable address of the living environment.

Deliberate Information Gathering (DIG)

Seek to understand the caregiver, his/her point of view, story, and experience. That means to dig deeper for the information needed in order to understand the person, the situation and how these help explain both threats to child safety and caregiver protective capacities. The DIG^[2] idea is to be very deliberate in gathering information and seeking to understand while behaving very naturally. The following interpersonal techniques can be used while gathering information:

1. Attending Behavior
Attending behavior refers to focusing attention on the caregiver rather than the SSCM's agenda or line of questioning. Attending behavior involves "matching" a caregiver's nonverbal behavior by consciously manipulating and controlling the SSCM's own nonverbal skills and responses. Primary attending behaviors include eye contact, facial expressions, body language, posturing and gesturing, following, reflecting and vocal qualities-tone and pace.
2. Open Questions

Open questions help to remove the SSCM from the responsibility of “carrying” the interview by establishing a conversational quality to the interaction. Open questions cannot be answered “yes” or “no” or in just a few words. Open questions require the caregiver to elaborate with a wider range of responses. Open questions are the “what” and “how” type questions.

3. Closed Questions

Closed questions should be used to restrict or narrow the focus of a caregiver’s response. Closed questions should be used purposefully when precise detail and greater clarity is needed from the caregiver. As an exception, closed questions may be used more frequently when there are time constraints or when the SSCM is interviewing a caregiver who is very concrete or is not very verbal.

4. Paraphrasing

The primary intent of paraphrasing is to facilitate the clarification of statements, issues, and concerns. Paraphrasing may involve the SSCM selecting and using a caregiver’s own keywords. Paraphrasing involves formulating the essential message that the caregiver is conveying and then stating that message back to the caregiver in the SSCM’s own words. When paraphrasing, check for accuracy of the statement by concluding the paraphrase with a simple question such as, “Is that correct?” or “Does that sound accurate?”

5. Encouraging

This technique serves to keep people talking about a particular topic, issue, or concern. Encouraging may be as simple as using a slight verbal prompt, such as “uh-huh”, “I see”, “go on”, or “then what?”

6. Conversational Looping

Conversational looping is a skill for gathering information that first involves the SSCM identifying some key general topic or area for discussion with a caregiver (e.g., approach to parenting, problem-solving, dealing with stress, etc.). Once a topic has been identified, begin the conversation with a broad non-threatening open question. As the conversation progresses related to the identified topic, continue with a line of questioning (primarily open-ended) based on previous caregiver responses that progressively moves the discussion toward a more specific and intimate inquiry. A key to effective conversational looping is the ability of the interviewer to maintain a caregiver’s focus on a particular topic, which will then enable the interviewer to gather more detailed information from the caregiver about the issue, concern, or topic inquiry.

Example: Parenting Approach

“So, how would you describe yourself as a parent?”

“Where do you learn parenting skills from?”

“What brings you the most satisfaction as a parent?”

“How does what you’re saying relate to your feelings about being a single parent?”

The content areas that are explored through conversational looping or for any technique are the six family functioning areas.

7. Reflective Listening Statements

Reflective listening statements involve the SSCM’s attempts to interpret what a caregiver believes, thinks and/or feels, and then state the SSCM’s interpretation back to the caregiver. The interpretation of what the caregiver is communicating is based on both verbal responses and nonverbal cues from the caregiver. A statement is used rather than a question because the statement is less likely to produce caregiver resistance, and, further, a statement triggers the caregiver to re-examine the accuracy of his/her perceptions and thoughts.

Example:

Caregiver: “I may have a couple of beers every once in a while, with my friends, but I don’t have a drinking problem.”

SSCM: “For you, drinking is no big deal...it’s just something you do socially with your friends?”

Separating Intentions from Actions

An individual can experience differing even conflicting feelings about any given situation. It is not uncommon to have two thoughts on the same subject “I would like to..., but I am scared”. Individuals who may have caused harm to a child also experiences these conflicting feelings. “He deserved to be punished for not following the rules..., but I didn’t mean to hurt him. “He just would not stop crying, I was exhausted and wanted to sleep..., but I didn’t mean to shake him that hard.”

Separating intentions from actions means joining in partnership with the part of the person’s thoughts (intentions) related to not wanting this event to occur again, while helping them to acknowledge their unacceptable actions. Two methods used to help separate intentions from actions are:

1. Normalizing Family Struggles

Normalizing is a form of empathy (understanding) that acknowledges the family’s problems is part of the struggle of negotiating difficult life cycle stages, as well as strengths and efforts in coping with the problems. It also helps families learn that many others are in the same situation. It does not downplay or dismiss the problem. It also does not condone or endorse the harmful behavior.

For example, can you remember failing a test in college to only find out the majority of the class failed the test too? It does not remove the failing grade, but deep down it does make you feel a little better that others are in the same situation. Sometimes knowing others failed too provides confirmation that the test was difficult.

It is not unusual for families to start off defensively in their relationship with the case manager. Sometimes a simple introduction can evoke a defensive response from the family. Normalizing can enable an assessment to be more complete by minimizing the possibility of the family or individual becoming defensive and refusing to engage with the case manager. When a partnership is not established, information is not being shared openly, therefore obstructing the gathering information process (assessment). Normalizing a family’s struggles can reduce the risk of defensive behavior by the family by attributing the family’s problems to struggles associated with difficult life cycle stages.

Problem	Normalizing Language
Father who locked his teenage daughter in the basement to prevent her from leaving the house during the night while he sleeps.	“Teenagers today sometimes fail to understand the dangerous out in the world and the struggles to keep them away from harm. I found it so difficult when dealing with my teenage daughter, particularly if I knew she was hanging with the wrong crowd. You must feel horrible, how did the evening start?”

Problem	Normalizing Language
A mother who has neglected her children due to drug use (previous sex abuse victim by the biological father).	"Single mothers say all the time how hard it is raising children alone; I can only imagine how difficult it is to focus on the constant demands of raising two children while simultaneously trying to overcome the abuse you sustained as a child. It must be so hard. Tell me when you noticed things were more than you could handle?"
A mother who (education) neglects her children.	"As a parent, I found mornings extremely stressful. It took all I had to get the children up and out of the house to catch the school bus on time. I am sure it is especially difficult for you when your child makes up illnesses to avoid going to school and you do not have a car to transport him to school if he misses the bus. Tell me when this began."
Foster mother spans a child in foster care in her home. (policy violation assessment)	"A lot of foster parents have expressed how challenging it is to integrate a child into their home when the child may have come from a home with different rules or values. How did this all get started?"
Kinship caregiver placement resource who spanked a child in foster care placed in their home who is diagnosed ADHD.	"Kinship caregivers who agree to be a placement resource for the child often experience problems adhering to the no spanking guidelines required by DFCS, especially when they have cared for the child before the child went into foster care and was able to use physical discipline with the child. Tell what behaviors you were trying to deter?"
Adolescent in foster care who is experiencing problems adjusting to the school environment after being brought into foster care.	"I understand you are trying to focus on school, but it is hard to focus after being removed from your family and placed into foster care. Teenagers have told me how difficult it is returning to school after being brought into foster care and everyone at school is aware of the situation. Tell me about that."
Adolescent in foster care who is having a problem establishing his career objectives for the creation of the WTLF.	"Teenagers often have trouble pinpointing their career path, it seems so far off and not like a big deal at this age. Let's talk about it, what things are you good at?"
Adoptive parents who are experiencing doubts about adopting a child.	"This is not uncommon, several adoptive parents have expressed their apprehension to adopting a child following the adoptive placement, you are not alone, and adding a member to your family is a difficult process. Tell me about your concerns."
A non-custodial parent who has a limited bond with the child wants to be a kinship caregiver placement. (Kinship care assessment)	"Parents who do not live with their child and only see the child sporadically, say it is very challenging to establish and maintain a bond with the child, particularly when the relationship with the caregiver who is caring for the child each day is strained. Tell me about that."
A non-custodial parent who has a limited interaction with the child wants to be a kinship caregiver placement. (Kinship care assessment)	"I understand you were trying to get yourself financially established before engaging in your child's life because you wanted to have something to offer your child. Parents who are not involved in their child's life or have limited interactions with their child often say it is difficult to just show up when you have nothing tangible to offer. Tell me about this."

2. Externalizing the Problem Pattern

Externalizing the problem allows the family or individual to detach themselves from their problem. Externalizing the problem does not mean minimizing the personal responsibility or shifting blame, rather, it allows the individual to view the problem as something that is separate from their identity as a person. In short, the person is not the problem, the problem is the problem. Language that externalizes the problem can reduce criticism, blame, and guilt. If one of the family members has an "anger" problem, externalizing the problem will free up the family to work on the problem rather than exhausting energy opposing each other or defending themselves. This opens up the opportunity for the SSCM to work with the family to address the problem.

For example, asking the individual, “How long have you struggled with the problem of controlling your temper?” “Has the anxiety problem been around for a while?” “Can you see how anxiety has limited your family from engaging in fun activities?” “If your family wasn’t plagued with the anxiety problem, what kind of activities would your family enjoy?”

Problem	Externalizing Language
Mother who beats her child (prior abuse victim)	“Maybe you would like to put an end to this cycle of violence that has been passed on to you; would you like to be one to defeat this monster and keep it from hurting future generations.”
Stepfather who slapped his teenage stepdaughter	“When you described those episodes when everybody gets into it and you end up losing it, you seemed to be saying that you hate these episodes because they keep you from being the father you really want to be to your stepdaughter.”
Mother who neglects her children due to depression	“This dark curtain that you mentioned, tell me about a time when you fought back, or slipped by, or fooled this dark curtain that descends on you.”
A mother who neglected her child due to drug use.	“When you said you vowed not to be like your mom and use drugs and not care for your children, you seemed to be saying the drug use keeps you from being the mother you really want to be to your children.”

Engagement of the Noncustodial Parent

Engagement of noncustodial parents is more than contacting them inquiring as to their interest in being involved with the child(ren). It requires trying to understand their situation and why they may feel the way they do. It is important to be aware of certain dynamics that may come into play in this process. Their behavior may be in response to previous negative experiences they have had with the custodial parent, preconceived notions about how they are perceived by others regarding the status of their parental involvement, or they may be reluctant because of their views about the child welfare system. Engagement of noncustodial parents can be facilitated by educating them on the process and exploring with them their possible role and how they can be a resource for the child(ren). The discussions with the custodial parent surrounding the involvement of the non-custodial parent need to occur during the development of the case plan. Engagement should revolve around the noncustodial parent’s presence/engagement in the child’s life, caregiving abilities, cooperative parenting, and emotional contributions to the child. A determination must be made about the non-custodial parent involvement with the child and their ability to contribute the outcomes of the case plan prior to establishing contact standards for the non-custodial parent.

Observing Parent/Guardian and Child Interaction

Direct observation of parent and child interactions: What is the quality of the parent and child bonding? Does the parent engage the child in developmentally stimulating activities? Does the parent handle the child roughly or is there an apparent comfort level in providing for the child’s needs? Does the parent identify the child’s needs and respond to them in a nurturing way? Does the child seem fearful of the parent? Parent-child interaction in the parents’ home should be observed prior to reunification.

Hearing and seeing how the parent and child communicate: Is communication verbal, non-verbal, physical, positive, negative, passive, more negative than positive?

Determine if progress on the specified steps of the case plan are met: What changes in the parent’s interaction with a child are observed since the previous meeting and/or the implementation of service provisions (i.e., counseling, parenting skills training)? Is the parent learning and practicing better ways of parenting? Are they utilizing their action plan to avoid, interrupt or escape situations that would usually lead to high-risk behaviors? Does the parent redirect the child when unwanted behaviors are noticed? If service provision is effective, there should be evidence of enhanced parenting skills.

These are only a few of the many insights that may be gained from direct observation of parent and child interactions. Using what is directly observed as a major component of case decision making is vital. A case decision based only on what is reported by the parent is never sufficient.

Why to Make Contacts in the Home

It is important to visit children in the home environment to assess safety and gain an understanding of the child's living conditions. It is recommended that contacts be made in the home as often as possible. There is helpful information that may be gathered when interacting with parents and children in their home environment and it is important to make firsthand observations of the home environment to which the child may be returning.

Announced or Unannounced Home Visits

The nature of the reported allegations and the initial indication of the existence of a present danger situation or impending danger safety threat must be the first consideration when determining whether to make an announced or unannounced visit.^[3] If there is a present danger situation, this requires an immediate response, regardless of where the child is located. When a present danger situation is not apparent initially, the nature of the allegations and DFCS history, as well as the consideration of whether an interview could be tainted by an adult are important considerations when determining whether to do an announced or unannounced visit. Making an unannounced visit should be associated with timeliness, immediacy, or emergency situations. Unannounced visits are not discouraged when they are appropriate, but they should be necessary and justified based upon the individual circumstances of the case and its history. Supervisory consultation and guidance are an integral part of the discussion when preparing to engage a family during CPS intervention. A family needs to know that CPS is not there to "catch them doing something", but to take action to protect a child. Therefore, there needs to be a specific, immediate, and clearly observable reason that a case manager makes an unannounced visit.

When a case manager is trying to build a partnership and consensus with a family, he/she must remember that courtesy and mutual respect are core components of building effective and sustainable solutions to the difficult tasks or situations identified by a family. When possible, a scheduled visit with a family can be an effective, convenient, and efficient process for all parties. The visit can be set to a time that is mutually convenient and include all household members. This alleviates the need to make multiple visits to complete interviews; saving time and effort for the case manager and caregiver(s) and shows an effort to be courteous and respectful of the family and their time.

Consideration for Additional Purposeful Contacts

Circumstances which may warrant additional purposeful contacts include, but are not limited to, the following:

1. Children are considered vulnerable because of age or disability.
2. The safety plan is no longer sufficient.
3. Progress is not being made on the safety plan or the family is in crisis.
4. There are possible present danger situations or impending danger safety threats identified through contact with formal/informal providers or collaterals.
5. Child Protective Services history with the family.

Purposeful Contacts When the Caregiver or Child Resides in Another County

County A may request County B to conduct a purposeful visit with a caregiver or child who is residing or temporarily living in County B if County A cannot conduct the visit. Both counties should have a discussion prior to the visit to address case plan goals, the purpose of the visit and frequency of the visits. The assigned SSCM in County B should be added as a secondary SSCM in Georgia SHINES so that they may document the visit.

Safe Sleeping Recommendations for Infants up to One Year of Age

Caregivers of infants (birth to 12 months old) must be informed of conditions that constitute a safe sleeping environment and that reduce the risk of Sudden Infant Death Syndrome (SIDS)/Sudden Unexpected Infant Death (SUID), also known as “crib death”. At minimum, caregivers should be advised of the three primary safe sleep recommendations of the American Academy of Pediatrics (AAP) commonly referred to as the ‘ABCs’ of safe sleep:

Alone – The baby’s sleep area should be close to, but separate from, where caregivers and others sleep. The sleeping area should be free of soft objects, toys, and loose bedding.

Back – Infants should always be placed on their back to sleep for naps and at night.

Crib – Place infants on a firm sleep surface, such as on a safety-approved crib mattress, covered by a fitted sheet.

Further additional information and guidance regarding safe sleeping and SIDS/SUIDS see Infant Safe to Sleep Guidelines and Protocol in Forms and Tools.

Motor Vehicle Safety Recommendations

Children are sensitive to heat as their body temperature can heat up three to five times faster than an adult’s. Children will die if their body temperature exceeds 107 degrees. Even at a temperature of 60 degrees outdoors, the temperature inside a car can exceed 110 degrees. The U.S. Department of Transportation (DOT) National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA) recommends the following precautions to take in order to avoid child heatstroke.

1. Never leave a child unattended in a vehicle – even if the windows are partially open or the engine is running, and the air conditioning is on;
2. Make a habit of looking in the vehicle – front and back – before locking the door and walking away;
3. Ask the childcare provider to call if the child does not show up for care as expected;
4. Do things that serve as a reminder that a child is in the vehicle, such as placing a phone, purse, or briefcase in the back seat to ensure no child is accidentally left in the vehicle or writing a note or using a stuffed animal placed in the driver's view to indicate a child is in the car seat;

5. Always lock your vehicle when not in use and store keys out of a child's reach, so children cannot enter unattended. Teach children that a vehicle is not a play area;
6. A child in distress due to heat should be removed from the vehicle as quickly as possible and rapidly cooled.

Documenting Purposeful Contacts

All visits must be documented on the Contact Detail page in Georgia SHINES within 72 hours of the contact. A narrative must be completed for each Contact Detail. At a minimum, the documentation entry must include:

1. The type of contact (e.g., face-to-face, announced, unannounced, etc.).
2. The date the contact occurred.
3. Person(s) present at the visit.
4. The purpose of the visit.
5. What was discussed.
6. Where the visit occurred.
7. Whether the caregiver or child was interviewed privately. If the child was not interviewed privately document the reason(s) why this did not occur.
8. Summary of information (What happened at the visit):
 - a. The developmental stage of the family and the everyday life task in which the family is struggling;
 - b. Sequencing of the event/situation that is causing concern;
 - c. Safety, permanency, and well-being issues discussed;
 - d. Consensus developed with the caregivers;
 - e. Child and parent's involvement in safety planning;
 - f. Safety determination (safe or unsafe);
 - g. Safety plan management; and
 - h. Change that was noticed and celebrated with the caregiver(s).
9. Observations of the home environment, children for injuries or signs of maltreatment and interactions of family members.
10. Any concerns or red flags identified.
11. Next steps and the plan for addressing identified issues or concerns, as well as documentation of issue resolution.

2. Complete a thorough review and analysis of the information gathered, including DFCS history, during the investigation to support decision-making.
3. Conduct a supervisor staffing to make an investigation determination.
4. Document the investigation determination and the evidence to support the safety and maltreatment determination on the Allegation Detail page and Investigation Conclusion page in Georgia SHINES.

Procedures

Social Services Case Manager

1. Document all investigative activities in Georgia SHINES including:
 - a. Interviews, observations, and collaterals;
 - b. Joint investigative activities with law enforcement; and
 - c. Upload into External Documentation reports, forms, medical reports, professional assessments, pictures, letters, etc.
2. Analyze information gathered relative to each area of family functioning:
 - a. Interviews and observations of all household members and/or alleged maltreater(s);
 - b. Observations of the home environment and/or the location in which the abuse occurred, including observation of objects that may have been named in the allegations of maltreatment;
 - c. Collateral contacts;
 - d. Videos, assessments, forensic reports, police reports, medical reports, educational reports, pictures, etc.;
 - e. DFCS history and how it relates to the current allegations (see policy 19.10 Case Management: Analyzing DFCS History);
 - f. Safety Screenings; and
 - g. Any other information relevant to the allegations of maltreatment and child safety.
3. Consider the challenges the family is facing related to their developmental stage and tasks and any correlation to alleged child abuse.
4. When substance abuse is suspected or alleged see policy 19.26 Case Management: Case Management Involving Substance Abuse or Use for additional steps that need to be completed and considered when making a determination.
5. Make additional contacts or obtain additional information to resolve and/or provide clarification of inconsistencies (see Practice Guidance: Resolving Discrepancies and Conflicting Information).
6. Participate in a supervisor staffing to make the following determinations:
 - a. Safety (safe or unsafe) for each alleged victim child in accordance with policy 19.11 Case Management: Safety Assessment.
 - b. Maltreatment (unsubstantiated or substantiated) for each alleged victim child;
 - c. Whether further DFCS intervention is required to ensure child safety; and
 - d. Service provision needed to assist the family with managing the challenging situation(s) (see policy 19.17 Case Management: Service Provision).
7. Document the maltreatment determination on the Allegation Detail page in Georgia SHINES:
 - a. Verify the address of the alleged maltreater is correct on the Person Detail Page and make corrections as necessary;
 - b. Verify the category/type of child abuse and maltreatment code is matched to the appropriate victim child;

- c. Designate the appropriate individual(s) as the alleged maltreater for each applicable category/type of child abuse and corresponding maltreatment code;

When the alleged maltreater is unknown and the evidence gathered during the investigation supports that child abuse occurred, the maltreatment determination must be substantiated.

- d. Select “Substantiated” or “Unsubstantiated” for each child abuse allegation;

If the category/type of child abuse and/or maltreatment code(s) is incorrect, unsubstantiate the allegation and add the correct of maltreatment category/type and corresponding maltreatment code(s). The addition of the category/type of maltreatment and corresponding code(s) must be related to the information reported at intake. If not related to the incident a new intake report is required.

- e. Complete the Evidence Summary section by documenting a detailed summary of evidence that supports each maltreatment determination (photos, videos observations, diagnoses, disclosures during interviews); and
 - f. Write a concise statement in the Justification of Findings section that supports the maltreatment determination to include the type of child abuse being substantiated or unsubstantiated. See Practice Guidance: Allegation Detail Page and the Justification of Findings.
8. Complete the Investigative Conclusion page in Georgia SHINES, including writing an Investigation Conclusion Summary that includes:
 - a. A detailed summary of evidence that supports the maltreatment and safety determination for each child abuse allegation investigated (photos, videos, observations, diagnoses, disclosures during interviews),

2. Review the case record in Georgia SHINES within 45 calendar days of receipt of the intake report, to ensure the case determination is accurately reflected:
 - a. Log of Contacts;
 - b. Allegation Detail Page:
 - i. The child abuse category and maltreatment code(s) correspond to the appropriate child victim and that the maltreatment determination of substantiated or unsubstantiated is correct;
 - ii. The alleged maltreater identified is correct for each alleged victim child and maltreatment determination;
 - iii. Justification of Findings statement supports the decision to substantiate or unsubstantiate the category/type of child abuse selected.
 - c. Investigation Conclusion, including the Investigation Conclusion Summary to ensure it supports the decisions made during the dispositional staffing:
 - i. A detailed summary of evidence that supports the maltreatment findings and safety determination for each allegation investigated (photos, videos, observations, diagnoses, disclosures during interviews, etc.);

 - iv. Recommendations for services.

Practice Guidance

The Role of Intent in Maltreatment

A caregiver often states that he/she did not mean or intend to harm their child. For example, a caregiver may choose to punish his/her child by spanking the child using an instrument such as a belt. Once this choice is made the caregiver's "intent" is not relevant as to whether the child was maltreated. The natural consequences of the actions or inactions of the caregiver determine whether maltreatment occurred. The caregiver may not have "meant" to leave the marks, but because he/she made the decision to use the belt when hitting the child, marks occurred. The marks were left as a natural consequence of using the belt to spank the child. When maltreatment meets the statutory language in the definition, intent is not relevant; maltreatment occurred, and the allegation of abuse must be substantiated. However, the intent of the caregiver may be considered when making a safety determination.

Resolving Discrepancies or Conflicting Information

During an Investigation, often there are discrepancies in information collected or there are conflicting accounts regarding the allegations of abuse. It is important to attempt to resolve discrepancies or conflicts to ensure that the information gathered accurately supports the investigation determination. Some ways to address these situations include but are not limited to:

1. Reviewing the information gathered again to determine what information is needed to resolve the issue(s).

2. Seeking supervisory assistance to review the information or develop a plan to resolve the issue(s).
3. Conducting additional interviews with the family members, reporter, collaterals, etc.
4. Engaging subject matter experts to assist in the review of evidence or to discuss the information.
5. Requesting additional professional assessments or evaluations for the child(ren) or caregiver(s).

Maltreatment Determination

The maltreatment determination considers whether the alleged child abuse is substantiated or unsubstantiated.

1. Substantiated means the allegations of child abuse, as defined by Georgia statute, is supported by a preponderance of the evidence. A preponderance of evidence means that the greater the weight of the evidence makes it more probable than not that child abuse occurred. A substantiation determination also means harm to the child is severe enough to constitute maltreatment and there is sufficient evidence to support child maltreatment. When evidence supports maltreatment occurred, regardless of whether the identity of the maltreater is known or unknown the case determination must be substantiated.
2. Unsubstantiated means the allegations of child abuse, as defined by Georgia statute, is not supported by a preponderance of the evidence. An unsubstantiated determination means harm to the child is not severe enough to constitute maltreatment and/or there is not sufficient evidence to support child maltreatment. Even though a maltreatment determination may be unsubstantiated, documentation may show a pattern of behavior that may be useful in decision-making.

Safety Determination

The safety determination identifies the child as either safe or unsafe based on the safety assessment as outlined in policy 19.11 Case Management: Safety Assessment. The existence of maltreatment (substantiated or unsubstantiated) and a safety determination (safe or unsafe) are two separate determinations. A child may have been maltreated but could still be considered safe based on individual family circumstances and caregiver protective capacities. If there is a determination that any child in the home is unsafe then DFCS must transfer the case to Family Preservation Services or Permanency for further intervention.

Making an Investigative Decision - Maltreater Unidentified or Unknown

Questions about the identity of a maltreater occur primarily when a child is injured, he/she is unable to identify the maltreater and there is more than one caregiver that could have caused the injury. In these circumstances, case managers and supervisors will need to reach a judgement as to whether there is a preponderance of the evidence that one of the possible caregivers, as compared to other caregivers, injured the child. A preponderance of evidence means that the greater the weight of the evidence makes it more probable than not that the caregiver caused the injury to the child. Reaching such a conclusion may require an investigation which is more time consuming and detailed than an investigation in which this issue is not present. There may be instances where the decision is made to substantiate child abuse against more than one caregiver, especially when the injuries have occurred over time. When the alleged maltreater is unknown and the evidence gathered during the investigation supports that child abuse occurred, the maltreatment determination must be substantiated.

Investigation Conclusion Page

The Investigation Conclusion Page in Georgia SHINES is where the overall finding case disposition is recorded. Included on the Investigation Conclusion page is the Investigation Conclusion Summary. The purpose of this summarizes what occurred during the investigation from beginning to end. This does not mean that the Log of Contacts should be copied and pasted into this section. An Investigation Conclusion Summary should include:

1. What was alleged.
2. Evidence to support or refute the allegations. Evidence may include pictures, direct witness statements, observations, formal diagnosis, evaluations from licensed clinicians, disclosures by the alleged victim child or other children subject to the care of the alleged maltreater, interviews with the alleged maltreater, history that shows a pattern of behavior, or information obtained by collateral resources.
3. Family Functioning information relevant to the case determination.
4. Safety related information and interventions put in place during the Investigation.
5. The overall case determination including whether the case will be closed, or stage progressed to Family Preservation Services or Foster Care.

Example of Substantiated-Open Investigation Conclusion

On 3/1/2017 a report was received indicating that the Lannister family moved from Florida to Georgia in December 2016. At the time of the move the family had an open CPS case in FL and failed to notify their case manager of the move to Georgia. The case was open due to medical neglect resulting from prescription substance abuse by the mother, Ms. Jane Lannister and her live-in paramour, John Baratheon.

Ms. Lannister and Mr. Baratheon have one child, Joffery, age 2. Joffery was born premature and has not been seen in the doctor's office since he was 9 months old. Joffery's pediatrician in FL indicated that Ms. Lannister missed several follow up appointments to treat a severe asthma condition. Ms. Lannister stated that she took Joffery to the doctor before leaving FL and was up to date on all well-checks and immunizations, however medical records verified this was untrue. Ms. Lannister also stated that she applied for Medicaid upon arriving in GA, however the application was not located. The sole income in the home is Mr. Baratheon's SSI, received for a chronic seizure condition that is currently untreated. Both caregivers admitted to spending the SSI money on purchasing illegal prescription medications.

The home was observed to be in disarray. Dirty dishes were piled up in the sink and all over the counter and food that appeared to be several days old was left on the table in dishes. Joffery was wandering around the home in a dirty diaper that had not been changed based on the amount of urine that saturated the diaper. He was also observed to be coughing and wheezing by the SSCM during the visit.

The drug screen results on both caregivers were positive for opiates and benzodiazepines. SSCM also noted that Ms. Lannister and Mr. Baratheon appeared to be under the influence of substances as evidenced by sleeping during the day, slurred words when talking, and dilated pupils. Prior medical conditions were cited as the basis for the prescription drug use, however neither caregiver could produce valid prescriptions from a medical provider. Results of a substance abuse assessment included several recommendations for follow up treatment for both caregivers.

Impending dangers were identified based on the caregivers' inability to control their behavior and complete daily life activities (cleaning, taking child to the doctor, etc.) due to the illegal use of prescription drugs and the inability of both caregivers to give a valid explanation as to why Joffery had not been taken to the doctor to deal with his severe asthma in both FL and GA.

A safety plan was completed to address the condition of the home, follow up on Joffery's medical care for observed respiratory issues, and to develop a plan for supervision of Joffery if Ms. Lannister or Mr. Baratheon are using prescription medications (legally or illegally) that affect their judgment or knock them out. The home was cleaned on a follow up visit and Joffery was enrolled in daycare. An appointment was also made with a local pediatrician. Both caregivers indicate a willingness to attend substance abuse treatment based on the recommendations of the substance abuse assessments.

Neglect (Medical Neglect) is substantiated due to Ms. Lannister failing to provide adequate medical care for Joffery's continued respiratory issues and the case opened for FPS. Recommended initial services are:

- Ms. Lannister and Mr. Baratheon need to follow up on recommendations from the substance abuse assessment.
- Follow up medical care for Joffery

Example of Unsubstantiated-Closed Investigation Conclusion

On 3/2/17 DFCS received a report concerning Arya Stark stating that Arya was being abused by her father, Ned Stark. Arya was interviewed and stated that her father, Mr. Stark slammed her head into the head rest in the car. She also stated that Mr. Stark emotionally abuses her by calling her names.

Collateral contacts and interviews with Arya's siblings did not support Arya's statement of abuse. Arya did not have any marks/bruises and Arya's siblings (Sansa, Robb, and Bran) stated that Arya is not physically disciplined. Arya also could not remember important details of her account such as when the alleged incident happened or why Mr. Stark allegedly did it.

Arya has been seeing a therapist for approximately one year. The therapist reported that Arya never disclosed any abuse/neglect during the sessions. Arya did sustain an injury when Mr. Stark restrained her from running away, which was a minor bruise to the lip approximately a year and a half ago. Mr. Stark obtained therapy for Arya soon after the incident. Mr. Stark is a single parent, after losing his wife to cancer. The therapist indicated that there have been incidents of the family using name calling when they are angry, but she is doing both individual and family counseling with them to help work through these issues and feels that most of the problems are related to the family's grief. Mr. Stark has extended family support who assist him with the children. Other personal collateral contacts did not reveal any information that would indicate Mr. Stark was being abusive to his children. No impending dangers were noted. Allegations of physical abuse (bruises, welts, abrasions) are unsubstantiated. There is no CPS history, and no further services are recommended.

Allegation Detail Page and the Justification of Findings

The Allegation Detail page in Georgia SHINES is where the SSCM documents a disposition (substantiated or unsubstantiated) for each allegation of child abuse investigated. The justification of findings supports the decision to substantiate or unsubstantiate the allegations. It is a clear and concise description of facts and evidence gathered during the investigation and details a preponderance of credible evidence to support the findings concerning one of the forms of child abuse investigated (prenatal abuse, risk of imminent harm, labor servitude emotional abuse, neglect, physical abuse, sexual abuse, and sexual exploitation). Below is an example of a justification of findings for neglect.

- Ms. Jones is substantiated for neglect due to abandonment. For six months from approximately August 8, 2021, through February 14, 2022, Ms. Smith abandoned her two children, S.D. and M.D., age 13, by leaving them with their grandmother Ms. Scott, without provision for their support and without regularly visiting them.
- Ms. Jackson is substantiated for neglect due to inadequate supervision. On January 11, 2022, Ms. Jackson neglected I.J., age 8 by failing to provide him with adequate supervision by leaving him alone at home while she was away from home at work for nine hours.

ered that the parent/guardian of the alleged victim child(ren) is on active duty in the Armed Forces of the United States, and the notification was not completed by the CPS Intake Communications Center (CICC).

2. Provide written notification of the investigation outcome within five calendar days of the conclusion of the investigation to the:
 - a. Parent(s) of the alleged victim child, if he/she is not the substantiated maltreater, via the Notification of Child Protective Services Investigation Outcome to the Parent/Legal Custodian Not Alleged as a Child Maltreater.

2. Verify the Administrative Review page in Georgia SHINES is updated with the 3rd level review decision. If the decision is to overturn the substantiation, ensure the investigation disposition has been updated.

Practice Guidance

The Child Abuse Prevention and Treatment Act requires that states have in place an appeal process by which an individual who has been identified as abusing or neglecting a child can appeal such a finding. The substantiated maltreater’s request for a CPS Administrative Review does not absolve DFCS’ obligation to ensure the safety of children and families. Services to mitigate present or impending danger must be discussed and implemented with the family with the understanding that the review process and service delivery will occur simultaneously. If during the appeal process a child is deemed unsafe, appropriate action must be taken, up to, and including filing a dependency petition in juvenile court to ensure safety.

The objectives of the CPS Administrative Review are to:

1. Determine if the information and evidence gathered during the investigation is sufficient to support the substantiated maltreatment.
2. Provide an opportunity for the substantiated maltreater to appeal the case disposition and to submit written or oral information that supports an unsubstantiated case disposition.
3. Provide an opportunity for DFCS staff to enhance best practices and service delivery.

DFCS County Staff Administrative Review Responsibilities

The investigator should prepare for the administrative review in the same manner as if preparing for court. A thorough review of records and documentation should be completed in Georgia SHINES. It is preferable that the case is presented by the SSCM who completed the investigation. If this is not possible, the county may select the individual that can best present the case decision.

Completing the Administrative Review Page in Georgia SHINES

When a request for a 1st level administrative review is received, the RD/Designee may use the Administrative Review page in Georgia SHINES to begin the 1st level review process by:

1. Conducting a Georgia SHINES case and person search to ensure the correct person is requesting the administrative review and to review the Legal tab to determine if there are existing legal actions.
2. Select the correct investigation stage and click the Administrative Review Appeal radio button on the Case Summary page. This creates a new stage of work for the administrative review that will be displayed under the 2nd level tab of Administrative Review.
3. Select the person who is requesting the review from the Person List.

Only adults with the role of “Principal” can be selected.

4. Enter the relevant information about the review request and document the outcome.
5. Enter the date the request was received in the Request Received field.
6. Document the outcome of the review in the free-form text field.
7. Once the information is complete and the outcome is decided, the reviewer uses the Save and Close button to close out the administrative review. After this, the administrative review stage will be closed, and the page will be view only. A narrative is available for completion of documentation.
8. If the findings change the disposition of any of the allegations, the reviewer will access the Allegation List from the 2nd Level menu in the Administrative Review stage where the dispositions can be updated.

9. If the overall case disposition is overturned, the reviewer will access the Allegations List from the 2nd Level menu in the Administrative Review stage where the case disposition can be updated. The change(s) will auto-populate to the Investigation Conclusion page. Do not use the Supervisor Override. The Investigation Conclusion page narrative should also be updated in the 2nd level Administrative Review stage by the reviewer.

Administrative Reviewers

The RD/Designee, ART, and/or DFCS Division Director/Designee must decide to uphold or overturn the substantiation decision based upon a preponderance of the evidence. A preponderance of evidence means the greater weight of the evidence makes it more probable than not that a finding of substantiation is warranted.

Review Options When No Case Record Is Available

When there is no case record available for review, the Reviewer must attempt to obtain as much corroborating information as possible. Notarized statements from the Requestor, witnesses, collaterals, and in some cases statements from the alleged victim child(ren) may be helpful when reviewing the case. Other information available such as police reports, court reports, or professional assessments may also be reviewed and considered when no case record is available.

Options for the Substantiated Maltreater (Requestor)

Upon receipt of the Notification of Child Protective Services (CPS) Investigation Outcome that indicates a substantiated case disposition, the substantiated maltreater (Requestor) has the option of submitting his/her request for a 1st level review. If the Requestor does not agree with the 1st level review decision, the Requestor has the option to submit a request for a 2nd level review.

Requirements

The Division of Family and Children Services will take immediate action to ensure child safety when caregivers refuse to allow access to a child and/or the home, and it is unknown whether the child is in danger. Such actions include, but are not limited to, the following:

1. Obtain assistance from law enforcement; and/or
2. Seek court intervention.

Procedures

When the family refuses to cooperate, the Social Services Case Manager will:

1. Consult the Social Services Supervisor (SSS) to discuss possible court or law enforcement intervention.
2. If determined to be necessary, inform the caregiver of DFCS' intent to involve court or law enforcement unless the caregiver immediately cooperates. Establish a short deadline for cooperation and give the caregiver notice of intent to petition the court if non-cooperation continues.
3. If time does not permit filing a dependency complaint (required to obtain dependency order for cooperation) or the caregiver does not comply within the deadline, the SSCM should consult with the SSS to discuss the next steps.

- a. If law enforcement assistance is determined appropriate, notify law enforcement, explaining the circumstances in order to request assistance in interviewing/observing the child or for immediate on site assistance.
- b. If court intervention is determined appropriate, contact the SAAG for juvenile court intervention if known or suspected present danger situations are determined to be impacting child safety (see policy 17.1 Legal: The Juvenile Court Process).

Practice Guidance

Some families, because they do not want the department involved in their lives, will refuse to cooperate or to allow access to children. DFCS is authorized by state law to investigate reports of child maltreatment and to determine that children are safe; therefore, it is necessary to take appropriate steps when a family refuses to cooperate with an investigation, to ensure child safety.

A family's refusal to allow DFCS to be involved may be due to a lack of understanding of DFCS' legal responsibility to investigate reports of child maltreatment. Therefore, providing a clear explanation to family members beginning at the first contact may help facilitate cooperation.

At any time during investigation or the provision of ongoing services, if the SSCM is refused access to the home or the children, steps must be taken to determine and ensure that the children are safe.

Discussion

As the designated child welfare agency in Georgia, the Division of Family and Children Services (DFCS) is legally mandated to investigate reports of known or suspected instances of child abuse; including physical or mental injury, sexual abuse or exploitation, or negligent treatment/maltreatment under circumstances that indicate the child's health or welfare is threatened. Federal and state laws also mandate Child Protective Services (CPS) Investigations that extend beyond the traditional parent-child domain. In Georgia, such investigations are handled as Special Investigations and include reports involving:

1. A child death, near fatality or serious injury (CD/NF/SI).
2. Children in DFCS custody.
3. DFCS or Child Placing Agency (CPA) foster or adoptive home.

A special investigation is required regardless of children currently being placed in the foster or adoptive home.

4. Foster Care kinship placements.
5. Residential Facilities, including Child Caring Institutions (CCI).

6. Non-Residential Facilities including Child Care Learning Centers (CCLC), Day Camps, Family Child Care Learning Home/Home-Based Child Care.
7. Overnight Camps.
8. Public or Private Non-Residential Schools.

Maltreatment in Care (MIC) – Special Investigations

A special investigation alleging a child in DFCS custody has been abused, regardless of who has been alleged as the maltreater.

Types of Circumstances, Homes, Facilities and Placements – Requiring Special Investigations

1. Children in DFCS Custody: Child in the legal temporary or permanent custody of DFCS.
2. DFCS Foster or Adoptive Homes: DFCS foster homes provide temporary care for children in foster care. Similarly, DFCS adoptive homes provide care for children in foster care, however, the adoptive parents have formally committed to the adoption of the children. In addition, DFCS kinship foster homes or kinship adoptive homes, share the same corresponding responsibilities and requirements though the caregivers are kin to the children placed in their home. DFCS County Departments are responsible for evaluating, approving, and monitoring DFCS foster or adoptive homes.
3. Child Placing Agency (CPA) Foster or Adoptive Homes: CPA foster homes provide temporary care for children in foster care. Similarly, CPA adoptive homes provide care for children in foster care, however, the adoptive parents have formally committed to the adoption of the children. CPA foster and adoptive homes are evaluated, approved, and administered by a CPA. A CPA is any institution, society, agency, or facility which places children in foster homes for temporary care or in prospective adoptive homes for adoption. The Office of Provider Management (OPM) and Residential Child Care Licensing (RCCL) is the oversight authorities for CPA foster or adoptive homes.

Collaboration in Special Investigations

Special investigations require collaboration with both internal and external partners. These partners may include law enforcement, oversight authority, and/or other DFCS Social Services Case Manager's (SSCM) based on the setting and/or type of special investigation. Cooperation between agencies and disciplines enables a more efficient process with less duplication, different perspectives, and allows for shared accountability by addressing safety issues in partnership with stakeholders.

Initiating the assessment is defined as making or attempting to contact the family or another person who can provide information essential to the disposition of the investigation or assessment.

CPS Communication Center (CICC) contacting the family or another person during the intake assessment phase to determine the location of the alleged maltreated child does not constitute initiation of the assessment.

Practice Guidance

Child Abuse Protocol

Georgia law (O.C.G.A. §19-15-2) requires that each county establish a written Child Abuse Protocol (CAP) to be used in investigating and prosecuting cases arising from alleged child abuse. The purpose of the CAP is to ensure cooperation and coordination of investigative activities between all agencies involved in a child abuse case so as to increase the efficiency of all agencies handling such cases, in an effort to minimize trauma for the allegedly abused child and ensure that treatment is provided for the child, family and perpetrator. The CAP includes but is not limited to the following:

1. Procedures to ensure that the protocols are followed by each agency in the county that handles child abuse cases.
2. Circumstances under which law enforcement officers shall and shall not be required to accompany DFCS investigator when investigating reports of child abuse.

In making this determination, the need to protect the alleged victim and to preserve the confidentiality of the report shall be considered.

3. Procedures to be used in investigating and prosecuting cases arising from alleged child abuse.
4. Procedures to be used when child abuse occurs in a household where there is family violence (e.g., between past or present spouses, persons who are parents of the same child, parents and children, or other persons living or formerly living in the same household).

5. Procedures to be used in investigating and prosecuting cases arising from sexual abuse and exploitation.
6. Methods used in coordinating treatment programs for the child, the family, and the perpetrator.
7. Procedures to be followed concerning the obtainment and payment for sexual assault examinations.

Joint Investigations with Law Enforcement

Law enforcement^[1] is the criminal investigative agency in the community and often must investigate the same incident, involving the same people, as DFCS. In many communities, this involves a parallel investigation where DFCS and law enforcement must work as a team and in collaboration with one another. The team approach to these investigations is more desirable as it allows both law enforcement and DFCS to avoid potential conflict and to improve investigative outcomes. Assistance or joint investigations with law enforcement is required for all serious and/or complex reports of abuse or neglect (including, but not limited to, sexual abuse, severe physical abuse, serious injury^[2], child death, near fatality^[3], and/or chronic, severe neglect) and should be conducted as outlined by the local Child Abuse Protocol. A joint investigation may include:

1. Developing a plan to complete the investigation.
2. Responding with law enforcement.
3. Frequent and open communication, particularly at the following critical communication points:
 - a. Completion of interviews;
 - b. Filing a dependency petition;
 - c. Prior to the return of the child victim to the home at any time during the life of a case;
 - d. Prior to the return of an alleged maltreater to the home at any time during the life of a case;
 - e. Reassessment of safety to include a change in the safety plan or change in placement; and
 - f. Disclosure of information about the criminal conduct.
4. Refraining or delaying an interview with the alleged maltreater due to a criminal case.

Requests by Law Enforcement to Refrain or Delay Interviewing Alleged Maltreaters

Law enforcement may request DFCS refrain or delay interviewing the alleged maltreater due to a criminal case. The SSCM still has a primary obligation to ensure child safety. In this situation open and clear communication with law enforcement is necessary so that each agency understands what is required.

When the alleged maltreater has access to the alleged victim child(ren) and a safety determination cannot be made without conducting an interview, communicate directly with law enforcement to coordinate the interview or to obtain a transcript of the interview conducted by law enforcement. When it is determined that the SSCM will not be conducting a separate interview with the alleged maltreater, a list of questions or information that is needed from the individual(s) can be provided to law enforcement to ask the during the interview. DFCS must initiate an assessment within the assigned response time. If law enforcement is not able to respond jointly within the response time established by DFCS, explain to the law enforcement agency that DFCS must proceed with assessing child safety.

Case Manager Safety

The SSCM should consider a request for law enforcement officers to go with them based on the location of the visit, the time of day/night, or the history of the subjects involved. Often the presence of law enforcement during a case manager’s visit with a family has a stabilizing effect and thus helps to ensure the safety of all parties involved. Additionally, law enforcement’s authority is more widely accepted than CPS authority. Law enforcement can also be called for assistance when it becomes necessary to remove children from their home. Law enforcement has the authority to take custody of children, when the legal requirements are met, without a court order.

Conflicts of Interest in Special Investigations

To avoid any conflicts of interest when working with a placement resource or family with prior DFCS history a special investigation could be conducted by an SSCM and SSS without primary case management responsibilities or from outside the county in which the home or resource is located. It is permissible for the County Department where the resource or home is located or with primary case management responsibilities to meet the response time to ensure child safety when a SSCM from the other County Department is not readily available.

4. Develop a plan for the purposeful contact:

a. Determine whether the visit should be announced or unannounced based on the extent and circumstances of the alleged child abuse or safety concerns.

Practice Guidance

All contacts made with parents and their children provide an opportunity to build a trusting and supportive partnership. Contacts should be well planned and have a clear purpose. In order to thoroughly assess a child's safety, permanency, and well-being, it is important to assess the functioning of the family that is caring for the child. Some key principles to consider when conducting purposeful contacts include:

1. Recognizing the family providing care as a system
Each member of the family, including the child, has a role and responsibilities within the family. If any one person is unable to fulfill their responsibilities, then the whole family is impacted.
2. Engagement and partnership building
Purposeful contacts are not only about engaging and building a relationship with the caregiver, but also about engaging and building a relationship with the entire family including absent parents.
3. Involvement of families and youth
Because each member of a family has a role and responsibilities, it is essential to obtain input from all family members when assessing family functioning. When family members are engaged, this will re-affirm their significance in ensuring the success of the family system.

4. Recognizing all members are individuals

Each family member will adjust differently to challenges to everyday life tasks. It is important to recognize the individuality of each family member and the impact DFCS involvement has on their lives.

5. Cultural awareness

Each family has their own culture. Culture impacts family rituals and traditions. As family functioning is assessed, being respectful of all cultures involved and how they impact the functioning of the family is important for engaging families and developing partnerships.

6. Empathy, authenticity, and transparency

During purposeful contact with family, be mindful of empathy, authenticity, and transparency. When engaging families, it is important to identify their thoughts and feelings even if we may not always agree. Be genuine and open in communicating with all family members and recognize your accountability regarding the success or failure of the family. Purposeful contacts are also a time for the family to hold us accountable for what we may or may not be doing on behalf of the family who has joined in partnership with us.

7. Remaining focused on safety, permanency, and well-being throughout the process.

Minimizing Trauma to Children During an Investigation

Many children coming into the child welfare system have been traumatized by experiences of abuse or neglect.^[4] This trauma is often chronic and/or complex, meaning that it has been sustained over a period, started at a very young age (when the child is most vulnerable) and perpetrated by someone who the child depends on for protection and care. Trauma can have serious short-term and long-term effects on children's development such as attachment, cognition, mood regulation, behavior control, physiology, dissociation, and self-concept. Children who have been exposed to trauma expend a great deal of energy responding to, coping with, and coming to terms with the traumatic event(s). This may reduce their capacity to master developmental tasks. The longer traumatic stress goes untreated, the farther children tend to stray from appropriate developmental pathways.

Considering that children who enter the child welfare system may have already experienced trauma, it is especially important that they not be further traumatized by the system that seeks to help them and that they receive services as soon as possible to facilitate their recovery from the trauma they have experienced. The potential for children to be traumatized during the process of investigation is high, as these processes often involve conflictual interactions between professionals and family members and can evoke fear, resistance, and hostility.

In order to reduce the chance of further traumatizing children during an investigation the following are some Trauma Informed Practice Strategies (T.I.P.S.) for Caseworkers:

1. Plan investigations, assessments, possible removals ahead as much as possible; reduce the element of surprise:
 - a. Slow down, plan out investigations and removals;
 - b. Let the family know an assessment is going on, that removal is a possibility, when applica-

- ble;
 - c. Suggest they keep a school aged child at home, so the child does not have to be interviewed at school;
 - d. Work with the parents to identify support individuals for their children during the assessment and/or for placement resources – kinship caregivers, friends, etc. Ask the parent and the child, who does this child know and trust; and
 - e. Collaborate with other agencies, especially law enforcement. How can you better collaborate out in the field; clarify roles and expectations.
2. Try to keep things calm during the investigation, assessment and when necessary, removal. Engage the parents in helping the child:
 - a. Remain calm; move slowly;
 - b. Talk the parents down. Calm the parents to calm the child; and
 - c. Separate children from the chaos of arrest, interrogation, or resistance on the part of the parents.
 3. Empathize, connect, and try to understand the child’s perspective:
 - a. Be open to listening if they want to talk;
 - b. Acknowledge their feelings and the difficulty of what they are going through; and
 - c. Acknowledge their love for their parents and their parents love for them.
 4. Provide information to the child:
 - a. Explain what is happening;
 - b. Assure them this is not their fault, they are safe, and will be cared for; and
 - c. Do not make promises you cannot keep.
 5. Provide services aimed at healing and wellbeing as soon as possible, including trauma informed services:
 - a. Make sure the child has someone to talk to about what is happening that they feel comfortable with;
 - b. Obtain a mental health assessment; and when necessary
 - c. Obtain counseling and/or other trauma informed therapy for the child.

Observing Children for Physical Signs of Maltreatment

Observing children for physical signs of maltreatment is an important part of ensuring child safety. To determine if there is cause to believe a child has been physically harmed, consider the following:

1. Non-verbal cues from the child or the caregiver that raise concern.
2. The age and special needs of the child. Young children and those with certain special needs are especially vulnerable and may not be able to verbalize when they are being abused or neglected. Therefore, the SSCM cannot depend on the child to say how they are feeling and must be keenly aware of non-verbal cues. For instance, if the child is wincing or drawing back slightly, it may be an indication of pain.

3. Statements made by the child, other children/household members/collaterals, etc. that indicate him/her may have been subjected to physical harm or neglect, etc.
4. Physical indicators of maltreatment such as suspicious injuries, marks, cuts, bruises, areas of swelling, protruding limbs, damaged skin, malnourishment, unexplained weight loss, lethargy, severe tooth decay, matted hair, pungent body odor, etc.
5. The child resides with the caregiver or other individual that harmed the child or another child.
6. The child indicates that physical discipline is being used; or that inappropriate methods of discipline is utilized by the caregiver or others in the home.

The SSCM may need to view areas of a child's body that are covered by clothing to observe for signs of maltreatment and determine if the child needs medical treatment. This may require that the child (or caregiver for younger children) adjust their clothing. This can be embarrassing and anxiety provoking for the child. SSCMs must be sensitive to the child's level of comfort and make every effort to reduce their discomfort. This can be accomplished by having an adult present that the child knows and trusts, and by asking the child or the caregiver (for children four years and under or those with special needs) to adjust one area of a child's clothing at a time. Asking the child or the caregiver to raise a child's pant leg or shirt sleeve one at a time, is less invasive, while allowing the SSCM to observe for signs of maltreatment. The child should never be fully unclothed. When possible, arrange for a staff person of the same sex as the child to conduct the observation.

Assessing Injuries

Some characteristics of injuries are considered red flags and warrant further scrutiny, these include but are not limited to:

1. Injuries on children who are not mobile, especially infants.
2. Injuries on protected surfaces of the body, such as the back and buttocks, ears, inside the mouth, the neck, arms or legs, and underarms.
3. Multiple injuries in various stages of healing (i.e., skin injuries, lesions of varying ages, bruises).
4. Patterned trauma, even if the object used to commit the abuse cannot be determined.
5. Injuries that routine, age-appropriate supervision of the child should have prevented.
6. Significant injury with either no explanation or an explanation that is not plausible.

Medical personnel are trained to detect signs of abuse or neglect that may otherwise go unnoticed. Whenever there is a question of whether a child needs to be examined by a medical professional, have the caregiver seek a medical consultation (e.g., 24-hour nurse helpline, poison control center). If medical treatment is recommended, insist the caregiver take the child to be examined by a medical professional within a specific timeframe.

The SSCM also needs to observe the scene of the injury, to ascertain whether the caregiver and/or child's statement of what happened is plausible.

1. Ask the caregiver and/or child to show him/her exactly what happened, and where.
2. Note anything about the physical environment that refutes the statement(s) provided. For example, if the caregiver claims that the child fell out of bed and hit their head on the floor, causing a severe bruise, the SSCM should look at the bed, the floor, and height from the bed to the floor. Is the floor carpeted? Is it plausible that the injury occurred on the carpeted floor?

3. Obtain a detailed, precise timeline of events surrounding the incident or track the sequence of events. The more detailed the history, the more likely the assessment of the injury will be accurate. This can be helpful when communicating with medical staff to determine if the injury could have been caused in the manner described by the caregiver and/or child.

Separating Intentions from Actions

An individual can experience differing even conflicting feelings about any given situation. It is not uncommon to have two thoughts on the same subject “I would like to..., but I am scared”. Individuals who may have caused harm to a child also experiences these conflicting feelings. “He deserved to be punished for not following the rules..., but I didn’t mean to hurt him. “He just would not stop crying, I was exhausted and wanted to sleep..., but I didn’t mean to shake him that hard.”

Separating intentions from actions means joining in partnership with the part of the person’s thoughts (intentions) related to not wanting this event to occur again, while helping them to acknowledge their unacceptable actions. Two methods used to help separate intentions from actions are:

1. Normalizing Family Struggles

Normalizing is a form of empathy (understanding) that acknowledges the family’s problems is part of the struggle of negotiating difficult life cycle stages, as well as strengths and efforts in coping with the problems. It also helps families learn that many others are in the same situation. It does not downplay or dismiss the problem. It also does not condone or endorse the harmful behavior.

For example, can you remember failing a test in college to only find out the majority of the class failed the test too? It does not remove the failing grade, but deep down it does make you feel a little better that others are in the same situation. Sometimes knowing others failed too provides confirmation that the test was difficult.

It is not unusual for families to start off defensively in their relationship with the case manager. Sometimes a simple introduction can evoke a defensive response from the family. Normalizing can enable an assessment to be more complete by minimizing the possibility of the family or individual becoming defensive and refusing to engage with the case manager. When a partnership is not established, information is not being shared openly, therefore obstructing the gathering information process (assessment). Normalizing a family’s struggles can reduce the risk of defensive behavior by the family by attributing the family’s problems to struggles associated with difficult life cycle stages.

Problem	Normalizing Language
Father who locked his teenage daughter in the basement to prevent her from leaving the house during the night while he sleeps.	“Teenagers today sometimes fail to understand the dangerous out in the world and the struggles to keep them away from harm. I found it so difficult when dealing with my teenage daughter, particularly if I knew she was hanging with the wrong crowd. You must feel horrible, how did the evening start?”

Problem	Normalizing Language
A mother who has neglected her children due to drug use (previous sex abuse victim by the biological father).	"Single mothers say all the time how hard it is raising children alone; I can only imagine how difficult it is to focus on the constant demands of raising two children while simultaneously trying to overcome the abuse you sustained as a child. It must be so hard. Tell me when you noticed things were more than you could handle?"
A mother who (education) neglects her children.	"As a parent, I found mornings extremely stressful. It took all I had to get the children up and out of the house to catch the school bus on time. I am sure it is especially difficult for you when your child makes up illnesses to avoid going to school and you do not have a car to transport him to school if he misses the bus. Tell me when this began."
Foster mother spans a child in foster care in her home. (policy violation assessment)	"A lot of foster parents have expressed how challenging it is to integrate a child into their home when the child may have come from a home with different rules or values. How did this all get started?"
Kinship caregiver placement resource who spanked a child in foster care placed in their home who is diagnosed ADHD.	"Kinship caregivers who agree to be a placement resource for the child often experience problems adhering to the no spanking guidelines required by DFCS, especially when they have cared for the child before the child went into foster care and was able to use physical discipline with the child. Tell what behaviors you were trying to deter?"
Adolescent in foster care who is experiencing problems adjusting to the school environment after being brought into foster care.	"I understand you are trying to focus on school, but it is hard to focus after being removed from your family and placed into foster care. Teenagers have told me how difficult it is returning to school after being brought into foster care and everyone at school is aware of the situation. Tell me about that."
Adolescent in foster care who is having a problem establishing his career objectives for the creation of the WTLF.	"Teenagers often have trouble pinpointing their career path, it seems so far off and not like a big deal at this age. Let's talk about it, what things are you good at?"
Adoptive parents who are experiencing doubts about adopting a child.	"This is not uncommon, several adoptive parents have expressed their apprehension to adopting a child following the adoptive placement, you are not alone, and adding a member to your family is a difficult process. Tell me about your concerns."
A non-custodial parent who has a limited bond with the child wants to be a kinship caregiver placement. (Kinship care assessment)	"Parents who do not live with their child and only see the child sporadically, say it is very challenging to establish and maintain a bond with the child, particularly when the relationship with the caregiver who is caring for the child each day is strained. Tell me about that."
A non-custodial parent who has a limited interaction with the child wants to be a kinship caregiver placement. (Kinship care assessment)	"I understand you were trying to get yourself financially established before engaging in your child's life because you wanted to have something to offer your child. Parents who are not involved in their child's life or have limited interactions with their child often say it is difficult to just show up when you have nothing tangible to offer. Tell me about this."

2. Externalizing the Problem Pattern

Externalizing the problem allows the family or individual to detach themselves from their problem. Externalizing the problem does not mean minimizing the personal responsibility or shifting blame, rather, it allows the individual to view the problem as something that is separate from their identity as a person. In short, the person is not the problem, the problem is the problem. Language that externalizes the problem can reduce criticism, blame, and guilt. If one of the family members has an "anger" problem, externalizing the problem will free up the family to work on the problem rather than exhausting energy opposing each other or defending themselves. This opens up the opportunity for the SSCM to work with the family to address the problem.

For example, asking the individual, “How long have you struggled with the problem of controlling your temper?” “Has the anxiety problem been around for a while?” “Can you see how anxiety has limited your family from engaging in fun activities?” “If your family wasn’t plagued with the anxiety problem, what kind of activities would your family enjoy?”

Problem	Externalizing Language
Mother who beats her child (prior abuse victim)	“Maybe you would like to put an end to this cycle of violence that has been passed on to you; would you like to be one to defeat this monster and keep it from hurting future generations.”
Stepfather who slapped his teenage stepdaughter	“When you described those episodes when everybody gets into it and you end up losing it, you seemed to be saying that you hate these episodes because they keep you from being the father you really want to be to your stepdaughter.”
Mother who neglects her children due to depression	“This dark curtain that you mentioned, tell me about a time when you fought back, or slipped by, or fooled this dark curtain that descends on you.”
A mother who neglected her child due to drug use.	“When you said you vowed not to be like your mom and use drugs and not care for your children, you seemed to be saying the drug use keeps you from being the mother you really want to be to your children.”

Engagement of the Noncustodial Parent

Engagement of noncustodial parents is more than contacting them inquiring as to their interest in being involved with the child(ren). It requires trying to understand their situation and why they may feel the way they do. It is important to be aware of certain dynamics that may come into play in this process. Their behavior may be in response to previous negative experiences they have had with the custodial parent, preconceived notions about how they are perceived by others regarding the status of their parental involvement, or they may be reluctant because of their views about the child welfare system. Engagement of noncustodial parents can be facilitated by educating them on the process and exploring with them their possible role and how they can be a resource for the child(ren). The discussions with the custodial parent surrounding the involvement of the non-custodial parent need to occur during the development of the case plan. Engagement should revolve around the noncustodial parent’s presence/engagement in the child’s life, caregiving abilities, cooperative parenting, and emotional contributions to the child. A determination must be made about the non-custodial parent involvement with the child and their ability to contribute the outcomes of the case plan prior to establishing contact standards for the non-custodial parent.

Observing Parent/Guardian and Child Interaction

Direct observation of parent and child interactions: What is the quality of the parent and child bonding? Does the parent engage the child in developmentally stimulating activities? Does the parent handle the child roughly or is there an apparent comfort level in providing for the child’s needs? Does the parent identify the child’s needs and respond to them in a nurturing way? Does the child seem fearful of the parent? Parent-child interaction in the parents’ home should be observed prior to reunification.

Hearing and seeing how the parent and child communicate: Is communication verbal, non-verbal, physical, positive, negative, passive, more negative than positive?

Determine if progress on the specified steps of the case plan are met: What changes in the parent’s interaction with a child are observed since the previous meeting and/or the implementation of service provisions (i.e., counseling, parenting skills training)? Is the parent learning and practicing better ways of parenting? Are they utilizing their action plan to avoid, interrupt or escape situations that would usually lead to high-risk behaviors? Does the parent redirect the child when unwanted behaviors are noticed? If service provision is effective, there should be evidence of enhanced parenting skills.

These are only a few of the many insights that may be gained from direct observation of parent and child interactions. Using what is directly observed as a major component of case decision making is vital. A case decision based only on what is reported by the parent is never sufficient.

Why to Make Contacts in the Home

It is important to visit children in the home environment to assess safety and gain an understanding of the child's living conditions. It is recommended that contacts be made in the home as often as possible. There is helpful information that may be gathered when interacting with parents and children in their home environment and it is important to make firsthand observations of the home environment to which the child may be returning.

Announced or Unannounced Home Visits

The nature of the reported allegations and the initial indication of the existence of a present danger situation or impending danger safety threat must be the first consideration when determining whether to make an announced or unannounced visit.^[5] If there is a present danger situation, this requires an immediate response, regardless of where the child is located. When a present danger situation is not apparent initially, the nature of the allegations and DFCS history, as well as the consideration of whether an interview could be tainted by an adult are important considerations when determining whether to do an announced or unannounced visit. Making an unannounced visit should be associated with timeliness, immediacy, or emergency situations. Unannounced visits are not discouraged when they are appropriate, but they should be necessary and justified based upon the individual circumstances of the case and its history. Supervisory consultation and guidance are an integral part of the discussion when preparing to engage a family during CPS intervention. A family needs to know that CPS is not there to “catch them doing something”, but to take action to protect a child. Therefore, there needs to be a specific, immediate, and clearly observable reason that a case manager makes an unannounced visit.

When a case manager is trying to build a partnership and consensus with a family, he/she must remember that courtesy and mutual respect are core components of building effective and sustainable solutions to the difficult tasks or situations identified by a family. When possible, a scheduled visit with a family can be an effective, convenient, and efficient process for all parties. The visit can be set to a time that is mutually convenient and include all household members. This alleviates the need to make multiple visits to complete interviews; saving time and effort for the case manager and caregiver(s) and shows an effort to be courteous and respectful of the family and their time.

Purposeful Contacts When the Caregiver or Child Resides in Another County

County A may request County B to conduct a purposeful visit with a caregiver or child who is residing or temporarily living in County B if County A cannot conduct the visit. Both counties should have a discussion prior to the visit to address case plan goals, the purpose of the visit and frequency of the visits. The assigned SSCM in County B should be added as a secondary SSCM in Georgia SHINES so that they may document the visit.

Safe Sleeping Recommendations for Infants up to One Year of Age

Caregivers of infants (birth to 12 months old) must be informed of conditions that constitute a safe sleeping environment and that reduce the risk of Sudden Infant Death Syndrome (SIDS)/Sudden Unexpected Infant Death (SUID), also known as “crib death”. At minimum, caregivers should be advised of the three primary safe sleep recommendations of the American Academy of Pediatrics (AAP) commonly referred to as the ‘ABCs’ of safe sleep:

Alone – The baby’s sleep area should be close to, but separate from, where caregivers and others sleep. The sleeping area should be free of soft objects, toys, and loose bedding.

Back – Infants should always be placed on their back to sleep for naps and at night.

Crib – Place infants on a firm sleep surface, such as on a safety-approved crib mattress, covered by a fitted sheet.

Further additional information and guidance regarding safe sleeping and SIDS/SUIDS see Infant Safe to Sleep Guidelines and Protocol in Forms and Tools.

Motor Vehicle Safety Recommendations

Children are sensitive to heat as their body temperature can heat up three to five times faster than an adult’s. Children will die if their body temperature exceeds 107 degrees. Even at a temperature of 60 degrees outdoors, the temperature inside a car can exceed 110 degrees. The U.S. Department of Transportation (DOT) National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA) recommends the following precautions to take in order to avoid child heatstroke.

1. Never leave a child unattended in a vehicle – even if the windows are partially open or the engine is running, and the air conditioning is on;
2. Make a habit of looking in the vehicle – front and back – before locking the door and walking away;
3. Ask the childcare provider to call if the child does not show up for care as expected;
4. Do things that serve as a reminder that a child is in the vehicle, such as placing a phone, purse, or briefcase in the back seat to ensure no child is accidentally left in the vehicle or writing a note or using a stuffed animal placed in the driver’s view to indicate a child is in the car seat;
5. Always lock your vehicle when not in use and store keys out of a child’s reach, so children cannot enter unattended. Teach children that a vehicle is not a play area;
6. A child in distress due to heat should be removed from the vehicle as quickly as possible and rapidly cooled.

Pictures

Pictures are useful for documenting injuries and/or the condition of the home environment; and may be used as evidence in an investigation or in court.

1. When taking pictures to document injuries, ensure the following:

- a. The caregiver and the child are informed of the need for taking the pictures.
 - b. Each photograph should have one identifier present (i.e., piece of the child's clothing), at least one photograph should include the child's face and the clothing, to assure that the evidence collected demonstrates the series of pictures of the same child.
 - c. Use measurable objects (i.e., ruler, coin, pencil) to depict the size of the injury. Photograph the object that caused the injury (whether the injury was accidental or not).
2. When taking pictures of the condition of the home related to safety hazards to the children, include all the areas that demonstrate a safety hazard, such as inside and outside the home, including the yard, when applicable.

If the safety hazard is an infant unsafe sleep situation, take a picture of the area in which the infant currently sleeps.

3. All pictures should be identified with the following information: the individuals who took the photo, the date it was taken, name and date of birth of the alleged child victim, and if applicable the address where the injury occurred or the home with the safety hazards.

Documenting Purposeful Contacts

All visits must be documented on the Contact Detail page in Georgia SHINES within 72 hours of the contact. A narrative must be completed for each Contact Detail. At a minimum, the documentation entry must include:

1. The type of contact (e.g., face-to-face, announced, unannounced, etc.).
2. The date the contact occurred.
3. Person(s) present at the visit.
4. The purpose of the visit.
5. What was discussed.
6. Where the visit occurred.
7. Whether the caregiver or child was interviewed privately. If the child was not interviewed privately document the reason(s) why this did not occur.
8. Summary of information (What happened at the visit):
 - a. The developmental stage of the family and the everyday life task in which the family is struggling;
 - b. Sequencing of the event/situation that is causing concern;
 - c. Safety, permanency, and well-being issues discussed;
 - d. Consensus developed with the caregivers;
 - e. Child and parent's involvement in safety planning;
 - f. Safety determination (safe or unsafe);
 - g. Safety plan management; and
 - h. Change that was noticed and celebrated with the caregiver(s).

9. Observations of the home environment, children for injuries or signs of maltreatment and interactions of family members.
10. Any concerns or red flags identified.
11. Next steps and the plan for addressing identified issues or concerns, as well as documentation of issue resolution.

Practice Guidance

DFCS Foster or Adoptive Homes

DFCS foster homes provides temporary care for children in foster care. Similarly, DFCS adoptive homes provide care for children in foster care, however, the adoptive parents have formally committed to adopting the child(ren) in their home. In addition, DFCS kinship foster homes or kinship adoptive homes, share the same corresponding responsibilities and requirements though the caregivers are kin to the children placed in their home. DFCS County Departments through Regional Resource Development are responsible for evaluating, approving and monitoring DFCS foster or adoptive homes.

Child Placing Agency (CPA) Foster or Adoptive Homes

CPA foster homes provides temporary care for children in foster care. Similarly, CPA adoptive homes provide care for children in foster care, however, the adoptive parents have formally committed to adopting the children in their home. CPA foster and adoptive homes are evaluated, approved and administered by a CPA. A CPA is any institution, society, agency, or facility which places children in foster homes for temporary care or in prospective adoptive homes for adoption. Office of Provider Management (OPM) and Residential Child Care Licensing (RCCL) are the oversight authorities for CPA foster or adoptive homes.

Helpful Hints in Foster or Adoptive Home Investigations

Foster or adoptive parents may often be surprised and hurt when notified about a report of alleged maltreatment. They are often not prepared for what the investigative process entails and may show reluctance in participating. The RD SSCM or CPA case worker and an advocate (if the foster or adoptive parent chooses to have one present) are resources available to provide support to the foster or adoptive parent during the investigative process.

DFCS partnership with foster and adoptive parents can present challenges when it comes to conducting objective investigations. As with any other type of investigation, DFCS must conduct a thorough assessment that does not rely solely on information provided by the foster or adoptive parent. Statements must be verified through collateral contacts (e.g., doctors, therapists, school personnel, etc.). DFCS must avoid prematurely drawing conclusions solely based on the age, behavioral or mental health history of the alleged victim. This can be accomplished while simultaneously treating the foster or adoptive parents with the same courtesy and respect afforded all families encountered.

Foster Parents' Request for an Advocate

Advocates are available to help the foster parent navigate through the complex and sometimes confusing process of addressing issues with DFCS. Support of an advocate is a right by law under the Foster Parents Bill of Rights. Foster parents have the right to request an advocate during all aspects of the investigation where the foster parent is present. DFCS and CPA foster, or adoptive parents can request an advocate by contacting the Adoptive and Foster Parent Association of Georgia (AFPAG) at www.afpag.net or call 1-877-804-6610.

When a foster parent requests an advocate the interview of the foster parent should be deferred until the advocate is present. However, a request for an advocate does not preclude DFCS from conducting the child safety assessment and/or taking immediate and appropriate action to control safety threats. The SSCM must proceed with the safety assessment of all children in the home, this includes children in DFCS custody as well as any children in the legal custody of the foster or adoptive parent. If the SSCM is unable to make a child safety determination without interviewing the foster parent, the SSCM must consult with the SSS concerning next steps.

Assessment of Foster or Adoptive Homes

Foster parents are important partners in caring for children in foster care. They not only provide care for, nurture, and support the children temporarily under their supervision they may also be providing care to children in their legal custody (i.e., biological or adopted children). An investigation includes assessing the safety, maltreatment, family functioning and service needs of all household members. In a special investigation of a foster or adoptive home this will consist of the children in foster care, foster or adoptive parents, and children in the legal custody of the foster or adoptive parents. This also includes children in legal custody of the foster or adoptive parents, who do not reside in the home.

Service Provision in a Foster or Adoptive Home Investigation

Service provision can be used to preserve placements for children in foster care, where no safety issues have been identified, by helping the family manage difficult situations they are facing in their lives. Similarly, when the assessment identifies needs of the children in the legal custody of the foster/adoptive parent, service provisions are used to preserve the family. The investigating SSCM should notify the Permanency SSCM or resource maintainer (RD SSCM or CPA worker) during the multidisciplinary staffing or sooner (if urgent) to arrange services in accordance with the policy 19.17 Case Management: Service Provision. DFCS can refer to formal or informal providers to address any identified needs which include but are not limited to Prevention of Unnecessary Placement (PUP), wraparound, Babies Can't Wait (BCW), plan of safe care, substance use disorder treatment, intimate partner violence/domestic violence services, etc.

In some circumstances, Family Preservation Services (FPS) or Permanency may be required to address safety issues for children in the legal custody of the foster/adoptive parent. When this occurs, services for the foster/adoptive parent and the children in their legal custody are arranged and provided through the FPS or Permanency case. Children in foster care cannot remain in the foster/adoptive parents' home when there is an active safety threat and the resource may not be used for additional DFCS placements. Consideration may be given on a case-by-case basis to achieve permanency for a child in DFCS custody through the waiver process (see policy 14.23 Resource Development: Home Closure).

Placement Moves of Children in DFCS Custody During a Special Investigation

Children in foster care should not be subjected to unnecessary placement moves as each placement disruption is traumatic and may result in emotional challenges. Therefore, the placement should not be disrupted unless the child is determined to be unsafe. Additionally, any child who has a permanency plan of adoption or guardianship, or who is in the process of adoption, should not be removed from the caregiver's home before the case is staffed with the Adoption Exchange State Permanency Unit unless present danger is indicated. Children in DFCS custody shall not remain in any home when safety threats are identified, when there is a substantiated case disposition, or a policy violation recommendation for home closure. Do not return a child removed from a placement under these circumstances unless a waiver to return the child is approved by the State Office.

Requests by Law Enforcement to Refrain or Delay Interviewing Alleged Maltreaters

Law enforcement may request DFCS refrain or delay interviewing the alleged maltreater due to a criminal case. The SSCM still has a primary obligation to ensure child safety. In this situation open and clear communication with law enforcement is necessary so that each agency understands what is required.

When the alleged maltreater has access to the alleged victim child(ren) and a safety determination cannot be made without conducting an interview, communicate directly with law enforcement to coordinate the interview or to obtain a transcript of the interview conducted by law enforcement. When it is determined that the SSCM will not be conducting a separate interview with the alleged maltreater, a list of questions or information that is needed from the individual(s) can be provided to law enforcement to ask the during the interview.

Requesting Criminal History Record Information

A criminal history check maybe warranted during a special investigation when there is an indication that an individual who has a caregiving role may have criminal history that impacts child safety; or when an individual’s behavior indicates he/she may be, or have been, involved in criminal activity that could impact child safety.

Assessment of Foster Care Kinship Placements

Kinship caregivers are important partners in caring for children in foster care. They not only provide care for, nurture, and support the children temporarily under their supervision they may also be providing care to children in their legal custody (i.e. biological or adopted children). An investigation includes assessing the safety, maltreatment, family functioning and the service needs of all household members. In a special investigation of a foster care kinship placement this will consist of the children in foster care, kinship caregivers, and all children in the physical and legal custody of the kinship caregiver. This also includes children in legal custody of the kinship caregiver, who do not reside in the home.

Service provisions can be used to preserve placements for children in foster care, where no safety issues have been identified, by helping the family manage difficult situations they are facing in their lives. Similarly, when the assessment identifies needs of the children in the legal custody of the kinship caregiver, service provisions are used to preserve the family. The investigating SSCM should notify the Permanency SSCM or Kinship Coordinator during the multidisciplinary staffing or sooner (if urgent) to arrange services in accordance with the policy 19.17 Case Management: Service Provision. DFCS can refer to formal or informal providers to address any identified needs which include but are not limited to Prevention of Unnecessary Placement (PUP), wraparound, Babies Can't Wait (BCW), plan of safe care, substance use disorder treatment, intimate partner violence/domestic violence services, etc.

In some circumstances, Family Preservation Services (FPS) or Permanency may be required to address safety issues for children in the legal custody of the kinship caregiver. When this occurs, services for the kinship caregiver and the children in their legal custody are arranged and provided through the FPS or Permanency case. Children in foster care cannot remain in the kinship caregiver's home when there is an active safety threat and the resource may not be used for additional DFCS placements. Consideration may be given on a case by case basis to achieve permanency for a child in DFCS custody through the waiver process (see policy 14.23 Resource Development: Home Closure).

Placement Moves of Children in DFCS Custody During a Special Investigation

Children in foster care should not be subjected to unnecessary placement moves as each placement disruption is traumatic and may result in emotional challenges. Therefore, the placement should not be disrupted unless the child is determined to be unsafe. Additionally, any child who has a permanency plan of adoption or guardianship, or who is in the process of adoption, should not be removed from the caregiver's home before the case is staffed with the Adoption Exchange State Permanency Unit unless present danger is indicated. Children in DFCS custody shall not remain in any home when safety threats are identified, when there is a substantiated case disposition, or a policy violation recommendation for home closure. Do not return a child removed from a placement under these circumstances unless a waiver to return the child is approved by the State Office.

Requests by Law Enforcement to Refrain or Delay Interviewing Alleged Maltreaters

Law enforcement may request DFCS refrain or delay interviewing the alleged maltreater due to a criminal case. The SSCM still has a primary obligation to ensure child safety. In this situation open and clear communication with law enforcement is necessary so that each agency understands what is required.

When the alleged maltreater has access to the alleged victim child(ren) and a safety determination cannot be made without conducting an interview, communicate directly with law enforcement to coordinate the interview or to obtain a transcript of the interview conducted by law enforcement. When it is determined that the SSCM will not be conducting a separate interview with the alleged maltreater, a list of questions or information that is needed from the individual(s) can be provided to law enforcement to ask the during the interview.

Requesting Criminal History Record Information

A criminal history check maybe warranted during a special investigation when there is an indication that an individual who has a caregiving role may have criminal history that impacts child safety; or when an individual’s behavior indicates he/she may be, or have been, involved in criminal activity that could impact child safety.

Practice Guidance

Collaboration in Special Investigations

Special investigation requires collaborating with both internal and external partners. Upon assignment of special investigation, the DFCS Investigator should communicate with and conduct a joint investigation with the oversight authority, when applicable. In addition, it may also be necessary to coordinate with law enforcement. Working collaboratively provides DFCS a liaison to assist in facilitating interviews, obtaining reports, videos, history, etc. The cooperation between agencies and disciplines also allows for different perspectives when gathering facts, as often the caregiver will tell different agencies different information. Sharing information obtained by each agency provides an opportunity to conduct a fully informed assessment of the incident and how to address any safety issues that are identified in partnership with stakeholders.

When the investigation involves a child with an active child welfare case, the DFCS Investigator should work collaboratively with the SSCM with primary case management responsibilities, who has direct knowledge about the child and family. The DFCS Investigator should consult with the SSCM to obtain insight into child functioning and care of the child at the facility to assist with making a safety and maltreatment determination.

During large facility investigations, it will be necessary to engage other DFCS staff to assist in conducting interviews of multiple alleged victims, facility staff members, witnesses, reviewing documents, tapes etc. In this instance, the DFCS Investigator should:

1. Facilitate an initial meeting to determine roles, responsibilities, investigative activities, benchmarks, and timeframes.
2. Follow up for all parties involved to answer any questions, provide timely feedback, and ensure the assigned tasks were completed.
3. Maintain regular contact with both internal and external partners assisting in the investigation.

Requests by Law Enforcement to Refrain or Delay Interviewing Alleged Maltreaters

Law enforcement may request DFCS refrain or delay interviewing the alleged maltreater due to a criminal case. The SSCM still has a primary obligation to ensure child safety. In this situation open and clear communication with law enforcement is necessary so that each agency understands what is required.

When the alleged maltreater has access to the alleged victim child(ren) and a safety determination cannot be made without conducting an interview, communicate directly with law enforcement to coordinate the interview or to obtain a transcript of the interview conducted by law enforcement. When it is determined that the SSCM will not be conducting a separate interview with the alleged maltreater, a list of questions or information that is needed from the individual(s) can be provided to law enforcement to ask the during the interview.

A special investigation of a Residential and Non-Residential Facility requires a comprehensive assessment of all alleged victim children (in parental custody or in foster care) and facility caregiver(s). This includes assessing safety, maltreatment, and service needs.

Facility investigations demand that the SSCM evaluates caregiver protective capacities information differently than the traditional “in home” setting. Evaluating the alleged maltreater requires the SSCM to determine if the caregiver(s) exhibits the protective capacities needed to manage all children under his/her care. This means that not only are the vulnerabilities of the alleged victim child pertinent to the investigation, but other children under the care of the alleged maltreater must also be assessed to determine how their vulnerabilities impact the current situation. In addition, some facility settings use a team caregiving approach. In these situations, evaluating the alleged maltreater as a part of the caregiving team is also required.

It may be necessary to engage the alleged victim child’s household members to obtain information about child vulnerabilities and child functioning. Understanding how the alleged victim child functions in their home environment maybe critical in making a safety and maltreatment determination in a facility investigation. This will allow a comparison of child functioning in the care of the parent/guardian/legal custodian and in the care of facility staff member(s). The information can help determine if a facility staff member’s protective capacity impacted the alleged maltreatment at the facility.

Collateral Contacts in a Residential/Non-Residential Facility Investigation

When conducting an investigation involving a residential or non-residential facility the SSCM must assess which collateral contacts will contribute to an understanding of the situation and/or can provide information on the overall treatment of children at the facility. The usual collateral contacts may not be relevant for an out-of-home setting such as a residential or non-residential facility. For example, it may not help determine if maltreatment occurred at a day camp by contacting the victim child’s neighbors, as these persons may have no contact with the camp. Similarly, speaking to the child’s doctor about whether the child receives adequate medical care would not be relevant when the facility is not responsible for that care. On the other hand, it may be important for the SSCM to make certain collateral contacts in a residential or non-residential investigation that may not apply in a familial case. These may include:

1. Other children residing in, attending, or previously attended programs at the residential or non-residential facility.
2. Parents, guardians, or legal custodians of other children who attend or previously attended the residential or non-residential facility.
3. Persons who currently or previously worked or volunteered in the residential or non-residential facility (including any provider or staff on duty at the time of the alleged incident who routinely provide care to the alleged victim children).
4. Other persons, such as physical or speech therapists, food service personnel, etc., who may have information relevant to the allegations in the report and to the safety of the children in the residential or non-residential facility.

Service Provision in a Residential/Non-Residential Facility Investigation

Service provisions can be used to preserve placements for children in foster care, where no safety issues have been identified, to help the facility manage challenging tasks. When a need has been identified for a child in foster care, the DFCS Investigator should notify the Permanency SSCM during the special investigations 48-hour multidisciplinary staffing or sooner (if urgent) to arrange services in accordance with the policy 19.17 Case Management: Service Provision. Similarly, when the assessment identifies needs of the children in parental custody, service provisions are used to address any non-safety issues (ex: Babies Can't Wait (BCW), Job Search, Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program (SNAP), Medicaid, Childcare and Parent Services (CAPS), etc.). When there is safety concern related to an alleged victim child in care of their parent, guardian, or legal custodian a new intake report is required.

Placement Moves of Children in DFCS Custody During a Special Investigation

Although it is the responsibility of DFCS to ensure that a child's needs are being met by his/her caregiver, children in foster care should not be subjected to unnecessary placement moves as each placement disruption is traumatic to the child and may result in emotional challenges. Therefore, the placement should not be disrupted unless the child is determined to be unsafe.

Department of Early Care and Learning (DECAL) - Enforcement Actions

The major responsibilities of the Child Care Services' division (CCS) of the DECAL include regulating the state's childcare programs to ensure they are meeting basic health and safety requirements and supporting/helping programs to meet those requirements. Regulating childcare programs involves issuing an enforcement action when a program is not following current rules and regulations. The enforcement actions that may be used range from providing technical assistance to, in rare cases, license revocations. Regulation is part of DECAL's legal authority. Enforcement Actions for a child care program can be located by conducting an enforcement action search on DECAL's website at decal.ga.gov/EnforcementActions/Search.aspx.

Requesting Criminal History Record Information

A criminal history check maybe warranted during a special investigation when there is an indication that an individual who has a caregiving role may have criminal history that impacts child safety; or when an individual's behavior indicates he/she may be, or have been, involved in criminal activity that could impact child safety.

Practice Guidance

Public and Private Non-Residential Schools

Public and Private Non-Residential Schools are Institutions for educating children.

1. Private Non-Residential Schools: Administered by internal policies. No requirements for accreditation, registration, licensing, or approval.
2. Public Non-Residential Schools: Administered by area, county, or independent boards of education (ex: Fulton County Schools, Buford City Schools). Local school districts are supported by Georgia Department of Education (DOE).

Collaboration in Special Investigations

Special investigation requires collaborating with both internal and external partners. Upon assignment of special investigation, the DFCS Investigator should conduct a joint investigation with law enforcement, when applicable. Working collaboratively provides DFCS a liaison to assist in facilitating interviews, obtaining reports, videos, history, etc. The cooperation between agencies and disciplines also allows for different perspectives when gathering facts, as often the caregiver will tell different agencies different information. Sharing information obtained by each agency provides an opportunity to conduct a fully informed assessment of the incident and how to address any safety issues that are identified in partnership with stakeholders.

During a large school investigation, it will be necessary to engage other DFCS staff to assist in conducting interviews of multiple alleged victims, school staff members, witnesses, reviewing documents, tapes etc. In this instance, the DFCS Investigator should:

1. Facilitate an initial meeting to determine roles, responsibilities, investigative activities, benchmarks, and timeframes.
2. Follow up for all parties involved to answer any questions, provide timely feedback, and ensure the assigned tasks were completed.
3. Maintain regular contact with both internal and external partners assisting in the investigation.

Requests by Law Enforcement to Refrain or Delay Interviewing Alleged Maltreaters

Law enforcement may request DFCS refrain or delay interviewing the alleged maltreater due to a criminal case. The SSCM still has a primary obligation to ensure child safety. In this situation open and clear communication with law enforcement is necessary so that each agency understands what is required.

When the alleged maltreater has access to the alleged victim child(ren) and a safety determination cannot be made without conducting an interview, communicate directly with law enforcement to coordinate the interview or to obtain a transcript of the interview conducted by law enforcement. When it is determined that the SSCM will not be conducting a separate interview with the alleged maltreater, a list of questions or information that is needed from the individual(s) can be provided to law enforcement to ask the during the interview.

Assessment of Public or Private Non-Residential Schools

Federal and state laws authorize DFCS to conduct investigations in situations extending beyond the traditional parent-child domain or home. A special investigation of a Public or Private Non-Residential School requires a comprehensive assessment of all alleged victim children, the alleged maltreater and caregivers in the school. This includes assessing safety, maltreatment, and service needs.

School investigations demand that the SSCM evaluates caregiver protective capacities information differently than the traditional “in home” setting. Evaluating the alleged maltreater requires the SSCM to determine if the caregiver(s) exhibits the protective capacities needed to manage all children under his/her care. This means that not only are the vulnerabilities of the alleged victim child pertinent to the investigation, but other children under the care of the alleged maltreater must also be assessed to determine how their vulnerabilities impact the current situation. In addition, some school settings use a team caregiving approach. In these situations, evaluating the alleged maltreater as a part of the caregiving team is also required.

It may be necessary to engage the alleged victim child’s household members to obtain information about child vulnerabilities and child functioning. Understanding how the alleged victim child functions in their home environment maybe critical in making a safety and maltreatment determination in a school investigation. This will allow a comparison of child functioning in the care of the parent and in the care of the school staff member(s). The information can help determine if a school staff member’s protective capacity impacted the alleged maltreatment at school.

Service Provision in a Public or Private Non-Residential School Investigation

When the assessment identifies needs of the children in the parental custody, service provisions are used to address any non-safety issues (ex: Babies Can’t Wait (BCW), Job Search, Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program (SNAP), Medicaid, Childcare and Parent Services (CAPS), etc.). When there is safety concern related to an alleged victim child in the care of their parent(s) a new intake report is required.

Collateral Contacts in a Public or Private Non-Residential School Investigation

When conducting an investigation involving a school the SSCM must assess which collateral contacts will contribute to an understanding of the situation and/or can provide information on the overall care of the child at the school. The usual collateral contacts may not be relevant for an out-of-home setting such as a school. For example, it may not help determine if maltreatment occurred at a school by contacting the victim child’s neighbors, as these persons may have no contact with the school. Similarly, speaking to the child’s doctor about whether the child receives adequate medical care would not be relevant when the school is not responsible for that care. On the other hand, it may be important for the SSCM to make certain collateral contacts in a school investigation that may not apply in a familial case. These may include:

1. Other children who currently attend or previously attended the school.
2. Parent(s) of other children who attend or previously attended the school.
3. Persons who currently or previously worked or volunteered at the school (including any provider or school staff on duty at the time of the alleged incident).

4. Other persons, such as physical or speech therapists, food service personnel, etc., who may have information relevant to the allegations in the report and to the safety of the children at the school.

Corporal Punishment

No principal or teacher who administers corporal punishment to a pupil or pupils under his/ her care and supervision and in conformity with the policies and regulations of the area, county or independent board of education employing him/her, and in accordance also with this subpart shall be held accountable or liable in any criminal or civil action based upon the administering of corporal punishment where the corporal punishment is administered in good faith and is not excessive or unduly severe.

Per Georgia law (O.C.G.A. § 20-2-731) an area, county or independent board of education may, upon the adoption of written policies, authorize any principal or teacher employed by the board to administer, in the exercise of his sound discretion, corporal punishment on any pupil or pupils placed under his supervision in order to maintain proper control and discipline. Any such authorization shall be subject to the following requirements:

1. The corporal punishment shall not be excessive or unduly severe.
2. Corporal punishment shall never be used as a first line of punishment for misbehavior unless the pupil was informed beforehand that specific misbehavior could warrant its use; provided, however, that corporal punishment may be employed as the first line of punishment for those acts of misconduct which are so antisocial or disruptive in nature as to shock the conscience.
3. Corporal punishment must be administered in the presence of a principal or assistant principal, or the designee of the principal or assistant principal, employed by the board of education authorizing such punishment. The principal, assistant principal, or designee of the principal or assistant principal must be informed beforehand and in the presence of the pupil of the reason for the punishment.
4. The principal or teacher who administered corporal punishment must provide the child's parent upon request a written explanation of the reasons for the punishment and the name of the principal or assistant principal or designee of the principal or assistant principal who was present, provided, however, that such an explanation shall not be used as evidence in any subsequent civil action brought because of the corporal punishment.
5. Corporal punishment shall not be administered to a child whose parents or legal guardian has upon the day of enrollment of the pupil filed with the principal of the school a statement from a medical doctor licensed in Georgia stating that it is detrimental to the child's mental or emotional stability.

- e. Policy 6.6 Special Investigations: Conducting Special Investigations on Public or Private Non-Residential Schools when the special investigation involves a CD/NF/SI in a public or private non-residential school.

When a special investigation involves a child death, in lieu of observing the deceased child within the immediate-24-hour response time the investigator may contact any professional (e.g., coroner, medical examiner, law enforcement) who observed the child during the timeframe that could provide pertinent information.

- 4. Determine whether there are other children in the home are safe and any actions needed to ensure their safety if they are determined to be unsafe.
- 5. Engage healthcare professionals who provided direct emergency and/or ongoing care to the alleged victim child(ren) and obtain medical records.
- 6. Refer a child involved in a CD/NF/SI case to have a forensic interview by a trained professional (i.e. Child Advocacy Center (CAC), Children Health of Atlanta (CHOA) or law enforcement), as applicable, based on the local child abuse protocol.

 - a. The child's injuries;
 - b. The parent, caregiver, or legal guardians' explanation at time of arrival; and

3. Ensure healthcare providers are contacted as collateral contacts on a special investigation involving a CD/NF/SI.
4. Consult with subject matter experts (SME) as necessary to assist in making an investigation determination.
5. Ensure an autopsy report is obtained on cases involving a child death, or efforts continue beyond case closure to obtain an autopsy report. Consult with the SAAG when the ME denies access to the autopsy report.
6. Assess the findings of the autopsy report, verify the cause of death is consistent with the preliminary findings obtained during the special investigation and determine if further action is required.

Child Death Due to Unsafe Sleeping Environments

The SSCM will:

1. Interview the caregiver(s):
 - a. Develop a timeline of events including the days and hours leading up to the death of the child:
 - i. Determine when, where, and how the caregiver placed the infant to sleep, e.g. was the infant put to sleep on the stomach, side, or back, etc., was the caregiver co-sleeping with the infant? Was the mother planning to breastfeed or was breastfeeding at the time of death;
 - ii. How often did the caregiver check on the infant? At what time did the caregiver last check on the infant and how long following that period was the infant found unresponsive.
 - iii. Who found the child and what was the child's position when they were found unresponsive (e.g. on the back, stomach, under a blanket, etc.); and
 - iv. Who provided care for the children within the previous three days (daycare, grandparents, etc.).
 - b. Gather information about the infant's health, including but not limited to:
 - i. Was the child full term and of a normal birth weight;
 - ii. Was the infant diagnosed with any medical conditions such as colic or reflux;
 - iii. Any recent illness such as a cold or fever; and
 - iv. Were immunizations up to date (if applicable).
 - c. Gather information about the caregiver and other household members, including but not limited to:
 - i. The caregiver's emotional, behavioral, and/or cognitive protective capacities based on interviews and observations;

- ii. The caregiver(s) condition at the time of the child's death, e.g. was the caregiver under the influence of alcohol or drugs at the time of the child's death (prescription or non-prescription); and
 - iii. Do the household members smoke tobacco in the home or are there other possible contributing factors (see Forms and Tools: Infant Safe to Sleep Guidelines and Protocol in Forms and Tools).
- d. Determine the level of understanding the caregiver(s) has of safe sleep environments:
- i. Has DFCS staff previously discussed and addressed the dangers of unsafe sleeping environments with the caregiver(s);
 - ii. Has the caregiver(s) received education from the birthing hospital about safe sleeping environments and the dangers to the infant; and
 - iii. Has the caregiver(s) received information from other sources (e.g. hospital, lactation specialists, and pediatrician) who recommended co-sleeping or sleeping practices for purposes of breastfeeding, bonding, soothing, historical sleeping practices, etc. If so, who and what were the specific recommendations.
2. Observe the sleep environment of the infant and document the following:
- a. Where the child was located when found deceased (e.g. swing, bassinet, adult bed, etc.);
 - b. Any pillows, soft bedding, blankets, or any other objects that were found near or on the infant at the time of death;
 - c. How was the infant clothed or swaddled;
 - d. If co-sleeping was involved; and
 - e. The condition and temperature of the home and the room where the child was found deceased.
3. Take pictures of the sleep environment;
4. Engage collateral contacts including individuals who can provide relevant information on the education the caregiver(s) has received regarding safe sleeping arrangements and verify recommendations made to the caregiver by other agencies or professionals (see policy 19.16 Case Management: Collateral Contacts).
5. Request copies of any reports, interviews, photos, or video evidence that was obtained by law enforcement independent of DFCS.
6. Review and analyze DFCS history (see policy 19.10 Case Management: Analyzing DFCS History).
- a. Does the documentation support that DFCS provided education and addressed safe sleeping environments with the caregiver(s) including whether the caregiver(s) agreed to utilize safe sleep practices;
 - b. Is there a pattern of behavior showing that the caregiver allowed the infant to remain in an unsafe sleeping environment, or continued unsafe sleep practices after receiving education by DFCS; and
 - c. Was a safety plan implemented addressing unsafe sleep practices in the current DFCS case, and whether the caregiver(s) adhered to the safety plan.

7. During the supervisory staffing to make a special investigation determination, establish if the evidence supports that DFCS staff provided education and addressed safe sleep environments with the caregiver(s) (see policy 6.8 Special Investigation: Making a Special Investigation Determination).
8. Substantiate neglect when evidence confirms that an unsafe sleep practice was the cause or contributing factor to an infant (under the age of one) death and documentation supports that DFCS staff previously educated the caregiver(s) of the dangers of an unsafe sleep environment to child safety.

Practice Guidance

Serious Injury

Serious Injury means bodily injury that involves substantial risk of death, extreme physical pain, prolonged and obvious disfigurement, or prolonged loss or impairment of the function of a body part, organ, or mental capability. Examples include burns, head trauma, blunt trauma, internal bleeding, multiple bruising and contusions, lacerations of organs, broken bones and amputation.

Near Fatality

Near fatality means as an act that, as certified by a physician, places the child in serious or critical condition. Once the child meets this criterion then the allegation of “near fatality” should be marked along with any other type(s) of maltreatment.

How to determine a near fatality:

- Hospital records reflect that the child’s condition is serious or critical.
- Ask the treating physician if the child’s condition is serious or critical.

The Nature of Child Fatality Cases

Awareness of some basic dynamics and issues is critical to effective investigations of child fatalities.^[8] Research has shown that children are most at risk of dying of maltreatment during the first 4 years of life. In fact, 40 percent of children who are victims of fatal maltreatment are infants (younger than 1-year-old) and 75 percent are younger than 5 years old. The Center for Disease Control and Prevention has reported that the chances of being murdered are greater on the day of birth than at any other point in a person’s life.

Caring for children during their preschool years can be very stressful for parents and other caretakers. Faced with a young child’s persistent problems with sleeping, feeding, and/or toilet training a caretaker may lose control and assault the child in anger or may cause injury while punishing the child. Some inexperienced caretakers have unrealistic expectations about what is appropriate child behavior and what children can do in the early stages of development. Some caretakers become angry because they view a child’s crying or bedwetting as an act of defiance rather than as normal behavior for a young child. The deadly combination of an angry adult and a physically vulnerable child can result in fatal or life-threatening injuries. When discussing child deaths related to maltreatment, the majority of child fatalities can be categorized as a variation of either acute or chronic maltreatment:

1. Acute Maltreatment - the child's death is directly related to injuries suffered as a result of a specific incident of abuse. Often in such cases, the child has not been previously abused.
 - a. In cases involving acute physical abuse, the caretaker may have fatally assaulted the child in either an inappropriate response to the child's behavior or a conscious act to hurt the child. Offenders in cases of Shaken Baby Syndrome (SBS), in which a child's brain is injured from violent shaking, often cite the child's crying as the "triggering event".
 - b. In cases of acute neglect, a caretaker's one-time failure to properly supervise the child may result in a fatal injury. A common example is a fatal drowning that occurs when a parent leaves an infant briefly unsupervised in a bathtub or when children sustain fatal gunshot wounds when caretakers fail to properly secure loaded firearms.
2. Chronic Maltreatment - in chronic maltreatment cases, the child's death is directly related to injuries caused by abuse occurring over an extended period. Battered Child Syndrome is an example of chronic physical abuse. Although the direct cause of death in a battering case is usually a single specific injury (often brain trauma), numerous indications of previous maltreatment—old and new injuries and possible signs of neglect—are usually present. Depriving a child of food for a significant period of time is a common form of chronic neglect. In cases of chronic abuse, a history of the child's previous maltreatment often will appear in either CPS or medical records.

Child Deaths and Joint Investigations with Law Enforcement and DFCS

Law enforcement is the criminal investigative agency in the community and often must investigate the same incident as DFCS.^[9] Conducting a parallel investigation where CPS and law enforcement collaborate and work as a team allows both law enforcement and CPS to avoid potential conflict and to improve investigative outcomes.^[10] These joint investigations should be conducted as outlined by the local Child Abuse Protocol and may include:

1. Developing a plan to complete the investigation.
2. Responding with law enforcement.
3. Frequent and open communication to discuss the status of the case.
4. Obtaining and sharing information in a timely manner, particularly at the following critical communication points:
 - a. Completion of interviews
 - b. Filing a dependency petition
 - c. Prior to the return of the child victim to the home at any time during the life of a case
 - d. Prior to the return of an alleged maltreater to the home at any time during the life of a case
 - e. Reassessment of safety including changes to the safety plan or changes in placement
 - f. Disclosure of information about criminal conduct
5. Refraining or delaying an interview with the alleged maltreater due to a criminal case.

DFCS' role is different from law enforcement. The role of DFCS is to determine whether maltreatment was involved in the child's death or serious injury, identify the responsible party, and then take appropriate action to protect any surviving siblings. The role of the law enforcement is to determine whether a crime has been committed and who is responsible. To be successful, law enforcement and DFCS need to coordinate their efforts and use their respective resources and skills collaboratively. Thus, it is imperative that law enforcement assumes the leadership role in the investigation. This is necessary because of the legal and practical issues involved in obtaining evidence and confessions. Only a law enforcement investigator has the training, expertise, and legal mandate to execute search warrants, collect and evaluate evidence, interrogate suspects, and file criminal charges. If a SSCM prematurely confronts an individual suspected of fatally abusing a child, law enforcement may find it more difficult, if not impossible, to successfully interrogate that same individual later.

Requests by Law Enforcement to Refrain or Delay Interviewing Alleged Maltreaters

Law enforcement may request DFCS refrain or delay interviewing the alleged maltreater due to a criminal case. The SSCM still has a primary obligation to ensure child safety. In this situation open and clear communication with law enforcement is necessary so that each agency understands what is required.

When the alleged maltreater has access to the alleged victim child(ren) and a safety determination cannot be made without conducting an interview, communicate directly with law enforcement to coordinate the interview or to obtain a transcript of the interview conducted by law enforcement. When it is determined that the SSCM will not be conducting a separate interview with the alleged maltreater, a list of questions or information that is needed from the individual(s) can be provided to law enforcement to ask the during the interview.

Children's Advocacy Centers (CAC)

Child advocacy centers (CACs)^[11] are community-based, child-friendly, multidisciplinary services for children and families affected by sexual abuse or severe physical abuse. CACs bring together, often in one location, child protective services investigators, law enforcement, prosecutors, and medical and mental health professionals to provide a coordinated, comprehensive response to victims and their caregivers. This is called the MDT response and is a core part of the work of CACs. CACs offer therapy and medical exams, plus courtroom preparation, victim advocacy, case management, and other services.

Forensic Interviews

The forensic interview is generally conducted at the local CAC by a professional specially trained in conducting forensic interviews with children.^[12] In addition to yielding the information needed to make a determination about whether abuse has occurred, this approach produces evidence that will stand up in court if the investigation leads to criminal prosecution. Properly conducted forensic interviews are legally sound in part because they ensure the interviewer's objectivity, employ non-leading techniques, and emphasize careful documentation of the interview.

Children's Advocacy Centers (CAC) Multi-Disciplinary Team (MDT)

Multidisciplinary teams represent a variety of disciplines that interact and coordinate their efforts to diagnose, treat, and plan for children and families receiving child welfare services.^[13] They may also be referred to as a "child protection team," "interdisciplinary team," or "case consultation team". Due to the complex nature of child abuse investigations and family assessments, MDTs are often used to enhance and improve investigations and responses for children and families.

Child Abuse Investigative Support Center

The Georgia Bureau of Investigation’s (GBI) Child Abuse Investigative Support Center^[14] assists law enforcement, child protective services, and district attorneys with the investigation of physical and sexual abuse of children. The Child Abuse Investigative Support Center provides forensic medical consultations in which the child’s injuries are evaluated and medical records and the social/home environment are reviewed. An expert opinion is rendered and a letter detailing the accidental or inflicted nature of the injuries is provided. Expert testimony regarding the opinion is also available as needed. Services from the support center can be obtained by contacting:

Autopsy Reports

An autopsy determines the cause, manner, and underlying mechanism of death. This procedure also documents all the significant pathologic conditions present in the body at the time of death.

Child Fatality Review Committees (CFRC)

Each county shall participate as a member of the local multi-disciplinary CFRC that will review all deaths of children ages birth through age 17 years. County Departments must designate a representative to serve on the local CFRC based on the County’s Child Abuse Protocol and CFRC requirements. The SSCM may be contacted by the local county DFCS representative of the CFRC and/or asked to participate in the meetings. During the CFRC meetings, the SSCM/DFCS Designee may request an official copy of the death certificate or autopsy findings to include in the case record even after DFCS’ investigation has been completed. See policy 1.10 Administration: Child Fatality Review for additional information about the role of the CFRC.

1. Conduct a supervisor staffing as outlined in policy 19.6 Case Management: Supervisor Staffing to make the following determinations:
 - a. Safety (safe or unsafe) for each alleged victim child in accordance with policy 19.11 Case Management: Safety Assessment.
 - b. Maltreatment (unsubstantiated or substantiated) for each alleged victim child;

 Substantiate neglect when evidence confirms that an unsafe sleep practice was the cause or contributing factor to the infant's death and documentation supports that DFCS staff previously educated the caregiver(s) of the dangers of an unsafe sleep environment to child safety.
 - c. Whether a policy violation(s) by a DFCS approved caregiver of children in DFCS custody is supported or there is a concern a policy violation has occurred;
 - d. Whether further DFCS intervention is required to ensure child safety; and
 - e. Services provision needed to assist the family, caregiver, or resource with managing the challenging situation(s).

2. Participate in the 48-hour staffing, ensure all required participants are notified, and recommendations are provided.
3. Review the case record in Georgia SHINES within 45 calendar days of receipt of the intake report to ensure the case determination is accurately reflected:
 - a. Log of Contacts;
 - b. Allegation Detail Page:
 - i. The child abuse category and maltreatment code(s) correspond to the appropriate child victim and that the maltreatment determination of substantiated or unsubstantiated is correct;
 - ii. The alleged maltreater identified is correct for each alleged victim child and maltreatment determination.
 - iii. Justification of Findings statement supports the decision to substantiate or unsubstantiate the category/type of child abuse selected.
 - c. Investigation Conclusion, including the Investigation Conclusion Summary to ensure it supports the decisions made during the dispositional staffing:
 - i. A detailed summary of evidence that supports the maltreatment findings and safety determination for each allegation investigated (photos, videos, observations, diagnoses, disclosures during interviews, etc.);
 - ii. An analysis of DFCS history and how it affected the maltreatment and safety determination;
 - iii. Safety interventions in place (as applicable); and
 - iv. Recommendations for services.

Practice Guidance

The Role of Intent in Maltreatment

A caregiver often states that he/she did not mean or intend to harm their child. For example, a caregiver may choose to punish his/her child by spanking the child using an instrument such as a belt. Once this choice is made the caregiver's "intent" is not relevant as to whether the child was maltreated. The natural consequences of the actions or inactions of the caregiver determine whether maltreatment occurred. The caregiver may not have "meant" to leave the marks, but because he/she made the decision to use the belt when hitting the child, marks occurred. The marks were left as a natural consequence of using the belt to spank the child. When maltreatment meets the statutory language in the definition, intent is not relevant; maltreatment occurred, and the allegation of abuse must be substantiated. However, the intent of the caregiver may be considered when making a safety determination.

Resolving Discrepancies or Conflicting Information

During an Investigation, often there are discrepancies in information collected or there are conflicting accounts regarding the allegations of abuse. It is important to attempt to resolve discrepancies or conflicts to ensure that the information gathered accurately supports the investigation determination. Some ways to address these situations include but are not limited to:

1. Reviewing the information gathered again to determine what information is needed to resolve the issue(s).
2. Seeking supervisory assistance to review the information or develop a plan to resolve the issue(s).
3. Conducting additional interviews with the family members, reporter, collaterals, etc.
4. Engaging subject matter experts to assist in the review of evidence or to discuss the information.
5. Requesting additional professional assessments or evaluations for the child(ren) or caregiver(s).

Maltreatment Determination

The maltreatment determination considers whether the alleged child abuse is substantiated or unsubstantiated.

1. Substantiated means the allegations of child abuse, as defined by Georgia statute, is supported by a preponderance of the evidence. A preponderance of evidence means that the greater the weight of the evidence makes it more probable than not that child abuse occurred. A substantiation determination also means harm to the child is severe enough to constitute maltreatment and there is sufficient evidence to support child maltreatment. When evidence supports maltreatment occurred, regardless of whether the identity of the maltreater is known or unknown the case determination must be substantiated.
2. Unsubstantiated means the allegations of child abuse, as defined by Georgia statute, is not supported by a preponderance of the evidence. An unsubstantiated determination means harm to the child is not severe enough to constitute maltreatment and/or there is not sufficient evidence to support child maltreatment. Even though a maltreatment determination may be unsubstantiated, documentation may show a pattern of behavior that may be useful in decision-making.

Safety Determination

The safety determination identifies the child as either safe or unsafe based on the safety assessment as outlined in policy 19.11 Case Management: Safety Assessment. The existence of maltreatment (substantiated or unsubstantiated) and a safety determination (safe or unsafe) are two separate determinations. A child may have been maltreated but could still be considered safe based on individual family circumstances and caregiver protective capacities.

When a case involves a child death, a case determination must take into consideration whether they are other children in the home, and whether the other children in the home are safe. If there is a determination that any child in the home is unsafe then DFCS must transfer the case to Family Preservation Services or Permanency for further intervention.

Making an Investigative Decision - Maltreater Unidentified or Unknown

Questions about the identity of a maltreater occur primarily when a child is injured, he/she is unable to identify the maltreater and there is more than one caregiver that could have caused the injury. In these circumstances, case managers and supervisors will need to reach a judgement as to whether there is a preponderance of the evidence that one of the possible caregivers, as compared to other caregivers, injured the child. A preponderance of evidence means that the greater the weight of the evidence makes it more probable than not that the caregiver caused the injury to the child. Reaching such a conclusion may require an investigation which is more time consuming and detailed than an investigation in which this issue is not present. There may be instances where the decision is made to substantiate child abuse against more than one caregiver, especially when the injuries have occurred over time. When the alleged maltreater is unknown and the evidence gathered during the investigation supports that child abuse occurred, the maltreatment determination must be substantiated.

Investigation Conclusion Page

The Investigation Conclusion Page in Georgia SHINES is where the overall finding case disposition is recorded. Included on the Investigation Conclusion page is the Investigation Conclusion Summary. The purpose of this summarized what occurred during the investigation from beginning to end. This does not mean that the Log of Contacts should be copied and pasted into this section. An Investigation Conclusion Summary should include:

1. What was alleged.
2. Evidence to support or refute the allegations. Evidence may include pictures, direct witness statements, observations, formal diagnosis, evaluations from licensed clinicians, disclosures by the alleged victim child or other children subject to the care of the alleged maltreater, interviews with the alleged maltreater, history that shows a pattern of behavior, or information obtained by collateral resources.
3. Family Functioning information relevant to the case determination.
4. Safety related information and interventions put in place during the Investigation.
5. The overall case determination including whether the case will be closed, or stage progressed to Family Preservation Services or Foster Care.

Example of Substantiated-Open Investigation Conclusion

On 3/1/2017 a report was received indicating that the Lannister family moved from Florida to Georgia in December 2016. At the time of the move the family had an open CPS case in FL and failed to notify their case manager of the move to Georgia. The case was open due to medical neglect resulting from prescription substance abuse by the mother, Ms. Jane Lannister and her live-in paramour, John Baratheon.

Ms. Lannister and Mr. Baratheon have one child, Joffery, age 2. Joffery was born premature and has not been seen in the doctor's office since he was 9 months old. Joffery's pediatrician in FL indicated that Ms. Lannister missed several follow up appointments to treat a severe asthma condition. Ms. Lannister stated that she took Joffery to the doctor before leaving FL and was up to date on all well-checks and immunizations, however medical records verified this was untrue. Ms. Lannister also stated that she applied for Medicaid upon arriving in GA, however the application could not be located by Office of Family Independence (OFI). The sole income in the home is Mr. Baratheon's SSI, received for a chronic seizure condition that is currently untreated. Both caregivers admitted to spending the SSI money on purchasing illegal prescription medications.

The home was observed to be in disarray. Dirty dishes were piled up in the sink and all over the counter and food that appeared to be several days old was left on the table in dishes. Joffery was wandering around the home in a dirty diaper that had not been recently changed based on the amount of urine that saturated the diaper. He was also observed to be coughing and wheezing by the SSCM during the visit.

The drug screen results on both caregivers were positive for opiates and benzodiazepines. SSCM also noted that Ms. Lannister and Mr. Baratheon appeared to be under the influence of substances as evidenced by sleeping during the day, slurred words when talking, and dilated pupils. Prior medical conditions were cited as the basis for the prescription drug use, however neither caregiver could produce valid prescriptions from a medical provider. Results of a substance abuse assessment included several recommendations for follow up treatment for both caregivers.

Impending dangers were identified based on the caregivers' inability to control their behavior and complete daily life activities (cleaning, taking child to the doctor, etc.) due to the illegal use of prescription drugs and the inability of both caregivers to give a valid explanation as to why Joffery had not been taken to the doctor to deal with his severe asthma in both FL and GA.

A safety plan was completed to address the condition of the home, follow up on Joffery's medical care for observed respiratory issues, and to develop a plan for supervision of Joffery if Ms. Lannister or Mr. Baratheon are using prescription medications (legally or illegally) that affect their judgment and/or rendered them unable to care for the children. The home was cleaned on a follow up visit and Joffery was enrolled in daycare. An appointment was also made with a local pediatrician. Both caregivers indicate a willingness to attend substance abuse treatment based on the recommendations of the substance abuse assessments.

Neglect (Medical Neglect) is substantiated due to Ms. Lannister failing to provide adequate medical care for Joffery's continued respiratory issues and the case opened for FPS. Recommended initial services are:

- Ms. Lannister and Mr. Baratheon need to follow up on recommendations from the substance abuse assessment.
- Follow up medical care for Joffery

Example of Unsubstantiated-Closed Investigation Conclusion

On 3/2/17 DFCS received a report concerning Arya Stark stating that Arya was being abused by her father, Ned Stark. Arya was interviewed and stated that her father, Mr. Stark slammed her head into the head rest in the car. She also stated that Mr. Stark emotionally abuses her by calling her names.

Collateral contacts and interviews with Arya's siblings did not support Arya's statement of abuse. Arya did not have any marks/bruises and Arya's siblings (Sansa, Robb, and Bran) stated that Arya is not physically disciplined. Arya also could not remember important details of her account such as when the alleged incident happened or why Mr. Stark allegedly did it.

Arya has been seeing a therapist for approximately one year. The therapist reported that Arya never disclosed any abuse/neglect during the sessions. Arya did sustain an injury when Mr. Stark restrained her from running away, which was a minor bruise to the lip approximately a year and a half ago. Mr. Stark obtained therapy for Arya soon after the incident. Mr. Stark is a single parent, after losing his wife to cancer. The therapist indicated that there have been incidents of the family using name calling when they are angry, but she is doing both individual and family counseling with them to help work through these issues and feels that most of the problems are related to the family's grief. Mr. Stark has extended family support who assist him with the children. Other personal collateral contacts did not reveal any information that would indicate Mr. Stark was being abusive to his children. No impending dangers were noted. Allegations of physical abuse (bruises, welts, abrasions) are unsubstantiated. There is no CPS history, and no further services are recommended.

Allegation Detail Page and the Justification of Findings

The Allegation Detail page in Georgia SHINES is where the SSCM documents a disposition (substantiated or unsubstantiated) for each allegation of child abuse investigated. The justification of findings supports the decision to substantiate or unsubstantiate the allegations. It is a clear and concise description of facts and evidence gathered during the investigation and details a preponderance of credible evidence to support the findings concerning one of the forms of child abuse investigated (prenatal abuse, risk of imminent harm, labor servitude emotional abuse, neglect, physical abuse, sexual abuse, and sexual exploitation). Below is an example of a justification of findings for neglect.

- Ms. Jones is substantiated for neglect due to abandonment. For six months from approximately August 8, 2021, through February 14, 2022, Ms. Smith abandoned her two children, S.D. and M.D., age 13, by leaving them with their grandmother Ms. Scott, without provision for their support and without regularly visiting them.
- Ms. Jackson is substantiated for neglect due to inadequate supervision. On January 11, 2022, Ms. Jackson neglected I.J., age 8 by failing to provide him with adequate supervision by leaving him alone at home while she was away from home at work for nine hours.

Policy Violations

Policy Violations are actions performed by a DFCS agent that may breach any DFCS policy and/or RBWO Minimum Standards, but do not constitute child abuse. For additional information on policy violations see policy 14.22 Resource Development: Policy Violations.

When a policy violation is supported or identified it should be discussed during the 48-hour staffing. The resource maintainer (Permanency SSCM, RD SSCM or OPM) has the responsibility to address the policy violation with the caregiver including implementing a CAP (if applicable) or initiating a policy violation assessment as outlined in policy 14.22 Resource Development: Policy Violations.

Practice Guidance

CHILDREN IN DFCS CUSTODY
Child in the legal temporary or permanent custody of DFCS.
DFCS FOSTER OR ADOPTIVE HOMES
DFCS foster homes provide temporary care for children in foster care. Similarly, DFCS adoptive homes provide care for children in foster care, however, the adoptive parents have formally committed to the adoption of the children. In addition, DFCS kinship foster homes or kinship adoptive homes, share the same corresponding responsibilities and requirements though the caregivers are kin to the children placed in their home. DFCS County Departments are responsible for evaluating, approving, and monitoring DFCS foster or adoptive homes.
CPA FOSTER OR ADOPTIVE HOMES
CPA foster homes provide temporary care for children in foster care. Similarly, CPA adoptive homes provide care for children in foster care, however, the adoptive parents have formally committed to the adoption of the children. CPA foster and adoptive homes are evaluated, approved, and administered by a CPA. A CPA is any institution, society, agency, or facility which places children in foster homes for temporary care or in prospective adoptive homes for adoption. The Office of Provider Management (OPM) and Residential Child Care Licensing (RCCL) is the oversight authorities for CPA foster or adoptive homes.

KINSHIP FOSTER CARE PLACEMENTS

Kinship foster care placements provide temporary care for children in foster care for whom the caregivers are kin (relative or fictive kin). DFCS County Departments are responsible for evaluating, approving, and monitoring kinship foster care placements.

RESIDENTIAL FACILITIES

Residential facilities provide full-time (24-hour) residential care to children and youth, outside of their home.

Child Care Institutions (CCI)

CCIs are residential facilities that provide full-time Room, Board and Watchful Oversight (RBWO) to six or more children through 18 years of age outside of their home environment. CCI may also be transitional living placements (TLP) for youth 16 through 21 years of age who have agreed to Extended Foster Care (EFC) to prepare youth to become socially, emotionally, and personally independent. The OPM and RCCL are the oversight authorities of CCI.

Children's Transition Care Center (CTCC)	CCI that provides a temporary, home-like environment for medically fragile children, technology dependent children, and children with special health care needs, up to 21 years of age, who are deemed clinically stable by a physician but are dependent on life-sustaining medications, treatments, and equipment. These children require assistance with activities of daily living to facilitate transitions from a hospital or other facility to a home or other appropriate setting. CTCCs are required to be licensed by RCCL.
Maternity Homes (MH) / Parenting Support Program (Second Chance Homes)	CCI that provides RBWO in a residential setting for adolescents during pregnancy who are 21 years of age and younger. MH provide service to pregnant youth before, during or within two weeks of childbirth through a maximum period of eight weeks following delivery. Second Chance Homes/Parenting Support Programs are licensed MH that provide services beyond the eight weeks following delivery to promote residents' long-term independence and the well-being of their child(ren). MH are required to be licensed by RCCL.
Specialty Camp / Outdoor Child Caring Program (OCCP)	CCI that provides RBWO along with a variety of outdoor activities taking place in a wilderness or camp environment that are designed to improve the emotional and behavioral adjustment of the children, through the age of 18 participating in the activities. OCCPs are required to be licensed by RCCL.

Runaway and Homeless Youth Program (RHYP)

Independent Living Program (ILP) Placements

ILP Placements are residential facilities that provide youth who are at least 18 years of age through 21 years of age with an alternative living arrangement (i.e., community-based housing). The goal is to prepare youth to become socially, emotionally, and personally independent of social services while connecting them to life-long permanent connections and laying the foundation for the pursuit of educational and career opportunities. OPM is the oversight authority of ILP Placements. In unusual circumstances a youth 17 years or younger may be in an ILP Placement, when this occurs, both OPM and RCCL are the oversight authorities.

Psychiatric Residential Treatment Facility (PRTF)

PRTF are residential facilities that provide comprehensive mental health and substance abuse treatment to children, adolescents, and young adults ages 5-21 who, due to severe emotional disturbance, need quality, active treatment that can only be provided in an inpatient treatment setting. Department of Behavioral Health and Developmental Disabilities (DBHDD) and Department of Community Health Healthcare Facility Regulations (HFR) are the oversight authorities of PRTFs.

Regional Youth Detention Centers (RYDC)

Secure short-term residential facilities centers for youth awaiting trial or waiting to enter a community program or long-term facility. Department of Juvenile Justice (DJJ) is the oversight authority of RYDC.

Youth Development Campuses (YDC)

Secure long-term residential facilities for youth sentenced or committed to DJJ custody by juvenile courts. DJJ is the oversight authority of YDC.

NON-RESIDENTIAL FACILITIES

Non-residential facilities provide less than full-time care outside of the home for children under the age of 18 years. Bright from the Start: Georgia Department of Early Care and Learning (DECAL) is the oversight authority for non-residential facilities.

Documenting Child Deaths Occurring prior to DFCS Involvement

When DFCS learns of a child death in a family within the 12 months prior to the start of DFCS involvement, even if the circumstances of the death were unrelated to maltreatment, the Social Services Case Manager (SSCM) will:

1. Gather as much information as possible from the family about the child's death.

Although the death may not have been reported to DFCS at the time, the circumstances may have some relevance to the open case.

2. Enter the deceased child's name, date of birth, date of death, and reason for death on the deceased child's Person Detail page in Georgia SHINES.

3. Document the conversation with the caregiver(s) on the Contact Detail page under the Contacts/Summaries tab.

Practice Guidance

Purpose of CD/NF/SI Reporting

1. Provide immediate notification to DFCS leadership of the child death/near fatality/serious injury of a child.
2. Ensure all appropriate steps are being taken to ensure the safety of the victim child and any child(ren) remaining in the home.
3. Initiate a process that will allow the Division to identify trends that may suggest changes needed to policy, practice, and procedure to improve safety for children.

The County Director is responsible for ensuring timely and accurate completion of all CD/NF/SI reports. The Regional Director is responsible for ensuring a second level review process is in place for all completed reports prior to submission to the state office.

Reporting a CD/NF/SI

During an Open DFCS Case Related to a Previous Injury

Sometimes a serious injury or near fatality eventually leads to a death. When a child death occurs following a previously reported serious injury or near fatality, the CD/NF/SI report must be completed and approved in Georgia SHINES within 24 hours of receiving notification of the child's death.

Related to a Pre-Existing Medical Condition

When a child dies or is seriously injured as the result of a documented pre-existing medical condition, or the death is expected and there are no additional allegations of child maltreatment, it is not necessary to complete a new intake report. When there is documented evidence to support the pre-existing condition, the County Department must complete an evaluation of the circumstances that led up to the CD/NF/SI incident and complete the CD/NF/SI report in the applicable stage in Georgia SHINES within 24 hours of receiving the notification.

When there is an Expected Death

Natural deaths due to documented medical conditions are managed by the medical professional who has been caring for the child. At the time of death, the coroner may accept the opinion of the medical professional and use his/her medical findings for the death certificate or may take possession of the body and conduct a separate investigation and autopsy. In Georgia, the county coroner usually enlists the state medical examiner to perform pediatric autopsies. However, there are instances in which natural deaths will be noted by a physician signing the death certificate without an autopsy. When no autopsy is performed, it is critical that DFCS continue to assess the circumstances of the child's death, obtain a copy of the death certificate, and upload it into Georgia SHINES. This assessment will confirm that the death occurred resulting from a medical condition and was anticipated or expected, and that there were no allegations or suspicions of abuse or neglect related to the death.

Documenting Child Deaths Occurring Prior to DFCS Involvement

When DFCS becomes involved with a family and learns of a child death that occurred in the 12 months prior to the start of DFCS' involvement with the family, it is important to ask questions about the death, even if that death was unrelated to abuse or neglect. The circumstances of the death may have some relevance to the open case, and it will be helpful to understand the effect of that death on the family's functioning. It is critical to gather as much information as possible to accurately reflect information about prior child deaths within the family.

State Office Reviews

All Child Death, Near Fatality and Serious Injury (CD/NF/SI) reports are reviewed and tracked by the Knowledge Management CD/NF/SI Review Team. The team consists of DFCS staff with a high level of expertise in Child Protective Services with a focus on safety related practice. Tracking includes gathering detailed information, such as: age of caretaker (CT), prior type of agency CPS history, length of time between the CD/NF/SI event and prior case closure, and outcomes of prior reports or current report. Risk factors identified may include substance abuse, domestic violence, prenatal drug exposure, prematurity, special needs child or CT, mental health and criminal history of CT, etc.

Sometimes a more in-depth review of prior history may be warranted when there is no clear alleged maltreatment, even if the cause of death initially appears to be related to natural or accidental causes. Some benefits of the review process include:

1. Live-learning and involvement of others in case assessment;
2. Consulting and collaborating with internal and external partners;
3. Identifying critical child safety issues and brainstorming on needed safety measures;
4. Identifying trends, high risk indicators, and immediate safety needs;
5. Identifying systemic issues and needs that can improve agency practice (for example: coding clarity, lack of substantiation on physical abuse cases where clear and convincing evidence was obtained, safety resources, or screen outs when safety concerns exist);
6. Improving assessments; and
7. Agency accountability and oversight.

Autopsy Reports

DFCS does not hold an investigation open for the sole purpose of waiting for an autopsy report. If all other investigative activities and services have been completed, DFCS may close the case (see policy 6.7 Special Investigations: Conducting Special Investigations of Child Death, Near Fatality, or Serious Injury). Although the investigation may be closed, efforts to obtain the final autopsy results must continue. If the original case has been closed or there was no investigation, and the autopsy report generates new information indicating maltreatment that was not previously reported or investigated or identifies parental behavior that impacted the death which was previously unknown to DFCS, then a new intake report must be submitted.

Child Deaths Not Reported to DFCS

O.C.G.A. § 19-7-5 requires that a report be made to DFCS when there is reasonable cause to believe that suspected child abuse has occurred. If DFCS learns of a child death due to circumstances or events unrelated to abuse or neglect, no intake report is required. When DFCS learns of a child death through media reports or other sources in the community, and the death was not reported to the CPS Intake Communication Center (CICC) as a child abuse or neglect referral, it is not necessary to complete the CD/NF/SI report.

Child Fatality Review Committees

The purpose of the Child Fatality Review Committee (CFRC) is to review the causes and circumstances of a child's death and make recommendations for prevention. DFCS County Departments must designate a representative to serve on the local CFRC. County Directors or their designee shall actively engage committee members and participate in meetings of the local review committee, and share requested data to inform the committee's findings (see policy 1.10 Administration: Child Fatality Review).

If, during a CRFC meeting, it is determined that a child death was not previously reported to DFCS and maltreatment is suspected or alleged, the County Department representative may accept the committee's information as a new child abuse and neglect report and make an immediate report to CICC. A new intake report will then be generated in Georgia SHINES containing the committee's information and recommendations (see policy 3.1 Intake: Receiving Intake Reports).

Near Fatality

Near fatality means as an act that, as certified by a physician, places the child in serious or critical condition. Once the child meets this criterion then the allegation of "near fatality" should be marked along with any other type(s) of maltreatment.

How to determine a near fatality:

- Hospital records reflect that the child's condition is serious or critical.
- Ask the treating physician if the child's condition is serious or critical.

Serious Injury

A serious injury is one that involves substantial risk of death, extreme physical pain, disfigurement or prolonged loss or impairment of the function of a body part, organ or mental capability. Examples include burns, head trauma, blunt trauma, internal bleeding, multiple bruising and contusions, lacerations of organs, broken bones, and amputation.

Practice Guidance

Special Investigation Reviews

Reviews of special investigations involving placement resources or children in DFCS custody provide valuable feedback and shared decision making when there are complex case issues or decisions pertaining to child safety, permanency, or well-being. Additionally, the review process may identify policy violations not noted during the special investigation or identify trends for targeted technical assistance, training and/or services for placement resources and children in their care.

Caregiver Recruitment and Retention Unit (CRRU)

The CRRU is responsible for the oversight of DFCS foster and adoptive parent recruitment and retention. CRRU completes a concurrence review when a special investigation indicates maltreatment or policy violations exist resulting in a recommendation to close the resource. This review evaluates retention options for the resource, such as the completion of a CAP and examines if any of the Bill of Rights impacting foster parent grievances have been violated either directly or indirectly. Programs, practices, procedures, service provision, communication, and partnership between DFCS and the placement resource is incorporated into the review. A written concurrence/non-concurrence with the recommendation to close the resource is provided to the County Department/Region upon completion. Send notifications to CRRU@dhs.ga.gov.

State Adoption Unit

The State Adoption Unit works with other state office units, local county offices and child placing agencies to provide a continuum of available, accessible, and effective services that enable and support the placement of children in adoptive families. This unit reviews all special investigations on children who have a permanency plan of adoption to ensure the outcome is in the best interest of achieving permanency for each child on a case by case basis. In certain instances, waivers may be sought to achieve permanency regardless of the outcome of the special investigation. Send notifications to adoption.mic@dhs.ga.gov.

Discussion

The Division of Family and Children Services (DFCS) has a two-track differential response system to address reports of known or suspected child abuse and neglect, Investigations and Family Support Services (FSS). FSS is an alternative child protective services (CPS) response for providing protection to children by engaging the family to build consensus around the everyday life situations which may interfere with the family's ability to nurture and protect their child(ren). The family's participation in FSS is not voluntary as there are allegations of maltreatment. FSS are designed to ensure child safety and prevent future involvement in the child welfare system using formal and informal services to strengthen and support families.

The FSS track is utilized when the Initial Safety Assessment (ISA) does not indicate a present danger situation or impending danger safety threat. An assessment of child safety and family functioning is required just as it is during an Investigation. However, there is no formal finding of substantiated or unsubstantiated concerning the allegations of abuse or neglect.

When the assessment identifies the need for formal and/or informal non-safety related services, DFCS partners with families to develop strategies to address these needs. Upon the conclusion of the FSS assessment, when the child(ren) are determined to be safe and non-safety related services are recommended, the family will be engaged to build consensus regarding the benefit of the recommended services in enhancing family functioning. If consensus cannot be reached regarding the family's participation in services, the family will be provided with a list of available services prior to case closure. If present or impending danger is indicated at any time during the FSS case, FSS is terminated and an investigation is initiated.

DFCS' new Practice Model, informed by Solution-Based Casework (SBC), is embedded in the provision of FSS. SBC is best thought of as the architecture that holds our practice to a consistent focus on safety outcomes. At the heart of SBC is the belief that by building a partnership with the family, solutions to the everyday problems can be developed. This partnership, along with acknowledging, documenting, and celebrating successes, provides a framework for the family to sustain positive change moving forward. By using the SBC model, the case manager is able to follow a conceptual map for family-centered practice from assessment through case closure.^[1]

The Family Support Services philosophy is:

1. The family is the best entity to protect their child(ren) and the family network can be a positive force in helping to achieve a successful outcome.
2. Partnering with the family in order to reach a consensus concerning the difficulties they are experiencing is the best approach to successful intervention.
3. Developing mutual respect with the family is the best way to gain a family’s trust and obtain engagement in service provision.
4. Intervention is best when it is solution based, individualized, and family centered.
5. Family strengths are considered a positive asset and should be used in achieving and sustaining success.
6. Prompt access to formal or informal supports contributes to success.
7. Positive changes in family functioning should be celebrated.

Initiating the Assessment (ISA, Investigations, Special Investigations, or FSS)

Initiating the assessment is defined as making or attempting to contact the family or another person who can provide information essential to the disposition of the investigation or assessment.

CPS Communication Center (CICC) contacting the family or another person during the intake assessment phase to determine the location of the alleged maltreated child does not constitute initiation of the assessment.

Parent(s)

Parent(s) is used to refer to person(s) legally obligated to provide or secure adequate care for a child including his/her parent, guardian, or legal custodian.

Practice Guidance

A FSS assessment must reflect a continuous, and comprehensive assessment of child safety and family functioning. The assessment should focus on identifying the problem task or situation that led to DFCS involvement and exploring the underlying causes of the problem. In addition, explore exceptions for when the situation was managed more appropriately, to assist the family in recognizing that they can deal with difficulties in a more suitable manner. Once consensus is reached on the issue(s) case management activities can focus on further evaluating the family's strengths, including caregiver protective capacities, support systems, and other services available that can assist in managing or controlling the difficulties the family or individual is facing.

Working in partnership with the family is an effective way to achieve buy-in regarding the need for change, as well as maintain the motivation to complete and sustain the behavioral change necessary to ensure child safety. FSS assessments should not be closed without making efforts to engage the family in reaching consensus on the benefits of recommended service provision. When consensus is not reached, the family is provided with a list of formal and informal services for use now or in the future.

Any inconsistencies noted must be addressed and clarified with the family prior to case closure, as they may be related to the identification of a safety threat. Additionally, if a family is not engaged or unwilling to participate in the services recommended this information must be considered when making a case determination. When safety threats are determined to exist, a safety plan must be implemented, and the case progressed to an Investigation.

 If a full examination is needed, a medical provider may be used.

- b. If a suspicious injury or other signs of maltreatment is observed, gather information around the circumstances surrounding the injury by asking who, what, when, where and how. What was used to cause the injury (ex: hand, fist, belt, bat, extension cord)? Describe the object that was used to cause the injury. Observe the object used to cause the injury. Where did the incident that resulted in the injury occur (ex: bedroom, bathroom, grandma's kitchen)? Observe the specific location in the home where the incident occurred.
- c. What was the caregiver's response to the injury or being notified of the injury? Was medical treatment sought? Whenever there is a question of whether or not a child needs to be examined by a medical professional have the caregiver seek a medical consultation (e.g., 24-hour nurse helpline, poison control center). If medical treatment is recommended from the consult, insist the caregiver take the child to be examined by a medical professional within a specific timeframe.
- d. Determine whether there are any additional injuries that are not immediately apparent. Is there bruising or is the area sensitive to the touch? Does the child complain of discomfort or pain? Has the child suffered any other injuries or does the child have a history of injuries?
- e. Document any observed injuries or physical signs of maltreatment by taking quality pictures and/or a detailed written description.

 Pictures can also be used to document a lack of maltreatment, injury, or condition.

4. Identify everyday life situation(s) that are challenging to manage and that make the child unsafe or put the child at risk for maltreatment.
5. Identify with the caregiver the personal issue(s) that one or more caregivers have that makes caring for the children difficult as it relates to child safety and risk. Identify skills that the individual possesses that help to manage unwanted behavior.
6. Observe the family functioning and interactions around everyday tasks:
 - a. Parent/caregiver-child interaction:
 - i. How the caregiver(s) relates to the child;
 - ii. Whether the caregiver(s) appears to be calm, gentle, relaxed, and confident about parenting or if the caregiver appears anxious, easily frustrated, inattentive, indifferent, or detached; and
 - iii. What the caregiver(s) communicates to the child non-verbally (e.g., looks, touches, and gestures).
 - b. Interactions of all household members; and
 - c. The caregiver's ability to meet the needs of all children under their care and supervision.

7. Assess the physical home environment to determine if it is safe and appropriate to meet the needs of each child:
 - a. Examine every room in the home for present or potential environmental concerns or hazards. Take appropriate action to remedy environmental concerns or hazards (i.e., loose wires or cords, alcohol or beer bottles, any drug paraphernalia, broken glass or windows, medications or toxic cleaning items that are in reach of small children) prior to leaving the home;
 - b. Review the sleeping arrangements for all household members;
 - c. When an infant under one year of age is in the home assess and discuss safe sleep practices with the caregiver(s). Take appropriate action to remedy unsafe sleep situations prior to leaving the home such as helping a caregiver to prepare a safe sleeping area for an infant (see Infant Safe to Sleep Guidelines and Protocol in Forms and Tools);

 A caregiver’s willingness or unwillingness to address a safe sleep environment must be considered when evaluating caregiver protective capacities and documented in Georgia SHINES.
 - d. Take pictures and/or document in writing the condition of the home when concerns or hazards are identified including the inside and outside of the home such as the yard, porch, etc.
8. Discuss motor vehicle safety precautions including not leaving children unattended in cars (see Practice Guidance: Motor Vehicle Safety Recommendations).
9. Build a consensus with the caregiver(s) regarding the family and individual challenges by summarizing how the old plan does not seem to be working very well and how it seems a new plan needs to be developed to address the challenges.
10. Notice and celebrate the caregiver(s) positive behavioral change with the family.
11. Make a safety determination, in consultation with the SSS, prior to concluding each purposeful contact with the parent, caregiver, adult household member or alleged maltreater (see policy 19.11 Case Management: Safety Assessment). If it is determined that the child is unsafe, prior to leaving the home, take immediate and appropriate action to control the safety threats to ensure child safety by:
 - a. Developing and Implementing with the caregiver in-home or out-of-home safety plan (see policy 19.12 Case Management: Safety Plan & Management); and/or
 - b. Initiating court/legal intervention (see policy 17.1 Legal: The Juvenile Court Process).
12. Thoroughly explain what will happen next and answer any questions he/she may have.

 When conducting the family interview and it becomes apparent that a private interview with any household member is needed to assess child safety conduct the interview(s) immediately following the family interview.

Analyzing Information

Upon the completion of each purposeful contact with the child, caregiver(s), or another household member the SSCM will:

1. Review and analyze the information gathered during the interview(s). Identify inconsistencies or discrepancies.

2. Make necessary safety decisions in response to information gathered during interviews and the visit to the home in consultation with the SSS.
3. Consult with the SSS and/or other subject matter experts (i.e., Wellbeing Consultant, Field Program Specialist) for assistance as needed.
4. If a present danger situation was noted during a home visit, obtain the SSS signature of approval on the safety plan developed with the family.
5. Conduct safety screenings on additional household members or caregivers revealed during purposeful contacts who were not identified at intake (see policy 19.9 Case Management: Safety Screenings).
6. Engage collateral contact as outlined in policy 19.16 Case Management: Collateral Contacts to obtain pertinent and purposeful information for:
 - a. Determining child safety, well-being, and permanency;
 - b. Assessing caregiver protective capacities, and family functioning; and
 - c. Monitoring progress on Agreement Strategies when applicable.
7. Make referrals to implement needed services (see policy 19.17 Case Management: Service Provision).
8. Follow up on commitments made during the visit.
9. Identify areas for discussion and follow up during the next visit.
10. Document purposeful contacts and any related activities in Georgia SHINES within 72 hours of occurrence, including updating the Person Detail Page and uploading any pictures or documents to External Documentation.

Supervisor's Role

1. Ensure purposeful contacts are occurring according to policy or as frequently as necessary to assess and ensure safety and determine family functioning.
2. Use the following reports to track purposeful contacts:
 - a. Family Support Activity Reports (Lenses); and
 - b. Log of Contacts (Georgia SHINES).
3. Assist the SSCM in preparing an agenda to ensure purposeful contacts are focused on the everyday life situations the family is having difficulty managing.
4. Ensure he/she is accessible to provide guidance and consult with the SSCM to discuss:
 - a. Information gathered concerning areas of family functioning (extent and circumstances concerning maltreatment, child development, and functioning, adult functioning and patterns of behavior, family choice of discipline, and family support system and resources);
 - b. A safety determination (safe or unsafe); and/or
 - c. Present danger situations or impending danger safety threats identified requiring the development of an in-home or out-of-home safety plan to control the present danger situation or impending danger safety threat and the case to be stage progressed to Investigation.

5. Document the supervisory staffing in Georgia SHINES within 72 hours of occurrence.
6. Ensure purposeful contacts are documented timely in Georgia SHINES within 72 hours of the occurrence, including pictures and observations.
7. Determine the sufficiency of the purposeful contacts through a Georgia SHINES documentation review, considering the following:
 - a. Documentation meets guidelines as outlined in Documenting Purposeful Contacts in Practice Guidance;
 - b. Does the documentation support the purposeful contact(s) conducted provides sufficient information to assess child safety and current family functioning;
 - c. Is the information gathered sufficient to support the safety decision;
 - d. Was the family engaged in manner that is conducive to building a partnership;
 - e. Was the discussion with the family focused on the everyday life tasks the family is struggling with;
 - f. Are inconsistencies documented that need to be resolved; and
 - g. Are there any services that have been identified that need to be linked to the family?
8. When inconsistencies or follow up is needed based on the review of documentation provide feedback and guidance to the SSCM in order to resolve the inconsistencies and ensure service provision, as necessary.

Practice Guidance

All contacts made with parents and their children provide an opportunity to build a trusting and supportive partnership. Contacts should be well planned and have a clear purpose. In order to thoroughly assess a child's safety, permanency, and well-being, it is important to assess the functioning of the family that is caring for the child. Some key principles to keep in mind when performing purposeful contacts include:

1. Recognizing the family providing care as a system - Each member of the family, including the child, has a role and responsibility within the family. If any one person is unable to fulfill their responsibilities, then the whole family is impacted.
2. Engagement and partnership building - purposeful contacts are not only about engaging and building a relationship with the caregiver, but also about engaging and building a relationship with the entire family including absent parents.
3. Involvement of families and youth - Because each member of a family has a role and responsibilities, it is essential to obtain input from all family members when assessing family functioning. When family members are engaged, this will re-affirm their importance in ensuring the success of the family system.
4. Recognizing all members are individuals – Each family members will adjust differently to challenges to everyday life tasks. It is important to recognize the individuality of each family member and the impact DFCS involvement has on their lives.
5. Cultural awareness - Each family has their own culture. Culture impacts family rituals and traditions. As family functioning is assessed, we must be respectful of all cultures involved and how they impact the functioning of the family.

6. Empathy, authenticity, and transparency - During purposeful contact with family, we should be mindful of these three words: empathy, authenticity, and transparency. When engaging we must be able to identify with their thoughts and feelings even though we may not always agree. We also must be genuine and open in our communication with all family members and recognize that we have some accountability regarding the success or failure of the family. Purposeful contacts are also a time for the family to hold us accountable for what we may or may not be doing on behalf of the family who has joined in partnership with us.
7. Remaining focused on safety, permanency, and well-being throughout the process.

Observing Children for Physical Signs of Maltreatment

Observing children for physical signs of maltreatment is an important part of ensuring child safety. To determine if there is cause to believe a child may be harmed, requiring the SSCM to view areas of the body that may be clothed, consider the following:

1. Non-verbal cues from the child or the caregiver that raise concern.
2. The age and special needs of the child. Young children and those with certain special needs are especially vulnerable and may not be able to verbalize when they are being abused or neglected. Therefore, the SSCM cannot depend on the child to say how they are feeling and must be keenly aware of non-verbal cues. For instance, if the child is wincing or drawing back slightly, it may be an indication of pain.
3. Statements made by the child, other children/household members/collaterals, etc. that indicate him/her may have been subjected to physical harm, etc.
4. Physical indicators of maltreatment such as suspicious injuries, marks, cuts, bruises, areas of swelling, protruding limbs, damaged skin, malnourishment, unexplained weight loss, lethargy, severe tooth decay, matted hair, pungent body odor, etc.
5. The child resides with the caregiver or other individual that harmed the child or another child.
6. The child indicates that physical discipline is being used; or that inappropriate methods of discipline is utilized by the caregiver or others in the home.

The SSCM may need to view areas of a child's body that are covered by clothing to observe for signs of maltreatment and determine if the child needs medical treatment. This may require that the child (or caregiver for younger children) adjust their clothing. This can be embarrassing and anxiety provoking for the child. SSCMs must be sensitive to the child's level of comfort and make every effort to reduce their discomfort. This can be accomplished by having an adult present that the child knows and trusts, and by asking the child or the caregiver (for children four years and under or those with special needs) to adjust one area of a child's clothing at a time. Asking the child or the caregiver to raise a child's pant leg or shirt sleeve one at a time, is less invasive, while allowing the SSCM to observe for signs of maltreatment. When possible, arrange for a staff person of the same sex as the child to conduct the observation.

Assessing Injuries

Some characteristics of injuries are considered red flags and warrant further scrutiny, these include but are not limited to:

1. Injuries on children who are not mobile, especially infants.

2. Injuries on protected surfaces of the body, such as the back and buttocks, ears, inside the mouth, genitalia and inner thighs, the neck, arms or legs, and underarms.
3. Multiple injuries in various stages of healing (i.e., skin injuries, lesions of varying ages, bruises).
4. Patterned trauma, even if the object used to commit the abuse cannot be determined.
5. Injuries that routine, age-appropriate supervision of the child should have prevented.
6. Significant injury with either no explanation or an explanation that is not plausible.

The SSCM may also need to observe the scene of the injury, to ascertain whether the caregiver and/or child's statement of what happened is plausible.

1. Ask the caregiver and/or child to show him/her exactly what happened, and where.
2. Note anything about the physical environment that refutes the statement(s) provided. For example, if the caregiver claims that the child fell out of bed and hit his head on the floor, causing a severe bruise, the SSCM should look at the bed, the floor, and height from the bed to the floor. Is the floor carpeted? Is it plausible that the injury occurred on the carpeted floor?
3. Obtain a detailed, precise timeline of events surrounding the incident or track the sequence of events. The more detailed the history, the more likely the assessment of the injury will be accurate. This can be helpful when communicating with medical staff to determine if the injury could have been caused in the manner described by the caregiver and/or child.
4. Document the caregiver's/child's words in quotes. Whenever possible, do not paraphrase. Clarify vague references to times, places, or observers.

Documenting Injuries

As injuries fade, photographs are needed to document the injuries, which may be used as evidence in an investigation or in court. When taking photographs of injuries (bruises, lacerations, etc.), ensure the following:

1. The caregiver and the child are informed of the reason for taking the photographs.
2. At least one photograph includes the adult witness with the alleged child victim.
3. Each photograph should have one identifier present (i.e., piece of the child's clothing), at least one photograph should include the child's face and the clothing, to assure that the evidence collected demonstrates the series of photographs of the same child.
4. Use measurable objects (i.e., ruler, coin, pencil) to depict the size of the injury. Photograph the object that caused the injury (whether the injury was accidental or not)
5. All photographs should be identified with the following information: the individuals who took the photo, the date it was taken, name and DOB of the alleged child victim, and if applicable address of the living environment.

Deliberate Information Gathering (DIG)

Seek to understand the caregiver, his/her point of view, story, and experience. That means to dig deeper for the information needed in order to understand the person, the situation and how these help explain both threats to child safety and caregiver protective capacities. The DIG^[2] idea is to be very deliberate in gathering information and seeking to understand while behaving very naturally.

The following interpersonal techniques can be used while gathering information:

1. Attending Behavior

Attending behavior refers to focusing attention on the caregiver rather than the SSCM's agenda or line of questioning. Attending behavior involves "matching" a caregiver's nonverbal behavior by consciously manipulating and controlling the SSCM's own nonverbal skills and responses. Primary attending behaviors include eye contact, facial expressions, body language, posturing and gesturing, following, reflecting and vocal qualities-tone and pace.

2. Open Questions

Open questions help to remove the SSCM from the responsibility of "carrying" the interview by establishing a conversational quality to the interaction. Open questions cannot be answered "yes" or "no" or in just a few words. Open questions require the caregiver to elaborate with a wider range of responses. Open questions are the "what" and "how" type questions.

3. Closed Questions

Closed questions should be used to restrict or narrow the focus of a caregiver's response. Closed questions should be used purposefully when precise detail and greater clarity is needed from the caregiver. As an exception, closed questions may be used more frequently when there are time constraints or when the SSCM is interviewing a caregiver who is very concrete or is not very verbal.

4. Paraphrasing

The primary intent of paraphrasing is to facilitate the clarification of statements, issues, and concerns. Paraphrasing may involve the SSCM selecting and using a caregiver's own keywords. Paraphrasing involves formulating the essential message that the caregiver is conveying and then stating that message back to the caregiver in the SSCM's own words. When paraphrasing, check for accuracy of the statement by concluding the paraphrase with a simple question such as, "Is that correct?" or "Does that sound accurate?"

5. Encouraging

This technique serves to keep people talking about a particular topic, issue, or concern. Encouraging may be as simple as using a slight verbal prompt, such as "uh-huh", "I see", "go on", or "then what?"

6. Conversational Looping

Conversational looping is a skill for gathering information that first involves the SSCM identifying some key general topic or area for discussion with a caregiver (e.g., approach to parenting, problem-solving, dealing with stress, etc.). Once a topic has been identified, begin the conversation with a broad non-threatening open question. As the conversation progresses related to the identified topic, continue with a line of questioning (primarily open-ended) based on previous caregiver responses that progressively moves the discussion toward a more specific and intimate inquiry. A key to effective conversational looping is the ability of the interviewer to maintain a caregiver's focus on a particular topic, which will then enable the interviewer to gather more detailed information from the caregiver about the issue, concern, or topic inquiry.

Example: Parenting Approach

"So, how would you describe yourself as a parent?"

"Where do you learn parenting skills from?"

"What brings you the most satisfaction as a parent?"

"How does what you're saying relate to your feelings about being a single parent?"

The content areas that are explored through conversational looping or for any technique are the six family functioning areas.

7. Reflective Listening Statements

Reflective listening statements involve the SSCM's attempts to interpret what a caregiver believes, thinks and/or feels, and then state the SSCM's interpretation back to the caregiver. The interpretation of what the caregiver is communicating is based on both verbal responses and nonverbal cues from the caregiver. A statement is used rather than a question because the statement is less likely to produce caregiver resistance, and, further, a statement triggers the caregiver to re-examine the accuracy of his/her perceptions and thoughts.

Example:

Caregiver: "I may have a couple of beers every once in a while, with my friends, but I don't have a drinking problem."

SSCM: "For you, drinking is no big deal...it's just something you do socially with your friends?"

Separating Intentions from Actions

An individual can experience differing even conflicting feelings about any given situation. It is not uncommon to have two thoughts on the same subject "I would like to..., but I am scared". Individuals who may have caused harm to a child also experiences these conflicting feelings. "He deserved to be punished for not following the rules..., but I didn't mean to hurt him. "He just would not stop crying, I was exhausted and wanted to sleep..., but I didn't mean to shake him that hard."

Separating intentions from actions means joining in partnership with the part of the person's thoughts (intentions) related to not wanting this event to occur again, while helping them to acknowledge their unacceptable actions. Two methods used to help separate intentions from actions are:

1. Normalizing Family Struggles

Normalizing is a form of empathy (understanding) that acknowledges the family's problems is part of the struggle of negotiating difficult life cycle stages, as well as strengths and efforts in coping with the problems. It also helps families learn that many others are in the same situation. It does not downplay or dismiss the problem. It also does not condone or endorse the harmful behavior.

For example, can you remember failing a test in college to only find out the majority of the class failed the test too? It does not remove the failing grade, but deep down it does make you feel a little better that others are in the same situation. Sometimes knowing others failed too provides confirmation that the test was difficult.

It is not unusual for families to start off defensively in their relationship with the case manager. Sometimes a simple introduction can evoke a defensive response from the family. Normalizing can enable an assessment to be more complete by minimizing the possibility of the family or individual becoming defensive and refusing to engage with the case manager. When a partnership is not established, information is not being shared openly, therefore obstructing the gathering information process (assessment). Normalizing a family's struggles can reduce the risk of defensive behavior by the family by attributing the family's problems to struggles associated with difficult life cycle stages.

Problem	Normalizing Language
Father who locked his teenage daughter in the basement to prevent her from leaving the house during the night while he sleeps.	“Teenagers today sometimes fail to understand the dangerous out in the world and the struggles to keep them away from harm. I found it so difficult when dealing with my teenage daughter, particularly if I knew she was hanging with the wrong crowd. You must feel horrible, how did the evening start?”
A mother who has neglected her children due to drug use (previous sex abuse victim by the biological father).	”Single mothers say all the time how hard it is raising children alone; I can only imagine how difficult it is to focus on the constant demands of raising two children while simultaneously trying to overcome the abuse you sustained as a child. It must be so hard. Tell me when you noticed things were more than you could handle?”
A mother who (education) neglects her children.	“As a parent, I found mornings extremely stressful. It took all I had to get the children up and out of the house to catch the school bus on time. I am sure it is especially difficult for you when your child makes up illnesses to avoid going to school and you do not have a car to transport him to school if he misses the bus. Tell me when this began.”
Foster mother spans a child in foster care in her home. (policy violation assessment)	“A lot of foster parents have expressed how challenging it is to integrate a child into their home when the child may have come from a home with different rules or values. How did this all get started?”
Relative placement resource who spanked a child in foster care placed in their home who is diagnosed ADHD.	“Relatives who agree to be a placement resource for the child often experience problems adhering to the no spanking guidelines required by DFCS, especially when they have cared for the child before the child went into foster care and was able to use physical discipline with the child. Tell what behaviors you were trying to deter?”
Adolescent in foster care who is experiencing problems adjusting to the school environment after being brought into foster care.	“I understand you are trying to focus on school, but it is hard to focus after being removed from your family and placed into foster care. Teenagers have told me how difficult it is returning to school after being brought into foster care and everyone at school is aware of the situation. Tell me about that.”
Adolescent in foster care who is having a problem establishing his career objectives for the creation of the WTLP.	“Teenagers often have trouble pinpointing their career path, it seems so far off and not like a big deal at this age. Let’s talk about it, what things are you good at?”
Adoptive parents who are experiencing doubts about adopting a child.	“This is not uncommon, several adoptive parents have expressed their apprehension to adopting a child following the adoptive placement, you are not alone, and adding a member to your family is a difficult process. Tell me about your concerns.”
A non-custodial parent who has a limited bond with the child wants to be a relative placement. (Relative care assessment)	“Parents who do not live with their child and only see the child sporadically, say it is very challenging to establish and maintain a bond with the child, particularly when the relationship with the caregiver who is caring for the child each day is strained. Tell me about that.”
A non-custodial parent who has a limited interaction with the child wants to be a relative placement. (Relative care assessment)	“I understand you were trying to get yourself financially established before engaging in your child’s life because you wanted to have something to offer your child. Parents who are not involved in their child’s life or have limited interactions with their child often say it is difficult to just show up when you have nothing tangible to offer. Tell me about this.”

2. Externalizing the Problem Pattern

Externalizing the problem allows the family or individual to detach themselves from their problem. Externalizing the problem does not mean minimizing the personal responsibility or shifting blame, rather, it allows the individual to view the problem as something that is separate from their identity as a person. In short, the person is not the problem, the problem is the problem. Language that externalizes the problem can reduce criticism, blame, and guilt. If one of the family members has an “anger” problem, externalizing the problem will free up the family to work on the problem rather than exhausting energy opposing each other or defending themselves. This opens up the opportunity for the SSCM to work with the family to address the problem.

For example, asking the individual, “How long have you struggled with the problem of controlling your temper?” “Has the anxiety problem been around for a while?” “Can you see how anxiety has limited your family from engaging in fun activities?” “If your family wasn’t plagued with the anxiety problem, what kind of activities would your family enjoy?”

Problem	Externalizing Language
Mother who beats her child (prior abuse victim)	“Maybe you would like to put an end to this cycle of violence that has been passed on to you; would you like to be one to defeat this monster and keep it from hurting future generations.”
Stepfather who slapped his teenage stepdaughter	“When you described those episodes when everybody gets into it and you end up losing it, you seemed to be saying that you hate these episodes because they keep you from being the father you really want to be to your stepdaughter.”
Mother who neglects her children due to depression	“This dark curtain that you mentioned, tell me about a time when you fought back, or slipped by, or fooled this dark curtain that descends on you.”
A mother who neglected her child due to drug use.	“When you said you vowed not to be like your mom and use drugs and not care for your children, you seemed to be saying the drug use keeps you from being the mother you really want to be to your children.”

Engagement of the Noncustodial Parent

Engagement of noncustodial parents is more than contacting them inquiring as to their interest in being involved with the child(ren). It requires trying to understand their situation and why they may feel the way they do. It is important to be aware of certain dynamics that may come into play in this process. Their behavior may be in response to previous negative experiences they have had with the custodial parent, preconceived notions about how they are perceived by others regarding the status of their parental involvement, or they may be reluctant because of their views about the child welfare system. Engagement of noncustodial parents can be facilitated by educating them on the process and exploring with them their possible role and how they can be a resource for the child(ren). The discussions with the custodial parent surrounding the involvement of the non-custodial parent need to occur during the development of the case plan. Engagement should revolve around the noncustodial parent’s presence/engagement in the child’s life, caregiving abilities, cooperative parenting, and emotional contributions to the child. A determination must be made about the non-custodial parent involvement with the child and their ability to contribute the outcomes of the case plan prior to establishing contact standards for the non-custodial parent.

Observing Parent/Guardian and Child Interaction

Direct observation of parent and child interactions: What is the quality of the parent and child bonding? Does the parent engage the child in developmentally stimulating activities? Does the parent handle the child roughly or is there an apparent comfort level in providing for the child’s needs? Does the parent identify the child’s needs and respond to them in a nurturing way? Does the child seem fearful of the parent? Parent-child interaction in the parents' home should be observed prior to reunification.

Hearing and seeing how the parent and child communicate: Is communication verbal, non-verbal, physical, positive, negative, passive, more negative than positive?

Determine if progress on the specified steps of the case plan are met: What changes in the parent's interaction with a child are observed since the previous meeting and/or the implementation of service provisions (i.e., counseling, parenting skills training)? Is the parent learning and practicing better ways of parenting? Are they utilizing their action plan to avoid, interrupt or escape situations that would usually lead to high-risk behaviors? Does the parent redirect the child when unwanted behaviors are noticed? If service provision is effective, there should be evidence of enhanced parenting skills.

These are only a few of the many insights that may be gained from direct observation of parent and child interactions. Using what is directly observed as a major component of case decision making is vital. A case decision based only on what is reported by the parent is never sufficient.

Why Make Contacts in the Home?

It is important to visit children in the home environment to assess safety and gain an understanding of the child's living conditions and provide important firsthand observations of the home environment to which a child may be returning. Home visits allow for case managers to observe the interactions between the children and parents, as well as the way the family functions together in the home. Home visits provide optimum observations of families as they reflect how they behave in their natural setting.

Announced or Unannounced Home Visits

During an FSS case, contacts with the family are generally announced in an effort to engage the family collectively.^[3] However, there may be times when the indication of a present danger situation or impending danger safety threat, occurring during the FSS intervention, requires consideration of whether to make an announced or unannounced visit. If there is a present danger situation, this requires an immediate response, regardless of where the child is located. When a present danger situation is not apparent initially, the nature of the allegations and DFCS history, as well as the consideration of whether an interview could be tainted by an adult are important considerations when determining whether to do an announced or unannounced visit. Making an unannounced visit should be associated with timeliness, immediacy, or emergency situations. Unannounced visits are not discouraged when they are appropriate, but they should be necessary and justified based upon the individual circumstances of the case and its history. Supervisory consultation and guidance are an integral part of the discussion when preparing to engage a family during CPS intervention. A family needs to know that CPS is not there to "catch them doing something", but to take action to protect a child. Therefore, there needs to be a specific, immediate, and clearly observable reason that a case manager makes an unannounced visit.

When a case manager is trying to build a partnership and consensus with a family, he/she must remember that courtesy and mutual respect are core components of building effective and sustainable solutions to the difficult tasks or situations identified by a family. When possible, a scheduled visit with a family can be an effective, convenient, and efficient process for all parties. The visit can be set to a time that is mutually convenient and include all household members. This alleviates the need to make multiple visits to complete interviews; saving time and effort for the case manager and caregiver(s) and shows an effort to be courteous and respectful of the family and their time.

Consideration for Additional Purposeful Contacts

Circumstances which may warrant additional visitation include, but are not limited to, the following:

1. Children are moved to a safety resource.
2. Children are not adjusting to being in the safety resource.
3. Children are considered vulnerable because of age or disability.
4. The safety plan is no longer sufficient.
5. Progress is not being made on the safety plan or the family is in crisis.
6. There are possible present danger situations or impending danger safety threats identified through contact with formal/informal providers or collaterals.
7. Child Protective Services history with the family.

Purposeful Contacts When the Caregiver or Child Resides in Another County

County A may request County B to conduct a purposeful visit with a caregiver or child who is residing or temporarily living in County B if County A cannot conduct the visit. Both counties should have a discussion prior to the visit to address case plan goals, the purpose of the visit and frequency of the visits. The assigned SSCM in County B should be added as a secondary SSCM in Georgia SHINES so that they may document the visit.

Safe Sleeping Recommendations for Infants up to One Year of Age

Caregivers of infants (birth to 12 months old) must be informed of conditions that constitute a safe sleeping environment and that reduce the risk of Sudden Infant Death Syndrome (SIDS)/Sudden Unexpected Infant Death (SUID), also known as “crib death”. At minimum, caregivers should be advised of the three primary safe sleep recommendations of the American Academy of Pediatrics (AAP) commonly referred to as the ‘ABCs’ of safe sleep:

Alone – The baby’s sleep area should be close to, but separate from, where caregivers and others sleep. The sleeping area should be free of soft objects, toys, and loose bedding.

Back – Infants should always be placed on their back to sleep for naps and at night.

Crib – Place infants on a firm sleep surface, such as on a safety-approved crib mattress, covered by a fitted sheet.

Further additional information and guidance regarding safe sleeping and SIDS/SUIDS see Infant Safe to Sleep Guidelines and Protocol in Forms and Tools.

Motor Vehicle Safety Recommendations

Children are sensitive to heat as their body temperature can heat up three to five times faster than an adult’s. Children will die if their body temperature exceeds 107 degrees. Even at a temperature of 60 degrees outdoors, the temperature inside a car can exceed 110 degrees. The U.S. Department of Transportation (DOT) National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA) recommends the following precautions to take in order to avoid child heatstroke.

1. Never leave a child unattended in a vehicle – even if the windows are partially open or the engine is running, and the air conditioning is on;
2. Make a habit of looking in the vehicle – front and back – before locking the door and walking away;
3. Ask the childcare provider to call if the child does not show up for care as expected;
4. Do things that serve as a reminder that a child is in the vehicle, such as placing a phone, purse, or briefcase in the back seat to ensure no child is accidentally left in the vehicle or writing a note or using a stuffed animal placed in the driver’s view to indicate a child is in the car seat;
5. Always lock your vehicle when not in use and store keys out of a child’s reach, so children cannot enter unattended. Teach children that a vehicle is not a play area;
6. A child in distress due to heat should be removed from the vehicle as quickly as possible and rapidly cooled.

Documenting Purposeful Contacts

All visits must be documented on the Contact Detail page in Georgia SHINES within 72 hours of the contact. A narrative must be completed for each Contact Detail. At a minimum, the documentation entry must include:

Practice Guidance

While the family's participation in the Family Support Services Assessment is not voluntary; participation in the service provision component (FSS Agreement Strategy) is voluntary. Therefore, it is imperative that DFCS make every effort to engage the family in a way that builds a constructive relationship, in which consensus can be reached and a partnership formed. When DFCS and the family agree, solutions that are suited to the family or individual can be created that facilitate real and lasting change that builds stronger families.

The Agreement Strategy should address tasks or situations identified by the family in their everyday life that are challenging to manage, and which compromise family function and/or well-being, but are not related to present or impending danger. Services are utilized to enhance a caregiver's protective capacities and improve family functioning. When services are provided during the FSS assessment a review of the sufficiency of services should be completed prior to case closure.

When a family does make a positive change, it is important that DFCS recognize and celebrate this change with the family. This celebration provides an anchor for the family around their progress and encourages them to continue towards building and sustaining a stronger family unit.

Public Law (PL) 103-66 Family Preservation and Support Services Act of 1993

Discussion

Family Preservation Services (FPS) is described by the Family Preservation and Support Services Act of 1993 (PL 103-66) as a continuum of family-focused services for at-risk children and families. Services include activities designed to assist families in crisis, often where a child is at risk of being placed in out-of-home care because of abuse and/or neglect. Support services include preventive activities, typically provided by community-based organizations designed to improve the nurturing of children and to strengthen and enhance the stability of families.

The Georgia Division of Family and Children Services Practice Model as informed by Solution Based Casework (SBC) is utilized in the provision of Family Preservation Services. SBC incorporates three major theory groups to form an integrated practice model. These include Family Life Cycle Theory, Cognitive Behavior Therapy, and Solution Focused Interviewing. SBC organizes child welfare casework into four major milestones:

1. Milestone 1: Building a Consensus
 - Having honest conversation about family safety, parental capacity, and child vulnerability in a safe way that builds toward family engagement in change.
2. Milestone 2: Getting Organized on Outcomes.
 - Moving from talking about what needs to change to formalizing specific and measurable outcomes that the family (and their providers) will address.
3. Milestone 3: Specific Action Plans.
 - Working with families and providers to co-develop specific Action Plans to help them realize their outcomes amidst the challenges of their everyday lives.
4. Milestone 4: Documenting and Celebrating Success.
 - Working with families and providers to problem-solve challenges and notice their successes in ensuring family safety and individual self-management.

Through the use of Georgia’s practice model, a solution focused, family-centered, integrated case management approach, DFCS partners with families and the community to develop a plan to strengthen caregiver protective capacities and to mitigate or alleviate factors that place children in unsafe environments. Family Preservation Services (FPS) includes:

1. Families assessed during a Child Protective Services (CPS) investigation and it has been determined that present danger situations and impending danger safety threats have been controlled by the implementation of an in-home or out-of-home safety plan, however continued intervention is needed to resolve the ongoing child safety concerns. This include families with children under the age of 18 who are not emancipated and who have a case disposition of “substantiated” or “unsubstantiated-open.”
2. Families with children/youth that have been identified as Children in Need of Services (CHINS) based on the needs and services identified during the investigation, or based on court ordered services.
3. Families with court-ordered services.

Family Preservation Services are designed to be short-term, family-focused, community-based services that are implemented to help families achieve behavioral change and learn to manage everyday life situations, or problems that interfere with the caregiver(s)'s ability to provide proper care and protect his/her children. It is the philosophy of DFCS that difficult situations in the life of the family that threaten child safety must be resolved to protect children. Family Preservation Services should assist families in managing these situations with behavioral specific outcomes at the family level and individual level. The early identification of high risk behaviors, developmental stages and tasks of the family, and provision of timely and appropriate services is critical to achieving successful outcomes for families. Further, recognizing and celebrating success with the family facilitates sustained change.

Family Preservation Services include:

1. Establishing a partnership between the family, case managers and supervisors who manage the case during the family’s involvement with DFCS;
2. Maintaining a consensus with the family around family issues and needs;
3. Completion of purposeful visits that help to assess and address safety threats and service needs;
4. Whenever possible, allowing the family to take the lead in identifying potential solutions to the identified safety and high risk behaviors;
5. Safety planning and management;
6. Initial and ongoing family engagement in identifying present and impending danger situations, strengths and needs;
7. Developing case plan goals that include family level outcomes and individual level outcomes in partnership with the family that:
 - a. Are tied to everyday life events present within the family structure;
 - b. Are measurable through case evaluations throughout the family preservation stage;
 - c. Foster accountability amongst the family, case manager and service providers;
 - d. Specifically target high risk behaviors that may lead to present danger situations or impending danger situations.

ing danger safety threats;

- e. Plan for relapse prevention at every stage of family preservation services;
- 8. Facilitating and monitoring formal and/or informal supports and services;
- 9. Assessing the family’s ongoing progress regarding specific action plans and tasks; and
- 10. Documenting and celebrating success throughout the case with the family.

Case Closure in Family Preservation Services is based on:

- 1. Enhanced caregiver protective capacities that control impending danger threats and ensure safety;
- 2. Documented case plan evaluation of outcomes and action plan progress or barriers during the FPS case;
- 3. Achievement of behavioral changes that significantly illustrates the family’s ability to manage everyday life situations and mitigate conditions for repeat maltreatment.
- 4. Completion of Family Functioning Assessment in conjunction with impending danger assessment.
- 5. External supports that reduce or control high risk behaviors and ensure safety; or
- 6. Placement of children in out-of-home care (foster care).

Practice Guidance

Identifying the Need for Family Preservation Services

FPS are implemented to help families achieve behavioral changes and learn to manage everyday life situations. Partnership decision making should be used to determine if family circumstances warrant FPS, if not court ordered. The SSCM and supervisor should reach a consensus that a present danger situation or impending danger safety threat exists, and the child(ren) can safely remain in the legal custody of the parent/caregiver with an in-home or out-of-home safety plan. Routinely, this decision is made during a supervisor staffing. When consensus cannot be achieved it is possible to identify the need for FPS solely based on the supervisor's decision.

In order to facilitate successful and sustainable positive changes within a family, a joint effort is required between the SSCM and the caregiver(s). To begin, the SSCM and the family must reach an agreement on what constitutes a safe environment for the child(ren) and what specific caregiver protective capacities must be enhanced to attain and maintain child safety. This agreement, or consensus building, is initiated during the assessment stage and continues throughout DFCS involvement with the family.

The introductory phase with a family is the cornerstone of developing the relationship between the SSCM and the caregiver. It is during this contact that the SSCM discusses his/her role, responsibilities, and expectations for involvement with the family. The SSCM should work diligently to build a partnership with the family and continue to build on that partnership throughout the life of the case. It is crucial for the SSCM to begin where the caregiver is in relation to his/her experiences with CPS intervention up to this point. The caregiver's perception and opinions concerning his/her responsibility to protect the child(ren) are relevant and must be considered when evaluating protective capacities at this stage of involvement.

As a part of introducing FPS to the family and when beginning to discuss the specific needs and consensus that was developed during the Investigative process, the SSCM should focus on:

1. Engaging the caregiver(s) in a collaborative partnership for change;
2. Assisting the caregivers in identifying their own needs in relationship to their capacity to protect the child(ren);

3. Assisting the caregiver(s) in identifying the needs of the child(ren) related to safety, permanency, and well-being and in committing to meet those identified needs;
4. Helping the caregiver(s) to become self-aware of negative conditions or diminished caregiver protective capacities that need to be mitigated for the children to be safe; and
5. Assisting in the facilitation and development of change strategies or interventions required to meet identified needs (case plan goals).

 - c. Other household members.

Contacts may be required with others who live outside of the home based on case circumstances and the individualized contact standards established with the family. For example, when custody has been transferred to a third party and DFCS is working a case plan with the parent/legal custodian, it may be necessary to require purposeful contacts with the child and/or the third party custodian to assess progress towards conditions of return.

6. Adhere to Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act and confidentiality provisions outlined in policies 2.5 Information Management: Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act \(HIPAA\) and 2.6 Information Management: Confidentiality/Safeguarding Information.
7. Conduct private face-to-face purposeful contacts at a minimum every 14 calendar days when there is an out-of-home arrangement in which the child is cared for outside his/her home to evaluate conditions of return, caregiver capacity and family functioning to assess child safety, with the:
 - a. Parent(s), guardian(s) or legal custodian(s)
 - b. Voluntary kinship caregiver(s)
 - c. Child(ren)
8. Engage by phone weekly each parent/guardian/legal custodian, kinship caregiver, and child while the child remains in the voluntary kinship or caregiver's home.

While phone contact is not considered a purposeful contact, it is important to have a frequent contact with all involved parties when the child is out of the home.

9. Observe all children for physical signs of maltreatment. If there is cause to believe any child may have been harmed, observe areas of the child's body that may be covered by clothing. Such observation shall occur in the least invasive manner possible, and every effort should be made to ensure children are not fully unclothed during the observation.

Physical signs of maltreatment may include suspicious injuries, marks, cuts, bruises, areas of swelling, protruding limbs, damaged skin, malnourishment, lethargy, severe tooth decay, matted hair, pungent body odor, etc.

10. Observe interactions of parent and child interaction and interaction of all household members to assess family functioning around everyday life tasks including the caregiver's ability to meet the needs of the child(ren) under his/her care.

This can be accomplished by convening all family members together prior to or following the private face-to-face contacts. However, before convening the family together, consider circumstances that may create a safety concern, such as domestic violence/intimate partner violence (DV/IPV), etc.

11. Assess the physical home environment to confirm that it is safe and appropriate to meet the needs of each child, including examination of every room in the home and sleep arrangements for all household members.
12. Assess and discuss infant safe sleep practices with any caregiver who has an infant (birth to 12 months of age) in the home and address any unsafe sleeping situations prior to leaving the home.
13. Discuss motor vehicle safety recommendations including hot car safety with caregivers. (See Practice Guidance: Motor Vehicle 'Hot Car' Safety Recommendations).
14. Request law enforcement assistance:
 - a. To interview or observe a child when the caregiver denies access and child safety cannot be ensured;
 - b. When performing a removal of the child from the home; or
 - c. When out of control situations exist.
15. Immediately report any new known or suspected instances of child abuse/neglect to the CPS Intake Communications Center (CICC) as outlined in policy 3.24 Intake: Mandated Reporters.
16. Immediately report (no later than 24 hours) to law enforcement any child or youth who the agency identifies as being a known or suspected victim of sex trafficking.
17. Conduct efforts to locate a family when they cannot be located or has moved to an unknown location in accordance with policy 19.21 Case Management: Unable to Locate.
18. Document purposeful contacts in Georgia SHINES within 72 hours of the occurrence including uploading any pictures to External Documentation.

Procedures

Preparation

The SSCM will:

1. Review:
 - a. Case plan and documentation from previous contacts to understand the significant factors affecting child's safety, permanency and well-being, caregiver protective capacities, and a family's ability to ensure the safety of their children moving forward;
 - b. Action plans for progress and effectiveness;

- c. Safety plan for adherence and sufficiency;
 - d. Supervisor staffing notes to ensure that any needed follow up is addressed during the purposeful contact; and
 - e. Caregiver's or child(ren)'s recently completed assessments/evaluations for insight into family functioning and recommendations.
2. Develop a plan for the purposeful contact:
- a. Determine whether the contact should be announced or unannounced based on the extent and circumstances of the child abuse or neglect and the safety plan in place;
 - b. Determine strategies for engaging the family members separately as well as together. Discuss information gathering approaches, including persons to be engaged, order, location and when purposeful contact will occur. Consider factors such as DV/IPV, child safety, etc., when determining how or whether to convene the family together;
 - c. Prepare a list of questions to ensure all issues/concerns are addressed;
 - d. Determine the need for interpretation services for non-English speaking individuals or auxiliary aids for sensory impaired individuals. If required, Limited English Proficiency and Sensory Impaired Customer Services (LEP/SI) is used to assist DFCS in providing meaningful language access to customers. Contact LEP/SI via lepsi@dhs.ga.gov. The use of family members as interpreters is not appropriate; and
 - e. Identify potential child safety and family service needs and safety interventions.
3. If the purposeful contact will occur in a correctional facility, become familiar with the facility's procedures for contact and visitation:
- a. Who must initiate the process and how?
 - b. Are liaisons provided by the correctional facility to work with child welfare professionals?
 - c. How far in advance does the visit need to be scheduled?
 - d. What are the visiting hours of the facility?
 - e. Does the facility have a dress code when visiting?
 - f. What types of contact are allowed (e.g., physical touch, telephone, face-to-face)?
4. Gather forms and other material for the purposeful contact, including but not limited to:
- a. Copy of the current case plan and action plan
 - b. Authorization for Release of Information
 - c. Brochures:
 - i. Safe Sleep for Your Baby
 - ii. Helping Keep Children Safe
 - d. Consent to Receive Targeted Case Management Services (see policy 19.18 Case Management: Targeted Case Management)
 - e. Suggestions for Parents/Tips Sheet
 - f. Notice of Privacy Practices

Child/Youth

The SSCM will:

1. Engage the child in a private face-to-face conversation using age and developmentally appropriate language and questions to assess and discuss:
 - a. Child safety
 - b. Any needs, concerns, or fears of the child
 - c. Progress toward action plan outcomes (family and individual level outcomes):
 - i. What is working better in their family?
 - ii. What is not working or needs to be adjusted?
 - d. Services provided to the family as a part of their case plan:
 - i. Who is the provider?
 - ii. How often do they participate in services?
 - iii. What changes are they seeing from the services?
 - iv. Are they helpful?

 - e. Physical, education and mental health needs and any services the child is receiving
 - f. Extracurricular activities or interest of the child
 - g. Illnesses the child may have experienced that month, current medications, and any recent hospital visits
2. Observe all children for physical signs of maltreatment. If there is cause to believe that a child has been harmed:
 - a. In the least invasive manner possible, observe areas of the body that may be clothed.
 - i. Explain to the caregiver and child the reason for observing areas of the body that may be covered by clothing.
 - ii. Arrange for another adult to be present (e.g., caregiver, non-offending parent or legal guardian, relative, foster parent, school nurse, daycare staff, etc.).
 - iii. If the child is four years old and under, ask the caregiver to adjust one area at a time (e.g., raising a shirt sleeve, pant leg, raise the shirt to view their back, etc.), ask them to replace the clothing before proceeding to the next area of the body. Take pictures of any injuries noted.
 - iv. If the child is older than four and is capable, ask the child to adjust their own clothing as outlined above.
 -  If a full examination is needed, a medical provider should be used.
 - b. If observation of the child uncovers injuries or other signs of maltreatment:
 - i. Determine whether there are any additional injuries that are not immediately apparent. Is there bruising or is the area sensitive to the touch? Does the child complain of discomfort or pain?

- ii. Gather information around the circumstances surrounding the injury and the parent's knowledge and response to the injury asking who, what, when, where, and how. What was used to cause the injury (ex: hand, fist, belt, bat, extension cord)? Describe the object that was used to cause the injury. Where did the incident that resulted in the injury occur (ex: bedroom, bathroom, grandma's kitchen)?
- iii. Evaluate and determine whether injuries to the child or condition of the child requires an immediate medical or psychological evaluation or medical treatment;
- iv. Whenever there is a question of whether a child needs to be examined by a medical professional have the caregiver seek a medical consultation (e.g., 24-hour nurse helpline, poison control center). If medical treatment is recommended from the consult, insist the caregiver take the child to be examined by a medical professional within a specific time-frame.
- v. Document any observed injuries or physical signs of maltreatment by taking quality pictures and/or a detailed written description.

Pictures can also be used to document a lack of maltreatment, injury, or condition.

- vi. Consult with the Social Services Supervisor regarding making a report to the CPS Intake Communications Center (CICC) as outlined in policy 3.24 Intake: Mandated Reporters.
3. Make a safety determination (safe or unsafe) prior to concluding each purposeful contact with the caregiver(s), child, or alleged maltreater. If it is determined that the child is unsafe, in consultation with the Social Services Supervisor (SSS), take immediate and appropriate action to control the safety threats to ensure child safety by:
- a. Developing and implementing with the caregiver an in-home or out-of-home safety plan; and/or
 - b. Initiating court/legal intervention.

3. Assess the physical home environment to determine if it is safe and appropriate to meet the needs of each child:
- a. Examine every room in the home for present or potential environmental concerns or hazards. Take appropriate action to remedy environmental concerns or hazards (i.e., loose wires or cords, alcohol or beer bottles, any drug paraphernalia, broken glass or windows, medications or toxic cleaning items that are in reach of small children) prior to leaving the home;
 - b. Never leave a child in a home without addressing present or potential environmental concerns or hazards;
 - c. Review the sleeping arrangements for all household members;
 - d. When an infant (birth to 12 months of age) is in the home, assess and discuss safe sleep practices with the parent(s)/caregiver(s). If it is determined that the child is unsafe, in consultation with the Social Services Supervisor (SSS), the Social Services Cases Manager (SSCM) shall take immediate and appropriate action to control the safety threats to ensure child safety by:
 - a. Developing and Implementing with the caregiver in-home or out-of-home safety plan (see policy 19.12 Case Management: Safety Plan & Management); and/or
 - b. Initiating court/legal intervention.

Supervisor's Role

The Social Services Supervisor (SSS) will:

1. Ensure purposeful contacts are established and occurring according to policy or as frequent as necessary to assess progress toward case plan outcomes to ensure safety and determine family functioning.
2. Ensure contact standards are set to a minimum of every 14 calendar days when there is an arrangement for the child to be cared for outside his/her home (voluntary kinship).
3. Use the following reports to track purposeful contacts:
 - a. Case Worker Visitation Compliance Report (Lenses);
 - b. Cases without Case Manager Parent Visit List Report (Georgia SHINES); and
 - c. Log of Contacts (Georgia SHINES)
4. Assist the SSCM in preparing an agenda to ensure purposeful contacts are focused on the everyday life situations the family is having difficulty managing and safety, permanency, and well-being.
5. Ensure he/she is accessible to the SSCM to provide guidance and consult with the SSCM in "real time" to discuss:
 - a. Information gathered concerning areas of family functioning;
 - b. Present danger situations that exist or indications of impending danger safety threats;
 - c. Making a safety determination (safe or unsafe);

6. Discuss the SSCM's ongoing engagement with the family and ability to develop a partnership to ensure purposeful contacts are able to move the family toward achieving case plan outcomes and gathering the necessary information to assess child safety.
7. Ensure purposeful contacts are documented timely in Georgia SHINES within 72 hours of the occurrence, including pictures and observations.
8. Review purposeful contacts documented in Georgia SHINES to determine the sufficiency of the purposeful contacts. Consider the following:

- a. Does the documentation meet guidelines as outlined in Practice Guidance: Documenting Purposeful Contacts?
- b. Does the documentation support that the purposeful contact(s) are sufficient to help the family make progress toward achieving case plan outcomes?
- c. Is the information gathered sufficient to support the safety decision?
- d. Was the family engaged in a manner that is conducive to building a partnership?
- e. Was the discussion with the family focused on the everyday life tasks the family is struggling with?
- f. Are inconsistencies documented that need to be resolved?
- g. Identification of any needed linkage of services for the family.

Practice Guidance

All contacts made with parents and their children provide an opportunity to build a trusting and supportive partnership. Contacts should be well planned and have a clear purpose. In order to thoroughly assess a child's safety, permanency, and well-being, it is important to assess the functioning of the family that is caring for the child. Some key principles to consider when conducting purposeful contacts include:

1. Recognizing the family providing care as a system
Each member of the family, including the child, has a role and responsibilities within the family. If any one person is unable to fulfill their responsibilities, then the whole family is impacted.
2. Engagement and partnership building
Purposeful contacts are not only about engaging and building a relationship with the caregiver, but also about engaging and building a relationship with the entire family including absent parents.
3. Involvement of families and youth
Because each member of a family has a role and responsibilities, it is essential to obtain input from all family members when assessing family functioning. When family members are engaged, this will re-affirm their significance in ensuring the success of the family system.
4. Recognizing all members are individuals
Each family member will adjust differently to challenges to everyday life tasks. It is important to recognize the individuality of each family member and the impact DFCS involvement has on their lives.
5. Cultural awareness
Each family has their own culture. Culture impacts family rituals and traditions. As family functioning is assessed, being respectful of all cultures involved and how they impact the functioning of the family is important for engaging families and developing partnerships.
6. Empathy, authenticity, and transparency
During purposeful contact with family, be mindful of empathy, authenticity, and transparency. When engaging families, it is important to identify their thoughts and feelings even if we may not always agree. Be genuine and open in communicating with all family members and recognize your accountability regarding the success or failure of the family. Purposeful contacts are also a time for the family to hold us accountable for what we may or may not be doing on behalf of the family who has joined in partnership with us.

7. Remaining focused on safety, permanency, and well-being throughout the process.

Observing Children for Physical Signs of Maltreatment

Observing children for physical signs of maltreatment is an important part of ensuring child safety. To determine if there is cause to believe a child has been physically harmed, consider the following:

1. Non-verbal cues from the child or the caregiver that raise concern.
2. The age and special needs of the child. Young children and those with certain special needs are especially vulnerable and may not be able to verbalize when they are being abused or neglected. Therefore, the SSCM cannot depend on the child to say how they are feeling and must be keenly aware of non-verbal cues. For instance, if the child is wincing or drawing back slightly, it may be an indication of pain.
3. Statements made by the child, other children/household members/collaterals, etc. that indicate him/her may have been subjected to physical harm or neglect, etc.
4. Physical indicators of maltreatment such as suspicious injuries, marks, cuts, bruises, areas of swelling, protruding limbs, damaged skin, malnourishment, unexplained weight loss, lethargy, severe tooth decay, matted hair, pungent body odor, etc.
5. The child resides with the caregiver or other individual that harmed the child or another child.
6. The child indicates that physical discipline is being used; or that inappropriate methods of discipline is utilized by the caregiver or others in the home.

The SSCM may need to view areas of a child's body that are covered by clothing to observe for signs of maltreatment and determine if the child needs medical treatment. This may require that the child (or caregiver for younger children) adjust their clothing. This can be embarrassing and anxiety provoking for the child. SSCMs must be sensitive to the child's level of comfort and make every effort to reduce their discomfort. This can be accomplished by having an adult present that the child knows and trusts, and by asking the child or the caregiver (for children four years and under or those with special needs) to adjust one area of a child's clothing at a time. Asking the child or the caregiver to raise a child's pant leg or shirt sleeve one at a time, is less invasive, while allowing the SSCM to observe for signs of maltreatment. The child should never be fully unclothed. When possible, arrange for a staff person of the same sex as the child to conduct the observation.

Assessing Injuries

Some characteristics of injuries are considered red flags and warrant further scrutiny, these include but are not limited to:

1. Injuries on children who are not mobile, especially infants.
2. Injuries on protected surfaces of the body, such as the back and buttocks, ears, inside the mouth, the neck, arms or legs, and underarms.
3. Multiple injuries in various stages of healing (i.e., skin injuries, lesions of varying ages, bruises).
4. Patterned trauma, even if the object used to commit the abuse cannot be determined.

5. Injuries that routine, age-appropriate supervision of the child should have prevented.
6. Significant injury with either no explanation or an explanation that is not plausible.

The SSCM may also need to observe the scene of the injury, to ascertain whether the caregiver and/or child's statement of what happened is plausible.

1. Ask the caregiver and/or child to show him/her exactly what happened, and where.
2. Note anything about the physical environment that refutes the statement(s) provided. For example, if the caregiver claims that the child fell out of bed and hit their head on the floor, causing a severe bruise, the SSCM should look at the bed, the floor, and height from the bed to the floor. Is the floor carpeted? Is it plausible that the injury occurred on the carpeted floor?
3. Obtain a detailed, precise timeline of events surrounding the incident or track the sequence of events. The more detailed the history, the more likely the assessment of the injury will be accurate. This can be helpful when communicating with medical staff to determine if the injury could have been caused in the manner described by the caregiver and/or child.

Deliberate Information Gathering (DIG)

Seek to understand the caregiver, his/her point of view, story, and experience. That means to dig deeper for the information needed in order to understand the person, the situation and how these help explain both threats to child safety and caregiver protective capacities. The DIG^[1] idea is to be very deliberate in gathering information and seeking to understand while behaving very naturally. The following interpersonal techniques can be used while gathering information:

1. Attending Behavior

Attending behavior refers to focusing attention on the caregiver rather than the SSCM's agenda or line of questioning. Attending behavior involves "matching" a caregiver's nonverbal behavior by consciously manipulating and controlling the SSCM's own nonverbal skills and responses. Primary attending behaviors include eye contact, facial expressions, body language, posturing and gesturing, following, reflecting and vocal qualities-tone and pace.

2. Open Questions

Open questions help to remove the SSCM from the responsibility of "carrying" the interview by establishing a conversational quality to the interaction. Open questions cannot be answered "yes" or "no" or in just a few words. Open questions require the caregiver to elaborate with a wider range of responses. Open questions are the "what" and "how" type questions.

3. Closed Questions

Closed questions should be used to restrict or narrow the focus of a caregiver's response. Closed questions should be used purposefully when precise detail and greater clarity is needed from the caregiver. As an exception, closed questions may be used more frequently when there are time constraints or when the SSCM is interviewing a caregiver who is very concrete or is not very verbal.

4. Paraphrasing

The primary intent of paraphrasing is to facilitate the clarification of statements, issues, and concerns. Paraphrasing may involve the SSCM selecting and using a caregiver's own keywords. Paraphrasing involves formulating the essential message that the caregiver is conveying and then stating that message back to the caregiver in the SSCM's own words. When paraphrasing, check for accuracy of the statement by concluding the paraphrase with a simple question such as, “Is that correct?” or “Does that sound accurate?”

5. Encouraging

This technique serves to keep people talking about a particular topic, issue, or concern. Encouraging may be as simple as using a slight verbal prompt, such as “uh-huh”, “I see”, “go on”, or “then what?”

6. Conversational Looping

Conversational looping is a skill for gathering information that first involves the SSCM identifying some key general topic or area for discussion with a caregiver (e.g., approach to parenting, problem-solving, dealing with stress, etc.). Once a topic has been identified, begin the conversation with a broad non-threatening open question. As the conversation progresses related to the identified topic, continue with a line of questioning (primarily open-ended) based on previous caregiver responses that progressively moves the discussion toward a more specific and intimate inquiry. A key to effective conversational looping is the ability of the interviewer to maintain a caregiver’s focus on a particular topic, which will then enable the interviewer to gather more detailed information from the caregiver about the issue, concern, or topic inquiry.

Example: Parenting Approach

“So, how would you describe yourself as a parent?”

“Where do you learn parenting skills from?”

“What brings you the most satisfaction as a parent?”

“How does what you’re saying relate to your feelings about being a single parent?”

The content areas that are explored through conversational looping or for any technique are the six family functioning areas.

7. Reflective Listening Statements

Reflective listening statements involve the SSCM’s attempts to interpret what a caregiver believes, thinks and/or feels, and then state the SSCM’s interpretation back to the caregiver. The interpretation of what the caregiver is communicating is based on both verbal responses and nonverbal cues from the caregiver. A statement is used rather than a question because the statement is less likely to produce caregiver resistance, and, further, a statement triggers the caregiver to re-examine the accuracy of his/her perceptions and thoughts.

Example:

Caregiver: “I may have a couple of beers every once in a while, with my friends, but I don’t have a drinking problem.”

SSCM: “For you, drinking is no big deal...it’s just something you do socially with your friends?”

Separating Intentions from Actions

An individual can experience differing even conflicting feelings about any given situation. It is not uncommon to have two thoughts on the same subject “I would like to..., but I am scared”. Individuals who may have caused harm to a child also experiences these conflicting feelings. “He deserved to be punished for not following the rules..., but I didn’t mean to hurt him. “He just would not stop crying, I was exhausted and wanted to sleep..., but I didn’t mean to shake him that hard.”

Separating intentions from actions means joining in partnership with the part of the person’s thoughts (intentions) related to not wanting this event to occur again, while helping them to acknowledge their unacceptable actions. Two methods used to help separate intentions from actions are:

1. Normalizing Family Struggles

Normalizing is a form of empathy (understanding) that acknowledges the family’s problems is part of the struggle of negotiating difficult life cycle stages, as well as strengths and efforts in coping with the problems. It also helps families learn that many others are in the same situation. It does not downplay or dismiss the problem. It also does not condone or endorse the harmful behavior.

For example, can you remember failing a test in college to only find out the majority of the class failed the test too? It does not remove the failing grade, but deep down it does make you feel a little better that others are in the same situation. Sometimes knowing others failed too provides confirmation that the test was difficult.

It is not unusual for families to start off defensively in their relationship with the case manager. Sometimes a simple introduction can evoke a defensive response from the family. Normalizing can enable an assessment to be more complete by minimizing the possibility of the family or individual becoming defensive and refusing to engage with the case manager. When a partnership is not established, information is not being shared openly, therefore obstructing the gathering information process (assessment). Normalizing a family’s struggles can reduce the risk of defensive behavior by the family by attributing the family’s problems to struggles associated with difficult life cycle stages.

Problem	Normalizing Language
Father who locked his teenage daughter in the basement to prevent her from leaving the house during the night while he sleeps.	“Teenagers today sometimes fail to understand the dangerous out in the world and the struggles to keep them away from harm. I found it so difficult when dealing with my teenage daughter, particularly if I knew she was hanging with the wrong crowd. You must feel horrible, how did the evening start?”
A mother who has neglected her children due to drug use (previous sex abuse victim by the biological father).	”Single mothers say all the time how hard it is raising children alone; I can only imagine how difficult it is to focus on the constant demands of raising two children while simultaneously trying to overcome the abuse you sustained as a child. It must be so hard. Tell me when you noticed things were more than you could handle?”
A mother who (education) neglects her children.	“As a parent, I found mornings extremely stressful. It took all I had to get the children up and out of the house to catch the school bus on time. I am sure it is especially difficult for you when your child makes up illnesses to avoid going to school and you do not have a car to transport him to school if he misses the bus. Tell me when this began.”
Foster mother spans a child in foster care in her home. (policy violation assessment)	“A lot of foster parents have expressed how challenging it is to integrate a child into their home when the child may have come from a home with different rules or values. How did this all get started?”
Relative placement resource who spanked a child in foster care placed in their home who is diagnosed ADHD.	“Relatives who agree to be a placement resource for the child often experience problems adhering to the no spanking guidelines required by DFCS, especially when they have cared for the child before the child went into foster care and was able to use physical discipline with the child. Tell what behaviors you were trying to deter?”

Problem	Normalizing Language
Adolescent in foster care who is experiencing problems adjusting to the school environment after being brought into foster care.	“I understand you are trying to focus on school, but it is hard to focus after being removed from your family and placed into foster care. Teenagers have told me how difficult it is returning to school after being brought into foster care and everyone at school is aware of the situation. Tell me about that.”
Adolescent in foster care who is having a problem establishing his career objectives for the creation of the WTLF.	“Teenagers often have trouble pinpointing their career path, it seems so far off and not like a big deal at this age. Let’s talk about it, what things are you good at?”
Adoptive parents who are experiencing doubts about adopting a child.	“This is not uncommon, several adoptive parents have expressed their apprehension to adopting a child following the adoptive placement, you are not alone, and adding a member to your family is a difficult process. Tell me about your concerns.”
Non-custodial parent who has a limited bond with the child wants to be a foster care kinship placement.	“Parents who do not live with their child and only see the child sporadically, say it is very challenging to establish and maintain a bond with the child, particularly when the relationship with the caregiver who is caring for the child each day is strained. Tell me about that.”
Non-custodial parent who has limited interaction with the child wants to be a foster care kinship placement.	“I understand you were trying to get yourself financially established before engaging in your child’s life because you wanted to have something to offer your child. Parents who are not involved in their child’s life or have limited interactions with their child often say it is difficult to just show up when you have nothing tangible to offer. Tell me about this.”

2. Externalizing the Problem Pattern

Externalizing the problem allows the family or individual to detach themselves from their problem. Externalizing the problem does not mean minimizing the personal responsibility or shifting blame, rather, it allows the individual to view the problem as something that is separate from their identity as a person. In short, the person is not the problem, the problem is the problem. Language that externalizes the problem can reduce criticism, blame, and guilt. If one of the family members has an “anger” problem, externalizing the problem will free up the family to work on the problem rather than exhausting energy opposing each other or defending themselves. This opens up the opportunity for the SSCM to work with the family to address the problem.

For example, asking the individual, “How long have you struggled with the problem of controlling your temper?” Has the anxiety problem been around for a while?” Can you see how anxiety has limited your family from engaging in fun activities?” “If your family wasn’t plagued with the anxiety problem, what kind of activities would your family enjoy?”

Problem	Externalizing Language
Mother who beats her child (prior abuse victim)	“Maybe you would like to put an end to this cycle of violence that has been passed on to you; would you like to be one to defeat this monster and keep it from hurting future generations.”
Stepfather who slapped his teenage stepdaughter	“When you described those episodes when everybody gets into it and you end up losing it, you seemed to be saying that you hate these episodes because they keep you from being the father you really want to be to your stepdaughter.”
Mother who neglects her children due to depression	“This dark curtain that you mentioned, tell me about a time when you fought back, or slipped by, or fooled this dark curtain that descends on you.”

Problem	Externalizing Language
A mother who neglected her child due to drug use.	“When you said you vowed not to be like your mom and use drugs and not care for your children, you seemed to be saying the drug use keeps you from being the mother you really want to be to your children.”

Engagement of the Noncustodial Parent

Engagement of noncustodial parents is more than making contact with them inquiring as to their interest in having involvement with the child(ren). It requires making an effort to understand their situation and why they may feel the way they do. It is important to be aware of certain dynamics that may come into play in this process. Their behavior may be in response to previous negative experiences they have had with the custodial parent, preconceived notions about how they are perceived by others regarding the status of their parental involvement, or they may be reluctant because of their views about the child welfare system. Engagement of noncustodial parents can be facilitated by educating them on the process and exploring with them their possible role and how they can be a resource for the child(ren). The discussions with the custodial parent surrounding the involvement of the non-custodial parent need to occur during the development of the case plan. Engagement should revolve around the noncustodial parent’s presence/engagement in the child’s life, caregiving abilities, cooperative parenting, and emotional contributions to the child. A determination must be made about the non-custodial parent involvement with the child and their ability to contribute the outcomes of the case plan prior to establishing contact standards for the non-custodial parent.

How to Tell When a Family Is Functioning Well

Some characteristics identified with a well-functioning family include support, love, mutual caring, feeling secure, feeling a sense of belonging, open communication, and making each person within the family feel valued. Some questions to consider when determining whether or not a family is functioning well include:

1. Does the family have fun together despite their daily demands? What activities do they do together? What were they doing the last time they laughed together as a family? Does the family sit down to meals together?
2. Are there clear family rules that apply equally to all members? Are these rules flexible enough to adapt to a change in the family dynamics/situation?
3. Are family members’ expectations of each other realistic, mutually agreed upon, and usually met?
4. Do family members achieve their goals, and are their needs being met?
5. Do all the children in the home have the same opportunities to participate in extracurricular activities?
6. How does caregiver spend individual time with each child?
7. Is there genuine respect between the parents and children? How do they demonstrate love, trust, and concern for one another? Do they demonstrate these the same way even when disagreements occur?
8. How does the family adapt to change? Do household members get upset or unhappy with change?

Observing Interactions – Parent/Caregivers and Child

Direct observation of parent and child interactions: What is the quality of the parent and child bonding? Does the parent engage the child in developmentally stimulating activities? Does the parent handle the child roughly or is there an apparent comfort level in providing for the child's needs? Does the parent identify the child's needs and respond to them in a nurturing way? Does the child seem fearful of the parent?

Hearing and seeing how the parent and child communicate: Is communication verbal, non-verbal, physical, positive, negative, passive, more negative than positive? Determine if progress on the specified steps of the case plan are met: What changes in the parent's interaction with a child are observed since the previous meeting? Is the parent learning and practicing better ways of parenting? Are they utilizing their action plan to avoid, interrupt or escape situations that would usually lead to high risk behaviors? Does the parent redirect the child when unwanted behaviors are noticed?

These are only a few of the many insights that may be gained from direct observation of parent and child interactions. Using what is directly observed as a major component of case decision making is vital. A case decision based only on what is reported by the parent is never sufficient. This is especially true for CPS where the ultimate goal of all case plans is to change the behaviors that led to child maltreatment.

Why Make Contacts in the Home?

It is important to visit children in the home environment to assess safety and gain an understanding of the child's living conditions and provide important firsthand observations of the home environment to which a child may be returning. Home visits allow for case managers to observe the interactions between the children and parents, as well as the way the family functions together in the home. Home visits provide optimum observations of families as they reflect how they behave in their natural setting.

Announced or Unannounced Home Visits

When a case manager is trying to build a partnership and consensus with a family, he/she must remember that courtesy and mutual respect are core components of building effective and sustainable solutions to the difficult tasks or situations identified by a family. ^[2] When possible, a scheduled visit with a family can be an effective, convenient, and efficient process for all parties. The visit can be set to a time that is mutually convenient and include all household members. This alleviates the need to make multiple visits to complete interviews; saving time and effort for the case manager and caregiver(s) and shows an effort to be courteous and respectful of the family and their time. Making an unannounced visit should be associated with timeliness, immediacy, or emergency situations. Unannounced visits are not discouraged when they are appropriate, but they should be necessary and justified based upon the individual circumstances of the case.

Pictures

Pictures are useful for documenting injuries and/or the condition of the home environment; and may be used as evidence in an investigation or in court.

1. When taking pictures to document injuries, ensure the following:

- a. The caregiver and the child are informed of the need for taking the pictures.
 - b. Each photograph should have one identifier present (i.e., piece of the child's clothing), at least one photograph should include the child's face and the clothing, to assure that the evidence collected demonstrates the series of pictures of the same child.
 - c. Use measurable objects (i.e., ruler, coin, pencil) to depict the size of the injury. Photograph the object that caused the injury (whether the injury was accidental or not).
2. When taking pictures of the condition of the home related to safety hazards to the children, include all the areas that demonstrate a safety hazard, such as inside and outside the home, including the yard, when applicable.

If the safety hazard is an infant unsafe sleep situation, take a picture of the area in which the infant currently sleeps.

3. All pictures should be identified with the following information: the individuals who took the photo, the date it was taken, name and date of birth of the alleged child victim, and if applicable the address where the injury occurred or the home with the safety hazards.

Consideration for Additional Purposeful Contacts

Circumstances which may warrant additional visitation include, but are not limited to, the following:

1. Children are moved to a voluntary kinship caregiver's home;
2. Children are not adjusting to being in the voluntary kinship caregiver's home;
3. Children are considered vulnerable because of age or disability;
4. The safety plan is no longer sufficient;
5. Progress is not being made on the safety plan or the family is in crisis;
6. There are possible present danger situations or impending danger safety threats identified through contact with formal/informal providers or collaterals; and
7. Child Protective Services history with the family.

Purposeful Contacts When the Caregiver or Child Resides in Another County

County A may request County B to conduct a purposeful contact with a caregiver or child who is residing or temporarily living in County B if County A cannot conduct the visit. Both counties should have a discussion prior to the contact to address case plan goals, purpose of the contact and frequency of the visits. The assigned SSCM in County B should be added as a secondary SSCM in Georgia SHINES so that they may document the contact.

When an out-of-home safety plan results in caregivers and children living in separate counties, the county of the caregiver's residence has case management responsibility. This includes:

1. Conducting the monthly face-to-face contact(s) with the caregivers and children;
2. Encouraging caregivers to maintain ongoing visits with their children; and
3. When applicable, requesting the county of the children's temporary residence to provide services to the children, including the required monthly face-to-face contact with the children and documenting this for the county with case management responsibility (see policy 22.1 Kinship: Use of Voluntary Kinship Caregivers in Child Protective Services).

Safe Sleeping Recommendations for Infants up to One Year of Age

Caregivers of infants (birth to 12 months old) must be informed of conditions that constitute a safe sleeping environment and that reduce the risk of Sudden Infant Death Syndrome (SIDS)/Sudden Unexpected Infant Death (SUID), also known as “crib death”. At minimum, caregivers should be advised of the three primary safe sleep recommendations of the American Academy of Pediatrics (AAP) commonly referred to as the ‘ABCs’ of safe sleep:

Alone – The baby’s sleep area should be close to, but separate from, where caregivers and others sleep. The sleeping area should be free of soft objects, toys, and loose bedding.

Back – Infants should always be placed on their back to sleep for naps and at night.

Crib – Place infants on a firm sleep surface, such as on a safety-approved crib mattress, covered by a fitted sheet.

Further additional information and guidance regarding safe sleeping and SIDS/SUIDS see Infant Safe to Sleep Guidelines and Protocol in Forms and Tools.

Motor Vehicle ‘Hot Car’ Safety Recommendations

Children are sensitive to heat as their body temperature can heat up three to five times faster than an adult’s. Children will die if their body temperature exceeds 107 degrees. Even at a temperature of 60 degrees outdoors, the temperature inside a car can exceed 110 degrees. The U.S. Department of Transportation (DOT) National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA) recommends the following precautions to take in order to avoid child heatstroke.

1. Never leave a child unattended in a vehicle – even if the windows are partially open or the engine is running, and the air conditioning is on;
2. Make a habit of looking in the vehicle – front and back – before locking the door and walking away;
3. Ask the childcare provider to call if the child does not show up for care as expected;
4. Do things that serve as a reminder that a child is in the vehicle, such as placing a phone, purse, or briefcase in the back seat to ensure no child is accidentally left in the vehicle or writing a note or using a stuffed animal placed in the driver’s view to indicate a child is in the car seat;
5. Always lock your vehicle when not in use and store keys out of a child’s reach, so children cannot enter unattended. Teach children that a vehicle is not a play area;
6. A child in distress due to heat should be removed from the vehicle as quickly as possible and rapidly cooled.

Documenting Purposeful Contacts

All visits must be documented on the Contact Detail page in Georgia SHINES within 72 hours of the contact. A narrative must be completed for each Contact Detail. At a minimum, the documentation entry must include:

1. The type of contact (e.g., face-to-face, announced, unannounced, etc.).
2. The date the contact occurred.
3. Person(s) present at the visit.
4. The purpose of the visit.
5. What was discussed.
6. Where the visit occurred.
7. Whether the caregiver or child was interviewed privately. If the child was not interviewed privately document the reason(s) why this did not occur.
8. Summary of information (What happened at the visit):
 - a. Progress toward action plan outcomes
 - b. Progress toward case plan outcomes
 - c. Sequencing of the event/situation that is causing concern;
 - d. Safety, permanency, and well-being issues discussed;
 - e. Consensus developed with the caregivers;
 - f. Safety determination (safe or unsafe)
 - g. Safety plan management;
 - h. Change that was noticed and celebrated with the caregiver(s).
9. Observations of the home environment, children for injuries or signs of maltreatment and interactions of family members.
10. Any concerns or red flags identified.
11. Next steps and the plan for addressing identified issues or concerns, as well as documentation of issue resolution.

Requirements

The Division of Family and Children Services (DFCS) will:

1. Assist the family in constructing a way to think about the problem (safety concern) that promotes real change.
2. Work collaboratively with the family to identify the behaviors that need to occur or the necessary skills a family must have to predict safety more accurately (consensus) and to establish partnership with the family focused on change.
3. Use the case assessments to build the case plan.
4. Engage the following individuals or entities in the case planning process:
 - a. Family members: To improve family conditions through enhancing the caregiver's protective capacities and gaining an understanding of what they have identified as problem behaviors that interfere with their ability to provide proper care and protect their children.
 - b. Collaterals (formal and informal support system): To gather their ideas about what needs to happen for safety to be restored.
 - c. The Office of Family Independence (OFI): When financial concerns threaten safety and family stability.
 - d. The Indian tribe: To initiate participating in case planning if the child is subject to the Indian Child Welfare Act (ICWA) or a member of a Georgia tribe in accordance with policy 1.6 Administration: Indian Child Welfare Act and Transfer of Responsibility for Placement and Care to a Tribal Agency.
5. Incorporate the following into the case plans, when applicable:

Develop the initial case plan in partnership with the family during the Family Team Meeting (FTM) held within 45 calendar days of the case transfer staffing or progression of the case to the FPS stage (whichever occurs first) (see policy 19.3 Case Management: Solution-Focused Family Team Meetings).
 7. Develop quality case plans that are solution focused and have the following common characteristics:
 - a. Outcomes: Goals that are broken down into outcomes at both the family and individual level which clearly define behaviors family members will use instead of the harmful or unproductive behaviors.
 - i. Family level outcomes (FLO) describes what the family will be doing in everyday life to successfully resolve the problem or meet the child’s needs. FLOs must be behaviorally specific and directly related to known situations that threaten child safety.
 - ii. Individual level outcomes (ILO) describes the new behavior that an individual will demonstrate in order to successfully participate in the family-level outcomes. Individual-level objectives shall be directly related to the family event(s) or situations that need to improve.
 - b. Tasks: Outcomes are broken down into detailed sequential steps and are:
 - i. Obtainable.
 - ii. Cover both case management issues and everyday family behavior; and
 - iii. Have clear descriptions of who will be involved in each step, what will be done and when the task is to be done.
 8. Engage the family to develop a personalized action plan for addressing the FLOs and ILOs. The action plan must contain the everyday life tasks that will take place to change the conditions that lead to the unsafe situation; and include what will be done, who will do it, and when they will do it using the five relapse prevention skills (see policy 19.14 Case Management: Action Planning).
 9. Expect and anticipate a reoccurrence of behavior that has been identified as high-risk. Relapses or setbacks shall be assessed, and families be coached relapses and setbacks.

- 9. Document the case plan in Georgia SHINES within 72 hours of the completion of the FTM.
- 10. Obtain the signatures and provide a signed copy of the case plan to the family within five business days of the completion of the FTM.

- 16. Participate in monthly supervisor staffings to discuss progress made toward the achievement of case plan outcomes and action plan tasks.

Supervisor staffings should occur more frequently than monthly when issues arise that need to be addressed immediately and swiftly.

The Social Services Supervisor (SSS) will:

- 1. Review case documentation including DFCS history and current assessments to ensure all information is known when making decisions related to case planning.
- 2. Participate in FTMs conducted with the family to develop the case plan and address any case plan outcome achievement concerns.
- 3. Ensure contacts standards (purposeful and collateral) are established at a level to sufficiently assess progress toward case plan outcomes to ensure safety and determine family functioning (see policy 19.15 Case Management: Developing Contact Standards for Purposeful Contacts and Collateral Contacts).
- 4. Use the Georgia SHINES Family Preservation Monthly Status report to track the case plan completion.
- 5. Ensure the initial case plan is developed within 45 calendar days of the transfer staffing or the case being stage progressed to Family Preservation stage in Georgia SHINES.

6. Review case plans to ensure it addresses the identified safety threats and focuses on the everyday life tasks that are challenging for the family.
7. Approve the case plan in Georgia SHINES, following the SSCM obtaining all appropriate signatures from family members.
8. Maintain the focus on case plan outcomes by:
 - a. Steering conversations with the SSCM back to everyday life tasks that is challenging for the family; and
 - b. Assisting the SSCM in tracking the sequence of problematic behavior patterns.
 - c. Assisting the SSCM in assessing caregiver behavioral change to determine if enhancement of caregiver protective capacity and child safety has concerned.
9. Thoroughly review case documentation to evaluate the adequacy of Family Preservation Services being provided to successfully progress the family toward achievement of case plan outcomes including lasting behavioral changes.
10. Ensure case plans are updated to reflect outcome completion as often as necessary but at minimum every 90 calendar days at case evaluation (see policy 8.4 Family Preservation Services: Case Evaluation).
11. Assist the SSCM with evaluating and managing case planning relapses or setbacks.
12. Conduct monthly or more frequent supervisor staffing with the SSCM to evaluate the sufficiency of the case plan and progress toward case plan outcomes (see policy 19.6 Case Management: Supervisor Staffing).

Case Planning Involving Domestic Violence (DV)/Intimate Partner Violence (IPV) or Sexual Abuse

In cases that involve DV/IPV or sexual abuse, the SSCM will:

1. Establish the first family level outcome addressing how the family will prevent the child from being harmed again:
 - a. Physical/Emotional harm; or
 - b. Sexual assault.
2. Establish an individual level outcome for the perpetrator addressing their offending behavior.
3. If the assessment indicates the non-offending parent has failed to protect the child(ren), develop an individual level outcome for the non-offending parent that addresses overcoming his/her barriers to protecting the child(ren).
4. A second family level outcome (FLO) can be developed around managing the developmental stage of everyday life the family finds challenging.

The perpetrator cannot participate in the second family level outcome until they have demonstrated substantial progress on their ILO related to the sexual abuse/DV/IPV.

Managing Case Planning Relapses/Setbacks

Following notification or observation of the relapse/setback, the SSCM will assess the relapse/setback:

1. Avoid taking action prior to thoroughly assessing the relapse/setback.

This does not eliminate the need to address safety, however, it will require identifying what went wrong to assist in determining with the family whether the child(ren) will remain in the home, or require an out of home safety plan.

2. Determine with the SSS which of the following two categories describes the situation:
 - a. A crisis has occurred and an adjustment to the safety or case plan is required to ensure safety; or
 - b. The current plan is sufficient but case momentum and direction is at risk.
3. For a crisis that involves the development of a new safety plan or revision to the case plan:
 - a. Safety is paramount and must always be maintained and assessed.
 - b. Interview family members to track the sequence of events that occurred prior to the event, entering the event and while attempting to manage the event. Identify the factors present at the time things stopped happening according to the plan.
 - c. With the family, identify what specifically went wrong. Refer to the action plan, what tasks were supposed to occur and what tasks did and/or did not occur.
 - d. Conduct a case evaluation as outlined in policy 8.4 Family Preservation Services: Case Evaluation;
 - e. Use the information from the assessment of the relapse/setback and the case evaluation to:
 - i. Determine what changes to the safety plan or case plan need to occur; and
 - ii. Assist the family and/or the provider(s) in the revision of the plan.

The relapse/setback maybe assessed in the form of a formal investigation and/or by the assigned SSCM.

4. For a setback where the safety plan is not appropriate, but case momentum and direction is at risk, with the SSS:
 - a. Drill down into the situation. Does the family have a lot of problems? Few supports? Lack of organizational skills? Is the family involved with multiple treatment providers competing for the family's attention? Is attention being focused on issues unrelated to present safety? Are these unrelated issues taken attention away from the presenting problems or issues vital to safety?
 - b. Determine if new issues arose that need to be added to the family plan and must be addressed prior to case closure. Determine if the new issues be related to the existing treatment outcomes in lieu of creating a new outcome.
5. Initiate and participate in FTMs as needed to address case plan outcome achievement or lack thereof.

6. If the relapse/setback cannot be managed without court involvement, initiate court action as outlined in policy 17.1 Legal: The Juvenile Court Process to ensure child safety.
7. Participate in mediation based on a written agreement sanctioned by a juvenile court, in consultation with the Special Assistant Attorney General (SAAG), when applicable (see policy 17.4 Legal: Mediation).

Practice Guidance

A case plan is a plan that is designed to ensure that a child receives protection, proper care and case management and may include services for a child, parents, guardian or legal custodian. A complete review of the investigation as well as all other DFCS history is fundamental to begin case planning. The case plan is a deliberate, reasonable and mutually agreed upon strategy to enhance caregiver protective capacities and eliminate present danger situations and/or impending danger safety threats. The plan must provide a clear understanding of the reason for DFCS involvement with the family (consensus around family issues), changes which would constitute successful intervention (FLO's and ILO's), and the method for facilitating change (action plans). The case plan must be developed collaboratively with the family and providers based on a thorough understanding of the strengths and needs unique to a family. Family Team Meetings (FTM) and Multi-Disciplinary Team (MDT) meetings are effective ways to engage natural and formal supports to enhance case plan development. Case plans are unlikely to result in desired outcomes if the family is not invested in them; therefore, the family must be actively involved in the case planning process if change is to occur. The most critical aspect of case planning involves establishing a partnership with caregivers and obtaining consensus regarding the family and individual level outcomes. Although case plan outcomes should be established after gaining consensus with the family, there are situations where a consensus may not occur prior to the development of the case plan.

The FLO describes what the family will be doing in everyday life to successfully resolve the safety problem. It is recommended that families manage no more than two FLOs per case plan to prevent the family being overwhelmed and help them to focus on the most pressing issues that may be impacting child safety and well-being. Establish the most important outcomes first.

With each established FLO there must be correlating ILO. ILO(s) should be specifically related to addressing a caregiver's underlying issues that create an unsafe home environment for the child(ren). These personal self-management issues may be related to:

1. Anger or control
2. Substance abuse
3. Sexual behaviors
4. Emotional stability
5. Criminal behavior

Each FLO and ILO must have an associated action plan which is a personalized plan targeting the most high-risk situations. For example, DFCS involvement is related to inadequate supervision and education neglect, but upon further assessment, it is determined that the caregiver has a substance abuse issue. Two FLOs will be developed with the family, one around ensuring adequate supervision of the child(ren) and the other to ensure the education needs of the children are being met. Only one ILO will be developed around the caregiver addressing substance abuse which is their underlying issue contributing to the maltreatment. An action plan will be established for each FLO and ILO (see policy 19.14 Case Management: Action Planning). At subsequent case evaluations, assess whether additional safety outcomes can be incorporated into the case plan, as the initial outcomes are achieved.

Outcomes that the family would like to address that are not related to safety are considered secondary level outcomes. Secondary level outcomes maybe discussed with the family and resources may be provided to assist the family with meeting these outcomes. However, secondary level outcomes should not hinder the achievement of outcomes that impact child safety. Secondary level outcomes may be noted on the case plan, however, there is no associated action plan.

Case Planning Involving Domestic Violence (DV)/Intimate Partner Violence (IPV) or Sexual Abuse

Case planning involving domestic violence (DV), intimate partner violence (IPV) and sexual abuse must be managed differently than those that do not contain these elements. The primary focus of these types of cases is ensuring the child is not re-harmed, rather than the family's challenges with everyday life tasks. Therefore, the first FLO will address how the family will prevent the child from being physically (DV/IPV cases) or sexually (sexual abuse cases) harmed. The family's plan may include tasks related to the non-offending parent ensuring that the perpetrator does not have contact until recommended by the treatment provider. Other family members or supports may have tasks on the plan to assist the non-offending caregiver in enforcing a "no contact" plan. An individual level outcome for the perpetrator around sexual offending or DV/IPV will be established; and if the assessment reveals the non-offending parent has failed to protect, an ILO will be developed for the non-offending parent addressing his/her personal hurdle to protecting the children.

Although the primary focus in these types of cases is keeping children free from physical or sexual harm, a second family level outcome (FLO) can be established around managing the developmental stage of everyday life the family finds challenging. However, the perpetrator cannot participate in the second family level outcome until he/she has received treatment and demonstrated substantial progress on their ILO related to their self-control issues (sexual abuse/DV/IPV).

It is important to remember that service provision will be key in helping the family move forward with ensuring safety in the home as well as assessing behavioral changes that impact safety. SSCMs must work in partnership with community-based service providers to:

1. Identify treatment approaches for the perpetrator of child abuse and neglect that have demonstrated effectiveness in regards to future abusive or neglectful behavior.
2. Identify treatment approaches for the child victim that have been proven effective in reducing the impact of abuse and neglect on the child and assist in the child's resiliency. And
3. Identify treatment approaches that will assist the non-offending caregiver in creating and maintaining positive outcomes that impact the family and the child(ren) in the home.

Assessment of Children's Needs

The assessment of children's needs is a part of case planning. The needs of children can be assessed through observation and a formal evaluation conducted by a provider. The SSCM must consider the following components as part of an ongoing assessment of child functioning, when applicable:

1. Child development;
2. Medical;
3. Vision;
4. Dental;
5. Hearing;
6. Mental health;
7. Observations;
8. Education;
9. Substance abuse;
10. Sexuality;
11. Legal;
12. Cultural connections;
13. History of running away;
14. Suspicion or known exposure sexual exploitation (CSEC);
15. The youth's voice (opinion, wishes, expectations, goals, viewpoints, etc.); and
16. Social/Other needs

Documenting and Celebrating Case Plan Progress

Documenting and celebrating is vital in solution based casework and case plan evaluation. Case managers should document and celebrate progress and completion with specific tasks of each action plan throughout the life of the case. Action plans include how each tasks will be measured allowing the case manager to review documentation of behavioral change and provide opportunities to acknowledge changes and celebration of achievement with the family. The case manager may also include suggestions for celebrating specific task completion while completing the action plan. In order to begin celebrating with families the SSCM must remember to notice and document what the behavioral change. The following examples can be used to recognize and celebrate change:

1. Case managers can anticipate change by helping the family search for and recognize the new story that is emerging about them.
2. Case managers can verbally acknowledge the progress the family is making in working their action plans which can help the family to feel encouraged and supported by the case manager.
3. Case managers can use T-charts to compare the old unsafe and unproductive behaviors with safe and productive new ones, which help to capture and reinforce change.
4. Scheduling a family team meeting that will focus on the significant and meaningful changes the family has made can be vital in reinforcing change and celebrating the family.
5. Case managers can take the time to have a celebration party planned with the family and treatment providers to highlight their progress. You may include food, balloons and certificates to celebrate the families' achievements.
6. Case managers may write and mail the family a card detailing their progress and acknowledging their efforts and commitment to reaching their outcomes.

While these are only a few examples, case managers can be creative with their families in the celebrating process by discussing different ways the family would like to celebrate as well.

Managing Setbacks

Setbacks are defined as the reoccurrence of a problem behavior that is considered high risk. Setbacks are a normal occurrence and can be managed while continuing case progression. A case manager and supervisor’s ability to thoroughly assess a family’s setback and normalize them within the context of action plan, can assist in their ability to help move the family forward and assist them in utilizing newly learned skills. Preparing ahead of time for setbacks can help case managers respond appropriately to them. Some possible setbacks may include:

1. Maintaining cleanliness of the home;
2. Ongoing attendance at school;
3. Personal hygiene for children;
4. Consistently attending needed medical appointments;
5. Missed appointments with service providers or;
6. A new report alleging abuse or neglect.

To assess and manage setbacks, the SSCM must first assess how the setback affects safety in the home and determine whether the current safety plan is sufficient to ensure safety or if a new one needed. It is important for the SSCM to gather information surrounding the setback and discuss information with their supervisor to determine next steps. Setbacks can evoke emotions for both the family and the SSCM, therefore the SSCM should be diligent in controlling their feelings around the setback to help the family move forward.

Practice Guidance

Case evaluation is the formal process completed every 90 calendar days (or more frequently) for measuring improvement in caregiver protective capacities, ensuring child safety and reducing risk for children in the home. This evaluation will include a review of progress towards reaching family level and individual level outcomes, progress with action plans, and the families' utilization of the five relapse prevention skills. Case evaluation includes the review of documentation that captures noticeable positive or negative behavior patterns or changes in behavior. Positive changes in behavior should be documented and celebrated throughout the family preservation process. Case evaluation is an opportunity to help the family focus on the full scope of accomplishment, sharing an overview of where the family is in the change process and supporting the family's participation in the agreed upon plan. The evaluation and review of a case assures the family that they are supported in their efforts to provide proper care and protection of their children. In addition, case management activities completed by the SSCM can positively impact outcome achievement by the family.

The SSCM serves as the facilitator during the case evaluation process by working in partnership with the family to gather all needed information to make a determination regarding case progress. During the case evaluation, the caregiver’s compliance with services is not the foremost issue of concern. The SSCM must determine based on observations, interviews and collateral information if the caregiver is making strides to change the behavior that impacts child safety. Case evaluation helps to assess interventions that have been put in place with the family and assists in decision making on whether a case can be closed or the family is in need of continued intervention.

The Social Services Supervisor (SSS) will:

1. Ensure the case evaluation process is completed prior to submitting a case for closure (see policy 8.4 Family Preservation Services: Case Evaluation).
2. Ensure FPS cases are submitted for closure within five business days of the closing FTM with the family.

6. Complete the case closure approval in Georgia SHINES within five business days of the case being submitted for closure.

If the case involves caregiver substance abuse/use and the caregiver does not complete a recommended substance abuse assessment and/or substance abuse treatment, submit the approved case closure to the Social Services Administrator (SSA) for second level approval.

Practice Guidance

Case closure is a natural and planned component of the case work process. While not all case closings are planned, all efforts should be made to ensure the family is fully engaged in the process leading up to closure. Consider the following when ending services with families:

1. Family Preparation

Discussions about termination and case closure should begin at service initiation and continue throughout the life span of the case. Families should be knowledgeable regarding what requirements are needed for case closure and should be engaged regularly regarding the level of progress made in order to achieve goals necessary for case closure. When families are well on their way towards goal achievement, discussions regarding possible case closure timeframes should be held to begin preparation.

2. Developing Support Systems

Families should be assisted in developing formal and informal systems that can support them during and after DFCS involvement. The support system should be identified with the involvement of the family. This support system or family team can assist in the transitioning of families after case closure. Families should be encouraged to utilize these systems during the life of the case as a way for them to “practice” for life after DFCS services.

3. Disengagement

When terminating DFCS involvement with families, it is important to begin the process of disengagement of the working relationship between the SSCM and family prior to closing the case. The family should be reminded of the ongoing progress being made in resolution of risk and safety factors and that this will lead to a reduced need for DFCS involvement. This can be a challenging process for both the SSCM and the family as the SSCM must separate from the family while continuing to support and encourage them. The goal of the SSCM is to increase the emphasis on the family taking on more responsibility for problem solving and follow up.

4. Family Reactions

Termination can be met with ambivalent feelings, especially when the helping relationship with the family has been rewarding. Some typical reactions may include denial, regression, additional needs and flight. It is essential to validate the family’s feelings regarding termination and provide positive feedback regarding their achievements as well as assisting them in recognizing their strengths and abilities.

5. SSCM Reactions

Workers may experience a sense of loss as a result of termination. Separating from someone with whom a meaningful relationship has been developed can be difficult. Workers may question the quality of their performance, may have feelings of guilt, etc. Being clear about one’s own feelings regarding termination can prevent transference issues as one can get easily caught up in the family’s reactions if they are attempting to prolong the relationship.

6. Process Evaluation

Case closure should be a joint decision-making process between the SSCM and the family. The SSCM should review with the family all critical elements of intervention, while empowering the family to express their opinions/feelings and provide constructive feedback. Obtaining feedback from the family regarding their experience can provide valuable information to the family and agency regarding performance as well as in establishing future relationships. The evaluation helps the family to assess and recognize their progress and encourages future self-assessment/evaluation.

Requirements

The Division of Family and Children Services (DFCS) will:

1. Provide foster care maintenance payments for each child who meets section 406(a) of the Social Security Act (as in effect 7/16/96), is removed from the home of a specified relative as outlined in policy 9.6 Eligibility: Aid to Families with Dependent Children \(AFDC\) Relatedness Criteria, and is placed in foster care if:
 - a. The removal and foster care placement met and continues to meet the following requirements:
 - i. The removal and foster care placement are in accordance with a voluntary placement agreement (VPA) entered into by a parent or legal guardian of the child who is the specified relative; or
 - ii. A judicial determination to the effect that continuation of residence in the home from which removed would be contrary to the welfare or that the placement would be in the best interest of the child and that reasonable efforts were made (see policy 9.5 Eligibility: Reasonable Efforts). The contrary to the welfare determination will be made in the first ruling that sanctions (even temporarily) the removal of the child from the home. If the determination regarding contrary to the welfare is not made in the first court ruling pertaining to removal from the home, the child will not be eligible for Title IV-E foster care maintenance payments for the duration of that stay in foster care; and
 - iii. The child is placed in one of the following:
 1. A foster family home of an individual or family, whether the payments are made to such individual or to a public or private child placement or child care agency (see policy

10.4 Foster Care: Selecting a Placement Resource for definition of a foster family home).

2. A childcare institution (CCI) whether the payments are made to such institution or to a public or private child placement or childcare agency (see policy 10.4 Foster Care: Selecting a Placement Resource for the definition of a CCI). Such payments include only those items listed in the term "foster care maintenance payments" (defined in section 475(4) of the Act). Title IV-E agencies may claim for title IV-E foster care maintenance payments paid on behalf of an eligible child placed in a CCI for up to two weeks. Title IV-E agencies may continue to claim administrative costs for the duration of the period in the CCI regardless of whether the CCI meets the criteria of a qualified residential treatment program (QTRP). After two weeks (14 days), title IV-E foster care maintenance payments for a child placed in a CCI are only available if that CCI is:

a. A QTRP, as defined in section 472(k)(4) of the Act (see policy 16.0 Room Board Watchful Oversight: Introduction to Room Board Watchful Oversight for the QTRP program description);

Georgia has not implemented QTRP and will only claim title IV-E foster care maintenance payments for the initial two weeks (14 days) that an eligible child is placed in a CCI, unless the CCI is an allowable placement category under federal law.

b. A setting specializing in providing prenatal, post-partum, or parenting supports for youth in foster care (see policy 16.1 Room Board Watchful Oversight: Program Designation Types for Maternity Homes and Parenting Support Programs);

c. A supervised setting in which the youth is living independently, in the case of a youth who has attained 18 years of age (see policy 16.0 Room Board Watchful Oversight: Introduction to Room Board Watchful Oversight for the Independent Living Program description);

Georgia uses supervised independent living settings for youth who has attained the age of 18, however does not currently claim title IV-E foster care maintenance payments for these settings.

d. A setting providing high-quality residential care and supportive services to children and youth who have been found to be, or are at risk of becoming, sex trafficking victims (see policy 16.1 Room Board Watchful Oversight: Program Designation Types for Maximum Watchful Oversight); or

3. With a parent residing in a licensed residential family-based treatment facility for substance abuse, but only to the extent permitted under 472(j) of the Act which include:

a. Eligibility for payments for no more than 12 months;

b. The recommendation for the placement is specified in the child's case plan prior to the placement;

c. The treatment facility provides, as part of the treatment for substance abuse, parenting skills training, parent education, and individual and family counseling; and

d. The substance abuse treatment, parenting skills training, parent education, and individual and family counseling are provided under an organizational structure and treatment framework that involves understanding, recognizing and responding to the effects of all types of traumas and in accordance with recognized principles of a trauma informed approach and trauma-specific interventions to address the consequences of trauma and facilitate healing; or

Georgia does not currently claim title IV-E foster care maintenance payments for a child placed with a parent in a licensed residential family-based treatment facility for substance abuse.

iv. The child's placement and care are the responsibility of:

- 1. The state agency administering the approved state plan;*
- 2. Any other public agency with which the state agency administering or supervising the administration of the approved Title IV-E plan has made an agreement with which is still in effect; and*
- 3. A tribe that has an approved plan; and*

b. The child, while in the home, would have met the Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC) program eligibility requirement. The child:

- i. Received AFDC, in the home of the specified relative in or for the month in which either a VPA was entered into or court proceedings leading to the required judicial determination were initiated; or*
- ii. Would have received AFDC, in the home, in or for the month in which either a voluntary placement agreement was entered into or court proceedings leading to the required judicial determination were initiated if application for such aid were made; or*
- iii. Had been living with a specified relative within six months prior to the month in which a VPA proceedings leading to the required judicial determination were initiated, and would have received AFDC in or for such month if the child had been living in the home with such relative and an application had been made for AFDC; and*
- iv. Had resources that had a combined value of not more than $10,000 or*
- v. Is not required to meet AFDC requirements in 472(a)(3) of the Act (as outlined above under AFDC program eligibility requirements) because the child is placed with a parent residing in a licensed residential family-based substance abuse treatment facility.*

2. Deem any child with respect to whom foster care maintenance payments are paid a dependent child as defined in section 406 of the Social Security Act (as in effect 7/16/1996) and a recipient of AFDC under Part A of this Title (as in effect 7/16/1996), for the purposes of Title XIX and Title XX. Title XIX and Title XX services will be available to such child in the state in which the child resides.

Georgia has opted out of kinship guardianship assistance program.

3. Make foster care maintenance payments for the voluntary placement of a child out of the home by or with the participation of the state agency only if:

- a. The state has fulfilled all of the requirements of section 472 of the Social Security Act; sections 422(b)(8) and 475(5) of the Social Security Act; and 45 CFR 1356.21 (e), (f), (g), (h) and (i) of the Social Security Act; and*

- b. The assistance of the state/tribal agency has been requested by the child's parent(s) or legal guardian(s);
 - c. There is a written voluntary placement agreement, binding all parties to the agreement, which specifies at a minimum the legal status of the child and the rights and obligations of the parents or guardians, the child and the state/tribal agency while the child is in placement (see policy 10.2 Foster Care: Placement of a Child via Voluntary Placement Agreement).
4. Claim federal financial participation only for voluntary foster care maintenance expenditures made within the first 180 days of the child's placement in foster care unless there has been a judicial determination by a court of competent jurisdiction, within the first 180 days of the date of such placement, to the effect that the continued voluntary placement is in the best interests of the child (see policy 10.2 Foster Care: Placement of a Child via Voluntary Placement Agreement).
5. Provide foster care maintenance payments for a child in foster care to cover the cost of (and the cost of providing) food, clothing, shelter, daily supervision, school supplies, a child's personal incidentals, liability insurance with respect to the child, and reasonable travel to the child's home for visitation with family, or other caretakers and reasonable travel for the child to remain in the school in which the child is enrolled at the time of placement. Local travel associated with providing these items is also an allowable expense. In the case of child care institutions, such term must include the reasonable costs of administration and operation of such institutions as are necessarily required to provide the items described.
6. Make foster care maintenance payments on behalf of an eligible child who is:
 - a. In the foster family home of an individual or family, whether the payments are made to that individual or to a public or private child placement or child care agency; or
 - b. In a childcare institution, whether the payments are made to such institution or to a public or private child placement or childcare agency. Such payments are limited to include only those items listed above in the term "foster care maintenance payments" (defined in section 475(4) of the Act).
7. Ensure that foster care maintenance payments made on behalf of a child placed in a foster family home or child care institution, who is the parent of a son or daughter in the same home or institution, must include amounts which are necessary to cover the costs incurred on behalf of the child's son or daughter. Such costs are limited to funds expended on the items described in the definition of foster care maintenance payments (see policy 9.10 Eligibility: Special Situations \(Trial Home Visits, Runaway, Parenting Youth in Foster Care and Out-of-State IV-E Foster Care\) and 10.21 Foster Care: Expectant or Parenting Youth in Foster Care).

 - a. For a period of not more than the lesser of 12 months or the average length of time it takes to license or approve a home as a foster home, in which the child is in the home of a relative and an application is pending for licensing or approval of the home as a foster family home; or

Title IV-E Reimbursements

Title IV-E provides reimbursement for costs associated with the care and maintenance of children in foster care placement and for administrative cost related to the state's Foster Care Program. The IV-E Foster Care Program authorized by the Social Security Act, provides funds to states for the following activities:

1. Maintenance of children in foster care placements.
2. Reimbursement of administrative and case management costs incurred while staff work with the child, the child's family and the care provider.
3. Reimbursement for training agency staff and providers who work with the child or who administer the foster care program.

Children classified as Title IV-E eligible must have some relationship to the Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC) program in addition to meeting other criteria. Title IV-E is unrelated to Temporary Assistance to Needy Families (TANF). In the Welfare Reform Act of 1996, Congress mandated that the state AFDC policy in effect on July 16, 1996 be used for determining the AFDC relationship for IV-E eligibility purposes.

Federal Financial Participation (FFP)

FFP is the portion paid by the Federal government to states for their share of expenditures for providing medical assistance services, administering the medical assistance program and certain other human services programs.

Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC)

AFDC was a program administered and funded by federal and state governments to provide cash assistance to needy families. It was replaced by the Temporary Assistance to Needy Families (TANF) grant in August 1996.

Child Care Institution

States may claim title IV-E foster care maintenance payments for children placed in a CCI for up to two weeks (14 days). After 14 days, the CCI must meet the requirements for a QRTP to claim foster care maintenance payments, unless the CCI placement is one of the allowable categories under title IV-E. Title IV-E agencies may claim 14 days of title IV-E foster care maintenance payments each time an eligible child is placed in a CCI regardless of whether the child has had previous CCI placements during their current foster care episode.

Practice Guidance

Eligibility Determinations

All funding, reimbursability and medical assistance eligibility determinations for foster care or adoption assistance are the responsibility of the RMS based on information submitted by a DFCS SSCM via Georgia SHINES. Coordination between SSCMs and the RMS is critical to the funding determination and medical assistance coverage for children in out-of-home placement.

If a child in DFCS custody is covered by health insurance other than Medicaid, the name of the insurance company, policy number, group number and name of insured are important in processing the application for medical assistance. At the time that a claim is filed, such coverage will be primary with Medicaid being the secondary insurance provider.

Children who are in an out-of-home placement may be eligible for medical assistance coverage under several Classes of Assistance (COA). The RMS determines the COA and processes the medical assistance determination in Georgia Gateway. The COA aligns with the funding determination (see the Medicaid Manual Chapter 2100: Classes of Assistance for the eligibility requirements of each type of medical assistance).

Medicaid

The Medicaid program is a joint federal/state program that is authorized under the Social Security Act. Funds are available to states for providing medical services to eligible recipients and for reimbursing activities that support the administration of the Medicaid program. DFCS accesses Medicaid funds through the Department of Community Health (DCH) and the Division of Medical Assistance (DMA) for case management and services for children in out-of-home care. Children who are IV-E eligible and/or SSI eligible are categorically eligible for Medicaid. Although most children in foster care are eligible for Medicaid, children whose foster care is paid by state funds may not be eligible for Medicaid. Consequently, the medical assistance COA for which these children qualify must be determined. Each COA has resource limits and certain deductibles (see the Medicaid Manual Chapter 2100: Classes of Assistance for the eligibility requirements of each type of medical assistance).

Supplemental Security Income (SSI)

SSI is a federal payment program for disabled individuals administered by the Social Security Administration. If a child in DFCS custody receives SSI, the Social Security Administration processes the child's monthly Medicaid card.

PeachCare for Kids®

PeachCare for Kids® provides comprehensive health care for children who do not qualify for medical assistance and do not have any other form of insurance. The child must meet citizenship/alien-age requirements. PeachCare for Kids® is available to children from birth through the last day of the month of a child's 19th birthday. PeachCare for Kids® will waive the monthly premium for children in DFCS custody.

GAMMIS

GAMMIS consolidates all required functions for Medicaid, PeachCare for Kids® and the public employee health benefits into a single computer system. The state agency which has oversight of these functions is the Department of Community Health (DCH). When screening in GAMMIS, assistance from the appropriate Office of Financial Independence (OFI) supervisor or case manager will be required.

Georgia Families 360

On March 03, 2014, DFCS transitioned from a standard fee-for-service Medicaid program to a statewide Medicaid Care Management Organization (CMO) through Amerigroup Georgia Managed Care Company. The transition impacted children in DFCS custody and children receiving AA as they became members of a new program called Georgia Families 360 which is separate from Georgia Families, the general Medicaid program administered by the Georgia Department of Community Health (DCH). Georgia Families 360 is designed to provide coordinated care across multiple services and focus on the physical, dental, and behavioral needs of member children. The program is designed to ensure each member has a medical and dental home, access to preventive care screenings, and timely assessments. It also seeks to ensure medical providers adhere to clinical practice guidelines and evidence-based medicine.

Upon receipt of the Amerigroup GA Families 360° DFCS Referral Form notifying of a child's entry into foster care, Amerigroup will:

1. Ensure the child is enrolled on their roster as a member.
2. Access each child's Virtual Health Record (If available) to begin care coordination planning and developing each child's individualized care plan.
3. Assign each child to a CCT.
4. Assign each child a primary care physician (PCP) and primary care dentist (PCD).
5. Contact the primary care provider assigned to the child to obtain the most recent information available and required historical data.
6. Provide ID cards to members via a secure portal on the Amerigroup website.
7. Coordinate medical assessments and development of an individualized care plan for each child.

Amerigroup Care Coordination Teams (CCT) and Care Managers

Each Georgia Families 360 member is assigned to a regional Care Coordination Team with a specified Care Manager. The CCT members are Masters level staff, the majority of whom hold a professional license to practice in their respective field. The CCT completes a Health Risk Screening (HRS) on youth in care to identify medical and/or behavioral needs. The CCT is responsible for coordinating the health components of the Comprehensive Child and Family Assessment (CCFA), including the initial physical assessment, dental screening, and trauma assessment. Care Managers are the primary partner for identifying and making referrals for needed services. They ensure each youth has an individualized care plan that addresses both physical and behavioral health needs. They work with community agencies to ensure appropriate services are provided.

Amerigroup GA Families 360° DFCS Referral Form

DFCS communicates with Amerigroup, RevMax, and DCH utilizing an electronic notification form (E-Form) entitled Amerigroup GA Families 360° DFCS Referral Form. It is the primary means for communicating information about a member in Amerigroup. The form must be completed and sent to Amerigroup, RevMax, and DCH within 24 hours of a youth entering foster care. It should be thoroughly completed to include demographic information, medical information, placement information, the identified CCFA provider and other referrals (e.g., Babies Can't Wait). The form is also used to report updates, such as placement changes, a youth exiting care, etc. If there is information not available at the time of the initial referral to Amerigroup, submit the form as an update as soon as the information is obtained. Accurate and timely communication with Amerigroup and RevMax is vital to the Medicaid eligibility determination and the assignment of an Amerigroup CCTs and service providers. Important decisions regarding the assignment of primary care providers and referrals are made based upon the information submitted on the form.

Review court orders for accuracy and appropriate court order language and upload all court orders associated with the child's removal into Georgia SHINES, if not uploaded by the Case Plan Reporting System (CPRS) (see policy 9.4 Eligibility: Removal from the Home and 9.5 Eligibility: Reasonable Efforts).
6. Document a legal action, with appropriate court order language selected, into Georgia SHINES, when applicable.
7. If the child is receiving Supplemental Security Income (SSI) benefits from the Social Security Administration (SSA) when they enter care:
 - a. Enter SSI eligibility and monthly amount in Georgia SHINES as income to the child;
 - b. Notify Rev Max via the Notification of Change (NOC) in Georgia SHINES.
 - c. Contact the Social Security Administration to change the payee to DFCS.
8. Determine, in consultation with the Complex Needs Adult Transition Unit (CNAT), when to apply for SSI on behalf of a child in care who has a diagnosed mental, physical or emotional condition which may qualify them to receive SSI.
 - a. Submit the SSI application within 30 calendar days of the decision that an SSI application should be submitted on behalf of the child.

- b. Provide the SSA with copies of medical information, psychological assessments, educational evaluations, etc., needed to make the eligibility determination.
- c. Upload SSI approval/denial letters in External Documentation of Georgia SHINES.
- d. Enter SSI eligibility and monthly amount in Georgia SHINES as income to the child, if the SSI application is approved.
- e. Notify RevMax of the approval of SSI via the Notification of Change (NOC) in Georgia SHINES.
- f. Consult with the CNAT Unit when any difficulties arise in applying for SSI, becoming a child's payee or SSI application denials.

If receiving title IV-E FCMPs a child may not be eligible for SSI. Confer with CNAT.

RMS

1. Review the title IV-E/Foster Care Eligibility Application in Georgia SHINES.
2. Contact the SSCM or designated staff by telephone or email if there are any questions with the application.
3. Verify the child meets all AFDC Relatedness criteria (see policy 9.6 Eligibility: Aid to Families with Dependent Children \(AFDC\) Relatedness Criteria).
4. Review court orders to verify the child entered care as a result of one of the following:
 - a. A court order with a judicial determination that it is contrary to the welfare of the child to remain in the home or that placement is in the best interest of the child.
 - b. A VPA (see policy 9.4 Eligibility: Removal from the Home and policy 17.12 Legal: Voluntary Surrender of Parental Rights).
5. Verify that a reasonable efforts judicial determination was made within 60 days of the removal and includes the agency specific details of those efforts (see policy 9.5 Eligibility: Reasonable Efforts).
6. Approve the IV-E Foster Care Eligibility Summary page and document the determination details in Georgia SHINES, if the child is IV-E FC eligible.
7. Verify and validate the Georgia SHINES determination of IV-E ineligibility.

Whenever a child is not eligible for IV-E FC, the funding source is state funds.

8. Communicate the initial decision for Medical Assistance and IV-E via the Eligibility Summary page in Georgia SHINES with documentation of the decision in the narrative of the Contact Detail.

Social Services Supervisor

1. Review the case record in Georgia SHINES to ensure:
 - a. Submission of the title IV-E/Foster Care Eligibility Application.
 - b. Receipt and uploading of court orders.

2. Provide guidance to the SSCM regarding changing the payee, if the child is receiving SSI when they enter care; or consult with the CNAT Unit to determine the need to apply for SSI, when applicable.
3. Conduct a staffing with the SSCM on any issues or concerns regarding the title IV-E/Foster Care Eligibility Application process (see policy 19.6 Case Management: Supervisor Staffing).

Practice Guidance

Funding for Georgia's Foster Care Program is available from federal and state sources including title IV-E Foster Care, title IV-B Foster Care, SSI, Medicaid and state funds. The funding determination is processed in Georgia SHINES. Rev Max uploads funding determination and redeterminations in SHINES. Whenever possible, it is advantageous for the state to maximize federal financial participation. This allows state funds to be conserved and used for other services to benefit families.

Title IV-E Foster Care

A federal funding source which provides reimbursement for costs associated with the care and maintenance of children in placement and for administrative costs related to the state's Foster Care Program (e.g., case management, staff training, etc.). Children classified as IV-E eligible must have some relation to the Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC) program (see policy 9.6 Eligibility: Aid to Families with Dependent Children \(AFDC\) Relatedness Criteria) in addition to meeting other criteria. Title IV-E is unrelated to Temporary Assistance for Needy Families (TANF).

Title IV-B

A federal child welfare block grant that provides funds to states for foster care expenses. A child who is eligible for title IV-B has been determined ineligible for title IV-E Foster Care. The title IV-B grant is capped. Once these limited federal funds are spent, foster care expenses are paid primarily with state funds. Youth who has been title IV-E eligible in foster care, who reach the age of 18 and receives extended foster care are re-classified to state funded beginning the first day of the month following the month of their 18th birthday.

Supplemental Security Income

A federal payment program for disabled individuals administered by the SSA. Monthly payments are made directly to the recipient from the federal government. However, when a child is in DFCS custody, DFCS becomes the payee for the child's SSI. SSI payments follow the child; and therefore, are a benefit to children while in care as well as when they achieve permanency. While in care the SSI benefits help to offset the cost of caring for the child. Go to ssa.gov/applyfordisability/child.htm for more information on the SSI application process.

IV-E vs. SSI

For a child receiving SSI, the RMS determines if it is more advantageous for the child in foster care to continue receiving SSI benefits or have their costs paid from title IV-E Foster Care.

1. Using the child's foster care maintenance payments (FCMP) as the basis for making the decision:
 - a. Make the child title IV-E reimbursable (charge FCMP costs to IV-E foster care), if the monthly FCMP is more than the amount of the SSI funds received by the child.

- b. Continue the SSI and classify the child as title IV-E non-reimbursable, if the monthly FCMP is less than the amount of SSI funds received by the child.
2. Applying programmatic reasons for making the decision, continue the SSI if:
- a. The child is expected to be in out-of-home care a short period of time.
 - b. The child is approaching age 18 because SSI benefits do not terminate at age 18 as do title IV-E benefits.
 - c. The child is in the adoption process.

The child’s receipt of IV-E FCMP and its effective date must be reported to the SSA. Per regulation, the SSA treats IV-E FCMP as “income” and reduces the child’s SSI payment dollar for dollar based on the IV-E FCMP. In all likelihood, the child’s SSI payment will be suspended. If the child continues to receive a reduced SSI payment, these funds may be used for other items/needs of the child. It must not be applied to the child’s title IV-E FCMP as IV-E costs have already been applied. If the child subsequently loses title IV-E eligibility, the SSA must be notified. The SSA may restore the child’s SSI if they remain eligible.

Title IV-E of the Social Security Act Section 472(a)

Title 45 Code of Federal Regulations (CFR) Part 1356.21 (c), (d), (k) and (l)

Requirements

The Division of Family and Children Services (DFCS) will:

1. Ensure that a child’s removal from the home occurs pursuant to:
 - a. A voluntary placement agreement (VPA) entered into by a parent or relative which leads to a physical or constructive removal (i.e., a non-physical or constructive removal of custody) of the child from the home; or

- b. A judicial order for a physical or constructive removal of the child from a parent or specified relative.

A removal has not occurred in situations where legal custody is removed from the parent or relative and the child remains with the same relative in that home under supervision by the state/tribal agency.

2. Consider a child constructively removed on the date of:
 - a. The first judicial order removing custody, even temporarily, from the appropriate specified relative; or
 - b. The signing of the voluntary placement agreement by all relevant parties.
3. Ensure the removal and foster care placement of a child is in accordance with a judicial determination to the effect that continuation of residence in the home from which removed would be contrary to the welfare or that the placement would be in the best interest of the child and that reasonable efforts to maintain the family unit were made (see policy 9.5 Eligibility: Reasonable Efforts). The contrary to the welfare determination will be made in the first ruling that sanctions (even temporarily) the removal of the child from the home. If the determination regarding contrary to the welfare is not made in the first court ruling pertaining to removal from the home, the child will not be eligible for Title IV-E foster care maintenance payments for the duration of that stay in foster care.
4. Verify that the judicial determination regarding contrary to the welfare is explicitly documented and made on a case-by-case basis in the court order. If the contrary to the welfare judicial determination is not included as required in the court orders, a transcript of the court proceedings is the only other documentation accepted to verify that the required determination has been made. Neither affidavits nor nunc pro tunc orders will be accepted as verification in support of contrary to the welfare judicial determinations.
5. Acknowledge that court orders that reference state law to substantiate judicial determinations are not acceptable, even if the law provides that a removal must be based on a judicial determination that remaining in the home would be contrary to the welfare or that removal can only be ordered after reasonable efforts have been made.

Procedures

Social Services Case Manager

1. Review the first order signed by a judge which sanctions the removal of the child from the home to determine if the appropriate judicial finding of “contrary to the welfare” or “best interest of the child” is made.
2. Verify the court order includes child specific details which led to the sanctioning of the removal by the judge.
3. Document the following on the Legal Action and Outcome Detail page in Georgia SHINES:
 - a. Date Field: The date of the complaint/petition or the signature date of the VPA;
 - b. Court action date;

- c. Action: Type of placement authority;
- d. Hearing type/court order;
- e. Date shelter care authorized;
- f. Court order date.

Nunc pro tunc orders must be carefully reviewed to ensure that only the judge's signature and not the finding is dated back to the actual hearing date.

- 4. Upload all court orders in External Documentation in Georgia SHINES, if not uploaded by the Case Plan Reporting System (CPRS).
- 5. Notify the Revenue Maximization (RevMax) Unit via the Notification of Change (NOC) in Georgia SHINES of the uploaded court orders.

Social Services Supervisor

- 1. Review court orders for appropriate judicial determinations and language.
- 2. Ensure the SSCM documents removal information and uploads corresponding orders timely.

Practice Guidance

“Contrary to the Welfare” Determination

The “contrary to the welfare” determination is a long-standing protection afforded to children and their families that recognizes the severity of removing a child, even temporarily, from the home. Judicial oversight is intended to prevent state agencies from acting too quickly and removing children unnecessarily.

The first court order language criterion to establish IV-E eligibility is the judicial determination that continuation in the home is “contrary to the welfare” of the child or that placement would be “in the best interest” of the child. The contrary to the welfare determination must be in the first ruling that sanctions the removal of the child from the home or any order for temporary alternatives to foster care (see Practice Guidance in policy 17.1 Legal: The Juvenile Court Process for information on temporary alternatives to foster care). If the contrary to the welfare determination is not made in the first court ruling pertaining to removal from the home, the child will not be eligible for Title IV-E foster care maintenance payments for the duration of that stay in foster care. The finding should be explicitly documented in the court order and based on individual circumstances/facts of the case that led the judge to conclude the finding. The order must enumerate the specific facts of the case or reference the facts contained in such documents as the complaint, court report, Affidavit of Efforts, etc.

Types of Removal

When DFCS obtains custody, there must be a “removal” for a child to be IV-E eligible. The two types of removals are:

- 1. Physical removal, which occurs when the agency has physically removed the child from their current living arrangement.

2. Constructive removal, which is considered a “paper” removal. In a constructive removal, the state/tribal agency has obtained legal custody and supervision of the child, but did not physically remove the child from their parent, guardian or legal custodian as the child was living with an interim caregiver at the time of removal. A child is considered constructively removed on the date of the first judicial order removing custody from the appropriate specified relative or the date that the voluntary placement agreement is signed by all relevant parties.

Requirements

The Division of Family and Children Services (DFCS) will:

1. Make reasonable efforts to:
 - a. Maintain the family unit and prevent the unnecessary removal of a child from his/her home, as long as the child's safety is assured;

- b. Effect the safe reunification of the child and family (if temporary out-of-home placement is necessary to ensure the immediate safety of the child); and
- c. Make and finalize alternate permanency plans in a timely manner when reunification is not appropriate or possible.

If there is reason to know a child is a member of a federally recognized Indian tribe; or eligible for membership in a federally recognized Indian tribe, and is the biological child of a member/citizen of a federally recognized Indian tribe, ICWA requires active efforts prior to removal and to reunify a child and family (see policy 1.6 Administration: Indian Child Welfare Act \(ICWA\) and Transfer of Responsibility for Placement and Care to a Tribal Agency).

2. Ensure when determining reasonable efforts to be made with respect to a child, that when making such reasonable efforts, the child's health and safety is the agency's paramount concern.
3. Verify that the judicial determination regarding reasonable efforts is explicitly documented and made on a case-by-case basis in the court order. If the reasonable efforts judicial determination is not included as required in the court orders, a transcript of the court proceedings is the only other documentation accepted to verify that the required determination has been made. Neither affidavits nor nunc pro tunc orders will be accepted as verification in support of reasonable efforts judicial determinations.

Court orders that reference State law to substantiate judicial determinations are not acceptable, even if the law provides that a removal must be based on a judicial determination that remaining in the home would be contrary to the welfare or that removal can only be ordered after reasonable efforts have been made.

4. Obtain a judicial determination of reasonable efforts to prevent a child's removal from the home.
 - a. When a child is removed from his/her home, the judicial determination, as to whether reasonable efforts were made or were not required to prevent the removal, is made no later than 60 days from the date the child is removed from the home;
 - b. If the determination concerning reasonable efforts to prevent the removal is not made as specified above, the child is not eligible under the title IV-E foster care maintenance payments program for the duration of that stay in foster care.
5. Obtain a reasonable efforts determination even during emergency removals. When child safety precludes efforts to prevent removal, the court must still make a judicial determination regarding reasonable efforts. After considering whether appropriate services were or should have been provided, the court may determine that it was reasonable for the agency to make no effort to provide services to prevent removal in light of exigent circumstances discovered through the assessment of the family, such as the safety or protection of the child.
6. Present evidence to the court outlining the reasonable efforts made to prevent removal and to provide services to make it possible for the child to safely return home and why protective custody is in the best interests of the child.
7. Obtain, when appropriate, a judicial determination from a court of competent jurisdiction that reasonable efforts are not required to prevent a child's removal from home or to reunify the child and family when the parent has:

- a. Subjected the child to aggravated circumstances (as defined in State law, which definition may include but need not be limited to abandonment, torture, chronic abuse and sexual abuse) (see Practice Guidance: Aggravated Circumstances);
 - b. Been convicted of:
 - i. Murder (which would have been an offense under section 1111(a) of title 18, United States Code, if the offense had occurred in the special maritime or territorial jurisdiction of the United States) or murder in the second degree of another child of the parent;
 - ii. Voluntary manslaughter (which would have been an offense under section 1112 (a) of title 18, United States Code, if the offense had occurred in the special maritime or territorial jurisdiction of the United States) of another child of the parent;
 - iii. Aiding or abetting, attempting, conspiring, or soliciting to commit such a murder or such a voluntary manslaughter; or
 - iv. A felony assault that results in serious bodily injury to the child or another child of the parent.
 - c. Had their parental rights with respect to a sibling involuntarily terminated and the circumstances leading to such termination of parental rights to that sibling have not been resolved;
 - d. When the parent or legal guardian has committed sexual abuse against the surviving child or another child of the parent; or
 - e. When the parent or legal guardian is required to register with a sex offender registry under section 113 (a) of the Adam Walsh Child Protection and Safety Act of 2006.
8. Obtain, when appropriate, a judicial determination that the court made a “presumption” that it is reasonable to make no efforts to reunify the child and family when:
- a. The parent, guardian or legal custodian has unjustifiably failed to comply with a previous court-ordered plan designed to reunite the family; or
 - b. The child has been removed from the home on at least two previous occasions and reunification services were made available on those occasions; and/or
 - c. Any of the grounds for terminating parental rights (TPR) exist (see policy 17.11 Legal: Termination of Parental Rights \(TPR\)).

A finding should be entered to the effect that “reasonable efforts to reunify a child and family will be detrimental to the child and that reunification services; therefore, should not be provided or should be terminated” if the court makes any of these presumptions.

9. Obtain a judicial determination that it has made reasonable efforts to finalize the permanency plan that is in effect (whether the plan is reunification, adoption, legal guardianship, placement with a fit and willing relative or placement in another planned permanent living arrangement) within 12 months of the date the child is considered to have entered foster care and at least once every 12 months thereafter while the child is in foster care (see Practice Guidance: Date Child is Considered to Have Entered Foster Care in policy 17.1 Legal: The Juvenile Court Process).

Permanent placement with a fit and willing relative is not a permanent placement option in Georgia unless as part of another planned permanent living arrangement.

10. Obtain judicial findings of reasonable efforts to finalize the permanency plan at each permanency plan hearing, but at least within 12 months of the date the child is considered to have entered foster care for Title IV-E purposes. Subsequent findings should be made no later than 12 months from the previous findings.
 - a. If such a judicial determination regarding reasonable efforts to finalize a permanency plan is not made, the child becomes ineligible under Title IV-E from the end of the 12th month following the date of the child's removal or the end of the 12th month following the month in which the most recent judicial determination of reasonable efforts to finalize the permanency plan was made and remains ineligible until such a judicial determination is made;
 - b. Reasonable efforts to finalize an alternate permanency plan may be made concurrently with reasonable efforts to reunify the child and family. Reasonable efforts to place a child for adoption or with a legal guardian, including identifying appropriate in-state/tribal Service area and out-of-state/Tribal service area placements, may be made concurrently with reasonable efforts to reunify the child and family;
 - c. If continuation of reasonable efforts is determined to be inconsistent with the permanency plan for the child, reasonable efforts are made to place the child in a timely manner in accordance with the permanency plan including, if appropriate, through an interstate placement, and to complete whatever steps necessary to finalize the permanent placement of the child.
11. Demonstrate the following at the respective hearings:
 - a. The preliminary protective hearing:
 - i. Reasonable efforts to prevent placement of the child in foster care;
 - ii. There are no appropriate services or efforts which would allow the child to remain safely in the home given the circumstances of the child and family at the time of removal, so the absence of efforts was justifiable;
 - iii. Reasonable efforts to prevent placement and to reunify the child are not required and why.
 - b. The adjudication hearing:
 - i. Reasonable efforts to eliminate the need for removal of the child from his/her home and to reunify the child with his/her family at the earliest possible time; or
 - ii. Reasonable efforts to prevent placement and reunify the child are not required and why.
 - c. All other hearings:
 - i. Reasonable efforts to eliminate the need for removal of the child from his/her home and to reunify the child with his/her family at the earliest possible time;
 - ii. Reasonable efforts to finalize an alternate permanency plan for the child.
12. Ensure the court reviews the reasonable efforts to recruit, identify and make a placement with kin, foster parent or other person who has demonstrated an ongoing commitment to the child and has agreed to provide a permanent home for the child if reunification is not successful, when the case plan is concurrent.
 -  When DFCS has a concurrent plan, the court shall review reasonable efforts to achieve both plans.

Procedures

Social Services Case Manager

1. Make reasonable efforts to prevent removal, reunify the child and family and/or finalize the permanency plan (see Practice Guidance: Reasonable Efforts).
 2. Ensure that when a concurrent permanency plan has been ordered, reasonable efforts are made to finalize both the primary plan and the alternative plan (see policy 10.23 Foster Care: Case Planning).
 3. Document reasonable efforts in the case plan in Georgia SHINES and include:
 - a. A description of the circumstances requiring the child's removal;
 - b. How these circumstances prevent the child's safety;
 - c. Services offered or provided to the family by DFCS;
 - d. The family's response to services; and
 - e. All other efforts made to prevent removal.
 4. Provide documentation to the court detailing the services offered and provided to the family and the family's response.
 5. Review all court orders issued within the first 60 days following removal for findings of reasonable efforts to prevent removal or reasonable efforts were not required (see policy 17.3 Legal: Court Orders and Placement Authority).
 - a. Determine whether any order issued within the first 60 days following removal includes findings of reasonable efforts to prevent removal or reasonable efforts were not required;
 - b. Document the receipt of the court order on the Legal Action and Outcomes Detail page and upload all court orders in External Documentation in Georgia SHINES.
-  Nunc pro tunc orders must be carefully reviewed to ensure that only the judge's signature and not the finding is dated back to actual hearing date.
6. Complete the following for reasonable efforts to finalize the permanency plan:
 - a. Ensure that a judicial finding of reasonable efforts to finalize the permanency plan occurs at any permanency plan hearing, but no later than 12 months of the child's removal and every 12 months thereafter (see policy 17.1 Legal: The Juvenile Court Process);
 - b. Verify the court order contains the following:
 - i. The specific permanency plan;
 - ii. Judicial finding of reasonable efforts to finalize the permanency plan;
 - iii. The child/case specific efforts to achieve the permanency plan.
 - c. Document receipt of the court order in the Legal Action and Outcomes Detail page and upload all court orders into External Documentation in Georgia SHINES, if they are not uploaded by the Case Plan Reporting System (CPRS) in Georgia SHINES.

Nunc pro tunc orders must be carefully reviewed to ensure that only the judge's signature and not the finding is dated back to actual hearing date.

7. Notify the Revenue Maximization (Rev Max) Specialist via the Notification of Change (NOC) in Georgia SHINES when the received court order has been uploaded.

Social Services Supervisor

1. Provide guidance to the SSCM on conducting and documenting reasonable efforts.
2. Conduct a supervisory staffing with the SSCM to discuss:
 - a. Timely service provision to prevent removal, reunify the child and family or achieve an alternative permanency plan, as appropriate depending on whether the case is in Child Protective Services or Foster Care;
 - b. Whether reasonable efforts are being made;
 - c. How to document reasonable efforts in the case record.
3. Review documentation in Georgia SHINES to verify:
 - a. Reasonable efforts are being made to prevent removal, reunify the child and family or achieve an alternative permanency plan;
 - b. Timely and accurate completion of the Legal Status and Legal Action and Outcomes Detail pages;
 - c. Court orders have been uploaded to External Documentation;
 - d. The NOC is sent to Rev Max notifying them of uploaded court orders;
 - e. Court orders have the required language and case specific reasonable efforts are outlined in the order.
4. Assist the SSCM in contacting the SAAG when a court order does not meet the reasonable efforts language or case specific requirements.

Practice Guidance

Reasonable Efforts to Prevent Removal and/or Safely Reunify the Child and Family

DFCS is committed to making reasonable efforts to prevent a child's removal. Some examples of reasonable efforts include, but are not limited to:

1. Use of family resources, neighbors or other individuals in the community as safety interventions.
2. Use of community agencies or services as safety interventions.
3. Having the alleged maltreater leave the home, voluntarily or in response to legal action.
4. Having the non-maltreating parent, guardian or legal custodian move to a safe environment with the child.
5. Having the parent, guardian or legal custodian place the child outside of the home.

When making reasonable efforts, DFCS must consider the unique needs of each family to address the concerns identified. A determination by the court that DFCS made reasonable efforts in any individual case depends on whether DFCS offered and provided the services most likely to remedy a particular family's problem and/or actively facilitated safe reunification.

When determining whether reasonable efforts have been made, the court shall consider whether services to the child and his or her family were:

1. Relevant to the safety and protection of the child.
2. Adequate to meet the needs of the child and family.
3. Culturally and linguistically appropriate.
4. Available and accessible.
5. Consistent and timely.
6. Realistic under the circumstances.

When the court is determining whether reasonable efforts have been made to finalize an alternative permanent home for a child, the court shall also consider whether DFCS has completed the required diligent search and provided notice to persons identified during the diligent search.

State law defines reasonable efforts as due diligence and the provision of appropriate services. The judicial determination of "reasonable efforts" should be explicitly documented in the court order and made on a case-by-case basis; e.g., based on the individual circumstances/facts of the case which led the judge to conclude this finding.

 The order may enumerate the specific facts of the case or may reference the facts in such documents as the petition, court report, Case Plan, Comprehensive Child and Family Assessment (CCFA), etc.

The Adoption Assistance and Child Welfare Act of 1980 (PL 96-272) requires that support services be provided to families to strengthen their ability to provide for the safety and care of their children and prevent the unnecessary removal of the child. The judicial determination "reasonable efforts to prevent removal" is made whenever the court determines that DFCS was providing adequate services to preserve the family unit prior to the court's removal. It is recommended that the finding be obtained in the earliest possible order (i.e., the removal order or the order as a result of the preliminary protective hearing). If the finding is not made within 60 days of the child's removal, the child is not eligible for IV-E foster care maintenance payments for the duration of the child's stay (placement episode) in foster care. In emergency situations, the judge may find to the effect that it is "reasonable to make no efforts to maintain the child in the home" or "reasonable efforts to prevent removal were not appropriate or in the best interest of the child".

Once the child enters foster care, the court makes a judicial determination at each subsequent review to the effect that "reasonable efforts are being made to safely reunify the child and family unless reasonable efforts were not required. For the court to make a "reasonable efforts to reunify" finding, the case plan for reunification (see policy 10.23 Foster Care: Case Planning) must provide a description of the specific actions and services required of the parent, guardian or legal custodian and agency in order for the child to be safely returned. The judicial findings at each stage of juvenile court proceedings clarify what services were offered and provided to the parent, guardian or legal custodian and their outcome. Should termination of parental rights be pursued, the findings may be used as evidence.

Reasonable Efforts Not Required

Some circumstances do not require DFCS to reunify families. However, following submission of a case plan recommending that reunification services are not appropriate (non-reunification case plan), the court must make a judicial determination based on clear and convincing evidence. A hearing is held within 30 days of the filing of a non-reunification case plan (see policy 10.23 Foster Care: Case Planning). At the hearing, the court determines whether reunification services are not required by law or will be detrimental to the child and enters a finding to that effect. As with all hearings and reviews, the court is informed as to whether and when DFCS intends to proceed with TPR. The court also holds a permanency hearing to consider the proposed permanency plan and the steps to be taken to finalize the permanent placement of the child (see policy 17.1 Legal: The Juvenile Court Process). Once the court determines that reunification services are no longer required, the court requires that reasonable efforts be made to finalize an alternative permanency plan.

Reasonable Efforts to Finalize the Permanency Plan

The finding is usually made at the permanency plan hearing which should be held:

1. No later than 30 days after DFCS submits a non-reunification case plan to the court; or
2. For children under seven years of age at the time a petition for dependency is filed, no later than nine months after the children are considered to have entered foster care (see policy 17.1 Legal: The Juvenile Court Process);
3. For children seven years of age and older, no later than 12 months after the children are considered to have entered foster care;

For siblings removed at the same time and in which at least one child is under seven years of age at the time the dependency petition is filed, the permanency plan hearing shall be held no later than nine months after the children are considered to have entered foster care.

4. Subsequently, every six months after the initial permanency plan hearing.

To ensure compliance with Title IV-E requirements, DFCS policy and practice requires a hearing must be held within 12 months of removal and subsequently, every 12 months thereafter, as long as the child remains in care (see policy 17.1 Legal: The Juvenile Court Process).

The permanency plan in effect is the one in place (previously approved by the court) at the time of the hearing. The court order must specify the permanency plan. If the court finds that the child has been living in a stable home environment with the current caregiver(s) for the past 12 months and that removal from the caregiver(s) would be detrimental to the child's emotional well-being, the court may presume that continuation of the child's placement with the current caregiver is in the child's best interests and shall enter a finding that a change of placement is a failure by DFCS to make reasonable efforts to finalize the permanency plan in effect at the time of the hearing; provided, however, that such presumption shall not apply to prevent the return of the child to his or her parent, guardian, or legal custodian.

If the "reasonable efforts to finalize" finding is not made, the child cannot be IV-E reimbursable from the end of the 12th month following removal or the end of the 12th month following the month in which the most recent judicial determination of “reasonable efforts to finalize was made”. When a judicial determination is made, IV-E payments can begin effective the first day of the month in which the finding was made.

Aggravated Circumstances

The parent, guardian or legal custodian has:

1. Abandoned a child;
2. Aided or abetted, attempted conspired or solicited to commit murder or voluntary manslaughter of another child of the parent;
3. Subjected a child or his/her sibling to torture, chronic abuse, sexual abuse or sexual exploitation;
4. Committed the murder or voluntary manslaughter of his/her child’s other parent or has been convicted of aiding or abetting, attempting, conspiring or soliciting the murder or voluntary manslaughter of his/her child’s other parent;
5. Committed the murder or voluntary manslaughter of another child of the parent;
6. Committed an assault that resulted in serious bodily injury to his or her child or another child of the parent; or
7. Caused his child to be conceived as a result of having non-consensual sexual intercourse with the mother of his child or when the mother is less than ten years of age.

For the purpose of meeting the living with a specified relative prior to removal from the home requirement, one of the two following situations will apply:*
 - i. The child was living with the parent or specified relative, and was AFDC eligible in that home in the month of the voluntary placement agreement or initiation of court proceedings; or

2. Complete the Person Detail and Income and Resources pages in Georgia SHINES to allow the Revenue Maximization (RevMax) Specialist to determine if the child meets the AFDC relatedness

The “living with” and “removal from” condition must be met by the same specified relative. A child may be “physically or constructively” removed from the home (see policy 9.4 Eligibility: Removal from the Home).

criteria in the removal home.

Procedures

Social Services Case Manager

 - b. Verification is uploaded into External Documentation in Georgia SHINES.
 - c. Any changes are reported to RevMax via the NOC.
2. Staff with the SSCM if any follow-up is needed.

Practice Guidance

In all references to AFDC criteria, the eligibility of the child is based on the AFDC program in effect in Georgia's State Plan on July 16, 1996. Only those who meet the relatedness criteria are considered eligible.

Specified Relative and Removal Home

The removal home is the home of the specified relative from whom legal custody of the child was removed. The following relationships meet the requirements of a specified relative:

1. Parents (either by birth, legal adoption or step-relationship)
2. Grandparents (up to great-great-great)
3. Siblings (whole, half or step)
4. Aunts/uncles (up to great-great)
5. Nieces/nephews (up to great-great)
6. First cousin
7. First cousin once removed (the child of a first cousin)
8. Spouses of any person named in the above group, even after the marriage is terminated by death or divorce

The spouse of a stepparent or the spouse of a stepsibling is NOT within the specified degree of relationship

Relationship is established by one of the following:

1. Birth
2. Marriage
3. Legal adoption

An individual who has legal custody of the child does not meet the relationship requirement. Adoption or severance of parental rights does not terminate blood relationship for the specified relative requirement. The requirement for “living with a specified relative” is met if a newborn child is placed in DFCS care and responsibility directly from the hospital.

Eligibility Month

The eligibility month is defined as the month in which one of the following occurs:

1. The initiation of court proceedings (i.e., the filing of the complaint or petition) that led to the removal of the child; or
2. The date a VPA was signed by all parties.

Parental Deprivation

Deprivation results from one of the following situations in the removal home:

1. Death
2. Separation: Parents are legally separated and one of the parents is not living in the same house
3. Divorce: Parents are divorced and one of the parents is not living in the same house
4. Continual absence: One of the parents is continually absent from the home where the child resides
5. Institutionalized/incarcerated: One of the parents is in an institution or incarcerated, prior to the child’s placement
6. Incapacitated or disabled: Any condition of mind or body which substantially reduces or eliminates the ability of the parent to support or care for the child. The parent’s disability should be determined, and the disability continues for at least 30 days. If the parent is receiving SSI or Social Security disability benefits, Veteran’s Disability benefits (100%), Railroad benefits, or Worker’s Compensation benefits, the incapacitation requirement is met, and verification of benefits shall be included in the record (such as a copy of the award letter or copy of a check).
7. Termination of parental rights: The child is deprived from the date of the termination of parental rights
8. Unemployment of the principal wage earner: This condition only applies when both parents are present in the household. The child can be considered deprived if the principal wage-earning parent is unemployed.

Citizenship, Immigration and Identity

For additional information on citizenship, immigration and identity, see the link below in Forms and Tools to the Medicaid Manual Policy 2215 Citizenship/Immigration/Identity. The section outlines a wide variety of circumstances, classifications and verification one may encounter when assessing an individual’s status.

Citizenship/Immigration Status

Title IV-E can be claimed for an otherwise eligible child pending the SSCM's verification of immigrant status.

Qualified Alien

PRWORA defines a qualified alien as an alien who, at the time of application for, receipt or attempt to receive a Federal public benefit, is:

1. An alien who is lawfully admitted for permanent residence under the Immigration and Nationality Act.
2. An alien granted asylum under section 208 of the Immigration and Nationality Act.
3. A refugee who is admitted to the United States under section 207 of the Immigration and Nationality Act.
4. An alien who is paroled into the United States under section 212(d)(5) of the Immigration and Nationality Act for a period of at least one year.
5. An alien whose deportation is being withheld under section 243(h) of the Immigration and Nationality Act.
6. An alien who is granted conditional entry pursuant to section 203(a)(7) of the Immigration and Nationality Act as in effect prior to April 1, 1980.

The Personal Responsibility and Work Opportunity Reconciliation Act of 1996 (PRWORA) a/k/a The Welfare Reform Act

Requirements

The Division of Family and Children Services (DFCS) will:

1. Determine a child IV-E reimbursable when:
 - a. The child is under 18 years of age.
 - b. The child meets financial need criteria (based only on the child's income and resources once initial IV-E eligibility has been established).
 - c. The child resides in a IV-E reimbursable placement.
 - d. The child is in the custody of DFCS or another public agency under contract with the Georgia Department of Human Services (DHS).
 - e. There is a judicial determination of reasonable efforts to finalize the child's permanency plan that is in effect within 12 months of the child's removal and at least every 12 months thereafter while the child is in foster care (See policies 9.5 Eligibility: Reasonable Efforts and 17.1 Legal: The Juvenile Court Process).
 - f. A child enters foster care via Voluntary Placement Agreement (VPA) for the first 180 days, unless there has been a judicial determination of "contrary to the welfare" or "best interest" by a court.
2. Adhere to federal regulations which require a foster family home (relative or non-relative) and residential child care facility meet full approval standards.
3. Identify the following as reimbursable facilities:
 - a. A licensed or approved foster family home (see policy 14.1 Resource Development: Safety and Quality Standards).
 - b. A licensed or approved relative foster home (see policy 14.1 Resource Development: Safety and Quality Standards).
 - c. A private, non-profit group home or childcare facility licensed by the state (see policy 16.0 Room Board and Watchful \(RBWO\): Introduction to RBWO).
 - d. A public (government) non-medical child group home or child care facility licensed for no more than 25 children.
4. Notify Revenue Maximization (RevMax), via a Notification of Change (NOC) in Georgia SHINES, of circumstances that may affect a child's IV-E status, including:
 - a. Child turns 18.
 - b. Changes in child's income or resources.
 - c. Placement changes.
 - d. Changes in legal custody.
 - e. Judicial proceedings and court orders.
5. Ensure a child does not receive two IV-E payments for the same day.

Procedures

Social Services Case Manager

1. Notify the RevMax Specialist (RMS) via an NOC in Georgia SHINES of:
 - a. Any changes to the child's, parent's or placement resource's circumstances.

- b. A concurrent placement and the need to use state funds to pay the concurrent placement while continuing the IV-E per diem to the original placement.
2. Determine where the child “spends the night” as the home to receive the IV-E payment, when a child is moved from one IV-E reimbursable placement to another the same day.
3. Document all activities in Georgia SHINES within 72 hours of occurrence.

The RMS will:

1. Conduct a IV-E reimbursability redetermination every six months, including establishing reimbursability for the past six months and for the next six months with each redetermination.
2. Determine if IV-E eligibility or reimbursability is affected, when the SSCM reports changes.
3. Authorize payment from State funds to a concurrent placement, when notified of a concurrent payment.
4. Inform the SSCM of any changes in IV-E eligibility or reimbursability via the Georgia SHINES Eligibility Summary page, including the correct funding source and effective date.
5. Document any loss of IV-E eligibility or reimbursability in the narrative of the Contact Detail in Georgia SHINES.
6. Notify Regional Accounting of the need for funding re-rates.

Social Services Supervisor

1. Ensure the RMS is notified of the following via an NOC in Georgia SHINES:
 - a. Any changes to the child’s, parent’s or placement resource’s circumstances.
 - b. Concurrent placements.
2. Provide guidance to the SSCM, as needed.

Practice Guidance

The SSCM must understand the concepts of “IV-E eligibility” and “IV-E reimbursability,” and how IV-E reimbursement can fluctuate from month-to-month. Eligibility is determined on a one-time basis when the child initially enters care. It is based on the child’s situation at the time of removal. Once established, a child’s eligibility continues as long as the child remains in DFCS custody. Reimbursability refers to the federal share in paying for the maintenance costs of a child in care; i.e., charging the cost of care to IV-E Foster Care (IV-E FC). The state may also claim IV-E administrative costs when a child is IV-E reimbursable. A child may lose and regain reimbursability status depending on changes in:

1. Placement.
2. Financial need.
3. Legal responsibility for the placement and care of the child.
4. Judicial determination of “reasonable efforts to finalize the child’s permanency plan” obtained within 12 months of the child’s removal and at least every 12 months thereafter while the child is in care.

Generally, IV-E reimbursability is for the entire month; therefore, if a child is IV-E reimbursable for any part of a month, the child is IV-E reimbursable for the entire month. The only exception to the whole month rule occurs with a change in the child's placement. A change in placement affects the reimbursability as of the date of change. Any time reimbursability is lost, the child is reclassified to IV-E non-reimbursable.

Concurrent Payments

A concurrent placement is defined as the planned, purposeful absence of a child from his original foster home/facility which continues to be paid at the same time his temporary placement is paid. This situation requires consideration of payment sources as two IV-E payments cannot be made at the same time.

Non-IV-E Reimbursable Placements

Non-IV-E reimbursable placements include the following:

1. Regional youth detention centers (RYDC).
2. Youth forestry camps (YFC) (secure and non-secure).
3. Youth development centers (YDC) and other public or private facilities (secure and non-secure) that are operated primarily for the detention of delinquent children, which must be (a) physically restricting and (b) likely to be non-operational without a population of children adjudicated delinquent (i.e., hardware secure, locked facilities).
4. Medical facilities.
5. Relative homes that are not approved foster homes.

If a child enters a reimbursable foster care placement for part of a month, but is subsequently moved to a non-reimbursable facility for part of the same month, the child's cost of care is not reimbursable beginning on the date of placement in the non-reimbursable placement. The child is not IV-E reimbursable until entering a reimbursable placement.

Financial Need (Income and Resources)

The child must have financial need in Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC) terms for each month that he or she is in care. Only the child's income and resources are considered. In determining initial eligibility, the total income of the removal family, including the child, is considered. The income available to the child must be less than 185% of monthly foster care per diem expenses. The RMS determines whether the child's income meets the standard after applying certain deductions and disregards. The child's resources must not exceed $10,000 in any single month. If the child in foster care is working, it is important for the RMS to know if the child is a full-time student in order to determine how to count the child's income.

Legal Responsibility for Placement and Care

The county department must continue to have a valid court order or VPA giving DFCS placement responsibility for the child.

Fatal Flaws with IV-E

The following circumstances are fatal to IV-E eligibility; i.e., the child loses IV-E eligibility and reimbursability for the entire placement episode in foster care when:

1. A judicial determination of “contrary to the welfare” or “best interest” is not obtained in the first order that sanctions the removal of the child.
2. A judicial determination of “reasonable efforts to prevent removal” or “reasonable efforts are not required” is not obtained within 60 days of the child’s removal via court order.
3. The child reaches age 18.
4. DFCS custody is terminated.
5. DFCS fails to acquire a court order within 180 days of a VPA that contains the judicial finding that continued placement is in the “best interest” of the child.
6. The child is on a trial home visit beyond six months or the trial home visit exceeds the time frame authorized by the court.
7. The child is on runaway status beyond six months.

Codes/References

Title 45 Code of Federal Regulations (CFR) Part 1356.21(e)

Requirements

The Division of Family and Children Services (DFCS) will:

1. Notify the Revenue Maximization (RevMax) Specialist (RMS) via the Notification of Change (NOC) in Georgia SHINES anytime a child in foster care is placed on a trial home visit, runs away or has a child.

2. Ensure that a trial home visit does not exceed six months in duration, unless the court orders a longer trial home visit (see policy 10.24 Foster Care: Trial Home Visits).

If a trial home visit extends beyond six months without authorization by the court, or exceeds the time authorized by the court, and the child subsequently returns to foster care, the placement must be considered a new placement. IV-E eligibility must be newly established including judicial determinations regarding contrary to the welfare and reasonable efforts to prevent removal.

3. Provide foster care maintenance payments for a child, who is not in DFCS custody, but is placed together with their parenting youth in foster care.
4. Maintain responsibility for initial and ongoing IV-E determinations for any Georgia child placed outside the state.

Any IV-E eligible child in foster care in Georgia who is placed in another state shall be eligible for medical coverage in that state.

5. Provide medical coverage for any IV-E eligible child placed in Georgia from another state.
6. Retain responsibility for medical coverage of any child not IV-E eligible placed outside of Georgia.

The sending state shall retain responsibility for medical coverage for a child not IV-E eligible in foster care placed into Georgia from another state.

Procedures

Trial Home Visits or Runaways

The Social Services Case Manager (SSCM) will:

1. Track the length of time a child is on a trial home visit or runaway status.
2. Notify the RMS via a NOC in Georgia SHINES of the trial home visit or runaway episode.
 - The RMS will terminate IV-E reimbursability for a IV-E eligible child.
3. Submit a new IV-E application if a child returns to foster care from a trial home visit or runaway episode.
 - a. New eligibility determinations are not required if the child returns to foster care within six months or prior to any court authorized extension of a trial home visit.
 - b. New determinations of all eligibility factors, including judicial determinations of “contrary to the welfare” and “reasonable efforts”, are required if the child returns to foster care after six months or after the court authorized period for a trial home visit as this is considered a new placement episode.

Parenting Youth in Foster Care

The SSCM will:

1. Notify the RMS via the NOC in Georgia SHINES when a youth in foster care gives birth, indicating whether the youth and child are in the same placement and whether DFCS obtained custody of the child.
2. Request a Payment of Care waiver to add the child to the minor parent's foster care per diem, if the child is placed with the minor parent and is not in DFCS custody.
3. Assist the parenting youth with applying for medical assistance for the newborn child, if DFCS does not obtain custody of the newborn child.
 - a. Fax the Medical Assistance Application to the appropriate RMS.
 - b. Notify the RMS that the Medical Assistance Application is for the child of a parenting youth in DFCS custody.
 - c. Complete the Person Detail for the child in the parenting youth's case in Georgia SHINES.
4. Complete an initial Medicaid and IV-E Foster Care Application on behalf of the child, if DFCS obtains custody of the child (see policy 9.2 Eligibility: Applying for Medical Services at Initial Entry and Exit and policy 9.3 Eligibility: Applying for Initial Funding).

Out-of-State IV-E Foster Care

The SSCM will:

1. For a Georgia IV-E child placed out-of-state through the Interstate Compact on the Placement of Children (ICPC) (see policy 15.2 Interstate Compact on the Placement of Children: Placement of Georgia Children into Other States):
 - a. Complete all required information in Georgia SHINES.
 - b. Notify the RMS via the NOC in Georgia SHINES of the child's placement out-of-state.
 - c. Obtain verification from the RMS of the child's continuing IV-E eligibility. The RMS will update the placement in Georgia Gateway and close the Georgia Medicaid case.
 - d. Notify and provide verification to the receiving state of the child's IV-E foster care status.
 - e. Provide instructions to the out-of-state placement provider for obtaining Medicaid in the receiving state.
2. For an out-of-state IV-E child placed in Georgia through ICPC (see policy 15.3 Interstate Compact on the Placement of Children: Placement of Children from Other States into Georgia/Georgia Receiving State):
 - a. Complete a Medicaid Application in a Non-Incident Foster Care Child (FCC) stage for the ICPC IV-E foster child (determined IV-E by the sending state).
 - b. Submit the Medicaid Application to RevMax for processing in Georgia Gateway.
 - c. Provide RevMax the following verifications:
 - i. Child is receiving IV-E foster care per diem from the sending state.
 - ii. Child is currently in Georgia in an approved foster care placement.
 - iii. Child is under the age of 18.
 - iv. Child's social security number.
 - v. Child's foster home address.

3. For a Georgia child not eligible for IV-E and placed out-of-state through ICPC:
 - a. Complete all required information and updates in Georgia SHINES.
 - b. Send a NOC via Georgia SHINES to the RMS to notify them of the child's placement out-of-state.
 - c. Notify the receiving state that the child is not IV-E eligible.
 - d. Discuss medical options with the child's placement provider and determine if there is an out-of-state medical provider willing to become a Georgia Medicaid provider.

The legal state of the child in foster care is responsible for any costs for a child that is determined to be not IV-E eligible.

The Social Services Supervisor (SSS) will:

1. Review the case record in Georgia SHINES to ensure:
 - a. Compliance with trial home visit timeframes.
 - b. Diligent efforts are being made to locate a runaway child (see policy 19.22 Case Management: Missing Child).
 - c. Notification to RevMax via the NOC in Georgia SHINES of the trial home visit, runaway status, birth of a child by a youth in foster care or placement of a child out-of-state.
 - d. Submission of a Medicaid Application for an out-of-state IV-E child placed in Georgia.
2. Provide guidance to the SSCM, as needed.

Practice Guidance

Trial Home Visit

A trial home visit refers to the circumstance when a child in DFCS custody returns to the home from which he or she was removed for a time period designated by the juvenile court. A trial home visit should be less than six months unless extended by the court, in order not to adversely affect a child's IV-E eligibility/reimbursability. DFCS retains legal custody for the duration of a trial home visit. Although a IV-E eligible child retains medical assistance during a trial home visit, the child is not eligible to receive IV-E payments. Parents cannot be paid a per diem for caring for their own children.

Parenting Youth in Foster Care

The Title IV-E program allows for states to claim reimbursement for the cost of an infant living in the same placement of the parenting youth in foster care without requiring DFCS to obtain custody of the infant (see policy 9.1 Eligibility: Foster Care Maintenance Payments). The added cost of care for the infant is reimbursed through the parenting youth's IV-E status. Only one payment is made to the placement provider. State funds may be used if the child remains in the custody of a parenting youth in foster care who is not IV-E eligible.

If the child of a parenting youth in foster care is ever removed and placed apart from his or her parent, judicial placement authority must be obtained by DFCS. The infant would be entered into Georgia SHINES as a foster child and a Medicaid Application and IV-E Application for Foster Care would have to be submitted to RevMax. If the issues requiring the removal from the parenting youth in foster care are addressed and the court sanctions reunification, the child may be placed in the same placement as the parenting youth and not lose IV-E eligibility or reimbursability.

 - a. The child receives title IV-E FCMPs, and the parent abdicates their parental responsibility resulting in DFCS custody and refuses to engage in case planning and reunification. This includes:
 - i. Failing to return for or retrieve their child; or
 - ii. Leaving their child with DFCS or others and not returning.

“Failure to Return” should be selected on the Custody page in Georgia SHINES as a child and family circumstances at removal in these situations.

OR

- b. There is an existing child support order when the child enters foster care; or
- c. There is a new child support order from the juvenile court subsequent to the child entering foster care.

Refrain from referring parents for child support that otherwise meet the criteria for referral when:

- The child’s birth resulted from incest or rape;
- The child is in the permanent custody of DFCS;
- The child returned home at or prior to the time the eligibility determination was completed i.e., the child returned home at the 72-hour hearing;
- The child receives Adoption Assistance benefits;
- The child’s parents are unknown;
- The child’s parents are deceased;
- The child’s parent is a minor in foster care; or
- The child has attained 18 years of age.

3. Verify whether “Failure to Return” is selected on the Custody page in Georgia SHINES when the parent abdicates their parental responsibility resulting in DFCS custody and refuses to engage in case planning and reunification.

4. Where a child support referral has been made, periodically assess whether the parents are actively engaged in case planning and reunification services, and whether establishing, enforcing, or continuing to enforce child support will prevent or delay reunification.

i The assessment may be done in conjunction with the case review process.

5. Notify DCSS when it is determined that it is no longer appropriate to establish, enforce, or continue to enforce a child support order as the parents are actively engage in case planning and reunification services, and the reduced income may prevent or delay reunification.

6. If the child support referral was made pursuant to a juvenile court order, obtain approval from the juvenile court prior to notifying DCSS that it is no longer appropriate to establish, enforce, or continue to enforce a child support order.

7. Document in Georgia SHINES within 72 hours of occurrence, changes to the child’s foster care case impacting child support establishment and collection. This may include but is not limited to the completing the Foster Care Eligibility Notice of Change (NOC).

i Information is exchanged between DFCS and DCSS through an information interface connecting Georgia SHINES and the DCSS system known as $TARS. A child support referral to DCSS from DFCS initiates the information exchange.

Procedures

Social Services Case Manager

1. To facilitate a referral for to DCSS for child support:
 - a. Complete and submit the IV-E/Foster Care Eligibility Application in Georgia SHINES to the Revenue Maximization Specialist (RMS) when the child enters foster care in accordance with policy 9.3 Eligibility: Applying for Initial Funding, for a determination of whether the child meets the criteria for title IV-E FCMP.
 - i. If “Failure to Return” is selected on the Custody Page, write “Failure to Return in the Comment Box on the IV-E/Foster Care Eligibility Application; or
 - ii. If there is an existing child support court order when the child enters foster care:
 1. Document the court order in Georgia SHINES, upload a copy to External Documentation and add “child support order” in the Comments section.
 2. Write “existing child support order” in the Comment box on the IV-E/Foster Care Eligibility Application.
 - b. If the juvenile court orders child support subsequent to the child entering care:
 - i. Upload the order to External Documentation in Georgia SHINES. Add “child support order” in the Comment box, and
 - ii. Complete the NOC requesting a referral to DCSS and write “new juvenile court order for child support” in the Comment box.

Referrals to DCSS for child support are made by the RMS. For the initial referral, the RMS reviews the application and other information to determine whether the case meets the criteria for referral. For subsequent child support orders from the juvenile court, the RMS reviews the NOC and court order and makes the referral. Referred cases go to DCSS in the name of each qualifying child. DCSS seeks child support from each parent of the child. Following the initial referral, information is available to DCSS only for those parents who are listed in Georgia SHINES and linked to the child.

2. Inform parents who met the criteria of the referral to DCSS for child support and of their obligation to cooperate with DCSS while their child remains in foster care.
3. After the RMS makes the child support referral:
 - a. Report or initiate changes to DCSS by updating all required fields in Georgia SHINES to include:
 - i. A change to the permanency plan;
 - ii. A juvenile court order or any other orders for child support, and upload the order in External Documentation;
 -  DCSS must establish a new support order in Superior Court to collect child support ordered anywhere other than Superior Court, in most cases.
 - iii. Request a new child support referral for another parent by:

1. Updating the person detail page with the new parent’s demographic information, including their relationship to the child; and
2. Completing the NOC.

DCSS considers one alleged father per child at a time. Following another individual’s negative DNA test or upon identifying a previously unknown parent, a new referral to DCSS is required to initiate child support on that individual. Complete the NOC, explain the circumstances in the Comment box, to prompt Rev Max to initiate the new referral.

- iv. New information regarding a parent’s employment status;
- v. Effective date of termination of parental rights (TPR) or voluntary surrenders;
- vi. Effective date of the child’s return home.

DCSS receives changes from DFCS through the Georgia SHINES interface with DCSS’ $TARS.

4. Where a child support referral has been made, in conjunction with the Social Services Supervisor (SSS) periodically reassess whether the parents are actively engaged in case planning and reunification services, and whether establishing, enforcing, or continuing to enforce child support will prevent or delay reunification.
5. When it is determined that a notification to DCSS is warranted based on the determination that establishing, enforcing, or continuing to enforce child support will prevent or delay reunification:
 - a. If the child support referral was pursuant to a juvenile court order, obtain approval from the juvenile court prior to notifying DCSS (see policy 17.1 Legal: The Juvenile Court Process).
 - b. Notify DCSS via email at DCSSFieldsOperations@dhs.ga.gov. Include the following information in the email: “Due to the parent’s participation in case planning, compliance with services, and potential for a delay in reunification caused by reduced income, DFCS has determined that this case is no longer appropriate to establish, enforce, or continue to enforce a child support order. Please close this case.”

Follow up with DCSS may be needed to determine the status/outcome of this notification. Generally, DCSS will respond to the email within 10 business days to notify DFCS of the status/outcome of the case. The SSCM should send a follow-up email to DCSS if no response has been received within 30 calendar days.

6. Document events, efforts, decisions and results pertaining to child support in the documentation narrative in Georgia SHINES.

Social Services Supervisor

1. Review the case record in Georgia SHINES to:
 - a. Verify on the Custody page that the SSCM selected “failure to return” and that the selection matches the circumstances of the case, where appropriate.
 - b. Ensure all relevant fields in Georgia SHINES are completed or updated to report changes in the case impacting child support.

- c. Ensure the person detail page in Georgia SHINES and an NOC are completed when a new referral is required on an additional or newly identified potential father.
2. During monthly staffings, discuss the SSCM's assessment of whether the parent is actively engaged in case planning and reunification services and if the continued child support will prevent or delay reunification.
3. Ensure the SSCM follows the outlined procedures and notifies DCSS using the email content outlined provided, when it is determined establishing, enforcing, or continuing to enforce child support will prevent or delay reunification.
4. Ensure that when the child support order was pursuant to a juvenile court order, the SSCM obtains the approval of juvenile court prior to notifying DCSS that it is no longer appropriate to establish, enforce, or continue to enforce a child support order requested.

The RMS will:

1. Refer the parents to the DCSS via Georgia SHINES as part of the eligibility determination for medical assistance and title IV-E, if:
 - a. The child receives title IV-E FCMPs and
 - b. The comment box indicates "Failure to Return" is selected on the Custody page in Georgia SHINES as a child and family circumstances at removal or,
 - c. There is an existing child support order when the child enters foster care, or
 - d. A child support order is issued by the new juvenile court subsequent to the initial eligibility determination.
2. Refer a new alleged parent to DCSS when notified via the NOC in Georgia SHINES.

Practice Guidance

Reasons for Limiting Child Support Referrals

The Administration of Children and Families' (ACF), Children's Bureau (CB) affords States the flexibility to determine which cases are appropriate for a referral to child support. States can narrowly define the term "where appropriate" and only refer cases where there will be no adverse impact on the successful achievement of the child's permanency plan of reunification. CB notes that studies show the assignment of the rights to child support is generally not found to be cost effective when applied to families where children are eligible for title IV-E FCMP as the parent(s) of these children are likely to be living in poverty. Reducing the income of the parent(s) could impede their ability to engage in reunification efforts, potentially extending a child's time in foster care. In these circumstances, it is probably not in the child's best interest to secure an assignment of child support.

Georgia law also allows DCSS to request a modification to the collection of child support based on a child's permanency plan if the child support may impede the parent's ability to establish a household and prepare for the child's return.

Child Support Referral and Collections

RevMax is responsible for referring cases to DCSS via Georgia SHINES during the eligibility determination for title IV-E and medical assistance, when a new parent is identified, or when there is a juvenile court order.

When DFCS has temporary custody of the child, child support funds collected by DCSS are used to pay for the child's care. Any remaining or unused funds may be deposited in a restricted funds account for the child (see Field Fiscal Services Financial Part 2 Manual 2403 Financial Section II: Restricted Funds - Children regarding restricted funds).

DCSS depends on DFCS to share critical updates that determine whether they continue collecting child support and where they are required to send those funds. For example, when DFCS enters TPR in Georgia SHINES, DCSS learns of the change through the interface. As a result, the collection of new child support from that parent ceases. However, DCSS may continue to collect past due child support, also known as arrears, for any months the child was in foster care that the parent did not pay.

Paternity

When a case has been referred to DCSS and where paternity is an issue, DCSS arranges and pays for DNA testing. However, if the alleged father tested is the biological father, he will be required to pay for the testing. Any other need by the county department to establish paternity e.g., in preparation for filing a petition for TPR, identification of a placement resource, DFCS may initiate paternity testing in accordance with policy 19.23 Case Management: Paternity Testing.

Discussion

Overview

Foster care is the temporary out of home care for children who cannot live with their families primarily due to safety threats within their own home. The Division of Family and Children Services' (DFCS) Foster Care Program through partnership with the family, caregivers, court and other stakeholders provides support and strengthen families, protect children from further child abuse, and support every child having a permanent family.

Goals

1. Ensure the safety and well-being of children in care;
2. Enhance caregiver protective capacities so caregivers are able to ensure the safety and well-being of their children;
3. Preserve family relationships and connections for children;
4. Promote expedited permanency for children in foster care by:
 - a. Assessing the needs of the child, the family and the foster care givers utilizing a trauma-informed approach;
 - b. Ensuring the safety, stability and security of children;
 - c. Supporting families;
 - d. Prioritizing placement with kinship caregivers.
 - e. Partnering with families to identify solutions and achieve needed changes in their behavior and/or circumstances;
 - f. Providing services and supports to children and families address the reason for foster care and to prevent reentry into care;

- g. Supporting caregivers to meet the needs of children in their care.
- h. Minimizing placement disruptions;
- i. Meeting the unique developmental needs of children from birth to five years of age;
- j. Addressing the needs of youth and young adults to ensure their successful transition to adulthood.

Safety, Permanency, and Well-Being

Federal Law establishes provisions for reasonable efforts to preserve and reunify families when children must enter foster care. In addition, there are established safety, permanency and well-being outcomes for children in foster care. Both federal and state law specify compressed time frames for judicial reviews and decisions that are intended to move children quickly through the child welfare system to permanency. Georgia's child welfare practice remains mindful of these factors when working with families to establish case plan outcomes, provide appropriate services, and make permanency decisions. As a result, it is anticipated that children will spend less time in foster care and will experience fewer placement disruptions. Notwithstanding, DFCS must work in tandem with the judicial system and with community partners to achieve safety, permanency and well-being for children in foster care.

Children require a variety of services to promote their health, well-being and safety. Due to the trauma experienced by children who enter foster care, many of them will have one or more needs that require immediate attention and sometimes ongoing care and treatment. Foster care provides an opportunity to conduct a comprehensive trauma-informed assessment of each child's needs and respond to those needs through a combination of short and long-term interventions. Exposure to intensely traumatic events may require ongoing treatment after a child exits foster care. Consequently, case managers must be knowledgeable and resourceful in developing and utilizing resources to enable children to achieve the highest level of functioning possible to support successful permanency outcomes.

Responsibilities

While their child is in foster care, parents/guardians/legal custodians have the responsibility to:

1. Collaborate with DFCS in developing written case plans, including concurrent permanency plans to support timely permanency outcomes for their child.
2. Partner with DFCS to mitigate safety threats which led to the removal of the child from the home;
3. Actively participate in services aimed at making behavioral changes and improving family conditions that can support the child return home.
4. Maintain contact with their children through regular, consistent visitation;
5. Inform the DFCS Social Services Case Manager (SSCM) about significant changes, such as a change of address, telephone number, job, income, health or marriage circumstances, as well as changes in relationships, household composition (including unrelated adults), etc.;
6. Actively participate in planning for their children at court hearings, periodic reviews and meetings with local DFCS staff, etc.; and

7. Pay child support on behalf of their children in care, including medical coverage (if available to the parent).

DFCS has the responsibility to:

1. Ensure the safety and wellbeing of each child in care;
2. Treat parents/guardians/legal custodian, children and their caregivers with dignity and respect;
3. Provide excellent customer service;
4. Assist each parents/guardians/legal custodian in understanding the seriousness of foster care and the child's need for permanency within 12 months of entering care; Inform the parent that parental rights could be terminated should reunification not occur in an expeditious manner;
5. Participate with the parents/guardians/legal custodian in developing written case plans designed to achieve permanency for their child;
6. Provide services to parents/guardians/legal custodian to enhance diminished protective capacity that necessitated foster care;
7. Arrange regular visits between the parents/guardians/legal custodian and their child;
8. Preserve sibling connections with children in care when they are not placed together;
9. Share information with the parents/guardians/legal custodian about the child's well-being and experiences during placement;
10. Inform the parents/guardians/legal custodian of placement changes and any major illnesses of the child; Make every effort to contact the parent prior to the child undergoing surgery;
11. Partner with families during action planning and through the development of problem-solving skills;
12. Conduct diligent searches in partnership with the family to identify absent parents and kin to serve as caregivers or other supports to the family.
13. Partner with parents/guardians/legal custodian in planning for the child by having regularly scheduled meetings;
14. Partner with the community to support families;
15. Reinforce progress and celebrate accomplishments with families;
16. Recommend the child be returned to the parents/guardians/legal custodian when the circumstances which made foster care placement necessary have been ameliorated to the point where the child will be safe in the home; and
17. Enter and update all case information in Georgia SHINES to assure effective tracking of all children in foster care.

Practice Guidance

Initial Placement

The removal of a child from their home and placement into foster care is a time of emotional turmoil for the child and family. Typically, a child entering foster care blames himself/herself for what has happened, and fears are exaggerated in the child's mind. Removal may be equated with the permanent loss of family. Because of the trauma of removal, the child will need help with the grieving process and its stages of shock (denial), bargaining, anger, depression and eventually, coping with and understanding the loss. A child, who is unable to express his /her feelings about separation and loss, often acts out the pain through problematic behaviors, physical symptoms and ailments.

The placement process must be carefully managed to minimize the impact of separation and loss experienced by both the child and his/her parent, guardian or legal custodian. This initial placement period requires intensive intervention by DFCS to minimize trauma while determining the safety, permanency and well-being needs of the child and family. The CPS and Permanency SSCM should coordinate a joint visit where parents, guardians or legal custodians are engaged in potential placement identification, pre-placement discussions and are asked to provide details and items that will aid in their child's transition to foster care (i.e. special needs, strengths, talents, interests, favorite foods, medications etc.). Partnering with parents, guardians or legal custodians early in the life of the case and facilitating visitation within required time frames can serve to foster cooperation and lessen the anxiety experienced when a child is removed from their home.

Tips to Minimize Trauma at Removal and Placement into Foster Care

1. Plan ahead as much as possible to reduce the element of surprise.^[1] Keep the family informed of our involvement and that removal is a possibility.
2. Engage the parent/child/other household members during the assessment and development of the genogram to identify supportive individuals and/or placement resources for their children, i.e. kin, friends, etc.
3. Identify a placement before removal, if possible. If the child needs to wait at the DFCS office while a placement is located, find a comfortable place for them to wait away from your phone conversations with prospective placements (to avoid hearing rejections), and perhaps with something to do to entertain themselves.
4. Collaborate with other agencies, when possible. Clarify roles and expectations to assist with the transition.
5. Separate children from the chaos of arrest, interrogation, or resistance on the part of the parents.
6. Engage the parents in helping the child. Remain calm. Move slowly. If the parent is visibly agitated, help to calm the parent down to reduce the effects on the child.
7. Explain to the child what is happening. Give the child as much information as possible as to where they are going and where they will be placed. Assure them that this is not their fault. Assure them that they are safe and will be cared for. Assure them that their siblings, if separated, are safe and will be cared for and they will see their family soon. Don't make promises you can't keep.
8. Provide sensory comfort, familiarity, help with settling in. Ask the parent, or the child, to gather together some familiar things before taking them away. Let the parent put child into the car seat, say good-bye, assist in the process of removal.
9. Ask children if they are hungry or thirsty. Provide comfort food. Ask them what they would like.
10. If the child must be picked up from school or other location to remove due to safety concerns, create a chance for the child to go home and pick up some things from home. Perhaps a kin or friend could meet them there or go with them to help pack some belongings.
11. Ask the parent and the child about medical conditions, allergies, medications. Especially for babies and very young children, ask the parent for information about feeding, schedules, routines.
12. Take time to help the child transition into the foster home. Make every effort not to use a provider to transport the child to their initial placement. The child may have connected to you during the removal. They have already had one abrupt separation. It may be reassuring to the child to know that the worker knows the people and place where they will be staying. Be a constant in the child's life until visits with parents can start.

13. If the child is being placed with a foster parent, ask the foster parents to meet with the child's parents to exchange information about the child and the child's living situation.
14. Inform the placement caregiver (foster parent, kin, etc.) about the child – medical conditions, allergies, medications, known behavioral and emotional issues, important people, anything that will help them to understand the child and to help them feel safe and comfortable.
15. Empathize, connect, and try to understand the child's perspective.
 - a. Be open to listening if they want to talk.
 - b. Acknowledge the child's feelings and the difficulty of what they are going through.
 - c. Acknowledge their love for their parents and their parents love for them.
16. Keep the parents informed of how the child is doing, when they will see the child, what they can do to support the child and to reunite with the child.
17. Support child's relationships and family connections:
 - a. Place siblings together.
 - b. Visitation is extremely important. In addition to their own trauma of being separated, children may worry about the safety and wellbeing of those family members from whom they are separated. Seeing that they are OK can ease that worry. If siblings are placed separately, arrange for sibling visits ASAP, and/or ask foster parents to allow and arrange for sibling contact. Set up visitation between child, siblings and parents as soon as possible.
 - c. Notify the child's school so they can be supportive, if the child remains in the school, or to provide classmates the opportunity for closure or continued connection if the child is to attend a different school. Allow the child to resume attending school as soon as possible. School may have been the one place where they felt safe.
18. Provide services aimed at healing and wellbeing as soon as possible, including trauma informed services:
 - a. Make sure the child has someone to talk to about what's happening that they feel comfortable with.
 - b. Refer the child and parents for assessments, counseling and/or other trauma informed therapy.
 - c. Provide training, information and support to the foster parents to help them care for the child and to address the child's needs.

Motor Vehicle 'Hot Car' Safety

Children are sensitive to heat as their body temperature can heat up three to five times faster than an adult's. Children will die if their body temperature exceeds 107 degrees. Even at a temperature of 60 degrees outdoors, the temperature inside a car can exceed 110 degrees. At initial placement, caregivers should be reminded of motor vehicle safety as it pertains to hot cars, and steps they can take to avoid related serious injury or death. The U.S. Department of Transportation (DOT) National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA) recommends the following precautions to take in order to avoid child heatstroke.

1. Never leave a child unattended in a vehicle – even if the windows are partially open or the engine is running, and the air conditioning is on;

2. Make a habit of looking in the vehicle – front and back – before locking the door and walking away;
3. Ask the childcare provider to call if the child does not show up for care as expected;
4. Do things that serve as a reminder that a child is in the vehicle, such as placing a phone, purse, or briefcase in the back seat to ensure no child is accidentally left in the vehicle or writing a note or using a stuffed animal placed in the driver’s view to indicate a child is in the car seat;
5. Always lock your vehicle when not in use and store keys out of a child’s reach, so children cannot enter unattended. Teach children that a vehicle is not a play area;
6. A child in distress due to heat should be removed from the vehicle as quickly as possible and rapidly cooled.

Pictures of Children in Foster Care

Pictures are useful tools in child welfare cases. Pictures serve as evidence in child abuse cases. They can be utilized as a resource for identifying children in foster care who need to be transported by a service provider, have been abducted or have runaway. Pictures may also document one’s childhood and play a vital role in the development of the child’s Life Book while in foster care.

Because of trauma that children in foster care have suffered, it is imperative that sensitivity is used when taking pictures of children. Parents, caregivers, and children, when age and developmentally appropriate, should be provided an explanation of the need for maintaining updated pictures in the case record.

If a current picture meeting the criteria outlined in procedures is available and can be uploaded, an additional picture is not needed. However, if a current photo is not available, the SSCM should engage the parents and/or caregivers, when possible, in taking a picture of the child using the SSCM’s state issued camera or mobile device. The picture should appear natural and not intrusive.

Safe to Sleep

Caregivers of infants' ages 0-12 months old must be informed of conditions that constitute a safe sleeping environment and that reduce the risk of Sudden Infant Death Syndrome (SIDS), also known as “crib death” (See DFCS Infant Safe Sleep Guidelines and Protocol for additional guidance). Prior to placing a child with a placement resource, the home environment should be assessed to ensure that safe sleep conditions exist. At minimum, caregivers must be advised of the three primary safe sleep recommendations of the American Academy of Pediatrics (AAP) commonly referred to as the ‘ABC’s’ of safe sleep:

Alone – The baby’s sleep area should be close to, but separate from, where caregivers and others sleep. The sleeping area should be free of soft objects, toys, and loose bedding.

Back – Infants should always be placed on their back to sleep for naps and at night.

Crib – Place infants on a firm sleep surface, such as on a safety-approved crib mattress, covered by a fitted sheet.

Information outlined above should be discussed with the child and caregiver on the day placement occurs and encouraged during pre-placement visits.

Sibling

Sibling is defined as a person with whom a child shares a biological mother or father or one or both parents in common by blood, adoption or marriage, even if the marriage was terminated by death or dissolution. Additionally, the relationship between a child and his/her siblings shall not be severed until the relationship is terminated by a final adoption order.

- a. The crisis is anticipated to end within 90 calendar days or up to a maximum of 180 calendar days if extended: and
 - b. There are no safety concerns or allegations of child abuse.
2. Properly execute the written VPA binding on all parties to the agreement, for any child who enters care through a VPA only after services and all other placement options to prevent placement in foster care have been explored and entering care is determined to be in the best interest of the child in accordance with policy 20.6 Special Circumstances: Voluntary Placement Agreement.
 3. Verify that the Voluntary Placement Agreement to Place a Child in Foster Care (Authorization) form was uploaded to External Documentation in Georgia SHINES, has been signed by all parties, and specifies at a minimum:

 6. Utilize the following established uniform procedure/system consistent with state law, for revocation by the parent(s), guardian(s) or legal custodian(s) of a VPA and return of the child to their home or the home of a relative:

Hereafter refer to revocation as termination of the VPA by the parent(s), guardian(s) or legal custodian(s).

- a. Request the parent(s), guardian(s) or legal custodian(s) sign the Voluntary Placement Agreement to Place a Child in Foster Care (Termination) form or provide another written request to terminate the VPA. All parties who signed the Voluntary Placement Agreement to Place a Child in Foster Care (Authorization) form must also sign the Voluntary Placement Agreement to Place a Child in Foster Care (Termination) form or other written request to terminate the VPA.

 - c. The County Director approves the request for an extension of the VPA.

The VPA cannot exceed 180 calendar days from the original date of the execution of the VPA.

In such instances, follow procedures for termination of the VPA.

9. Petition the court for custody of the child if it is determined that the child is unable to return home safely (see policy 17.1 Legal: The Juvenile Court Process).

The petition must be filed in time for a hearing to be held, a judicial determination made that continued placement is in the best interest of the child, that the return of the child to such home would be contrary to the child's best interest and the signed order obtained within 180 days of the original date of the execution of the VPA.

10. Immediately make a report to the CPS Intake Communications Center (CICC) in accordance with policy 3.24 Intake: Mandated Reporters if instances of child abuse are suspected or become known or there are safety concerns during the VPA.

 - iii. Obtain and review any court orders.
 - iv. Monitor the child's time in care and ensure the court conducts a permanency plan hearing within 12 months of the child's entry into foster care via the initial VPA (see policy 17.2 Legal: Case Review/Permanency Plan Hearings).
- 9. If instances of child abuse are suspected or become known or there are safety concerns during the VPA:
 - a. Immediately make a report to CICC in accordance with policy 3.24 Intake: Mandated Reporters.
 - b. In conjunction with the Special Investigation determine if the child would be safe if returned home.
 - c. If it is determined that the child will be unable to return home safely, in consultation with the SAAG, petition the court for custody of the child (see policy 17.1 Legal: The Juvenile Court Process).
- 10. Document all VPA activities in Georgia SHINES within 72 hours of occurrence, including uploading into External Documentation:
 - a. Signed Voluntary Placement Agreement to Place a Child in Foster Care (Authorization)
 - b. Any approved extension of the VPA
 - c. The Voluntary Placement Agreement to Place a Child in Foster Care (Termination) or other written requests to terminate the VPA
 - d. Court Orders (when there is court intervention)

The Revenue Maximization (Rev Max) Specialist (RMS) will:

1. Determine whether the child meets the AFDC Relatedness criteria in the month in which the VPA was executed. A judicial determination of reasonable efforts to prevent removal is not required to meet IV-E eligibility.
2. Make a medical assistance and IV-E determination regarding the child (see policy 9.2 Eligibility: Applying for Medical Services at Initial Entry and 9.3 Eligibility: Applying for Initial Funding).

Social Services Supervisor

1. Review the VPA in Georgia SHINES External Documentation to ensure all appropriate parties have signed and the information contained is complete and accurate, including that any ICWA provisions are met if the child is subject to ICWA.
2. Participate in the transfer staffing to ensure the smooth transition of the child into foster care.
3. Conduct a staffing with the SSCM to discuss:
 - a. Timeframes for the VPA.
 - b. Request from the parent(s), guardian(s) or legal custodian(s) for an extension of the VPA.
 - c. The need for court intervention when the child cannot safely return home within 180 days, ensuring that all court action occurs timely.
 - d. Services provided to the child and parent(s)/guardian(s) or custodian(s) to meet any needs identified and progress made
4. Monitor the VPA to prevent the VPA from exceeding the 90 calendar days or 180 days if an extension was granted.
5. Review any request for an extension of the VPA to determine appropriateness. Obtain County Director approval if an extension is recommended.
6. Ensure the child is returned to the parent within 72 hours of the written request to terminate the VPA, or immediately if an Indian child subject to ICWA.
7. Ensure the court is notified of termination of the VPA for an Indian child subject to ICWA.
8. Ensure the SSCM seeks court intervention when the child cannot safely return home; or the parent(s)/guardian(s) or legal custodians are unable or unwilling to regain custody of the child within 180 days of child's time in care.
 - a. Ensure the petition is filed within sufficient time so the order will be in place prior to the 180th day.
 - b. Review the court order for the appropriate judicial determination that continued placement is in the best interest of the child.

Practice Guidance

DFCS may recognize a family is experiencing a short-term crisis (non-safety) with an anticipated end date. The signing of the Voluntary Placement Agreement to Place a Child in Foster Care form (VPA) by parent(s)/guardian(s) or legal custodian(s) avoids court action and allows foster care services to be provided for a limited period. DFCS is under no obligation to accept a VPA. A VPA is executed when the parent(s), guardian(s) or legal custodian(s) and the county department sign the form, Voluntary Placement Agreement to Place a Child in Foster Care.

If DFCS must file a dependency petition because the parent, guardian or legal custodian is unable or unwilling to obtain custody within 180 days, the judicial determination that continued placement in foster care is in the best interest of the child must be made and documented in the court order within 180 days of a child's entry into foster care via VPA. Another judicial determination of reasonable efforts to finalize the permanency plan (see policy 9.5 Eligibility: Reasonable Efforts) is required within 12 months of the VPA signature date (and every 12 months thereafter), to maintain

IV-E payments.

DFCS Requests to Terminate the VPA

DFCS must determine if a family's circumstances warrant their child voluntarily entering foster care. Likewise, ongoing assessment of those circumstances must occur to determine whether the issues requiring the VPA have been resolved or if the circumstances have changed such that the family is no longer in need of the VPA. If at any time a SSCM finds there is no longer a need for voluntary foster care, in consultation with the SSS, the SSCM will notify the parents in writing. The family will have 14 days from the notice to take custody of their child.

Missing Child or Youth During a VPA

If a child goes missing during a VPA:

1. Follow policy 19.22 Case Management: Missing Children.
2. If the child has not returned or been located by the expiration of the VPA, custody reverts to the parent(s)/guardian(s) or legal custodian(s).
3. If the parent requests an extension, the VPA may be extended up to an additional 90 calendar days based on the individual circumstances of the case, with the county director's approval. An extension cannot be granted if the child went missing after the VPA was extended as the VPA cannot exceed 180 days. When deciding whether to extend the VPA consider:
 - a. Length of time the child has been missing.
 - b. Whether the parents are participating in services and actively working on their case plan outcomes.
4. Prior to the 180th day the case must close if the child has not returned.

Requirements

The Division of Family and Children Services (DFCS) will:

1. Minimize the number of placement changes for children in foster care to lessen their trauma and only move children to:
 - a. Ensure the safety and well-being of the child;
 - b. Achieve permanency;
 - c. Place with siblings;
 - d. Place with a non-custodial parent;
 - e. Place with a kinship caregiver (relative or fictive kin);
 - f. Comply with placement preferences of the Indian Child Welfare Act, if there is reason to know a child is a member of a federally recognized Indian tribe; or eligible for membership in a federally recognized Indian tribe, and is the biological child of a member/citizen of a federally recognized Indian tribe (see policy 1.6 Administration: Indian Child Welfare Act \(ICWA\) and Transfer of Responsibility for Placement and Care to a Tribal Agency); or
 - g. Step down to a less restrictive placement in accordance with policy 10.4 Foster Care: Selecting a Placement Resource (i.e., from a child caring institution to a kinship caregiver or foster family home).
2. Remove a child immediately if the child's health or welfare is endangered. Provide notification to the court and attorneys of record within 24 hours of the placement change.
3. Provide written notification to the Juvenile Court no less than five business days in advance of any placement change.
4. Provide written notification no less than five business days in advance of any placement change to allow the following individuals entitled to notice to request a court hearing to review the proposed placement change and any changes to the case plan or permanency plan resulting from the change in placement:
 - a. Children age 14 and older;
 - b. Parents, unless parental rights have been terminated;
 - c. Guardians or other legal custodians;

 - e. Guardian Ad Litem (GAL);
 - f. All attorneys of record, including the Special Assistant Attorney General (SAAG).

Written notice may be provided via email if any individual entitled to notice has agreed to receive notice via email. The juvenile court must provide a means for an individual entitled to notice, including those not represented by counsel, to electronically file an objection to a placement change which upon filing will be distributed electronically to all parties. (See also Procedures: Placement Change Hearing Requests).

5. Require placement resources to provide DFCS with a 14 calendar days' notice to have a child removed a child from their home.
6. Prioritize placing the child with a kinship caregiver over a non-kinship caregiver when a change in placement is necessary. If a non-kinship caregiver is selected for the placement of the child, document the reason for not selecting kin as a placement resource in the Diligent Search Information tab in Georgia SHINES.
7. Rejoin separated siblings when making placement changes, unless it has been reassessed to be contrary to any child's safety or well-being.
8. Ensure education stability for the child, when changing placements, in accordance with policy 10.13 Foster Care: Educational Needs.
9. Arrange pre-placement visits when making a non-emergency placement change to minimize trauma, whenever possible.
10. Discuss and provide the placement resource with the following information in writing:
 - a. At the time of placement:
 - i. An explanation of the process for enrolling the child in school and any information necessary to complete the process;
 - ii. A copy of the child's educational records;
 - iii. A copy of the child's health records;
 - iv. A description of any financial assistance for which the placement resource may be eligible, including any financial assistance for childcare;
 - v. A description of the reasonable and prudent parenting standard;
 - vi. Contact information for the county DFCS office.
 - b. At the time of placement, if available:
 - i. A copy of or recommendations from the child's most recent physical and dental exams and any available information on the child's known medical conditions and current medications;

 - iii. A copy of any court scheduling order or the dates and times for any scheduled hearings related to the child; and
 - iv. Health insurance information for the child, including the child's Medicaid number.

If this information is not available at the time of placement, DFCS shall request the information no later than 15 days after the child's entry into foster care. Discuss and provide the information to the placement resource within five business days of receipt.

11. Develop the Youth Runaway Prevention Plan for any child with a history of running away or at-risk to run away within seven calendar days of any placement change. Include the child, caregiver and other providers working with the child in the development of the plan (see policy 19.22 Case Management: Missing Children).

If the child already has a Youth Runaway Prevention Plan in place, review and modify the plan with the new caregiver, child, and others working with the child.

12. Make every effort to ensure continuity of services. If any services must be re-established due to the change in placement, this must occur with the least disruption possible. Provide notification of the placement change to the following to ensure continuity of services:
 - a. The child's school;
 - b. Revenue Maximization (Rev Max) Unit;
 - c. Children's 1st/Babies Can't Wait (BCW), if applicable (see policy 19.28 Case Management: Children 1st and Babies Can't Wait);
 - d. Service providers involved with the child.
13. Conduct a purposeful contact in the home of the placement resource within seven calendar days of the placement change.
14. Assist youth with securing a new state identification (ID) card, reflecting their new address in accordance with policy 13.8 Independent Living Program: State Identification.
15. Consider the following as a temporary absence from the child's placement and not a placement change:
 - a. Visitation with a friend, sibling, kin or other caregiver, including a pre-placement visit to a prospective foster or adoptive placement;
 - b. Hospitalization for medical, acute psychiatric episodes or diagnosis;
 - c. Respite care when a child is expected to return to his or her foster care placement;

If the child is moved to respite and there is no plan to return the child to the original placement or it is determined later the child cannot return to the original placement, this is considered a placement move and thus, appropriate notification must occur.
 - d. Day or overnight camp;
 - e. Temporary travel with the foster family or CCI personnel, church, school or other persons or groups approved by DFCS;
 - f. Trial home visits; and
 - g. Runaway episodes.

 - e. The presence of any siblings in foster care and the visitation requirements with siblings;
 - f. Any history of psychological or behavioral issues or psychotropic medications;
 - g. Any significant medical history or conditions including current health needs and medications;
 - h. The child's educational needs and current school setting;
 - i. The child's strengths, skills or talents.
3. Encourage the parent, guardian or legal custodian to share information about the child with the placement resource, including the child's nickname, favorite foods, developmental history, current needs, etc.
4. Engage the child in a discussion (when age and developmentally appropriate) to prepare them for the pre-placement visit:
 - a. Provide information about the placement resource family, home, and community;
 - b. Discuss the date, timeframe and transportation arrangements.
5. Conduct the pre-placement visit:
 - a. Introduce the child to the placement resource family and facilitate interaction;
 - b. Show the child where he/she will sleep and where his/her belongings will be kept;
 - c. Confirm the ending time of the visit with the placement resource and the child.
6. Confirm the details of the actual placement with the child, parent, guardian or legal custodian and placement resource following pre-placement visits.

Placement Change Hearing Requests

Whenever a hearing is requested as a result of the notification of a change in placement, the SSCM will:

1. Staff the case with the SSS and consult with the SAAG.
2. Be prepared to testify in court and provide the court with the reason for the placement change.

The court will consider any objections filed to the change of placement and evidence pertaining to such objections, including evidence from the child, foster parent, relative, or caregiver.

3. Address the court's concerns regarding the original recommended placement and offer the court an alternative placement for the child, if the court rejects the recommended placement.

The court may order DFCS to submit a new case plan with a new permanency plan and an alternative placement; or the court may make any other order related to placement or custody outside the department.

4. Document any court ordered recommendations in the narrative of the Contact Detail page in Georgia SHINES.
5. Upload the court order in Georgia SHINES.
6. Participate in a staffing with the SSS to discuss court hearing outcome.
7. Complete court ordered recommendations including updating the case plan or permanency plan in Georgia SHINES.

The SSS will:

1. Conduct a staffing with the SSCM to:
 - a. Determine if any safety concerns exist that require the immediate removal of the child from the current placement;
 - b. Discuss whether the child is part of a sibling group including:
 - i. Whether the placement resource for a separated sibling is capable of caring for all siblings;
 - ii. Whether all siblings will be placed together in the new placement;
 - iii. How the child will transition to the new placement.
 - c. Assess whether services could prevent a placement disruption;
 - d. Discuss the child's placement history and diligent search information;
 - e. Determine next steps.
2. Participate in the placement change meeting with the SSCM, family and support team.
3. Monitor ongoing efforts to jointly place siblings and/or locate kin or prior placement resources amenable to the child's return as a possible placement resource.

4. Verify that the Child Passport, Caregiver Placement Passport, copies of recent medical, dental, psychological, developmental and all other required information was provided to the placement resource at the time of placement or requested and provided in accordance with the timeframes outlined in the requirements and procedures.
5. Ensure timely notification of the placement change to the court, parent, guardian or legal custodian and other required parties.
6. Ensure Rev Max and Amerigroup receive notification of the placement change.
7. Participate in a staffing with the SAAG prior to a scheduled court hearing as a result of the placement change.
8. Review the case record in Georgia SHINES to ensure:
 - a. A purposeful contact is made within seven days of the child's placement change;
 - b. The following pages in Georgia SHINES are completed or updated:
 - i. Custody Detail
 - ii. Legal Status
 - iii. Legal Action and Outcomes Detail
 - iv. Placement List
 - v. NOC
 - vi. Person Detail
 - vii. Diligent Search

Placement Stability

Placement stability is important for children to develop healthy secure relationships. Additionally, placement stability is especially important for youth success in foster care. Youth who experience minimized placement changes are more likely to experience fewer school changes, less trauma and distress, less mental health and behavioral problems and increased probabilities for academic achievement and experiencing a lasting positive relationship with adults. For children in foster care, the number of placements, or places where they live, can impact daily functioning and adjustment as well as the time to achieve permanency. Frequent placement moves not only compound the issue of being separated from one's parents, but can also result in separation from siblings, relocation to a new geographical area, and experiencing a sense of not belonging; all of which can lead to distress and have a profound adverse emotional impact. Because of the seriousness of the long-term consequences for children, placement stability is one of the permanency outcomes in the Child and Family Services Reviews (CFSR).^[2]

It is essential that SSCMs make every effort to maintain stabilized placements for children in foster care. Some tips for placement stability are:

1. Prioritizing placements with non-custodial parent, kin or other committed individuals.
2. Early and detailed assessments of the needs of the child, identifying risk factors to assist with placement planning.

3. Providing support and training for caregivers. This involves but is not limited to the following:
 - a. Anticipating caregiver needs based on knowledge of the child's needs and proactively providing support;
 - b. Responding timely to caregiver requests for support and intervention;
 - c. Identifying red flags that can escalate without intervention;
 - d. Providing or referring the caregiver for training on caring for special or new needs of the child.
4. Conducting frequent purposeful contacts with children and caregivers.
5. Ensure frequent parent/child, sibling visitation, as appropriate.
6. Providing timely services to address behavioral health or other needs the child may have.
7. Providing services to the child and caregiver to assist in addressing conflicts.

Placement Changes

When the child experiences a placement change and must be moved to another placement, careful planning and preparation must occur to assist the child through another loss. Pre-placement preparation eases the child's transition and lessens his/her fear and confusion. Whenever possible, the SSCM, placement resource and parent, guardian or legal custodian should all be involved in the placement change process. Taking the time to engage in pre-placement efforts better ensures that an appropriate match between the child and the placement resource has been made and reduces the likelihood of unnecessary placement moves for the child while in foster care.

Placement moves experienced by a child may revive earlier feelings associated with past separations and entry into foster care. Helping a child express his/her feelings and concerns, as well as finding appropriate ways to grieve, will also make the placement transition smoother. The SSCM or other trusted adult should encourage the child to discuss his/her feelings regarding the placement move and allow the child to have input. Although the placement decision is the responsibility of DFCS, the child may have suggestions on placement options or ideas that would help assure placement stability and ease the child's apprehension regarding changing placements.

Placement Change Discussion with the Child

The placement change discussion with the child should include:

1. An age-appropriate explanation of the placement change, when it will occur, why it is necessary and how it will occur.
2. Whether siblings in care will be placed together and/or change placements with the child.
3. A description of the home or facility where the child will be placed to help the child better understand what to expect.
4. Information about the people who live in the home or facility, showing pictures if available.
5. A description of the community, including the school the child will be attending, if it is different from the child's current community or school.
6. Any feelings or concerns the child may have related to the placement change.

7. An explanation as to when the pre-placement visit(s) will occur, if possible, and how the child will be transported to the home or facility.
8. Information about when the next contact with the parent, guardian or legal custodian will take place.
9. The identification of “transitional objects” such as toys, pictures, stuffed animals or other familiar items that give the child some sense of security during the move.
10. How the child and current placement resource will maintain a relationship after the placement change when it is in the child’s best interest.
11. Any questions the child may have.

Placement Change Discussion with the Current Placement Resource

The placement change discussion with the current placement resource should include:

1. A discussion of the issues that precipitated the need or request to change placements.
2. A discussion and notification of the right to request a court hearing related to placement move decision and the process for requesting the hearing.
3. An explanation when the placement change will occur and how it will occur.
4. Whether siblings currently placed in the home will also be moved.
5. Any feelings or concerns the placement resource may have related to the placement change.
6. Whether they are willing to be contacted by the new placement resource for the purpose of sharing information with them.
7. How they can maintain a relationship with the child when it is in the child’s best interest.
8. Their ability to participate in pre-placement visits to assist the child in transitioning to the new placement.
9. Any questions the placement resource may have.

Notice of Change in Placement Hearings

Children aged 14 and older; Parents, unless parental rights have been terminated; Guardians or other legal custodians; Persons/agency with physical custody of the child (i.e. kinship caregiver, foster parent, child placing agency (CPA) and/or child caring institution (CCI)); Guardian Ad Litem (GAL); and all attorneys of record, are entitled to file an objection to a placement change and participate in the resulting court hearing. At the hearing requested as a result of a placement change, the court shall consider the case plan and permanency plan recommendations made by DFCS, including a recommendation as to the placement of the child. The court may consider any evidence, including hearsay evidence, that the court finds to be relevant, reliable, and necessary to determine the needs of a child adjudicated as a dependent child and the most appropriate case plan and permanency plan. The court may also consider evidence presented by the child, foster parent, relative or caregiver objecting to the placement change. The court shall make findings of fact upon which the court relied in determining to reject or accept the case plan or permanency plan and DFCS’ recommendations, including the location of the child’s placement.

If the court rejects DFCS’ recommendations, the court shall demonstrate that DFCS’ recommendations were considered and explain why it did not follow the recommendations. If the court rejects the DFCS case plan and permanency plan recommendations, including the change in placement of a child adjudicated as a dependent child, the court may order DFCS to devise a new case plan and permanency plan recommendation, including a new recommendation as to the placement of the child within the resources of the department, or make any other order relative to placement or custody outside the department as the court finds to be in the best interests of the child and consistent with the policy that children in DFCS custody should have stable placements.

If the court finds that the child has been living in a stable home environment with the current caregiver(s) for the past 12 months and that removal from the caregiver(s) would be detrimental to the child’s emotional well-being, the court may presume that continuation of the child’s placement with the current caregiver is in the child’s best interests and shall enter a finding that a change of placement is a failure by DFCS to make reasonable efforts to finalize the permanency plan in effect at the time of the hearing; provided however, that such presumption shall not apply to prevent the return of the child to his or her parent, guardian, or legal custodian.

Respite Care

Respite care placements are intended to be temporary in nature, therefore the child should return to his/her original placement within a short period (see policy 14.18 Resource Development: Supervision of Children for a definition of respite). If a child is moved to a temporary placement until a more permanent placement is located, this temporary placement is not considered a respite placement, but rather a placement change; thus, the change in placement notification requirements apply. As soon as it is determined that a respite care placement is going to become the child’s new placement, notice must be given. The DFCS SSCM should provide placement change notification as soon as they become aware a child is changing placements or a child cannot return to his/her original placement.

PL 115-123 Family First Prevention Services Act of 2018 (FFPSA)

Requirements

The Division of Family and Children Services (DFCS) will:

1. Develop and implement standards to ensure that children in foster care placements in public or private agencies are provided quality services that protect the safety and health of the children (see policy 14.1 Resource Development: Safety and Quality Standards, 16.8 Room Board Watchful Oversight \(RBWO\): Minimum Standards and 22.3 Kinship: Kinship Assessment).
2. Identify a safe, least restrictive, and most family-like setting in close proximity to the home of the parent, guardian or legal custodian, when the permanency plan is reunification.

A placement in a foster home or childcare institution (CCI) a substantial distance from the home of the parent, guardian or legal custodian should be made only when it is necessary and consistent with the child's permanency plan.

3. Conduct diligent efforts to locate absent or non-custodial parents, relatives, fictive kin or other committed individuals for the placement of the child, prior to the initial placement of the child into foster care or any subsequent placement change (see policy 19.20 Case Management: Diligent Search).
4. Consider the following when selecting a placement for a child in foster care:
 - a. The order of placement preferences;
 - b. The order of placement preferences, if there is reason to know a child is a member of a federally recognized Indian tribe; or eligible for membership in a federally recognized Indian tribe, and is the biological child of a member/citizen of a federally recognized Indian tribe;
 - c. Placement with adult relative over a non-related caregiver, provided that the relative caregiver meets all relevant state child protection standards;

Georgia's kinship continuum prioritizes placements with kinship caregivers which includes relatives and fictive kin.

- d. Placement of siblings together in the same home unless joint placement is contrary to the safety or well-being needs of any sibling;
- e. Placement in the child's own community and school district to allow the child to remain in his/her home school unless it is not in his/her best interest to do so (see policy 10.13 Foster Care: Educational Needs);

- f. The proximity of the home to the child’s community of origin and family, the child’s permanency plan, and the specific service needs of the child.
 - g. Placement with the placement resource with whom the child was previously placed, when a child re-enter foster care or change placements.
 - h. The Multi-Ethnic Placement Act (MEPA)/Interethnic Adoption Provisions, which prohibits delaying or denying a placement of a child based on race, color and national origin of a foster parent or the child (see policy 1.4 Administration: Non-Discriminatory Child Welfare Practices).
5. Select the most appropriate placement to meet the child’s needs based on the following order of placement preferences:

- a. Non-custodial parent: this includes a parent of the child that does not have physical or legal custody of the child.

 If the non-custodial parent is a father and both parents agree that he is the father and/or he has an established relationship with the child, placement may occur. If paternity has not been established either through DNA testing or paternity acknowledgement, this should occur following the placement of the child in the home (see policy 17.14 Legal: Establishing Paternity via Paternity Acknowledgement, 17.15 Legal: Legitimation and 19.23 Case Management: Paternity Testing).

- b. Kinship caregiver which includes:

- i. Relative: defined by blood, marriage or adoption, including the spouse of any of those persons even if the marriage was terminated by death or divorce;
- ii. Fictive kin: a person who is not related to the child by blood, marriage, or adoption but who prior to his or her placement in foster care is known to the family, has a substantial and positive relationship with the child, and is willing and able to provide a suitable home for the child.

 Fictive kin must become foster parents to receive financial assistance for caring for a child in the custody of DFCS.

- c. Other committed individual: includes fictive kin and other individuals, including but not limited to neighbors, teachers, scout masters, caregivers, or parents of friends of such child and with whom such child has resided or had a significant relationship;

 Committed individuals must become foster parents to receive financial assistance for caring for a child in the custody of DFCS.

- d. Foster family home or adoptive home (DFCS or CPA): For the purpose of title IV-E, “foster family home” means the home of an individual or family that is licensed or approved by the state in which it is situated as a foster family home that meets the standards established for the licensing or approval; and in which a child in foster care has been placed in the care of an individual, who resides with the child and who has been licensed or approved by DFCS to be a foster parent that DFCS deems capable of adhering to the reasonable and prudent parent standard; that provides 24-hour substitute care for children placed away from their parents or other caretakers; and that provides the care for not more than six children in foster care.

The number of foster children that may be cared for in a home may exceed six children in foster care, for any of the following reasons:

- i. To allow a parenting youth in foster care to remain with the child of the parenting youth.*
- ii. To allow siblings to remain together.*
- iii. To allow a child with an established meaningful relationship with the family to remain with the family.*
- iv. To allow a family with special training or skills to provide care to a child who has a severe disability.*

Foster families that are approved must be held to the same standards as foster family homes that are licensed. Anything less than full licensure or approval is insufficient for meeting Title IV-E eligibility requirements.

- e. Child Caring Institution (CCI): A CCI means a private CCI, or a public CCI which accommodates no more than 25 children and is licensed by the State in which it is situated or has been approved by the agency of the State responsible for licensing or approval of institutions of this type as meeting the standards for approval except, in the case of a child who has attained 18 years of age, the term includes a supervised setting in which the individual is living independently. Children in Georgia age 18 and older are not eligible for Title IV-E funding, therefore DFCS does not claim IV-E for supervised independent living settings. The definition of CCI for Title IV-E purposes does not include detention facilities, forestry camps, training schools or any other facility operated primarily for the detention of children who are determined to be delinquent.*

Georgia has not implemented QRTPs and will only claim IV-E foster care maintenance payments for the initial two weeks (14 days) that an eligible child is placed in a CCI, unless the CCI meets the other allowable categories under title IV-E (see policy 9.1 Eligibility: Foster Care Maintenance Payments for all allowable placements under title IV-E).

- f. Psychiatric residential treatment facility (PRTF), if temporary treatment is necessary.*
- 6. Adhere to the Indian Child Welfare Act (ICWA) placement preferences outlined in policy 1.6 Administration: Indian Child Welfare Act \(ICWA\) and Transfer of Responsibility for Placement and Care to a Tribal Agency.*
 - 7. Adhere to confidentiality and Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act (HIPAA) provisions outlined in policies 2.6 Information Management: Confidentiality/Safeguarding Information and 2.5 Information Management: Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act. Obtain a signed Authorization for Release of Information (ROI) to facilitate sharing of information, when applicable.*
 - 8. Complete appropriate safety screenings and ensure satisfactory findings are secured, prior to any placement or replacement (including respite) of a child with kin, other committed individual, or foster home (DFCS or Child Placing Agency (CPA)).*
 - 9. Document placement efforts and selection in Georgia SHINES within 72 hours of occurrence.*

Procedures

Social Services Case Manager

1. Gather information about the child by:
 - a. Interviewing the parents/guardians/legal custodians, caregivers, kin, and the child;
 - b. Reviewing all available sources for information [e.g., Family Functioning Assessment (FFA) Comprehensive Child and Family Assessment (CCFA), psychological evaluation, recommendations from a child's therapist, trauma assessment, medical records, educational assessments and reports, and information from previous placement resources, parents, guardians or legal custodians and kin].
2. Determine the individual needs of the child, including but not limited to:
 - a. The child's strengths, interests and talents;
 - b. The child's daily functioning, feelings, cognitive functioning, physical capacity, temperament, relationships, pervasive behaviors etc.;
 - c. The child's ability to accomplish age and developmentally appropriate tasks;
 - d. The child's educational level and any needs;
 - e. The child's physical and mental health including any health or behavioral health needs; and
 - f. The child's culture, religion, independent living skills and community relationships.
3. Determine whether the child is a part of a sibling group (see policy 10.20 Foster Care: Preserving Siblings Connections):
 - a. Determine if the child has any siblings already placed in foster care and explore whether the placement resource of the siblings in care can also be a viable placement of the child(ren) entering care; and
 - b. Search for a placement resource to accommodate the entire sibling group.

 If the siblings cannot initially be placed together, document in the narrative of the Contact Detail in Georgia SHINES the reason(s) for separation, the plans to maintain sibling visitation and the sibling-bond and ongoing efforts to place the siblings together.
4. Consider the following when selecting the placement of the child regardless of the placement type:
 - a. Least restrictive and most family-like setting;
 - b. Placement of siblings together;
 - c. Placement in the child's own community and school district;

 Explore placement resources near (within a 50-mile radius) to the child's community, when a placement is not available within the same community.
 - d. Needs of the child;
 - e. Caregiver protective capacity;
 - f. Previous placements of the child, when appropriate;

- g. Level of cooperation of the placement resource and support of the child's permanency plan.
5. Identify absent and/or non-custodial parents, kin and other committed individuals to serve as a placement resource through the diligent search process (see policy 19.20 Case Management: Diligent Search).
6. If the child has been in out-of-home care in the past, explore whether the previous placement resource is appropriate, available and receptive to the placement of the child, if a non-custodial parent or kin caregiver cannot be located or is unable to care for the child.
7. Adhere to the ICWA placement preferences if there is reason to know a child is a member or is eligible for membership and has a biological parent who is an enrolled member of a federally recognized tribe as outlined in policy 1.6 Administration: Indian Child Welfare Act \(ICWA\) and Transfer of Responsibility for Placement and Care to a Tribal Agency.
8. Consider the following when selecting a placement for a child with the absent or non-custodial parent, kin or other committed individual:
 - a. All kin and other committed individuals who have requested to be a placement resource (see Practice Guidance: Placement Selection for additional guidance when there is multiple kinship caregiver options);
 - b. Any current court orders related to the non-custodial parent's rights, obligations and/or restrictions related to the child;
 - c. The age, desires and needs of the child and the ability of the non-custodial parent, kin or other committed individual to meet the child's needs;
 - d. Whether the child is part of a sibling group and the willingness and ability of the non-custodial parent, kin or other committed individual to care for the siblings;
 - e. The impact the trauma from the child abuse on the child and their behaviors;
 - f. The extent to which the non-custodial parent, kin or other committed individual was or should have been aware of the child's circumstances and any action taken to intervene;
 - g. The relationship between the non-custodial parent, kin or other committed individual and the child;
 - h. The parent's ability to co-parent and/or potential reunification with either parent;
 - i. The level of cooperation of the kin or other committed individual towards the goal of reunification.
 - j. The non-custodial parent, kin or other committed individual has the financial and non-financial supports to appropriately care for the child and meet the ongoing needs of the child;
9. To facilitate the approval for a child to be placed with an absent or non-custodial parent:
 - a. Verify that grounds for dependency do not exist for the absent or non-custodial parent; therefore, no case plan with this parent is needed prior to placement;
 - b. Complete a Kinship Assessment as outlined in policy 22.3 Kinship: Kinship Assessment.

If the placement is with a putative father, establish paternity through DNA testing and/or legitimation subsequent to the placement (see policy 17.14 Legal: Establishing Paternity via Paternity Acknowledgement, 17.15 Legal: Legitimation and 19.23 Case Management:

10. To facilitate approval for a child to be placed with kin or other committed individual:
 - a. Initiate the foster parent approval process:
 - i. Inform the kin or other committed individual of the benefits and requirements for becoming a foster parent (see policy 14.1 Resource Development: Safety and Quality Standards and 22.6 Kinship: Waiver of Non-Safety Standards for Kinship Foster Homes).
 - ii. Make a referral to the Kinship Coordinator and Resource Development (RD) to begin the process of becoming a foster parent and provide support through the process (see policy 22.2 Kinship: Use of Kinship Caregivers in Foster Care).
 - b. Complete a Kinship Assessment as outlined in policy 22.3 Kinship: Kinship Assessment to place the child in the home while the foster family home approval process is underway.
 - c. If relatives of a putative father are identified, establish paternity through DNA testing and/or legitimation subsequent to the placement (see policy 17.14 Legal: Establishing Paternity via Paternity Acknowledgement, 17.15 Legal: Legitimation and 19.23 Case Management: Paternity Testing).
11. Locate a foster or adoptive home (DFCS or CPA) based upon that home's proximity to the child's community of origin and family, the child's permanency plan, and the specific needs of the child, when the non-custodial parent, kin, or other committed individual is not appropriate and/or available to be a placement resource.
 - a. Review the home study and other available information to determine the best placement match for the child based on their needs.
 - b. Coordinate with the RD SSCM for a DFCS foster home; or with the Child Placing Agency for a CPA foster home in accordance with policy 16.3 Room Board and Watchful Oversight: Room Board and Watchful Oversight \(RBWO\) Placement Referral.
12. Locate a placement through a CCI if appropriate to meet the needs of the child in accordance with the provisions outlined in policy 16.3 Room Board and Watchful Oversight: RBWO Placement Referral.
13. Conduct safety screenings for the selected placement resource in accordance with policy 19.9 Case Management: Safety Screenings.
14. Document the placement efforts and selection in Georgia SHINES.
15. Obtain supervisory approval of the placement selected. Ensure that the Diligent Search tab has been updated with the diligent search efforts for the absent or non-custodial parents, kin or other committed individuals, including reasons for not selecting kin that was located through the diligent search efforts.
16. Notify the court of the plan to place the child with the selected placement resource.
17. Refer to policy 10.1 Foster Care: Placement of a Child when a placement resource has been selected for the child.
18. Refer to policy 10.3 Foster Care: Changes in Placement when selecting a placement resource for a placement move for a child.

Social Services Supervisor

1. Monitor initial and ongoing diligent efforts to locate absent or non-custodial parents, kin or other committed individuals as a placement resource in accordance with policy 19.20 Case Management: Diligent Search.
2. Ensure the order of placement preferences are followed to locate the most appropriate placement resource for the child, including prioritizing placement with relatives to minimize trauma and adhering to ICWA placement preferences for an Indian child.
3. If a non-kinship caregiver is selected for the placement of the child, explore the reason for the selection and review the Diligent Search tab in Georgia SHINES to verify that absent or noncustodial parents and kin were explored and appropriately ruled out prior to approving the non-kinship caregiver.
4. Ensure identified kin caregivers willing to serve as placement resource are referred to the Kinship Coordinator and Resource Development to ensure timely kinship foster family home approval and/or Kinship Assessment.
5. Conduct a supervisor staffing to address any concerns related to selecting the appropriate placement resource for the child.
6. Review case documentation to ensure efforts are being made to locate the most appropriate placement resource for the child and that the pre-placement and placement information including diligent search information is entered in Georgia SHINES within 72 hours of occurrence.

Practice Guidance

Placement Selection

Being in foster care can be a very traumatic experience, therefore when a child is initially placed or re-enter foster care, making an appropriate placement selection can minimize trauma to the child. The placement resource must be able to meet the safety, permanency and well-being needs of the child and consider the needs of the child's family (as related by blood, marriage or adoption). Having a good understanding of the child's individual needs and the strengths of the placement resource can promote placement stability and reduce the likelihood of placement disruptions.

The ideal placement resource will be in the community from which the child was removed to assist with maintaining the child's connections to immediate and extended family, educational, medical, dental and mental health providers and meet the child's religious, and cultural needs. The placement should be near the parents, guardians or legal custodians to maintain connections and promote frequent visitation and participation in meeting the well-being needs of the child. Reunification is more likely to occur when frequent and consistent visitation between the parents, guardians or legal custodians and child occurs and the child is placed within proximity to them. The most appropriate, least restrictive setting offers the child an opportunity to be placed where there will be a minimum of disruption to his/her family life and an assurance that the child will be afforded safety, permanence, and overall well-being. Clinical and support services within the community can be utilized to maintain the child in the least restrictive placement and should be evaluated for their effectiveness. The selected placement resource should also be consistent with the best interests and special needs of the child. The SSCM must always consider a caregiver's current circumstance, capacity and ability to ensure the child's safety and well-being. Whenever there is a concern about safety of children and/or family members, it must be addressed with a focus on the caregiver's ability to immediately improve and change conditions for children. Safety should continue to be the focus throughout the life of the case.^[3]

Placement with kin or other committed individual is, often the first choice, especially when the prospective kinship caregiver and the child are already attached, bonded, and comfortable with each other; the prospective kinship caregiver lives near the child's current residence which preserves the child's friendships, school, and community connections; and the prospective kinship caregiver is willing and able to provide for the child's needs. Placement with kin minimizes trauma for the child during their time in foster care by allowing them to be cared for by someone they know and trust and maintain connectedness long after the child exits care to permanency. The practice of assessing kin or other committed individuals supports the agency's reasonable efforts to preserve or reunify families. A growing body of research confirms that, in most circumstances, placement with kin or other committed individuals is the best option when children cannot remain with their parents. Several studies have found that children in these types of placements are better able to adjust to their new environment and are less likely to experience behavioral problems and psychiatric disorders than those in the general foster care population. Finally, children placed with kin experience fewer school disruptions than children in non-kinship foster care, and their sense of identity and self-esteem is reinforced.^[3]

When children enter foster care and the diligent search has identified kin, it is critical that the agency take all necessary steps to assess to determine if they would be an appropriate placement resource as soon as possible. Oftentimes, more than one relative, fictive kin or other committed individual may request to care for a child in foster care. When there are multiple kinship placement resources available, consider the following caregiver capacities and family dynamics when selecting a placement:

1. Is the kinship caregiver able to avoid displacing their feelings and history with the child's parents onto the child?
2. Will the child be exposed to positive or negative family legacies/cycles while in the kinship caregiver's household?
3. Has the child frequently resided in the kinship caregiver's home or has the child been previously placed with the kinship caregiver?
4. How well does the child's needs, routines and schedule fit within the current activities of the kinship caregiver's household?
5. Will the kinship caregiver be able to meet and comply with agency goals for reunification and/or another permanency plan?
6. Does the kinship caregiver understand and agree to the need for a legal relationship with the child (i.e. adoption or guardianship)?
7. Is the kinship caregiver willing to care for the child's siblings, if applicable, and/or maintain sibling connections?
8. What support systems are in should the kinship caregiver require respite?
9. What supports or alternative plans/agreements are in place if the kinship caregiver becomes ill or deceased?

Timeliness of Relative Placements

Georgia law balances the priority of kinship placements against the child's need for placement stability, attachment, and connections. DFCS has the obligation to search for relatives quickly and notify those relatives as soon as possible that a child related to them is in state custody and in need of a placement. Relatives should also be notified that if they do not quickly come forward and take steps to visit with the child, participate in their case, and make themselves available as a placement, they may lose any priority as a long-term or adoptive placement that they would otherwise have.

If a relative is notified and does not begin taking an active role in the case within six months, the court can determine that this relative is not an appropriate placement for the child. If the child has been in a stable foster placement in excess of 12 months, the court can determine that the child should not be moved absent a dangerous situation. SSCMs and supervisors should consult with SAAGs, attorneys, and the court whenever such situations arise.

In cases where relatives come forward within six months of receiving notification and take active steps to assist as a resource and placement for the child, the relative will retain priority over other potential permanent placements even if the process for obtaining placement approval is slow, as it may be in ICPC situations. When a child has been with a stable foster family for 12 months, the county should initiate case consultation, permanency roundtables or other methods for staffing with regional leadership to determine the best interest of the child. In balancing the importance of kin connectedness and the bond that the child has established with a foster family, considerations should be given to the relationship between the child and the prospective kinship caregiver, the validity of the delay in assessing the kinship caregiver's home and the foster parent's openness to maintaining connections should the child remain in their home. SSCMs should clearly present to the court the process used to determine the recommended placement, the factors considered in making the placement decision that is in the best interest of the child and the final agency recommendation at permanency reviews and hearings set for the purpose of considering a child's placement.

Kinship Caregivers

A kinship placement refers to placement of a child in the home of a relative or fictive kin through an approved Kinship Assessment or approved kinship foster home. Exploration of all possible kinship caregivers is critical and must be expedited to maintain and promote family continuity. It is critical that kin understand we are seeking not only for them to become a placement for the child, but also a potential permanent home if reunification is not possible. If a relative fails to demonstrate an interest in and willingness to provide a permanent home for a child within six months from the date he or she receives the required notice that the child is in foster care, the court may excuse DFCS from considering the relative as a placement (see policy 19.20 Case Management: Diligent Search).

Research shows that children thrive best in their families. It has been the practice of kin to care for a related child when their parents cannot. Preserving relationships with family members and kin is crucial to a child's sense of safety and well-being. DFCS is committed to developing strong partnerships with extended family to better serve the needs of children placed in foster care. In preserving the child's family ties, DFCS is supporting and promoting the child's need to feel and experience a sense of belonging, reduce the long-term negative effects of the child's separation from their parents and allow for continued connection between the child, their family, and the community. Family continuity and permanency planning focuses on achieving a level of stability in the child's life. By ensuring the child is safe, protected and in a wholesome living environment, the child's permanency is assured. Supportive services are also provided to the family with the intent of establishing and achieving a permanency plan for the child. For financial and non-financial supports, available for kinship placements refer to policy 22.8 Kinship: Financial and Non-Financial Supports for Children in Foster Care or Who Have Achieved Permanency.

Foster Family Home

Types of foster family homes include:

1. Kinship foster home: Kinship foster homes approved by DFCS or a CPA for the temporary placement of a related kin child.
2. DFCS foster home: non-relative foster homes approved by DFCS for the temporary placement of children in foster care.
3. CPA foster home: Foster homes approved by a CPA contracted with DFCS for temporary placement of children in foster care.

Kinship foster homes are relatives or fictive kin of the child who are approved as a foster parent by DFCS for the placement of the child that is in foster care. DFCS encourages all relatives and fictive kin to become approved foster parents. If a kin is interested in becoming a foster parent, the placement SSCM and the Kinship Coordinator partners closely with resource development staff to support them through the approval process. The kin should attend an information session to gather information required for fostering (see policy 14.7 Resource Development: Inquiries and Information Sessions).

A non-related foster home is considered the least restrictive (most family-like) setting when relatives or fictive kin are not available or appropriate as a placement resource. A foster home placement offers experiences inherent in family living which are essential in achieving maturity and the ability to initiate and sustain a family of one's own. Children who have special needs, but can benefit from family life, can have their needs met in a foster home. DFCS and CPA foster homes should be equally considered as placements for a child based on a determination of the home's level of capacity to care for the child's emotional and physical needs; the proximity of the home to the child's community of origin; and the child's best interests.

DFCS or CPA Adoptive Home

An adoptive home is approved for the foster care placement of a child for whom the established goal is adoption. Adoptive homes must meet the regular standards of care required for approved family foster homes as outline in policy 14.1 Resource Development: Safety and Quality Standards.

Child Caring Institution (CCI)

A CCI is any child welfare facility which provides full-time room, board and watchful oversight (RBWO) to six or more children up to 18 years of age. Some CCIs are approved to care for youth up to age 21. The CCI must be approved through the Office of Provider Management (OPM) to serve children in DFCS custody (see policy 16.6 Room Board Watchful Oversight \(RBWO\): Age Requirements for Child Care Institutions \(CCI\)).

Psychiatric Residential Treatment Facility (PRTF)

A Psychiatric Residential Treatment Facility is a temporary non-hospital facility with a provider agreement with a State Medicaid Agency to provide intensive therapeutic intervention to a child to ensure safety and stability. PRTFs offer intensive behavioral health services to children in Georgia.

Practice Guidance

Child and Family Assessment

The comprehensive child and family assessment expands upon the assessment conducted during the investigation and identifies behaviors and conditions about the child, parent, and family that contributed to safety threats and the risk of child maltreatment. The assessment provides the SSCM and the family with a greater understanding of how a family's strengths, needs, and resources affect the child's safety, permanency and well-being. It is strengths-based, family-centered, culturally competent, individualized, and developed in partnership with the family. The strengths identified provide the foundation upon which the family can make changes. The assessment also involves the extended family, formal and informal support. The information gathered guides the family and SSCM in:

1. Identifying what must change to mitigate or eliminate the safety threats.
2. Addressing the effects of maltreatment.
3. Addressing the effects of the child's removal.
4. Eliminating or reducing the risk of maltreatment reoccurring.
5. Providing the foundation for providing appropriate services.
6. Developing the case plan.

When a child enters foster care, it is extremely important to obtain as much information about the child and family as soon as possible. The SSCM must engage parents/caregivers at the time of removal and each subsequent contact to obtain a complete picture of each child's needs. The SSCM must be knowledgeable and resourceful in utilizing and developing resources to enable children to achieve the highest level of functioning possible. This will involve working in partnership with birth families, placement providers, service providers, medical professionals and other community partners.

Gathering Information

Explore all sources of possible information about the family that will assist in conducting a family assessment, especially any existing FFA. It may require obtaining a signed Authorization for Release of Information form. Some ways of obtaining information include:

1. Consulting with the previous Case Managers, Supervisor or other DFCS staff familiar with the family.

2. Reviewing past CPS and Foster Care history.
3. Making collateral contacts with individuals/agencies that know or have worked with the family.
4. Interviewing the family and observing family interactions, living conditions, behaviors, etc.
5. Accessing reports and records generated from other agencies and/or other professionals.
6. Reviewing formal evaluations and treatment summaries (e.g., medical, psychological, drug and alcohol assessments, etc.).
7. Accessing any other source of information pertinent to the assessment process.

Family Engagement

Children as well as their immediate and extended family should be engaged in the assessment process to develop a complete picture of the family. Family-centered approaches are effective ways to involve the family in assessment, planning and decision-making around the needs of the child (see policy 19.3 Case Management: Solution-Focused Family Team Meetings). One early and important step is to make sure the parent/guardian/legal custodian and the placement provider know who will be completing the CCFA. If the CCFA is being completed by a provider, DFCS should make every effort to introduce the provider to the parties involved as soon as possible. Face-to-face introductions are preferred and help providers establish working relationships and support timely completion of the CCFA.

Engage families with the understanding that situations resulting in a child entering foster care are associated with the challenges of everyday life events that all caregivers face (see policy 19.2 Case Management: Family Developmental Stages and Tasks). The assessment information also assists judges, CASAs, citizen panels, and other providers working with the child and family to gain a better understanding of the:

1. Situations in everyday life that are difficult for the family and the exceptions;
2. Parental capacities and child vulnerabilities;
3. Degree of parent-child attachment and the child's sense of belonging;
4. Child's extended family as a potential resource for support and/or placement;
5. Family's history and/or patterns of behavior (e.g., prior CPS involvement or foster care placements, past experience with handling crisis, problems with addiction, criminal behavior, etc.);
6. Strengths and resources which the family can engage;
7. Core needs of the family which, at a minimum, must be changed or corrected for the child to be safely returned within a reasonable period of time;
8. Challenges impacting the success of a reunification permanency plan; and
9. Medical, emotional, social, educational and placement-related needs of the child.

Kinship Assessment

The CCFA should identify kin to be explored as possible placement, visitation and/or permanency resources. With supervisory approval, a case manager may request a CCFA provider to complete the Kinship Assessment. The Kinship Assessment must be requested as part of the CCFA in order to utilize the CCFA funding source. Refer to the Field Fiscal Services COSTAR Manual Section 3006 Sup- port Services for information regarding funding.

3. Collaborate with the WPAC Unit and the Amerigroup CCT when a child has high risk medical needs to ensure the child receives appropriate services.
 - a. Staff the case with the WPAC Unit. Include the child's current caregiver when applicable.
 - b. Provide the contact information of the Core Providers if a child is placed in a MWO level Child Caring Institution (CCI).

- c. Notify the WPAC Unit of any Transitional Roundtable, Permanency Staffing or Cold Case Staffing.
 - d. Invite the regional WPAC specialist to Permanency Roundtables.
4. Collaborate with the Amerigroup CCT to ensure each child has a Health Check within 10 days of entering foster care that includes developmental screening (as prescribed by EPSDT guidelines or BCW/Children 1st) and dental screening for children under 12 months of age or a dental examination for children 12 months of age and over.
 - a. If the developmental screening indicates the presence of any developmental delay, submit a referral to Children 1st district coordinator for a full developmental assessment within five business days or sooner if indicated.
 - b. If dental screening of a child under 12 months of age identifies any concerns or need for dental treatment, ensure the Amerigroup CCT coordinates follow up treatment with an approved dental provider within five business days of receipt of results, or sooner based on the treatment needed.
 - c. If vision screening yields any concerns, ensure the Amerigroup CCT obtains an ophthalmic assessment and treatment for prescribed corrective devices within five business days or sooner based on treatment needed.
 5. Document the results of all screenings and assessments on the child's Person Detail page and Health Information page in Georgia SHINES within 72 hours of receipt.
 6. Review the results of developmental screening with birth parents during the next purposeful contact that occurs after receiving the information.
 7. Review the results of developmental screening with placement providers during the next purposeful contact that occurs after receiving the information.
 8. Obtain health information on the child's family and record it in the Family Medical Section of the Birth Family Background Information for Child.

Ongoing Basis

For each child in care, the SSCM will:

1. Ensure each child receives preventive health maintenance including:
 - a. Regular well-checks.
 - b. Immunizations (unless parents express a sincere religious objection to immunization of their child).
 - c. Dental cleaning and exam at least every six months.
 - d. Annual eye examinations/vision screening.
2. Communicate directly with medical and dental providers each month to ensure treatment is being provided and to obtain regular updates on the child's condition. This applies to youth under the care of a physician for treatment of a health condition. For other youth, communicate directly with the medical/dental provider within ten business days of a visit (e.g., office visit).
3. Collaborate with the Amerigroup CCT to follow through with recommendations made by medical and dental providers within five business days for non-emergency issues. Emergency issues require immediate follow up.

4. When a child is hospitalized, work continually and closely with hospitals during admission, treatment, and discharge to ensure full engagement throughout the child's stay (see policy 19.29 Case Management: Coordination of Care with Hospitals).
5. Share the child's medical information with the placement provider and document that it was shared.
6. Obtain written information on the child's diagnosis, treatment, medications, etc. and enter it in the child's Health Information page under the Person Tab in Georgia SHINES.
7. Consult with a child's parents to determine if they agree with any medication prescribed to their child. Document the parental response.
8. Provide timely notification of any injuries, accidents, major illnesses, or death involving a child in out of home care.
 - a. Immediately notify the Supervisor and County Director.
 - b. Immediately notify the child's parents (mother and father) and caregivers (if they are not aware).
 - c. Notify the child's siblings (if appropriate).
 - d. Prepare a case summary to assist in completion or complete the Child Death/Near Fatality/Serious Injury Report, when applicable (see policy 6.7 Special Investigations: Reporting of Child Death, Near Fatality, Serious Injury).
 - e. Make a report to the Child Protective Services Intake Communication Center (CICC) immediately, but no later than 24 hours, if there is known or suspected child abuse and/or neglect (see policy 3.24 Intake: Mandated Reporters).
9. If a child dies due to medical complications, obtain copies of all medical documentation related to the circumstances surrounding the death (e.g., EMT report, ER records, etc.).
10. Make every effort to consult the parent(s) of a child in the temporary custody of DFCS prior to any non-surgical procedure. When a parent cannot be located or is not in agreement with a non-surgical procedure being performed, consult with the Social Services Supervisor for authorization.
11. Make every effort to contact the parent(s) of a child in the temporary custody of DFCS and obtain parental permission prior to any surgery.
 - a. When a parent cannot be located or refuses to provide permission despite documented medical opinion of the need for surgery, obtain authorization from the court.
 - b. If the court is unwilling to intervene, obtain authorization from the DFCS County Director or a designee with the same or higher level of authority within DFCS (i.e., County Director, Region Director, District Director).
 - c. After consent is obtained granted the appropriate authority, ask the DFCS County Director to sign the medical provider's consent form.

To Ensure Child's Developmental Needs are Adequately Addressed

The SSCM will:

1. Communicate monthly with the Babies Can't Wait (BCW) Service Coordinator, therapist, and others to ensure a child eligible for BCW receives the appropriate services to reach his/her developmental potential.
2. Share the results of a child's initial Health Check and the most recent court order with the BCW service coordinator.
3. Work collaboratively with the child's parents and placement provider to meet the child's developmental needs, including self-esteem, cultural identity, positive guidance/discipline, social relationships, and age-appropriate responsibilities.
4. Collaborate with the Amerigroup CCT and WPAC Unit to ensure a referral is made to a diagnostic/treatment provider for further evaluation of any developmental delays, disabilities, etc., within five business days of the developmental assessment (if the need for further evaluation is indicated).

Practice Guidance

Health Check

The initial Health Check consists of a comprehensive unclothed physical examination, a dental examination and a developmental assessment (as applicable). All children should undergo an initial physical examination performed by a primary care physician and receive well-child checks based upon EPSDT standards. Children 12 months of age and older should also undergo an initial dental examination performed by a licensed dentist. Children under 12 months of age should undergo dental screening instead of a dental examination. Dental screening may be performed by a pediatrician or primary care physician. However, once these children reach 12 months of age, they should undergo an initial dental examination performed by a licensed dentist. Development assessments are performed on children from nine to 36 months of age by the primary care physician according to the EPSDT periodicity schedule. Babies Can't Wait (BCW) also conducts Developmental Assessment Screening on children from birth to age three (see policy 19.28 Case Management: Children 1st and Babies Can't Wait). Copies of BCW assessments should be maintained in the case record. Many medically fragile children are under the care of medical specialists. Special services, equipment needs, medical supplies, etc., may be recommended by the physician as medically necessary due to a child's medical condition or diagnosis.

Medical/Dental Coverage at Initial Entry into Care

Children in foster care should be seen by Georgia Medicaid providers. The Medicaid program provides funds to the state for the costs of providing medical and some dental services to Medicaid eligible recipients. DFCS must utilize these funds for services to children entering DFCS custody to conserve state funds for those children not eligible for Medicaid (see policy 9.2 Eligibility: Applying for Medical Services at Initial Entry and Exit).

Georgia Families 360

On March 03, 2014, the Georgia Department of Community Health (DCH) transitioned from a standard fee-for-service Medicaid program to a statewide Medicaid Care Management Organization (CMO) through Amerigroup Georgia Managed Care Company. The transition impacted children in DFCS custody and children receiving AA as they became members of a new program called Georgia Families 360. The new program is separate from Georgia Families, the general Medicaid program administered by DCH. Georgia Families 360 is designed to provide coordinated care across multiple services and focus on the physical, dental, and behavioral needs of member children. The program is designed to ensure each member has a medical and dental home, access to preventive care screenings, and timely assessments. It also seeks to ensure medical providers adhere to clinical practice guidelines and evidence-based medicine.

Amerigroup Care Coordination Teams (CCT) and Care Managers

Each Georgia Families 360 member is assigned to a regional Care Coordination Team with a specified Care Manager. The Amerigroup CCT members are Masters level staff, the majority of whom hold a professional license to practice in their respective field. The Amerigroup CCT completes a Health Risk Screening (HRS) on youth in care to identify medical and/or behavioral needs. They ensure each child is assigned to a Primary Care Physician (PCP) and Primary Care Dentist, so every child has a medical and dental home. The Amerigroup CCT is responsible for coordinating the health components of the Comprehensive Child and Family Assessment (CCFA), including the initial physical, dental and trauma assessment. Care Managers are the primary partner of the SSCM for identifying and making referrals for needed services. Care Managers ensure each youth has an individualized care plan that addresses both physical and behavioral health needs. They work with community agencies to ensure appropriate services are provided.

Any services not authorized by the Amerigroup CCT will not be paid for out of Medicaid. Therefore, it is imperative that all medical/dental, behavioral health and developmental care be coordinated with the Amerigroup CCT to avoid any uncovered expenses. See Field Fiscal Services COSTAR Manual Section 3100 Family Foster Care for an explanation of the “Unusual Medical/Dental” funding source for children who are not Medicaid eligible or who receive a service not covered by Medicaid. For youth covered by other forms of Medicaid (i.e., Fee-for-Service) or health coverage, the SSCM should utilize known providers in the community and contact the WPAC Unit for further support or assistance.

Amerigroup Notification Form (E-Form)

DFCS communicates with Amerigroup utilizing an electronic notification form (E-Form). It is the primary means for communicating information about a member enrolled in Georgia Families 360. The E-Form must be completed and sent to Amerigroup within 24 hours of a youth entering foster care. It should be completed thoroughly to include demographic information, medical information, placement information, the identified CCFA provider and other referrals (e.g., Babies Can’t Wait). The E-Form is also used to report updates such as placement changes, a youth exiting care, etc. If there is information not available at the time of the initial referral to Amerigroup, submit an E-Form (update) as soon as the information is obtained. Accurate and timely communication with Amerigroup is vital to the Medicaid eligibility determination and the assignment of an Amerigroup CCT and service providers. Important decisions regarding the assignment of primary care providers and referrals are made based upon the information submitted on the E-Form.

Children 1st

Children 1st was created by the state of Georgia to improve the health conditions of children from birth through five years of age. Children 1st is the “Single Point of Entry” to a statewide collaborative system of public health, prevention-based programs and services, school, and community-based organizations to identify children at risk for poor health or developmental outcomes. Children 1st identifies and screens children and links them to programs such as:

1. Babies Can't Wait (BCW)
2. Children's Medical Services (CMS)
3. Universal Newborn Hearing Screening and Intervention (UNHSI)
4. Georgia Newborn Screening Program
5. 1st Care
6. Women, Infants, and Children Program (WIC)

Referrals are submitted to the local Children 1st District Coordinator. A list of Children 1st District Coordinators is available at dph.georgia.gov/children1st.

Physical Impairment

A physical impairment is defined as a dysfunction of the musculoskeletal and/or neurological body systems that affects the ability of an individual to move or coordinate movement. This includes one or more of the following body systems: neurological; musculoskeletal; sensory organs; respiratory, including speech organs; cardiovascular; reproductive, digestive, genito-urinary; hemic and lymphatic, skin; and endocrine. A physical impairment on its own does not make a child eligible for BCW services. However, if there is a significant developmental delay due to the physical impairment, then the child may be eligible.

Developmental Needs

A developmental assessment is completed as part of the Health Check for children under four years of age who enter foster care. The assessment determines whether there are factors that may result in a developmental delay for a child or place a child at risk of delay. Any child in care [under the age of three] who has a suspected developmental delay, physical impairment or diagnosed disability must be referred to BCW via Children 1st for assessment. DFCS cannot provide consent for BCW services. Consequently, a surrogate parent or other appropriate adult may be needed to act on behalf of the child and provide necessary consents. See policy 19.28 Case Management: Children 1st and Babies Can't Wait.

Developmental Delays

A developmental delay is a chronological delay in the appearance of normal developmental milestones achieved during infancy and early childhood, adjusted for prematurity in one or more of the following areas: cognitive, physical (including vision and hearing), communication, social/emotional and adaptive. Such delays may be caused by organic, psychological, or environmental factors. Example: If most children crawl by eight months of age and walk by the middle of the second year, then a child five or six months behind schedule in reaching these milestones may be classified as developmentally delayed regarding mobility.

Significant Developmental Delay

A delay is considered significant when it interferes with children's ability to interact within their natural environment (relative to expected developmental sequences of cognitive, communication, adaptive, physical, and social-emotional development) to such a degree that ongoing development is compromised. In addition, secondary delays relative to the initial delay are likely to occur (e.g., significant delays in expressive communication may lead to compromised social skills with peers). Criteria for a significant delay include identification of deficits in skills which are instrumental in accomplishing later developing skills or functional tasks that would be expected of peers who are developing typically.

If the use of standardized diagnostic measures is deemed appropriate, a score of two (2) standard deviations below the mean (average) in one of the five developmental domains, or at least one and a half (1.5) standard deviations below the mean in two or more of the five developmental domains constitutes a significant delay. The determination of whether a child has a significant developmental delay must be made by a qualified clinician.

Sexual Health Needs

Sexual and reproductive needs of youth in foster care are addressed through the initial and follow-up health screening. Youth in foster care may receive health education and risk prevention services through Georgia's Personal Responsibility Education Program (GA-PREP), which provides high risk youth (ages 10-19) free access to evidence-based teen pregnancy prevention programs and supplemental adult preparation subjects. Youth in care access PREP services through the agency's partnership with the Department of Public Health (DPH) Adolescent Health and Youth Development (AHYD) Program. GA-PREP is federally funded by the Administration for Children and Families' (ACF) Family and Youth Service Bureau (FYSB).

HIV Antibody Testing

If a child has signs or symptoms that may be consistent with HIV infection or whose health history places the child at-risk, the child must be evaluated by a physician to determine if testing is necessary and appropriate. Minors may receive HIV prevention counseling and testing services with or without parental consent. Whenever possible, parents should be involved in the counseling and testing. Local public health facilities with knowledgeable specialists in HIV may be contacted for consultation and information. The SSCM must recognize and understand the risk factors for HIV which may need to be brought to the attention of health care providers such as:

1. The child was sexually abused by a person(s) from a high-risk group.
2. The child has been engaged in sexual activity with high-risk group partners.
3. The child has a history of intravenous (IV) drug usage.
4. The child was born to a parent from a high-risk group.
5. The child is a hemophiliac.

Almost all children who have become infected with HIV are infected prenatally by their mother. The maternal HIV antibody is present in children up to 18 months of age, resulting in a "false positive." A "true negative" finding can only be made 18-24 months following birth, at which time seroconversion may have occurred. In other words, the child's body would have begun to produce specific, detectable antibodies in response to the presence of the virus. Primary health care providers should be able to care for HIV-exposed children and for most asymptomatic HIV-infected children with normal immune systems. As children become symptomatic, they will need the care of a pediatric infectious disease specialist. Since a child with a depressed immune system is at greater risk of suffering severe complications from routine childhood illnesses such as chicken pox and measles, the physician needs to be consulted when determining the setting that is best for the child and the degree to which that setting should be restricted. Usually, the benefits of an unrestricted setting outweigh the risks of the child acquiring harmful infections. Often, the infected child can be served in a foster home and attend school and/or day care. The results of HIV testing are confidential and may be released only to the following individuals:

1. The child's parents/guardian/custodian (unless child is in the permanent custody of DFCS, then a decision is made on a case-by-case basis).
2. Placement provider; and
3. Any health care provider who has a legitimate need to know such information.

Wellness, Programming, Assessment, and Consultation (WPAC) Unit

The WPAC Unit provides practice support, consultation and quality monitoring of physical and moderate behavioral health needs of children and youth in foster care. Specific functions of intensive support and monitoring include:

1. Training and consultation.
2. Performance monitoring.
3. Review, assessment, and programmatic recommendations.
4. Data tracking and trend analysis.
5. Coordination and partnering during case staffing and case planning; and
6. Strategic coordination with community partners.

High Risk: Medical

"High risk" youth are those with significant medical conditions or illnesses. Medical issues that contribute to children being considered as "high risk" include:

Down Syndrome
Cerebral Palsy
Multiple Sclerosis
Spina Bifida
Fragile X Syndrome
Von Willebrand Disease
Sickle Cell
Osteogenesis Imperfecta
Rickets
Cancer
Diabetes
Hypoxia
Neurological disorders
Epilepsy
TBI

Respiratory Illness
 Respiratory Failure
 Asthma
 Gastrointestinal Illness
 Short Gut Syndrome
 Failure to thrive
 Feeding disorders
 Birth defect to organs
 Organ failure
 Organ transplants
 Mechanically/Technology dependent...G-tube dependent
 Trach and/or Vent dependent
 Portacaths
 Physically disabled children

Consent for Surgical and Non-Surgical Procedures

In general, DFCS can give permission or consent for medical care deemed appropriate or necessary by competent medical authorities. Moreover, some court orders contain language that explicitly gives DFCS the authority to provide consent for ordinary medical care. This usually involves non-surgical procedures or routine surgical procedures that are considered low risk. However, when consent for extraordinary medical care (e.g., major surgery, potentially life-threatening procedures) is needed, it should be sought from a parent or the court. Even when DFCS has the legal authority to make medical decisions regarding children in DFCS custody, such authority must be exercised in a manner consistent with family-centered practice. Families should always be involved in the decisions affecting their lives. This applies to parents and the children. Decisions should always be based upon what is in the best interest of the child.

Procedures

Child Enters Foster Care

The Social Services Case Manager (SSCM) will:

within 10 calendar days of entering foster care as part of the Comprehensive Child and Family Assessment (CCFA) in accordance with policy 10.10 Foster Care: Comprehensive Child and Family Assessment.

3. For any child identified by the CCFA or any other assessment as having behavioral health, serious medical or developmental needs:
 - a. Staff with the Social Services Supervisor and any other appropriate entities (e.g. Field Program Specialist, WPAC Unit, DFCS Care Coordination Treatment Unit). To the extent possible, the staffing should include the child's parent and current caregiver to discuss assessment results and recommendations.
 - b. Collaborate with the Amerigroup CCT to refer a child to a licensed behavioral health provider for a behavioral health assessment as needed.
 - i. Provide the evaluator sufficient background information on the child and family.
 - ii. Obtain written information on the child's diagnosis and recommended treatment.
 - iii. Ensure children receive the treatment necessary to meet their needs.
 - iv. Update the child's Health Log under the Person Tab in Georgia SHINES immediately, but no later than 72 hours after receipt.
 - c. Follow the procedures established in the DFCS Teaming and Efficiency and Quality in Placement Matching Protocol to secure the appropriate services to meet the children's needs.

 - c. Review the individual plan for the child or adolescent and amend the plan if necessary;
 - d. Ensure services are provided in the least restrictive setting and facilitate prompt return to the home setting when possible.
5. Provide medical and behavioral health information to the child's caregiver.
6. Update the child's Health Log, Case Plan and Log of Contacts in Georgia SHINES reflect monitoring of any behavioral health referrals and of the child's progress in responding to the services provided.

Child is Prescribed Psychotropic Medication

The SSCM will:

1. Review the Authorization of Psychotropic Medication for Children in Foster Care submitted by the prescribing physician.
 - a. Contact the prescriber, if additional information is needed.
 - b. Have a discussion with the parent, child and caregiver regarding the use of psychotropic medication (see Practice Guidance: Psychotropic Medication).
2. Obtain the County Director's decision to grant or deny consent and notify the prescribing physician of the decision within two business days of the request from the prescriber. If the County Director is unavailable, obtain consent from the Region Director.
 - a. When children are receiving in-patient treatment (e.g. Crisis Stabilization Unit, Psychiatric Residential Treatment Facility), the consent decision is to be provided within 24 hours of the request from the facility.
 - b. A medication consult may be needed with Amerigroup before the decision to grant or deny consent can be made.
 - c. If it is not possible to obtain written informed consent prior to starting psychotropic medication, verbal consent may be obtained from the DFCS County Director/Region Director. However, the Authorization of Psychotropic Medication for Children in Foster Care must be received by the DFCS County Director/Region Director and provided to prescribing physician no later than the next business day following the verbal consent.

Informed consent is not required when dealing with emergency circumstances such as suicidal ideation, severe psychosis, self-injurious behavior, physical aggression that is dangerous to self or others, or severe impulsivity that endangers self or others. Also, if psychotropic medications were initiated on an outpatient basis and the physician determines that withholding any medication can be detrimental to the patient's health.

3. If consent is granted:
 - a. Scan completed/signed consent to the prescriber.
 - b. Notify the parent, child and foster caregiver that consent was granted.
 - c. Upload the consent form into Georgia SHINES External Documentation.
 - d. Ensure the prescription is filled.
 - e. Update the child's Health Log under the Person tab in Georgia SHINES.
4. If consent is not granted:
 - a. Inform the prescriber of the decision by scanning the consent form with an explanation.
 - b. Notify the parent, child and caregiver of the decision/reason and direct the caregiver to destroy the prescription slip.
 - c. Work with the prescriber, parent, child and caregiver to establish an alternative treatment plan to address the needs of the child.
 - d. Upload the consent denial into Georgia SHINES External Documentation.

5. Ensure the child's caregiver understands the requirements below and agrees to:
 - a. Notify any prescriber of DFCS guidelines regarding consent.
 - b. Take the medication consent documents received from DFCS to all the child's behavioral health appointments.
 - c. Delay filling new prescriptions until consent is given by DFCS.
 - d. Follow DFCS guidelines regarding the administration of psychotropic medications.
 - e. Complete and continually update the Foster Care Individual Child Medication Log so that it always remains accurate and current. A Medication Administration Record (MAR) may be used by a Child Caring Institution (CCI) or Child Placing Agency (CPA) and is an appropriate substitute.

Ongoing Basis

The SSCM will:

1. Conduct at least one collateral contact with behavioral health providers each month to confirm that treatment is being provided and to obtain regular updates on the child's condition. This is applicable for children with behavioral health conditions requiring ongoing, regular care (see policy 19.16 Case Management: Collateral Contacts).
 - a. Request therapy notes from the provider following each visit.
 - b. Obtain written information on the child's diagnosis, treatment, medications, etc. and enter it in the child's Health Information page under the Person Tab in Georgia SHINES.
 - c. Notify the DFCS Care Coordination Treatment Unit if there are problems obtaining notes from treatment providers.
2. Collaborate with the Amerigroup CCT to follow through with recommendations made by behavioral health providers within five business days for non-emergency issues.
 - a. Emergency issues require immediate follow up.
 - b. Notify the DFCS Care Coordination Treatment Unit of issues with collaborating with the CCT.
3. Discuss and review the medication log maintained by the caregiver during purposeful contacts with the child (when age and developmentally appropriate) and caregiver.
4. Consult with the child's parents, the child, and the caregivers regarding any concerns they have with any medication prescribed to the child. Document their responses.
5. Share the child's medical and behavioral health information with the caregiver and document that it was shared.
6. Ensure the following information for each child is current and present in Georgia SHINES:
 - a. List of all prescribed medications;
 - b. Authorization of Psychotropic Medication for Children in Foster Care (i.e. any existing forms authorizing the use of psychotropic medication signed by the County Director);
 - c. Current trauma assessment, psychological evaluation or other behavioral health assessments;
 - d. Documents related to behavioral health referrals;

- e. Therapy notes from treatment providers.
7. Inform the DFCS Care Coordination Treatment Unit or WPAC Unit of any Permanency Roundtables or staffing held for children with complex behavioral health needs and provide access to case information.

Practice Guidance

Psychotropic Medication

Psychotropic medications are drugs that affect the central nervous system by changing how the brain processes information. They can alter a person's mood, thoughts, perceptions, emotions and behaviors. It is important to remember that although medications can play a role in treating several behavioral health disorders and conditions, treatment may also include psychotherapy (also called "talk therapy") and brain stimulation therapies (less common). In some cases, psychotherapy alone may be the best treatment option. Choosing the right treatment plan should be based on a person's individual needs and medical situation. Treatment should always be provided under the care of a licensed behavioral health professional.

When children enter care with behavioral health needs that warrant the use of psychotropic medication, the parents are usually aware of the child's condition. Nevertheless, there should be a discussion with them as well as the child and the caregiver prior to authorizing the use of psychotropic medication for a child in DFCS custody. Even though DFCS may have the legal authority to authorize the use of psychotropic medication as part of a child's treatment plan, having the support of the parent, child and caregiver will contribute to the success of the treatment plan. Since there may be strong feelings for or against the use of psychotropic medication, skill must be exercised to build a consensus. If no consensus can be reached, respectfully inform all parties that DFCS must take the course of action determined to be in the best interest of the child.

When children are in a Crisis Stabilization Unit (CSU) or Psychiatric Residential Treatment Facility (PRTF), decisions regarding consent for the use of psychotropic medication must be made very quickly to avoid impeding a child's treatment. Therefore, consent should not be delayed by an inability to locate a parent or an inability to build a consensus with the parent, child and foster caregiver. Ideally, the discussion with the parent, child and caregiver should occur before the child requires in-patient treatment.

Behavioral Health Assessments

When a child enters foster care, it is extremely important to assess the child's psychological and behavioral health needs. There are various types of behavioral health assessments including Trauma Assessments, Psychological Evaluations, Psychiatric Evaluations, Psychosocial Evaluations, Substance Abuse Evaluation, etc. Each of these assessments must be completed by a licensed behavioral health provider. The Trauma Assessment serves as the baseline assessment for children five years or older entering foster care and can help identify whether other types of assessments are appropriate to meet the needs of a child.

Trauma Assessment

Trauma can affect many aspects of a child's life and may lead to secondary problems that negatively impact safety, permanency, and well-being (e.g., peer relationships, problems in school, health related problems). The Administration for Children and Families (ACF), a federal agency in the Department of Health and Human Services, has informed state child welfare agencies of the need to implement trauma-focused screening, assessment and treatment for children in foster care. The emotional well-being of our children is of the utmost importance and is directly correlated to their ongoing safety and success of permanency plans. The trauma assessment identifies all forms of traumatic events experienced directly or witnessed by a child to determine the best type of treatment for that specific child. In addition to the trauma history, trauma-specific evidence-based clinical tools assist in identifying the types and severity of symptoms the child is experiencing. Examples of evidence-based, trauma-specific clinical tools include:

1. UCLA PTSD Index for DSM-V
2. Trauma Symptom Checklist for Children (TSCC)
3. Trauma Symptom Checklist for Young Children (TSCYC)
4. Child Sexual Behavior Inventory

The trauma assessment must provide recommendations and actions to be taken by DFCS to coordinate services and meet a child's needs. Behavioral health providers who conduct a trauma assessment will provide a report which includes:

1. Trauma history, which informs the agency of information concerning any trauma the child may have experienced or been exposed to, as well as how they have coped with the trauma in the past and present
2. A standardized trauma screening tool
3. Summary and recommendations for treatment (if needed)

The inclusion of a trauma assessment as part of the CCFA does not mean there will not be situations in which other specialized assessment (e.g., psychological evaluations, psycho-sexual evaluations, psychiatric evaluations, neuropsychological evaluations, substance abuse assessments, psycho-educational evaluations, etc.) will be warranted. The decision to refer a child for additional assessments must be made on a case-by-case basis in coordination with the CCT after an overall assessment of the child's needs has been completed. If it is determined that a psychological evaluation is needed, prior authorization must be obtained from Amerigroup for Medicaid to pay for it.

Psychological and Neuropsychological Evaluation

Psychological evaluations are not required for every child who enters care. However, the results of the trauma assessment may recommend a psychological evaluation. If so, the SSCM should collaborate with the Amerigroup CCT to refer a child to a licensed psychologist in-network. Amerigroup must provide prior authorization for any psychological evaluation; otherwise, Medicaid cannot be used to pay for the evaluation. Amerigroup will evaluate the medical necessity for the psychological evaluation based on the needs of the child and information already available. The Amerigroup CCT will coordinate any evaluation deemed necessary. For 24 Hour Emergency Assistance regarding behavioral health or addictive disease services, call 1-800-715-4225.

DFCS Care Coordination Treatment Unit

The DFCS Care Coordination Treatment Unit, formerly known as Placement Resource Operations

(PRO), is one of eight units under the Placement and Permanency Section of DFCS. Requests for clinical services from the DFCS Care Coordination Treatment Unit may be submitted to cctu.support@dhs.ga.gov. The goals of the unit include:

1. Assisting DFCS youth with severe emotional disorders, developmental disabilities, intellectual disabilities, medical complexities, and/or addictive diseases, with gaining access to an appropriate system of care in their communities, ensuring that they have access to appropriate therapeutic and placement services;
2. Coordinating appropriate services for youth who will be discharged from a Psychiatric Residential Treatment Facility (PRTF) or Crisis Stabilization Unit (CSU) and returning to the community; and
3. Partnering with agencies to facilitate effective referral and screening processes that will ensure continuity of care.

Target Populations

1. RBWO Program Designation children/youth: MWO-SMFWO
2. Severe Medically Complex
3. Substance Abuse & Human Trafficking (CSEC)
4. Specialized cases (populations) requiring out of state placement for treatment purposes, hoteling, 5+ placement disruptions and prevention cases
5. PRTF & Acute Hospitalizations
6. Emerging Dependent Adults 18-21 years old with I/DD, Severe MH, BH concerns

Behavioral Support Specialists

Behavioral Support Specialists within the DFCS Care Coordination Treatment Unit provide oversight and consultation for behavioral management issues for children in DFCS custody. They help DFCS field staff identify appropriate placement resources for children categorized as high-end with complex needs. They also provide additional support and oversight to RBWO providers to ensure that children are benefitting from therapeutic interventions and moving towards less restrictive placements

Therapeutic Support Specialists

Therapeutic Support Specialists within the DFCS Care Coordination Treatment Unit provide intensive practice guidance and consultation to field staff on cases that require a meticulous level of insight to navigate the complexities within our state systems, policies and regulations. These specialists are responsible for immediate and on-going assessment of medical necessity, treatment and discharge planning of inpatient admissions to a PRTF, CSU or other acute inpatient behavioral or physical health facility.

Wellness, Programming, Assessment, and Consultation (WPAC) Unit

The WPAC Unit provides practice support, consultation and quality monitoring of physical and moderate^[4] behavioral health needs of children and youth in foster care. Specific functions of intensive support and monitoring include:

1. Training and consultation;
2. Performance monitoring;
3. Reviews, assessment and programmatic recommendations;
4. Data tracking and trend analysis;
5. Coordination and partnering during case staffing and case planning; and
6. Strategic coordination with community partners.

Local Interagency Planning Team (LIPT)

A LIPT should be established on behalf of children in each community. The team may be single or multi-county teams depending upon the size of the community and geographic availability of needed resources. The purpose for the development of the LIPT is to improve and facilitate the coordination of services to children with severe emotional disorders (SEDs) and addictive disease. LIPTs have the following goals:

1. To assure children with severe emotional disorders (SEDs) and addictive disease (ADs), and their families, have access to a system of care in their geographic area;
2. To assure the provision of an array of community therapeutic and placement services;
3. To decrease fragmentation and duplication of services and maximize the utilization of all available resources in providing needed services; and
4. To facilitate effective referral and screening systems that will assure children have access to the services they need to lead productive lives.

Georgia law requires permanent membership of the LIPT to include a local representative from each of the following agencies:

1. Department of Behavioral Health and Developmental Disabilities (DBHDD);
2. Division of Family and Children Services (DFCS);
3. The Department of Juvenile Justice (DJJ);
4. The Department of Public Health (DPH);
5. Georgia Vocational Rehabilitation Agency (GVRA);
6. Local education agency (i.e., Public schools' representative).

In addition to the permanent members, the local interagency committee reviewing the case of a child or adolescent may include, as ad hoc members, the special education administrator of the school district serving the child or adolescent, the parents of the child or adolescent, and caseworkers from any involved agencies.

High Risk: Behavioral Health

“High risk” youth regarding behavioral health are those who have been designated as having a severe emotional disturbance or substance use/abuse. This would include:

1. A condition of severe emotional disturbance

- a. A mental or emotional disturbance listed in the American Psychiatric Association Diagnostic and Statistical Manual of Mental Disorders (DSM V);
 - b. Adult diagnostic categories appropriate for children and adolescents:
 - i. Substance related disorders;
 - ii. Schizophrenia and other psychotic disorders;
 - iii. Mood disorders;
 - iv. Anxiety disorders;
 - v. Somatoform disorders;
 - vi. Dissociative disorders;
 - vii. Sexual and gender identity disorders;
 - viii. Impulse control disorders;
 - ix. Adjustment disorders;
 - x. Personality disorders.
 - c. Disorders usually first evident in infancy;
 - d. Childhood and adolescence disorders (including pervasive development disorders);
 - e. Attention Deficit and disruptive behavior disorders;
 - f. Tic disorders;
 - g. Stereotypic movement disorder;
 - h. Feeding and eating disorders;
 - i. Separation anxiety disorder;
 - j. Selective mutism and reactive attachment disorder.
2. Functional Symptoms and Impairment:
- a. Psychotic symptoms; Serious mental illness (e.g., schizophrenia) characterized by defective or lost contact with reality, often with hallucinations or delusions;
 - b. Danger to self, other and property because of emotional disturbance: The individual is self-destructive (e.g., at risk for suicide, runaway, promiscuity, and/or at risk for causing injury to persons or significant damage to property).
3. Functional Impairment in two of the following capacities (compared with expected developmental level):
- a. Self-care - manifested by a person's consistent inability to take care of personal grooming, hygiene, clothes, and meeting of nutritional needs;
 - b. Community - manifested by a consistent lack of age appropriate behavioral controls, decision making and judgment, or involvement in the juvenile justice system;
 - c. Social Relationships - manifested by the consistent inability to develop and maintain satisfactory relationships with peers and adults;
 - d. Family - manifested by a pattern of significantly disruptive behavior exemplified by repeated and/or unprovoked violence to siblings and/or parents, disregard for the safety and welfare or self or others (e.g., fire setting, serious and chronic destructiveness, inability to conform to reasonable limitations and expectations, which may result in removal from the family or its equivalent);

e. School and/or work:

- i. Inability to pursue educational goals in a normal time frame (e.g., consistently failing grades, repeated truancy, expulsion, property damage, or violence towards others);
- ii. Inability to remain consistently employed at a self-sustaining level (e.g., inability to conform to work schedule, poor relationships with supervisor and other workers, hostile behavior on the job).

Moderate Risk: Behavioral Health

About one fourth of youth between 10-17 years of age fall into the “moderate risk” category regarding behavioral health. They tend to be experimenters. They commit minor delinquent offenses and occasionally use illicit substances, but not hard drugs. They may also be one year behind in school.

Low Risk: Behavioral Health

About half of all young people fall into the “low risk” category regarding behavioral health. They do not commit any serious delinquent acts, do not use illicit substances, and are not yet sexually active. A small portion occasionally drink alcohol and a few are a year behind in school because of their birth dates or for developmental reasons. However, their risk for any significant negative consequences is minimal.

Hospitalization

When children require short-term, specialized hospitalization services to manage critical or immediate behavioral health needs, it is extremely important that DFCS staff is available and responsive to the hospital and treatment staff providing care to the children. In some cases, family members are not available to participate in treatment and support activities. Consequently, DFCS has the responsibility to fill in the gaps and ensure full engagement in the treatment process. Hospitals are places where children go to receive treatment and must not be viewed as foster care placements. Therefore, discharge planning should begin as soon as a child is admitted to a hospital or treatment facility. DFCS must ensure an appropriate placement option is available upon the child’s release from the hospital so that the transition from the treatment facility to the placement occurs as smoothly as possible. Regardless of what day or time the discharge is scheduled to occur, a child should not be left in a hospital or facility after their treatment needs have been met.

Georgia Families 360

On March 03, 2014, the Georgia Department of Community Health (DCH) transitioned from a standard fee-for-service Medicaid program to a statewide Medicaid Care Management Organization (CMO) through Amerigroup Georgia Managed Care Company. The transition impacted children in DFCS custody and children receiving AA as they became members of a new program called Georgia Families 360. The new program is separate from Georgia Families, the general Medicaid program administered by DCH. Georgia Families 360 is designed to provide coordinated care across multiple services and focus on the physical, dental, and behavioral health needs of member children. The program is designed to ensure each member has a medical and dental home, access to preventive care screenings, and timely assessments. It also seeks to ensure medical providers adhere to clinical practice guidelines and evidence-based medicine.

Amerigroup Care Coordination Team (CCT) and Care Managers

Each Georgia Families 360 member is assigned to a regional Care Coordination Team with a specified Care Manager. The Amerigroup CCT members are Masters level staff, most whom hold a professional license to practice in their respective field. The Amerigroup CCT completes a Health Risk Screening (HRS) on youth in care to identify medical and/or behavioral health needs. It ensures each child is assigned to a behavioral health services provider as needed. The Amerigroup CCT is responsible for coordinating the health components of the Comprehensive Child and Family Assessment (CCFA), including the initial physical, dental, and trauma assessment.

Care Managers are the primary partner of the SSCM for identifying and making referrals for needed services. Care Managers ensure each youth has an individualized care plan that addresses both physical and behavioral health needs. They work with community agencies to ensure appropriate services are provided. Any services not authorized by the Amerigroup CCT will not be paid for out of Medicaid. Therefore, it is imperative that all behavioral health and developmental care be coordinated with the Amerigroup CCT to avoid any uncovered expenses. If a child is ineligible for Medicaid, then the Department of Behavioral Health and Developmental Disabilities (DBHDD) will provide behavioral health services to the child.

Non-Regulatory Guidance: Ensuring Educational Stability for Children in Foster Care

Requirements

The Division of Family and Children Services (DFCS) will:

1. Ensure educational stability for children in foster care from five years of age up until their 18th birthday, including:
 - a. Developing an Educational Stability plan
 - b. Assuring each placement of a child in foster care considers the appropriateness of the current educational setting and proximity to the school in which the child is enrolled at the time of placement or subsequent placement change. There are no exceptions to the requirement regarding appropriateness of the educational setting for each child in foster care.
 - i. A Best Interest Determination (BID) shall be conducted within Georgia SHINES using the incorporated BID questionnaire.
 - ii. Written notice shall be provided to the child's school when a child enters/re-enters foster care or changes foster care placements confirming the child is in DFCS custody and providing placement information.
 - c. Coordinating with the appropriate local educational agency to ensure that all children remain in the same school they were attending at the time of removal and at any subsequent placement change. This includes providing transportation to and from the school of origin.

 Foster care maintenance payments now include transportation costs for educational stability (see Practice Guide: Ensuring Education Stability for Children in Foster Care Field in policy 9.1 Eligibility: Foster Care Maintenance Payments).
 - d. Immediately enrolling each child in an appropriate new school and arranging for immediate transfer of the child's educational records to the new school, when remaining at the same school is not in the best interest of the child. A child must not have a break in school attendance due to entry/re-entry into foster care or a placement move.
 - e. Exploring all transportation options available to maintain a child in their current school placement (e.g., foster parent, school district, private provider, etc.). Staff shall utilize the DFCS Educational Stability Checklist, the Educational Stability Field Practice Guide, and Educational Stability Transportation Funding Request Protocol for more information and guidance. Refer to the Field Fiscal Services COSTAR Manual, Section 3006 Support Services 511 Comprehensive Child and Family Assessment for guidance regarding funding.
 - f. Connecting a child to available afterschool programs within their school or local area (where applicable). If programs are not available within the child's school, contact the DFCS Afterschool Care Program to see if any DFCS funded afterschool programs are available in the child's local area.

2. Ensure children from five years of age up until their 18th birthday receive an educational assessment and consultation via the DFCS Educational Programming, Assessment and Consultation (EPAC) Unit within 30 calendar days of entering foster care.
3. Ensure children in foster care from five years of age up until their 18th birthday are enrolled as full time elementary or secondary students or have completed secondary school. (DFCS requirements are above the minimum age requirements for compulsory school attendance in Georgia). Elementary and secondary educational services may be obtained through one of the following means:
 - a. Public school which provides elementary or secondary education in the community in which the child resides. If the school system determines it is unable to meet the educational needs of a child, the school system must provide an alternative means for the child to obtain an education.
 - b. Home school providing elementary or secondary education, if in accordance with Georgia's home school statutes, and if pre-approved by EPAC.
 - c. Independent study elementary or secondary education program in accordance with Georgia law or other jurisdiction in which the program is located, which is administered by the local school or school district.
 - d. On-campus school (that meets Georgia Department of Education requirements) at any residential facility in which the child resides.
 - e. Private school:
 - i. The private school must be approved by DFCS.
 - ii. The cost of attending private school must not be incurred by DFCS.
 - f. General Educational Development Diploma (GED):
 - i. The GED must be obtained in accordance with the policies and procedures of the Technical College System of Georgia.
 - ii. The cost of GED preparation or testing must not be incurred by DFCS unless available resources are identified.
4. Coordinate with the local educational agency to ensure each child in foster care who is incapable of attending school on a full-time basis due to a medical condition (whose incapability is supported by regular updated information in the case plan) receives the appropriate educational services to meet their needs.
5. Coordinate with the local educational agency to ensure children/youth with cognitive, emotional, or physical challenges that prevent them from fully benefitting from a regular school program are provided with appropriate educational services and resources.
6. Identify youth that meet the definition of “homeless” under the McKinney-Vento Homeless Assistance Act and refer them to the local educational agency McKinney-Vento Homeless Assistance Act Liaison to ensure they receive services for which they may qualify under the McKinney-Vento Homeless Assistance Act.
7. Use the Georgia Department of Education’s Statewide Longitudinal Data System (SLDS) and the Parent Portal to obtain education data on children in foster care, including enrollments, withdrawals, attendance, course grades, test scores, and other relevant educational information.
8. Minimize the number of school absences a child experiences due to court or treatment related appointments and contact the child's school to seek excused absences when such appointments occur. This includes court appearances, court-mandated appointments, and medical appointments that cannot be scheduled outside of school hours.

9. Maintain ongoing contact with each child's school to ensure the educational services being provided are appropriate and to monitor each child's academic performance, attendance, and conduct.
10. Ensure youth above the age of compulsory school attendance (age 16 or above) and interested in pursuing a GED rather than a high school diploma are referred to EPAC for of the most appropriate educational program (see Practice Guidance: High School Diploma vs. GED).
11. Ensure a child's education records are reviewed and updated. At the time of placement, a copy of the records shall be supplied to the foster parent or foster care provider with whom the child is placed.
12. Ensure a child's education records are provided to the child, at no cost, at the time the child leaves foster care, if the child is leaving foster care by reason of having attained the age of majority under State law.

Procedures

Child Enters/Re-enters Foster Care or Changes Foster Care Placements

The SSCM will:

1. Collaborate with the Social Service Supervisor, EPAC Education Support Monitor, and the local educational agency to make a best interest determination regarding a child remaining in the same school the child was attending and complete the Best Interest Determination in Georgia SHINES (see Practice Guidance: Best Interest Determination).
2. Provide the Education Notification Form to the child's school within one business day of a child's initial entry/re-entry into foster care or placement change to provide the following information:
 - a. Confirmation of DFCS placement authority;
 - b. New caregiver information;
 - c. Emergency contacts;
 - d. Individuals authorized to act on behalf of the child and DFCS (e.g., SSCM, Supervisor, etc.);

 - f. Guidelines regarding discipline for children in foster care (see policy 14.20 Resource Development: Discipline and Behavior Management); and
 - g. Reminder to school personnel to keep matters pertaining to the child confidential.
3. Arrange for school-age children to continue in the same school they were attending prior to entering foster care or changing placements, except when it is not in the best interest of the child.

If a placement cannot be located within the same school district, discuss with the caregiver the need to transport the child to his/her home school. Make other arrangements for transportation when there are extenuating circumstances, and the caregiver cannot provide the transportation (see Educational Stability Practice Guide).

4. If it is not in the best interest of a child to remain in the home school, document the following in the case plan for court approval:
 - a. A statement that it is not in the best interest of the child to remain in the same school at removal or placement change;
 - b. A description of the supporting circumstances, which may include documentation of:
 - i. Safety and/or well-being concerns (e.g., familial, or community-based issues of violence, maltreatment, etc.);
 - ii. Reason(s) the child’s previous educational setting was not appropriate to meet the child’s needs;
 - iii. A child’s need for a specialized placement based on identified needs such as mental health, medical issues, substance abuse issues, etc.);
 -  Documentation from a licensed medical or clinical professional is required.
 - iv. The placement decision being based on securing permanency for the child, reuniting the child with siblings, or securing an appropriate relative placement or permanency resource for the child;
 - v. The child being placed out of the state.
 - c. An assurance that DFCS and the local educational agency have cooperated to assure the immediate and appropriate enrollment in the new school and that all educational records have been provided or transferred within 10 business days;
 - d. An assurance that the appropriateness of the child’s educational setting has been considered based on information included in the EPAC Educational Assessment and Educational Stability Plan for the child.
5. If it is determined that the child qualifies as “homeless” under the McKinney-Vento Homeless Assistance Act, collaborate with the local educational agency for assistance with keeping students in their school of origin and ensuring they receive all related services for which they are eligible.
 - a. All youth in foster care may not be identified as “homeless” based on their circumstances.
 - b. For cases involving Unaccompanied Homeless Youth who are in foster care:
 - i. Once a child enters care, their personal information and education status must be entered into the Georgia SHINES system on the Person Detail and Education Detail pages. Once the pages are complete an Education Stability Plan (ESP) will be populated within Georgia SHINES for completion by the Social Services Case Manager (SSCM) and in partnership with the child’s caregiver, school support team representative(s) and the assigned EPAC Education Support Monitor and/or EPAC Education Specialist.
 - ii. Case Managers should proactively consult with their regional Education Support Monitor regarding all educational issues including, but not limited to: Individualized Education Plans (IEPs), 504 Plans, Response to Interventions (RTI), Tribunals, Disciplinary Issues, etc.

- iii. Case Managers should contact EPAC or their local county's Georgia Department of Education's Point of Contact (POC) immediately regarding any situation that could result in a disruption of the educational stability of a youth in foster care.
6. Meet with the child's teacher, counselor, parent, placement resource, assigned Education Support Monitor or other EPAC authorized representative (as needed) within 10 business days of a child's entry/re-entry into foster care or change of schools. If the EPAC representative cannot attend the meeting, the SSCM must consult with EPAC prior to the meeting. At a minimum, the following should be discussed at the meeting:

 - e. Contact information for the caregiver, DFCS Case Manager, RBWO provider (if applicable), EPAC Education Support Monitor, etc.
 - f. Who the school should notify in case of emergency, teacher conferences, etc.
 - g. Events that may require the child's absence from school (e.g., court hearings, Judicial Citizen's Panel Reviews, medical/psychological evaluations). Discuss whether absences related to court are considered excused absences, acceptable documentation for validating absences, the time frame for submission of such documentation, and the procedure for making up any assignments the child has missed;
 - h. Guidelines regarding discipline for a child in foster care;
 - i. Transportation needs for the child (especially if child is placed out of the school zone or district). This includes what specific transportation support can be provided by the school, DFCS and caregiver (see Practice Guidance: Transportation Needs);
 - j. Services available to a child who meets requirements for services under the McKinney Vento Act (if applicable);
 - k. Enrollment of the child in the National School Lunch Program, if not yet enrolled.
7. When a child must change schools:
 - a. Discuss with the child why the change is necessary and allow the child time to say goodbye to friends at the old school (when appropriate). As appropriate, allow the child to maintain significant relationships with friends, teachers, counselors, etc. from the old school.
 - b. Enlist the assistance of the Education Support Monitor (as needed) with the school transfer process to ensure the following:
 - i. The child is immediately enrolled in the new school without any break in school attendance (i.e., absences) due to entry/re-entry into foster care or a change in placement. When possible, arrange for the child to have a tour of the new school before his/her first day.

- ii. All necessary educational records are transferred to the new school within 10 calendar days of the request for transfer.
 1. Discuss with the sending school its process for transferring the child's records to the receiving school (i.e., who will be doing it and how long it will take); and
 2. Confirm with the receiving school that the child will be able to enroll even if the child is unable to produce records normally required for enrollment. Verify with the receiving school that all necessary records, transcripts and supporting educational information have been received.
 - iii. The school provides the following information at the time of enrollment:
 1. Student Handbook;
 2. Student discipline policy;
 3. School fees policy;
 4. School contact information;
 5. School calendar;
 6. Special education rights and procedural safeguards (special education students only).
 - iv. The child is enrolled in the National School Lunch Program;
 - v. The school makes every effort possible to minimize the loss of credits earned at the youth's last school when completing the class schedule;

8. Access the Georgia Department of Education's Statewide Longitudinal Data System (SLDS) using each child's Georgia Testing Identification Number.
 - a. Review the information on the student level education access page in the SLDS;
 - b. Extract and upload data such as longitudinal attendance and unofficial transcripts into external documents in Georgia SHINES;
 - c. Update the Education Detail Page in Georgia SHINES with current and accurate data.
 9. Submit the Non-Traditional Education Approval Form to EPAC for approval of alternate schooling options, if applicable.
 10. Document considerations regarding the child's educational setting, decisions, contacts with school officials and EPAC, child's advancement to the next grade, graduation, etc. and update the Education Detail page in Georgia SHINES within 72 hours.

The Education Support Monitor will:

1. Contact the SSCM and the placement resource to verify information, schedule an initial assessment, and ensure student records are in the file.
2. Conduct an educational assessment through the review of educational records such as the IEP, 504 Plan and Response to Intervention, consultation with school personnel, etc.

3. Validate the GTID and correctly identify children in DFCS custody who are attending Georgia schools.
4. Collaborate with the SSCM to complete part 3 of the student's Educational Stability Plan (ESP) within 30 calendar days of a child entering care as part of the initial case planning process and updated at intervals consistent with the Case Plan, but no later than every six months.

The ESP is to be developed jointly with the Education Support Monitor, the child's parent, placement resource, SSCM, and the local educational agency.

5. Collaborate with the Local Education Agency/School System and SSCM to monitor progress and quality of services provided to the child.
6. Notify the SSCM and other appropriate staff of changes and programmatic updates.
7. Monitor processes, reports, invoices, and other documentation while updating the child's ESP and determine if services should be modified or continued.
8. Address disputes regarding school placement and other issues according to the dispute resolution process established with the local education agency. Contact the regional Education Support Monitor for assistance with the dispute resolution process.
9. Address requests for non-traditional school enrollment such as home school, private school, or GED.

Throughout the Period Child Remains in Foster Care

The SSCM will:

1. Monitor the child's educational needs, progress and supports needed to be successful in school. This includes:
 - a. Regular contact with the school, including the child's teacher(s);
 - b. Regular discussions with the child's caregiver and parent (when appropriate) regarding the child's academic performance, attendance, and conduct
 - c. Regular discussions with the child's caregiver and parent (when appropriate) about the degree to which they are remaining actively involved in the child's education
 - i. Are the attending parent-teacher conferences?
 - ii. How often are they accessing the Parent Portal and reviewing the child's current school information?
 - d. Access the school's Parent Portal at least once each month for current school information (e.g., grades, progress reports, discipline reports, results of standardized tests, etc.);
 - e. Have ongoing discussions with the child regarding the child's educational needs and progress.
2. Consult with the Education Support Monitor regarding issues affecting a child's educational well-being or any situation that could result in a disruption of a child's educational setting, including actual placement disruption. This includes situations when a child:
 - a. Fails or scores below standard on one or more content areas of the required state administered standardized test for his/her grade level;

- b. In grades 11 or 12 fails any of the components of a test impacting eligibility for promotion or graduation;
 - c. Is preparing to take the state required state administered standardized test for his/her grade level or is preparing to take the make-up exam;
 - d. Is retained at least one grade level during primary or secondary school;
 - e. Has experienced more than one school transfer during the current academic year;
 - f. Receives multiple below average/unsatisfactory or failing progress reports within a semester;
 - g. Accrues excessive unexcused absences (five or more days) from school (occurring not because of illness or other justified reasons). Children are considered truant when, during the school calendar year, they have more than five days of unexcused absences;
 - h. Is suspended from school for more than three days or is suspended two or more times within a school year;
 - i. Is released from a Psychiatric Residential Treatment Facility (PRTF) within the past 90 days;

 - ii. Work with the local educational agency and caregivers to secure alternative educational services for the child through a community agency.
 - l. Is in grade 12 (under 18 years of age), has identified academic deficiencies, and needs intensive academic support to exit care with at least a high school diploma; or is above the age of compulsory school attendance (16 years of age) and is interested in pursuing a GED rather than a high school diploma.
3. Attend and participate in the child's IEP meetings (where applicable).
- a. Provide parents advance notice of IEP meetings. If parents elect not to attend IEP meetings, they may wave their right through signature. If the whereabouts of parents are unknown, a diligent search is to be conducted (see policy 19.20 Case Management: Diligent Search).
 - b. Encourage the placement resource to participate in IEP meetings as well.

 A placement resource can serve as an education surrogate (see Practice Guidance: Educational Surrogate).
 - c. Contact the Education Support Monitor for consultation prior to the meeting.
 - d. Ensure the school system provides an alternative means for the child to obtain educational services within the community of the school if the school has determined it is unable to meet the child's special needs.
 - e. Ensure there is an understanding and documentation of the following at the end of the IEP meeting:
 - i. The child's present level of academic performance;
 - ii. The reason(s) why the child is academically behind peers of the same age, if applicable;

- iii. The kind of services and/or classroom interventions the school will provide;
 - iv. The amount and frequency of services (e.g., two 45-minute sessions per week in a social skills group);
 - v. The person(s) who will be responsible for delivering the services;
 - vi. The timeframe for when the services will be initiated;
 - vii. Educational goals and objectives for the child;
 - viii. How the impact of the intervention will be measured and reported; and
 - ix. The next course of action if the intervention does not work.
- f. Upload a copy of the IEP to SHINES External Documentation.
4. Be proactive in avoiding school placement changes.
- a. Explore before/after school care that would make it possible for the placement resource to transport the child/youth to his/her home school.
 - b. Monitor children’s educational issues in their school to identify emerging academic and behavioral issues; work with the school staff to address them to prevent escalation. Collaborate with the EPAC staff for ongoing educational support for children through consultation, inclusion in Family Team Meetings, Student Support Teams (SST), etc.
 - c. Identify and address ongoing and emerging issues that may lead to placement disruptions.

Educational Stability for Children in Foster Care

Children and youth in foster care, like all other children and youth, need and deserve a positive school experience. It not only enhances their well-being, but also helps with their successful transition to adulthood. In addition, it increases their chances for personal fulfillment, economic self-sufficiency, and their ability to contribute to society. Research has shown that many children enter foster care already behind in school. In addition to the trauma of being removed from their homes, many of these children/youth experience frequent placement and school moves. Placement changes impact the child/youth’s school stability and increases their risk of falling further behind academically. To avoid this result, DFCS is committed to reducing school changes, which can be as traumatic as foster care placement.

For many children school is a haven for safety, consistency, nourishment, and encouragement. A new school means getting to know more strangers, acclimating to even more life changes, navigating new social norms and possible changes in grading standards, books, and expectations—all while dealing with the fact that they are in foster care. Placement without regard to the educational implications can mean that the child is unnecessarily negatively impacted by having to attend a new school. The Fostering Connections to Success and Increasing Adoptions Act of 2008 (FCA) requires that children who enter foster care remain in the same school they were attending prior to the removal. The Every Student Succeeds Act (ESSA) of 2015 requires State and local educational agencies to work with DFCS to ensure educational stability for children in foster care. Consequently, educational and child welfare agencies have a joint responsibility in this endeavor that requires consistent collaboration. Some considerations for county/regional leadership in supporting educational stability for children in care include but are not limited to:

1. What efforts are being made to keep children placed close to their home schools?
2. What efforts are being made to work with the local school districts to eliminate barriers to the child remaining in the same school if in the child’s best interest? For example, the county should work with the EPAC Education Support Monitor to:
 - a. Identify a county point person (liaison) to work directly with the schools to facilitate/address educational issues.
 - b. Identify the local homeless education liaison if the child qualifies as a “homeless” youth under the McKinney-Vento Homeless Assistance Act.
 - c. Develop an effective process for ensuring that a child remains in their school of origin.
 - d. Identify resources to provide transportation to the child’s home school.
 - e. Develop a process for how a child will be immediately enrolled with records transferred in cases where it is not in her best interest to remain in the same school.
 - f. Create an interagency workgroup to identify obstacles and develop processes.
3. Are there active ongoing recruitment and retention efforts to locate appropriate resource families and/or other foster care placements within the school jurisdictions or attendance areas from which children come into foster care, especially communities with higher incidents of Child Protective Services (CPS) reports, etc.?
4. Is the agency partnering with the local school districts to help recruit families?

Georgia courts have required the legislature to define what level of “basic education” will be provided to all students and to fund schools to provide this basic level of education. Local educational agencies cannot take away students’ right to education without providing them with an opportunity to dispute the removal from school. The SSCM must ensure children’s rights are protected. Local educational agencies must have a very good reason to justify the permanent or indefinite removal of a student from school.

Educational Programming, Assessment and Consultation Unit (EPAC)

The EPAC Unit provides comprehensive academic support services focusing on improving educational outcomes and the academic achievement of children in DFCS custody who are at least five years of age up until their 18th birthday. EPAC services are supported through Temporary Assistance for Needy Families (TANF) funding and are initiated through SSCM. Upon initial placement into foster care, children and youth are referred to EPAC for a comprehensive educational assessment and subsequently monitored for academic progress. Support regarding educational waivers is also provided, as needed. Education Support Monitors are assigned regionally to provide individualized case consultation, advocacy, and to assist case managers in linking children and youth to local education support services, while adhering to local school district policies and procedures. Additionally, EPAC is responsible for procuring educational services that include, but are not limited to, tutoring services. The following list outlines services provided through EPAC:

1. Educational Assessment: Each child/youth who is referred for EPAC services receives an initial educational assessment. This assessment is provided by a certified teacher or authorized representative. It provides a comprehensive review of the math and reading performance of the child/youth.
2. Educational Consultation to Case Managers: After a child/youth has received an initial educational assessment, the ESM assigned to the region will consult with the child/youth's case manager to develop an Educational Stability Plan based on the results derived from the assessment.

3. Educational Consultation to Executive Staff: EPAC will consult with DFCS County and Regional Directors and state office leadership to provide updates and consultation on the educational outcomes of youth served. These updates and consultations may assist in the development of educational policy and practice within the division and provide clarification and interpretation of local and state federal laws and statutes.
4. Tutorial Services: When community resources, supplemental educational services, and other educational entitlements have been exhausted, children/youth in need of remediation or academic support receive additional tutoring services provided by a certified teacher. These pre-selected teachers (tutors) are identified as Educational Specialists who have individually established contracts with DFCS.
5. Individualized Education Plan (IEP) Development: For children/youth in need of remediation and support services, the Education Support Monitor and case manager for that child/youth will work together to ensure that an Individualized Education Plan is developed for the child/youth (if needed). The Education Support Monitor will also work with the child/youth's local school system to ensure this plan meets their current educational goals and objectives.
6. Advocacy: The Education Support Monitor for each child/youth and the state office EPAC staff will work with local school systems and the Georgia Department of Education to ensure quality educational services are provided to youth in the custody of DFCS. Advocacy activities may range from helping to coordinate academic records for youth who have experienced multiple placements to helping develop an Individualized Education Plan for youth with identified special needs.
7. Resource Coordination: Each Education Support Monitor will maintain an Educational Resource Directory for their region(s). This directory will provide additional support resources for their youth who need additional assistance. These resources may include academic support services, community-based services and child and family services.

Best Interest Determination

When determining whether it is contrary to the child's best interest to remain in their home school during placement into foster care or placement changes, consider the following:

1. What historical and/or current information is available to make a best interest decision?
2. What was the recommendation from the EPAC Educational Stability Plan and/or Educational Stability Checklist regarding the assessed educational needs of the child and what educational setting is best to meet these needs?
3. Are there other needs (mental health, substance abuse, etc.) that cannot be met in the current setting and require a specialized placement setting?
4. Are there familial or community violence concerns that threaten the child's safety/well-being?
5. Is this a planned placement decision based on securing permanency for the child, reunification with siblings, placement with a fit and willing relative or an out of state placement?
6. Has the decision to move the child included a school transitioning plan?
7. Have the parent, caregiver, school representative, Education Support Monitor, etc. provided input in the best interest determination?

8. Was the Education Support Monitor consulted prior to making a best interest determination at each change of placement?
9. Is there a clear procedure at the local level for resolving disputes regarding whether a school change is needed? Does the procedure address the following: written decisions, notice to parents, and what happens to the child pending resolution of the dispute?

Determining Appropriateness of an Educational Setting

The Fostering Connections to Success and Increasing Adoptions Act requires that the child's current educational setting be appropriate. Consider the following when assessing and determining appropriateness of the child's educational setting:

1. Does the child have special education or remedial education needs that can be supported in the current/prospective educational setting?
2. Does the child need a gifted educational program, or require advanced placement classes? If so, is the current/prospective educational setting able to meet such needs?
3. What documentation (reports, evaluations, assessments, etc.) is available to determine the appropriateness of the educational setting?
4. What input has been obtained from the parent, caregiver, teacher, or other school representative to assess appropriateness of the educational setting?
5. What is the parent/caregiver's perspective/involvement regarding the child's educational needs?
6. What efforts have been made to coordinate with the school/Department of Education?
7. Has the school made recommendations for meeting the child's needs in the current setting or for transitioning the child to a more appropriate setting?

High School Diploma vs. GED

Earning a high school diploma is the preferred certificate of secondary education completion for youth in care. Post-secondary education or training should be sought for those youth whose aptitudes and school records demonstrate they are willing and capable of benefitting from such educational opportunities.

General Educational Development (GED) tests are a group of five subject tests in science, mathematics, social studies, reading and writing. Successful passage of the tests certifies that the test taker has high school level academic skills. It allows those who will not or did not complete high school the opportunity to earn their high school equivalency credential. If pursuing a GED is recommended or if the child desires to pursue a GED, the SSCM, EPAC Education Support Monitor, Independent Living Specialist, youth, foster parent, relative caregiver, or other provider should meet to discuss whether it is in the child's best interest. To be considered for a GED program the following conditions must apply:

1. The program must be an approved/certified GED program.
2. The youth must be at least 16 years old and cannot graduate by age 21.

3. The youth has met all guidelines provided by local school districts and the Georgia Department of Education.

The final decision must be documented, in the child's case plan and Written Transitional Living Plan and include a vocational, employment or other next steps plan including timeline and milestones.

Transportation Needs

Transportation should not be a barrier to obtaining educational stability for children in foster care. Ensuring educational stability for children in care requires partnership and creative collaboration between DFCS staff, school officials and caregivers. The SSCM must enlist the assistance of the school and caregivers to provide for the child's transportation needs. "Just Ask." Ask the school social worker, the school principal, Local Education Agency/School System point of contact for foster care related issues, or other local educational agency officials what needs to happen to keep the child in the home school and what options are available for transportation. Also, discuss transportation expectations with caregivers during the placement matching process. Before a placement is made, the SSCM needs to know what support a caregiver is willing and able to provide regarding transportation. Refer to the Educational Stability Field Practice Guide, and Educational Stability Transportation Funding Request Protocol for assistance.

The McKinney-Vento Homeless Assistance Act

The McKinney-Vento Homeless Assistance Act is the primary piece of federal legislation that provides guidance on the education of children and youth experiencing homelessness in U.S. public schools. The Act ensures educational rights and protections for homeless children. Under the Act, State educational agencies must ensure that homeless children have equal access to the same free, appropriate education (including public preschool education) as other children.

The McKinney-Vento Homeless Assistance Act provides covered youth with the right to:

1. Remain in their school of origin until the end of any academic year, or for the duration of the youth's "homelessness," whichever is longer;
2. Receive transportation to their school of origin;
3. School placement decisions guided by the "best interest" of the youth with an aim to "continue the child's or youth's education in the school of origin" unless doing so is contrary to the wishes of the child or his/her parent or guardian;
4. Choose between the local school where they are living or the school where they were last enrolled;
5. Immediate enrollment in the new school even if records normally required for enrollment are absent such as proof of residency, immunizations, school records, or other documents;
6. Prompt transfer of school records when a child enters a new school district;
7. Receive various specified school services;
8. Be free from harassment and isolation;
9. Prompt resolution of any school placement disputes with ongoing enrollment in the school of origin pending resolution of those disputes.

Every school district is required to have a local homeless education liaison. Issues or concerns regarding the local liaisons should be referred to the State Coordinator for Homeless Education. For additional information, contact the EPAC unit.

504 Plans

The "504" refers to Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act and the Americans with Disabilities Act, which specifies that no one with a disability can be excluded from participating in federally funded programs or activities, including elementary, secondary, or post-secondary schooling. "Disability" in this context refers to a "physical or mental impairment which substantially limits one or more major life activities." This can include physical impairments; illnesses or injuries; communicable diseases; chronic conditions like asthma, allergies, diabetes, and learning problems. A 504 plan specifies the modifications and accommodations that will be needed for these students to have an opportunity to perform at the same level as their peers, and might include such things as wheelchair ramps, blood sugar monitoring, an extra set of textbooks, a peanut-free lunch environment, home instruction, or a tape recorder or keyboard for taking notes.

Response to Intervention (RTI)

In education, response to intervention (RTI) is a method of academic intervention used in the United States to provide early, systematic assistance to children who are having difficulty learning. It was developed as an alternative to the ability-achievement "discrepancy model," which pertains to children who exhibit a discrepancy between their ability (often measured by IQ testing) and academic achievement (as measured by their grades and standardized testing). RTI seeks to prevent academic failure through early, increasingly intensive research-based interventions with frequent progress measurement. It is believed that students who do not respond favorably to universally effective interventions are more likely (than students who do) to have biologically based learning disabilities that require special education.

Individualized Education Plan (IEP)

An IEP is a written plan designed to meet the unique educational needs of a child who may have a disability, as defined by federal regulations. The IEP is developed, reviewed, and revised at a meeting of a team that includes school officials and parents. In all cases, the IEP must be tailored to the individual student's needs as identified by the IEP evaluation process and must especially help teachers and related service providers (such as paraprofessional educators) understand the student's disability and how the disability affects the learning process. The IEP should describe how the student learns, how the student best demonstrates that learning, and what teachers and service providers will do to help the student learn more effectively. When developing an IEP, it is important to assess students in all areas related to their known disabilities. Consideration should be given to the student's ability to access the general curriculum, how the disability affects the student's learning, developing goals and objectives that correspond to the needs of the student, and ultimately choosing a placement in the least restrictive environment possible for the student. If a student qualifies for special education, the IEP must be reviewed on an annual basis and updated over the student's primary educational years (i.e., up to the point of high school graduation, or prior to the 22nd birthday). The requirements for development and implementation of an IEP are found at 34 CFR §§300.320 through 300.324.

Educational Surrogate

An educational surrogate parent is a person appointed by a local school system to assume parental rights under the special education regulations in order to protect the student's rights. The SSCM may not serve as an educational surrogate. When appropriate, the birth parent may serve as the child's educational surrogate. DFCS will ensure that the foster parent or relative caregiver is aware of the benefits of serving as an educational surrogate to the child, and that the ongoing training required to serve as a surrogate parent is appropriate. If the foster parent or relative caregiver is unwilling or unable to serve as the surrogate, consider asking another foster parent or the local school system, if the birth parent is not appropriate.

Statewide Longitudinal Data System (SLDS)

The Georgia Department of Education's SLDS captures education data including enrollments, attendance, course grades, test scores, and other relevant educational information. DFCS social services staff and others have access to this information (through Georgia SHINES) for children and youth in foster care. This tool should be used to assist in case planning and service delivery. Each youth enrolled in a Georgia public school is assigned a Georgia Testing Identification Number, which is required to access each youth's student level educational access page. Georgia Testing Identification Numbers may be retrieved from the person identifiers section of the Person Detail Page in Georgia SHINES.

Parent Portal

The Parent Portal is a free online resource made available by local educational agencies to parents of students in grades K-12. The portal allows parents continuous, secure access to information about their children and their academic career (e.g., grades, attendance, discipline reports results of standardized tests, bus route, etc.). Parents may also email their child's teacher directly from the portal. In order to access the portal, a parent needs a computer or mobile device with internet access, a user ID and password. Only authorized users with a user ID and password have access to a student's records so this information should be kept confidential. Each local educational agency is unique, so the functionality of the Parent Portal may vary. One should contact his or her local educational agency to find out how to register for the Parent Portal and other details.

Public Law (PL) 113-183 Preventing Sex Trafficking and Strengthening Families Act of 2014

Requirements

The Division of Family and Children Services (DFCS) will:

1. Ensure each child in foster care has ongoing opportunities to engage in age and developmentally appropriate activities (i.e., extracurricular, enrichment, cultural, and social activities). This includes young adults 18 years of age and older participating in the extended foster care program. The term age or developmentally appropriate means:
 - a. Activities or items that are generally accepted as suitable for children of the same chronological age or level of maturity or that are determined to be developmentally appropriate for a child based on the development of cognitive, emotional, physical, and behavioral capacities that are typical for an age or age group; and
 - b. In the case of a specific child, activities or items that are suitable for the child based on the developmental stages attained by the child with respect to cognitive, emotional, physical and behavioral capacities of the child.
2. Actively encourage the input of parents regarding the type of activities in which they would like their children to participate and include parents in the decision making whenever possible.
3. Allow caregivers to apply the reasonable and prudent parenting standard (RPPS) when determining whether to allow children in foster care under the responsibility of the state to participate in extracurricular, enrichment, cultural, and social activities.
 - a. In this context, 'caregiver' means a foster parent with whom a child in foster care has been placed or a designated official for a child caring institution (CCI) in which a child in foster care has been placed.
 - b. RPPS is defined as the standard characterized by careful and sensible parental decisions that maintain the health, safety, and best interests of a child while at the same time encouraging the emotional and developmental growth of the child.
 - c. This includes activities such as clubs, school and community sports, school field trips, youth group activities, service organizations, birthday parties, sleepovers, outings with peers, driver's education, in-state vacations with the caregiver's family or other families, summer and school break camps.

- d. This includes assessing and approving the plan of supervision for children and youth engaging in activities while not under the direct supervision or oversight of the caregiver.
- e. A caregiver's decisions regarding a child's participation in activities must not be contrary to a pre-existing court order or impact parent/child reunification activities such as visitation.

Major decisions that have a significant effect on the life of a child in foster care require approval from the County DFCS and/or juvenile court (see Practice Guidance: Exceptions to Caregiver Decision-Making).

- 4. Ensure prospective foster and adoptive parents are adequately prepared with the appropriate knowledge and skills to provide for the needs of a child. As necessary, such preparation shall continue after placement of the child and includes knowledge and skills relating to the RPPS for the participation of the child in age or developmentally appropriate activities, including knowledge and skills relating to the developmental stages of the cognitive, emotional, physical, and behavioral capacities of a child and applying the standard to decisions such as whether to allow the child to engage in social, extracurricular, enrichment, cultural and social activities, including sports, field trips and overnight activities lasting one or more days and involving the signing of permission slips and arranging transportation for the child to and from extracurricular enrichment and social activities.
- 5. Ensure the standards for family foster home and CCIs permit use of the RPPS.
 - a. The standards so established are applied by the State to any foster family home or CCI receiving funds under Titles IV-E or IV-B.
 - b. The standards shall require, as a condition of each contract entered into by a CCI to provide foster care, the on-site presence of at least one official who, with respect to any child placed at the CCI, is designated to be the caregiver who is authorized to apply the RPPS to decisions involving the participation of the child in age or developmentally appropriate activities, and who is provided with training in how to use and apply the RPPS in the same manner as prospective foster parents are provided the training pursuant to paragraph 471(a)(24).
- 6. Ensure the standards for family foster homes and CCIs include policies related to the liability of foster parents and private entities under contract by the state involving the application of the RPPS to ensure appropriate liability for caregivers when a child participates in an approved activity and the caregiver approving the activity acts in accordance with the RPPS.
- 7. Allow children in foster care the opportunity for spiritual development in accordance with the wishes of the children and their parent(s).
- 8. Require caregivers to keep records of a child's participation in activities and significant decisions and share them with the child's Social Services Case Manager (SSCM)/CPA staff during regular contacts.
- 9. Require caregivers to obtain written authorization before a child in DFCS custody travels outside of the State of Georgia or outside of the United States.
 - a. Written authorization may be granted by the child's parent(s) (if termination of parental rights has not occurred) and/or the Juvenile Court.

- b. Written authorization may be granted by the Division Director/Deputy Commissioner, Child Welfare if the child is in the permanent custody of DFCS.
- c. The written authorization must include authorization for the caregiver to obtain emergency medical treatment for the child and verification of the child's Medicaid coverage or proof of travel insurance that covers medical expenses.

Children whose placement borders another state whose proximity makes traveling across the state line part of the caregivers' normal routine.

Procedures

DFCS/CPA/CCI Staff

1. Review the RPPS with caregivers.
 - a. Promote caregivers' understanding of how to apply it to decisions regarding children and youth participation in extracurricular, social enrichment, cultural, and social activities.
 - b. Document discussions of the RPPS with caregivers in Georgia SHINES within 72 hours of occurrence.
2. Discuss with children, parents, and caregivers any activities in which children are currently participating or are interested in participating.
 - a. Assist, as needed, with identifying age and developmentally appropriate activities that would promote a child's personal and social growth.
 - b. Identify the resources needed to support a child's participation in activities (e.g., financial, transportation, physical examinations, instrument, lessons, etc.).
 - c. Identify any barriers to participation and find appropriate solutions.
 - d. Address any issues or concerns about children participating in religious activities with the caregivers.
 - i. To the extent possible, allow children to attend their own place of worship and support participation by the parents.
 - ii. Consult with parents before allowing their children to participate in significant religious rituals and activities (e.g., baptism).
 - e. Review the caregivers' records and document the child's participation in activities in Georgia SHINES.
3. Discuss with caregivers the opportunities each child placed in the home has been provided to engage in age or developmentally appropriate activities. Help caregivers find solutions to any identified barriers to participation.
4. Ask caregivers to provide advance notice of plans for the child to travel out-of-state or out-of-country to ensure there is adequate time to obtain consent from a parent or the juvenile court.

If the parent and/or the juvenile court does not authorize the travel, arrange for a temporary placement (respite care) for children during the time the caregiver is away (see policy 14.18 Resource Development: Supervision of Children).

Practice Guidance

Promoting Normalcy for Children in Foster Care

The Preventing Sex Trafficking and Strengthening Families Act contains provisions to promote normalcy for children in foster care. This means allowing children and youth in foster care to experience childhood and adolescence in ways similar to their peers who are not in foster care. Children in foster care should have opportunities to participate in activities that are appropriate to their age and stage of development, and promote personal and social growth, self-esteem, and independence. Caregivers are responsible for making routine, day-to-day decisions regarding the ongoing care and maintenance of children placed in their home. When applying the reasonable and prudent parenting standard, the goal is to promote normalcy for children in foster care to the fullest extent possible. Participation in extracurricular and other childhood activities is important to the child's social and emotional well-being and promotes the development of valuable life skills.

Extracurricular, Cultural, and Social Activities

Participation in age-appropriate activities helps children to develop their social, emotional and intellectual skills. Children should be encouraged to participate in extracurricular activities (e.g., sports, band, choir, 4-H and other school clubs, field trips, etc.), cultural activities (e.g., museum exhibits, dance recitals, plays, etc.) and social activities (e.g., YMCA, Boys and Girls Club, martial arts, bowling, movies, etc.). Unfortunately, some children in care may not have had previous experiences with engaging in such activities before entering foster care. Consequently, some may require special assistance with learning how to participate appropriately in such activities. When appropriate, a child's parents should be allowed to participate in events and activities that occur in their child's life. This is in keeping with the concept of partnership parenting wherein foster parents work with a child's parents to help enhance the parents' parental capacities and provide them with parenting opportunities while their children are in foster care. Just like the children in foster care, some of their parents may not have ever had previous experience with participating in many events or activities with their children. Engaging the parents outside of court rooms and DFCS offices can help build positive working relationships and help parents experience the joy of parenting that may have been overshadowed stress and the trauma of having their children removed from their custody.

Spiritual Development

Parents of children in foster care retain certain residual rights, even though DFCS holds temporary custody. Determining their child's religious affiliation is one of these. When appropriate, parents should be allowed to participate in religious activities that occur in their child's life. Given that foster parents could hold personal spiritual beliefs that differ from those of children, or the parents of children placed in their home, careful consideration must be given to this issue during the placement selection process. By considering potential conflicts ahead of time, agencies may avoid placement disruptions or placing children in homes where neither they nor their foster parents feel comfortable engaging in the spiritual practices of their choice.

Reasonable and Prudent Parenting Standard

When applying this standard, a caregiver must consider what is age or developmentally appropriate for a particular child. In other words, the caregiver must know what activities are generally accepted as suitable for children of the same chronological age or level of maturity. Since many children in foster care experience developmental delays as a result of maltreatment or early childhood trauma, caregivers must determine what is suitable for each child based upon the developmental stages attained by the child with respect to cognitive, emotional, physical, and behavioral capacities.

Depending on where a child is developmentally, it may not be reasonable or prudent to allow the child to participate in certain activities or the child may require a higher level of supervision than another child of the same chronological age. In some instances, a child may lack the capacity to perform certain tasks that another child might be able to perform. Thus, knowledge of a child's individual capacities and good judgment are required to successfully apply this standard. For instance, when determining whether to allow youth 14 years of age and older to be left under their own supervision for short periods of time (e.g., an hour after school or when foster parents are attending to short-term personal matters) caregivers must ensure the youth do not have physical, mental, or emotional issues that inhibit their ability to function for a short period of time independent of a caregiver. In addition, caregivers must ensure youth are aware of procedures to be taken in case of an emergency and have access to emergency contact numbers for the caregiver and other approved contacts (e.g., relative, neighbor, or friend). If a caregiver or other entity under contract with DFCS acts in accordance with this standard when approving a child's participation in an age or developmentally appropriate activity, immunity from civil liability exists. Nevertheless, caregiver's decisions regarding such activities cannot be contrary to a pre-existing court order.

Exceptions to Caregiver Decision-Making

Major decisions that have a significant effect on the life of a child in foster care require approval from the County DFCS and/or juvenile court. Some decisions should be made in consultation with a child's parent(s) as well, especially if parental rights have not been terminated. Examples of major decisions include, but are not limited to, the following:

1. Changing a child's school, school attendance, IEP, or participation in a GED program.
2. Changing a child's psychotropic or other prescribed medication (including initiating or stopping) or altering the administration of medication (e.g., dosage, frequency, etc.).
3. Authorizing children to have major medical procedures.
4. Changing a child's court-ordered visitation plan (e.g., date, location, supervision, etc.).
5. Stopping children from visiting their siblings.
6. Drastically altering a child's appearance (e.g., cutting and/or applying chemicals to the child's hair, body piercing, tattoos, etc.).
7. Changing a child's religion.
8. Allowing a child to engage in religious ceremonies (e.g., Baptism, Confirmation, etc.).
9. Stopping a youth from participating in the DFCS Independent Living Program (ILP).
10. Authorizing a youth to obtain a driver's license.
11. Authorizing a youth to travel out-of-state; and/or
12. Granting a youth approval to date.

Below are examples of things that are non-negotiable, and caregivers may not do:

1. Return children to the caregiver from whom they were removed (e.g., parents, adoptive parents, relatives, legal guardians, etc.) without court approval.
2. Violate the DFCS discipline policy.
3. Violate a court order.

O.C.G.A. § 40-8-76

O.C.G.A. § 40-6-296 (e)(1)

Requirements

The Division of Family and Children Services (DFCS) will:

1. Require all children in care less than eight years of age to be properly restrained in an appropriate child safety passenger seat or booster seat when being transported in a motor vehicle in accordance with state statutes.

The County Director/designee for the county of legal responsibility may waive this requirement upon receiving written verification from the child's primary health provider (physician) that the child has a medical condition that prevents the use of a child safety seat or that the child is greater than 4'9" (57 inches) in height.

2. Require all children, regardless of age, to be individually secured by either an appropriately fitting seat belt or safety restraint system when being transported in a motorized vehicle.
3. Require all children in care under 16 years old to wear safety helmets when operating a bicycle or riding as a passenger on a bicycle on any road, bike path or sidewalk and when riding a skateboard. The helmet must be properly fitted and securely fastened.

Procedures

Social Services Case Manager

1. Provide foster parents with instructions for the purchase and reimbursement of a safety-approved car seat for any child placed in their home who falls within the age range (see Field Fiscal Services COSTAR Manual section 3001 Family Foster Care Programs).
 - a. Instruct foster parents to install the child restraint device in accordance with the manufacturer's directions.
 - b. Explain to the foster parent that the restraint device belongs to the child and "moves" with the child.
2. Take the following action when the child reaches the age of eight years old or no longer can use the restraint device:
 - a. Inventory the device and, if needed, make it available for another child in care.
 - b. Provide the foster parent with instructions for the purchase and reimbursement of a car seat or restraint system appropriate for the child's size (if the existing device has been outgrown and the child is either too young or too small to be safely secured with a passenger seat belt).
3. Upon receiving written verification from the child's primary health provider (physician) that the child has a medical condition that prevents the use of a child safety seat, or that the child is greater than 4'9" (57 inches) in height, request the County Director/Designee to grant a waiver.
4. Reimburse foster parents for the purchase of safety helmets in accordance with approved amount (see Field Fiscal Services COSTAR Manual section 3001 Family Foster Care Programs).
 - a. Verify the purchase.
 - b. Obtain a receipt for the purchase.
 - c. Utilize state funds.

Practice Guidance

Seatbelts are made for adults and do not fit young children correctly. Booster seats position the shoulder belt across the shoulder and chest rather than the neck. Booster seats also keep the lap belt low over the hip and thigh bones and not across the belly. O.C.G.A. § 40-8-76 requires all children under the age of eight are required to be properly restrained in an appropriate child passenger safety seat or booster seat. This law applies to DFCS staff, foster parents, volunteers transporting children, and anyone transporting children. When being transported, all children must be protected by either a seat belt or safety restraint system.

Requirements

The Division of Family and Children Services (DFCS) will:

1. Enroll children in DFCS custody (under five years of age) in an early care and education program licensed by the Department of Early Care and Learning (DECAL) and participating in Quality Rated, Georgia's tiered quality rating and improvement system (qualityrated.dec.ga.gov). This includes childcare programs, Head Start and Early Head Start programs and Pre-K programs. Program selection should be based on the individualized needs of the child and caregiver.

Children in DFCS custody are categorically eligible for Childcare and Parent Services (CAPS), Head Start and Early Head Start education programs.

2. Evaluate the need for childcare services (less than 24 hours per day) for school aged children in an active foster care case.
3. Determine if childcare needs are regular (ongoing and predictable) or irregular (short term or temporary).
4. Complete the required fields in Georgia SHINES to transmit a referral for the CAPS program immediately but no later than one business day of discovering regular childcare is needed.

CAPS cannot reimburse for childcare expenses prior to the date DECAL receives the referral.

5. Update the necessary fields in Georgia SHINES to reflect any changes involving a child or caregiver receiving childcare services within five business days of the change to trigger a change request to DECAL.
6. Use state or local funding (i.e. county funds) to pay for irregular childcare when CAPS eligibility criteria are not met. A waiver from the Early Childhood Collaboration Director is required to use state funds to pay childcare expenses for any purpose other than foster parent training.

Procedures

Childcare (Regular)

The Social Services Case Manager (SSCM) will:

1. Discuss the need for childcare services (less than 24 hours a day) and the benefits of early education with caregivers prior to placement.
2. Complete the required fields in Georgia SHINES to transmit a referral for the CAPS program immediately, but no later than one business day after discovering regular childcare is needed.
3. Provide guidance to the caregivers regarding what to expect while the referral is being processed:
 - a. Advise caregivers that it may take five business days or more to process the childcare referral and discuss the plan for childcare during that period of time.
 - b. Advise caregivers that if they are approved for CAPS, childcare expenses may be covered back to the date the childcare referral was received by DECAL.
 - c. Advise caregivers not to pay for childcare expenses out-of-pocket prior to approval of the referral.
4. Update Georgia SHINES as indicated below:
 - a. Whenever a child is transferred to another placement;
 - b. Whenever a child enrolls in a different childcare program;
 - c. Within five business days of any other changes involving a child or caregiver receiving CAPS, Early Head Start, Head Start, or Pre-K services.

Childcare (Irregular)

To reimburse a regular or kinship foster parent for childcare services (irregular or temporary) using state or local funding when CAPS eligibility criteria is not met, the SSCM will:

1. Request a waiver from the Early Childhood Collaboration Director to use state funds to pay childcare expenses for any purpose other than foster parent training.
2. Review the Foster Care Invoice for accuracy, coding and original receipts.
3. Submit the Foster Care Invoice to the approving authority for signature.
4. Forward the approved Foster Care Invoice to the Regional Accounting Office for payment.
5. Request written approval from the County Director/Designee for a cash advance if the reimbursement method of payment places an undue hardship on the foster parent or kinship caregiver.

Head Start and Early Head Start

The SSCM will:

1. Identify children birth to five years old.
2. Discuss the importance of early childhood education with the caregivers and the benefits of Early Head Start or Head Start services (see Practice Guidance: Georgia Head Start and Early Head Start Programs).

3. Complete and submit the DFCS Head Start/Pre-K Referral Form electronically to dfcs.headstart@dhs.ga.gov.
 - a. The DFCS Early Childhood Collaboration Unit will then determine if the child needs Early Head Start or Head Start services.
 - b. The applicable Head Start agency will contact the child's caregiver to begin the application process. If the child is unable to be enrolled at the time services are requested, the Head Start agency will contact the child's caregiver with additional follow-up.
4. Direct inquiries related to Head Start and Early Head Start programs to the DFCS Early Childhood Collaboration Unit in the Well-Being Services Section at dfcs.headstart@dhs.ga.gov.

Pre-K Program

The SSCM will:

1. Discuss the importance and benefits of early childhood education with the caregivers.
2. In conjunction with caregivers, make every effort to enroll children who are four years old in a Pre-K program. (See Practice Guidance: Georgia's Pre-K Program for additional information).
3. Complete and submit the DFCS Head Start/Pre-K Referral Form electronically to dfcs.headstart@dhs.ga.gov.
4. The DFCS Early Childhood Collaboration Unit will then help identify available Pre-K programs in the area.

The Social Services Supervisor will:

1. Provide oversight of case management activities needed to ensure referrals for childcare and early education services are submitted timely.
2. Maintain regular communication with the SSCM to assess the appropriateness of childcare and early education providers (see policy 19.6 Case Management: Supervisor Staffing).
3. Regularly review the child's case record in Georgia SHINES to ensure all appropriate pages have been updated and all case activities have been documented.

Practice Guidance

Childcare and Early Education

Access to early education supports the achievement of developmental milestones and increases school readiness for young children (birth to five years of age) in foster care. Child safety and well-being should be the primary considerations when selecting a childcare provider or early education program. Therefore, select the highest Quality Rated program (qualityrated.dec.state.ga.us) available in the area of the child's foster care placement. If possible, choose a provider familiar to the child to minimize trauma associated with foster care placement. Timely communication is important. Any changes in a case should be reported to the appropriate DECAL or DFCS personnel as soon as possible to avoid undesirable outcomes. For instance, changes in circumstances may affect the eligibility for childcare and may create an overpayment if not reported timely.

Bright from the Start: Georgia Department of Early Care and Learning (DECAL)

Bright from the Start: Georgia Department of Early Care and Learning is responsible for meeting the childcare and early education needs of Georgia's children and their families. It administers the nationally recognized Georgia's Pre-K Program, licenses childcare centers and home-based childcare, administers Georgia's Childcare and Parent Services (CAPS) program, implements federal nutrition programs, and manages Quality Rated, Georgia's community powered childcare rating system. The department also houses the Head Start State Collaboration Office, distributes federal funding to enhance the quality and availability of childcare, and works collaboratively with Georgia childcare resource and referral agencies and organizations throughout the state to enhance early care and education. For more information, go to www.decals.ga.gov.

Childcare and Parent Services (CAPS)

CAPS is available for all children in DFCS custody and is paid out of federal funds. CPA foster parents are entitled to the same DFCS services that DFCS approved foster parents receive. A CPA foster parent may only receive CAPS for children in DFCS custody. Therefore, all communication regarding CAPS must come through the SSCM for verification that any children receiving CAPS are in Georgia DFCS custody. According to the CAPS policy manual, children in DFCS custody are to receive priority services and are not to be denied due to a lack of funding. Rates must not exceed the amount that the provider charges other customers who do not receive subsidies. Below are some examples of different types of childcare:

1. Full-time;
2. Night-time;
3. Weekend;
4. Before/after school;
5. Full-day service for school-age;
6. Part-time.

The childcare need may be full-time, part-time, before/after school, etc. as long as it is needed on a regular, ongoing basis. CAPS eligibility criteria/guidelines apply. As long as a child is in DFCS custody, the caregiver's activity is "protecting the child," which eliminates the need to verify employment. See the CAPS Policy Manual for guidelines. Below are some basic CAPS eligibility criteria:

1. Child must be a resident of Georgia;

DECAL will only pay for childcare services provided within the state of Georgia. For exceptions please contact the Early Childhood Collaboration Unit.

2. Child must be a citizen or legal resident of the U.S.;
3. Child must have current immunizations;
4. Child must be placed in a DFCS or CPA approved Family Foster Home or with kinship caregivers who are not foster parents; Children placed in other settings (i.e. intermediate treatment centers, etc.) are not eligible;
5. Child must be under 13 years of age.

Children with special needs (evidenced by documentation from a licensed medical/mental health professional) and children with court-ordered supervision may be eligible to receive childcare services up to age 18.

Formal Childcare Providers

Formal providers are regulated and licensed by DECAL. Below are the major categories of formal childcare providers:

Family Child Care Learning Home: This is a program that operates in a private residential home less than 24 hours per day. The operator receives pay for providing care for three to six children under 13 years of age or 18 years of age if the child meets the criteria for CAPS special needs or court-ordered supervision.

Child Care Learning Center: This is a program operated by an individual or business entity recognized under Georgia law that receives pay for group care. It cares for seven or more children under 18 years of age for less than 24 hours per day.

Licensed-exempt Programs:

1. Programs owned and operated by any department or agency of state, county or municipal government (i.e. afterschool programs in public schools operated by public school systems, and programs operated by city or county park and recreation departments); and
2. Day camp programs for children five years of age and older operated between school terms, whose primary purpose is to provide organized recreational, religious or instructional activities.

Informal Childcare Providers

Childcare services may be purchased from informal providers only in the following situations

1. No other licensed care is available within a reasonable geographic area;
2. The need for care is during non-traditional hours when licensed care is not available; or
3. The child in care is determined to meet the CAPS program definition of special needs.

To qualify for CAPS reimbursement, informal providers must be at least 21 years of age and may provide care for no more than two unrelated or six related children for payment. Regardless of relationship, the total number of children may not exceed six. Informal providers are required to enroll with the CAPS program. Informal providers may be eligible to receive CAPS reimbursement for childcare services provided in their own home or in the child's placement. However, informal providers who provide childcare in the child's placement may not receive CAPS reimbursement unless they are related to the child (i.e. grandparent, aunt, uncle, adult sibling) and live outside of the placement.

Irregular or Temporary Childcare

Irregular or temporary childcare is not eligible for (federal) CAPS reimbursement and is paid out of state funds. Consequently, no referral for childcare is sent to CAPS. State funds may be used to reimburse foster parents for childcare expenses associated with their training. Foster parent training is considered irregular childcare because it does not occur on a regular, routine basis (i.e. every month for a certain period of time). Use of state funds for anything other than foster parent training requires an approved waiver from the Early Childhood Collaboration Director.

When state funds are used, the childcare expenses are paid out of the same program as a child's foster care per diem (i.e. UAS Code 501(IV-E) Family Foster Care, 502 (IV-B/State) Family Foster Care, 503 Initial (TANF) Family Foster Care, etc.). See the COSTAR manual on the Field Fiscal Services website for a full description of UAS codes. Caregivers are reimbursed via the foster parent invoice process for payments made directly to the childcare provider. Caregivers must attach original receipts to their monthly Foster Care Invoice (Pre-bill for CPAs) and reimbursement may not exceed Georgia's maximum reimbursement rate.

Georgia Head Start and Early Head Start Programs

DFCS is partnering with the Office of Head Start and local Head Start/Early Head Start agencies. Georgia Head Start and Early Head Start programs provide comprehensive early childhood and family development services to children from birth to five years of age. Early Head Start serves infants, toddlers (under 3 years of age) and pregnant women and their families who have incomes below the federal poverty level. Head Start is a child-focused program and has the overall goal of increasing school readiness of young children from low-income families by enhancing their cognitive, social, and emotional development. Head Start programs provide a learning environment that supports children's growth in many areas, such as language, literacy and social and emotional development. Head Start agencies provide a range of individualized services in the areas of education and early childhood development; medical, dental and mental health; nutrition; parent involvement and family support.

There are numerous organizations, including school systems, community action agencies and universities that operate Head Start and Early Head Start programs in Georgia. All Head Start and Early Head Start programs must adhere to rigorous and comprehensive federal Program Performance Standards. To participate in Head Start and Early Head Start programs, families must meet the Head Start Family Income Eligibility Guidelines. However, children in foster care, homeless children, and children from families receiving public assistance (Temporary Assistance for Needy Families or Supplemental Security Income) are categorically eligible for Head Start and Early Head Start services regardless of income.

Every effort should be made to enroll children who are four years of age or younger in a Head Start (3-4 years of age) or Early Head Start (0-2 years of age) program. If the Head Start program does not operate during the summer, children should be enrolled in a licensed childcare facility during the summer months. Using these resources helps to promote early brain development in children and prepare them for entry into kindergarten, promotes safety by ensuring the children are in the view of mandated reporters, and provides regular respite for foster parents. Questions or inquiries related to Early Head Start and Head Start programs should be directed to the DFCS Early Childhood Collaboration Unit within the Well-Being Services Section at the state office.

Georgia's Pre-K Program

Research confirms that students in Georgia's Pre-K Program, a nationally recognized, lottery funded pre-kindergarten program continue to exhibit positive outcomes through the end of kindergarten across all domains of learning. Georgia's Pre-K program is available in all 159 counties of the state. Children who are Georgia residents and are four years of age on September 1 of the current school year are eligible to attend Georgia’s Pre-K Program during this school year. Pre-K programs usually operate on the regular school system calendar for the length of a typical school day. Pre-K Programs may be offered at local public schools or through private providers of preschool services. Every effort should be made to enroll children who are four years of age in Georgia’s Pre-K program. For additional information about eligibility and enrolling a child in Georgia’s Pre-K Program please visit the Enrolling in Georgia’s Pre-K Program webpage.

Receiving Childcare Payments for Children Placed in the Home of the Childcare Provider

Caregivers who may benefit financially from the ownership or operation of a childcare facility cannot be reimbursed for childcare provided to children placed in their home. This practice is based on the need for responsible stewardship of the state’s financial resources. Since foster parents already receive a per diem for the supervision of children placed in their home, they may not receive additional payment for providing childcare to those same children. Likewise, kinship caregivers may not claim childcare payments for providing childcare for a related child placed in their home while providing childcare for other children.

Requirements

The Division of Family and Children Services (DFCS) will:

1. Prepare for each contact to ensure it is planned and has clear purpose.
2. Engage the children, parents/custodians and caregivers involved in a foster care case in a manner that is beneficial for establishing a partnership by:

- a. Engaging from the viewpoint that families go through developmental stages and encounter common challenges.
 - b. Separating the intent from the actions that did or did not take place by:
 - i. Normalizing the challenges families identify as difficult situations in their everyday life routine; and
 - ii. Externalizing the problem pattern.
3. Establish purposeful contacts in accordance with policy 19.15 Case Management: Developing Contacts Standards for Purposeful Contacts and Collateral Contacts based on the individualized needs of each child and family.
4. Make at least one purposeful face-to-face^[5] contact each calendar month with:
- a. Every child under its care and/or custody to assess child safety, well-being, and permanency with the majority (over 50%) of the contacts occurring in the residence of the child.

Children placed outside of Georgia will have purposeful contacts conducted by a representative of the receiving state in accordance with the Interstate Compact on the Placement of Children (ICPC) (see policy 15.5 Interstate Compact on the Placement of Children \(ICPC\): ICPC Placement Supervision).

- b. The placement resource for every child in the custody of DFCS to evaluate if the placement continues to meet the needs of the child, caregiver capacity and family functioning to assess child safety. If the placement resource is a two-parent household, ensure both parents are engaged.
 - c. Parents/guardians of children in the temporary custody of DFCS to assess progress toward achieving case plan outcomes. This may not be required when a non-reunification court order relieves the agency of this responsibility.
5. Make purposeful face-to-face contact with any child in foster care within seven calendar days of an initial placement and any subsequent placement change to assess the child's safety, adjustment to the placement, and any needs of the child or caregiver.
6. Make purposeful face-to-face contact with any child in foster care who is seriously injured or has attempted self-injury or suicide within 24 hours of notification to assess for maltreatment, the child's current condition and future treatment needs.
7. Make purposeful face-to-face contact with formerly missing youth within 24 hours of their return (see policy 19.22 Case Management: Missing Children).
8. Make face-to-face contact with the children and their caregivers within 24 hours of notification of a screen-out decision to confirm the children's safety and well-being, when any child in foster care is the subject of a screened-out Child Protective Services (CPS) Intake Report.

If DFCS was notified of the situation prior to receipt of a screened-out Intake Report, conducted a purposeful contact, and confirmed the children's safety and well-being, then a subsequent purposeful contact is not required on the screened-out Intake Report.

9. Conduct efforts to locate parents with a permanency plan of reunification, when they cannot be located or have moved to an unknown location (see policy 19.21 Case Management: Unable to Locate).

10. Assess the physical home environment to confirm that it is safe and appropriate to meet the needs of each child in foster care, including an examination of every room in the home and the sleeping arrangements for all household members.
11. Assess and discuss infant safe sleeping practices with any caregiver who has an infant (birth to 12 months of age) in the home and address any unsafe sleeping situations prior to leaving the home.
12. Discuss motor vehicle safety recommendations including hot car safety with caregivers during purposeful contacts (see Practice Guidance: Motor Vehicle 'Hot Car' Safety).
13. Observe all children for physical signs of maltreatment. If there is cause to believe any child may have been harmed, observe areas of the child's body that may be covered by clothing. Such observation shall occur in the least invasive manner possible, and every effort should be made to ensure children are not fully unclothed during the observation.

Physical signs of maltreatment may include suspicious injuries, marks, cuts, bruises, areas of swelling, protruding limbs, damaged skin, malnourishment, lethargy, severe tooth decay, matted hair, pungent body odor, etc.

14. Make a child safety determination (safe or unsafe) prior to concluding each purposeful contact with the child, caregiver(s) or placement resource. If unsafe, in consultation with the Social Services Supervisor (SSS), decide if present danger and/or impending danger safety threats exist and take immediate and appropriate action to control the safety threats to ensure child safety by:
 - a. Immediately removing the child from the placement (if the child is in the custody of DFCS); or
 - b. Initiating court/legal intervention (if the child is no longer in the custody of DFCS such as instances of aftercare)
15. Immediately report any new known or suspected instances of child abuse/neglect or violations of Foster Care policy to the CPS Intake Communications Center (CICC) as outlined in policy 3.24 Intake: Mandated Reporters.
16. Immediately report (no later than 24 hours) to law enforcement any child or youth who the agency identifies as being a known or suspected victim of sex trafficking.
17. Document purposeful contacts in Georgia SHINES within 72 hours of the occurrence including uploading any pictures to External Documentation.

The requirements and procedures outlined in this policy also apply to children placed in Georgia in accordance with the ICPC (see policy 15.3 Interstate Compact on the Placement of Children \(ICPC\): Placement of Children from Other States into Georgia \(Georgia as the Receiving State\)).

Procedures

Preparation

When preparing for a purposeful contact with the child/youth, parent/guardian and/or caregiver

(foster parent or kinship caregiver), the SSCM will:

1. Review:

- a. Case plans and documentation from previous contacts to understand the significant factors affecting child's safety, permanency and well-being protective capacities, and a family's ability to ensure the safety of their children moving forward.
- b. Action plans for progress and effectiveness.
- c. Supervisor staffing notes to ensure that any needed follow-up is addressed during the purposeful contact.
- d. External Documentation in Georgia SHINES for verification that both the Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act (HIPAA) Notice of Privacy Practices and the Notice of Case Record Information Available to Parents/Guardians were provided to parents. If either is missing, explain and provide to the parents at the next purposeful contact.
- e. Caregiver's or child's recently completed assessments/evaluations for insight into family functioning and recommendations.

Only the child's assessments or evaluations can be discussed or shared with the placement resource.

2. Develop a plan for the purposeful contact:

- a. Determine the frequency of contacts needed. Although a minimum of one contact every month is required, more frequent contacts may be necessary to address the needs of the child and family.
- b. Determine whether the contact should be announced or unannounced based on the case circumstances.
- c. Determine interviewing technique and other information gathering approaches, including persons to be interviewed, order and location of interviews, and when interviews will occur.
 - i. Complete contacts in different settings when there is concern that the child is fearful or hesitant to speak in the home around the parent/caregiver; and
 - ii. Choose a setting which affords the child(ren) an opportunity to speak freely.
- d. Prepare a list of questions to ensure all issues/concerns are addressed.
- e. Determine the need for interpretation services for non-English speaking individuals or auxiliary aids for sensory impaired individuals. If required, Limited English Proficiency and Sensory Impaired Customer Services (LEP/SI) is used to assist DFCS in providing meaningful language access to customers. Contact LEP/SI via lepsi@dhs.ga.gov. The use of family members as interpreters is not appropriate.
- f. Identify potential child, parent or caregiver needs and possible service interventions.

3. If the purposeful contact will occur in a correctional facility, familiarize with the procedures of the correctional facility around contact and visitation:

- a. Who must initiate the process and how?
- b. Are liaisons provided by the correctional facility to work with child welfare professionals?
- c. How far in advance does the visit need to be scheduled?

- d. What are the visiting hours of the facility?
 - e. Does the facility have a dress code when visiting?
 - f. What types of contact are allowed (e.g., physical touch, telephone, face-to-face)?
4. Gather forms and other material for the purposeful contact, including but not limited to:
- a. Copy of the current case plan and action plan;

Only the child's portion of the case plan can be discussed or shared with the placement resource.

- b. Authorization for Release of Information;
- c. Consent to Receive Targeted Case Management Services;
- d. Suggestions for Parents/Tips Sheet; and
- e. Safe Sleep for Your Baby (Brochure).

Child/Youth

The SSCM will:

1. Visit with each child privately as well as in the presence of the caregivers to:
 - a. Assess child safety; and
 - b. Directly observe the parent/placement resource and child interaction as well as communication patterns.
2. Engage the child in a private face-to-face conversation outside of the presence of the parents, foster parents, kinship caregiver, facility staff, siblings, etc. as part of the assessment of child safety, permanency, and well-being. Use age and developmentally appropriate language and questions. Examples of areas to be explored are included below.

 - 1. Acknowledgment and celebration of completed tasks and outcomes.
 - 2. Identification of any problems that may be influencing goal achievement and potential solutions.
 - 3. Any changes that need to be made to the WTLP.
 - ii. Progress made toward goal achievement of the child's Action Plan (if applicable) to include:
 - 1. Child's ability to prevent high risk or difficult situations.
 - 2. Child's ability to identify early warning signals of unproductive behaviors.
 - 3. Child's ability to prevent loss of focus / direction.
 - 4. Child's ability to interrupt unproductive behavior.
 - 5. Child's ability to escape difficult situations that were not prevented or interrupted.
 - iii. Acknowledgment and celebration of completed tasks and outcomes.
 - iv. What, if any barriers exist that may be influencing WTLP outcome achievement and potential solutions.
 - v. The extent to which the youth is participating in any services being provided and an evaluation of the effectiveness of the services.
 - vi. The youth's participation in any formal Independent Living Program activities.
 - vii. Identification of potential members of the youth's support system (peers, family members, and other responsible caring adults youth can rely on for assistance in times of crisis and everyday life situations).
 - viii. The extent to which the youth's rights and responsibilities are being honored.
 - ix. Any issues with the youth's placement.
 - x. Benefits and opportunities available as a participant in the EYSS program.
 - xi. The importance of transition planning.
 - xii. Other relevant factors that may impact the youth's overall progress.
3. Observe the child's body language for non-verbal cues of how they may be feeling or adjusting.
4. Observe all children for physical signs maltreatment. If there is cause to believe a that a child has been harmed:
- a. In the least invasive manner possible, observe areas of the body that may be clothed.
 - i. Explain to the caregiver and child the reason for observing areas of the body that may be covered by clothing.

- ii. Arrange for another adult to be present (e.g., caregiver, non-offending parent or legal guardian, kin, foster parent, school nurse, daycare staff, etc.).
- iii. If the child is four years old and under, ask the caregiver to adjust one area at a time (e.g., raising a shirt sleeve, pant leg, raise the shirt to view their back, etc.), ask them to replace the clothing before proceeding to the next area of the body. Take pictures of any injuries observed.
- iv. If the child is older than four and is capable, ask the child to adjust their own clothing as outlined above.

 If a full examination is needed, a medical provider should be used.

5. If observation of the child uncovers injuries or other signs of maltreatment:

- a. Determine whether there are any additional injuries that are not immediately apparent. Is there bruising or is the area sensitive to the touch? Does the child complain of discomfort or pain?
- b. Gather information around the circumstances surrounding the injury and the caregiver's knowledge and response to the injury asking who, what, when, where and how. What was used to cause the injury (ex: hand, fist, belt, bat, extension cord)? Describe the object that was used to cause the injury? Where did the incident that resulted in the injury occur (ex: bedroom, bathroom, grandma's kitchen)?
- c. Evaluate and determine whether the injuries to the child or condition of the child requires an immediate medical or psychological evaluation or medical treatment. Whenever there is a question of whether a child needs to be examined by a medical professional, obtain a medical consultation (e.g., 24-hour nurse helpline or poison control center). If medical treatment is recommended or if an accidental injury seems suspicious take the child to be examined by a medical professional.

 If the child is not in DFCS custody request the parent/guardian seek a medical consultation and if medical treatment is recommended insist the parent/guardian take the child to be examined by a medical professional.

- d. Document any observed injuries or physical signs of maltreatment by taking quality pictures and/or a detailed written description.

 Pictures can also be used to document a lack of maltreatment, injury, or condition.

- e. Consult with the Social Services Supervisor regarding making a report to the CPS Intake Communications Center (CICC) as outlined in policy 3.24 Intake: Mandated Reporters.

6. Prior to concluding each purposeful contact with a child/youth, make a child safety determination (safe or unsafe) (see policy 19.11 Case Management: Safety Assessment). If unsafe, in consultation with the SSS, decide if present danger and/or impending danger safety threats exist and take immediate and appropriate action to control the safety threats to ensure child safety by:

- a. Immediately removing the child from the placement (if the child is in the custody of DFCS);
or
- b. Initiating court/legal intervention (if the child is no longer in the custody of DFCS such as in aftercare, etc.).

7. Take pictures of each child periodically to document changes in the child's appearance, capture milestones for the child's Life Book, etc.

Parent (Custodial/Non-Custodial), Caregiver, Adult Household Member or Alleged Maltreater

 - ii. Safety management strategies and interventions; and
 - iii. Plan of Safe Care requirements, when applicable.
 - b. The permanency plan and any change, if applicable.

 - j. The child's educational status (e.g., grade level, performance, etc.).
 - k. The need to modify contact standards for the parent/guardian, when applicable.
2. If the parent/guardian is incarcerated also:
- a. Explore barriers to the parent having contact with the child such as:
 - i. The parent poses a threat to the child's safety or well-being.
 - ii. A court has ordered that the parent have no contact with the child.
 - iii. Paternity has not been established and this is a putative father.
 - iv. The parent is not incarcerated in close proximity to the child, or the institution is not set up to adequately support parent-child visitation.
 - v. If there are barriers, support types of contact that is allowable and appropriate^[6] (e.g., cards, letters, photographs).
 - b. Make an effort to understand the parent's situation in a non-judgmental manner.
 - c. Explore the role the parent has played or may possibly play in the future parenting of the child in foster care.
 - d. Discuss the parent's possible release date and plans regarding the child in care.
3. If injuries or signs of maltreatment to child were discovered during a visit (supervised or unsupervised) or in the care of the parent/custodian (aftercare):
- a. When did the injury take place? Who was present during the incident that resulted in the injury?
 - b. Was an object used to cause the injury (ex: hand, fist, belt, bat, extension cord)? Describe the object that was used to cause the injury (example: black belt with studs)? Observe the object used to cause the injury.
 - c. Where did the incident that resulted in the injury occur (ex: bedroom, bathroom, hallway, etc.)? Observe the specific location in the home where the incident occurred.

If the child is not in DFCS custody request the parent/guardian seek a medical consultation and if medical treatment is recommended insist the parent/guardian take the child to be examined by a medical professional.

4. Assess the physical home environment to determine if it is safe and appropriate to meet the needs of each child:
 - a. Examine every room in the home for present or potential environmental concerns or hazards. Take appropriate action to remedy environmental concerns or hazards (i.e., loose wires or cords, alcohol or beer bottles, any drug paraphernalia, broken glass or windows, medications or toxic cleaning items that are in reach of small children) prior to leaving the home where children reside.
 - b. Never leave a child in a home without addressing present or potential environmental concerns or hazards.
 - c. Review the sleeping arrangements for all household members.
 - d. When an infant (birth to 12 months of age) is in the home assess and discuss safe sleep practices with the parent/guardian. Take appropriate action to remedy unsafe sleep situations prior to leaving the home such as helping a parent/guardian to prepare a safe sleeping area for an infant (see Forms and Tools: Infant Safe to Sleep Guidelines and Protocol).
 - e. Take pictures and/or document in writing the condition of the home when concerns or hazards are identified.
5. Observe the interaction and family functioning around everyday task:
 - a. Parent/guardian-child interaction:
 - i. How the parent/guardian(s) relates to the child.
 - ii. Whether the parents/guardian(s) appears to be calm, gentle, relaxed, and confident about parenting or if the caregiver appears anxious, easily frustrated, inattentive, indifferent, or detached.
 - iii. What the parents/guardian(s) communicates to the child non-verbally (e.g., looks, touches, and gestures).
 - b. Interactions of all household members.
 - c. Parent/guardian's ability to meet the needs of all children under their care and supervision, if applicable.
6. Celebrate the parent/guardian's behavioral change (i.e., achieving a case plan goal or satisfying elements of the conditions for return);
7. Provide a copy of the HIPAA Notice of Privacy Practices and the Notice of Case Record Information Available to Parents/Guardian (as needed). Document sharing the information and upload a copy into External Documentation in Georgia SHINES.
8. Prior to concluding each purposeful contact with the parent/guardian make a child safety determination (safe or unsafe) (see policy 19.11 Case Management: Safety Assessment). If unsafe, in consultation with the SSS, decide if present danger and/or impending danger safety threats exist and take immediate and appropriate action to control the safety threats to ensure child safety by:
 - a. Immediately removing the child from the placement (if the child is in the custody of DFCS);
or

- b. Initiating court/legal intervention (if the child is no longer in the custody of DFCS such as in existences of aftercare).
9. Summarize any strengths and/or barriers to goal completion identified during the visit with the parent/guardian and any new strategies discussed at the visit; and
10. Review commitments agreed upon and next steps and confirm future visits.

4. Prior to concluding each purposeful contact with the caregiver(s) or adult household member make a child safety determination (safe or unsafe) (see policy 19.11 Case Management: Safety Assessment). If unsafe, in consultation with the SSS, make a decision if present danger and/or impending danger safety threats exist and take immediate and appropriate action to control the safety threats to ensure child safety by immediately removing the child from the placement (if the child is in the custody of DFCS).
5. Review any commitments agreed upon and confirm any timelines set for accomplishing certain action steps.

Analyzing Information

2. When information gathered indicate a child/youth is a known sex trafficking victim or red flags indicate a child/youth might be a sex trafficking victim:
 - a. Contact the Georgia Bureau of Investigation immediately to within 24 hours to provide notification and to discuss next steps, if the information was not previously reported by DFCS;
 - b. Follow the procedures outlined in the Human Sex Trafficking Case Management Statewide Protocol in Forms and Tools, and
 - c. Obtain sex trafficking specific services for the child and family (see policy 19.17 Case Management: Service Provision).

6. Ensure purposeful contacts are documented timely in Georgia SHINES within 72 hours of the occurrence, including pictures and observations.
7. Review purposeful contacts documented in Georgia SHINES to determine the sufficiency of the purposeful contacts, consider the following:
- a. To ensure the documentation meets guidelines as outlined in Documenting Purposeful Contacts in Practice Guidance.

 - c. Is the information gathered sufficient to support the safety decision?
 - d. Was the family engaged in manner that is conducive to building a partnership?
 - e. Was the discussion with the family focused on the everyday life tasks the family is struggling with?
 - f. Are inconsistencies documented that need to be resolved?
 - g. Identification of any needed linkage of services for the family.

Practice Guidance

All contacts made with parents and their children provide an opportunity to build a trusting and supportive partnership. However, contacts are more than friendly visits. They should be well planned and have a clear purpose. In order to thoroughly assess a child’s safety, permanency, and well-being, it is important to assess the functioning of the family that is caring for the child. Some key principles around good practice to keep in mind when performing purposeful contacts include:

1. Recognizing the family providing care as a system - Each member of the family, including the child, has a role and responsibilities within the family. If any one person is unable to fulfill their responsibilities, then the whole family is impacted.
2. Engagement and partnership building - Purposeful contacts are not only about engaging and building a relationship with the caregiver, but also about engaging and building a relationship with the entire family including parents absent from the home.
3. Involvement of families and youth - Because each member of a family has a role and responsibilities, it is essential to obtain input from all family members when assessing family functioning. When family members are engaged, this will re-affirm their importance in ensuring the success of the family system.
4. Recognizing all members are individuals – Each family member will adjust differently to challenges to everyday life tasks. It is important to recognize the individuality of each family member and the impact DFCS involvement has on their lives.

5. Cultural awareness - Each family has their own culture. Culture impacts family rituals and traditions. As family functioning is assessed, we must be respectful of all cultures involved and how they impact the functioning of the family.
6. Empathy, authenticity, and transparency - During purposeful contact with family, we should be mindful of these three words: empathy, authenticity, and transparency. When engaging, we must be able to identify with their thoughts and feelings even though we may not always agree. We also must be genuine and open in our communication with all family members and recognize that we have some accountability regarding the success or failure of the family. Purposeful contacts are also a time for the family to hold us accountable for what we may or may not be doing on behalf of the family who has joined in partnership with us.
7. Remaining focused on safety, permanency, and well-being throughout the process.

Observing Children for Physical Signs of Maltreatment

Observing children for physical signs of maltreatment is an important part of ensuring child safety. To determine if there is cause to believe a child has been physically harmed, consider the following:

1. Non-verbal cues from the child or the caregiver that raise concern.
2. The age and special needs of the child. Young children and those with certain special needs are especially vulnerable and may not be able to verbalize when they are being abused or neglected. Therefore, the SSCM cannot depend on the child to say how they are feeling and must be keenly aware of non-verbal cues. For instance, if the child is wincing or drawing back slightly, it may be an indication of pain.
3. Statements made by the child, other children/household members/collaterals, etc. that indicate him/her may have been subjected to physical harm or neglect, etc.
4. Physical indicators of maltreatment such as suspicious injuries, marks, cuts, bruises, areas of swelling, protruding limbs, damaged skin, malnourishment, unexplained weight loss, lethargy, severe tooth decay, matted hair, pungent body odor, etc.
5. The child resides with the caregiver or other individual that harmed the child or another child.
6. The child indicates that physical discipline is being used; or that inappropriate methods of discipline is utilized by the caregiver or others in the home.

The SSCM may need to view areas of a child's body that are covered by clothing to observe for signs of maltreatment and determine if the child needs medical treatment. This may require that the child (or caregiver for younger children) adjust their clothing. This can be embarrassing and anxiety provoking for the child. SSCMs must be sensitive to the child's level of comfort and make every effort to reduce their discomfort. This can be accomplished by having an adult present that the child knows and trusts, and by asking the child or the caregiver (for children four years and under or those with special needs) to adjust one area of a child's clothing at a time. Asking the child or the caregiver to raise a child's pant leg or shirt sleeve one at a time, is less invasive, while allowing the SSCM to observe for signs of maltreatment. The child should never be fully unclothed. When possible, arrange for a staff person of the same sex as the child to conduct the observation.

Assessing Injuries

Some characteristics of injuries are considered red flags and warrant further scrutiny, these include but are not limited to:

1. Injuries on children who are not mobile, especially infants.
2. Injuries on protected surfaces of the body, such as the back and buttocks, ears, inside the mouth, the neck, arms or legs, and underarms.
3. Multiple injuries in various stages of healing (i.e., skin injuries, lesions of varying ages, bruises).
4. Patterned trauma, even if the object used to commit the abuse cannot be determined.
5. Injuries that routine, age-appropriate supervision of the child should have prevented.
6. Significant injury with either no explanation or an explanation that is not plausible.

The SSCM may also need to observe the scene of the injury, to ascertain whether the caregiver and/or child's statement of what happened is plausible.

1. Ask the caregiver and/or child to show him/her exactly what happened, and where.
2. Note anything about the physical environment that refutes the statement(s) provided. For example, if the caregiver claims that the child fell out of bed and hit their head on the floor, causing a severe bruise, the SSCM should look at the bed, the floor, and height from the bed to the floor. Is the floor carpeted? Is it plausible that the injury occurred on the carpeted floor?
3. Obtain a detailed, precise timeline of events surrounding the incident or track the sequence of events. The more detailed the history, the more likely the assessment of the injury will be accurate. This can be helpful when communicating with medical staff to determine if the injury could have been caused in the manner described by the caregiver and/or child.

Deliberate Information Gathering (DIG)

Seek to understand the caregiver, his/her point of view, story, and experience. That means to dig deeper for the information needed in order to understand the person, the situation and how these help explain both threats to child safety and caregiver protective capacities. The DIG^[8] idea is to be very deliberate in gathering information and seeking to understand while behaving very naturally. The following interpersonal techniques can be used while gathering information:

1. Attending Behavior

Attending behavior refers to focusing attention on the caregiver rather than the SSCM's agenda or line of questioning. Attending behavior involves "matching" a caregiver's nonverbal behavior by consciously manipulating and controlling the SSCM's own nonverbal skills and responses. Primary attending behaviors include eye contact, facial expressions, body language, posturing and gesturing, following, reflecting and vocal qualities-tone and pace.

2. Open Questions

Open questions help to remove the SSCM from the responsibility of "carrying" the interview by establishing a conversational quality to the interaction. Open questions cannot be answered "yes" or "no" or in just a few words. Open questions require the caregiver to elaborate with a wider range of responses. Open questions are the "what" and "how" type questions.

3. Closed Questions

Closed questions should be used to restrict or narrow the focus of a caregiver’s response. Closed questions should be used purposefully when precise detail and greater clarity is needed from the caregiver. As an exception, closed questions may be used more frequently when there are time constraints or when the SSCM is interviewing a caregiver who is very concrete or is not very verbal.

4. Paraphrasing

The primary intent of paraphrasing is to facilitate the clarification of statements, issues, and concerns. Paraphrasing may involve the SSCM selecting and using a caregiver’s own keywords. Paraphrasing involves formulating the essential message that the caregiver is conveying and then stating that message back to the caregiver in the SSCM’s own words. When paraphrasing, check for accuracy of the statement by concluding the paraphrase with a simple question such as, “Is that correct?” or “Does that sound accurate?”

5. Encouraging

This technique serves to keep people talking about a particular topic, issue, or concern. Encouraging may be as simple as using a slight verbal prompt, such as “uh-huh”, “I see”, “go on”, or “then what?”

6. Conversational Looping

Conversational looping is a skill for gathering information that first involves the SSCM identifying some key general topic or area for discussion with a caregiver (e.g., approach to parenting, problem-solving, dealing with stress, etc.). Once a topic has been identified, begin the conversation with a broad non-threatening open question. As the conversation progresses related to the identified topic, continue with a line of questioning (primarily open-ended) based on previous caregiver responses that progressively moves the discussion toward a more specific and intimate inquiry. A key to effective conversational looping is the ability of the interviewer to maintain a caregiver’s focus on a particular topic, which will then enable the interviewer to gather more detailed information from the caregiver about the issue, concern, or topic inquiry.

Example: Parenting Approach

“So, how would you describe yourself as a parent?”

“Where do you learn parenting skills from?”

“What brings you the most satisfaction as a parent?”

“How does what you’re saying relate to your feelings about being a single parent?”

The content areas that are explored through conversational looping or for any technique are the six family functioning areas.

7. Reflective Listening Statements

Reflective listening statements involve the SSCM’s attempts to interpret what a caregiver believes, thinks and/or feels, and then state the SSCM’s interpretation back to the caregiver. The interpretation of what the caregiver is communicating is based on both verbal responses and nonverbal cues from the caregiver. A statement is used rather than a question because the statement is less likely to produce caregiver resistance, and, further, a statement triggers the caregiver to re-examine the accuracy of his/her perceptions and thoughts.

Example:

Caregiver: “I may have a couple of beers every once in a while, with my friends, but I don’t have a drinking problem.”

SSCM: “For you, drinking is no big deal...it’s just something you do socially with your friends?”

Separating Intentions from Actions

An individual can experience differing even conflicting feelings about any given situation. It is not uncommon to have two thoughts on the same subject “I would like to..., but I am scared”. Individuals who may have caused harm to a child also experiences these conflicting feelings. “He deserved to be punished for not following the rules..., but I didn’t mean to hurt him. “He just would not stop crying, I was exhausted and wanted to sleep..., but I didn’t mean to shake him that hard.”

Separating intentions from actions means joining in partnership with the part of the person’s thoughts (intentions) related to not wanting this event to occur again, while helping them to acknowledge their unacceptable actions. Two methods used to help separate intentions from actions are:

1. Normalizing Family Struggles

Normalizing is a form of empathy (understanding) that acknowledges the family’s problems is part of the struggle of negotiating difficult life cycle stages, as well as strengths and efforts in coping with the problems. It also helps families learn that many others are in the same situation. It does not downplay or dismiss the problem. It also does not condone or endorse the harmful behavior.

For example, can you remember failing a test in college to only find out the majority of the class failed the test too? It does not remove the failing grade, but deep down it does make you feel a little better that others are in the same situation. Sometimes knowing others failed too provides confirmation that the test was difficult.

It is not unusual for families to start off defensively in their relationship with the case manager. Sometimes a simple introduction can evoke a defensive response from the family. Normalizing can enable an assessment to be more complete by minimizing the possibility of the family or individual becoming defensive and refusing to engage with the case manager. When a partnership is not established, information is not being shared openly, therefore obstructing the gathering information process (assessment). Normalizing a family’s struggles can reduce the risk of defensive behavior by the family by attributing the family’s problems to struggles associated with difficult life cycle stages.

Problem	Normalizing Language
Father who locked his teenage daughter in the basement to prevent her from leaving the house during the night while he sleeps.	“Teenagers today sometimes fail to understand the dangerous out in the world and the struggles to keep them away from harm. I found it so difficult when dealing with my teenage daughter, particularly if I knew she was hanging with the wrong crowd. You must feel horrible, how did the evening start?”
A mother who has neglected her children due to drug use (previous sex abuse victim by the biological father).	”Single mothers say all the time how hard it is raising children alone; I can only imagine how difficult it is to focus on the constant demands of raising two children while simultaneously trying to overcome the abuse you sustained as a child. It must be so hard. Tell me when you noticed things were more than you could handle?”

Problem	Normalizing Language
A mother who (education) neglects her children.	“As a parent, I found mornings extremely stressful. It took all I had to get the children up and out of the house to catch the school bus on time. I am sure it is especially difficult for you when your child makes up illnesses to avoid going to school and you do not have a car to transport him to school if he misses the bus. Tell me when this began.”
Foster mother spans a child in foster care in her home. (policy violation assessment)	“A lot of foster parents have expressed how challenging it is to integrate a child into their home when the child may have come from a home with different rules or values. How did this all get started?”
Kinship placement resource spanked a child in foster care placed in their home who is diagnosed with ADHD.	“Kin who agree to be a placement resource for a child often experience problems adhering to the no spanking guidelines required by DFCS, especially when they have cared for the child before the child went into foster care and were able to use physical discipline with the child. Tell me what behaviors you were trying to deter?”
Adolescent in foster care who is experiencing problems adjusting to the school environment after being brought into foster care.	“I understand you are trying to focus on school, but it is hard to focus after being removed from your family and placed into foster care. Teenagers have told me how difficult it is returning to school after being brought into foster care and everyone at school is aware of the situation. Tell me about that.”
Adolescent in foster care who is having a problem establishing his career objectives for the creation of the WTLF.	“Teenagers often have trouble pinpointing their career path, it seems so far off and not like a big deal at this age. Let’s talk about it, what things are you good at?”
Adoptive parents who are experiencing doubts about adopting a child.	“This is not uncommon, several adoptive parents have expressed their apprehension to adopting a child following the adoptive placement, you are not alone, and adding a member to your family is a difficult process. Tell me about your concerns.”
Non-custodial parent without a strong bond with the child wants to be a placement.	“Parents who do not live with their child and only see the child sporadically, say it is very challenging to establish and maintain a bond with the child, particularly when the relationship with the caregiver who is caring for the child each day is strained. Tell me about that.”
Non-custodial parent who has limited interaction with the child wants to be a placement.	“I understand you were trying to get yourself financially established before engaging in your child’s life because you wanted to have something to offer your child. Parents who are not involved in their child’s life or have limited interactions with their child often say it is difficult to just show up when you have nothing tangible to offer. Tell me about this.”

2. Externalizing the Problem Pattern

Externalizing the problem allows the family or individual to detach themselves from their problem. Externalizing the problem does not mean minimizing the personal responsibility or shifting blame, rather, it allows the individual to view the problem as something that is separate from their identity as a person. In short, the person is not the problem, the problem is the problem. Language that externalizes the problem can reduce criticism, blame, and guilt. If one of the family members has an “anger” problem, externalizing the problem will free up the family to work on the problem rather than exhausting energy opposing each other or defending themselves. This opens up the opportunity for the SSCM to work with the family to address the problem.

For example, asking the individual, “How long have you struggled with the problem of controlling your temper?” Has the anxiety problem been around for a while?” Can you see how anxiety has limited your family from engaging in fun activities?” “If your family wasn’t plagued with the anxiety problem, what kind of activities would your family enjoy?”

Problem	Externalizing Language
Mother who beats her child (prior abuse victim)	“Maybe you would like to put an end to this cycle of violence that has been passed on to you; would you like to be one to defeat this monster and keep it from hurting future generations.”
Stepfather who slapped his teenage step-daughter	“When you described those episodes when everybody gets into it and you end up losing it, you seemed to be saying that you hate these episodes because they keep you from being the father you really want to be to your stepdaughter.”
Mother who neglects her children due to depression	“This dark curtain that you mentioned, tell me about a time when you fought back, or slipped by, or fooled this dark curtain that descends on you.”
A mother who neglected her child due to drug use.	“When you said you vowed not to be like your mom and use drugs and not care for your children, you seemed to be saying the drug use keeps you from being the mother you really want to be to your children.”

Engagement of the Noncustodial Parent

Engagement of noncustodial parents is more than inquiring as to their interest in being involved with the child(ren). It requires making an effort to understand their situation and why they may feel the way they do. It is important to be aware of certain dynamics that may come into play in this process. Their behavior may be in response to previous negative experiences they have had with the custodial parent, preconceived notions about how they are perceived by others regarding the status of their parental involvement, or they may be reluctant because of their views about the child welfare system. Engagement of noncustodial parents can be facilitated by educating them on the process and exploring with them their possible role and how they can be a resource for the child(ren). The discussions with the custodial parent surrounding the involvement of the non-custodial parent need to occur during the development of the case plan. Engagement should revolve around the noncustodial parent’s presence/engagement in the child’s life, caregiving abilities, cooperative parenting, and emotional contributions to the child. A determination must be made about the non-custodial parent involvement with the child and their ability to contribute the outcomes of the case plan prior to establishing contact standards for the non-custodial parent.

Observing Parent/Guardian/Placement Resource and Child Interaction

Direct observation of parent/placement resource and child interactions can provide valuable insight into family functioning. Using what is directly observed as a major component of case decision-making is vital. Case decisions based on behavioral changes observed and documented are desired. If service provision is effective, there should be evidence of enhanced parenting skills. A case decision based only on compliance and/or what is reported by the parent/placement resource is never sufficient. Direct observation of parent/placement resource and child interactions can provide valuable information regarding:

1. The parent/placement resource-child relationship.
 - a. What is the quality of the parent/placement resource and child bonding?
 - b. Does the parent/placement resource engage the child in developmentally stimulating activities?

- c. Does the parent/placement resource handle the child roughly or is there an apparent comfort level in providing for the child's needs?
 - d. Does the parent/placement resource identify the child's needs and respond to them in a nurturing way?
 - e. Does the child seem fearful of the parent/placement resource?
2. Communication between the parent/placement resource and the child.
 - a. Is communication verbal, non-verbal, physical, positive, negative, passive, more negative than positive?
 - b. Does the child appear comfortable in communicating with the parent/placement resource?
3. Progress on the specified steps of the case plan.
 - a. What changes in the parent's/placement resource's interaction with a child are observed since the previous meeting and/or the implementation of service provisions (i.e., counseling, parenting skills training)?
 - b. Is the parent/placement resource learning and practicing better ways of parenting this child?
 - c. Are parents utilizing their action plan to avoid, interrupt or escape situations that would usually lead to high-risk behaviors?
 - d. Does the parent/placement resource redirect the child when unwanted behaviors are noticed?

How to Tell When a Family Is Functioning Well

Some characteristics identified with a well-functioning family include support, love, mutual caring, feeling secure, feeling a sense of belonging, open communication, and making each person within the family feel valued. Some questions to consider when determining whether a family is functioning well include:

1. Does the family have fun together despite their daily demands? What activities do they do together? What were they doing the last time they laughed together as a family? Does the family sit down to meals together?
2. Are there clear family rules that apply equally to all members? Are these rules flexible enough to adapt to a change in the family dynamics/situation?
3. Are family members' expectations of each other realistic, mutually agreed upon, and usually met?
4. Do family members achieve their goals, and are their needs being met?
5. Do all the children in the home have the same opportunities to participate in extracurricular activities?
6. How does caregiver spend individual time with each child?
7. Is there genuine respect between the parents and children? How do they demonstrate love, trust, and concern for one another? Do they demonstrate these the same way even when disagreements occur?
8. How does the family adapt to change? Do household members get upset or unhappy with change?

Why Make Contacts in the Home?

It is important to visit children in the home environment to assess safety and gain an understanding of the child's living conditions. It is recommended that contacts be made in the home as often as possible. There is helpful information that may be gathered when interacting with parents and children in their home environment and it is important to make firsthand observations of the home environment to which the child may be returning. Despite having a child in foster care, parents may still have other children in their household. Moreover, if the permanency plan is reunification, it is important to make firsthand observations of the home environment to which the child may be returning.

Announced or Unannounced Home Visits

The nature of the reported allegations and the initial indication of the existence of a present danger situation or impending danger safety threat must be the first consideration when determining whether to make an announced or unannounced visit.^[9] If there is a present danger situation, this requires an immediate response, regardless of where the child is located. When a present danger situation is not apparent initially, the nature of the allegations and DFCS history, as well as the consideration of whether an interview could be tainted by an adult are important considerations when determining whether to do an announced or unannounced visit. Making an unannounced visit should be associated with timeliness, immediacy, or emergency situations. Unannounced visits are not discouraged when they are appropriate, but they should be necessary and justified based upon the individual circumstances of the case and its history. Supervisory consultation and guidance are an integral part of the discussion when preparing to engage a family during CPS intervention. A family needs to know that CPS is not there to “catch them doing something”, but to take action to protect a child. Therefore, there needs to be a specific, immediate, and clearly observable reason that a case manager makes an unannounced visit.

When a case manager is trying to build a partnership and consensus with a family, he/she must remember that courtesy and mutual respect are core components of building effective and sustainable solutions to the difficult tasks or situations identified by a family. When possible, a scheduled visit with a family can be an effective, convenient, and efficient process for all parties. The visit can be set to a time that is mutually convenient and include all household members. This alleviates the need to make multiple visits to complete interviews; saving time and effort for the case manager and caregiver(s) and shows an effort to be courteous and respectful of the family and their time.

Consideration for Additional Purposeful Contacts

1. Child is moved and adjusting to a new placement.
2. Permanency plan is changing.
3. Child is not adjusting to his/her placement.
4. Child vulnerability is increased because of age, disability, or behavior.
5. Child is transitioning to a pre-adoptive home.
6. Child is on a trial home visit.
7. Child is being prepared for reunification or other permanent living arrangement.

8. Youth formerly missing has returned. Visit the child/youth more frequently (weekly or more often as needed) to work with the child/youth and caregivers(s) to stabilize their relationship, address the factors that led to a runaway episode, and prevent further placement disruptions. Make efforts to coordinate visits with service providers or CPA/CCI staff, if applicable.
9. Placement provider is on a Corrective Action Plan (CAP) or is the subject of an active Child Protective Services (CPS) investigation.
10. Any other situations or circumstances where additional visits are warranted.

Contacts made by Contracted Agents (Private Providers)

DFCS now requires each private provider to conduct monthly purposeful visits with each child placed with their agency. Visits performed by the private provider do not replace those required of the assigned SSCM. The assigned SSCM must continue to make monthly face-to-face purposeful contact with children in DFCS custody. Prior to the visit the private agency staff member should contact (e-mail, telephone, fax or mail) the assigned SSCM to discuss the visit agenda. It is the responsibility of the SSCM to provide direction and structure regarding the visitation format and to ensure documentation of the visit is received within 72 hours of visit completion.

Safe Sleeping Recommendations for Infants up to One Year of Age

Caregivers of infants (birth to 12 months old) must be informed of conditions that constitute a safe sleeping environment and that reduce the risk of Sudden Infant Death Syndrome (SIDS)/Sudden Unexpected Infant Death (SUID), also known as “crib death”. At minimum, caregivers should be advised of the three primary safe sleep recommendations of the American Academy of Pediatrics (AAP) commonly referred to as the ‘ABCs’ of safe sleep:

Alone – The baby’s sleep area should be close to, but separate from, where caregivers and others sleep. The sleeping area should be free of soft objects, toys, and loose bedding.

Back – Infants should always be placed on their back to sleep for naps and at night.

Crib – Place infants on a firm sleep surface, such as on a safety-approved crib mattress, covered by a fitted sheet.

Further additional information and guidance regarding safe sleeping and SIDS/SUIDS see Infant Safe to Sleep Guidelines and Protocol in Forms and Tools.

Motor Vehicle ‘Hot Car’ Safety

Children are sensitive to heat as their body temperature can heat up three to five times faster than an adult’s. Children will die if their body temperature exceeds 107 degrees. Even at a temperature of 60 degrees outdoors, the temperature inside a car can exceed 110 degrees. The U.S. Department of Transportation (DOT) National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA) recommends the following precautions to take in order to avoid child heatstroke.

1. Never leave a child unattended in a vehicle – even if the windows are partially open or the engine is running, and the air conditioning is on;
2. Make a habit of looking in the vehicle – front and back – before locking the door and walking away;

3. Ask the childcare provider to call if the child does not show up for care as expected;
4. Do things that serve as a reminder that a child is in the vehicle, such as placing a phone, purse, or briefcase in the back seat to ensure no child is accidentally left in the vehicle or writing a note or using a stuffed animal placed in the driver's view to indicate a child is in the car seat;
5. Always lock your vehicle when not in use and store keys out of a child's reach, so children cannot enter unattended. Teach children that a vehicle is not a play area;
6. A child in distress due to heat should be removed from the vehicle as quickly as possible and rapidly cooled.

Pictures

Pictures are useful for documenting injuries and/or the condition of the home environment; and may be used as evidence in an investigation or in court.

1. When taking pictures to document injuries, ensure the following:
 - a. The caregiver and the child are informed of the need for taking the pictures.
 - b. Each photograph should have one identifier present (i.e., piece of the child's clothing), at least one photograph should include the child's face and the clothing, to assure that the evidence collected demonstrates the series of pictures of the same child.
 - c. Use measurable objects (i.e., ruler, coin, pencil) to depict the size of the injury. Photograph the object that caused the injury (whether the injury was accidental or not).
2. When taking pictures of the condition of the home related to safety hazards to the children, include all the areas that demonstrate a safety hazard, such as inside and outside the home, including the yard, when applicable.

If the safety hazard is an infant unsafe sleep situation, take a picture of the area in which the infant currently sleeps.

3. All pictures should be identified with the following information: the individuals who took the photo, the date it was taken, name and date of birth of the alleged child victim, and if applicable the address where the injury occurred or the home with the safety hazards.

Documenting Purposeful Contacts

All visits must be documented on the Contact Detail page in Georgia SHINES within 72 hours of the contact. A narrative must be completed for each Contact Detail. At a minimum, the documentation entry must include:

1. The type of contact (e.g., face-to-face, announced, unannounced, etc.).
2. The date the contact occurred.
3. Person(s) present at the visit.
4. The purpose of the visit.
5. What was discussed.
6. Where the visit occurred.

7. Whether the caregiver or child was interviewed privately. If the child was not interviewed privately document the reason(s) why this did not occur.
8. Summary of information (What happened at the visit):
 - a. Progress toward action plan outcomes
 - b. Progress toward case plan outcomes
 - c. Sequencing of the event/situation that is causing concern;
 - d. Safety, permanency, and well-being issues discussed;
 - e. Consensus developed with the caregivers;
 - f. Adjustments of the child in the placement resource home;
 - g. Family functioning around everyday tasks (parent or placement resource)
 - h. Safety determination (safe or unsafe)
 - i. Safety plan management;
 - j. Change that was noticed and celebrated with the caregiver(s).
9. Observations of the home environment, children for injuries or signs of maltreatment and interactions of family members.
10. Any concerns or red flags identified.
11. Next steps and the plan for addressing identified issues or concerns, as well as documentation of issue resolution.

O.C.G.A § 19-7-3 Actions by Grandparents or Other Family Members for Visitation Rights or Intervention; Revocation or Amendment of Visitation Rights; Appointment of Guardian Ad Litem; Mediation; Hearing; Notification to Family Members of Child’s Participation In Events

O.C.G.A § 15-11-2 Definitions

O.C.G.A § 15-11-112 Court ordered visitation

Requirements

The Division of Family and Children Services (DFCS) will:

1. Allow reasonable visitation that is consistent with the age and developmental needs of a child in compliance with the order of the Juvenile Court that it is in the child's best interest. The court's order shall specify the frequency, duration, and terms of visitation including whether visitation shall be supervised or unsupervised^[10].
2. Make a request to the court that visitation be supervised, monitored or otherwise restricted when child safety cannot be reasonably assured during unsupervised visits.
3. Arrange for each child who enters foster care to have a face-to-face family (parent/caregiver and sibling) visit no later than seven calendar days from the date of removal unless the court restricts such visitation. If the child is placed out of state or a significant distance (more than 75 miles) away from the family, the initial contact may be by telephone or Skype.
4. Develop a written visitation plan as part of the Case Plan to support continued contact between the child and parents, siblings, and significant others in the child's life. At minimum, parents shall visit bi-weekly (once every two weeks) with their children, unless the court specifies another frequency.
5. Increase the frequency of parent-child visitation for young children (birth to five years of age) when reunification is the permanency plan in order to facilitate bonding and child well-being. Unless the court specifies another visitation arrangement, below is the minimum frequency for parent-child visitation involving younger children (birth to five years of age) with a permanency plan of reunification:
 - a. Children ages 0-2 visit with parents at least two times per week
 - b. Children ages 3-5 visit with parents at least one time per week
6. Initiate and maintain visitation between children and potential kinship caregivers (relative and fictive kin) when appropriate, as soon as they are identified to support and maintain connections within the kinship circle. Visitation may occur during the kinship caregiver assessment process, when appropriate.
7. Allow the use of visiting resources other than the child's birth parents if it is deemed to be in the best interest of the child. This includes family members, friends, or fictive kin with whom the child has a significant, positive relationship. An approved, written assessment of the visiting resource is required.
8. Document all visitation plans under the Visitation Plan Tab in Georgia SHINES.
9. Update the visitation plan as ordered by the court within 30 calendar days of the request.
10. Ensure all visits in Georgia SHINES within 72 hours of occurrence, including any missed visits.

Procedures

DFCS Social Services Case Manager

1. At the time of removal, make a recommendation to the court regarding the appropriateness of unsupervised visitation. Ensure the court's response is documented in the court order and in the Legal Detail in Georgia SHINES.

2. At the time of removal, reassure members of the removal household that visitation with the child being removed will occur on a regular basis and that arrangements will be made to schedule a face-to-face visit within seven calendar days unless there are court-ordered restrictions.
3. Contact the birth family and the placement resource no later than three calendar days from the date of removal to schedule the initial visit. It is recommended that the initial parent-child visits occur within 24 hours of removal. Have the following discussions with the identified parties as indicated below:
 - a. Parents/Caregivers (both mother and father): Discuss the details of the initial visit (time, date, location, level of supervision and attendees). Identify other committed adults who may visit with the child(ren).
 - b. Child(ren): Discuss other committed individuals with whom the child would like to stay connected. Reassure the child that the initial visit is in the process of being scheduled.
 - c. Placement resource: Discuss who will transport the child to the visit, the level of supervision required, who will provide supervision and what role (if any) the placement resource is expected to play during the visitation (e.g. provide supervision, provide support to the birth family, etc.).
4. After the initial visit, develop a formal, written visitation plan that will be followed for the duration of the case, or until a change is needed.
5. Consider the following when scheduling parent – child visitation:
 - a. Age of the child: Younger children require more frequent visits to develop or maintain bonding with parents/caregivers;
 - b. Permanency plan for the child: Concurrent planning services may require more frequent visitation to facilitate reunification;
 - c. Least restrictive setting that does not compromise child safety (e.g., parks, playgrounds, etc.);
 - d. Child’s eating, sleeping, activity patterns, and after school activities;
 - e. Parent’s work schedule or other responsibilities;
 - f. Activities and responsibilities of the placement resource;
 - g. Providing parenting opportunities: Ways to involve parents in routine/regular activities of parenting such as feeding, changing diapers and other direct care responsibilities, attending child’s school functions, medical appointments, sports activities, etc.
6. Observe the child’s visits with the birth family to assess parenting skills, attachment, and interaction of the parent and child. Providers and foster parents may help supervise visits but are no substitute for SSCM observations. When providers are utilized for supervision of visits, written documentation is required.
7. Discuss with parents, child, and placement providers any observations, issues or concerns surrounding the visits.
8. Increase the frequency and duration of family visits as the case progresses closer to reunification in accordance with court guidelines for visitation.
9. In accordance with court guidelines for visitation, allow visitation in the home of the parent as a step in transitioning the child from the placement resource back into the parent’s home. The child’s safety during home visits must be reasonably assured.

When a visiting resource has been identified, the SSCM will:

1. Ascertain whether the child has a significant, positive relationship with the visiting resource being considered.
2. Arrange a face-to-face contact with the proposed visiting resource to initiate a thorough assessment prior to any visit occurring. If the resource is planning to care for the child in his/her own home, this contact must be made in the person's home.
3. Discuss the following areas and prepare a written summary called a "Visiting Resource Evaluation" on the Contact Detail page in Georgia SHINES:
 - a. Identifying information (i.e., name, sex, date of birth, address, telephone number, etc.)
 - b. Caregiver Safety Screenings in accordance with policy 19.9 Case Management: Safety Screenings:
 - i. Child Protective Services (CPS) History
 - ii. Sexual Offender Registry
 - iii. Department of Corrections
 - iv. Board of Pardons and Parole
 - c. Criminal Records Check (CRC) in accordance with policy 19.8 Case Management: Criminal Records Checks for all adult household members if visits will occur in the home of the visiting resource
 - d. Health Status
 - e. Physical Home Environment:
 - i. Must be clean and hazard-free with sufficient space;
 - ii. Gas heaters must be vented;
 - iii. Must have functioning smoke alarms on each level;
 - iv. Must have a functioning carbon monoxide detector if a gas heater, gas water heater, or gas oven is present; and
 - v. Must have a functioning fire extinguisher.
 - f. Understanding of Child Development
 - g. Understanding of the DFCS Discipline Policy:
 - i. Review and obtain signature of the visiting resource; and
 - ii. Provide a copy to the visiting resource.
 - h. Number, sex, and ages of children in the home with the child in care (Determine if the visiting resource can care for another child)
 - i. Other adults who will be present during visits
 - j. General plan for contacts with the visiting resource (i.e. frequency, duration, activities, etc.)
 - k. Approval or Non-Approval (signature and date of SSCM, and County Director/Designee)
4. Make home visits to monitor the appropriateness of the visiting resource no less frequently than once every six months.

5. Document how utilization of the visiting resource is in the best interest of the child on the Contact Detail page in Georgia SHINES.

If parents object to any individual having visits with their child while in DFCS custody, the SSCM will:

1. Evaluate the reasons for the parental objection.
2. Assess the significance of the child's relationship to the individual and the impact on the child if visits are not allowed.
3. Determine if visitation with the individual in question is contrary to the safety or well-being of the child.
4. Obtain supervisory approval and provide written justification to the court for any decision to override a parental objection.
5. In accordance with court guidelines for visitation, ensure the visits with the individual in question are supervised.

Practice Guidance

Why are visits important?

A child's confusion and anxiety can be greatly reduced by arranging some form of contact with birth family as soon as possible following placement. Doing so reassures a child that the parent is still available and concerned about him/her. Another psychological advantage for the child is that he/she senses parental "permission" to be placed away from the parent. This alleviates much of the guilt most children feel when placed. As always, safety of the child is a paramount concern when considering the benefits of parent-child contacts. Visits provide caregivers with opportunities to practice appropriate parenting behavior and obtain feedback. Visits provide the agency opportunities to assess parental readiness and capacity for reunification, which is documented in the case record and Case Plan. When supervising visits, the SSCM can assess how visitation affects the parent and the child, as well as the quality of the interaction. Visits are considered to be supervised only when there is direct oversight of the interaction between a child and the person(s) with whom the child is visiting. The person supervising the visit should be physically present for the duration of the visit and be able to see and hear everything that is occurring during the visit. The person supervising the visit should also be able to intervene quickly to protect a child from harm if a threat to a child's safety emerges at any point during a visit.

Supporting Parents

The SSCM has the responsibility to reach out to parents and assure that a pattern of regular visitation is established early in placement. The younger the child, the more frequent visitation is needed for the child to maintain a relationship with the parent. Parents may require strong encouragement and support to exercise their visitation rights. The parent who misses visits, shows up late, seems disinterested, etc., may be experiencing great discomfort at having to continually face the reality of having the child taken away. The parent may respond to a better understanding of how important visitation is to the child when encouraged by the SSCM. Visits should be planned to allow meaningful parent-child interaction and the development of a positive relationship between the family and the placement resource.

An incarcerated parent and parents living out of county/state retain visitation rights. It may be necessary for DFCS to arrange for or to provide transportation where agency resources permit. Pre-planning the visit with the parent, child and placement resource may be helpful. If the parent has difficulty relating to the child, the agency may be able to help the parent develop more effective ways to engage the child such as incorporating activities, games, etc. The parent and child may also need help understanding when and how to end a visit and say good-bye. Post-visit discussions with the child, parent and placement resource may be helpful when planning for the next visit. Professional validation is needed from a licensed therapist, psychologist, or psychiatrist before deciding that visitation with parents, grandparents, siblings, etc. is detrimental to a child's well-being.

Maintain Open Communication

Open dialogue around the issue of visitation needs to be maintained among all parties involved. Visitation between parents and children may be stressful. The reasons for placement and separation may surface, along with strong feelings on the part of both the parents and children around those issues. Typically, children will express their feelings through their behavior prior to or following a visit (e.g., aggressiveness, temper tantrums, bed-wetting, angry outbursts, crying, etc.). Children who are particularly upset by visits may need additional assistance and support to verbalize their feelings about the parent, the reasons they are in foster care, and expectations regarding having visits with their family.

Parent-Child Visitation (Parenting Opportunities)

Limited contact between parents and their children is often anxiety provoking for children, and therefore more frequent visitation with their parents is best. Parents who visit frequently with their children have the best chance of being reunified with them. Visitation helps to facilitate bonding between parents and their children and provides opportunities for parents to "practice" parenting their children. Involving foster parents in developing the parent-child visits promotes partnership parenting, which builds supportive relationships. When reunification is the permanency plan goal, increased visitation with parents is critical to facilitate bonding and child wellbeing for children ages 0-5. Policy has established a required minimum frequency for visitation, but more frequent visitation is strongly encouraged.

Other parenting opportunities should be provided for parents to "practice" learned skills/knowledge that can facilitate earlier reunification. Examples of other forms of meaningful contact include letters, cards, calls, email, Skype, social media, etc. Telephone contact is also encouraged, when it is safe and appropriate to do so. Discussions regarding the type and frequency of contacts should occur on an ongoing basis as the case progresses.

Visiting Resources

Visiting resources provide support for children in care through positive, supportive interaction. They may provide social and/or cultural experiences of short duration (not to exceed two consecutive days or a weekend) to a child with whom there is a relationship that has been determined to be positive and significant and does not interfere with permanency for the child. A decision to arrange/approve visiting resources must be in the best interest of the child. Once a visiting resource has been identified, an assessment of the resource must be completed prior to any visit occurring.

Pictures

During visitation, DFCS staff and service providers should take the opportunity to photograph a child's interaction with their parents, siblings, extended family, friends, etc. Each child should be encouraged to add the pictures to their Life Book, which will offer a record of their experiences in foster care. Pictures may also help provide parents with additional motivation to take the steps necessary to reunify their family as soon as possible.

Skype

Skype is a service that allows users to communicate with other people over the internet by voice (using a microphone), by video (using a webcam), and instant messaging. There is no charge for calls between users within the Skype service. However, there is a charge for calls to landline telephones and mobile devices. Charges are processed via a debit-based user account system.

Family Member Rights to Visit

The term "family member" encompasses grandparents, great-grandparents, siblings of the parents of a minor child in foster care. If DFCS does not grant family member visitation, the family member has the legal right to petition the court for visitation rights with a minor child when:

1. The minor child's parents are separated or divorced;
2. The parental rights of either parent have been terminated;
3. The parent of the child is deceased; or
4. The child has been adopted by the child's blood relative or by a stepparent.

Reasonable visitation rights between the family member and the child may be granted if the court finds:

1. The health or welfare of the child would be harmed unless such visitation is granted; and
2. The best interest of the child would be served by granting the visitation request.

 In no case shall the granting of visitation rights to a family member interfere with a child's school or regularly scheduled extracurricular activities.

Fictive Kin

"Fictive kin" means a person who is known to a child as a relative, but is not, in fact, related to the child by blood, marriage or adoption but who prior to his or her placement in foster care was known to the family, has a substantial and positive relationship with the child, and is willing and able to provide a suitable home for the child.

Title IV-E of the Social Security Act Sections 471(a)(31) and 475(12)

Preventing Sex Trafficking and Strengthening Families Act of 2014 (P.L. 113-183)

Requirements

The Division of Family and Children Services (DFCS) will:

1. Consider a 'sibling' to be an individual with whom a child shares one or both parents in common by blood, adoption or marriage, even if the marriage was terminated by death or dissolution. Such an individual shall still be considered a sibling of the child following termination of parental rights (TPR) up until a finalized adoption occurs. Such an individual shall also still be considered a sibling of the child following the death of their common parent(s).
2. Make reasonable efforts to place siblings removed from their home in the same foster care, kinship, or adoptive placement unless:
 - a. Joint placement is contrary to the safety or well-being of any of the siblings due to unresolved physical, sexual, and/or emotional abuse among the siblings where therapy, with a safety plan in place, is not effective or appropriate as documented by a licensed clinician and approved by the County Director/Designee;
 - b. Special needs of one or more children in the sibling group requires a specialized placement setting (e.g., documented medical, physical, cognitive or behavioral needs requiring residential treatment, hospitalization, juvenile detention, etc.);
 - c. Siblings are placed or reside in another state.

Georgia has opted out of the Kinship Guardianship program.

3. Require documentation of the specific circumstances and written approval of the County Director to place siblings in separate placement settings and include the explanation for separating a sibling group in the case plan submitted to the court for approval (see policy 10.23 Foster Care: Case Planning).
4. Ensure siblings who are not placed together have frequent visitation or other ongoing interaction between each other beginning as soon as possible, but no later than seven calendar days from sibling separation at initial placement or any subsequent placements. Siblings shall maintain weekly face- to-face contact with each other, except under the following circumstances:

- a. Visitation is rendered contrary to the safety or well-being of any of the siblings due to unresolved physical, sexual and/or emotional abuse among the siblings where therapy, with a safety plan in place, is not effective or appropriate as documented by a licensed clinician and approved by the County Director/Designee.
- b. Siblings are placed or reside in another state.

Weekly contacts include formal or informal opportunities to interact.

5. Make ongoing efforts to place together siblings who are separated for reasons unrelated to their safety or well-being (e.g., no placement available to accommodate the entire sibling group).

Procedures

When siblings require out-of-home placement, the Social Services Case Manager (SSCM) will:

1. Determine if there are siblings already in out-of-home care. If so, DFCS must determine if this resource is able to accommodate the siblings of children currently in their home/facility.
2. Inform potential placement resources that placement is being sought for a sibling group and the plan is to keep them together throughout the foster care episode.
3. Place all siblings together at the first placement unless there is evidence that placement together is contrary to a child's safety and/or well-being.
4. Prioritize kinship placements (see policy 10.1 Foster Care: Placement of a Child).
5. Place siblings in close proximity to each other, if unable to place them in the same home, in order to increase opportunities for them to have contact (e.g., attempt to place them where they may attend the same school, church, etc.).
6. Make diligent efforts to place siblings back together when they are separated due to emergency removal. Efforts include, but are not limited to:
 - a. Monthly contact with Resource Development (RD) staff or the Room Board and Watchful Oversight (RBWO) provider regarding ongoing efforts to locate or recruit a placement resource for the entire sibling group;
 - b. Ongoing follow up with members of a family's kinship network who may be potential placement resources for the siblings or know of other potential kinship resources; and
 - c. Targeted recruitment for sibling groups, including reaching out to neighbors, teachers, counselors, other school staff, and others who know one or all of the children.
7. Include the explanation for separating a sibling group in the case plan submitted to the court for approval. The case plan should include:
 - a. A statement that it is contrary to the safety and/or well-being of a child;
 - b. A statement that reasonable efforts have been made to place the siblings together and will continue to be made throughout the life of the case;
 - c. A visitation plan documenting ongoing frequent visitation and other interaction between the siblings;

- i. Formal visits at the DFCS office, placement provider’s location, visitation center, etc.;
 - ii. Informal visits (e.g., birthday parties, play dates, social gatherings, sleepovers, sporting events, lunches, dinners, Skype, etc.).
8. Facilitate weekly face-to-face visitation (formal or informal) between the siblings:
 - a. Siblings who are not initially placed together or who are separated thereafter should have a minimum of a phone contact within 48 hours of separation.
 - b. The initial sibling visit is held as soon as possible, but no later than seven calendar days from sibling separation at initial placement or any subsequent placements.
 - c. A sibling visitation plan (included in the case planning process) is developed in conjunction with the family, caregivers and children (as appropriate) to clearly state who is responsible for scheduling visits, supervising visits, providing transportation to visits, etc.
9. Document the following in the log of contacts in Georgia SHINES:
 - a. Initial and ongoing efforts to place the siblings together;
 - b. Explanation of why siblings cannot be placed together;
 - c. County Director/Designee approval of the clinical professional’s written recommendations regarding the need to separate siblings due to safety and well-being concerns;
 - d. Ongoing visitation and other interaction between the siblings; and
 - e. Ongoing assessments to determine when sibling visits can resume (If suspended).

Social Services Supervisor

1. Communicate to each case manager the significance of maintaining sibling groups intact, including when seeking adoptive placements.
2. Discuss with staff all actions taken to place siblings together or reunite them if they were previously separated during placement. Discussions are to occur as part of ongoing supervision, including during case staffing, individual conferences, unit meetings, etc.
3. Document discussions regarding preserving sibling connections in Case Staffing Notes. Documentation must be entered on the Contact Detail page in Georgia SHINES.

Practice Guidance

Preserving Sibling Connections through Sibling Placement

“Sibling” means a person with whom a child shares one or both parents in common by blood, adoption or marriage, even if the marriage was terminated by death or dissolution. Such individuals are still legally considered a sibling following termination of parental rights (TPR) up until a finalized adoption occurs. The bond between brothers and sisters is unique. It is the longest lasting relationship most people have, including the parent-child or husband-wife relationship. Separating siblings in foster care or for permanency adds to their emotional trauma. For some children, separation from their siblings can be even more traumatic than separation from their parents. Placing siblings together lessens separation trauma, eases the stress on their parents, reinforces the importance of family relationships, and facilitates visits and communication between children and their parents. Therefore, when children enter the care and custody of DFCS, preserving sibling connections must be a crucial component of the case planning process. Reasonable efforts must be made to place siblings together whether in foster, kinship, guardianship or adoptive homes.

There may be situations in which children do not meet the legal definition of siblings but have established such a bond that they consider themselves to be siblings. They may have grown up in the same household or shared caregivers for an extended period of time. Moreover, they may have been led to believe by others that they share one or both parents. In such instances, the agency should be sensitive to that relationship and make every effort to preserve that connection in the same manner as it does for legal siblings (to the extent allowed by law). That includes trying to maintain such children in the same placement or arranging frequent visitation.

Preserving Sibling Connections through Visitation (formal and informal)

When siblings cannot be placed together, ongoing diligent efforts must be made to ensure siblings have the opportunity to interact with each other to maintain their relationship. Enlisting the support of parents and placement providers in the sibling visitation and “other interaction” plan is important to maintaining the sibling bond. Think about naturally occurring opportunities for the siblings to interact, not just created or “formal” opportunities (i.e., DFCS supervised visit at the office, visitation centers, etc.). Formal visits provide opportunities for DFCS, RBWO or other agency staff to observe and assess sibling interaction. However, other “informal” opportunities for siblings to interact provide siblings the ability to bond naturally. Such informal opportunities include birthday parties, graduations, sporting events, family outings, sleepovers, attending church, school, or other community events, etc. Whether formal or informal, the plan for sibling visits must be documented in the visitation plan, which is a part of the case plan.

Permanency Planning

Permanency planning should always be done for the sibling group as a unit. Unless an exception has been made and documented, children who become free for adoption should be presented as a group during adoption recruitment activities (e.g., Wednesday’s Child, Northwest Adoption Exchange or AdoptUSKids). Use a group photograph when utilizing photo listings (e.g., My Turn Now), and make it clear that an adoptive family is being sought for the entire sibling group. If children are adopted separately, consider writing sibling visitation and ongoing communication into the Adoption Placement Agreement. Moreover, siblings placed for adoption should be educated about the Adoption Registry.

Photographs

During visitation, DFCS staff and service providers should take the opportunity to photograph a child’s interaction with his/her parents, siblings, extended family, friends, etc. Children should be encouraged to add the photographs to their Life Book, which will offer a record of their experiences in foster care. Photographs may also help promote sibling connectivity, especially for siblings not residing in the same out-of-home placement.

Practice Guidance

Case Planning with Expectant or Parenting Youth

A parenting youth’s WTLTP, if applicable, should include outcomes to enhance their ability to meet the needs of their child and these outcomes should be addressed during the periodic reviews and permanency hearings held on behalf of the parenting youth (see policy 17.2 Legal: Case Reviews and Permanency Plan Hearings). If the parenting youth’s child is placed in DFCS’ custody, a foster care case plan should be developed with the parenting youth (see policy 10.23 Foster Care: Case Planning).

Custody of the Parenting Youth’s Child

When a youth in foster care has a child, the child should remain in the custody of the youth unless it is determined that the parenting youth has abused or neglected the child and the child is unsafe in the custody of the parenting youth. Parenting youth may need time to adjust to their new role and responsibilities as a parent. Therefore, it is critical the parenting youth and child are in a safe, caring environment that allows the youth the opportunity to enhance their parenting skills. Identifying expectations and outlining responsibilities of the placement resource and the parenting youth regarding the care of the child are critical in facilitating a successful placement. The SSCM and placement resource must give the parenting youth the liberty to parent while providing the support to make their parenting efforts successful. Ongoing safety must be thoroughly assessed through purposeful and collateral contacts.

Youth in foster care face numerous challenges in preparing to transition to a successful adulthood. They often lack strong family connections or a supportive role model to assist them in transitioning to adulthood. For youth in foster care who are expecting or parenting, the process of transitioning to adulthood is accelerated even if the youth is ill-prepared to assume adult responsibilities. Therefore, expectant or parenting youth in foster care need a strong support system and targeted services to assist them in enhancing their parental protective capacities while they strive to become successful, self-sufficient adults.

If the child of a parenting youth in foster care is ever removed and placed apart from the parent, judicial placement authority must be obtained. The child should be entered into Georgia SHINES as a child in foster care, once DFCS has received legal custody through juvenile court. If the issues requiring the removal from the parenting youth are addressed and the court sanctions reunification, the child should be placed in the same placement as the parenting youth if safe and appropriate.

Engaging the Youth Regarding Disclosing the Pregnancy

Youth in foster care are at higher risk of teen pregnancy than their counterparts not in foster care. The trauma from the abuse or neglect which resulted in the youth's placement into foster care may lead to physical and emotional health problems as well as increased vulnerability to teen pregnancy. Lack of a stable parent-figure to educate a youth about pregnancy prevention also contributes to the higher risk of teen pregnancy for youth in foster care.

Most youth do not plan to become pregnant or impregnate someone else when they engage in sexual activity. Thus, learning they are expecting a child can be overwhelming. They may struggle with anxiety, depression, feelings of helplessness, fear, worries about the future and/or low self-esteem. It is important that the SSCM recognize these struggles and ensure appropriate services are initiated to assist this youth.

The SSCM may need to recognize and set aside their own personal biases about teenage pregnancy and/or the options available to the expectant parent related to the pregnancy to fully support the expectant youth. Youth may find it difficult to disclose the pregnancy to their parents, other family members, and/or their placement resource. The disclosure must come from the youth; however, the youth may need assistance and support from the SSCM regarding how to disclose and handle other's responses once they learn of the pregnancy. The SSCM should explain to the youth the importance of support from their parents, other family members and the placement resource throughout the pregnancy and parenthood. Reiterate to the youth that their parents, family and placement resource care about them, and although they may be disappointed, they want what is best for the youth. Some tips for youth to consider when disclosing they are expecting include:

1. Take a deep breath, process the news and develop a plan.
2. Determine when and where to disclose.
3. Prepare what to say.
4. Practice what to say with the SSCM or a friend.
5. Anticipate the reactions of others and their possible questions.
6. Disclose in a relaxing, comfortable manner/environment.
7. Listen to their responses and reassure them that you can handle this with their support.
8. Answer their questions as best you can.
9. Discuss next steps.

Supporting the Expectant and Parenting Youth

Expectant and parenting youth in foster care need help to guide them along positive developmental pathways and provide their children with the care they need to learn, grow, develop, and reach their full potential.^[11] SSCMs can facilitate this by:

1. Supporting the healthy development of the youth parent:
 - a. Ensure the parent receives consistent medical attention, including prenatal and postnatal care.
 - b. Provide supports that promote age appropriate developmental goals and address relevant mental health issues, including the impact of trauma.
 - c. Provide education related to substance abuse (specifically the risks that substance use poses to the developing child), sexual health, the prevention of subsequent pregnancies, and sexually transmitted infections.
 - d. Encourage healthy relationships with partners, peers, family members, and other supportive people.
 - e. Promote self-sufficiency and independent living outcomes for expectant and parenting teens by helping them obtain high school diplomas/GEDs and pursue additional education and employment opportunities, or job training.
2. Supporting the healthy development of the child:
 - a. Ensure the parent receives consistent medical attention, including prenatal care, to increase the likelihood of a healthy birth.
 - b. Assist the parent in registering for other supports such as Medicaid and Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program so the child receives regular medical care, including developmental screenings.
 - c. Connect the children of youth mothers and fathers with developmentally appropriate resources, childcare, and services for the child, including transportation and educational opportunities.
3. Supporting strong parent-child relationships that promote attachment and bonding:
 - a. Provide access to programs that promote positive parenting and emphasize nurturing as well as age-appropriate discipline.
 - b. Connect the youth to models of good parenting practices and programs that provide education about essential parenting skills and the importance of responsive parenting.
 - c. Offer opportunities to practice parenting skills in a supportive environment.

Funding for a Parenting Youth's Child

The Title IV-E program allows for states to claim reimbursement for the cost of a child living in the same placement as its parent in foster care without obtaining custody of the child (see policy 9.1 Eligibility: Foster Care Maintenance Payments). The added cost of care for the child is reimbursed through the parenting youth's IV-E status. Only one payment is made to the placement provider. State funds may be used if the child remains in the custody of a parenting youth in foster care who is not IV-E eligible (see policy 9.10 Eligibility: Special Situations \(Trial Home Visits, Runaway, Parenting Youth in Foster Care and Out-of-State IV-E Foster Care\)).

Georgia Personal Responsibility Education Program (GA-PREP)

State PREP awards grants to public and private agencies for educating youth through evidence-based programs to reduce teenage pregnancy, STDs including HIV/AIDS, and STI's among high risk youth.^[12] PREP targets youth ages 10-19 who are in foster care, live in geographic areas with high teen birth rates, or come from racial or ethnic minority groups. PREP is funded by both the Administration of Children and Families (ACF) and Family and Youth Services Bureau (FYSB).

Georgia's Personal Responsibility Education Program (GA-PREP) is administered by the Division of Family and Children Services (DFCS), a division of the Department of Human Services (DHS). Through a competitive funding solicitation, GA-PREP awards grants to public and private agencies for educating youth ages 10-19 and up to 21 if expecting or parenting. GA-PREP serves the larger goals of GA's DHS by providing high risk youth free access to evidence-based teen pregnancy prevention programs and supplemental adult preparation subjects.

The Georgia Home Visiting Program

The Georgia Home Visiting Program^[13] is a statewide effort, sponsored by the Georgia Department of Public Health and supported by your community to ensure that every child in our state gets a great start in life. The program is designed to create a community culture of care, encouragement, and support for all families before and after the birth of a child. Across hundreds of Georgia communities, services are available to ensure that these important early years are rich with opportunities for children to be educated, safe, and healthy. A free Information & Referral Center offers connections to relevant local resources and information.

Home Visiting Evidenced Based Models in Georgia

1. Early Head Start-Home Visiting^[14]

The Early Head Start–Home Visiting (EHS-HV) model provides high-quality, culturally competent child development and parent support services with an emphasis on the role of the parent as the child's first and most important relationship. EHS-HV targets low-income pregnant women and families with children birth to three. To be eligible, most families must be at or below the federal poverty level. The EHS-HV model must make at least 10 percent of their enrollment opportunities available to children with disabilities. The scope of services in the home-based model is comprehensive and includes the following:

- a. Developmental screening, ongoing observation and assessment, and curriculum planning.
- b. Medical, dental, and mental health.
- c. Child development and education.
- d. Family partnerships and goal setting.
- e. Community collaborations to meet additional family needs.

2. Healthy Families Georgia^[15]

All Healthy Families programs in Georgia are nationally accredited, evidence-based home visiting programs. Services are designed to strengthen families beginning prenatally up to the age of 5 years of a child's life when vital early brain development occurs. Well trained, experienced Family Support Workers provide valuable education, community resources, and tangible support all children and families need to thrive. The mission of Healthy Families Georgia is to promote child well-being and prevent the abuse and neglect of our children through the provision of quality, long-term, intensive home visitation services. The program is designed to strengthen nurturing parent-child relationships, promote healthy childhood growth and development and enhance family functioning.

3. Nurse-Family Partnership (NFP)^[16]

Nurse Family Partnership aims to empower first-time mothers living in poverty to successfully change their lives and the lives of their children through evidence-based nurse home visiting.

4. Parents as Teachers^[17]

The vision of Parents as Teachers (PAT) is that all children will learn, grow and develop to realize their full potential. Within this evidence-based home visiting model, certified parent educators provide information, support and encouragement parents need to help their children develop optimally during the crucial early years of life. PAT sites provide at least two years of services to families with children between prenatal development and kindergarten. Generally, families should be enrolled by the child's 3rd birthday. Sites are affiliated with PAT National Center (PATNC) to ensure model fidelity. The model uses the following four core components to service children and families:

- a. Home Visits. Each home visit includes parent-child interaction, family well-being and development centered parenting.
- b. Referrals to Community Resources.
- c. Health and Child Development Screenings.
- d. Group Connections.

5. SafeCare^[18]

SafeCare is an evidence-based parenting program that addresses both physical abuse and neglect in parents of very young children (ages 0-5). Neglect represents the largest portion of DFCS referrals in Georgia (73.8%) and nationally (78.3%). Children ages 0-5 are among the most vulnerable and are most likely to be victims of substantiated maltreatment. SafeCare is the first of a series of evidence-based programs DHS hopes to implement to best serve the families of Georgia.

The Lamaze Method of Childbirth

The Lamaze method, developed by the French obstetrician Ferdinand Lamaze, has been used in the United States since the late '50s and remains one of the most commonly taught types of childbirth classes.^[19] The original focus was on using controlled breathing techniques to cope with labor. According to Lamaze International, the goal of Lamaze classes is to "increase women's confidence in their ability to give birth." Toward that end, women learn a variety of simple coping strategies, of which breathing is only one. The classes aim to help women "learn how to respond to pain in ways that both facilitate labor and increase comfort." The Lamaze philosophy of birth stipulates that "birth is normal, natural, and healthy" and that "women have a right to give birth free from routine medical interventions." But Lamaze also educates women so that when interventions are needed, or pain relief medication is desired, women can give true informed consent.

Planned Parenthood

Planned Parenthood Federation of America, Inc. or Planned Parenthood^[20], is a nonprofit organization that delivers vital reproductive health care, sex education and information to millions of people worldwide.

Teen Parent Connection

Teen Parent Connection (TPC)^[21] is a system of care that provides the support, guidance, and assistance needed by teen mothers and fathers to succeed as adults and parents. TPC serves pregnant or parenting teens (both moms and dads) aged 13-19 in state custody and their child (or children), or teen parents with a child in state custody. Teen Parent Connection services are currently available in Metro Atlanta, North Georgia, and Middle Georgia.

At Teen Parent Connection, Life Coaches are the centerpiece of our program. TPC Life Coaches are credentialed coaches with specialized training and experience in working with teen parents. These Life Coaches work with the team of professionals serving teen moms and teen dads and their children as part of a System of Care. Life Coaches can address the challenges of working with teens in myriad settings by using a keen awareness of the challenges they face and breaking them down in an individualized manner.

Life Coaches reach out to teens through home visits, phone contacts, and engagement in both individual and group settings. They choose from a host of programs tailored to the individual teen parent and their child. Services include:

1. Screenings and assessments
2. Parenting skills training for individuals and groups
3. Job skills training and career placement
4. Life skills support (financial literacy, educational support, medical/health support, building healthy relationships, etc.)
5. Legal support
6. Peer support and advocacy

Teen Parent Connection (TPC) accepts referrals from anyone working with an expectant or parenting teen in custody. Teens may also refer themselves. For more information, contact the Multi-Agency Alliance for Children at info@maac4kids.org.

Title V Sexual Risk Avoidance Program

The Administration for Children and Families provides funds under the Sexual Risk Avoidance Education (SRAE) Program.^[22] The SRAE Program funds projects to implement sexual risk avoidance education that teaches participants how to voluntarily refrain from non-marital sexual activity and prevent other youth risk behaviors. The program teaches the benefits associated with self-regulation, success sequencing for poverty prevention, healthy relationships, goal setting, and resisting sexual coercion, dating violence, and other youth risk behaviors such as underage drinking or illicit drug use without normalizing teen sexual activity. Visit www.acf.hhs.gov/fysb/grants/georgia-app for a list of SRAE programs.

Requirements

The Division of Family and Children Services (DFCS) will:

1. Promote positive permanency outcomes for children in foster care by ensuring the permanency planning process includes:
 - a. A thorough assessment of the child and family's circumstances;
 - b. Family engagement throughout the permanency planning process;
 - c. Early identification of the permanency plan or concurrent permanency plan;
 - d. Determining what is in the child's best interest;
 - e. Decisive, individualized, and time-limited outcome-oriented activities to achieve the permanency plan outcomes;
 - f. Consideration of the need to minimize trauma for children in foster care.

2. Maintain a sense of urgency to achieve a permanent living situation for every child in foster care.

The federally recommended timeframes contained in the Child and Family Services Review (CFSR) for achieving each of the permanency plans are Reunification - 12 months, Guardianship – 18 months and Adoption – 24 months.

3. Begin discussing the permanency plan options and timeframes with the family during the joint visit with Child Protective Services (CPS) staff or sooner when possible.
4. Discuss the Permanency Timeline with the family and provide them with a copy.
5. Conduct a diligent search to locate absent parents and kin to serve as permanency resources or supports including, seeking the services of the Federal Parent Locator Service to search for absent parents at any point in order to facilitate a permanency plan (see policy 19.20 Case Management: Diligent Search).
6. Comply with the requirements of the Indian Child Welfare Act (ICWA) (see policy 1.6 Administration: Indian Child Welfare Act \(ICWA\) and Transfer of Responsibility for Placement and Care to a Tribal Agency).
7. Identify the permanency plan (as part of the initial case plan) for each child, in partnership with the family within 30 days of the child’s entry into foster care. In order of preference, the permanency plan options are:
 - a. Reunification: The return of a child in the temporary custody of DFCS to the legal and physical custody of the parent, guardian or legal custodian. Custody to a non-custodial parent is also reunification.
 - b. Adoption: Establishes a new legal family giving adoptive parents and children the same rights and benefits as those who are born into a family.
 - c. Permanent Guardianship (legal guardianship): A judicially created relationship between the child and kinship caregiver which is intended to be permanent and self-sustaining as evidenced by the transfer to the kinship caregiver of the following parental rights with respect to the child:
 - i. Protection
 - ii. Education
 - iii. Care and control of the person
 - iv. Guardianship of the person
 - v. Decision making

Georgia has opted out of the Title IV-E Kinship Guardianship Assistance Program.

- d. Another Planned Permanent Living Arrangement (APPLA): DFCS maintains care and custody of the youth who has attained 16 years of age and arranges a living situation in which the youth is expected to remain until adulthood. APPLA is only appropriate in rare circumstances and when the court finds and documents a compelling reason that reunification, adoption or permanent guardianship are not in the best interest of the child.

Although “Permanent Placement with a Fit and Willing Relative” is a permanency option outlined in ASFA, effective 01/01/14, Georgia law no longer recognizes it as a permanent placement for a child.

8. Assess and identify whether a concurrent permanency plan is in the best interest of the child within 30 days of a child entering care. Simultaneously implement a primary permanency plan of reunification with an alternate plan of either adoption or permanent guardianship when the assessment indicates a concurrent plan is warranted.
9. Select reunification as the preferred permanency plan, and make reasonable efforts to reunify the child with his/her family, unless the court has ordered that reunification services are not required (see policy 9.5 Eligibility: Reasonable Efforts).
10. Determine in consultation with the Special Assistant Attorney General (SAAG) whether adoption or guardianship is appropriate as the initial permanency plan when it is assessed that reunification is not in the child's best interest at the onset of the case based on conditions outlined in policy 17.11 Legal: Termination of Parental Rights \(TPR\) and/or policy 9.5 Eligibility: Reasonable Efforts.
11. Determine the following prior to recommending adoption as a permanency plan to the court:
 - a. Reunification is not in the child's best interest (see policy 9.5 Eligibility: Reasonable Efforts and Practice Guidance: Adoption for additional considerations when recommending adoption as a permanency plan); or
 - b. Reunification is not required as outlined in policy 9.5 Eligibility: Reasonable Efforts.
12. Determine the following prior to recommending permanent guardianship to the court:
 - a. Obtain a non-reunification court order finding that reasonable efforts to reunify the child with their parent is detrimental and is determined not to be in the best interest of the child;
 -  Only pursue an order of non-reunification when selecting permanent guardianship as the permanency plan (see Practice Guidance: Non-Reunification).
 - b. Determine that termination of parental rights and adoption is not in the best interest of the child (see policy 17.11 Legal: Termination of Parental Rights \(TPR\));
 - c. Monitor the child's placement with the caregiver for at least six months and determine whether they can provide a safe and permanent home for the child.
 - d. Determine that the caregiver is the individual most appropriate to be the child's permanent guardian, taking into consideration that guardianship is in the best interest of the child. For children 14 years of age and older, determine the appointment of a permanent guardian is in the best interest of the child and the individual chosen by the child is the most appropriate to be the child's permanent guardian taking into consideration the best interest of the child.
 - e. Verify that there is an approved Kinship Assessment unless the proposed guardian is an approved foster home.
13. Explore and eliminate all other permanency plans (reunification, adoption, and guardianship) prior to selecting APPLA as the permanency plan.
 - a. Only select APPLA as a permanency plan for children aged 16 years and older, if appropriate.

State and federal law provide no exceptions for selecting APPLA as a permanency plan for a child under the age of 16.

b. Document a compelling reason for choosing APPLA as the permanency plan in the Case Plan in Georgia SHINES.

14. Develop case plan outcomes and tasks that support achievement of the selected permanency plan.
15. Participate in case reviews to report progress on case plan outcomes and tasks that support achievement of the permanency plan in accordance with policy 17.2 Legal: Case Review/Permanency Plan Hearing.

If at any review subsequent to the initial 75 day review the court finds there is a lack of substantial progress toward completion of the case plan, the court shall order DFCS to revise the case plan within 14 calendar days of the review and to change the permanency plan to one other than reunification or to add a concurrent plan (see policy 10.23 Foster Care: Case Planning).

16. Make reasonable efforts to finalize the permanency including any concurrent plan by working actively and collaboratively with the family, children, providers and family supports to implement case plan activities.
17. Obtain a judicial determination regarding “reasonable efforts to finalize the permanency plan” at each permanency plan hearing, but no later than 12 months of the date the child is considered to have entered care and at least every 12 months thereafter as long as the child remains in care (see policies 9.5 Eligibility: Reasonable Efforts and 17.1 Legal: The Juvenile Court Process).
18. Obtain court approval via a court order whenever the permanency plan is changed.
19. Refrain from requesting, pursuing, suggesting or consenting to a temporary guardianship of a child in DFCS custody.
20. Obtain a recommendation from the State Office Placement and Permanency Section before proceeding with the adoption of any child by a caregiver who is the subject of a Child Protective Services (CPS) investigation.
21. Adhere to confidentiality and Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act (HIPAA) provisions outlined in policies 2.6 Information Management: Confidentiality/Safeguarding Information and 2.5 Information Management: Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act. Obtain a signed Authorization for Release of Information (ROI), when applicable.
22. Document all permanency activities in Georgia SHINES within 72 hours of occurrence, including:
 - a. Updating the Case Plan whenever there is a change in the permanency plan.
 - b. Documenting permanency planning discussions with the family, caregivers, children and others in the Contacts/Summaries.
 - c. Updating the Legal Status.
 - d. Uploading court orders in External Documentation, when applicable.

Procedures

When selecting an initial permanency plan, the Social Services Case Manager (SSCM) will:

1. Participate in the following:
 - a. Transfer staffing and joint visit with the Child Protective Services (CPS) SSCM (see policy 19.4 Case Management: Case Transfer).
 - b. Case Consultation/Multi-Disciplinary Team (MDT) Meeting.
 - c. Family Team Meeting (FTM) to develop the initial case plan (see policy 10.23 Foster Care: Case Planning).
2. Conduct ongoing diligent search in accordance with policy 19.20 Case Management: Diligent Search to locate possible placement or permanency resources.

If a relative fails to demonstrate an interest in and willingness to provide a permanent home for a child within six months of receiving the required notice that the child is in foster care, the court may excuse DFCS from considering the relative as a placement. Such a finding does not excuse DFCS from continuing to search for relatives, which must continue throughout the life of the case. Even if a relative is not a proper placement option, finding those relatives may give the child the opportunity to form deeper family connections and sources of support later in life.

3. Thoroughly explore any information which suggests that a child is of Native American heritage in compliance with the Indian Child Welfare Act (see policy 1.6 Administration: Indian Child Welfare Act \(ICWA\) and Transfer of Responsibility for Placement and Care to a Tribal Agency).
4. Review and analyze the case history, Family Functioning Assessment, Comprehensive Child and Family Assessment (CCFA), other assessments completed on the child and family and any other background information in preparation for the meeting with the parents, guardian or legal custodian to develop the case plan (see policy 19.10 Case Management: Analyzing DFCS History).
5. Utilize the Concurrent Planning Assessment Guide within the first 30 days of a child entering foster care to determine the suitability of a concurrent plan. If additional information is needed to make the determination, request that the CCFA provider include this as a part of their report.
6. In a staffing with the Social Services Supervisor (SSS), review and consider the following when deciding on a possible permanency plan for the family:
 - a. All information gathered during the assessment.
 - b. Information from the Concurrent Planning Assessment Guide.
 - c. The best interests' determination factors considered by the court (see Practice Guidance: Best Interest Determination in policy 17.1 Legal: The Juvenile Court Process).
 - d. The parent/caregiver-child relationship:
 - i. The emotional commitment to the child.
 - ii. Empathy for the child.
 - iii. Ability and willingness to meet the child's needs.
 - iv. Realistic expectations of the child based on development and ability.

- e. The vulnerability of the child involved and the severity of the maltreatment:
 - i. Serious physical abuse (e.g., burns, fractures, poisoning).
 - ii. Caretaker(s)' sexual abuse of child.
 - iii. Significant neglect (e.g., child denied food, clothing or shelter and/or locked in a room for years).
 - iv. Diagnosed failure to thrive.
 - v. Child has been the victim of multiple forms of abuse.
 - f. The parents', guardian's or legal custodian's history:
 - i. Prior agency interventions (DFCS history including previous foster care episodes, law enforcement, mental health, family violence, services, etc.).
 - ii. Childhood and birth family history.
 - iii. Desire to parent (e.g., any prior abandonment of a child?) and the consensus reached on the needed outcomes.
 - iv. Degree to which contact was maintained with the child.
 - v. Ability to meet the child's needs.
 - vi. Any high-risk relationships (e.g., abusive, exploitive).
 - vii. Chronic substance abuse, physical health, and/or medical or mental health issues.
 - g. The behavioral, cognitive and emotional characteristics of the parents, guardians or legal custodians to assess their ability to care for and keep the child safe.
 - h. The most appropriate permanency plan, based on the information gathered and assessed.
 - i. If reunification is assessed not to be in the best interest of the child, the case information that supports this assessment; and the information that supports the selection of adoption or guardianship as an appropriate initial permanency plan (see policy 9.5 Eligibility: Reasonable Efforts and 17.11 Legal: Termination of Parental Rights).
7. In partnership with the family and the child (when age and developmentally appropriate), determine the most appropriate permanency plan including a concurrent plan when appropriate. Thoroughly discuss the following with the family and child:
- a. The permanency outcomes being considered
 - b. Reasons for the possible permanency plan;
 - c. Permanency Timeline and provide them a copy (see Forms and Tools: Permanency Timeline);
 - d. Explain whether a concurrent permanency plan is being considered, the reasons for the consideration, and the expectations and timelines with concurrent planning;
 - e. Their input or feelings regarding the possible permanency plan;
 - f. The urgency of meeting case plan outcomes as it pertains to the trauma of foster care on the child;
 - g. How their progress or lack of progress impacts whether their child returns home.

When a sibling group enters care, all permanency planning must include diligent efforts to ensure the children remain together in their placement and their permanent home.

8. Implement services for the primary or concurrent permanency plan in accordance with policy 19.17 Case Management: Service Provision.
9. Initiate a consultation with the SAAG in conjunction with the SSS, to discuss the selection of the permanency plan and case plan outcomes/tasks to achieve the permanency plan.

Consult with the Regional Field Program Specialist and Regional Adoptions Coordinator to provide guidance with the direction of the case prior to the staffing with the SAAG, if selecting adoption or guardianship as the initial permanency plan.

10. Document the following on the Case Plan in Georgia SHINES (see policy 10.23 Foster Care: Case Planning):
 - a. The initial permanency plan and the reason the permanency plan selected is in the best interest of the child.
 - b. The reason a concurrent permanency plan was or was not utilized.
 - c. The outcomes and tasks that support achievement of the permanency plan and concurrent plan where appropriate.
 - d. Any current services being provided to the family to achieve the permanency plan.
