Practice Guidance

Assessing the Family

All children are entitled to a safe, permanent and nurturing home. In order to grow up to be healthy, self-sufficient adults, children need to experience stability and continuity in a lifetime relationship with a parent or other permanent caregiver. Permanency planning is the process of assessing and preparing a child for long term care when in out-of-home placements. Permanency planning must focus on what is in the child's best interests, and therefore requires an initial and ongoing assessment of the needs of the child and family.

A thorough understanding of the family is the foundation of all child welfare interventions. The assessment process is ongoing and involves gathering facts, observations and information about and from the family. The assessment should also involve:

1. Identification of the challenges the family faces with everyday life tasks.
2. Exploration of how these challenges create safety threats for the child.

3. Exploration of “exceptions” to the challenge or situations when the completion of the everyday life task went well.
4. Exploration of kinship connections including those that can provide placement, permanency and other types of support to the family.

Such information is then analyzed, and conclusions are drawn about family functioning, including family strengths and needs. The SSCM gains a better understanding of the family as a unique system. There is insight into how family members think, feel, behave, relate to others and respond to various situations, including the removal of the child.

Assessment results guide staff in making sound decisions about the best placement for the child, critical service needs of the child and family and the most viable plan for achieving permanency. Initially, the assessment assists staff in making a prognosis regarding the likelihood for reunification, the preferred permanency plan when safety can be assured. For some children in care (particularly young children and children whose families are less likely to respond to time-limited reunification services), a concurrent permanency plan may be developed. Concurrent planning allows the agency to pursue an alternative plan alongside reunification, in the event reunification is not possible or safe. The plan may have to be continuously refined in partnership with the family to ensure achievement of permanency in the best interest of the child.

A fundamental principle of permanency planning is the understanding that when children are unable to live with their family, efforts to promote the connectedness of family and significant relationships with people who are important to them are essential to the child’s identity, sense of belonging and culture. Therefore, it is essential that diligent search efforts to locate kin and other committed individuals begin as early as possible to facilitate permanency for the child through adoption or guardianship, when reunification with one or both parents has been ruled out (see policy 19.20 Case Management: Diligent Search and 10.4 Foster Care: Selecting a Placement Resource).

Foster care is a temporary setting and not a place for children to spend any more time than is necessary. It is critical to begin planning for permanency from the time children enter care and to keep the family actively involved in permanency decisions for the children. Regardless of the permanency plan, the safety and well-being of the children must be reasonably assured.

Permanent Placement

Georgia law defines a permanent placement as:

1. Return of the legal custody of a child to his/her parent.;
2. Placement of a child with an adoptive parent pursuant to a final order of adoption; or
3. Placement of a child with a permanent guardian.

The Adoption and Safe Families Act (ASFA)

The Adoption and Safe Families Act (ASFA) includes provisions intended to move children more quickly through the foster care system into safe, permanent families including:

1. A timeframe of 12 months to achieve permanency for every child in foster care.
2. A permanency hearing and a judicial determination regarding “reasonable efforts to finalize the permanency plan” within 12 months of the child’s removal (and every 12 months thereafter as long as the child remains in care).

Georgia law requires the initial permanency plan hearing to be held within 9 months for children under seven years of age and within 12 months for children seven years of age or older.

3. Documenting a compelling reason in the case plan when a child is not going to reach permanency before their 15th month in foster care.
4. The mandatory filing of a petition to terminate parental rights whenever the court has determined the child to be abandoned or the parent has been convicted of certain felony offenses or the child has been in care 15 out of the most recent 22 months unless a compelling reason is documented.
5. Concurrent planning with respect to two practices is:
 - a. The selection of dual permanency plans. And
 - b. Concurrent efforts to identify, recruit and approve a qualified family for a child while the County Department continues to provide reunification services.

Reunification

Reunification is the return of a child in the temporary custody of DFCS to the legal and physical custody of the parent, guardian or legal custodian from whom custody was removed. Custody to a non-custodial parent is also reunification. Reunification is an appropriate permanency plan when the family requires time-limited reunification services (generally provided no longer than 12 months) to make it possible for the child to safely return home. When selecting reunification as a permanency plan, consideration should also be given to:

1. The parents, guardians, or legal custodians and the child’s desire to be reunified.
2. The parent-child relationship and bond including any observable attachment.
3. The consensus built on the outcomes needed by the family and the readiness, willingness, and
4. The ability of the family to participate in and benefit from time-limited reunification services.
5. The length of time needed to remedy the challenging life tasks that resulted in the child’s removal.
6. Individual challenges the parents, guardians or legal custodians may have that cannot be addressed in the near future (e.g., lengthy period of incarceration; significant untreated mental health or cognitive delays; chronic, un-rehabilitated substance use).
7. The formal/informal supports available via extended family and/or community.

Adoption

Adoption is an appropriate permanency plan when the parents, guardians or legal custodians are unable to safely care for the child or reunification is not in the child’s best interest. Kin may be selected as the adoptive resource. Children may be reluctant to consent to adoption due to not wanting to sever ties with their family. The Regional Adoption Coordinator (RAC) can assist in discussing adoption with the child and/or family or refer the child to a counselor specializing in adoption preparation.

When selecting adoption as a permanency plan, consideration should also be given to the following:

1. The determination of whether the child can be safely returned home.
2. The legal grounds for TPR including whether the child is or can become legally free.
3. The execution of voluntary surrenders.
4. The child's expressed wishes regarding adoption, and their ability to accept and respond to family life (if age 14 or older, the child must provide written consent to the adoption).
5. The child's sense of family, and their need and ability to maintain contact with the family.
6. The current caregiver's willingness to adopt, ability to meet the child's needs and the child's attachment to the current caregiver.

Guardianship

Prior to pursuing permanent guardianship as a permanency plan for a child in foster care, DFCS must demonstrate reasonable efforts towards reunification unless circumstances exist where reasonable efforts for reunification are not required. When reunification is determined not to be in the best interest of the child, adoption must be thoroughly explored and ruled out as a preferred permanency plan before selecting permanent guardianship. Permanent guardianship for a child in foster care may be granted by the juvenile court when determined to be in the best interest of the child. The guardianship order establishes a permanent guardian and outlines the permanent guardian's rights and responsibilities concerning the care, custody and control of a child. Guardianship applies to the person(s) specified on the court order. The court may enter an order of support on behalf of the child against the parents. Permanent guardianship granted by the juvenile court may only be dissolved or modified if there is a material (important and substantial) change in the child's or guardian's circumstances. A change in the biological parents' circumstances may be construed by the court as a material change in the child's circumstances. Therefore, everyone must be informed that although the guardianship is intended to be permanent, it may not be.

Permanent guardianship is possible when a child is adjudicated dependent, and:

1. Reasonable efforts to reunify the child with his/her parents would be detrimental to the child or the living parents have consented to the permanent guardianship.
2. Adoption has been thoroughly explored and found not to be in the child's best interest.
3. Non-reunification has been granted by the court.
4. The proposed guardian can provide a safe and permanent home for the child.
5. A permanent guardian is in the best interest of the child and the individual chosen to be the permanent guardian is the most appropriate person taking into account the child's best interest.

Non-Reunification

DFCS should request a non-reunification determination when seeking permanent guardianship, as DFCS requires the non-reunification order as an eligibility criteria for the guardianship subsidy. In all other circumstances non-reunification should not be requested. It is important that DFCS continue to demonstrate reasonable efforts to reunify the family at all times during the dependency action, especially in circumstances where termination of parental rights is being pursued.

Another Planned Permanent Living Arrangement (APPLA)

Another planned permanent living arrangement (APPLA) is an appropriate plan when:

1. The child is at least 16 years of age;
2. Adoption and guardianship have been ruled out as not being appropriate or in the best interest of the child; and
3. A compelling reason is documented in the case plan and court order choosing APPLA.

The two options that classify as APPLA include long-term foster care (LTFC) by Agreement and emancipation. Long-term foster care is feasible when no other plan is appropriate, and the present caregiver is available and willing to provide a home for the child as long as foster care is needed. APPLA may not be selected for a child under the age of 16. With long-term foster care, in most instances, a child, the caregiver and the County Department sign an informal, non-legal agreement (APPLA Agreement) indicating the intention for the placement to last until the child no longer needs foster care placement. If possible, the child's parents, guardians or legal custodians also sign. Limitations of long-term foster care include:

1. The lack of permanency.
2. The lack of a legal bond between the child and the caregiver; thus, allowing for either party to change their mind at any time.
3. The parent's, guardians or legal custodian's situation or attitude may change, and they may subsequently choose to pursue custody which could prove harmful to the attachment between the child and the caregiver.
4. The placement may not meet the child's needs and/or the child may place such stress on the caregiver that another placement is needed.

Emancipation is feasible when no other plan is appropriate, there is no consistent adoptive or foster family for the child and the child requires foster care placement until age 18. Although the plan lacks permanence, its selection provides a planned living arrangement for maintaining the child in foster care until eventual emancipation to independent living or to a protective environment. For youth whose special needs or severe limitations will require some type of protective environment beyond age 18, planning must begin well in advance of the youth reaching age 18 due to the limited resources and the waiting list for placement consideration. Contact the Complex Needs Adult Transition (CNAT) Unit for additional guidance.

Selecting Other Permanency Options from the Onset when a Child Enters Foster Care

While reunification should be the first permanency plan considered whenever it is in the best interest of the child, there are situations that allows DFCS to pursue adoption or permanent guardianship as the initial permanency option. In these circumstances (outlined in policy 17.11 Legal: Termination of Parental Rights \(TPR\) and/or policy 9.5 Eligibility: Reasonable Efforts), the SSCM and SSS should consult with the Regional FPS and RAC for guidance on how to proceed with the most appropriate permanency plan for the child. Consultation with the SAAG should also occur to ensure DFCS is moving swiftly with legal permanence for the child.

Concurrent Planning

Concurrent planning rather than sequential planning helps move children more quickly from foster care to permanency. This involves working towards a primary permanency plan of reunification while simultaneously working towards an alternative permanency plan of adoption or guardianship. The alternate plan is to prevent the child from lingering in foster care, not an attempt to undermine the parent's, guardian's or legal custodian's efforts toward reunification. To achieve timely permanency, working towards both plans simultaneously is critical. A concurrent plan should not be selected as a default plan, rather it should be selected based on an assessment of the family's circumstances using the Concurrent Planning Assessment Guide. When the primary permanency plan is no longer appropriate, in conjunction with the SAAG petition the court to move forward with the alternate permanency plan. The following are critical components of concurrent planning:

1. Early exploration of non-custodial parents, kin and other persons committed to the child to ensure that all potential permanency options are explored.
2. Early identification of a permanent resource for the alternate permanency plan.
3. Intensive, time-limited, documented reunification efforts and results.
4. Effective building of the legal case for the alternate permanency plan while pursuing reunification (i.e., collecting information required to pursue adoption or guardianship).

Early Assessment/Identification for Concurrent Planning

The Concurrent Planning Assessment Guide in conjunction with a thorough review of the families' history and functioning can assist in determining the cases that are most appropriate for concurrent planning. Information gathered before a child enters foster care can assist in determining early whether reunification is likely, as well as the alternate permanency plan that is in the best interest of the child if a concurrent plan is selected. All families should be assessed for concurrent planning, but not all are appropriate. For instance, if the court ordered permanency plan is not reunification, concurrent planning is not appropriate. When the family's circumstances indicate a poor prognosis for early reunification, concurrent planning should be considered.

Using the Concurrent Planning Assessment Guide

The Concurrent Planning Assessment Guide is a tool that assesses a family's suitability for concurrent planning. The guide staff make informed decisions on the appropriateness of concurrent planning, as it targets the strengths and needs of the family and provides indicators for early reunification and poor prognosis for reunification. The guide may be appropriate:

1. When Investigations or Family Preservation Services assessments determine a child will be placed in out-of-home care.
2. Within the first 30 days of a child entering foster care; and periodically, in the first six months, after when concurrent planning was initially deemed inappropriate.
3. Any time during the initial six months when additional information indicates a change in the family's circumstances.

Finalizing the Permanency Plan

In accordance with ASFA, a permanency plan is to be finalized within 12 months of a child entering care. Once a concurrent permanency plan has been approved by the court, court approval is required for the agency to cease reunification efforts and focus on the alternate permanency plan of adoption and guardianship. Reunification services must continue until the court approves another permanency plan. A permanency plan is finalized when the permanency outcome has been achieved (i.e., child is reunified with parents, guardian or legal custodian; child's adoption is finalized; permanent guardianship is granted). If the court finds that the child has been living in a stable home environment with the current caregiver(s) for the past 12 months and that removal from the caregiver(s) would be detrimental to the child's emotional well-being, the court may presume that continuation of the child's placement with the current caregiver is in the child's best interests and shall enter a finding that a change of placement is a failure by DFCS to make reasonable efforts to finalize the permanency plan in effect at the time of the hearing; provided however, that such presumption shall not apply to prevent the return of the child to his or her parent, guardian, or legal custodian.

Practice Guidance

Case Planning

A case plan is designed to ensure that a child receives protection, proper care and case management services. Services may be provided for the child, parents, guardian or legal custodian. The case plan is a deliberate, reasonable and mutually agreed upon strategy to enhance caregiver protective capacities, which will eliminate or mitigate present danger situations and/or impending danger safety threats. Therefore, a complete review of the investigation and DFCS history is fundamental to begin case planning. The case plan must provide a clear understanding of the reason for removal from the home (consensus around family issues), changes which would constitute successful intervention [family level outcomes (FLOs) and individual level outcomes (ILOs)] and the method for facilitating change (action plans). Because of the tight timeframes to achieve permanency, it is critical for the initial case plan to be well executed. The likelihood of securing a safe and permanent home, either via reunification, adoption or guardianship, for the child in a timely manner is directly related to the appropriateness of the case plan.

The case plan provides the road map for meeting the safety, permanency and well-being needs of the child and family. The case plan must be developed collaboratively with the family and providers based on a thorough understanding of the strengths and needs unique to a family. Family Team Meetings (FTM) and Multi-Disciplinary Team (MDT) meetings are effective ways to engage natural and formal supports to enhance case plan development. The case plan should address what changes must be observed in families for children to be safely returned home. Case plans are unlikely to result in desired outcomes if the family is not invested in them; therefore, the family must be actively involved in the case planning process. The most critical aspect of case planning involves establishing a partnership with caregivers and obtaining consensus regarding the family and individual level outcomes. Although case plan outcomes should be established after gaining consensus with the family, there are situations where a consensus may not occur prior to the development of the case plan. Therefore, the SSCM must make every effort to achieve consensus as soon as possible to ensure buy-in in case plan development and implementation.

If reunification is appropriate, the agency proposes a reunification case plan outlining the outcomes and tasks required for the child to be safely returned to the family. If reunification is not appropriate, the agency proposes a case plan outlining the outcomes and tasks required to secure a permanent living arrangement for the child via other available adoption, guardianship or another planned permanent living arrangement. In some instances, DFCS or the court may propose a concurrent case plan. In a concurrent case plan, reunification is the primary permanency plan, and an alternate permanency plan is selected (adoption or permanent guardianship). The case plan outlines tasks to simultaneously support achieving the prescribed outcomes of both permanency plans.

Common Components of Case Plans

The common components to any case plan include outcomes, tasks and action plans. Each case plan must include one FLO and one ILO. FLOs describe what the family will be doing each day to successfully handle the challenges with everyday life tasks and ensure the safety and well-being of the child. It is recommended that a family manage no more than two FLOs per case plan to prevent the family from becoming overwhelmed and help them focus on the most pressing issues impacting child safety and well-being. Additional safety outcomes can be incorporated into the case plan at re-assessment if initial outcomes are achieved. With each established FLO there must be a correlating ILO. ILOs outline the new behaviors to be demonstrated by the individual to successfully participate in the family level outcome and shall be specifically related to addressing a caregiver's underlying issues that create an unsafe home environment for the child. These personal self-management issues may be related to:

1. Anger or control
2. Substance abuse
3. Sexual behaviors
4. Emotional stability
5. Criminal behavior

When developing FLOs and ILOs, consideration should be given to desired outcomes identified during earlier stages of the case. Outcomes developed during investigations or Family Preservation Services (FPS) may remain relevant in foster care and provide a sense of continuity for the parent or guardian. Outcomes should be individualized based on the assessed strengths and needs of the family and must be:

1. Relevant to the reasons for removal.
2. Positively stated.
3. Written in clear and simple language.
4. Behaviorally specific.
5. Measurable.
6. Attainable. And
7. Time-limited.

Each FLO and ILO must have an associated action plan which is a personalized plan targeting the most high-risk situations. For example, DFCS involvement is related to inadequate supervision and educational neglect with identified caregiver substance abuse issues. Two FLOs will be developed with the family, one around ensuring adequate supervision of the child(ren) and the other around ensuring the educational needs of the children are being met. Only one ILO will be developed with the caregiver addressing their underlying issue of substance abuse which is contributing to the maltreatment. An action plan will be established for each FLO and ILO, consisting of tasks and step-by-step instructions of who will do what, when it will be done and how it will be measured (see policy 19.14 Case Management: Action Planning).

Outcomes that the family would like to address that are not related to safety are considered secondary level outcomes. Secondary level outcomes may be discussed with the family and resources may be provided to assist the family with meeting these outcomes. However, secondary level outcomes should not hinder the achievement of outcomes that impact child safety. Secondary level outcomes may be noted on the case plan, however, there is no associated action plan.

Realistic timeframes for achievement of case plan outcomes and tasks help direct and motivate parents, guardians or legal custodians and children. However, the time needed by a parent, guardian or legal custodian to make the necessary behavioral changes must be balanced with the child's developmental needs and need for permanency. How to document and celebrate the achievement of established outcomes and tasks should be determined during case plan development.

Case Planning in Domestic Violence (DV)/Intimate Partner Violence (IPV) and Sexual Abuse Cases

Case planning involving domestic violence (DV), intimate partner violence (IPV) and sexual abuse must be managed differently than those that do not contain these elements. The primary focus of these types of cases is basic safety rather than the challenges with everyday life tasks. Therefore, the first FLO will address basic safety on how the family will prevent the child from being physically (DV/IPV cases) or sexually (sexual abuse cases) harmed. The family's plan may include the perpetrator leaving the home and not having contact until recommended by the treatment/batterer program provider. Other family members or supports may have tasks on the plan to assist the non-offending caregiver in enforcing a "no contact" plan. An individual level outcome for the perpetrator around sexual offending or DV/IPV will be established; and if the assessment reveals the non-offending parent has failed to protect, an ILO will be developed for the non-offending parent addressing his/her underlying issue around protecting the children.

Although the primary focus in these types of cases is keeping children free from physical or sexual harm, a second family level outcome (FLO) can be established around managing the developmental stage of everyday life the family finds challenging. However, the perpetrator cannot participate in the second family level outcome until he/she has received treatment and demonstrated substantial progress related to their underlying issues (sexual abuse/DV/IPV).

It is important to remember that service provision will be key in helping the family move forward with ensuring safety in the home as well as assessing behavioral changes that impact safety. SSCMs must work in partnership with community-based service providers to:

1. Identify treatment approaches for the perpetrator of child abuse and neglect that have demonstrated effectiveness regarding future abusive or neglectful behavior.
2. Identify treatment approaches for the child victim that have been proven effective in reducing the impact of abuse and neglect on the child and assist in the child's resiliency. And
3. Identify treatment approaches that will assist the non-offending caregiver in creating and maintaining positive outcomes that impact the family and the child(ren) in the home.

Court Approval of the Case Plan

Georgia's CPRS is an interface between Georgia SHINES and the juvenile court that allows the juvenile court to review the supervisor-approved case plan in Georgia SHINES. Upon receipt of the case plan from DFCS, the juvenile court will conduct a review of the plan. The court will make a determination regarding the appropriateness of the child's permanency plan and placement. If the court rejects the permanency plan or any other component of the case plan, DFCS must submit a new or revised case plan for court approval. Once the court adopts the case plan, the court issues a disposition or supplemental order incorporating the case plan, which remains in effect until modified by the court. DFCS must obtain copies of the supplemental orders and upload them to External Documentation in Georgia SHINES as they are important to establish and retain eligibility for Title IV-E.

If DFCS submits an initial case plan to the court that does not recommend reunification as the permanency plan, supporting information is required. The court shall hold a permanency plan hearing no later than 30 days following the filing of the case plan to review the proposed case plan. If the court finds that reasonable efforts to reunify a child with his or her family will be detrimental to the child, then it enters an order stipulating "reasonable efforts to reunify the child and family are not required". If the court finds that reunification efforts would not be detrimental to the child, it will order DFCS to submit a case plan for reunification. The adopted permanency plan will be incorporated into an order. If a hearing is requested by the parent, guardian or legal custodian after the development of the case plan, the court will conduct a hearing. After hearing the evidence, the court will enter an order which may:

1. Accept or reject the DFCS recommended permanency plan and case plan (all or part).
2. Order an additional evaluation.
3. Appoint a GAL.
4. Outline other reviews, as it deems necessary to determine the disposition that is in the child's best interest.

5. Include findings of fact that reflect the court's consideration of the oral and written testimony offered by the parents, the guardian, the custodian of the child, the foster parents, kin providing care for the child, and DFCS; and/or
6. Make a disposition only if the court finds that such disposition is in the best interest of the child.

Once the case plan is court-approved, the court will provide a copy of the order and the court approved plan to the parties. DFCS is responsible for providing copies of the case plan to the parents, guardian or legal custodian, placement resource and GAL/CASA. The parents, guardian or legal custodian may provide written consent for DFCS to provide a copy of the case plan to other significant parties.

Documenting and Celebrating Case Plan Progress

Throughout the life of the case, documenting and celebrating progress in case plan evaluation is vital. The family's progress, completion of specific tasks on each action plan should be documented and celebrated. The documentation is critical in capturing change within the family. During the development of the action plan, the SSCM may include suggestions for celebrating specific task completion. Action plans should include how each task will be measured allowing for the SSCM to review what has been documented by the family and discuss with the family the best way to celebrate progress. They should encourage the family to be creative and discuss different ways they can celebrate. Some examples of ways the SSCM can recognize and celebrate change include:

1. Verbally acknowledging the progress the family is making in working their action plans which can encourage the family and help them feel supported by the SSCM.
2. Using T-charts to compare the old unsafe and unproductive behaviors with safe and productive new ones.
3. Convening an FTM to focus on the significant and meaningful changes the family made.
4. Conducting a celebration party planned with the family and treatment providers to highlight their progress. Food, balloons and certificates to celebrate the families' achievements may be included.
5. Mailing the family a card detailing their progress and acknowledging their efforts and commitment to reaching their outcomes.

Managing Setbacks

Setbacks can be defined as the reoccurrence of a problem behavior that is considered high risk. Setbacks are a normal occurrence in case management and can be managed to prevent case stagnation and to continue case progression. A SSCM's and SSS's ability to manage their emotions around a family's set back can assist in their ability to help move the family forward and assist them in utilizing newly learned skills. Preparing ahead of time for setbacks can help SSCMs respond appropriately to them.

Engaging Non-Custodial Parents in Case Planning

Engaging and assessing non-custodial parents in the case planning process is crucial. Research indicates a correlation between engagement with non-custodial parents and fewer subsequent allegations of child abuse, and faster achievement of permanency. Engagement of non-custodial parents can help with safety planning, improving the relationship between the child and the non-custodial parents, and placement with the non-custodial parents and/or their kin. Engagement of non-custodial parents involves more than contacting the parents and inquiring about whether they have any interest in being involved with the child. It is also making an effort to understand their situation and why they may feel the way they do. It is important to be aware of certain dynamics that may come into play in this process. For example, if the non-custodial parent appears disinterested, it could be something other than a lack of interest. The parent's behavior may be in response to previous negative experiences he/she has had with the custodial parent, preconceived notions about how he/she is perceived by others regarding the status of his/her parental involvement, or the parent may be reluctant because of his/her views about the child welfare system.

Contacts with the non-custodial parents should be used to educate them on the case planning process and explore with them what their role might be. It is important to show empathy toward the non-custodial parent's situation and interest in the non-custodial parent as a potential resource. Discussions with the custodial parents surrounding the involvement of the non-custodial parents need to occur during the development of the case plan.

Case Planning with Incarcerated Parents

Case planning with incarcerated parents may pose some challenges due to the complexities of navigating the criminal justice system. This includes but, is not limited to; locating a parent who is incarcerated, once located, ensuring fluid and consistent communication with the parent, the type and level of services that can be provided, facility rules that may prohibit or limit service provision to the parent.

Despite these challenges, unless a court order mandates otherwise, the SSCM will engage incarcerated parents in case planning for their children and encourage their participation in case planning activities. This includes:

1. Working in collaboration with the court to ensure the parent is transported to court or can participate virtually when transportation is unavailable or not possible;
2. Facilitating the parent's participation in case planning activities;
3. Collaborating with the parent's case manager or facility staff to assess the parent's needs;
4. Build consensus with the parent and assisting in the facilitation of appropriate services upon the parent's re-entry into the community;
5. Identification of appropriate services that may be available in the correctional setting;
6. Ensuring the parent has a signed copy of the case plan.

Because timing can be a factor with incarcerated parents, when determining permanency, the parent's unique situation should be discussed with him/her to come up with a collaborative plan to ensure they can maintain their parental rights when safety is not a factor. Prior to pursuing TPR or non-reunification (for the selection of guardianship) for the children of an incarcerated parent, the SSCM has to provide evidence to the court that the parents were provided with the opportunity to be involved in the permanency planning and have made reasonable efforts to support the parents in completing their case plan. When this is not possible, the Division has an obligation to inform the parent of its decision to move forward with an alternative plan to ensure safety and permanency of the child.

Requirements

The Division of Family and Children Services (DFCS) will:

1. Ensure the safety and well-being of a child when considering a trial home visit by:
 - a. Determining if there is sufficient progress toward the case plan goals to resolve or mitigate safety concerns.
 - b. Assessing the parent, guardian or legal custodian parenting practices and protective capacities.
 - c. Conducting a purposeful contact in the home where the trial home visit will occur, with the caregiver and all household members to assess the home and all household members.
 - d. Conducting safety screenings and criminal records checks (CRC) of all caregivers and other household members where the trial home visits will occur.

CRC are not required on the parent, guardian or legal custodian from whom the child was removed to initiate a trial home visit.

2. Conduct a family meeting or Family Team Meeting (FTM) to develop the plan for the trial home visit.
3. Obtain court approval for the trial home visit prior to return of a child in foster care to the physical care of a parent, guardian or legal custodian.
4. Arrange a transitional visitation schedule with the placement resource and the parent, guardian or legal custodian to minimize trauma to the child.
5. Develop a Safety Plan for all children returning to the care of their parent, guardian, or custodian on a trial home visit.
6. Ensure education stability for the child when on a trial home visit in accordance with policy 10.13 Foster Care: Educational Needs.

If a trial home visit extends beyond six months and has not been authorized by the court, or exceeds the time period the court has deemed appropriate, and the child is subsequently returned to foster care, that placement must then be considered a new placement and title IV-E eligibility must be newly established. Under these circumstances the judicial determinations regarding contrary to the welfare and reasonable efforts to prevent removal are required.*
14. Refer to policy 9.10 Eligibility: Special Situations when utilizing a trial home to ensure compliance with Title IV-E.

Practice Guidance

Trial Home Visits

Reunification, the process of reconnecting children in out-of-home care with their families, is the preferred permanency arrangement. The trial home visit was introduced in federal law to improve stability in the reunification process and is a key strategy in assuring successful reunification. A trial home visit should only be recommended when it is expected to be successful and requires careful planning and preparation prior to and following the transition.

Each family will have a different reaction to child returning home on a trial home visit; therefore, the preparation and planning should be individualized based on the needs of each family. When planning a trial home visit, consideration must be given to the following:

1. Safety threats resulting in the child's removal have been successfully mitigated.
2. The age of the child.
3. Number of siblings that will be returning with the child.
4. The length of time the child was in foster care.
5. The quality and consistency of visitation between the parent, guardian or legal custodian and child.
6. The child's special needs, characteristics, vulnerability to harm and capacity to self-protect.
7. Any new household members (i.e. boyfriend, girlfriend, other family) since the child entered care.
8. The quality of the relationship between the parent, guardian or legal custodian and child.
9. The quality of extended family support.
10. The parent's, guardian's or legal custodian's protective capacities and progress on their case plan outcomes.
11. Support services that may be needed.

Preparing the Child

The amount and type of preparation needed for the trial home visit, will vary for each child.

The child's vulnerability impacts the type of preparation needed for the child home visit. Child vulnerabilities include the child's age, the length of time in out-of-home care, and the quality of the child's relationships with his/her parent, guardian, or legal custodian. The child's feelings also play a key role in his/her adjustment to returning home. Many children worry that they will be subjected again to abuse and/or neglect. Some may experience feelings of disloyalty to their placement resource family for wanting to return home; and some may feel disloyal to their parents for missing the placement resource family. The child should be encouraged to share his/her feelings about the return home with a trusted adult, such as the placement resource, SSCM, behavior aide, therapist, etc. The child's feelings should be acknowledged and addressed, including any fears. Additionally, the SSCM should discuss with the child the expectations, responsibilities, and safeguards that will be in place to protect the child. The SSCM should discuss safety with the child and what the child should do if the child feels unsafe.

Preparing the Parent, Guardian, or Legal Custodian

The parent, guardian, or legal custodian may feel uncertain about his or her ability to adequately meet the child's needs or more feel overly confident. The SSCM should help the parent, guardian or legal custodian prepare for the trial home visit by:

1. Identifying the positive behavioral change that enhanced protective capacities and alleviated safety concerns. Celebrate successes.
2. Providing the parent, guardian or legal custodian the opportunity to implement parenting practices learned.
3. Informing of the agency's continued involvement with family to support a successful reunification.
4. Identifying any anticipated issues and discuss the family's prevention plan to address any identified concerns.

Preparing the Placement Resource

The bonds that often develop between some placement resource and children placed in their home are important and can evoke feelings of loss for both parties. In addition, the placement resource's feelings can influence the child's view of returning to their family, therefore it is important to include them in the planning for the trial home visit. This includes their involvement in transitional visits with the parent, guardian, legal custodian, participation in the family meetings, and maintaining an ongoing relationship to support the child's transition to their home.

Supporting the Family During the Trial Home Visit

Once a family reorganizes and settles into a "new normal" when their child is out of the home in foster care, reintegrating the child back into the home may be challenging. Often parents revert to more familiar manners of functioning that resulted in the child's removal. A trial home visit allows for the parent, guardian or legal custodian to demonstrate effective parenting. During this period, it is essential that services provided to the family are consistent, targeted, and behaviorally driven. Children and families should receive services in the least restrictive environment which is most often their home. This allows the SSCM to have a better picture of family functioning and adaptability to the daily stresses of parenthood and life.

Supporting the family through the trial home visit by being a resource and monitoring their progress are additional benefits for the reunification process. More frequent purposeful contacts may be required initially during the initial phase of trial home visit to continue to assess the child's safety and wellbeing as well as parenting abilities and behaviors. As the parent becomes more confident in their parenting skills, identifying stressors, and utilizing their action plans, the frequency and nature of contacts will need to be reassessed to reflect the progress that the family has made. During the trial home visit period, it is important to recognize that families will have challenges, setbacks, and successes. Encourage the family to utilize the skills and relationships that they have developed through action planning to address any challenges or setbacks. Being able to identify the challenges and setbacks but also celebrate and recognize their successes assist in ensuring a positive trial home visit and reunification. It also important and recognize and celebrate successes.

Requirements

The Division of Family and Children Services (DFCS) will:

1. When a youth, age 14 and older, in the custody of DFCS is determined to be absent without permission (AWOP):
 - a. Make efforts to ascertain the youth's whereabouts.
 - b. Assess whether the youth is in danger. Immediately contact law enforcement any time there is reason to believe a youth may be in danger.
 - c. Determine if a youth who is absent without permission is missing.
 - d. Determine whether law enforcement intervention is necessary, or if the matter can be successfully resolved without law enforcement involvement (i.e., the youth returns or is located).

This requirement also applies to the caregiver and/or the placement provider.

2. When the youth is determined to be missing, follow policy 19.22 Case Management: Missing Children.

Procedures

Youth is AWOP

The caregiver or placement provider will:

1. Make efforts to ascertain the youth's whereabouts.
2. Assess whether the youth is in any danger considering the following:
 - a. The youth's location.
 - b. Person(s) with whom the youth is with.

The SSCM will:

1. Notify the parents that the youth has been located (if the parents were contacted during the search for the youth).
2. Interview the youth within 72 hours of their return. This may be done concurrently with the caregiver unless a private conversation with the youth seems more appropriate for the situation (see Practice Guidance for sample interview questions).
 - a. The frequency and nature of a youth's absence governs how the interview is handled. The goal is to have a discussion with the youth that helps to resolve the underlying issue(s) contributing to the youth being absent without permission.
 - b. Document the interview in Georgia SHINES within 72 hours.
3. Consider whether a runaway prevention plan is warranted (see policy 19.22 Case Management: Missing Children).

Practice Guidance

Youth Absent without Permission (AWOP)

Youth classified as "absent without permission" are youth in the custody of DFCS, age of 14 and older who fit the following description:

1. Purposely breaks curfew;
2. Habitually returns late to their placement (e.g., arrives late from school); and/or
3. Their whereabouts are thought to be known by the placement provider and/or DFCS.

Verifying a Youth's Whereabouts (Examples)

1. Contact the youth via cell phone or other phone based on their last known location (i.e., school, community center, etc.).

2. If a youth failed to return home from an event or location, contact the event sponsor (e.g., scout leader) or location manager (e.g., school principal) to determine if the youth is still at the event/location or was delayed in departing.
3. If a youth was authorized to visit with friends, contact the household being visited to determine if the youth's departure was delayed.
4. If a youth's whereabouts are unknown and the youth failed to keep curfew, contact the youth's known associates, including other children residing in the household/facility in an effort to locate and encourage the youth's return.

Interview with the Caregiver

The SSCM should explore the following issues with the caregiver:

2. Who is the youth permitted to visit and where? (e.g., neighborhood, home, school)?
3. Are the youth's friends known to the caregiver?
4. Are the parents of the youth's friends known by the caregiver?
5. What are the rules of the residence concerning when and where youth may go without first securing the caregiver's permission? Has the youth been informed of the rules?
6. Are there issues being experienced by the caregiver that may have contributed to the youth being AWOP? (e.g., marital conflict, increased stress)
7. What steps can be taken to avoid future occurrences of AWOP?

Interview with Youth Returning from AWOP

The interview should be conducted in a manner that demonstrates empathy and concern for the youth, while also communicating to youth that their safety is the primary concern.

The SSCM and placement provider should explore the following questions with the youth:

Social Services Supervisor

1. Review each case prior to closure to confirm that sufficient progress has been made to remedy the safety conditions that caused a child to enter foster care. Look for evidence in the case record that supports the decision to close the case.
2. Staff each case with the SSCM prior to case closure (see policy 19.6 Case Management: Supervisory Staffing). During the staffing:
 - a. Engage the SSCM in partnership decision-making to help the SSCM evaluate the family's progress toward achieving and maintaining behavioral changes that promote child safety and well-being.
 - b. Encourage the SSCM's use of critical thinking by seeking answers to questions such as:
 - i. Why do we believe a family's circumstances have been adjusted to the point where conditions are safe for a child to be returned to the home?
 - ii. How reliable and valid is the information we have obtained that supports the decision to close the case?
 - iii. Have we spoken to everyone with relevant information about this family's capacity to protect the child(ren) exiting foster care?
 - iv. Are there any actions or services still needed to manage any behaviors or conditions that threaten child safety and well-being?
 - v. Is an in-home safety intervention warranted?
 - vi. Has the juvenile court provided its approval of case closure?
 - vii. What formal and/or informal supports can remain involved with the family following case closure?

3. Confirm that case documentation is current in Georgia SHINES prior to case closure, especially all evidence supporting case closure. This includes documentation of the supervisory staffing that evaluated the case information that had been gathered and weighed the evidence in a decision-making process that clearly supported the decision to close the case.

Practice Guidance

Conclusion of Services

Permanency planning begins when a child enters foster care. Case closure is appropriate once the permanency plan goals are achieved. Throughout the life of the case, the various judicial reviews should have been leading to a case outcome that ensures the safety, permanency and well-being of the child. Consequently, conclusion of services should be a natural and planned component of the case work process. Maximum effort must be put forth to fully engage the family throughout the life of the case and clearly communicate the desired case plan outcomes. Consider the following when ending services with families:

1. Family Preparation

Throughout the life span of the case families should be knowledgeable regarding what requirements are needed for case closure and should be engaged regularly regarding their level of progress made toward that end.

2. Developing Support Systems

Families should be assisted in developing formal and informal systems that can support them during and after DFCS involvement. The support system should be identified with the involvement of the family. This support system or family team can assist a family after case closure. Families should be encouraged to utilize these systems during the life of the case as a way for them to “practice” for life after DFCS intervention ends.

3. Disengagement

When terminating DFCS involvement with families, it is important to begin the process of disengagement of the working relationship between the SSCM and family prior to closing the case. The family should be reminded of the ongoing progress being made in resolution of risk and safety factors and that this will lead to a reduced need for DFCS involvement. This can be a challenging process for both the SSCM and the family as the SSCM must separate from the family while continuing to support and encourage them. The goal of the SSCM is to increase the emphasis on the family taking on more responsibility for problem solving and follow up.

4. Family Reactions

Conclusion of services can be met with ambivalent feelings, especially when the helping relationship with the family has been rewarding. Some typical reactions may include denial, regression, creation of additional needs, and flight. It is essential to validate the family’s feelings regarding case closure and provide positive feedback regarding their achievements as well as assisting them in recognizing their strengths and abilities.

5. SSCM Reactions

SSCMs may experience a sense of loss as a result of discontinuing their work with a child and/or family. Separating from someone with whom a meaningful relationship has been developed can be difficult. SSCMs should talk to their supervisors for support and assistance with processing their feelings.

6. Process Evaluation

Conclusion of services should be a joint decision-making process between the SSCM and the family. The SSCM should review with the family all critical elements of intervention, while empowering the family to express their opinions/feelings and provide constructive feedback. Obtaining feedback from the family regarding their experience can provide valuable information to the family and agency regarding performance as well as in establishing future relationships. The evaluation helps the family to assess and recognize their progress and encourages future self-assessment/evaluation.

9. Conduct a face-to-face meeting with the family at the conclusion of the aftercare period to discuss case closure (see policy 10.26 Foster Care: Case Closure).

Practice Guidance

What is Aftercare?

Aftercare refers to the continued efforts and resources needed to further maximize the potential for positive outcomes once children exit foster care. Aftercare services can be used to help sustain permanency and prevent children from re-entering the foster care system after everyone thought they had achieved permanency in a safe and stable living environment.

Common Factors that Increase the likelihood of Foster Care Re-entry

Some factors associated with foster care re-entry include:

1. Children with behavioral or health issues: After the supports that were present while the child was in foster care are removed, some parents may become overwhelmed.
2. Length of time a child remains in foster care: The longer a child is separated from the family, the greater the impact on the parent-child relationship as well as other family relationships.
3. Children placed in non-kinship foster care settings: Family connections can become strained when children are not placed with kin.
4. Placement instability: Structure and consistency within a child's environment may play a causal role in the development of self-regulatory abilities (e.g. impulse control, abstract thinking, planning and the anticipation of consequences). Consequently, the stress and uncertainty experienced in the foster care system may contribute to considerable and lasting changes in the brain that do not contribute to its positive development.
5. Parental mental illness: This is a lifelong issue that can disrupt the family if not managed on a continual basis.

6. Parental substance abuse: This is a lifelong issue that can disrupt the family if not managed on a continual basis.
7. Parental poverty: Foster care cannot alleviate poverty so families still have to manage the daily struggles of living in poverty.
8. Parental ambivalence about reunification: Sometimes others want reunification more than the parents or force change upon the parents without building a consensus for change. Change derived in such a manner might not be maintained by the parents.
9. The amount of family coherence at the time of separation: Some families may not be a cohesive unit prior to the child entering foster care. Consequently, the separation associated with foster care may pull them further apart.
10. Previous failed reunification attempts: When one does not learn from the mistakes of one's past, one might often repeat them.
11. Inappropriate service goals and tasks for families: When the goals are not realistic or do not address the underlying issues that lead to child maltreatment, the family's efforts and energy (as well as that of DFCS) may be exerted on the wrong things.

Duration of Aftercare Services

If aftercare supervision is needed, it should only be for a short period of time. Neither reunification nor any other permanency plan can be considered achieved without a sound determination that the child will be transitioning from foster care into a safe environment. Therefore, if one believes DFCS involvement is needed beyond six months after the achievement of the permanency plan, then one may need to reconsider whether the permanency plan is appropriate.

How DFCS May Receive Requests

A request pertaining to LSP or DNR should begin with a written recommendation to DFCS by a treating physician that outlines the specific medical interventions that they believe should be withheld or withdrawn and the medical rationale. Initially, DFCS may receive a verbal notice, however a formal written request should be provided from the requestor.

Removal of Life Support

The removal of all medical procedures or interventions that serve only to prolong the process of dying or maintain the individual in a condition of persistent unconsciousness. This does not include the administration of medication or performance of medical treatments deemed necessary to alleviate pain or provide for the normal consumption of food and water.

O.C.G.A. §19-8-3 Who May Adopt a Child; When Petition Must Be Filed in Names of Both Spouses

Discussion

Adoption is a specialized field that focuses on finding safe and permanent families for children when permanent, legal separation from their family is necessary. Adoption is a social and legal process designed to establish a new legal family giving children the same rights and benefits of those who are born into a family.

Adoption practice provides sound planning for children who have a permanency goal of adoption and children who are in the permanent custody of the Division of Family and Children Services (DFCS). An integral part of adoption services is working with birth parents as they make a decision as to whether or not adoption is in the best interest of the parent and child. If a voluntary or non-voluntary Termination of Parental Rights (TPR) is decided to be the best plan for the child, the birth parents, if appropriate, are involved in:

1. Providing social and medical background information;
2. The placement process;
3. Providing necessary tools and skills for the transition from foster care to adoption;
4. Decision-making about future contact; and
5. Beginning their grieving process.

Many birth parents grieve the loss of their role as the child's primary parent. Adoption services are offered to parents throughout the adoption process to:

1. Empower birth parents to have as much input as possible in plans for their child;
2. Assist the birth parents in maintaining their dignity and self-worth throughout the adoption process;
3. Ensure that the main focus is the child and his/her best interest;
4. Help birth parents make responsible decisions throughout pregnancy, parenting or adoption planning,

5. Acknowledge the parental role in cases of involuntary TPR and to garner their assistance in gathering pertinent information, preparing the child, and assisting in adoption planning for the child;
6. Facilitate communication (and mediation if necessary) among members of the birth parents' extended families and adoptive families, as appropriate; and
7. Help the birth parents understand, accept and manage the effects of an adoption decision, whether the decision is made by the parent or by the court.

DFCS has the responsibility to recruit adoptive families who will meet the needs of a variety of children. Adoptive parents should be informed of DFCS policies and expectations, share in the evaluation process of their family, and be provided full disclosure of non-identifying background information about their adoptive child in as much detail as is known. Individuals must meet the following criteria to petition the Georgia court to adopt a child:

1. Be at least 21 years of age or married and living with his/her spouse;
2. Be at least ten years older than the child, except when the individual is a stepparent or relative of the child;
3. Be a resident of Georgia at the time the petition for adoption is filed; or, be a resident of the receiving state when the child (adoptee) was either born in Georgia or is a resident of Georgia at the time of placement for adoption and was placed in another state in compliance with the Interstate Compact on the Placement of Children (ICPC); and

A non-resident of Georgia is deemed to have complied with the ICPC if the compact does not apply or if the individual is a resident of another country.

4. Be financially, physically, and mentally able to have permanent custody of the child.

If the individual seeking to adopt the child is married, the petition for adoption shall be filed in the name of both spouses. However, when the child is or was the stepchild of the individual seeking to adopt, the petition shall be filed by the stepparent alone.

As we shift our efforts to improve long term outcomes for children, DFCS has the responsibility of educating adoptive parents and the birth family on the importance of maintaining birth family connections when appropriate. Adoptive parents must be comfortable with themselves and accepting of their adoptive child as an individual with his/her own history and ties to biological family and past relationships. Adoptive parents must be committed to discussing with the child the facts concerning his/her background and handling the emotional content of the discussion. Adoptive parents have the responsibility to share the information in a positive, constructive way and to treat it as if it were their own ancestry information.

DFCS has the responsibility to provide consultation, counseling and supportive services throughout the adoption process. DFCS is also responsible for providing post-adoption services (after legal adoption) when needed by the child, adoptive parents or the birth parents to promote attachments and permanency for children.^[1]

O.C.G.A. §19-8-23 Where Records of Adoption Kept; Examination by Parties and Attorneys; and Use of Information by Agency and Department

Indian Child Welfare Act of 1978 (P.L. 95-608)

Requirements

The Division of Family and Children Services (DFCS) will prepare both parent(s) and child for the upcoming separation and loss when:

1. Parental rights have been voluntary surrendered;
2. Parental rights have been terminated; or
3. It has been determined that the permanency plan of adoption or a concurrent plan of reunification and adoption is in the best interest of the child.

Procedures

To prepare the family for adoption, the Social Services Case Manager (SSCM) will:

1. Secure background information from parents and family members.
2. Thoroughly explore the child’s background to determine if they are of American Indian heritage. If there is any information that suggest the child is subject to the Indian Child Welfare Act, adhere to the provisions outlined in policy 1.6 Administration: Indian Child Welfare Act \(ICWA\) and Transfer of Responsibility for Placement and Care to the Tribal Agency.

A child is subject to ICWA if the child is a member of a federally recognized Indian Tribe, or eligible for membership and has a biological parent who is an enrolled member.

3. Complete with the parent(s) the Birth Family Background Information for Child form.
4. Begin the Life Book, if one has not been started:
 - a. Secure or take photographs of the parent(s), home, pets and other family members if possible.
 - b. Encourage the parent(s) to provide letters, pictures, audiotapes or any other information to be included in the Life Book.

- c. Gather medical history to include place of birth, significant illnesses, names of doctors and clinics utilized for child's record.
 - d. Use the Life Book process to work with both the child(ren) and parent(s) around the impending separation, if possible.
5. Inform the parent(s) of the provisions of the Adoption Reunion Registry, which allows the parent(s) the option to register his/her willingness to have future contact with the child (see policy 11.17 Adoption: Adoption Reunion Registry for the complete provisions of the adoption reunion registry).
 6. Inform the (legal and biological) parent(s) and child (if at least 14 years of age) of the possibility of entering into a post adoption contact agreement with the pre-adoptive or adoptive parent(s). (see policy 11.15 Adoption: Post Adoption Contact Agreement for provisions of a post adoption contact agreement):
 - a. Have the birth parent(s) determine if he/she would like to consider this option; and
 - b. Obtain the birth parent(s) decision on his/her willingness to engage in a post adoption contact agreement.
 7. Submit a request to have the putative father registry checked to identify possible biological fathers who are not the legal father of the child. See policy 11.2 Adoption: Putative Father Registry & Birth Certificates.
 8. Obtain a certified copy of the official long form birth certificate with the state registration number and raised seal (see policy 11.2 Adoption: Putative Father Registry & Birth Certificates).

To prepare a child for the adoption, the SSCM will:

1. Make the child aware that he/she will be moving into an adoptive home.
2. Encourage the child to face and deal with his/her feelings about his/her birth family and the final separation from them.
3. Encourage the child to express his/her feelings of sadness, anger, rejection, anxiety, etc. around the prospective change.
4. Assist the child in understanding about adoption and the difference from foster care.
5. Encourage the child to face and deal with his/her feelings regarding leaving the foster home, if applicable.
6. Include the child in the planning, with a chance to express the type of family with whom he/she would like to live.
7. Start the child's Life Book if it was not initiated when the child entered foster care. It is a useful tool in helping the child understand his/her history and to identify, and begin to deal with, feelings regarding the past.
8. Use the licensed therapist as a resource that may assist in preparing a child for the transition into an adoptive family.

Practice Guidance

A fundamental part of an adoption program is based in Family Centered Practice. The parent(s) may come to the agency requesting to voluntarily surrender their legal parental rights to the child, or they may be involved in court action to terminate parental rights. No matter which manner they enter the adoption program, it is important that their rights be safeguarded and that the necessary information is secured to provide as smooth a transition as possible for the child to move into a permanent home.

It is important to obtain as much information as possible from birth parent(s) and family members to allow the child to have as much knowledge as possible regarding his/her biological heritage. The SSCM should help the parent(s) understand the importance of the child having information regarding his/her biological heritage as he/she passes through the various developmental stages. The collection of background information can also assist the parent(s) in the separation process and provide relative resources for placement.

Working with the child around the separation and loss of the biological family can begin the process that will allow the child to be ready to move into an adoptive family. Even if the child is to be adopted by the foster family where he/she has been living for some time, the issues around adoptive placement must be addressed as the change in status from foster child to adoptive child in the family will have a great effect on the relationships and the family system. A good relationship with the child enables the SSCM to help the child move into the adoptive family more readily.

Adoption Reunion Registry

The Georgia Adoption Reunion Registry provides services to birth parents, adopted persons, adoptive parents and siblings who are attempting to obtain non-identifying or identifying information from the sealed file.

Indian Child Welfare Act (ICWA)

The Indian Child Welfare Act of 1978 was enacted by Congress to address the alarming rate of removals of American Indian children from their homes for foster care and adoptive placements. The Act establishes standards as well as a protocol for providing child welfare services to ensure that agencies meet the cultural needs of Indian children requiring out-of-home placement and to protect the continued existence and integrity of Indian tribes. It gives the Indian child's parents or Indian custodian and their tribe the right to intervene or request transfer to their tribal court of any proceedings involving out-of-home placement of or termination of parental rights to an Indian child. If the child is a member of a tribe or eligible for membership in a tribe, the family, the Indian custodian and the tribe have rights under the ICWA. These rights apply to any child protection case, adoption, guardianship, termination of parental rights action, runaway, or truancy matter involving the placement of an Indian child (foster care placements, termination of parental rights, pre-adoptive placements, adoptive placements, both voluntary and involuntary placements, transfers of placement and placements due to failed adoptions).

1. "Foster care placement" means any action removing an Indian child from the parent or Indian custodian for temporary placement in a foster home or institution or in the home of a guardian or conservator where the parent or Indian custodian cannot have the child returned upon demand, but where parental rights have not been terminated;
2. "Termination of parental rights" means any action that may result in the termination of the parent-child relationship;
3. "Pre-adoptive placement" means the temporary placement of an Indian child in a foster home or institution after the termination of parental rights, but prior to or in lieu of adoptive placement; and

4. “Adoptive placement” means the permanent placement of an Indian child for adoption, including any action resulting in a final decree of adoption.

ICWA defines the term “Indian” as any person who is a member of a federally recognized American Indian Tribe or Alaska Native Village, or who is an Alaskan Native and a member of the Regional Corporations formed under the Alaska Native Claims Settlement Act of 1971 (ANCSA).

Indian Child

Any unmarried person who is under age 18 and is determined by the Tribe, Bureau of Indian Affairs, or Department of the Interior, to be:

1. A member or eligible for membership of an Indian Tribe as determined by the Tribe and/or Nation, the Bureau of Indian Affairs (BIA), or the Department of the Interior; or
2. Eligible for membership in an Indian Tribe as determined by the Tribe and the biological child of a member of an Indian Tribe.

Post Adoption Contact Agreement

A post adoption contact agreement is a voluntary written agreement between the pre-adoptive or adoptive parent(s) and birth relative(s) to permit continuing contact between the birth relative(s) and the child.

Requirements

The Division of Family and Children Services (DFCS) will:

1. Check the putative father registry to identify possible biological fathers who are not the legal father of the child:
 - a. As part of the diligent search process (see policy 19.20 Case Management: Diligent Search);
 - b. When seeking to terminate parental rights (voluntary or non-voluntary) (see policy 17.11 Legal: Termination of Parental Rights); and
 - c. In preparation for filing a petition for adoption on or after the earliest of the following:
 - i. The date of a legal mother's surrender of parental rights;
 - ii. The date of entry of the court order terminating a legal mother's parental rights; or
 - iii. The date of filing of the petition for adoption.
2. Obtain a certified copy of the official birth certificate with the state registration number and raised seal:
 - a. In preparation for adoption (see policy 11.1 Adoption: Adoption Preparation). Include the original long form birth certificate in the Child Life History (see policy 11.5 Adoption: Child Life History).

 This shall be a long form, not just a short verification. Vital Records has agreed to provide the long form birth certificate when it is stated on the birth certificate request that this is a child to be placed for adoption and the long form is needed.
 - b. For youth eighteen years and older who are aging out of foster care. Provide the original birth certificate to the youth upon exiting foster care (see policy 13.4 Independent Living Program: Transition from Foster Care)

 The youth must have been in foster care for at least six months and is a United States citizen.

Procedures

Putative Father Registry

Social Services Case Manager (SSCM) will:

1. Access information on the putative father registry:
 - a. Complete the Vital Records' Putative Father Registry Search Request form located at the Georgia Department of Public Health, Vital Records website at dph.georgia.gov/putative-father-registry.
 - b. Submit the completed form to the vital records department.

 It is not required that DFCS pay the $10 fee.

2. Verify the putative father certificate includes the following for any man acknowledging or indicating the possibility of paternity:
 - a. Name;
 - b. Address; and
 - c. Social security number.
3. Upload the certificate (search results) to Georgia SHINES External Documentation.

Georgia Department of Public Health, Vital Records will conduct the search and return a certification indicating:

1. No information was found; or
2. A registrant on the putative father registry.

Birth Certificates

The SSCM will:

1. Obtain a certified copy of the official birth certificate with the state registration number and raised seal:
 - a. Secure a Birth Certificate Request form from the Georgia Department of Public Health at dph.georgia.gov/birth-records.
 - b. Complete and sign the form.

If obtaining the birth certification for adoption purposes, indicate on the Birth Certificate Request form that this is a child to be placed for adoption and the long form is needed.

- c. Submit the completed form to the County Office of Vital Records where the birth occurred.

2. Upload the birth certificate to Georgia SHINES External Documentation.

This procedure is only relevant for children born in the state of Georgia; if a child was born in a state other than Georgia, contact the child's birth state's Office of Vital Records for guidance on obtaining a certified copy of the birth certificate.

Birth Certificates – Foundling/Abandoned Child

The SSCM will:

1. Obtain a birth certificate for a foundling or abandoned child for whom no birth certificate is available:
 - a. Request that the hospital, which completed the medical clearance on the foundling child immediately after being discovered, register the birth to create a birth certificate with the County Office of Vital Records.

The hospital facility is required to name the child “Baby Boy/Girl Foundling.” The place the child was found should be used as the child's place of birth and the approximate age based on the doctor's estimate should be used for the child's date of birth.

- b. Along with the court order indicating DFCS has custody of the child, complete the process for a name change with the State Office of Vital Records.

Allow at least 7-10 business days from the initial hospital visit to ensure the birth registration process has been completed.

- c. Obtain a copy of the certified long form birth certificate from the State Office of Vital Records using the procedures listed above under birth certificates. Once filed, the name given must be used on all subsequent court orders and legal papers.

2. Upload the birth certificate to Georgia SHINES External Documentation.

Practice Guidance

The Putative Father Registry is a list of the names of men who have acknowledged paternity of a child by completing the Paternity Acknowledgment form or have indicated the possibility of paternity without acknowledging paternity of the child. The registry allows possible biological but not legal fathers to provide identifying information about themselves, the mother, and the child so these registered men can be notified about adoption proceedings. The putative father registry is not a public file. Search requests can be made only by:

1. A governmental department, board, commission, bureau, agency, or political subdivision of any state for purposes of locating an absent parent; or
2. The Georgia Department of Public Health, a licensed child-placing agency, or a member in good standing of the State Bar of Georgia, for purposes of locating a biological father.

Use of the putative father registry allows DFCS to ascertain if there is a man or men who alleges that he may be the father of a child born to the mother within the time frame of the birth of this child. The putative father certificate and birth certificate become part of the legal documents freeing the child for adoption and must be included with the voluntary surrender of parental rights documents and termination court orders sent to the Superior Court for adoption finalization.

The putative father registry is a state level option; not every state maintains a putative father registry. DFCS is not obligated to conduct a putative father search in another state; however, if the Social Services Case Manager has knowledge that the birth mother resided in another state at the time of the child's conception and that state maintains a putative father registry, best practice would mandate that the Social Services Case Manager contact the other state and request that a putative father search be performed. Currently 33 states maintain a putative father registry. To find out if a state maintains a putative father registry, conduct an internet search through any popular web search engine such as Internet Explorer® or Google®.

The Division of Family and Children Services (DFCS) will:

1. Make reasonable efforts to ensure that all siblings are placed together in the same adoptive home, including:
 - a. Any additional sibling or siblings entering care at a later date; or

Where it is contrary to the safety and well-being due to unresolved physical, sexual, and/or emotional abuse among the siblings where therapy, with a safety plan in place, is not effective or appropriate as documented by a licensed clinician and/or if one or more child in the sibling group has documented medical, mental, cognitive, physical, and/or behavioral health needs of which may require a specialized placement setting (residential treatment, hospitalization, juvenile detention, etc.).

2. When it is not possible or appropriate to place siblings together in the same adoptive home:
 - a. Request a waiver to separate siblings from the Regional Director and consult with the State Adoption Unit.
 - b. Make every effort to place a child with an adoptive parent(s) who is committed to helping the child maintain his/her sibling connections through regular face-to-face visitation and other ongoing interaction.
 - c. Develop a written plan in conjunction with the prospective adoptive parents of each separated sibling to provide for frequent visitation and/or other ongoing interactions.

Visitation includes formal or informal opportunities to interact.

Procedures

Refer to policy 10.20 Foster Care: Preserving Sibling Connections - Sibling Placement Visitation for procedures for maintaining sibling connections.

Practice Guidance

Considerations in Evaluating Sibling Relationships

1. Siblings refer to full, step and half-sisters or brothers who have been reared as a family group and enter the care of DFCS simultaneously or at a later date. Siblings may also refer to children who have formed “sibling-like” relationships with non-related brother and sisters they have lived with both in their biological families and in foster care.
2. When children are separated because of sibling rivalry, it teaches them the way to deal with conflict is to walk away from it, not to work it out. Siblings who remain together can be helped to learn how to resolve their differences and develop stronger relationships.
3. The responsibility felt by an older child for a younger sibling is not necessarily a negative. It can be used constructively by adoptive parents to help both children develop appropriate roles with each other. The care-giving child can be helped to become a child again, and the younger child can learn that adults can be trusted.
4. Even a needy child does not necessarily benefit from being an only child in a family. The child may be expected to change troublesome behavior sooner than he/she is able.
5. When a sibling is removed from a home because of behavior problems, the remaining children get the message that the same thing can happen to them, which can reduce their sense of trust in adults.
6. Removing a sibling from a foster or adoptive home because he/she has abused a brother or sister does not guarantee that the abuse will not continue in another environment. Therapy and other interventions should be considered when appropriate to address the child’s needs.
7. Siblings who are placed separately are more likely to demonstrate greater emotional and behavioral problems. When siblings are placed together, they experience many emotional benefits with less moves and a lower risk for failed placements.

Decision Making in Sibling Placements

1. Examine the importance of siblings not only at the present but for the child throughout his/her life. Although the child may not be close to a brother or sister now, consider the future implications of their separation. Experience has shown that siblings who are separated are the most ardent searchers in the future.
2. The child’s feelings and definition of who they identify as a sibling must be considered. Although it is a major decision and not one the child can or should make alone, however his or her wishes should be a part of the decision-making process.
3. The decision about separation should be made by several informed persons, including current and former caretakers, therapists, counselors, teachers, physicians, or any others who have played an important role in the children’s lives. Explore with them the history and meaning of the sibling relationships.

4. Explore and document all the reasons for and against separating the children. Make a list and examine the benefits and challenges. Provide clear documentation of the safety and/or well-being reasons which lead to the decision in the event a decision to separate is ever legally challenged.
5. Consideration may be given to separation, if the mental, emotional, and/or physical needs of one child are such that it might prevent the rest of the sibling group from being adopted by a family.
6. Careful evaluation should be made of situations where siblings have resided for lengthy periods in separate foster homes resulting in significant attachment to foster parents who express a desire to adopt. This decision must be made concerning the best interest of the children, not the desires of the foster parents.
7. Plans for future interactions should be initiated immediately and on a long-term basis if siblings must be separated. All parties should be educated regarding Post Adoption Contact Agreements as outlined in policy 11.15 Adoption: Post Adoption Contact Agreement. Legally, adoptive parents can override any decision to maintain contact with siblings once the adoption is final. They may have problems logistically with the contacts (i.e., they may move out of state, or it may be inconvenient to keep in touch), or they simply may not recognize the importance of maintaining the bond. SSCM should help educate the adoptive parents about the value of the relationship. Experience shows that the bond between a child and new parent(s) is strengthened when they confront the issues of sibling relationships together. The child can then see his/her adoptive parent as someone who is sensitive to his/her needs.

Siblings

A sibling is defined as an individual with whom the child shares one or both parents in common by blood, adoption, marriage, even if the marriage was terminated by death or dissolution.

Practice Guidance

The Child Life History presents a picture of the child, it is important that the information be as complete and accurate as possible in order to select the most appropriate family for the child. If a child has been in foster care for a period of time prior to termination of parental rights, a great deal of the information and documents needed for the Child Life History should already have been gathered. Due to the time sensitive nature of a Child Life History, the Child Life History referral form shall be completed as soon as the child meets the eligibility criteria.

Adoption Assistance

Adoption assistance is funding used to facilitate the adoption of children with special needs who might otherwise not be adopted. Adoption assistance is assistance provided on behalf of an eligible child to offset the costs associated with adopting and meeting the ongoing needs of the child. Adoption assistance can be provided in the form of payments, medical coverage and reimbursement of non-recurring expenses.

Adoption Reunion Registry

The Georgia Adoption Reunion Registry provides services to birth parents, adopted persons, adoptive parents and siblings who are attempting to obtain non-identifying or identifying information from the sealed file.

De-Identified Child Life History

To ensure the unlawful disclosure of protected health information (PHI), it is required to remove from the Child Life History specific identifiers of the individual and of the individual's relatives, household members, and employers. Note, this process is adequate only if DFCS has no actual knowledge that the remaining information could be used to identify the individual. The following identifiers of the individual or of relatives, employers, or household members of the individual, should be removed from the Child Life History:

1. Names
2. All geographic subdivisions smaller than a state, including street address, city, county, precinct, ZIP code, and their equivalent geocodes, except for the initial three digits of the ZIP code if, according to the current publicly available data from the Bureau of the Census:
 - a. The geographic unit formed by combining all ZIP codes with the same three initial digits contains more than 20,000 people; and
 - b. The initial three digits of a ZIP code for all such geographic units containing 20,000 or fewer people is changed to 000
3. All elements of dates (except year) for dates that are directly related to an individual, including birth date, admission date, discharge date, death date, and all ages over 89 and all elements of dates (including year) indicative of such age, except that such ages and elements may be aggregated into a single category of age 90 or older
4. Telephone numbers
5. Vehicle identifiers and serial numbers, including license plate numbers
6. Fax numbers
7. Device identifiers and serial numbers
8. Email addresses
9. Web Universal Resource Locators (URLs)
10. Social security numbers
11. Internet Protocol (IP) addresses
12. Medical record numbers
13. Biometric identifiers, including finger and voice prints
14. Health plan beneficiary numbers
15. Full-face photographs and any comparable images
16. Account numbers

17. Any other unique identifying number, characteristic, or code

18. Certificate/license numbers

Putative Father Registry

The putative father registry is a list of the names of men who have acknowledged paternity of a child by completing the Paternity Acknowledgment form or have indicated the possibility of paternity without acknowledging paternity of the child. The registry allows possible biological but not legal fathers to provide identifying information about themselves, the mother, and the child so these registered men can be notified about adoption proceedings.

Termination of Parental Rights

Termination of Parental Rights is the process for severing all legal rights between a child and his/her parent, except the right of the child to receive child support from his/her parent and inherit from and through his/her parent until a final order of adoption is entered. The child shall maintain the right to pursue any civil actions against his/her parent. The relationship between the child and his/her siblings and extended family remain intact until terminated by final order of adoption. Court orders terminating parental rights shall be without limit as to duration.

Practice Guidance

The purpose of the foster parent consideration staffing is to share Information with the foster parent(s) to assist them in making an informed decision regarding their interest in becoming an adoptive parent to the specific child. If a foster parent is married, both have to be willing to proceed with the adoption of the child and be a party to the petition. If separated both parties will need to be included on the petition to adopt the child or a legal divorce will be obtained prior to being able to proceed with adopting the child as an individual.

When the foster parent(s) has expressed interest in becoming an adoptive resource a foster parent adoption consideration evaluation must be completed to assess the foster parent(s)' ability to meet the long and short term needs of the child. Additionally, the protective capacities demonstrated by the foster parent(s) in relation to the child's particular vulnerabilities should be assessed and take into consideration whether an adoptive placement with the foster parent(s) is in the best interest of the child. For guidance, review the structured narrative guideline available in Georgia SHINES under the Foster Parent Conversion tab. The foster parent adoption consideration evaluation should be used to reassess whether the caregiver(s) continue to be able to meet needs of the child any time there is a major change (e.g., a CPS investigation, policy violation(s), changes in family composition, etc.). If the foster parent(s)' adoption consideration evaluation was not approved and the foster parent(s) filed a grievance the Adoption Exchange, State Adoption Unit must be informed of the grievance.

Adoption Assistance

Adoption Assistance is funding used to facilitate the adoption of children with special needs who might otherwise not be adopted. Adoption assistance is assistance provided on behalf of an eligible child to offset the costs associated with adopting and meeting the on-going needs of the child. Adoption assistance can be provided in the form of payments, medical coverage and reimbursement of non-recurring expenses.

Child Placing Agency (CPA)

A CPA is an agency that provides foster and adoptive placement services for children in foster and adoptive resource homes for individualized care, supervision and oversight. CPAs are responsible for assessing the placement regarding the appropriateness of the room, board and watchful oversight that the prospective foster and adoptive families will provide. The CPA's employees and their foster and adoptive parents work as a team to provide a stabilizing and nurturing environment that promotes safety, well-being and permanency.

Special Needs Determination

A child identified as a child with special needs must meet specific federal and state factors or conditions. To be eligible for Title IV-E adoption assistance, the child must qualify as a child with special needs and Title IV-E eligibility criteria. Procedures

Preparing a Child for Child Specific Recruitment

The Social Services Case Manager (SSCM) will:

1. Help the child understand that months may pass before the right family is found and the adoption process is completed. The worker should make it clear that not receiving a good match immediately does not mean a home will never be found.
2. Share examples of previous recruitment efforts to give the child an opportunity to view materials about children of similar age and background. This can help to reduce fears, spark honest questions, and minimize feelings of isolation.
3. Talk to the child about how he/she would be helping other children by promoting adoption. The child selection for public exposure should be framed as a compliment so that the child can take pride in the fact that he/she is helping others—even if it does not find a family for him/her.
4. Rehearse potential interview questions and answers with the child if the publicity event includes an interview. Discuss the child's interests, best qualities, accomplishments and desire for a family.

5. Work with the caregiver to ensure the child is appropriately groomed, wears comfortable and clean clothes, and is fed and rested.
6. Schedule the session at a time when medications are most effective, if applicable.
7. Discuss with older children how they would like to be described.
8. Keep in mind that other children and adults who already know this child may see the child featured in various child specific recruitment efforts, including photolistings and social media, such as Facebook® and Twitter®. Thoroughly discuss the child's feelings about recruitment, particularly social media, and help the child prepare to respond to possible questions from others who may see the publicity.
9. Utilize the child's therapist, if applicable, as a resource in preparing the child for recruitment.

Recruitment Plan

The SSCM will:

1. Develop a child specific recruitment plan to include:
 - a. A description of how the child has been prepared for the child specific recruitment.
 - b. A detailed plan of what strategies will occur in the next six months to locate an approved adoptive home including, but not limited to:
 - i. Registering the child in photolisting services;
 - ii. Featuring the child in available news and television recruitment activities;
 -  This recruitment activity must be coordinated with the RAC to ensure provisions are made to receive any increased inquiries.
 - iii. Approaching local churches and civic organizations for assistance in identifying families who may be interested in adopting the specific child in question;
 -  This must be coordinated with the RAC to ensure provisions are made to receive any increased inquiries.
 - iv. Networking with private licensed adoption agencies in an effort to locate an adoptive home;
 - v. Facilitating the matching process with an out-of-state inquiry (if the child is in the permanent custody of DFCS); and
 - vi. Facilitating in-state inquiry matching.
2. Upload the child specific recruitment plan in Georgia SHINES External Documentation.
3. Notify the Adoption Exchange, State Adoption Unit and the RAC by email of the completed and uploaded child specific recruitment plan.
4. Update the child specific recruitment plan every six months until an adoptive resource has been identified.

 The updated recruitment plan should include the results of the previous recruitment activities.

8. Notify the Adoption Exchange, State Adoption Unit and the RAC via email of any unselected family evaluation(s) indicating the non-selection reason for each family, if any family sent for consideration is not selected as an adoptive resource for the child.

Practice Guidance

It is critical when preparing a child for adoption to discuss the purpose of child specific recruitment efforts. The child should be encouraged to participate in adoption events that allow them to meet and interact with waiting adoptive families. Caution should be exercised when featuring children in their home community to prevent any possible psychological trauma to the child as a result of being featured.

Family evaluations are supplied to the County Department from the Adoption Exchange, State Adoption Unit. The Adoption Exchange, State Adoption Unit obtains family evaluations from an in-state matching inquiry process. Family evaluations forwarded to the County Department are vetted to ensure the families reflected in the studies are currently available, approved for adoption and registered. Local County Departments should refrain from seeking or accepting family evaluation directly from agencies to eliminate focusing on inquiries that are not available, approved or registered to adopt. If contacted by a Child Placing Agency (CPA) who indicates that a family is interested in adopting a child, the prospective adoptive family's name, CPA name and the name of the child of interest should be forwarded to the Adoption Exchange, State Adoption Unit. If the prospective adoptive family interested in adopting is available, approved and registered to adopt, the Adoption Exchange, State Adoption Unit will forward the family evaluation to the County Department for review.

Photolisting services utilize state, regional and national adoption exchanges, including electronic exchange systems to facilitate orderly and timely in-state and interstate placements. An out-of-state inquiry is usually the result of the photolisting or other child specific recruitment medium initiated by DFCS. Afford the out-of-state family the same consideration as an in-state family.

DFCS allows for a purchase of service payment in the amount of $5,000 per child to out of state licensed private agencies for adoptive placement of a special needs child. Purchase of services can be used when DFCS has no suitable adoptive placement resource for a child or when an out-of-state private agency resource better meets the needs of the child. DFCS resources should be explored but may be considered concurrently with private agency resources. Purchase of services funds may again be requested for a child if the adoptive placement disrupts and another resource has been identified through an out-of-state private agency. Adoptive placements identified through the out-of-state private agency are subject to the ICPC process described in this section (see Field Fiscal Services Costar Manual section 3004: Adoptions Programs: ICPC Foster to Adopt/Adoptive Home Study) and Out of State Adoption Home Study UAS 515), for the procedures to request funds and process purchase of service payments). Placement activities should not begin until the funding request has been approved by the County Department.

In the selection process, reasonable efforts should be made to place siblings in the same adoptive home due to the children’s attachment to siblings and the consequences of separation (see policy 10.20 Foster Care: Preserving Sibling Connections for guidance on maintaining sibling connections). Selection of a particular prospective adoptive family indicates the child’s County Department has obtained sufficient information to move forward with a request for the prospective adoptive family’s agency to present the Child Life History to the family. Selection represents a commitment by the child’s County Department to proceed with placement planning with one prospective adoptive family. The Selection Letter and the Child Life History should only be sent to one prospective adoptive family. Staffing should occur with only one prospective adoptive family. If, for any reason, the decision is made that the placement will not proceed and all parties are properly notified, selection of another prospective adoptive family may proceed as outlined in the above policy and procedures.

Fair Hearing

A hearing that is granted in extraordinary situations where the normal judicial process would be inadequate to secure due process because the person would be harmed or denied his/her rights before a judicial remedy became available (as in deportation or loss of welfare benefits).

Family Evaluation

A comprehensive evaluation of a family for the purpose of determining the suitability of the family as a prospective foster or adoptive resource.

Procedures

Adoption Pre-Placement Staffing

The SSCM will:

1. Discuss and/or review the following items thoroughly during the adoption pre-placement staffing:
 - a. The Child Life History and the family evaluation in terms of the following areas:
 - i. Child vulnerabilities (current and future);
 - ii. Parental capacities of the adoptive resource and the willingness of the prospective adoptive family to accept and meet the child's needs;
 - iii. Supports needed by the child and family during the post placement period:
 1. Medical (Who, if any, are the medical providers, including specialists, physical and occupational therapists, medical equipment providers, etc.? What is the frequency of medical/therapy appointments? Will special medical training be required?)
 2. Educational (What is the child's school placement? Will supportive services be needed? If school transfer is necessary, will transfer information be provided prior to placement?)
 3. Emotional (Who are the therapeutic providers? What are the ongoing therapeutic needs of the child? Will respite and community support services be accessible to the family if needed?)

4. Social (What are the current faith-based practices of the child? Will there be a continuing need for involvement in the community? What extracurricular activities are important to the child?)
 5. Parent groups (What support groups are available in the family's area?)
 6. Financial (What resources are available to meet the child's needs, such as supplemental security income (SSI) or Retirement, Survivors or Disability Insurance (RSDI)? Does the child qualify for adoption assistance benefits? Do the prospective adoptive parent(s) require adoption assistance payments to adopt the child? How soon after adoptive placement will adoption assistance benefits begin? Does the child have any specific needs prior to placement (e.g., clothing, medical equipment, etc.)?)
- b. Need for the child's continued contact with siblings, other birth relatives, foster parents and significant others;
 - c. Provide the pre-adoptive parent(s) with information and guidelines about the possibility of Post Adoption Contact Agreement (see policy 11.15 Adoption: Post Adoption Contact Agreement).
 - d. Any other questions around Child Life History or family evaluation;
 - e. Child's readiness to make the move and/or the length of time needed to prepare the child;

 - g. If the decision is made to proceed with placement:
 - i. Discuss and develop a calendar of tentative dates for pre-placement visitation depending on the time needed to prepare the child.
 - ii. Discuss the length and anticipated number of visits needed. If a sibling placement waiver was granted, visits with siblings and their caretakers should be a part of the pre-placement visits.
 - iii. Discuss the need for overnight visit(s) in the adoptive home prior to final placement.
 - iv. Discuss the need for a meeting and visit in the foster home.
 - v. Discuss the need for a goodbye time with the foster family prior to the final move.

 - viii. The child's SSCM should receive family pictures at this time to use to prepare the child for this specific prospective adoptive family.
 - ix. The family's SSCM should set a time to discuss any additional questions that the family might think of after the staffing.
 - x. Make sure everyone knows what they are expected to do and their time frames. It is important for the family's SSCM to get to know the child and the child to get to know the “new” SSCM during the placement process.

2. Document the pre-placement staffing in Georgia SHINES within three business days:
 - a. Add the date of the adoption pre-placement staffing to the Adoption Information page;
 - b. Record the discussion and the decision. If the decision is made not to proceed, include the specific reasons. If the decision is made to proceed, include the date for placement.

 - a. Provide a copy of the placement schedule to all Case Managers, the prospective adoptive parent(s) and foster parents.
 - b. Negotiate the adoption assistance rate if the child was determined by the Social Services Administration Unit (SSAU) to be eligible for adoption assistance payments (see policy 12.5 Adoption Assistance: Negotiating the Adoption Assistance Agreement).
4. If the decision is made not to proceed with the placement, request the prospective adoptive family return the de-identified Child Life History.

The County Director/Designee will:

1. Notify the Adoption Exchange, State Adoption Unit if the adoptive placement cannot be successfully executed within 90 days of placing the child on adoptive status with the Adoption Exchange, State Adoption Unit.

Preparing the Child for the Selected Adoptive Family

The SSCM will:

1. Move the preparation from general discussion and work around adoption to the specifics concerning the prospective adoptive family selected.
2. Take responsibility for selecting the family.
3. Use the Life Book to discuss the reasons for the adoptive placement.
4. Share pictures of prospective adoptive family and talk about each individual family member, including close extended family and pets.
5. Make numerous visits and have several discussions with the child as necessary.
6. Share the calendar of visiting plans for the child in order that he/she can understand the process and time frames. Explain that there may be some minor changes in the plans but assure him/her that he/she will be involved and informed at all times.
7. Involve the foster parent(s) in the actual adoptive placement:
 - a. Share enough general information about the prospective adoptive family to enable the foster parent(s) to talk with or reassure the child and reinforce the SSCM’s preparation discussions.
 - b. Involve the foster parent(s) in the adoption pre-placement staffing.

- c. Discuss child's reactions with foster parents on a frequent basis during this period.
- d. Discuss thoroughly the planned meetings between the foster and prospective adoptive family.
- e. Remain aware of the foster parent(s)' possible feelings of guilt for not adopting the child and support them in their decision.
- f. Acknowledge the foster parents' feelings around separation and grief in facing the reality that the child is moving and assist them in dealing with these feelings.

Adoption Pre-Placement Visitation

The SSCM will:

1. Make numerous visits with the child and with the foster parent(s) until sufficient preparation has been conducted;
2. Arrange with the prospective adoptive family's Case Worker the date and time of the first pre-placement visit (this should have been tentatively set at the adoption pre-placement staffing);
 -  The pre-placement visit should be scheduled for no more than a few hours, depending on the age of the child as it is an emotionally charged time.
3. Review with the prospective adoptive family the plans, purpose and schedule of the pre-placement visitation which was tentatively set at the adoption pre-placement staffing;
4. Arrange for the prospective adoptive family to arrive in time for the child's SSCM to answer any new questions; and
5. Inform the prospective adoptive parent(s) that the first pre-placement visit should be limited to the prospective adoptive parent(s) and not include any other children or relatives from their family.
6. Make sure that the foster family is comfortable with the visit occurring in their home and that they are supportive of the adoption;
7. Ensure that the prospective adoptive family is comfortable with the plans;
8. Prepare the foster family to show their support of the placement visitation during this first visit as this gives the child permission to begin to relate to the prospective adoptive family;
9. Make arrangements to remain until all parties are comfortable;
10. Prepare and coach the foster family to gradually withdraw from the visit as the child becomes more comfortable with the prospective adoptive family to allow them to have some time alone; and
11. Have the prospective adoptive family share with the child the plans and timeframes for the next visit using the child's placement calendar.
12. If the first pre-placement visit must occur in the office:
 - a. Ensure the child is familiar with the room and comfortable in the setting.
 - b. Make staff aware that the first pre-placement visit is an emotionally charged time for the child and advise them to go about their duties without making a big deal over the child meeting the prospective adoptive family for the first time.

- c. Have another staff person with whom the child is familiar in attendance to be with him/her while the Social Services Case Manager is alone with the prospective adoptive family. If this is not possible, the Social Services Case Manager should meet with the prospective adoptive family at the office and then go to the foster home to get the child.
- d. Ensure the area in the office is comfortable enough for the prospective adoptive family and the child to interact with one another for a period of time.
- e. Stay in the room until the child is comfortable with being left alone with the prospective adoptive family.
- f. Prepare for the prospective adoptive family and child to go outside or to a nearby park to play when the child is ready, if the visiting room is small.
- g. The prospective adoptive family should share with the child the plans and timeframes for the next visit using the child's placement calendar.

Following the Pre-Placement Visit

The family's Case Worker will:

1. Discuss the pre-placement visit with the prospective adoptive family after the pre-placement visit and confirm plans for the next visit.
2. Document the observation and feedback received from the prospective adoptive parent(s).

The child's SSCM will:

1. Maintain close contact with the foster parent(s) after the pre-placement visit to help gauge the child's reaction to the visits.
2. Discuss with the child any feelings or concerns related to the visit.
3. Document the observation and feedback received from the prospective adoptive parent(s), foster parent(s) and child.
4. Assist the child with saying goodbye, once the move date has been set, by:
 - a. Ensuring the child has at least one night with the foster family to say goodbye. Recommend that foster parent(s) include:
 - i. A special time of sharing sad/happy feelings with the foster family and close friends; and
 - ii. Any extended members of the foster family that the child is close to.
 - b. Arranging for the child to say goodbye to friends and teachers if the child is in school and will be changing schools;
 - c. Allowing special time with biological sibling(s) for their good-byes including information on how they are to keep in touch after the move;
 - d. Making time to spend with the child to say special good-byes, and letting the child know he/she is pleased with the adoption placement and feels this is a good move.
 - e. Arranging for the foster family to assist on moving day by helping the pre-adoptive family pack the child's belongings in the car, signifying their approval of the move.

Practice Guidance

The adoption pre-placement staffing is used when the adoptive resource is not the current foster parent(s) who has had the child in their home and usually follows the foster parent(s) declining the option to be considered as an adoptive resource for the child. The adoption pre-placement staffing shall be scheduled by the child's SSCM for the purpose of sharing information with the identified adoptive placement resource to assist the prospective adoptive family in making an informed decision regarding their interest in becoming an adoptive parent to the child. It is important that all involved parties are in attendance to ensure that a viable pre-placement plan is created for the child. Prior to the adoption pre-placement staffing, the SSCM and Social Services Supervisor should discuss the meeting format and decide which segment(s) of the meeting is appropriate (if not all) to have the foster parent(s) in attendance. When making the decision, it should be considered that the foster parent(s) has a lot of information about the child that could be useful.

Pre-placement is the period of time during which the child and prospective adoptive family visit together through the Adoption Placement Signing. Significant holidays must be taken into consideration when scheduling pre-placement visits as holidays are not a good time to plan a move. In the ideal situation, the first pre-placement visit should occur in the foster home. The child needs time between visits to process the experience and deal with the idea of the move. After each visit, adequate time shall be given for discussing what occurred with the child and listening to his/her impressions and feelings. Adequate time shall also be given to review and explore the adoptive family's impressions and to allow for planning of the next visit. Pre-placement visits should not extend beyond two months. The SSCM should consult with the RAC if the pre-placement visitation is going to exceed two months.

The foster parents can be a great help in facilitating a child's move into the adoptive family. The foster parent is a rich resource for the adoptive parent(s) and can provide information that would not be seen by a SSCM who is not in the home with the child. The foster parent(s) can provide information about the child's schedule, eating and sleeping routines, fears, functioning in the family, reaction to situations, etc. The foster parent(s) can also give information on techniques that they have found effective in managing the child's behaviors.

It is important that the SSCM partner with the foster parent during this process. If the foster parent(s) views adoption as a positive move for the child, they will be able to help the child separate from them and easily transition into an adoptive family. Conversely, if the foster parent(s) do not view the adoption as positive, the child may have feelings of guilt over and feel anger toward the adoptive parents/DFCS for taking them away.

The policy and practice discussed in this section are related to an adoptive placement other than the current foster parent(s). A foster parent(s) who has had a child in his/her home for a period of at least 12 months has the option of being considered as an adoptive resource for the child (see policy 11.6 Adoption: Foster Parent Adoption Consideration Evaluation).

Adoptive Status

Adoptive status is the point when a child is legally free to be adopted, an adoptive resource has been identified, physical adoptive placement has occurred, and the adoptive resource has committed to be the child's adoptive parent(s) by signing the placement agreement(s). Placing a child on adoptive status signals recruitment procedures should be halted as a potential adoptive resource has been located for the child.

Child Care Institution (CCI)

Child care institutions provide care, supervision and oversight in a residential setting, including neighborhood-based group homes, campus-based arrangements and self-contained facilities.

Child Placing Agency (CPA)

A CPA is an agency that places children in foster and adoptive resource homes for individualized care, supervision and oversight. Child placing agencies are responsible for assessing the placement regarding the appropriateness of the room, board and watchful oversight that the prospective foster and adoptive families will provide. The CPA's employees and their foster and adoptive parents work as a team to provide a stabilizing and nurturing environment that promotes safety, well-being and permanency.

 - j. Document the Adoption Placement Signing in Georgia SHINES, and send a copy to the pre-adoptive family's Case Manager within ten business days.

Practice Guidance

The Adoption Placement Signing is executed after pre-placement visits are concluded and at the point of physical placement of the child in the adoptive resource home. Signing the Placement Agreement symbolizes the pre-adoptive family's commitment to parent this child. The child signing the Placement Agreement gives tangible evidence of his/her understanding that this is now his/her family. The child needs to hear that the family wants him/her and also needs to verbalize he/she wants the family. The SSCM needs to know ahead of time that a positive statement will be given about the placement by both the child and the pre-adoptive family. The SSCM will be prepared to answer any questions the pre-adoptive family has concerning the child's history. At the request of the pre-adoptive family, the SSCM will allow the pre-adoptive family to review any of the information they cannot recall.

Although permanent custody remains with DFCS until the adoption is finalized, signing the Placement Agreement gives the pre-adoptive family certain responsibilities:

1. May include the child as a dependent on income tax.
2. May include the child on health insurance policies.
3. Must provide for the health, safety and well-being of the child.
4. Must assume all responsibilities for parenting the child.
5. Must notify DFCS in case of serious illness or hospitalization.

Placing a child on adoptive status with the Adoption Exchange, State Adoption Unit signals that the recruitment procedures should be halted as the county department has located a potential adoptive resource for the child. The Adoption Placement Signing will occur regardless of the adoptive parent(s) previous status (i.e., foster parent, relative, etc.).

Adoption Assistance Agreement

This is a legal and binding agreement between the agency and the adoptive parent(s) regarding adoption assistance benefits. It establishes types, duration and amount(s) of benefits, and other agreed upon stipulations. A fully-executed adoption assistance agreement refers to an adoption assistance agreement that was negotiated with the adoptive parent(s), reviewed and discussed with the adoptive parent(s); and all required signatures (adoptive parent(s) and dates.

Termination of Parental Rights

Termination of Parental Rights is the process for severing all legal rights between a child and his/her parent, except the right of the child to receive child support from his/her parent and inherit from and through his/her parent until a final order of adoption is entered. The child shall maintain the right to pursue any civil actions against his/her parent. The relationship between the child and his/her siblings and extended family remain intact until terminated by final order of adoption. Court orders terminating parental rights shall be without limit as to duration.

Adoption Exchange, State Adoption Unit

Within five business days:

1. Review the summary of supervision.
2. Determine if further action or guidance is necessary.

Practice Guidance

Post-placement is the period of time between the signing of the placement agreement and the legal finalization of the adoption. During the post-placement period, it is important that all visits occur in the home to allow for the best assessment of the adjustment of the family as a whole. During the visits, the SSCM shall continuously evaluate the family and interaction as to the following circumstances:

1. The emergence of factors not previously identified (e.g., critical information not recognized by SSCM or family).
2. Inaccurate assessment of family or child (e.g., capability or readiness of family or child to make an adoptive attachment, type of child family can parent).
3. The emergence of unpredictable circumstances.
4. Lack of preparation for placement of either child, family or both.

It is the responsibility of the SSCM during the post-placement period to assist the pre-adoptive family as follows:

1. Help the family cope with their new interactions within the home and community.
2. Refer to resources in the community (see policy 11.13 Adoption: Support Services: Post Adoptive Placement & Post Adoption for a list of available resources).
3. Make a referral to agency resources and/or initiate wraparound services.

4. Assist with ongoing separation and attachment issues.
5. Assist the family with maintaining connections with siblings, other birth relatives, foster parents and significant others.
6. Help the family recognize, accept and manage the needs of the particular child(ren) in the placement.
7. Assist the family to balance the needs of the child versus the needs of the parents.
8. Help the family understand that attachment will not occur immediately.
9. Help the child express and manage unarticulated fears.
10. Help the family members learn to handle questions from extended family, neighbors, friends or community members, including development of a cover story if needed.
11. Assist the family with methods of discipline for the child
12. Help the family use and maintain the Life Book.
13. Help the parents to learn to separate adoption-related issues from normal issues relating to age and development.
14. Encourage families to participate in ongoing training.

Changes to a family's composition can affect the adoption in various ways. It is imperative that family composition changes are reported. The family's evaluation will have to be re-evaluated to determine the effect the change in family composition poses to the child and whether another recommendation will need to be made based on the new family composition. In most circumstances, the SSCM who is making routine child visits in the home is the first to be made aware of the changes and should immediately report it to the Resource Development unit. Once a child is placed on adoptive status, no new placements should be made unless it is to facilitate the placement of a sibling of a child in the home.

The length of time a family spends in the post-placement phase varies depending upon the child involved. The length of the post-placement period can be renegotiated at any point as necessary. The usual length of time is six months; however, the length of time will depend on a number of factors, including:

1. Age of the child
2. Issues/concerns identified pre-placement
3. Needs of the child
4. Adjustment concerns during post-placement

The post-placement supervision for an infant that does not have any physical, psychological or developmental needs can be considerably shorter as long as at least two monthly visits are made. Prior to the finalization of the adoption, it is important that the pre-adoptive family inform the agency of any problems that occur.

If a petition seeking adoption of the child is not filed within six months, the court shall then, and at least semi-annually thereafter as long as the child remains unadopted, review the circumstances of the child to determine what efforts have been made to assure that the child will be adopted (see policy 17.2 Legal: Case Review/Permanency Plan Hearings for information on permanency reviews). The court may then enter such orders as it deems necessary to further the adoption including, but not limited to, another placement.

Requirements

The Division of Family and Children Services (DFCS) will:

1. Within five business days of learning of an adoptive family’s planned move to another state:
 - a. Consult with the Regional Adoption Coordinator (RAC) and the ICPC Administrator; and
 - b. Initiate the Interstate Compact on the Placement of Children (ICPC) process for the placement of a Georgia child into another state for the purpose of adoption.
2. Expedite finalizing the adoption following learning of an adoptive family’s planned move to another state if all of the following circumstances apply:
 - a. The adoptive family’s move is at the conclusion of the post placement period;
 - b. DFCS is prepared to recommend that the child be released to the adoptive family for adoption finalization; and
 - c. Sufficient time exists to complete the adoption finalization process.

Procedures

Family’s Move - At End of Post Placement Period – Case Manager Prepared to Recommend Finalization

If the supervising Social Services Case Manager (SSCM) is prepared to recommend that the child be released to the adoptive family for adoption finalization, the supervising SSCM will:

1. Assist the family in filing the petition before they move to prevent the necessity of meeting a residency requirement in another state; and
2. Submit the required documents to the child's legal county as outlined in policy 11.14 Adoption: Finalizing the Adoption.

The child's legal county will:

1. Expedite processing the request for release and consent to adopt (see policy 11.14 Adoption: Finalizing the Adoption for the procedures on releasing a child to an adoptive family for adoption); and
2. Immediately notify the supervising Case Manager that the documents are ready and the pre-adoptive family can contact their attorney.

In most counties, the family and child can meet with the Superior Court Judge at the time the petition to adopt is filed which will allow their attorney to be the only person required to be present at the final hearing over 60 days later. If the above is possible, there will be no need to initiate the ICPC process.

Family Moves - Case Manager Not Prepared to Recommend Finalization

The SSCM will:

1. Have a consultation with the Regional Adoption Coordinator (RAC) and the ICPC Administrator;
2. If the department received custody of the child by means of voluntary surrender of parental rights by either parent, contact the ICPC Administrator to determine if the state the family is moving to requires a confirming court order. Several states do not recognize voluntary surrenders, so it may be necessary to obtain a confirming court order from the Superior Court in the child's original county of residence (see policy 11.18 Adoption: Placement of Georgia Child Into Another State for the Purpose of Adoption and 17.12 Legal: Voluntary Surrender of Parental Rights);
3. Upload to Georgia SHINES External Documentation for the ICPC Administrator:
 - a. The Child Life History (see policy 11.5 Adoption: Child Life History);
 - b. The family evaluation (see policy 14.10 Resource Development: Initial Family Evaluation); and
 - c. Narratives of the post placement visits to date.
4. Submit the Interstate Compact on the Placement of Children Request to the ICPC Administrator within five business days of the pre-adoptive family's planned move using the procedures outlined in policy 11.18 Adoption: Placement of Georgia Child Into Another State for Adoption Purposes.

ICPC approval is required before the family moves.

Practice Guidance

When DFCS has already completed an adoptive family's evaluation, the family may obtain a copy of the family evaluation (see policy 2.10 Information Management: J.J. v. Ledbetter Parent or Guardian Request for Information for procedures and practice guidance on sharing information with parents). If the family moves to another county in Georgia, see policy 14.24 Resource Development: Inter-County and Inter-Agency Partnerships.

1. Immediately notify the Adoption Exchange, State Permanency Unit any time an actual or suspected family conflict arises that may threaten the adoptive placement.
2. When problems arise, careful assessment and preventive work are required prior to a decision to disrupt the placement.
3. If the decision is made to disrupt the adoptive placement, with the exception of an emergency or a concern regarding the child's safety, a staffing to determine which placement resource can best meet the child's needs is required prior to the removal of a child from the pre-adoptive placement. Staffing participants should include:
 - a. Social Services Case Managers;
 - b. Social Services Supervisors for the child and pre-adoptive family;
 - c. Respective Directors/Designees;
 - d. Regional Adoption Coordinator; and
 - e. Adoption Exchange, State Permanency Unit.
4. Work together with the family to prepare the child for the move.

the disruption to increase effectiveness and lessen emotional turmoil.

The Special Assistant Attorney General (SAAG) shall file a withdrawal of consent to the adoption, indicating the reason(s) for the withdrawal and a motion to dismiss the adoption petition (if one has been filed). The county department will contact the Office of General Counsel to coordinate efforts with the SAAG.

Procedures

Adoptive Placement Conflict

When actual or suspected family conflict arises that may threaten the placement, the Social Services Case Manager will:

1. Staff the case with the Social Services Supervisor and the County Director/Designee.
2. Notify the Adoption Exchange, State Permanency Unit in writing.
3. Request consultation with the Adoption Exchange, State Permanency Unit, if needed.
4. Inform the child's Social Services Case Manager of the concerns/problems.
5. Arrange for the use of any needed and available agency and community resources. If services are unavailable through wrap-around, crisis intervention services are available through the Adoption Exchange, State Permanency Unit (see policy 11.13 Adoption: Support Services: Post Placement and Post Adoption).
6. Discuss and determine, along with the family and the child, which needs are not being met.
7. Identify and support the family's positive coping mechanisms.
8. Along with the adoptive family and the child, identify and prioritize problems and issues:
 - a. Address problems separately to avoid overwhelming anyone; and
 - b. Expectations should be realistic for each individual's capabilities and for desired results.
9. Report allegations of abuse and neglect to Child Protection Services (see policy 3.24 Intake: Mandated Reporters and 14.21 Resource Development: Actions During Special Investigations for procedures and practice guidance).

Adoptive Placement Disruption

If it is determined that it would be in the best interest of the child and/or family that the child is removed from the adoptive home (disruption) the Social Services Case Manager will:

1. Notify the Adoptions Exchange, State Permanency Unit in writing of the disruption. If the situation is such that immediate removal of the child from the home is necessary, the initial notification shall be by phone to the Adoption Exchange, State Permanency Unit, with a follow-up in writing.
2. Request a consultation with the Adoptions Exchange, State Permanency Unit.

In the event of a possible disruption or disruption where the Affidavit of Consent to Adopt has been sent, the supervising agency will:

1. Notify the child's legal county, which will have the SAAG for the child's legal county to immediately prepare and file:
 - a. A withdrawal of consent to the adoption, indicating the reasons for the withdrawal; and
 - b. A motion to dismiss the adoption petition (if one has been filed).
2. Notify the Office of General Counsel of the agency's request to the SAAG to withdraw the consent to adoption and prepare a motion to dismiss the adoption petition. The Office of General Counsel will coordinate efforts with the SAAG.

If the disruption involves an ICPC child, see policy 11.20 Adoption: Disruption of Interstate Compact on the Placement of Children \(ICPC\) Child.

Practice Guidance

The Social Services Case Manager should be aware that the following patterns can be observed as they occur in a family moving toward a disruption:

1. The sense of discomfort experienced at the time of placement does not diminish, but heightens.
2. The family over exaggerates the child's behavior or the excessive care he/she requires.
3. There is an increasing sense of frustration and diffused anger.
4. Scapegoating occurs as the family's anger focuses on the adoptive child(ren).
5. Family system does not incorporate the adopted child as anticipated by the family or Social Services Case Manager.

It is usually best for the family to tell the child about the disruption. The Social Services Case Manager must help the family understand and prepare for the discussion with the child. The Social Services Case Manager should be present when the child is told of the disruption. The child and families must be dissuaded from placing blame (this may need to be emphasized several times by the Social Services Case Manager). The child needs to be able to express his/her feelings about the disruption and move. The child should be told that the family and Social Services Case Manager also feel sad, disappointed and often angry. The child may have feelings of relief and should be helped not to feel guilty, if this is the case.

Placement of choice, after disruption, is usually another pre-adoptive home; however, an alternate choice would be to use an adoption legal risk home where the child may not have to move more than once. Reasonable efforts should be made to place siblings in the same foster or adoptive home due to the children's attachment to siblings and the consequences of separation (see policy 11.3 Adoption: Placement with Siblings for guidance on maintaining sibling connections).

The child may need daily contact from the Social Services Case Manager for a period of time following the disruption. The Social Services Case Manager must ensure that the child does not feel abandoned. Depending on the circumstances, it may be advisable for the child to enter therapy at this time.

The pre-adoptive family may deny negative or sad feelings once the child leaves and needs to face and deal with their feelings of failure. The Social Services Case Manager must help the family recognize that a disruption is a traumatic experience for everyone involved. The pre-adoptive family must be able to deal with the reality of the disruption. Disruptions do not automatically make a family ineligible for consideration for other children in the future.

Adoption Legal Risk Home

An adoptive resource registered with the Adoption Exchange, State Adoption Unit for placement consideration of children whose parental rights have not yet been terminated or the termination is under appeal. The child’s permanency plan and comprehensive family assessment serve as one of the bases for decision making when placing a child into a legal risk home.

Parent support meetings are also provided. Agency and self-referrals are accepted.

Parents are required to pre-register their youth for the program since each site is limited to 30 participants. For more information on the ATEAM program, contact:

 - a. Transportation to and from the program is their responsibility;
 - b. They are required to pre-register their youth for the program as it each site is limited to 30 participants; and
 - c. Parent support meetings are also provided

Crisis Intervention Team

The most stressful times for families are those when family members are being gained or lost. It is reasonable to expect stress early in the adoptive placement and as finalization approaches. Since adoption is a life-long process, crisis can occur after finalization occurs. The Social Services Administration Unit contracts with a private agency whose goal is to preserve adoptive placements by providing crisis intervention services to families with a potential for disruption or dissolution of an adoptive placement or finalization. A team of skilled individuals work with families to assess and connect them to needed community resources. The services provided by the contract agency are short-term and are not meant to replace community services. Their function is to help families navigate these systems during challenging and stressful times. Referrals are accepted statewide.

The Social Services Case Manager (in a non-finalized adoption) or the adoption assistance Social Services Case Manager (in a finalized adoption) will

1. Initiate crisis intervention services for a family in a pre-adoptive or post adoptive stage by:
 - a. Completing and forwarding the Crisis Intervention Team referral information to the Social Services Administration Unit for processing;
 - b. Securing the appropriate release of information form prior to the contract agency's initial contact with the family;
 - c. Providing copies of psychological and/or psychiatric evaluations and the Child Life History at the time of referral to the contract agency;
 - d. Informing the family that the contract agency may be traveling substantial distances, and it is important that all family members be present for the initial home visit;
 - e. Advising the family to take necessary steps to minimize disruptions during the initial home visit (e.g., eat dinner and complete homework beforehand; allow the answering machine to pick up phone calls, etc.); and
 - f. Exercising his/her own judgment in determining if the family would benefit from his/her presence at the initial home visit.
2. Consult with the State Office as needed.

Practice Guidance

Adoption is a lifelong commitment by both the adoptive parent(s) and the adoptee. At all stages throughout his/her life, the adoptee and the adoptive family may have reoccurring issues around the adoption. It is vital that the agency be available to them whenever needed. The Regional Adoption Coordinator should be engaged in an exploration of availability of post-adoption services and resources when families call with a crisis or need.

 - a. Obtain the Social Services Supervisor's signature of approval.

 - ii. Regional Accounting; and

iii. SSAU.

6. Prepare the Georgia SHINES adoption case record to be retained, sealed and locked within 30 days of finalizing the adoption (see policy 2.2 Information Management: Adoption Case Record).

Practice Guidance

Careful work must be done with the adopting family to help them understand the importance of a child's given name. Adopting parents should retain the child's original first and middle names. A family's acceptance of a child's given name symbolically demonstrates acceptance of the child's birth history and identity; therefore, special consideration must be given to changing a child's name at the point of finalization. There are instances where the adoptive family will retain the child's first birth name and opt to give the child a family middle name in an effort to retain the child's original identity and also bond the child with the new family.

A copy of the petition to adopt will be sent to the Social Services Administrative Unit by the Superior Court. If the adoption petition is received by the County Department, it shall be forwarded to the Adoption Exchange, State Adoption Unit. The Superior Court will send a copy of the final disposition on the petition to the Adoption Exchange, State Adoption Unit.

The SSCM will be sure the family is aware they must inform the supervising agency when the finalization has occurred. The supervising agency will inform the child's county of the finalization date.

3. The in Georgia SHINES each discussion with the pre-adoptive parent(s), adoptive parent(s), birth parent(s), birth relative(s), and child (if age appropriate) about the post adoption contact agreement.

Practice Guidance

A post adoption contact agreement is a voluntary written agreement between the pre-adoptive or adoptive parent(s) and birth relative(s) to permit continuing contact between the birth relative(s) and the child. If the adopted or to-be-adopted child is 14 years of age or older, the child is required to be a party to the post adoption contact agreement. The agreement can include, but is not limited to, provisions about birth relative(s) visitation with the child, sharing of information about the child or sharing of information about the birth relative(s). The post adoption agreement is not exclusive to the birth parent(s) but can include other biological relatives. A biological father, who is/was not also a legal father, and his relative(s), can also enter into a post adoption contact agreement. The post adoption contact agreement can be enforced, modified and/or terminated by the court that granted the petition for adoption. DFCS doesn't have the authority to enforce a post adoption contact agreement. If the birth relative(s) and/or the pre-adoptive or adoptive parent(s) desire to enter into a post adoption contact agreement, it is their responsibility to contact their attorney for further guidance.

During adoption pre-placement staffing, the SSCM and the pre-adoptive parent(s) should thoroughly go over the benefits and challenges of entering into such an agreement (see policy 11.8 Adoption: Adoption Pre-Placement Staffing & Visitation). The SSCM should provide any answers that the pre-adoptive family may have about the birth family, ensuring only to disclose information permitted by HIPAA. The pre-adoptive parent(s) should be provided the opportunity to discuss this matter separately from DFCS and provide a decision to DFCS prior to the finalization of the adoption. While preparing the birth family for adoption, the SSCM should discuss the post adoption contact agreement with the birth parent(s). The SSCM should support the birth family in making their decision by answering any questions and creating a benefit and challenge list. The birth parent(s) and relatives should make the decision separate from the SSCM; however, they should inform the SSCM of their decision.

Occasionally, when adoption is not voluntary on behalf of the birth parent(s), the birth relative(s) may direct their feelings of anger toward the adoptive parent(s). Not only are these feelings misplaced, it could diminish the possibility of entering into a post adoption contact agreement with the adoptive parent(s) or have an adverse impact on the parameters of the agreement. Besides the obvious benefits to the child, this is just one more reason birth relative(s) and adoptive parent(s) should develop a partnership. The SSCM should support and encourage this supportive relationship by setting up positive interactions between both parties whenever possible.

While children are in foster care, the SSCM is also responsible for fostering the bond between siblings through visitation, discussion and other means. However, often times, after the adoption is finalized, the adoptive parent(s) doesn't sustain the same level of commitment for various reasons. The post adoption contact agreement can be a very powerful tool in maintaining sibling connections, as it can be developed to support contact between siblings' post adoption.

5. Register the Child Life History with the Adoption Exchange, State Adoption Unit under his/her legal name given by the adoptive parent(s) (see policy 11.5 Adoption: Child Life History).
6. Discontinue adoption assistance benefits following adoption dissolution. See policy 12.9 Adoption Assistance: Continuation, Renegotiation or Termination of Adoption Assistance Benefits for guidelines on terminating adoption assistance payments following dissolution of an adoption.

Practice Guidance

When it is necessary for an adopted child to enter care, it is best that only temporary custody be given to the county department to allow for a thorough evaluation of the situation and the establishment of an appropriate case plan to attempt to keep the adoption from dissolving.

Adoption dissolution is the surrender or termination of parental rights of the adoptive parents of a child on whom an adoption has been finalized in court. The dissolution of an adoption is a very serious matter. DFCS shall not accept a voluntary surrender from the adoptive family unless there is reasonable knowledge that the child will be placed again into an adoptive home. Adoptive parents are legal parents once the adoption has been finalized. The agency does not retain any legal responsibility for the child once the adoption is finalized. Dissolution will renew separation, loss and rejection issues for the child. The child often blames him/herself for the dissolution, which, may or may not be valid. The child may be relieved that the adoption dissolved and feel guilty about these feelings. It would be unusual for the child not to need therapy following dissolution. The adoptive family may express feelings of anger toward the agency and be unwilling to work in partnership with the agency towards resolution of problems. The adoptive family usually has great feelings of guilt that the adoption did not work and that they feel relieved it is over.

3. Ensure the adoption assistance funding source determination is made by the Revenue Maximization Unit (Rev Max) and documented in Georgia SHINES (see policy 12.2 Adoption Assis-

3. Request missing information or clarification needed from the county department with a deadline. Failure to meet the deadline will result in a denial of the request.
4. Submit a request for a child specific addendum to the ICPC family evaluation to the receiving state’s ICPC Administrator.
5. Sign the Interstate Compact on the Placement of Children Request (ICPC 100A).
6. Prepare the packet for the receiving state.
7. Forward the packet to the ICPC Administrator in the adoptive family’s state.

Approval Decision for Placement

If The Receiving State Approved Placement

The ICPC Administrator will:

1. Upload the following documents in Georgia SHINES External Documentation:
 - a. The child-specific family evaluation addendum (see policy 14.14 Resource Development: Family Evaluation Addendums);
 - b. The signed Interstate Compact on the Placement of Children Request (ICPC 100A) from the receiving state's ICPC Administrator indicating the approval of the placement; and

- c. The travel waiver allocating funding for the child to be placed out of state (see policy 15.7 Interstate Compact on the Placement of Children: ICPC Related Travel Expenses).
2. Notify the Social Services Case Manager and County Director/Designee that permission was granted and placement can proceed.

The Social Services Case Manager will:

1. Proceed with placement planning and present the Child Life History to the adoptive family (see policy 11.5 Adoption: Child Life History).
2. Within five business days of the adoptive placement:
 - a. Complete the Interstate Compact Report on Child's Placement Status (ICPC 100B) in Georgia SHINES.

The receiving state will not begin post placement services until the Interstate Compact Report on Child's Placement Status (ICPC 100B) is received.

- b. Upload in Georgia SHINES External Documentation any current/updated information (i.e., court orders, medical, psychological, etc.) for the child. For each document uploaded, review the External Documentation Detail Page in Georgia SHINES, associate each document with the relevant person(s) by selecting the person's name in the Person's section, check the ICPC document box and clearly indicate the type of document.
3. Notify the assigned ICPC Administrator via email (icpc@dhs.ga.gov) of the adoptive placement and ensure the information has been uploaded in Georgia SHINES External Documentation. In addition, a manual case alert may be added in Georgia SHINES from the Case-To-Do List page.

When the receiving state has approved a prospective adoptive resource, the sending state makes the final decision whether to use the approved prospective adoptive resource. The ICPC approval by the receiving state is valid for six months from the date the Interstate Compact Report on Child's Placement Status (ICPC 100B) was signed by the receiving state.

If the Receiving State Denied Placement

The ICPC Administrator will:

1. Upload in Georgia SHINES External Documentation the signed Interstate Compact on the Placement of Children Request (ICPC 100A) obtained from the receiving state indicating the denial of the placement and reason(s) for denial.
2. Notify the Social Services Case Manager and County Director/Designee that the prospective adoptive placement resource was denied by the receiving state and placement cannot proceed.

The Social Services Case Manager will:

1. Consult with the Social Services Supervisor and the County Director/Designee to determine if reconsideration of the denial by the receiving state is appropriate, and if so, which of the following options to use:
 - a. Request that the receiving state reconsider the denial of the adoptive placement without a new family evaluation. The Social Services Case Manager will send any clarifying information that would be useful in making a decision to Georgia's ICPC Administrator who will forward it to the sending state's ICPC Administrator; or i If the receiving state's ICPC office chooses to overturn the denial it can be based on review of the evidence presented by DFCS and any other new information deemed appropriate; or

- b. Request a new family evaluation to re-examine the reason(s) for the original denial of the prospective adoptive placement if the reason(s) for the denial has been corrected (i.e., moved to a new residence with adequate bedrooms).

i The receiving state is not obligated to accept the new family evaluation request, but it may agree to proceed with a new family evaluation if it believes the reason(s) for denial has been corrected.

i DFCS may request a reconsideration of the denial of the prospective adoptive placement within 90 days from the date the Interstate Compact on the Placement of Children Request was signed by the receiving state. After 90, days there is nothing that precludes DFCS from requesting a new family evaluation.

Post Placement Reports

The ICPC Adoption Administrator will:

1. Upload to Georgia SHINES External Documentation the post placement reports upon receipt from the receiving agency in the pre-adoptive family's state.
2. Notify the Social Services Case Manager of receipt of the post placement reports by sending a Georgia SHINES alert.

The Social Services Case Manager will:

1. Obtain the post placement reports from Georgia SHINES External Documentation and review for accuracy.

i A mandatory minimum of six months post placement period is required.

Recommendation for Release and Consent to Adopt

The Social Services Case Manager will:

1. Request the recommendation to release the child to the pre-adoptive family for adoption from the receiving state's Case Manager after at least six months of post placement supervision.

i The recommendation will be sent by the receiving state's Case Manager to their ICPC Administrator who will forward it to Georgia's ICPC Administrator. Georgia's ICPC Administrator will receive and upload to Georgia SHINES External Documentation and notify the Social Services Case Manager.

2. Upon receipt of the recommendation of consent to adopt from the ICPC Administrator, the Social Services Case Manager will provide the following documents to the ICPC Administrator:

- a. Cover letter (identifying the prospective adoptive family’s attorney’s name, address and phone number)
- b. Name Change Following Adoption (see policy 11.14 Adoption: Finalizing the Adoption)
- c. Certified birth certificate (see policy 11.2 Adoption: Putative Father Registry & Birth Certificates)
- d. Placement Agreement (see policy 11.9 Adoption: Adoption Placement Signing)
- e. Adoption Assistance Agreement (see policy 12.6 Adoption Assistance: Reviewing and Signing the Adoption Assistance Agreement)
- f. Affidavit of Disclosure for Adoption (see policy 11.9 Adoption: Adoption Placement Signing)
- g. Putative father registry certificate (see policy 11.2 Adoption: Putative Father Registry & Birth Certificates)
- h. Birth Family Background Information for Child (see policy 11.1 Adoption: Adoption Preparation)

The ICPC Administrator will:

1. Upon receipt of the recommendation for the child to be released to the pre-adoptive family for adoption finalization, contact Social Services Case Manager for concurrence.
2. Upon notification of concurrence from the Social Services Case Manager:
 - a. Prepare the Affidavit of Consent to Adoption and forward it to the agency in the pre-adoptive family’s state or directly to the pre-adoptive family’s attorney; and
 - b. Send a copy of the cover letter to the receiving state’s ICPC Administrator, Case Manager and the County Director/Designee.

The pre-adoptive family’s agency will send the legal papers to the pre-adoptive family’s attorney in order for the adoption petition to be filed. Occasionally, agencies in other states send legal papers directly to the county department. Forward any papers received to Georgia’s ICPC Unit for processing.

If Adoption Finalization Occurs In the Receiving State

Following finalization of the adoption, the ICPC Administrator will:

1. Obtain from the receiving state’s ICPC Administrator:
 - a. A certified copy of the final decree of adoption; and
 - b. Interstate Compact on the Placement of Children Report on Child’s Placement Status (ICPC 100B) indicating that the adoption has been finalized in the receiving state and ICPC services are terminated; and
2. Notify the Social Services Case Manager and the County Director/Designee that the adoption is final.

The Social Services Case Manager will:

1. Update the legal status to reflect the adoption finalization.

 Updating the legal status in Georgia SHINES will notify the Adoption Exchange/State Permanency Unit by a system generate alert.

2. Within ten business days of the adoption finalization, complete and sign the Adoption Assistance Memorandum indicating adoption finalization and obtain the Social Services Supervisors signature of approval.

 The Adoption Assistance Memorandum should indicate the date of adoption finalization and the child's new name as it should appear on the Medicaid card.

3. Forward the signed and approved Adoption Assistance Memorandum to:

- a. Rev Max;
- b. Regional Accounting; and
- c. Social Services Administrative Unit.

4. Prepare and submit the record for sealing and retention (see policy 2.3 Information Management: Adoption Case Record for the procedures for preparing an adoption record for permanent retention and to be sealed).

 When Juvenile Court is the sending agency, the county department will submit a copy of the final decree of adoption along with a copy of the Interstate Compact on the Placement of Children Report on Child's Placement Status to the Juvenile Court. Juvenile Court will notify the county department of the termination of jurisdiction.

Practice Guidance

Georgia's ICPC Unit is the county department's point of contact in the ICPC process. The ICPC Unit utilizes Georgia SHINES to gather information for the packet. For each document included in the ICPC adoption packet on the Georgia SHINES External Documentation Detail Page, clearly identify the type of document, check the ICPC document box and associate the document with the relevant person. When communicating with the Georgia ICPC Unit, ensure to include the child's full name, adoptive placement resource name and Georgia SHINES/ICPC case number. Georgia's DFCS staff is restricted from communicating with the receiving state's child welfare agency/child placing agency (CPA) until the adoptive placement is approved through the ICPC process.

When a child is already placed with an approved ICPC pre-adoptive family in another state on foster care status at the point the child becomes legally free for adoption, an ICPC adoption packet shall be submitted to the Georgia ICPC Administrator. The ICPC Administrator will request from the receiving state an updated home study, which would reflect information surrounding the adoption. At that point, authorization can be provided to the other state to proceed with the Adoption Placement Signing (see policy 11.9 Adoption: Adoption Placement Signing).

Following are a few key ICPC points to take into consideration when submitting an ICPC request:

1. All states do not recognize degrees of familial relations beyond the first degree.
2. All states may not accept IMPACT certification.
3. Proof of paternity (legitimation order, DNA results or child support court order) is required for all requests on fathers or paternal relatives.

When custody has been given by a Juvenile Court Judge to relatives who reside out of the state of Georgia for the purpose of adoption, there has usually been ICPC correspondence to secure a family evaluation. The county department will usually know prior to the hearing that the relatives are recommended and that it is probable that custody will be granted. The county department may assist the court by completing the Interstate Compact on the Placement of Children Request and have it available for the Juvenile Court Judge to sign.

DFCS allows for a purchase of service payment in the amount of $5,000 per child to a licensed CPA agency for adoptive placement of a special needs child. Purchase of services can be used when DFCS has no suitable adoptive placement resource for a child or when an out-of-state CPA resource better meets the needs of the child. DFCS' resources should be explored but may be considered concurrently with CPA's resources. Purchase of services funds may again be requested for a child if the placement disrupts and adoption dissolution occurs and another resource has been identified through an out-of-state CPA. Adoptive placements identified through an out-of-state CPA are subject to the ICPC process described in this section. See Field Fiscal Services Costar Manual section 3004 Adoptions Programs: ICPC Foster to Adopt/Adoptive Home Study and Out of State Adoption Home Study, for the procedures to request funds and process purchase of service payments. Placement activities should not begin until the funding request has been approved by the county department.

Adoption Assistance

Adoption Assistance is funding used to facilitate the adoption of children with special needs who might otherwise not be adopted. Adoption assistance is assistance provided on behalf of an eligible child to offset the costs associated with adopting and meeting the ongoing needs of the child. Adoption assistance can be provided in the form of payments, medical coverage and reimbursement of non-recurring expenses.

Child Placing Agency (CPA)

A CPA is an agency that places children in foster and adoptive resource homes for individualized care, supervision and oversight. CPAs are responsible for assessing the placement regarding the appropriateness of the room, board and watchful oversight that the prospective foster and adoptive families will provide. The CPA's employees and their foster and adoptive parents work as a team to provide a stabilizing and nurturing environment that promotes safety, well-being and permanency.

Pre-Adoptive Family

Pre-adoptive family means the permanent placement of a child in an adoptive resource placement for the purpose of adoption but adoption has not occurred.

Receiving State

A receiving state is the state to which a child is sent, brought, or caused to be sent or brought, whether by public authorities or private persons or agencies and whether for placement with private agencies or persons.

Sending Agency

A member state, officer or employee thereof; a subdivision of a member state, or officer or employee thereof; a court of a member state; a person, corporation, association, charitable agency or other entity having legal authority over a child who sends, brings, or causes to be sent or brought any child to another state.

Procedures

ICPC Adoption Placement Request

The ICPC Administrator will:

1. Review the packet to determine if all necessary information and legal documents are included and request any missing information when a referral is received by the ICPC Unit.

3. Send a copy of the signed Interstate Compact on the Placement of Children Request (ICPC 100A) to the contract agency (if applicable).

Post Placement Supervision and Reports

The ICPC Administrator will:

1. Upon receipt of the Interstate Compact on the Placement of Children Report on Child’s Placement Status (ICPC 100B) indicating the placement has occurred, input the ICPC supervision request in Georgia SHINES within two business days of being notified of the placement by:
 - a. Completing a non-incident Child Protection Services (CPS) Intake, type ICPC;

3. Assign the identified Social Services Case Manager as the secondary worker.
4. On a quarterly basis, retrieve from Georgia SHINES External Documentation post placement supervision report completed by the Social Services Case Manager and forward to the sending state’s ICPC Administrator.

The sending state makes the final determination of whether to use the approved prospective adoptive resource. Only if the sending state decides to use the approved placement will the ICPC Administrator receive the Interstate Compact on the Placement of Children Report on Child’s Placement Status (ICPC100B). The ICPC approval is valid for six months from the date the Interstate Compact Report on Child's Placement Status (ICPC 100B) was signed by the receiving state.

The Social Services Case Manager will

1. Make and document in Georgia SHINES purposeful monthly contact with the child (see policy 10.18 Foster Care: Purposeful in Foster Care for practice guidance on purposeful contact); and
2. Refer to policy 15.5 Interstate Compact on the Placement of Children \(ICPC\): ICPC Placement Supervision for guidelines on supervision and supervision reports for children placed into Georgia.

The ICPC Administrator will:

1. Forward the recommendation to the sending state's ICPC Administrator.
2. Request that the sending agency send the Interstate Compact on the Placement of Children Report on Child's Placement Status and final adoption decree.

If these documents are received in the county office, they should immediately be sent to the ICPC Administrator.

Finalization, Closing and Submitting the File

The ICPC Administrator will:

1. Upon receipt of the following documents from the sending state ICPC Administrator, upload to Georgia SHINES External Documentation:
 - a. The final documents and adoption decree; and
 - b. Interstate Compact on the Placement of Children Report on Child's Placement Status indicating that the adoption has been finalized and the ICPC services are terminated.
2. Notify the Social Services Case Manager and the County Director/Designee of receipt of the information.

The Social Services Case Manager will:

1. Prepare the Georgia SHINES case record to be retained, sealed and locked within 30 days of finalizing the adoption (see policy 2.2 Information Management: Adoption Case Record).

Practice Guidance

If a request from an out-of-state agency comes directly to the county, it should be immediately forwarded to the ICPC Administrator with no other action taken. If a family approaches the county requesting that an adoptive family evaluation be completed for an out-of-state agency, inform the family that evaluations for out-of-state children are done by the county department and/or a private agency under contract with the state. The contract agency will only complete family evaluations if a specific child is identified and the complete ICPC packet has been submitted by the out-of-state agency holding legal custody of the child. The ICPC packet must contain evidence that the rights of both parents have been terminated or surrendered. If there is no specific child identified, refer the family to the Office of Regulatory Services (404) 657-5562 for a list of current licensed private adoption agencies who can complete the required family evaluation.

The receiving state is required to complete and return the results of a family evaluation within 60 days after the state receives the request. The education and training of foster parents is not required to be completed within the 60-day timeframe.

If DFCS receives a request for an adoptive family evaluation and the out-of-state child is already in the home by means of an approved relative or foster care ICPC placement and DFCS is already supervising the placement, the Social Services Case Manager will continue to supervise that placement until notified by the ICPC Administrator that adoption is final and supervision can discontinue.

When a pre-adoptive family moves to Georgia prior to finalizing the adoption and the child is in their home, DFCS will adhere to the ICPC process. If the family was working with a private agency in their former state, they will usually be referred to a private agency in Georgia to complete the adoption process. If the family was working with the state agency in their former state, DFCS will usually be asked to complete the process. Depending on the point in the adoption process at which the move occurs, the family may or may not be returning to their former state to finalize the adoption.

11.20 Disruption of an Interstate Compact on the Placement of Children (ICPC) Child

	Georgia Division of Family and Children Services Child Welfare Policy Manual
	Chapter:	(11) Adoption
	Policy Title:	Disruption of an Interstate Compact on the Placement of Children (ICPC) Child
	Policy Number:	11.20	Previous Policy Number(s):	110.11
	Effective Date:	August 2015	Manual Transmittal:	2015-07

Codes/References

N/A

Requirements

The Division of Family and Children Services (DFCS) will:

1. Be responsible for arranging for the return of the child when an Interstate Compact on the Placement of Children (ICPC) placement disrupts, if DFCS is the sending state; and conversely
2. Return the child to Georgia within five business days following the request from the receiving state.

Following approval and placement of the child, if the receiving state ICPC Administrator determines that the adoptive placement no longer meets the individual needs of the child, including the child's safety, permanency, health, well-being, and mental, emotional, and physical development, then the receiving state ICPC Administrator may request that the sending state arrange for the return of the child as soon as possible or propose an alternative placement in the receiving state. That alternative placement resource must be approved by the receiving state before placement is made. Return of the child shall occur within five business days from the date of notice for removal unless otherwise agreed upon between the sending and receiving state ICPC offices. The receiving state request for removal may be withdrawn if the sending state arranges services to resolve the reason for the requested removal and the receiving and the sending state ICPC Administrators mutually agree to the plan.

Procedures

Receiving Agency

1. Notify their ICPC Administrator as soon as the disruption is apparent.
2. Keep the ICPC Administrator informed at each step along the way.
3. Submit a complete narrative regarding the circumstances of the disruption.
4. Submit the Interstate Compact Report on Child's Placement Status (ICPC 100B) indicating the child returned to the sending state and ICPC services terminated.

i When the disruption involves a child from Georgia placed in another state, the Interstate Compact Report on Child's Placement Status (ICPC 100B) will be completed in Georgia SHINES.

- Send a copy of the child protection services (CPS) investigation to the ICPC Administrator, if applicable.

Sending Agency

- Provide for the cost of transportation for returning the child to the sending state unless the receiving agency indicates that the pre-adoptive family will do so.

i In a case where there is the potential of risk of harm to the child, the receiving state must follow the existing CPS protocol for the state regarding the protection of the child until he/she can be returned to the sending state.

Practice Guidance

The two local agencies may already have discussed the possibility of disruption. It should be unusual for a disruption to take everyone by surprise unless it was a case of abuse and/or neglect.

Receiving State

The state to which a child is sent, brought, or caused to be sent or brought, whether by public authorities or private persons or agencies and whether for placement with private agencies or persons.

Sending Agency

A member state, officer or employee thereof; a subdivision of a member state, or officer or employee thereof; a court of a member state; a person, corporation, association, charitable agency or other entity having legal authority over a child who sends, brings, or causes to be sent or brought any child to another state.

Article VII of the Interstate Compact on the Placement of Children

Requirements

The Division of Family and Children Services (DFCS) will:

1. Refer individuals who contact DFCS regarding an out-of-state adoptive placement for a private or independent adoption to the Interstate Compact on the Placement of Children (ICPC) Unit; and
2. Comply with ICPC requirements for processing of private or independent adoptions across state lines.

Procedures

Georgia ICPC Administrator

1. Review the ICPC request and packet received from the sending private agency/attorney for quality and completeness and request any missing information.

Agency/Attorney Responsible for the Proposed Placement

1. Prepare an ICPC packet in compliance with Georgia law and ICPC regulations:

 Each ICPC packet will consist of three copies of all documents (separated and collated); identical information should be in each packet. If siblings are being placed, there must be a separate Interstate Compact on the Placement of Children Report Request (ICPC 100A) and ICPC packet for each child.

- a. The Interstate Compact on the Placement of Children Report Request (ICPC 100A) (four copies - the original plus three copies) should include:
 - i. Child's name (consistent with the name on birth records or explanation or proof of why name is different);
 - ii. Child's date of birth (consistent with birth records);
 - iii. If the birth mother has already voluntarily surrendered her parental rights to an agency, the signature of the sending agency.
 - iv. The signature, as required by some states, of the attorney next to the signature of the birth parent as the responsible party in the event the placement were to disrupt and he/she would be responsible for the care of the newborn until the child was placed either back with the birth mother or an agency, depending on the language in the voluntary surrender;
 - v. Prospective adoptive parent(s) name, address, phone number and email address;
 - vi. Where the adoption will be finalized; and
 - vii. The sending agency's complete address, phone number and email address.
- b. Cover Letter (a request for approval) should include:
 - i. Identification of the child, birth parent(s) and the prospective adoptive parent(s);

 - b. If it is an independent adoption, the sending agency or attorney shall provide a copy of the final judgment of adoption and the Interstate Compact on the Placement of Children Report on Child's Placement Status (ICPC 100B) form indicating closure within 30 business days of the finalized adoption to the Georgia ICPC Administrator.

Practice Guidance

ICPC requirements for the processing of private agency or independent adoptions exist to ensure protection and services to children and families involved in executing adoptions across state lines and to ensure that the placement is in compliance with all applicable requirements. These requirements apply to children being placed for private adoption or independent adoption whether being placed by a private agency or by an Independent Adoption. All requests regarding a proposed independent adoption of a child in Georgia or expected to be born in Georgia by a family residing in another state, or of a child in another state or expected to be born in another state by a family residing in Georgia, must be made directly to the ICPC Unit. If the request is made directly to the county department, the person shall be referred to the ICPC Unit.

For placement of a child by a private agency for independent adoption, the private agency shall be legally responsible for the child, including return of the child to the sending state if the adoption does not occur during the period of placement. The private agency shall also be legally and financially responsible for the child absent a contractual agreement to the contrary or a statement by the prospective adoptive parent(s) or parents that they will assume financial responsibility.

ICPC does not apply to an adoption by a stepparent, grandparent, adult brother or sister, uncle, aunt or guardian of a child when the child is placed directly by the parent(s).

If the adoptive placement is legal risk, some states will only approve it if petition to terminate has been filed and included with the packet. Individual states may have additional requirements. Check with an attorney in the receiving state, preferably before legal surrenders are signed.

The ICPC request packet for approval will be sent to the receiving state by first class USPS mail, unless the attorney or private agency includes a pre-paid envelope/package (FedEx and UPS) completed in full with billing number or an attorney can make arrangements for a courier service to pick up the ICPC packet for delivery to the receiving state’s ICPC office. Placement may not occur until the sending and receiving state ICPC Administrators have both approved.

3. Deny the petition and commit the child to DFCS or a licensed child-placing agency;

 - a. The cost of the guardian ad litem is the responsibility of the county.
 - b. The guardian ad litem represents the best interest of the child.
 - c. The guardian ad litem may file an appeal of the judge’s decision.

Practice Guidance

An independent adoption involves the adoption of a child who is not in state custody or the custody of a licensed adoption agency. This includes adoptions by a non-relative/third party, stepparent, or by a relative. It is required that a family evaluation be completed on the prospective adoptive family by an evaluator prior to placement of a child for the purpose of adoption with a third party, who is neither a stepparent nor a relative, and for such family evaluation to recommend placement. A family evaluation, for purpose of a third party adoption, must assess the petitioner's physical health, emotional maturity, financial circumstances, and family and social background and conform to the rules and regulations established by the DFCS for child-placing agencies for adoption home studies. In cases where DFCS is selected as the evaluator, a fee of $2,000.00 will be charged to the petitioners.

Adoption Reunion Registry

The Georgia adoption reunion registry provides services to birth parents, adopted persons, adoptive parents and siblings who are attempting to obtain non-identifying or identifying information from the sealed file.

Evaluator

The person or agency that conducts a family evaluation when a child is to be adopted by a (non-relative) third party. An evaluator shall be a licensed child-placing agency, the department, or a licensed professional with at least two years of adoption related professional experience, including a licensed clinical social worker, licensed master social worker, licensed marriage and family therapist, or licensed professional counselor. In instances where none of the foregoing evaluators are available, the court may appoint a guardian ad litem or court appointed special advocate to conduct the family evaluation.

Family Evaluation

A comprehensive evaluation of a family for the purpose of determining the suitability of the family as a prospective foster or adoptive resource.

Independent Adoption

An adoption arranged by a birth parent or other person or entity to take custody of and to place children for adoption.

Private Agency

A licensed or state approved agency whether domestic or international that has been given legal authority to place a child for adoption.

Discussion

The Division of Family and Children Services (DFCS) will utilize adoption assistance funding to facilitate the adoption of children with special needs who might otherwise not be adopted. The federal law requires efforts be made to place the child without adoption assistance, except when doing so is not in the child's best interest.

Adoption assistance is provided on behalf of an eligible child to offset the costs associated with adopting and meeting the ongoing needs of the child. Adoption assistance can be provided in the form of payments, medical coverage and reimbursement of non-recurring expenses;

1. Adoption assistance payments are monthly payments made by DFCS to the pre-adoptive family or adoptive family on behalf of an eligible child;
2. Medical coverage is provided through Medicaid, which provides assistance with the costs associated with medical care. Medicaid is a joint federal and state health insurance program; and
3. Non-recurring adoption assistance is a one-time payment up to $1,500 per child, which DFCS will pay to an adoptive family to assist with the reasonable and necessary adoption fees, court costs, attorney fees and other expenses directly related to the legal adoption of a child with special needs.

Adoption assistance is not intended to replace the legal responsibility of the adoptive parent(s) to support his/her child. Families are responsible for using their personal resources to help them provide for the child's needs. These resources may be considered when determining a family's receipt of adoption assistance.

DFCS shall be eligible for federal adoption incentive funds, if in compliance with the data requirements in section 473A(b)(2) of the Act and DFCS provides health insurance coverage to any child with special needs (as determined under section 473(c)) for whom there is in effect an adoption assistance agreement.

Requirements

The Division of Family and Children Services (DFCS) will make a Title IV-E adoption assistance eligibility determination using the following eligibility criteria:

1. Eligibility – Applicable Child (effective October 1, 2009)
 - a. Beginning in fiscal year 2010, an applicable child is:
 - i. a child for whom an adoption assistance agreement is entered into under section 473 during any fiscal year described in 473(e)(1)(B) if the child attained the applicable age pursuant to that paragraph for that fiscal year before the end of that fiscal year; or
 - ii. a child of any age on the date on which an adoption assistance agreement is entered into on behalf of the child under section 473 if the child has been in foster care under the responsibility of the State/Tribal agency for at least 60 consecutive months and meets the requirements of paragraph 473(a)(2)(A)(ii); or
 - iii. a child of any age on the date on which an adoption assistance agreement is entered into on behalf of the child under this section without regard to whether the child is described in 473(e)(2)(A) if the child:
 1. is a sibling of a child who is an applicable child for the fiscal year under paragraphs 473(e)(1) or (2); and
 2. is to be placed in the same adoption placement as his/her sibling who is an applicable child for the fiscal year; and
 3. meets the requirements of 473 (a)(2)(A)(ii).

- b. Adoption assistance payments may be made to parents to adopt a child with special needs. In the case of a child who is an applicable child for a fiscal year as defined in 473(e), the child shall not be considered a child with special needs unless:
- i. DFCS has determined, pursuant to established criteria, that the child cannot or should not be returned to the home of his parents; and
 - ii. Either:
 1. DFCS has determined that there exists with respect to the child a specific factor or condition (such as ethnic background, age, or membership in a minority or sibling group, or the presence of factors such as medical conditions or physical, mental, or emotional handicaps) because of which it is reasonable to conclude that the child cannot be placed with adoptive parents without providing adoption assistance under this section and medical assistance under title XIX; or
 2. the child meets all medical or disability requirements of title XVI with respect to eligibility for supplemental security income benefits; and
 - iii. DFCS has determined that, except where it would be against the best interests of the child because of such factors as the existence of significant emotional ties with prospective adoptive parents while in the care of the parents as a foster child, a reasonable, but unsuccessful, effort has been made to place the child with appropriate adoptive parents without providing adoption assistance under this section or medical assistance under title XIX.
- c. In the case of a child who is an applicable child for the fiscal year as defined in 473(e), adoption assistance payments may be made:
- i. if the child has been determined by DFCS pursuant to section 473(c) to be a child with special needs; and
 - ii. at the time of initiation of adoption proceedings the child was in the care of a public or licensed private child placement agency or Indian Tribal Organization pursuant to:
 1. an involuntary removal of the child from the home in accordance with a judicial determination to the effect that continuation in the home would be contrary to the welfare of the child; or
 2. a voluntary placement agreement or voluntary relinquishment; or
 - iii. meets all medical or disability requirements of title XVI with respect to eligibility for supplemental security income benefits; or
 - iv. was residing in a foster family home or child care institution with the child's minor parent, and the child's minor parent was in such foster family home or child care institution pursuant to:
 1. an involuntary removal of the child from the home in accordance with a judicial determination to the effect that continuation in the home would be contrary to the welfare of the child; or
 2. a voluntary placement agreement or voluntary relinquishment; and
 - v. has been determined by DFCS, pursuant to subsection 473(c)(2), to be a child with special needs.
- d. In the case of a child who is an applicable child for the fiscal year as so defined in 473(e), the child will be treated as meeting the requirements to receive adoption assistance payments if the child:

- i. meets the requirements of 473(a)(2)(A)(ii)(II); and*
- ii. is determined eligible for adoption assistance payments under this part with respect to a prior adoption (or who would have been determined eligible for such payments had the Adoption and Safe Families Act of 1997 been in effect at the time that such determination would have been made); and*
- iii. is available for adoption because the prior adoption has been dissolved and the parental rights of the adoptive parents have been terminated or because the child's adoptive parents have died.*

2. Eligibility - Non-applicable Child (Currently effective, but beginning October 1, 2009, decreases based on the criteria in 473(e) until July 1, 2024 at which time this authority ends)

a. Adoption assistance payments may be made to parents who adopt a child with special needs. In the case of a child who is not an applicable child, as defined in 473(e), for a fiscal year, the child shall not be considered a child with special needs unless:

- i. DFCS has determined the child cannot or should not be returned to the home of his or her parents; and*
- ii. DFCS has first determined that a specific factor or condition exists with respect to the child (such as ethnic background, age, or membership in a minority or sibling group, or the presence of factors such as medical conditions or physical, mental or emotional disabilities) because of which it is reasonable to conclude that such child cannot be placed for adoption without providing adoption assistance or medical assistance under title XIX; and*
- iii. a reasonable, but unsuccessful, effort has been made to place the child without providing assistance except where it would be against the best interests of the child due to such factors as the existence of significant emotional ties with prospective adoptive parents while in the care of such parents as a foster child.*

b. In the case of a child who is not an applicable child for the fiscal year as defined in 473(e), adoption assistance payments may be made if the child has been determined by DFCS pursuant to section 473(c) to be a child with special needs and:

- i. was removed from the home of a relative specified in section 406(a) of the Act (as in effect on July 16, 1996) and placed in foster care in accordance with a voluntary placement agreement with respect to which federal payments are provided under section 474 (or section 403, as in effect on July 16, 1996), or in accordance with a judicial determination to the effect that continuation in the home would be contrary to the welfare of the child; and*
 - 1. received AFDC, in that relative's home, under the state plan approved under section 402 of the Act (as in effect 7/16/96), or would have received AFDC under such plan had application been made, in or for the month the voluntary placement agreement was entered into or court proceedings leading to the judicial determination referred to in section 473(a)(2)(A)(i) were initiated; or*
 - 2. had been living with a relative specified in section 406(a) of the Act within six months before the month in which a voluntary placement agreement was entered into or court proceedings leading to the judicial determination referred to in section 473(a)(2)(A)(i) were initiated and would have received AFDC in that relative's home under the State* plan approved under section 402 of the Act for that month, if in that month the child had been living with such relative and application had been made;

- ii. meets all the requirements of Title XVI of the Act with respect to eligibility for supplemental security income benefits; or*
 - iii. is a child whose costs in a foster family home or child-care institution are covered by the foster care maintenance payments being made with respect to the minor parent of the child as provided in section 475(4)(B).*
- c. In the case of a child who is not an applicable child for the fiscal year as defined in 473(e), the child will be treated as meeting the requirements to receive adoption assistance payments:*
- i. if the child meets the requirements of section 473(a)(2)(A)(i)(II); and*
 - ii. is determined eligible for adoption assistance payments under 473 of the Act with respect to a prior adoption; and*
 - iii. is available for adoption because the prior adoption has been dissolved and the parental rights of the adoptive parents have been terminated or because the child's adoptive parents have died; and*
 - iv. fails to meet the requirements of section 473(a)(2)(A)(i) but will meet such requirements if the child is treated as if the child is in the same financial and other circumstances the child was in the last time the child was determined eligible for adoption assistance payments under section 473 of the Act and the prior adoption is treated as never having occurred.*

3. Adoption Assistance Payments

- a. Adoption assistance payments are made to adoptive parents who have entered into an adoption assistance agreement with the Title IV-E agency.*
- b. In determining the eligibility for adoption assistance payments of a child in a legal guardianship arrangement described in section 471(a)(28), the placement of the child with the relative guardian involved and any kinship guardianship assistance payments made on behalf of the child shall be considered never to have been made.*

Georgia DFCS has opted out of the Kinship Guardianship Assistance program and does not offer this form of benefit.

4. Medicaid

- a. For the purposes of Titles XIX and XX, any eligible child for whom there is an adoption assistance agreement in effect under section 473(a)(2) (whether or not adoption assistance payments are being made) is deemed to be a dependent child as defined in 406 of the Act and is deemed to be a recipient of AFDC under part A of title IV of the Act (as in effect 7/16/96) in the State in which such child resides.*
- b. Provides health insurance coverage (through one or more State/Tribal medical assistance programs), with the same type and kind of benefits as those which would be provided for children under title XIX or a comparable medical plan, for any child who has been determined to be a child with special needs, for whom there is in effect an adoption assistance agreement between DFCS and an adoptive parent or parents, and who DFCS has determined cannot be placed with an adoptive parent or parents without medical assistance due to special needs for medical, mental health or rehabilitative care.*

- c. In the event that DFCS provides such coverage through a State/Tribe medical assistance program other than the program under Title XIX, and the State/Tribe exceeds its funding for services under such other program, any such child is deemed to be receiving aid or assistance under the State/Tribal agency plan under this part for purposes of section 1902(a)(10)(a)(i)(1); and in determining cost-sharing requirements, DFCS will take into consideration the circumstances of the adopting parent or parents and the needs of the child being adopted to the extent coverage is provided through a State/Tribal medical assistance program, consistent with the rules under such program.

DFCS shall make no Title IV-E payment to parents for a fiscal year with respect to any applicable child year that:

- 1. would be considered a child with special needs under 473(c)(2);*
- 2. is not a citizen or resident of the United States; and*
- 3. was adopted outside of the United States or was brought into the United States for the purpose of being adopted.*

A child that is not a citizen or resident of the U.S. and was adopted outside of the U.S. or brought into the US for the purpose of being adopted may be eligible for adoption assistance payments if the initial adoption of the child by parents is a failure and the child is subsequently placed into foster care.

For the purposes of the Title IV-E adoption assistance program under section 473, the term “child” means:

- 1. an individual who has not attained 18 years of age; or*
- 2. at the option of the State/Tribal agency an individual*
 - a. with respect to whom an adoption assistance agreement is in effect under section 473 if the individual had attained age 16 before the adoption assistance agreement became effective;*
 - b. who has attained the age of 18, but has not attained 19, 20, or 21 years of age, as the Title IV-E agency may elect; and*
 - c. who meets any of the following conditions:*
 - i. the child is completing secondary education or a program leading to an equivalent credential;*
 - ii. the child is enrolled in an institution which provides post-secondary or vocational education;*
 - iii. the child is participating in a program or activity designed to promote, or remove barriers to, employment;*
 - iv. the child is employed for at least 80 hours per month; or*
 - v. the child is incapable of doing any of the above described activities due to a medical condition.*

 DFCS defines a child as an individual who has not yet attained 18 years of age. DFCS does not claim Title IV-E Adoption Assistance for children 18-21 years old. DFCS provides adoption assistance benefits to youth age 18-21 that meet the required eligibility criteria using state funds (see policy 12.10 Adoption Assistance: Adoption Assistance - After Age 18).

DFCS shall make a state-funded adoption assistance eligibility determination using the following eligibility criteria:

1. The child shall be determined to not be eligible for Title IV-E adoption assistance;
2. The child is in the permanent custody of DFCS when placed on adoptive status;
3. The child meets the special needs requirements;
4. The adoptive placement is in accordance with DFCS policy/guidelines;
5. A National Criminal Information Data (NCID) background check and child abuse/neglect history must be conducted on:
 - a. All prospective adoptive parent(s); and
 - b. All other adults living in the adoptive home.

 These must be checked in all states in which the prospective adoptive parent(s) or other adults living in the adoptive home have resided in the last five years.

 Parents who have previously surrendered their parental rights or had their parental rights terminated are not eligible for adoption assistance for the child who was the subject of such action.

Procedures

Determine Eligibility for Adoption Assistance Payments

The Revenue Maximization Unit (Rev Max) and the Social Services Administration Unit (SSAU) will make an adoption assistance payment eligibility determination for a:

1. Child in Permanent Custody of DFCS

Adoption assistance eligibility determination for a child in the permanent custody of DFCS will be completed after one of the following has occurred but prior to the finalization of the adoption:

- a. The petition for termination of parental rights (TPR) has been filed with the court; or
- b. A voluntary surrender of paternal rights has been obtained and validated.

The adoption assistance eligibility determination of a child in the permanent custody of DFCS will be based on the following:

- a. Special needs criteria; and
- b. Title IV-E requirements for applicable child or non-applicable child; and if relevant:
- c. State-funded requirements; and
- d. The execution of the adoption assistance agreement prior to adoption finalization.

2. Child Scheduled To Be Transferred Out of DFCS Custody For Adoption

Adoption assistance eligibility determination for a child that is scheduled to be transferred out of DFCS custody for the purpose of adoption will be conducted after one of the following has occurred but prior to the transfer of custody to the specified relative:

- a. The petition of termination for parental rights (TPR) has been filed with the court; or
- b. At least one voluntary surrender of paternal rights has been obtained and validated.

The adoption assistance eligibility determination for a child transferred out of DFCS custody for the purpose of adoption will be based on the following:

- a. Special needs criteria; and
- b. Title IV-E requirements for applicable child or non-applicable child; and

IV-E eligibility for an applicable child is valid for children in this situation as DFCS continues to provide care in the form of support and monitoring to ensure a successful and timely adoption.

- c. The execution of the adoption assistance agreement prior to adoption finalization.

3. Private/Independent Adoption

Adoption assistance eligibility determination for a child involved in a private/independent adoption will be completed after one of the following has occurred but prior to finalization of the adoption:

- a. A petition for adoption finalization has been filed; or
- b. A voluntary surrender of paternal rights has been obtained and validated.

The adoption assistance eligibility determination for a private/independent adoption will be based on the following:

- a. Special needs criteria; and
- b. Title IV-E requirements for applicable child or non-applicable child; and
- c. The execution of the adoption assistance agreement prior to adoption finalization.

Private/independent adoptions are not eligible for state-funded adoption assistance.

4. Foreign/International Adoption

Adoption assistance eligibility determination for a child involved in a foreign adoption will be completed after one of the following has occurred but prior to finalization of the adoption:

- a. TPR has been granted; or
- b. Verification the child is legally free for adoption.

The adoption assistance eligibility determination will be based on the following:

- a. Special needs criteria; and
- b. Title IV-E requirements for applicable child or non-applicable child; and

c. The execution of the adoption assistance agreement prior to adoption finalization.

Foreign/international adoptions are not eligible for state-funded adoption assistance payments.

Step 1: Determine if a Child is an Applicable or Non-Applicable Child

If the child meets the eligibility criteria of an applicable child, proceed to step 2A.

If the child meets the eligibility criteria of a non-applicable child, proceed to step 2B.

Applicable

To be considered an applicable child the child will meet at least one of the three following requirements:

1. Minimum Age Requirement – The “applicable child” age requirements apply only to children who will be age two or older by the end of the federal fiscal year (FFY) during which DFCS enters into the adoption assistance agreement with the adoptive parents as demonstrated by the table below:

In the Case of Fiscal Year:	The Applicable Age Is:
2010	16
2011	14
2012	12
2013	10
2014	8
2015	6
2016	4
2017 – 2023	2
	(or in the case of a child for whom an adoption assistance agreement is entered into under this section on or after July 1, 2024, any age)
2025 or Thereafter	Any Age

The applicable child table is effective as of January 1, 2018.

2. Time in Care Requirement - A child who has been in foster care under the responsibility of DFCS for at least 60 consecutive months; the 60 consecutive months is any 60 consecutive months prior to the finalization of the adoption.

The 60-consecutive-month provision does not include detention facilities or psychiatric hospitals. This includes, but is not limited to, placements in foster family homes, foster homes of relatives, group homes, emergency shelters, residential facilities, child care institutions, and pre-adoptive homes. A child is in foster care in accordance with this definition regardless of whether the foster care facility is licensed, and payments are made by DFCS for the care of the child, whether adoption assistance payments are being made prior to the finalization of an adoption, or whether there is federal matching of any payments that are made. A child must be in foster care for at least one day of a month. A runaway episode will count toward calculating the 60-consecutive-month period if DFCS retained responsibility for custody of the child during the runaway episode because a child in this situation is considered to be in foster care. Since DFCS considers a child who is on a trial home visit to be in foster care, the trial home visit period count towards calculating the 60-consecutive-month period.

3. Sibling Requirement - A child who is a sibling of an applicable child (by virtue of age or time in foster care) and is placed in the same adoption arrangement as his/her sibling.

Non-Applicable

This refers to children who do not meet the criteria for the Applicable Child regarding minimum age, time in care and sibling in care.

Step 2A: Determine If the Child Meets the Title IV-E Requirements for Applicable Child

If the child meets the Title IV-E requirements for applicable child, proceed to step 4A.

If the child does NOT meet the Title IV-E requirements for applicable child, proceed to step 3.

To be considered Title IV-E eligible for an applicable child:

1. The child will meet at least one of the four following Title IV-E applicable eligibility requirements:
 - a. The child, at the time of the initiation of adoption proceedings, was in the care of a public or licensed private child placement agency by either:
 - i. An involuntary removal in accordance with a judicial determination to the effect that it was contrary to the child's welfare to remain in the home; or
 - ii. A voluntary placement agreement or voluntary surrender of parental rights.
 - b. The child meets the medical and disability requirements for Supplemental Security Income (SSI) benefits.
 - c. The child was residing in a foster family home or child care institution (CCI) with his/her minor parent and the minor parent was removed from home either by:
 - i. An involuntary removal in accordance with a judicial determination to the effect that it was contrary to the child's welfare to remain in the home; or
 - ii. A voluntary placement agreement or voluntary surrender of parental rights.
 - d. The child was previously adopted and was determined eligible for Title IV-E adoption assistance in the prior adoption (or would have been found eligible had the Adoption and Safe Families Act of 1997 been in effect at the time of the previous adoption) and is available for adoption based on:
 - i. The prior adoption being dissolved and the parental rights of the adoptive parent(s) have been terminated; or
 - ii. The adoptive parent(s) has died.

In such an instance, the child may retain eligibility for adoption assistance payments in the subsequent adoption. DFCS only needs to determine that the child is still a child with special needs for the child to be eligible for adoption assistance.

2. The child is a United States citizen or a resident of the United States; and
3. The child was not adopted outside of the United States; or
4. The child was not brought into the United States for the purpose of being adopted; and

A child who is not a citizen or resident of the United States and was adopted outside of the United States or brought into the United States for the purpose of being adopted may be potentially eligible for adoption assistance payments if the initial adoption of the child by parents is a failure and the child is subsequently placed into foster care.

5. A National Criminal Information Data (NCID) background check and child abuse/neglect history was conducted on:
 - a. All prospective adoptive parent(s); and
 - b. All other adults living in the adoptive home.

These must be checked in all states in which the prospective adoptive parent(s) or other adults living in the adoptive home have resided in the last five years.

Title IV-E adoption assistance may not be claimed if the prospective adopted parent(s) has a felony conviction for:

- a. Child abuse or neglect;
- b. Spousal abuse;
- c. Crime against children (including child pornography); or
- d. Crime involving violence (including rape, sexual assault, or homicide, but not including other assault and battery).

In addition, Title IV-E adoption assistance may not be claimed if the prospective adoptive parent has been convicted of the following felonies within the past five years:

- a. Physical assault;
- b. Battery; or
- c. Drug-related offense.

Step 2B: Determine If the Child Meets the Title IV-E Requirements for Non-Applicable Child

If the child meets the Title IV-E requirements for non-applicable child, proceed to step 4B.

If the child does NOT meet Title IV-E requirements for non-applicable child, proceed to step 3.

To be considered Title IV-E eligible for a non-applicable child:

1. The child will meet at least one of the four following Title IV-E non-applicable eligibility requirements:
 - a. The child was removed from the home of a specified relative^[1] (defined as any relation by blood, marriage or adoption who is within the fifth degree of kinship to the child) and placed in foster care through a voluntary placement agreement and the child was eligible and received Title IV-E foster care maintenance payments or the child was removed from the home pursuant to a judicial determination and the determination indicates that continuation in the home would be contrary to the welfare of the child; and

- i. At the time of the child's removal the child received AFDC^[2]; or
 - ii. At the time of the removal the child would have received (qualified for) AFDC had an application been made in the month or for the month the child was removed from the home; or
 - iii. If the child resided in the home of the specified relative^[3] (defined as any relation by blood, marriage or adoption who is within the fifth degree of kinship to the child) at some point during the six months prior to the removal and would have received (qualified for) AFDC in or for the month of the removal (if the child had been living with the parent or legal guardian) and an application for AFDC had been made.
- b. The child meets all the eligibility requirements for SSI, as determined by the Social Security Administration.
-  Only a designated Social Security Administration claims representative can determine SSI eligibility and can provide the appropriate eligibility documentation to DFCS.
- c. The costs for the child in a foster family home or child care institution are covered by Title IV-E foster care maintenance payments being made on behalf of the minor parent of the child.
- d. The child was previously adopted and was determined eligible for Title IV-E adoption assistance in the prior adoption and is available for adoption based on:
- i. The prior adoption has been dissolved (parental rights of the adoptive parents have been terminated or relinquished); or
 - ii. The child's adoptive parents have died; and
 - iii. The child fails to meet the Title IV-E criteria of a non-applicable child but would meet such requirements if the child is treated as if the child was in the same financial and other circumstances the child was in the last time the child was determined eligible for adoption assistance payments and the prior adoption is treated as never having occurred.

2. A National Criminal Information Data (NCID) background check and child abuse/neglect history was conducted on:

- a. All prospective adoptive parent(s); and
- b. All other adults living in the adoptive home.

These must be checked in all states in which the prospective adoptive parent(s) or other adults living in the adoptive home have resided in the last five years.

 Title IV-E adoption assistance may not be claimed if the prospective adopted parent(s) has a felony conviction for:

- a. Child abuse or neglect;

- b. Spousal abuse;
- c. Crime against children (including child pornography); or
- d. Crime involving violence (including rape, sexual assault, or homicide, but not including other assault and battery).

In addition, Title IV-E adoption assistance may not be claimed if the prospective adoptive parent has been convicted of the following felonies within the past five years:

- a. Physical assault;
- b. Battery; or
- c. Drug-related offense.

Step 3: Determine if the Child Meets the Eligibility Criteria for State Funded Adoption Assistance

If the child meets the eligibility criteria for state funded, proceed to step 4A for an applicable child and 4B for a non-applicable child.

If the child does NOT meet the eligibility criteria for state funded, child is not eligible for adoption assistance.

To be considered eligible for state-funded adoption assistance, the child will meet the following eligibility criteria:

1. The child shall be determined to not be eligible for Title IV-E adoption assistance; and
2. The child is in the permanent custody of DFCS when placed on adoptive status; and
3. The adoptive placement is in accordance with DFCS policy/guidelines.
4. A National Criminal Information Data (NCID) background check and child abuse/neglect history must be conducted on:
 - a. All prospective adoptive parent(s); and
 - b. All other adults living in the adoptive home.

These must be checked in all states in which the prospective adoptive parent(s) or other adults living in the adoptive home have resided in the last five years.

State funded adoption assistance may not be claimed if the prospective adopted parent has a felony conviction for:

- a. Child abuse or neglect;
- b. Spousal abuse;
- c. Crime against children (including child pornography); or
- d. Crime involving violence (including rape, sexual assault, or homicide, but not including other assault and battery).

In addition, state-funded adoption assistance may not be claimed if the prospective adoptive parent(s) has been convicted of the following felonies within the past five years:

- a. Physical assault;
- b. Battery; or
- c. Drug-related offense.

Step 4A: Determine Whether an Applicable Child Meets Special Needs Criteria

If the applicable child meets the criteria for special needs, the child is eligible for adoption assistance.

If the applicable child does NOT meet criteria for special needs, the child is NOT eligible for adoption assistance.

To be considered a child with special needs, the child will meet the following special needs criteria:

1. The child cannot or should not be returned to the home of his/her parent(s). This decision is based on the following:
 - a. An order from a court of competent jurisdiction terminating parental rights;
 - b. The existence of a petition for termination of parental rights;
 - c. A voluntary surrender of parental rights for a child; or
 - d. In the case of an orphan, verification of the death of the parent(s).
2. A reasonable, but unsuccessful, effort has been made by DFCS to place the child with adoptive parent(s) without providing adoption assistance or medical assistance.

Unless such an effort is not in the best interest of the child for reasons including the placement with a relative or another person with whom the child has established significant emotional ties.

3. The child has at least one of the factors or conditions listed below which makes it reasonable to conclude that the child cannot be placed with adoptive parent(s) without providing adoption assistance:
 - a. The child has been in the care of a public or private agency or individual other than the legal or biological parent for more than 24 consecutive months.

The 24 consecutive months is calculated by counting backwards from the date of the special needs determination request to the date of the child's most recent removal/departure from the legal/biological parent(s) care. If the number of consecutive months that the child was not in the care of the legal/biological parent(s) meets or exceeds 24 months and can be verified, the criterion is met. The criterion can be met even if the child spent time in different custody or placement types during that time (noncustodial relative/individual, custodial relative/individual, DHS custody, etc.) as long as the child did not return to the legal/biological parent(s) care during the consecutive (24-month period).

- b. The child has a physical, mental or emotional disability, as validated by a licensed physician or psychologist.
- c. The child is a member of a sibling group of two or more placed in the same home. To meet the sibling group criterion, members of the sibling group will be:

- i. Placed for purpose of adoption by signing Placement Agreement(s); or
- ii. Transferred out of DHS permanent or temporary custody into the permanent custody of a relative/individual for the purpose of adoption by court order; or
- iii. Adopted in a private/independent adoption, where the adoption has been finalized.

 Siblings are not required to be placed for adoption at the same time. A second sibling may be placed into the same home as a previously placed sibling and thus meet the above special needs criteria. However, if the previously placed sibling was not determined to meet special needs criteria; he/she would not become eligible based on the second sibling being placed in the same home at a later time. He/she would remain non-special needs. Siblings who are in a placement type other than an adoptive placement type (i.e., guardian/relative care) do not meet the requirements of this criterion.

- d. The child meets the medical or disability requirements for Supplemental Security Income (SSI).

Step 4B: Determine Whether a Non-Applicable Child Meets Special Needs Criteria

If the non-applicable child meets the criteria for special needs, the child is eligible for adoption assistance.

If the non-applicable child does NOT meet criteria for special needs, the child is NOT eligible for adoption assistance.

To be considered a child with special needs, the child will meet the following special needs criteria:

1. The child cannot or should not be returned to the home of his parent(s). This decision is based on the following:
 - a. An order from a court of competent jurisdiction terminating parental rights;
 - b. The existence of a petition for termination of parental rights;
 - c. A voluntary surrender of parental rights for a child; or
 - d. In the case of an orphan, verification of the death of the parent(s).
2. A reasonable, but unsuccessful, effort has been made by DFCS to place the child with adoptive parent(s) without providing adoption assistance or medical assistance.

Unless such an effort is not in the best interest of the child for reasons including the placement with a relative or another person with whom the child has an established significant emotional ties.

3. The child has at least one of the factors or conditions listed below which makes it reasonable to conclude that the child cannot be placed with adoptive parent(s) without providing adoption assistance:
 - a. The child has been in the care of a public or private agency or individual other than the legal or biological parent for more than 24 consecutive months.

 The 24 consecutive months is calculated by counting backwards from the date of the special needs determination request to the date of the child's most recent removal/departure from the legal/biological parent(s). If the number of consecutive months that the child was not in the care of the legal/biological parent(s) meets or exceeds 24 months and can be verified, the criterion is met. The criterion can be met even if the child spent time in different custody or placement types (noncustodial relative/individual, custodial relative/individual, DHS custody, etc.) during that time as long as the child did not return to the legal/biological parent(s) during the consecutive 24-month period.

- b. The child has a physical, mental or emotional disability, as validated by a licensed physician or psychologist.
- c. The child is a member of a sibling group of two or more placed in the same home. To meet the sibling group criterion members of the sibling group will be:
 - i. Placed for purpose of adoption by signing Placement Agreement(s); or
 - ii. Transferred out of DHS permanent or temporary custody into the permanent custody of a relative/individual for the purpose of adoption by court order; or
 - iii. Adopted in a private/independent adoption, where the adoption has been finalized.

Siblings are not required to be placed for adoption at the same time. A second sibling may be placed into the same home as a previously placed sibling and thus meet the above special needs criteria. However, if the previously placed sibling was not determined to meet special needs criteria; he/she would not become eligible based on the second sibling being placed in the same home at a later time. He/she would remain non-special needs. Siblings who are in a placement type other than an adoptive placement type (i.e., guardian/relative care) do not meet the requirements of this criterion.

If it is determined a child does not meet the special needs criteria but has identified background factors, a deferred application/agreement can be completed, which will allow for a future request for state-funded adoption assistance benefits should the child develop a physical, mental, and/or emotional disability, as validated by a licensed physician or psychologist. Only DFCS involved adoptions are eligible for deferred applications/agreements (see policy 12.8 Adoption Assistance: Subsequent Determinations - Deferred Adoption Assistance Agreements for the procedures on requesting adoption assistance at a later date).

Determine Eligibility for Medical Coverage

A child who is determined to be eligible for adoption assistance payments is eligible to receive medical coverage under Medicaid whether funded through Title IV-E or state funds. Adoption assistance medical coverage is only available for a child who is eligible for adoption assistance payments; adoption assistance medical coverage cannot be applied for as a stand-alone benefit.

Annual redetermination of Medicaid is required in the above circumstances (see policy 12.12 Adoption Assistance: Adoption Assistance Medicaid).

All children will continue to receive Medicaid through foster care until the adoption is finalized.

Determine Eligibility for Non-Recurring Only Adoption Assistance

The Social Services Administration Unit (SSAU) will make a non-recurring adoption assistance eligibility determination using the same timeframes as discussed above in "Determine Eligibility For Adoption Assistance Payments". The eligibility criteria for non-recurring only adoption assistance is the following for all children:

1. The child must be determined to be a child that meets the special needs criteria (outlined in steps 4A and 4B) by the SSAU prior to the finalization of the adoption.
2. The non-recurring adoption assistance agreement is fully executed prior to the finalization of the adoption.
3. The non-recurring adoption assistance payment will be made within two years of the adoption finalization.

 If the child has been approved for adoption assistance payments, the adoptive parent(s) is automatically eligible to receive non-recurring adoption assistance.

 A child who does not qualify for adoption assistance payments due to not being Title IV-E eligible may be potentially eligible for “non-recurring” adoption assistance if he/she is determined “special needs” by the SSAU.

Practice Guidance

Adoption assistance is available for adoptive families when specific eligibility requirements are met. Adoption assistance is funded by either Title IV-E (federal) or state funds and includes:

1. Adoption assistance payments;
2. Medicaid; and
3. Non-recurring payment.

Adoption assistance payments are monthly payments made by DFCS to the pre-adoptive family or adoptive family on behalf of an eligible child. The adoption assistance payment is not considered a board rate; rather it is designed to assist the adoptive family in covering the ordinary and special needs of the child over an extended period. The adoption assistance rate shall be based on the child’s current level of functioning, diagnosis, current treatment services and prognosis (future treatment needs). The amount of the adoption assistance payment cannot exceed the amount the child received or would have received in a family foster home if the child was in foster care. When a child is determined eligible for adoption assistance payments, the child is also eligible for medical coverage under Medicaid and non-recurring adoption assistance.

Non-recurring adoption assistance is a one-time payment up to $1,500 per child, which DFCS will pay to an adoptive family to assist with the reasonable and necessary adoption fees, court costs, attorney fees and other expenses directly related to the legal adoption of a child with special needs. This may include the following expenses:

1. The cost for travel/lodging and food during pre-placement visitation based on the current state rates;
2. The cost of physicals for the adoptive parents required for the adoption assessment (medicals for other family members or for updates are not included); and

3. Legal/court fees.

Non-recurring adoption assistance may be available as a result of the approval of adoption assistance payments or as a stand-alone benefit where adoption assistance payments are either not approved or not sought, but the child meets the special needs criteria. Eligibility for all categories of adoption assistance is directly related to the child meeting the special needs criteria. Adoption assistance payments are not exclusive to children in the care, custody and/or oversight of DFCS.

Title IV-E adoption assistance program is intended to provide permanency for children with special needs in public foster care by assisting states in providing ongoing financial and medical assistance to the families who adopt them. As a result, the requirements for Title IV-E adoption assistance eligibility are geared to needy children in public child welfare systems and are difficult to apply to children who are adopted from abroad. Therefore, it is highly improbable that children who are adopted abroad by U.S. citizens, or are brought into the U.S. from another country for the purpose of adoption, will meet the criteria for Title IV-E adoption assistance.

Parents who have previously surrendered their parental rights or had their parental rights terminated are not eligible for adoption assistance for the child who was the subject of such action.

Adoptive Status

Adoptive status is the point when a child is legally free to be adopted, an adoptive resource has been identified, physical adoptive placement has occurred and the adoptive resource has committed to be the child's adoptive parent(s) by signing the placement agreement(s). Placing a child on adoptive status signals recruitment procedures should be halted as a potential adoptive resource has been located for the child.

Adoption (Private/Independent)

There are four types of private/independent adoptions:

1. Non-Relative (Third Party) - Adoption of a child usually arranged by an attorney, physician or other individual with the direct involvement of the biological parents; if the child or adoptive parents reside in another state, the provisions of the Interstate Compact on the Placement of Children must be followed.
2. Relative - Adoption of a child by a relative as defined as any relation by blood, marriage or adoption.
3. Step-Parent - Adoption of a child by the spouse of one of the birth/legal parents where the other birth/legal parent is deceased or his/her parental rights have been terminated either voluntarily or by court action.
4. Confirming Adoption (Domestication of Foreign Decree) - Adoption of a child who has already been adopted in a foreign country. The purpose being to secure a decree in the United States, which entitles the child to a Georgia birth certificate.

Adoption and Safe Families Act of 1997

Public Law 105-89 enacted by the Senate and House of Representative of the United States Congress on November 19, 1997, to promote the adoption of children in foster care. This act amended Title IV-E of the Social Security Act.

Adoption Assistance Agreement

This is a legal and binding agreement between the agency and the adoptive parent(s) regarding adoption assistance benefits. It establishes types, duration, amount(s) of benefits, and other agreed upon stipulations. A fully executed adoption assistance agreement refers to an adoption assistance agreement that was negotiated with the adoptive parent(s); reviewed and discussed with the adoptive parent(s); and all required signatures (adoptive parent(s), County Director/Designee and authorized department representative) and dates obtained.

Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC)

Aid to Families with Dependent Children is a program administered and funded by federal and state governments to provide financial assistance to needy families. The AFDC program was in effect from 1935 to 1996. This cash benefit is often referred to simply as "welfare." AFDC was replaced by Temporary Assistance for Needy Children (TANF). TANF provides assistance and work opportunities to needy families.

Child Care Institution (CCI)

Child care institutions provide care, supervision and oversight in a residential setting, including neighborhood-based group homes, campus-based arrangements and self-contained facilities.

DFCS Involved Transfer of Custody for the Purpose of Adoption

Refers to children who were either:

1. Placed from the temporary custody of DFCS into the permanent custody of a specified relative/individual "for the purpose of adoption" at a DFCS-initiated TPR Hearing where all parental rights were terminated; or
2. Placed directly from the permanent custody of DFCS (where all parental rights have been terminated) into the permanent custody of a specified relative/individual "for the purpose of adoption" as specifically indicated by the court order at a DFCS-initiated court hearing.

Licensed Treatment Provider

This refers to a licensed psychologist, psychiatrist, therapist or physician who has evaluated and/or treated the child.

Petition to Terminate Parental Rights

A formal application filed in writing with the court that requests action and deliberation on terminating rights of a parent. The petition includes facts and grounds for the court to consider in a future hearing regarding termination of parental rights.

Sibling

A sibling is an individual with whom a child shares one or both parents in common by blood, adoption or marriage, even if the marriage was terminated by death or dissolution. Such an individual shall still be considered a sibling of the child following termination of parental rights (TPR) up until a finalized adoption occurs. Such an individual shall also still be considered a sibling of the child following the death of their common parent(s).

Supplemental Security Income (SSI)

Supplemental security income is a monthly benefit for persons who are disabled or who have functional limitations as determined by the Social Security Administration.

Termination of Parental Rights (TPR)

Termination of Parental Rights is the process for severing all legal rights between a child and his/her parent, except the right of the child to receive child support from his/her parent and inherit from and through his/her parent until a final order of adoption is entered. The child shall maintain the right to pursue any civil actions against his/her parent. The relationship between the child and his/her siblings and extended family remain intact until terminated by final order of adoption. Court orders terminating parental rights shall be without limit as to duration.

Voluntary Placement Agreement (VPA)

A written binding agreement between DFCS and the parents/guardians of a minor child that specifies, at a minimum, the legal status of the child and the rights and obligations of the parents or guardians, the child and DFCS while the child is in placement. The agreement grants DFCS placement authority for a child that does not otherwise meet the criteria for being a deprived child. Usually, the child is placed due to a family crisis that is intended to be temporary in nature.

Voluntary Surrender of Parental Rights

This refers to when the legal parent(s) of a child relinquishes his/her rights and obligations to his/her child or children. A validated voluntary surrender of parental rights is where the 10-day revocation period has expired.

To verify a physical, mental or emotional disability a written statement by the treating professionals in the foreign country or treating professionals in the U.S. is acceptable. This documentation must be obtained prior to finalization. If the family is unable to obtain this documentation until going abroad, the family must send/fax the documentation from the foreign country to the SSAU prior to finalization of the adoption.

b. Adoption assistance eligibility.

The non-recurring only procedure is relevant if the pre-adoptive parent(s) is applying for non-recurring adoption assistance benefits only. If an application for adoption assistance payments is executed, non-recurring benefits will be included within that application.

Practice Guidance

The Adoption Assistance Application will be made as early in the placement process as possible to allow adequate time for careful review of the child's needs and a preliminary determination of eligibility before the adoptive Placement Agreement is signed. This practice allows the identified adoptive parent(s) to be aware of the child's eligibility status for adoption assistance early in the process and time for benefits to be discussed and negotiated prior to the adoptive placement. The special needs determination is critical information required for compiling the Child Life History and making placement plans for the child (see policy 11.5 Adoption: Child Life History).

The Adoption Assistance Application eligibility decision will be made by the SSAU for all children. The special needs determination is based upon the child's assessed needs at the time of the Adoption Assistance Application. Adoption Assistance Application approvals, including specialized adoption assistance rate approvals, expire after one year if the adoptive placement has not occurred. Special needs determination requests and specialized rate requests must be re-submitted annually to the SSAU until adoptive placement occurs. A new special needs determination request must be submitted when a child's adoptive placement permanently disrupts or dissolves and the permanency plan still includes adoption.

If DFCS determined a child does not meet the special needs criteria but has identified background factors, a deferred adoption assistance agreement can be completed, which will allow for a future request for adoption assistance should the child develop a physical, mental, or emotional disability, as validated by a licensed physician or psychologist. Only DFCS-involved adoptions are eligible for deferred adoption assistance agreements. Children where adoption assistance is deferred are not eligible for non-recurring benefits because they have been deemed "non-special needs".

Adoption (Private/Independent)

There are four types of private/independent adoptions:

1. Non-Relative (Third Party) - Adoption of a child usually arranged by an attorney, physician or other individual with the direct involvement of the biological parents; if the child or adoptive parents reside in another state, the provisions of the Interstate Compact on the Placement of Children must be followed.
2. Relative - Adoption of a child by a relative (defined as any relation by blood, marriage or adoption).
3. Step-Parent - Adoption of a child by the spouse of one of the birth/legal parents where the other birth/legal parent is deceased, or his/her parental rights have been terminated either voluntarily or by court action.
4. Confirming Adoption (Domestication of Foreign Decree) - Adoption of a child who has already been adopted in a foreign country. The purpose being to secure a decree in the United States, which entitles the child to a Georgia birth certificate.

Adoption Assistance Agreement

This is a legal and binding agreement between the agency and the pre-adoptive parent(s) regarding adoption assistance benefits. It establishes types, duration, amount(s) of benefits, and other agreed upon stipulations. A fully executed adoption assistance agreement refers to an adoption assistance agreement that was negotiated with the adoptive parent(s); reviewed and discussed with the adoptive parent(s); and all required signatures (adoptive parent(s), County Director/Designee and authorized department representative) and dates obtained.

Adoption Assistance Narrative

The Adoption Assistance Narrative form summarizes whether the child meets the Georgia's special needs criteria referencing any documentation provided by the adoptive parent(s) which includes the following:

1. Whether the child is legally free for adoption and cannot or should not be returned to the home of removal;
2. Whether the adoptive parents have stated a need for adoption assistance in order to adopt the child;
3. Any reasons that it may not be in the best interest of the child to seek out other adoptive placements which do not require adoption assistance (i.e. relative placement; close bonds between child and the adoptive parents);
4. Whether factors or conditions exist, which would make it difficult for the child to be adopted without adoption assistance.

Basic Rate (Adoption Assistance)

This is the basic monthly rate which is provided for children who qualify for adoption assistance.

Deferred Adoption Assistance

If a child does not meet the eligibility criteria of a child with special needs prior to adoptive placement but has background factors which may lead to significant medical, physical, or emotional problems in the future, a deferred adoption assistance agreement is completed with the pre-adoptive parent(s). If significant medical, physical or mental conditions develop at a later date, adoption assistance may be instated if it is determined by DFCS these developed conditions meet the special needs eligibility criteria. Deferred Adoption Assistance is only available for DFCS-involved adoptions.

DFCS Involved Transfer of Custody for the Purpose of Adoption

Refers to children who were either:

1. Placed from the temporary custody of DFCS into the permanent custody of a specified relative/individual "for the purpose of adoption" at a DFCS-initiated TPR Hearing where all parental rights were terminated; or
2. Placed directly from the permanent custody of DFCS (where all parental rights have been terminated) into the permanent custody of a specified relative/individual "for the purpose of adoption” as specifically indicated by the court order at a DFCS-initiated court hearing.

Licensed Treatment Provider

This refers to a licensed psychologist, psychiatrist, therapist or physician who has evaluated and/or treated the child.

Petition to Terminate Parental Rights

This is a formal application filed in writing with the court that requests action and deliberation on terminating rights of a parent. The petition includes facts and grounds for the court to consider in a future hearing regarding termination of parental rights.

Specialized Adoption Assistance Rate

This is an adoption assistance rate that is higher than the basic adoption assistance rate, and is based upon the documented significant mental, emotional and/or physical disability of the child.

Voluntary Surrender of Parental Rights

Requirements

The Division of Family and Children Services (DFCS) will:

1. Consider a request for an adoption assistance specialized rate for a child who has a significant level of mental, emotional and physical disability which requires care and services that cannot be adequately compensated by the basic adoption assistance rate and Medicaid.

2. Ensure the following requirements are met prior to considering an adoption assistance specialized rate:

a. The adoption assistance application for a specialized rate is submitted at the same time as the adoption assistance application for a basic rate.

An adoption assistance application for a specialized rate in Georgia SHINES can be submitted following the approval of the adoption assistance application for basic rate when a child is later determined to have additional problems and treatment needs.

b. An application for Supplemental Security Income (SSI) benefits was submitted for the child and the Social Security Administration (SSA) has rendered an eligibility determination of either approved or denied.

This requirement only applies to children who are determined by the Revenue Maximization Unit (Rev Max) to have an adoption funding type of state-funded.

c. A child who is in a DFCS foster home must be currently approved for a specialized foster care per diem by the Care Coordination Treatment Unit (CCTU) and have a current Memorandum indicating such.

If the child doesn't have a current specialized foster care per diem rate approval, an application for both a specialized foster care per diem rate and an adoption assistance specialized rate must be submitted simultaneously to both CCTU and Social Services Administration Unit (SSAU) with all supporting documentation. See policy 16.5 Room Board and Watchful Oversight: Specialized Foster Care Per Diem for procedures for submitting a request to CCTU for specialized foster care rate per diem.

d. A child who is placed in a child placing agency (CPA) foster home is approved by CCTU for an additional Room Board and Watchful Oversight (RBWO) waiver amount, above the basic per diem, and has a current RBWO Program Destination Waiver indicating such.

3. Ensure the assigned adoption specialized rate does not exceed the amount the child receives in a family foster home or for a child not placed in a family foster home, the adoption assistance rate does not exceed the rate the child would receive if he/she were placed in a family foster home.

Procedures

Social Services Case Manager

1. Provide the following required supporting information when submitting an adoption assistance application for a specialized rate to SSAU:
 - a. For a child in a child care institution (CCI):
 - i. RBWO memorandum from CCTU indicating the child is currently receiving a higher foster care rate; and
 - ii. A copy of the completed Universal Application.
 - b. For a child in a CPA foster home:
 - i. RBWO memorandum from CCTU indicating the child is currently receiving a higher foster care rate; and
 - ii. A copy of the completed Universal Application; and
 - iii. Caregiver Effort Declaration; or
 - iv. A signed written statement from the foster parent regarding the care requirements.
 - c. For a child in a DFCS foster home:
 - i. Specialized foster care per diem memorandum from CCTU indicating the child is currently receiving a higher foster care rate; and
 - ii. A copy of the completed Universal Application; and
 - iii. Caregiver Effort of Declaration; or
 - iv. A signed written statement from the foster parent regarding the care requirements.

 The specialized foster care per diem memorandum is not required for a child in DFCS custody if the SSCM is submitting the application for specialized foster care per diem and the specialized adoption assistance rate simultaneously.
 - d. For a child in a Relative home:
 - i. A copy of the completed Universal Application; and
 - ii. Caregiver Effort of Declaration; or
 - iii. A signed written statement from the relative parent regarding the care requirements.
 - e. An Adoption Assistance Treatment Professional Report completed and signed by the child's treatment professional and dated within 90 days of the Adoption Assistance Application;

 Upon request from the SSCM, the SSAU Program Consultant will consider accepting an Adoption Assistance Treatment Professional Report form dated within 180 days, if the SSCM can verify that the child's level of needs and treatment services have not changed since the date the form was completed.
 - f. The most recent psychological evaluation(s) to support child's diagnosis, unless such evaluation(s) has been deemed not medically necessary by Amerigroup; or
 - g. The most recent developmental evaluation(s) to support the developmental diagnosis, unless such evaluation(s) has been deemed not medically necessary by Amerigroup; and

- h. The most recent medical evaluation(s) to support significant medical diagnosis unless such evaluation(s) has been deemed not medically necessary by Amerigroup; and
- i. Other relevant current documentation such as the Trauma Assessment, Individualized Education Plan (IEP) and Babies Can't Wait assessments if applicable; and
- j. Documentation that SSI benefits have been applied for and either approved or denied; and

This procedure only applies to children who are determined by Rev Max to have an adoption funding type of state-funded.

- k. Documentation of any sources of income for the child, such as Social Security Retirement, Survivors or Disability Insurance benefits (RSDI) if applicable.

2. Upload all supporting information into Georgia SHINES External Documentation within 72 hours of receipt.
3. Complete the adoption assistance application for a specialized rate using procedures outlined in policy 12.2 Adoption Assistance: Adoption Assistance Application.

The SSCM may contact the SSAU Program Consultant for assistance in expediting the application when efforts to obtain any of the above required evaluation(s)/statements have failed due to lack of cooperation by the treatment provider or due to Amerigroup not approving an evaluation based on “medical necessity” criteria.

Practice Guidance

An adoption assistance specialized rate application for a child whose adoption funding type is determined by Rev Max to be state-funded will not be considered without documentation that SSI benefits have been applied for and either approved or denied. SSI applications may take up to four to six months for the Social Security Administration to process, and thus should be submitted to the SSA well in advance of specialized rate requests. This will prevent potential delays in the placement of children in adoptive homes. When applying for SSI benefits, the Social Services Case Manager must present documentation to the Social Security Administration as to whether the child's adoption funding type is state-funded or Title IV-E based on the Rev Max determination, because this has a significant bearing on the child's SSI eligibility.

If a child in foster care who has a specialized adoption assistance rate moves to a different foster care placement resource or has a situation where the foster care rate becomes lower than the specialized adoption assistance rate, SSAU should be immediately notified so that the specialized adoption assistance rate can be adjusted or terminated in Georgia SHINES.

The specialized adoption assistance rate will be re-applied for annually until adoptive placement occurs. These processes ensure that the adoption assistance rate does not exceed the foster home board rate, in accordance with Federal Title IV-E policy requirements. If at the time of submitting a request for adoption assistance specialized rate the RBWO waiver or specialized foster care rate approval will expire within 60 days or less, it is recommended that the Social Services Case Manager also re-apply for the RBWO waiver/specialized foster care rate (see policy 16.1 Room Board and Watchful Oversight: Program Designation and 16.5 Room Board and Watchful Oversight: Specialized Foster Care Per Diem for requirements and procedures on submitting a request for a higher foster care rate).

Babies Can't Wait

Babies Can't Wait is Georgia's early intervention program for infants and toddlers with developmental delays and disabilities and their families. It is a federally-mandated program under the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA), which provides a framework for coordinating developmental, educational, and community support within natural environments for children under three and their families.

Basic Rate (Adoption Assistance)

This is the basic monthly rate which is provided for children who qualify for adoption assistance.

Child Care Institution (CCI)

Child care institutions provide care, supervision, and oversight in a residential setting, including neighborhood-based group homes, campus-based arrangements, and self-contained facilities.

Child Placing Agency (CPA)

A CPA is a private agency that places children in foster homes for temporary individualized care, supervision and oversight in a resource family setting. CPAs make arrangements to assess the placement regarding the appropriateness of the room, board and watchful oversight that the prospective foster family will provide. The agency's employees and the CPA's foster parents work as a team to provide a stabilizing and nurturing environment that promotes safety, well-being and permanency.

Individualized Education Plan (IEP)

The Individualized Education Plan (IEP) is an individualized document designed for one student that guides the delivery of special education supports and services for the student with a disability. The IEP creates an opportunity for teachers, parents, school administrators, related services personnel and students (when appropriate) to work together to improve educational results for children with disabilities.

Supplemental Security Income (SSI)

Supplemental Security Income is a monthly benefit for persons who are disabled or who have functional limitations as determined by the Social Security Administration.

The Universal Application

For DFCS staff the Universal Application can be completed in Georgia SHINES in the FCC/ADO stage under the Placement Tab. Many of the fields on the Universal Application pre-populate with data already entered into Georgia SHINES. To take full advantage of this feature, prior to launching the Universal Application in Georgia SHINES, thoroughly complete the Person Detail, Health Detail, and Education Detail pages. For RBWO providers, the Universal Application must be completed outside of Georgia SHINES. For a child who has already been adopted and an adoption assistance rate increase is being renegotiated, the Universal Application must also be completed outside of Georgia SHINES.

Requirements

The Division of Family and Children Services (DFCS) will determine a child who meets the special needs criteria, as defined in policy 12.1 Adoption Assistance: Eligibility - Adoption Assistance Payments, Medical & Non-Recurring, eligible for adoption assistance benefits when:

1. A non-applicable child is determined eligible for Supplemental Security Income (SSI) by the Social Security Administration (SSA); or
2. An applicable child is deemed to meet medical or disability eligibility requirements for SSI.

Procedures

Concurrent Adoption Assistance Benefits and SSI Benefits

If the pre-adoptive parent(s) opts for concurrent adoption assistance benefits and SSI, the Social Services Case Manager will:

1. Discuss a child's eligibility for SSI and how it relates to adoption assistance with the adoptive family to include informing the adoptive parent(s) that:
 - a. SSI eligibility is based on income as well as disability and his/her own income will be counted following the finalization of the adoption. SSI may be reduced or terminated due to income or level of disability. Adoption assistance benefits will remain in place for the child as long as the family maintains legal and financial responsibility for the child and other adoption assistance eligibility criteria are met. Unlike SSI, the child's adoption assistance benefits are not affected by family income or a child's level of disability.

- b. The Social Security Administration (SSA) will consider the adoption assistance payment as income for the child who receives SSI benefits. For the child receiving Title IV-E adoption assistance, the SSA will reduce the SSI payments dollar for dollar.
2. At the point that an SSI eligible child is approved for adoption assistance benefits and the Adoption Placement Signing (see policy 11.9 Adoption: Adoption Placement Signing) has taken place:
 - a. Inform the SSA in writing (by certified mail) of the amount, funding type (i.e., Title IV-E or state-funded) and start date/duration of adoption assistance payments.

Communicating with the SSA at this point will help to prevent any overpayments and resulting penalties to the pre-adoptive or adoptive parent(s).
 - b. Upload the correspondence with the SSA to External Documentation in Georgia SHINES.

Decline Adoption Assistance, Choose to Receive SSI Only

If the pre-adoptive parent(s) choose to decline adoption assistance benefits and receive SSI only, the Social Services Case Manager will discuss a child's eligibility for SSI and how it relates to adoption assistance with the adoptive family to include informing the adoptive parent(s) following the adoption finalization SSI benefits may be reduced or terminated based on the family's income. Therefore, the adoptive parent(s) should be encouraged to enter into a deferred adoption assistance agreement before the adoption is finalized that will allow the suspension of adoption assistance benefits while receiving SSI. By entering into a deferred adoption assistance agreement the child will remain eligible for adoption assistance benefits to be activated at some future date following renegotiation of the adoption assistance rate.

If the adoptive parents decide to decline adoption assistance and choose to receive only SSI for the child and an deferred adoption assistance agreement wasn't executed prior to adoption finalization the child is not eligible to receive adoption assistance benefits, as the child does not meet the special needs eligibility requirements.

Suspend Adoption Assistance, Choose to Receive SSI Only

If the adoptive parent(s) decide to voluntarily suspend adoption assistance benefits and receive SSI only:

1. Submit an adoption assistance application in Georgia SHINES (see policy 12.2 Adoption Assistance: Adoption Assistance Application) indicating the adoptive parents' choice of SSI and a deferred adoption assistance agreement in the additional comments section;
2. Upon approval of the adoption assistance application in Georgia SHINES by the Social Services Administration Unit (SSAU) complete, review and sign the deferred adoption assistance agreement with the pre-adoptive parents (see policy 12.6 Adoption Assistance: Reviewing and Signing the Adoption Assistance Agreement); and
3. Upon the request of the adoptive parents, activate adoption assistance benefits by completing a subsequent adoption assistance application, with special need indicated, in Georgia SHINES and submit to the SSAU.

Practice Guidance

If a child in DFCS Custody continues to be eligible for SSI following adoptive placement, the SSI funds and Medicaid card will continue to be sent to the child's legal county department until adoption finalization. Once the finalization occurs, that agency shall transfer the assignment of benefits to the adopting parent(s) or instruct the family to apply for the transfer.

A family that is adopting a child not in the custody of DFCS should be informed how a child's SSI eligibility can improve the chances of adoption assistance eligibility. If the child is approved for SSI prior to the finalization of the adoption, the child is automatically eligible for Title IV-E adoption assistance if the child is also determined to meet special needs criteria and the adoption assistance agreement is signed prior to the finalization of the adoption.

When a child is deemed eligible for both SSI and adoption assistance benefits and the adoptive parent(s) choose to suspend adoption assistance benefits and only receive SSI, the adoptive parents can at a later date activate the adoption assistance benefits for that child if SSI benefits are reduced, terminated, or for other reasons. This should not be confused with deferred adoption assistance for a child who didn't meet the special needs eligibility criteria prior to the Adoptive Placement Signing, in which case the adoptive parents are eligible to reapply for adoption assistance benefits at a later date if significant medical, physical, or mental conditions develop which could render the child eligible for adoption assistance benefits (see policy 12.8 Adoption Assistance: Subsequent Determination – Deferred Adoption Assistance).

Social Security Retirement, Survivors or Disability Insurance (RSDI) funds do not have income eligibility criteria such as SSI benefits. The adoptive family's income or any other income of the child will not affect ongoing eligibility for RSDI funds. RSDI funds can be received in addition to adoption assistance without a "dollar-for-dollar" reduction.

Adoptive Status

Adoptive status is the point when a child is legally free to be adopted, an adoptive resource has been identified, physical adoptive placement has occurred and the adoptive resource has committed to be the child's adoptive parent(s) by signing the placement agreement(s). Placing a child on adoptive status signals recruitment procedures should be halted as a potential adoptive resource has been located for the child.

Deferred Adoption Assistance

If a child does not meet the eligibility criteria of a child with special needs prior to adoptive placement, but has background factors that may lead to significant medical, physical, or emotional problems in the future, a deferred adoption assistance agreement is completed with the pre-adoptive parent(s). If significant medical, physical, or mental conditions develop at a later date, adoption assistance may be instated if it is determined by DFCS these developed conditions meet the special needs eligibility criteria. Deferred Adoption Assistance is only available for DFCS-involved adoptions.

Supplemental Security Income (SSI)

Supplemental Security Income is a monthly benefit for persons who are disabled or who have functional limitations as determined by the Social Security Administration.

	Chapter:	(12) Adoption Assistance
	Policy Title:	Negotiating the Adoption Assistance Agreement
	Policy Number:	12.5	Previous Policy Number(s):	109.9
	Effective Date:	September 2015	Manual Transmittal:	2015-08

Codes/References

Title IV-E of the Social Security Act, Section 473(a)(3)
45 Code of Federal Regulations, Section 1356.40(c)

Requirements

The Division of Family and Children Services (DFCS) will negotiate the adoption assistance rate with the adoptive parent(s). The amount of such payments:

- 1. Will take into consideration the circumstances of the adopting parent(s) and the needs of the child being adopted;*
- 2. May be adjusted periodically with the concurrence of the adoptive parent(s) to reflect changing circumstances; and*
- 3. Will not exceed the foster care maintenance payment which would have been paid during the period if the child with respect to whom the adoption assistance payment is made had been in a foster family home.*

The State of Georgia limits the maximum adoption assistance rate to the foster care maintenance payment amount paid for a child in a family foster home at the time of adoptive placement or the foster care maintenance payment amount that would have been paid if the child had been in a family foster home at the time of adoptive placement.

In determining eligibility for adoption assistance payments, there is no income eligibility requirement (means test) for the adoptive parent(s).

Procedures

Social Services Case Manager

- Prior to negotiating the adoption assistance agreement, discuss with the prospective adopting parent(s) during the adoptive pre-placement staffing or foster parent consideration staffing (see policy 11.8 Adoption: Adoption Pre-Placement Staffing & Visitation and 11.6 Adoption: Foster

Parent Adoption Consideration Evaluation):

- a. The current and future needs of the child;
 - b. The resources available to meet the child's needs; and
 - c. Whether the prospective adoptive parent(s) requires adoption assistance.
2. Following approval of adoption assistance payments and the indication by the adoptive parent(s) of his/her need for adoption assistance benefits, negotiate the adoption assistance rate by:
- a. Reviewing with the adoptive parent(s) the resources and forms of support that are specifically designated for and available to the child such as:
 - i. Social Security Retirement, Survivors and Disability Insurance (RSDI);
 - ii. Inheritance;
 - iii. Supplemental security income (SSI);
 - iv. Veterans Administration (VA) benefits; and
 - v. Zebley Funds.

Any child who has Zebley Funds in a trust account is potentially eligible to receive these funds once the adoption has finalized. Once finalization occurs, the adopting parent(s) shall be notified, in writing, about the availability of these funds and other funds available in the child's DFCS restricted funds account, and how to access them.

- b. Reviewing with the adoptive parent(s) his/her budget and the potential impact of incorporating the child into the household. Help determine what portion of the cost of the child's needs the family can meet.
- c. Exploring community resources with the adoptive parent(s), such as mental health services, educational services, public health services, etc. These services may be available to assist the adoptive family with a wide variety of needs related to their adopted child.
- d. Discussing the child's eligibility for Supplemental Security Income (SSI) with the adoptive parent(s) and the effect adoption assistance payments will have on SSI (see policy 12.4 Adoption Assistance: Supplemental Security Income \(SSI\) & Adoption Assistance Benefits for the details).
- e. Discussing with the adoptive parent(s) the child's enrollment in the Health Check program (formerly Early and Periodic Screening, Diagnosis, and Treatment (EPSDT)) and what services can be provided to the child under Medicaid.

All children for whom adoption assistance is being requested should be enrolled in Health Check before the adoptive placement.

- f. Informing the prospective adoptive parent(s) of his/her potential eligibility for the Federal Adoption Tax Credit.

The adoption assistance rate can be negotiated by an authorized department representative or the SSCM.

Practice Guidance

Adoption assistance benefits should not be confused with a foster care board rate. The agency representative should explain that adoption assistance benefits are based on the current and projected future levels of functioning of the child and are designed to assist in meeting the cost of providing for the special needs of the child (not covered by Medicaid) that would otherwise have prevented the child from being adopted.

With the understanding, the State of Georgia limits the maximum adoption assistance rate to the foster care maintenance payment amount paid at the time of adoptive placement, the adoption assistance rate must be negotiated with the adoptive family. The use of a means test is prohibited when determining eligibility for adoption assistance and when negotiating the adoption assistance rate. Adoption assistance is not based upon a standard schedule of itemized needs and countable income. Instead, the amount of the adoption assistance payment is determined through the discussion and negotiation process between the adoptive parents and a representative of DFCS based upon the needs of the child and the circumstances of the family. The payment that is agreed upon should combine with the parents' resources to cover the ordinary and special needs of the child projected over an extended period of time and should cover anticipated needs.

Federal law and regulations do not prohibit a State from having a policy that limits the maximum adoption assistance payments to a level lower than the maintenance payment a child would have received in a foster family home.

Adoption Assistance Agreement

This is a legal and binding agreement between the agency and the pre-adoptive parent(s) regarding adoption assistance benefits. It establishes types, duration, amount(s) of benefits, and other agreed upon stipulations. A fully executed adoption assistance agreement refers to an adoption assistance agreement that was negotiated with the adoptive parent(s); reviewed and discussed with the adoptive parent(s); and all required signatures (adoptive parent(s), County Director/Designee and authorized department representative) and dates obtained.

Health Check

Health Check Services, formerly Early and Periodic Screening, Diagnosis, and Treatment (EPSDT), is a program of comprehensive health screening, diagnosis, referral and treatment of children under 21 years of age. The goal of the Health Check program is to direct attention to the importance of preventive health services, early detection and treatment of conditions in children before their health problems become chronic or irreversible. Health Check is important because it:

1. Provides early and regular medical and dental screenings for all Medicaid eligible-children
2. Identifies treatments that are medically necessary to correct or ameliorate a defect, physical or mental illness or a condition that is identified through a screening examination.

Means Test

This refers to an investigation of a person's financial resources, made to determine whether that person is eligible for various types of Public Assistance.

Supplemental Security Income (SSI)

Supplemental Security Income is a monthly benefit for persons who are disabled or who have functional limitations as determined by the Social Security Administration.

2. Sign the Adoption Assistance Agreement when satisfied with the information provided.

Non-Recurring Only Adoption Assistance Agreement

The SSCM will:

1. Launch the one-page non-recurring only Adoption Assistance Agreement from the 2nd level tab Adoption Assistance Application in Georgia SHINES. The non-recurring only Adoption Assistance Agreement must be created in Georgia SHINES only.

Practice Guidance

Adoption Assistance Agreement

This is a legal and binding agreement between the agency and the pre-adoptive parent(s) regarding adoption assistance benefits. It establishes types, duration, amount(s) of benefits, and other agreed upon stipulations. A fully executed Adoption Assistance Agreement refers to an Adoption Assistance Agreement that was negotiated with the adoptive parent(s); reviewed and discussed with the adoptive parent(s); and all required signatures (adoptive parent(s), County Director/Designee and authorized department representative) and dates obtained.

All required parties must sign and date the Adoption Assistance Agreement to indicate agreement with the assigned benefits prior to adoption assistance payments beginning. All signatures must be in place within 30 days of the adoption placement date and prior to finalization. For the children in the permanent custody of DFCS, the signing of the Adoption Assistance Agreement will be coordinated with the Adoption Placement Signing. For children not in the permanent custody of DFCS, such as private/independent adoptions, the review and signing of the Adoption Assistance Agreement will be executed prior to the finalization of the adoption.

For foster parent adoptions, the adoption placement signing is often arranged for the beginning of a month to ensure continuity of payment for the child and to prevent duplicate payments from the foster care program funds and the adoption assistance program funds.

The Adoption Assistance Agreement must only be launched from Georgia SHINES. Should there be difficulty launching the adoption assistance agreement, contact for assistance the Data Integrity Specialist (DIS), Georgia SHINES support personnel, and/or the Social Services Administration Unit (SSAU). If necessary, SSAU can manually create an Adoption Assistance Agreement for use at the adoption placement signing. If the issue persists, it may be necessary to postpone the signing if it does not cause a hardship to the adoptive family. Once the issue is resolved in Georgia SHINES attach and complete the adoption assistance agreement.

DFCS recognizes the adoption of children by both members of a same-sex marriage, in accordance with the U.S. Supreme Court ruling in Obergefell v. Hodges on June 26, 2015. Based on this ruling, both members of a same-sex marriage who are identified as the adoptive placement are allowed to sign the adoption assistance agreement. Until Georgia SHINES which generates adoption assistance agreements can be updated the name of one of the members of the same-sex marriage may be handwritten on to the agreement by a DFCS staff person, if done so prior to adoption finalization. The SSAU may be consulted regarding such cases and may generate an agreement outside of the SHINES system for signing, if requested to do so.

Adoption (Private/Independent)

There are four types of independent adoptions:

1. Non-Relative (Third Party) - Adoption of a child usually arranged by an attorney, physician, or other individual with the direct involvement of the biological parents; if the child or adoptive parents reside in another state, the provisions of the Interstate Compact on the Placement of Children must be followed.
2. Relative - Adoption of a child by a relative as defined as any relation by blood, marriage or adoption.
3. Step-Parent - Adoption of a child by the spouse of one of the birth/legal parents where the other birth/legal parent is deceased or his/her parental rights have been terminated either voluntarily or by court action.
4. Confirming Adoption (Domestication of Foreign Decree) - Adoption of a child who has already been adopted in a foreign country. The purpose being to secure a decree in the United States, which entitles the child to a Georgia birth certificate.

Deferred Adoption Assistance

If a child does not meet the eligibility criteria of a child with special needs prior to adoptive placement, but has background factors that may lead to significant medical, physical, or emotional problems in the future, a deferred Adoption Assistance Agreement is completed with the pre-adoptive parent(s). If significant medical, physical, or mental conditions develop at a later date, adoption assistance may be instated if it is determined by DFCS these developed conditions meet the special needs eligibility criteria. Deferred Adoption Assistance is only available for DFCS-involved adoptions.

For adoptive parents who decide to voluntarily suspend adoption assistance benefits while their child receives SSI, the deferred Adoption Assistance Agreement may be used to designate the child's eligibility for adoption assistance benefits while receiving SSI and provide the opportunity to activate adoption assistance benefits at a later date (see policy 12.4 Adoption Assistance: Supplemental Security Income \(SSI\) & Adoption Assistance).

Georgia Families 360

On March 03, 2014, DFCS transitioned from a standard fee-for-service Medicaid program to a statewide Medicaid Care Management Organization (CMO) through Amerigroup Georgia Managed Care Company. The transition impacted children in DFCS custody and children receiving adoption assistance as they became members of a new program called Georgia Families 360 which is separate from Georgia Families, the general Medicaid program administered by the Georgia Department of Community Health (DCH). Georgia Families 360 is designed to provide coordinated care across multiple services and focus on the physical, dental and behavioral needs of member children. The program is designed to ensure each member has a medical and dental home, access to preventive care screenings, and timely assessments. It also seeks to ensure medical providers adhere to clinical practice guidelines and evidence-based medicine. Families receiving adoption assistance have the option of enrolling in Georgia Families 360 or choosing fee-for-service Medicaid.

Amerigroup Care Coordination Teams (CCT) and Care Managers

Each Georgia Families 360 member is assigned to a regional Care Coordination Team with a specified Care Manager. The CCT members are Masters level staff, the majority of whom hold a professional license to practice in their respective field. The CCT completes a Health Risk Screening (HRS) on youth in care to identify medical and/or behavioral needs. They ensure each child is assigned to a Primary Care Physician (PCP) and Primary Care Dentist so every child has a medical and dental home. The CCT is responsible for coordinating the health components of the Comprehensive Child and Family Assessment (CCFA), including the initial physical assessment, dental screening and trauma assessment. Care Managers are the primary partner of the SSCM for identifying and making referrals for needed services. Care Managers ensure each youth has an individualized care plan that addresses both physical and behavioral health needs. They work with community agencies to ensure appropriate services are provided.

Any services not authorized by the CCT will not be paid for out of Medicaid. Therefore, it is imperative that all medical/dental, behavioral health and developmental care be coordinated with the CCT to avoid any uncovered expenses.

Practice Guidance

Once all parties, including the Director/Designee, have signed the adoption assistance agreement, the county department shall make arrangements for providing payments directly to the adoptive family. The beginning of the adoption assistance payments depends upon the factors below:

1. Foster Parent Adoption or Adoption Legal Risk - Receiving Foster Care Payments: A foster parent(s) or adoption legal risk parent(s) who is adopting a child for whom he/she has been receiving foster care payments may begin to receive adoption assistance payments during the month in which the adoption assistance agreement is signed; however, the foster care and adoption assistance payments will be pro-rated to avoid overlapping payments.
2. In DFCS-Involved Transfers of Custody for the purpose of adoption:
 - a. Adoption assistance payments may be received for the entire month in which the adoption assistance agreement is fully signed, even if the adoption assistance agreement is signed at a date other than the first of the month.
 - b. The adoption assistance agreement and initiation of payments may occur at the time of adoptive placement, after the child is placed into the permanent legal custody of the specified relative/individual for the purpose of adoption, as indicated in the court order.

3. Relative/Individual Adoption - Receiving Relative Care Subsidy, Enhanced Relative Care Subsidy, Subsidized Guardianship, or Enhanced Subsidized Guardianship: In cases where a relative/individual is adopting a child for whom he/she is receiving payments through Relative Care Subsidy, Enhanced Relative Care Subsidy, Subsidized Guardianship, or Enhanced Subsidized Guardianship, adoption assistance payments may not begin during the same month as these subsidies. In these cases, the start date for the subsidy may not be sooner than the first day of the month following the last payment of relative care or guardianship subsidy.
4. Private/Independent adoptions: The adoption assistance payments shall not begin until:
 - a. The finalization of the adoption has occurred; and
 - b. Verification of finalization of the adoption is obtained by the Social Services Case Manager.

Adoption (Private/Independent)

There are four types of adoption/independent adoptions:

1. Non-Relative (Third Party) - Adoption of a child usually arranged by an attorney, physician, or other individual with the direct involvement of the biological parents; if the child or adoptive parents reside in another state, the provisions of the Interstate Compact on the Placement of Children must be followed.
2. Relative - Adoption of a child by a relative as defined by any relation by blood, marriage or adoption.
3. Step-Parent - Adoption of a child by the spouse of one of the birth/legal parents where the other birth/legal parent is deceased or his/her parental rights have been terminated either voluntarily or by court action.
4. Confirming Adoption (Domestication of Foreign Decree) - Adoption of a child who has already been adopted in a foreign country. The purpose being to secure a decree in the United States, which entitles the child to a Georgia birth certificate.

Requirements

The Division of Family and Children Services (DFCS) will:

If a subsequent adoption assistance application is requested by the adoptive parent(s) of a child for whom DFCS has a deferred adoption assistance agreement on file, the Social Services Case Manager will:

1. Obtain from the adoptive parent(s) the supporting documentation in the form of written evaluation(s) and statement(s) from licensed treatment provider(s). The professional statement(s) must include the child’s:

The role of the Social Services Case Manager and the Regional Post Adoption (PAD) Manager is interchangeable in this section, as both manage adoption assistance cases at different periods. However, the Regional PAD Manager does not require supervisor approval.

Practice Guidance

If a child does not meet the definition of a child with special needs prior to adoptive placement but has background factors that may lead to significant medical, physical, or emotional problems in the future, a deferred adoption assistance agreement is completed with the adoptive parent(s). If a significant medical, physical or mental condition develops at a later date, adoption assistance may be instated at the time that the agency determines these conditions to meet special needs criteria. Deferred adoption assistance is state-funded and only available for DFCS-involved adoptions.

A deferred adoption assistance agreement can also be completed with an adoptive parent(s) who elected to receive supplemental security income (SSI) in lieu of adoption assistance benefits. In these cases, the child was deemed “special needs” prior to adoption finalization, so a subsequent determination of special needs is not required when the parent(s) decides to begin receiving adoption assistance.

Non-recurring payments may only be paid for children who were determined “special needs” prior to finalization. Thus, a child who was initially determined non-special needs and whose adoption has been finalized is not eligible for non-recurring adoption assistance if later deemed “special needs” through the activation of a deferred adoption assistance agreement.

A fully executed adoption assistance agreement refers to an adoption assistance agreement that was negotiated with the adoptive parent(s); reviewed and discussed with the adoptive parent(s); and all required signatures (adoptive parent(s), County Director/Designee and authorized department representative) and dates obtained.

Licensed Treatment Provider

This refers to a licensed psychologist, psychiatrist, therapist or physician who has evaluated and/or treated the child.

Supplement Security Income (SSI)

Supplemental security income is a monthly benefit for persons who are disabled or who have functional limitations as determined by the Social Security Administration.

Practice Guidance

Circumstances in which DFCS May Terminate Adoption Assistance Benefits

1. Adoptive parent(s) is no longer legally responsible for the child. This may be due to parental rights being terminated (TPR) or the child becoming an emancipated minor, marrying or enlisting in the military.
2. The adoptive parent(s) is no longer providing financial support to the child. Payments for out-of-home placement, family therapy, tuition, clothing, maintenance of special equipment in the home, or services for the child's special needs may be considered forms of financial support.
3. Upon the death of the child for whom adoption assistance was received.
4. Upon the death of both adoptive parents who signed and were party to the adoption assistance agreement.
5. Child has attained age 18 (a child who has attained the age of 18 may be eligible for state-funded adoption assistance benefits see policy 12.10 Adoption Assistance: Adoption Assistance Benefits After - Age 18 for the eligibility criteria).

Children who do not meet the eligibility criteria for adoption assistance benefits after age 18 are not eligible to receive adoption assistance benefits past the end of their 18th birth month. Adoptive parents of children who do not qualify for adoption assistance past age 18 will be notified by letter of the termination of adoption assistance at least 30 days prior to the end date.

Circumstances in Which DFCS May Renegotiate the Adoption Assistance Agreement Rate (Decrease or Increase)

1. The adoption assistance rate may be decreased based on the child's need and/or circumstances of the family upon mutual agreement between DFCS and the adoptive parent(s). Examples of such circumstances include a child who was once medically fragile becoming significantly more stable over time or a child being placed outside of the adoptive home and into a living situation which does not require the same level of financial support by the adoptive parent(s).
2. The adoption assistance rate may be increased based on the child's need and/or circumstances of the family upon mutual agreement between DFCS and the adoptive parent(s). An example of such circumstances includes a child developing a serious long-term medical condition, requiring intensive levels of treatment and supervision.

Georgia limits the maximum adoption assistance rate to the foster care maintenance payment amount paid for a child in a family foster home at the time of adoptive placement or the foster care maintenance payment amount that would have been paid if the child had been in a family foster home at the time of adoptive placement. At the discretion of the Social Services Administration Unit Director, the state's policy regarding rate increase limits may be waived, but with the understanding that the adoption assistance rate will not exceed the foster care maintenance payment which would have been paid during the period if the child with respect to whom the adoption assistance payment is made had been in a foster family home (see policy 12.5 Adoption Assistance: Negotiating Adoption Assistance Agreement). Federal policy regarding rate limits cannot be violated.

Circumstances Prior to Finalization of the Adoption - Decisions to Continue or Terminate Adoption Assistance Benefits

1. When a child is no longer residing in the adoptive placement (the child is no longer on adoption status) prior to the finalization of an adoption - the County Department will develop a plan of action with the pre-adoptive parent(s):

a. Terminate adoption assistance, if the County Department decides that it is not in the best interest of the child to continue in the adoptive placement.

Mutual agreement from the pre-adoptive parent(s) is not required since DFCS holds legal custody.

b. Continue or renegotiate adoption assistance, if the County Department decides that it is in the best interest of the child to continue with the adoptive placement:

i. Inform the pre-adoptive parent(s) of the requirement to provide monthly documentation (canceled checks, money orders, receipts, etc.) of financial support for the child while the child is not placed in their home. Failure to provide verification of financial support may result in termination and/or overpayments of adoption assistance benefits.

ii. Terminate adoption assistance if the pre-adoptive parent(s) does not show financial support of the child. The reason for termination is DFCS is not able to establish that the pre-adoptive parent(s) is providing any support to the child.

iii. Discuss the change in circumstances with the pre-adoptive parent(s) and whether a reduction in the adoption assistance rate is appropriate. Initiate the rate renegotiation process, if applicable.

iv. Review progress toward placement with the pre-adoptive parent(s) at least every 60 days, discussing and documenting:

1. The progress made towards re-placement with the pre-adoptive family; and
2. Any barriers that are preventing re-placement with the pre-adoptive family.

v. Adoption assistance must be reinstated to the original rate when a child is placed back with the pre-adoptive family and adoption assistance was reduced unless a different rate is mutually agreed-upon.

Prior to adoption finalization foster care and adoption assistance payments cannot be paid simultaneously for the same child.

2. Lack of timely finalization of the adoption – the adoption should be finalized within six months of the adoption placement signing.

a. If the adoption has not been finalized within six months of the signing of the adoption assistance agreement, document the steps the pre-adoptive parent(s) are taking to eliminate barriers to finalizing the adoption.

b. If the adoption has not finalized after one year of the signing of the adoption assistance agreement:

- i. Discuss with the pre-adoptive parent(s) his/her/their plans for adoption and the possibility of termination of adoption assistance; and
 - ii. Inform SSAU of this meeting.
- c. If adoption is no longer the goal, terminate adoption assistance.

This applies to DFCS adoptions and transfers of custody from DFCS temporary custody to the permanent custody of specified relatives/individuals for the purpose of adoption.

- d. If the adoption has not been finalized prior to the child's 18th birthday, terminate adoption assistance.

Notify the SSAU of any circumstances when court delays or other extraordinary circumstances may prevent finalization from occurring prior to the child's 18th birthday. The plan for accomplishing the adoption finalization before the child's 18th birthday will be known when submitting applications for adoption assistance.

Circumstances After the Finalization - Decision to Continue or Terminate Adoption Assistance Benefits

1. When a child re-enters foster care after the finalization of an adoption – The adoptive family may continue to receive adoption assistance payments if the adoptive parent(s) remains legally and financially responsible for the child. During the FTM determine if the plan is non-reunification or reunification.
 - a. Plan of non-reunification: There should be an effort to gain a mutual agreement to terminate adoption assistance.
 - i. Obtain a signed written statement from the parent(s) regarding his/her agreement with non-reunification and the termination of adoption assistance.
 - ii. Terminate adoption assistance, the reason for termination is the parent's decision for non-reunification.
 - b. Plan of reunification:
 - i. Inform the adoptive parent(s) of the requirement to provide monthly documentation (canceled checks, money orders, receipts, etc.) of financial support for the child while in foster care. Failure to provide verification of financial support may result in termination and/or overpayments of adoption assistance.
 - ii. Terminate adoption assistance if the adoptive parent(s) does not show financial support of the child. The reason for termination is DFCS is not able to establish that the adoptive parent(s) is providing any support to the child.
 - iii. Discuss the change in circumstances with the adoptive parent(s) and whether a reduction in the adoption assistance rate is appropriate. Initiate the rate renegotiation process, if applicable.
 - iv. Review progress toward reunification with the adoptive parent(s) at least every 60 days, discussing and documenting:
 1. The progress made towards reunification; and

2. Any barriers that are preventing reunification.
- v. Adoption assistance must be reinstated to the original rate when the child is reunified with the adoptive parents and adoption assistance was reduced, unless a different rate is mutually agreed-upon.
2. Dissolution of the adoption - Terminate adoption assistance benefits following termination or voluntary surrender of parental rights by the adoptive parent(s) of a child on whom the adoption has been legally finalized. The reason for the termination of benefits is the adoptive parent(s) is no longer legally responsible for the support of the child.
3. Child placed in a Department of Juvenile Justice (DJJ) facility or another State facility (residential treatment facility or psychiatric hospital) after finalization of the adoption - The adoptive parent(s) may continue to receive adoption assistance if the adoptive parent(s) remains legally and financially responsible for the child. A discussion must be held with the adoptive parent(s) to discuss his/her/their plans for the child.
 - a. Plan not to reunite with the child: There should be an effort to gain a mutual agreement to terminate adoption assistance benefits:
 - i. Obtain a signed written statement from the adoptive parent(s) regarding his/her agreement with non-reunification and the termination of adoption assistance.
 - ii. Terminate adoption assistance, the reason for termination is the adoptive parent's decision for non-reunification.
 - b. Plan to reunite with the child following release from DJJ or other state facility:
 - i. Inform the adoptive parent(s) of the requirement to provide monthly documentation (canceled checks, money orders, receipts, etc.) of financial support for the child while child is in DJJ or other state facility. Failure to provide verification of financial support may result in termination and/or overpayments of adoption assistance.
 - ii. Terminate adoption assistance if the adoptive parent(s) does not show financial support of the child. The reason for termination is DFCS is not able to establish that the adoptive parent(s) is providing any support to the child.
 - iii. Discuss the change in circumstances with the adoptive parent(s) and whether a reduction in the adoption assistance rate is appropriate. Initiate the rate renegotiation process, if applicable.
 - iv. Review progress toward reunification with the adoptive parent(s) at least every 60 days, discussing and documenting:
 1. The progress made towards reunification; and
 2. Any barriers that are preventing reunification.
 - v. Adoption assistance must be reinstated to the original rate when the child is reunited with the adoptive family after being in a DJJ or other state facility and the adoption assistance was reduced unless a different rate is mutually agreed-upon.
4. Child living with another individual or family other than the adoptive parent(s) – Upon notification from the adoptive parent(s) that the child is living with another individual or family evaluate to determine if a mutual agreement can be made regarding the continuation or termination of benefits.

- a. Evaluate the adoptive parent(s) legal and financial responsibility for the child.
 - i. Determine the length of time the child has been out of the home; and
 - ii. Discuss with the adoptive parent the plans for the child's future.
- b. If a decision was made to continue adoption assistance payments while the child resides with another individual or family, the adoptive parent(s) must continue to maintain legal custody of the child and maintain financial responsibility for the child:
 - i. Inform the adoptive parent(s) of the requirement to provide monthly documentation (canceled checks, money orders, receipts, etc.) of financial support for the child while living with another individual or family. Failure to provide verification of financial support may result in termination and/or overpayments of adoption assistance.
 - ii. Terminate adoption assistance if the adoptive parent(s) does not show financial support of the child. The reason for termination is DFCS is not able to establish that the adoptive parent(s) is providing any support to the child.
 - iii. Discuss the change in circumstances with the adoptive parent(s) and whether a reduction in the adoption assistance rate is appropriate. Initiate the rate renegotiation process, if applicable.
 - iv. Adoption assistance must be reinstated to the original rate when the child has returned to live with the adoptive family after living with another individual or family and adoption assistance benefits were reduced, unless a different rate is mutually agreed-upon.

The actual adoption assistance check may not be signed over or given to the other home by the adoptive parent(s).

Adoption Assistance Agreement

This is a legal and binding agreement between the agency and the pre-adoptive parent(s) regarding adoption assistance benefits. It establishes types, duration, amount(s) of benefits, and other agreed upon stipulations. A fully executed adoption assistance agreement refers to an adoption assistance agreement that was negotiated with the adoptive parent(s); reviewed and discussed with the adoptive parent(s); and all required signatures (adoptive parent(s), County Director/Designee and authorized department representative) and dates obtained.

Adoption Dissolution

This refers to the termination or voluntary surrender of parental rights of the adoptive parent(s) to their adoptive child, after the adoption has been legally finalized.

Procedures

Social Services Case Manager

Practice Guidance

Below are some examples of situations in which changes will be reported using the Adoption Assistance Memorandum:

1. The adoption is finalized.

 The Adoption Assistance Memorandum should identify the child's new name as it should appear on the Medicaid card and indicate the exact date of finalization.

2. The name of the adoptive parent(s) changes.
3. The address of the adoptive parent(s) changes.
4. Death of one or both adoptive parent(s) occurs.

When adoptive parents divorce, the divorce decree must state who has primary physical custody of the child and who will receive adoption assistance benefits in order for adoption assistance benefits to be directed appropriately. If the divorce decree does not provide the necessary wording, the adoptive parent(s) must have an amendment to the divorce decree completed.

7. Adoptive child dies. The adoption assistance is terminated in this case (see policy 12.9 Adoption Assistance: Continuation, Renegotiation or Termination Adoption Assistance Benefits for the details on terminating adoption assistance benefits).
8. A change is made in the amount of the adoption assistance payments, such as a renegotiated rate following a child's return to foster care temporarily, (see policy 12.9 Adoption Assistance: Continuation, Renegotiation or Termination Adoption Assistance Benefits for the details on adjusting benefits that have been renegotiated or child returns from foster care).
9. Child is emancipated or joins the military. Adoption assistance is terminated in this case (see policy 12.9 Adoption Assistance: Continuation, Renegotiation or Termination Adoption Assistance Benefits for the details on termination adoption assistance benefits).
10. There is a termination of adoption assistance prior to age 18 (see policy 12.9 Adoption Assistance: Continuation, Renegotiation or Termination Adoption Assistance Benefits for the details on termination adoption assistance benefits).
11. A Child is turning 18 years of age and adoption assistance benefits will continue beyond the youth's 18th birth month or be terminated (see policy 12.10 Adoption Assistance: Adoption Assistance Benefits – After 18 for eligibility criteria for youth beyond their 18th birth month and 12.9 Adoption Assistance: Continuation, Renegotiation or Termination Adoption Assistance Benefits for the details on terminating adoption assistance benefits).

at different periods; however, the Regional PAD Manager does not require supervisor approval.

Practice Guidance

The state to which the child is moving should enroll the child in Medicaid. All Title IV-E eligible adoption assistance recipients are eligible for medical coverage (Title XIX) in their new state of residence. The Interstate Compact on Adoption and Medical Assistance (ICAMA) will provide for Medicaid in the new state of residence for a child who is Title IV-E eligible. The state of Georgia is not responsible for providing medical coverage for children who are placed in or who moved to another state with the adoptive family when the child is state-funded adoption assistance eligible. However, if the new state of residence is a state that provides “COBRA Reciprocity,” the new state will provide medical coverage even if the child is state-funded adoption assistance eligible. The SSAU will inquire as to eligibility when making the interstate referral.

Georgia will continue to be responsible for providing the adoption assistance payments to the adoptive family of the child in the new state of residence if the child remains eligible to receive adoption assistance.

Interstate Compact on Adoption and Medical Assistance (ICAMA)

The Interstate Compact on Adoption and Medical Assistance (ICAMA) was established in 1986 to safeguard and protect the interstate interests of children covered by an adoption assistance agreement when they move or are adopted across state lines. ICAMA is an agreement between and among its member states that enables them to coordinate the provision of medical benefits and services to children receiving adoption assistance in interstate cases.

Georgia Families 360

On March 03, 2014, DFCS transitioned from a standard fee-for-service Medicaid program to a statewide Medicaid Care Management Organization (CMO) through Amerigroup Georgia Managed Care Company. The transition impacted children in DFCS custody and children receiving AA as they became members of a new program called Georgia Families 360 which is separate from Georgia Families, the general Medicaid program administered by the Georgia Department of Community Health (DCH). Georgia Families 360 is designed to provide coordinated care across multiple services and focus on the physical, dental, and behavioral needs of member children. The program is designed to ensure each member has a medical and dental home, access to preventive care screenings and timely assessments. It also seeks to ensure medical providers adhere to clinical practice guidelines and evidence-based medicine.

Families receiving adoption assistance have the option of enrolling in Georgia Families 360 or choosing fee-for-service Medicaid.

Amerigroup Care Coordination Teams (CCT) and Care Managers

Each Georgia Families 360 member is assigned to a regional Care Coordination Team with a specified Care Manager. The CCT members are Masters level staff, the majority of whom hold a professional license to practice in their respective field. The CCT completes a Health Risk Screening (HRS) on youth in care to identify medical and/or behavioral needs. They ensure each child is assigned to a Primary Care Physician (PCP) and Primary Care Dentist so every child has a medical and dental home. The CCT is responsible for coordinating the health components of the Comprehensive Child and Family Assessment (CCFA), including the initial physical assessment, dental screening and trauma assessment. Care Managers are the primary partner of the SSCM for identifying and making referrals for needed services. Care Managers ensure each youth has an individualized care plan that addresses both physical and behavioral health needs. They work with community agencies to ensure appropriate services are provided.

Any services not authorized by the CCT will not be paid for out of Medicaid. Therefore, it is imperative that all medical/dental, behavioral health and developmental care be coordinated with the CCT to avoid any uncovered expenses.

Requirements

The Division of Family and Children Services will ensure the timely recovery of funds whenever overpayments of adoption assistance benefits occur.

Procedures

The County Department or Regional Post Adoption Manager will:

1. Notify the Social Services Administration Unit (SSAU) immediately, but no later than 30 calendar days after becoming aware of an adoption assistance overpayment. Include the following in the notification:
 - a. A summary of the circumstances;
 - b. An exact dollar amount of the overpayment and timeframes;
 - c. An action plan for recovery; and
 - d. Any other information that the county department deems relevant.

2. Contact the adoptive parent(s) to develop an Adoption Assistance Repayment Agreement immediately after becoming aware of adoption assistance overpayment:

The county department must first consult with the SSAU prior to initiating an Adoption Assistance Repayment Agreement if the amount of overpayment exceeds $6,000 or there is evidence of deception/fraud. In such cases, specific, written approval must be received from the SSAU prior to initiating an Adoption Assistance Repayment Agreement.

- a. Inform the overpayment recipient of the preference for repayment in full, via a lump sum, to be paid within 30 days of notification of overpayment.

Lump sum payments within 30 days of notification of overpayment do not require a Repayment Agreement. However, lump sum repayment arrangements shall be documented fully in Georgia SHINES and the adoption assistance record, and coordinated with Regional Accounting.

- b. Develop and distribute a written Adoption Assistance Repayment Agreement whenever the overpayment cannot be repaid by the adoptive parent(s) within 30 days.

- i. Complete and sign the Adoption Assistance Repayment Agreement with the adoptive parent(s):

1. Negotiate the repayment period. The repayment period on the Adoption Assistance Repayment Agreement will be 12 months or less, unless specifically pre-approved in writing by the SSAU.

2. Discuss the method of repayment with the adoptive parent(s):

- a. Monthly or lump sum payment made by the adoptive parent(s), which does not involve reduction of the monthly adoption assistance payment; and/or
- b. Reduction in the adoption assistance payments, if agreed to by the adoptive parent(s).

3. Review and sign the Adoption Assistance Repayment Agreement with the adoptive parent(s). Discuss the requirement of the agreement that, among other things, the adoptive parent(s) will provide written notification to the county department regarding any change(s) in his/her financial condition, mailing address, living arrangements and the onset of any life altering health condition(s) he/she may experience, within 10 days of the change or condition coming into effect. Such notification will include all necessary documentation to support the adoptive parent(s)'s stated claim.

- ii. Provide a copy of the signed Adoption Assistance Repayment Agreement to the adoptive parent(s), Regional Accounting and the SSAU, and upload a copy of the agreement into Georgia SHINES External Documentation.

For cases in which a reduction in the adoption assistance payments occur, the Social Services Case Manager shall send the signed Adoption Assistance Memorandum with the amended payment amount and begin date to Regional Accounting and the SSAU, and upload into Georgia SHINES External Documentation.

3. Negotiate and monitor the Adoption Assistance Repayment Agreement - If an adoptive parent claims and can prove financial hardship due to unemployment, the county department may negotiate with the adoptive parent for a lesser monthly payment amount on the Adoption Assistance Repayment Agreement. Any Adoption Assistance Agreement that makes the repayment period greater than 12 months must receive prior approval by the SSAU.

- a. Throughout the unemployment period, the county department will conduct a diligent search of income and assets every 30 days, including communicating directly with the adoptive parent. The diligent search may include the use of resources, such as Accurint, the Department of Labor, TANF, Food Stamps, and Medicaid, to verify the adoptive parent(s)'s employment and overall financial status.
 - b. For amounts that do not exceed $6,000, the county department will provide a full status report to the SSAU every 12 months for 36 months. Conversely, for amounts that exceed $6,000, the county department will provide a full status report to the SSAU every six months for 36 months.
 - c. The county department will enter into a new Adoption Assistance Repayment Agreement within 90 days of the commencement of employment by the adoptive parent, increasing the monthly repayments amount and thereby reducing the length of the repayment period.
4. For all cases in which an adoptive parent(s) has been paying at a lesser rate for nine months or more, and the parent continues to be unemployed or unable to pay at the necessary rate, the county department may:
- a. Continue to directly monitor and pursue the adoptive parent(s) for up to 36 months.
 - b. Refer the matter to the SSAU for consideration of a referral to the DHS Office of General Counsel for further legal proceedings to ensure recovery.
 - c. Consider foregoing to pursue the adoptive parent(s) any further if it would no longer be cost-effective or if justice would not be served by further pursuit of recovery.
-  All final determinations to forego further legal proceedings will be approved in writing by the SSAU.
- d. The Social Services Case Manager and the Regional Accounting Office must communicate and work together in order to successfully track and manage the Adoption Assistance Repayment Plan.
5. In the following circumstances, the county department will consult with the SSAU for consideration of a referral to the DHS Office of General Counsel for further legal proceedings:
- a. When the adoption assistance overpayment amount is greater than $6,000 and the adoptive parent cannot repay the amount in full via a lump sum payment or a repayment agreement. The referral to the DHS Office of General Counsel shall be made within 30 days of determination of the need.
 - b. When the adoptive parent(s) refuses to enter into an Adoption Assistance Repayment Agreement within 30 days of discovery of overpayment.
 - c. Adoptive parent(s) misses a total of two months of recovery payments, whether consecutive or not, without a fully corrected payment (i.e., a “double-payment”) on or before the next payment due date.
 - d. Adoptive parent(s) fails to comply with the agreed upon terms of the repayment agreement.
 - e. Any time the county department or the SSAU uncovers, or otherwise suspects fraud or abuse. The county department will work with the Office of Inspector General (OIG), as well as all other law enforcement and federal agencies reviewing or investigating the matter.

6. Reinstate the full adoption assistance payment amount when the overpayment has been fully repaid and the adoptive parent(s) continues to be eligible to receive adoption assistance payments:

- a. Send the signed Adoption Assistance Memorandum to Regional Accounting and SSAU, indicating that the repayment is completed.
- b. Provide the begin date that the full amount of adoption assistance payment should be re-started.
- c. Upload Adoption Assistance Memorandum into Georgia SHINES External Documentation.

There is no requirement to sign another Agreement when restoring the full adoption assistance payment amount.

7. Document all steps taken toward recovery of the overpayment in full, throughout the entire recovery process by utilizing Georgia SHINES Contacts/Summaries and uploading supporting documents into Georgia SHINES External Documentation. The documentation shall remain as a permanent part of the adoption assistance record.

Practice Guidance

Special Services Adoption Assistance is intended to provide time-limited or one-time funding for a needed service when no other family or community resource is available. Examples of other resources include, but are not limited to: Children's Medical Services (CMS), Easter Seals, Department of Education, Early Intervention Programs, Medicaid, and the Department of Behavioral Health and Developmental Disabilities (DBHDD). Special Services funds are limited and are not available to every child each State Fiscal Year. Requests for multiple special services may be submitted and will be considered on a case by case basis. For instance, a child may need medical and orthodontic services. Application for Special Services may be made in the Adoption (ADO) or Post Adoption (PAD) stage in Georgia SHINES.

Child care assistance is not available via Special Services Adoption Assistance. The Department of Early Care and Learning (DECAL) is responsible for meeting the child care and early education needs of children in Georgia. For more information about DECAL, visit its website at www.dec.al.ga.gov/BftS/About.aspx. In addition for Childcare and Parents Services (CAPS) programmatic requirements, see Childcare and Parent Services \(CAPS\) Manual.

Respite

Respite funds are available when the special needs of the child are based on an emotional/behavioral, physical/developmental, or mental limitation and the caregiver's need for a short term reprieve from the demands of caring for a child with such special needs can be documented. Below are guidelines for the use of respite:

1. Prior to finalization, the respite care provider must successfully pass child safety screening using the following databases: DFCS Protective Services Records (Georgia SHINES, IDS Online Master Index, PSDS, and County Master Files), Sexual Offender Registry, Board of Pardons and Parole, and the Department of Corrections Offender Query.

Utilize a partial name search in Georgia SHINES.

2. The documentation of special needs may come from consultation with the family and/or a licensed treatment provider.
3. Respite is not to be used as a substitute for child care or ongoing supervision.
4. Any respite services available through the community (e.g., Mental Health) should be utilized first before requesting Special Services.
5. Respite shall be approved for a 12 month period not to exceed the approval amount.
6. Funds may not be borrowed from a future month within the certification period unless it is an emergency situation approved by the SSAU. Approval documentation must be submitted to accounting staff when requesting payment for more than 20 hours a month.
7. The established rate is $6.00 per hour for the oldest child. The rate for each additional adopted child is $2.00 per hour per child.
8. For any child receiving a specialized rate for adoption assistance, it must be documented that the payment is insufficient to cover the cost of respite

9. Advance payments are not allowed.

John H. Chafee Foster Care Independence Program (Foster Care Independence Act of 1999 (P.L. 106-169))

Discussion

The Division of Family and Children Services (DFCS) will utilize adoption assistance funding to facilitate the adoption of children with special needs who might otherwise not be adopted. The federal law requires efforts be made to place the child without adoption assistance, except when doing so is not in the child's best interest.

Georgia's Independent Living Program (ILP) provides eligible youth currently or formerly in foster care with services to successfully prepare and transition to adulthood. ILP services are designed to provide youth with the life skills and education necessary to become self-sufficient, live independently, and maintain stable employment. Services include life skills training, financial assistance, and educational and social support.

Adolescence is a time of preparation for the future. Many adolescents leaving foster care have significant difficulty making a successful transition to adulthood. Congressional findings indicate children aging out of foster care show high rates of homelessness, non-marital childbearing, poverty, and delinquent or criminal behavior. They are also frequently the target of crime and physical assaults. The John H. Chafee Foster Care Independent Living Program (ILP) was created to support youth that are vulnerable to these conditions.

The Independent Living Program goals are based on the federal legislation Foster Care Independence Act of 1999 (P.L. 106-169) also known as the John H. Chafee Foster Care Independence Program and are as follows:

1. To identify children who are likely to remain in foster care until 18 years of age and to help these children make the transition to self-sufficiency by providing services such as assistance in obtaining a high school diploma, career exploration, vocational training, job placement and retention, training in daily living skills, training in budgeting and financial management skills, substance abuse prevention, and preventive health activities (including smoking avoidance, nutrition education, and pregnancy prevention);

2. To help children who are likely to remain in foster care until 18 years of age receive the education, training, and services necessary to obtain employment;
3. To help children who are likely to remain in foster care until 18 years of age prepare for and enter post-secondary training and education institutions;
4. To provide personal and emotional support to children aging out of foster care, through mentors and the promotion of interactions with dedicated adults;
5. To provide financial, housing, counseling, employment, education and other appropriate support and services to former foster care recipients between 18 and 21 years of age to complement their own efforts to achieve self-sufficiency and to assure that program participants recognize and accept their personal responsibility for preparing for and then making the transition from adolescence to adulthood; and
6. To make available vouchers for education and training, including postsecondary training and education, to youth who have aged out of foster care.

Through family and community partnerships, the ILP program seeks the following outcomes for youth:

1. Educational Attainment: Achievement of a High School Diploma, GED, completion of a secondary education program and opportunities for post-secondary education;
2. Employment: Financial self-sufficiency through employment and community service opportunities that allow the youth to develop job-readiness skills;
3. Housing: Allowing youth to avoid homelessness;
4. Health Care: Assuring the youth can meet their own physical and mental health needs by ensuring access to health insurance;
5. Adult Connections: Ensuring the youth has permanent social connections with responsible and supportive adults; and
6. Avoidance of High Risk Behaviors: Empowering youth to be productive and responsible members of the community.

Georgia's ILP provides services and opportunities for eligible youth in or out of foster care to maximize their potential and achieve a successful transition into adulthood. Independent Living Services include the following:

1. ILP Orientation
2. Life Skills and Supportive Services which contain information or supports related to:
 - a. Academic Support;
 - b. College Tours and Preparatory Workshops;
 - c. Life Coaches;
 - d. Financial Resources and Assistance;
 - e. Post-Secondary Education Assistance;
 - f. Career Preparation;
 - g. Information on Maintaining Healthy Relationships;

- h. Self/Individual Supports;
 - i. Health Education and Risk Prevention;
 - j. Budgeting and Financial Management;
 - k. Housing Education and Household Management; and
 - l. Legal Matters.
3. Secondary Education Program Services including assistance with:
- a. Tutoring;
 - b. College Applications;
 - c. Graduation Fees;
 - d. Drivers Education; and
 - e. ACT/SAT testing.
4. Post Foster Care Resources
- a. Transitional Living Supportive Services: This support is for youth, whether currently or previously in foster care, and is funded by the Chafee Foster Care Independence Program (CFCIP) to assist with rental assistance, startup costs such as utility or rental deposits, life coaching, short term counseling and support group related expenses.
 - b. Emergency Financial Assistance: This financial resource is also supported by the Chafee Foster Care Independence Program and is designed to prevent homelessness. Youth applying for emergency assistance will be offered time limited support services along with life coaching to assist them in maintaining self-sufficiency. Emergency Financial Assistance must be a qualified expense such as food, clothing, rent, medical costs or transportation.
 - c. Education and Training Vouchers: The Independent Living Program funds Post-Secondary Financial Support services through the Federal Education and Training Vouchers (ETV) Program as well as State Independent Living Program college funding. Services that may be funded through these programs include application fees, registration fees, tuition, room and board, course books and supplies, tutoring, testing, and stipends for hygiene and personal maintenance.
5. Graduated Independence: Allows youth in foster care (ages 14-17) or participating in the Extended Youth Support Services (EYSS) program (ages 18-21) to participate in age and developmentally appropriate activities to facilitate normalcy for youth receiving foster care services.

 - b. The youth is or was in foster care for at least six months^[1] prior to reaching the age of 18;
 - c. Youth 18-21 is a citizen or a permanent legal resident of the United States and a legal resident of Georgia.

If the youth is not a citizen or permanent legal resident of the United States by their 18th birthday, they are no longer eligible for ILP services. However, eligibility may be reassessed when the youth obtains a legal immigration status, such as Special Immigrant Juvenile Status (SIJS) (see Practice Guidance: Special Immigrant Juvenile Status \(SIJS\)).

 - d. A youth 18-21 previously in foster care requesting ILP services (Post Foster Care) and is not currently receiving EYSS.
3. Re-assess ILP eligibility for youth that were initially deemed ineligible for ILP services within six months of the determination.
4. Enroll eligible youth into ILP within 15 calendar days of the youth meeting the eligibility criteria.
 - a. The Independent Living Specialist (ILS) shall review the youth's Georgia SHINES case record within 15 calendar days of being assigned as a secondary worker in Georgia SHINES.

5. Provide all ILP eligible youth and their parent/caregiver with general information on rights to a fair hearing under the Independent Living Program.

Procedures

Eligibility Determination and Enrollment Procedures for Youth Currently in Foster Care or Participating in the EYSS Program

The Social Services Case Manager (SSCM) will:

1. Within five business days of a youth in foster care turning 14, youth between the ages of 14-17 entering foster care, or a youth ages 18-21 consenting to participate in the EYSS program, determine the youth's eligibility for the Independent Living Program by:

- a. Establishing that the youth was adjudicated as dependent or as a CHINS prior to turning age 18;
- b. Establishing that the youth was in foster care for at least 6 months prior to turning 18; and
- c. Confirming that youth 18-21 is a citizen or a permanent legal resident of the United States, or has obtained a legal documented immigration status, such as Special Immigrant Juvenile Status.

If youth 14-17 are initially deemed ineligible due to length of time in foster care, eligibility must be reviewed again within 6 months of the youth entering foster care.

2. Within 15 calendar days of determining that a youth is eligible for ILP:

- a. Complete the referral for Independent Living Program services and orientation, and submit it to the Independent Living Specialist (ILS);

A new referral for ILP is not required for youth who consented to participate in the EYSS program upon turning 18 if he or she was previously participating in ILP.

- i. Request the Social Services Supervisor (SSS) to assign the ILS as a secondary worker in Georgia SHINES;
 - ii. Generate and complete the Youth Detail page in Georgia SHINES with the following information:

 3. Placement Information
 4. Permanency Plan
 5. Educational Information
 6. Health Information
 7. Employment Information (if applicable)
- b. Provide the youth, parent/caregiver, and foster parent with the Georgia Independent Living Program Notice of the Right to a Fair Hearing and document the notification of the right to a Fair Hearing in Georgia SHINES within 72 hours (see policy 13.11 Independent Living Pro- gram: Post Foster Care Resources).

3. Schedule and ensure the youth attends an ILP Orientation within 90 calendar days of meeting eligibility requirements for ILP services.

Within 30 calendar days of the youth entering foster care or consenting to participate in the EYSS program the Social Services Supervisor (SSS) will:

1. Confirm the youth meets eligibility requirements and that a referral to the ILS has been completed (if necessary for youth participating in EYSS);
2. Assign the ILS as a secondary worker in Georgia SHINES; and
3. Confirm the Youth Detail page has been completed.

Independent Living Specialist will:

1. Within 15 calendar days of being assigned in Georgia SHINES as the secondary worker, the ILS will review the Georgia SHINES case record information concerning the youth's:
 - a. Legal status
 - b. Permanency plan
 - c. Placement information
 - d. Education information
 - e. Health detail
 - f. Employment information (if applicable)
2. Within 90 calendar days of the youth's enrollment for ILP services the ILS will:

 - b. Verify the Written Transitional Living Plan (WTLP) has been created with the youth; and
 - c. Verify that the youth is receiving services related to the goals outlined in the WTLP.

Eligibility and Enrollment Procedures for Youth Not in Foster Care or Participating in the EYSS Program

Youth age 18-21 previously in foster care, or youth who have opted out of the EYSS program may be eligible ILP services. When a youth not in foster care or participating in the EYSS program requests ILP services the SSCM or ILS will:

1. Determine if the youth meets ILP eligibility criteria within five business days of the youth's request for ILP services by assessing the youth's:

2. If eligible, document the specific ILP services the youth will be provided in the Written Transitional Living Plan (WTLP) (see policy 13.3 Independent Living Program: Written Transitional Living Plan and 13.11 Independent Living Program: Post Foster Care).

Practice Guidance

Fair Hearings

A fair hearing request may be completed by an individual, their representative or community based care provider when DFCS takes any action that affects participation in a federally funded service (Titles IV-E or IV-B under the Social Security Act). The fair hearing request may be based on the denial of assistance, delay in acting on a request for assistance or a reduction or termination of services provided (see policy 13.11 Independent Living Program: Post Foster Care Services).

Independent Living Program Services for Ages 14-21

ILP services are flexible and individualized to the needs of each youth based on their Written Transitional Living Plan. Services include life skills workshops in a myriad of topics that address the development of skills and behaviors needed to support a successful transition to adulthood. Services may include financial assistance with secondary and post-secondary expenses such as high school graduation fees and college tuition; opportunities for socialization; and advocacy and support to assist the youth with establishing and pursuing personal goals. ILP placement and support services are also provided through RBWO providers who have specialized placement services through Independent Living and Transitional Living Programs (see policy 16.3 Room, Board and Watchful Oversight: RBWO Placement Referral or 16.8 Room, Board and Watchful Oversight: RBWO Minimum Standards).

Incarcerated Youth

Youth that are incarcerated in juvenile detention facilities or county jails may still be eligible for ILP Services. For example, educational assistance that may help facilitate the completion of a General Education Diploma (GED) could be provided to the youth while he or she is incarcerated. To assist youth in continuing to work towards independence and the completion of the goals outlined in their WTLP, the SSCM should determine the services offered by the county jail or juvenile detention facility. If a youth is incarcerated in a county jail, the SSCM should contact the jail or the county sheriff's office. If a youth is incarcerated in a juvenile detention facility, the SSCM should contact the facility or the Georgia Department of Juvenile Justice (DJJ). These facilities often have a counselor or case manager assigned to the youth; and collaboration with these individuals can assist in developing the appropriate plan for the youth while they are detained. The WTLP should be amended to reflect the available services that the youth can participate in and the responsible parties for implementation and monitoring the plan while the youth is incarcerated.

Independent Living Specialist (ILS) and Social Services Case Manager (SSCM) Partnership

Critical to the youth's success in creating, achieving and sustaining a successful transition to adulthood is the ongoing coordination of services and collaboration between the SSCM and the ILS. At the point ILP eligibility is established this partnership immediately becomes critical. The initiation of the Casey Life Skills Assessment and the creation of the Written Transitional Living Plan will be the foundation for the youth as they begin their transition from an in-home to an out-of-home placement as well as toward adulthood. While the ILS and the SSCM each have a different role in the youth's life, both roles are critical to achieving successful outcomes.

By collaborating at the beginning of the youth's eligibility for ILP services the SSCM and the ILS are better able to assist the youth with information specific to their individual needs. In addition, the SSCM, ILS and the youth can work together to develop the goals a youth wants to achieve and work to identify what services are available in the community when the transition out of foster care back home or into adulthood occurs. For many youth who enter foster care this collaborative relationship helps to set up a foundational support system of appropriate and supportive individuals for the youth that he or she can reach out to in times of distress. This framework of support also provides the youth with an example of how to communicate effectively to achieve a common goal and can lead to the development of other supportive and nurturing relationships within the youth's circle of family and friends who can continue to provide ongoing support through adulthood.

Interstate Compact for the Placement of Children (ICPC) Youth Eligibility

Youth under the age of 18 who currently are, or were formerly adjudicated as deprived or dependent by another state, who have either relocated or been placed in the state of Georgia through the Interstate Compact for the Placement of Children (ICPC) are the financial responsibility of the state from which they were adjudicated. The adjudicating state is responsible for funding independent living services, case planning, and any other financial assistance payments for the youth. Coordination of services for ICPC youth must be done through the state ICPC office.

Special Immigrant Juvenile Status (SIJS)

The Georgia Security and Immigration Compliance Act (GSICA) provides regulations concerning immigrants in Georgia who do not have a lawful US immigration status. It is unlawful for the Division of Family and Children Services to provide federal, state, or local benefits to undocumented immigrants and these regulations can directly affect youth that are discharged from foster care. In order to ensure that a youth exiting from foster care has availability to benefits as they transition into adulthood, any youth that enters foster care without lawful US immigration status should begin the application process for a lawful US immigration status, such as the Special Immigrant Juvenile Status (SIJS) immediately upon entering foster care. The SIJS application and approval process may take up to two years to finalize and SIJS must be attained prior to a youth's 18th birthday to be eligible for continuing benefits.

Youth Ages 18-21

Youth ages 18–21 that consent to continue to receive foster care assistance up to age 21, in the Extended Youth Support Services (EYSS) program may remain eligible to receive ILP services. When a youth reaches the age of 18 he or she may elect to remain in a foster care setting without interruption, and continue to receive independent living services if eligibility criteria was previously met. Those youth between the ages of 18-21 who have elected to exit foster care may request to return and participate in the EYSS program within six months, if the youth meets the basic months of exit but prior to age 21. Any requests beyond the six-month period for EYSS are subject to DFCS approval. Upon returning to the EYSS program eligibility criteria then they may receive ILP Services immediately. Youth between the ages of 18-21 who are not participating in the EYSS program may also be eligible for certain independent living program services, such as financial or educational supports.

Requirements

The Division of Family and Children Services (DFCS) will:

1. Utilize the Casey Life Skills Assessment (CLSA) to assess the life skills, strengths and vulnerabilities of youth ages 14-17^[2] in foster care.
2. Administer the initial CLSA within 15 calendar days of a youth ages 14-17 entering foster care or a youth in foster care turning age 14.
3. Administer subsequent CLSAs within 60 calendar days of the youth reaching age 15 and 17; unless a CLSA has been completed within the last 12 months.

The CLSA may be administered more frequently based on the needs of the youth. See Casey Life Skills Practice Guide.

4. Incorporate the initial CLSA results into the Written Transitional Living Plan (WTLP) submitted to the Court within thirty (30) calendar days of a youth ages 14-17 entering foster care. The results of subsequent CLSAs shall be used to update the WTLP for youth in foster care (see policy 13.3 Independent Living Program: Written Transitional Living Plan).
5. Utilize results of CLSA information in the development of the WTLP for youth ages 18 through 21 who participate in the Extended Youth Support Services (EYSS) program.

Procedures

Completing the Initial CLSA

The Social Services Case Manager (SSCM) will:

1. Within 15 calendar days of a youth ages 14-17 entering foster care or a youth in care turning age 14:
 - a. Conduct a face-to-face meeting with the youth and his or her caregiver to discuss the assessment process;
 - b. Access the website: www.casey.org/casey-life-skills and review the assessment with the youth and caregiver;
 - c. Have the youth complete the assessment online at: www.casey.org/casey-life-skills or on a hard copy (paper) version;

The SSCM should allow the youth to complete the assessment independently or with minimal assistance unless the youth requires assistance due to his or her special needs. Under no circumstances should the SSCM or caregiver complete the CLSA without youth participation.

2. Within 30 calendar days of the youth 14-17 entering foster care or youth in foster care turning age 14:
 - a. Review the CLSA results with the youth and determine together the appropriate steps, goals, and services to be included in the youth's Written Transitional Living Plan (WTLP);
 - b. Select "yes" on the Youth Detail Report page in Georgia SHINES to indicate the completion of the CLSA;
 - c. Upload the CLSA into Georgia SHINES external documentation and label as the Casey Life Skills Assessment;
 - d. Incorporate the results from the CLSA into the steps and goals outlined in the WTLP.

Completing Subsequent Casey Life Skills Assessments

Within 60 calendar days of the youth in foster care reaching age 15 and 17, the SSCM will administer a Casey Life Skills Assessment by:

1. Conducting a face-to-face meeting with the youth and his or her caregiver to discuss the assessment process;
2. Accessing the website: www.casey.org/casey-life-skills and reviewing the assessment with the youth and caregiver;
3. Having the youth complete the assessment online at: www.casey.org/casey-life-skills or on a hard copy (paper) version;

The same criteria concerning the youth's ability to complete the CLSA with minimal assistance is applicable as with the initial CLSA. It is not necessary to complete a CLSA if it is determined that a CLSA was completed within 12 months of the child reaching age 15 or 17.

4. Review the results of the subsequent CLSA's with the youth and caregiver and include the results into the WTLP with the youth.

Incorporating Casey Life Skills Assessment Results with Youth Ages 18-21

Within 15 calendar days of the youth agreeing to participate in the EYSS program, the SSCM will:

1. Review the most recent CLSA results and compare with the youth's most recent WTLP;
2. Assess the youth's current status and determine if a new CLSA is necessary in order to develop or revise the youth's WTLP;
3. Conduct a face-to-face visit with the youth:
 - a. Discuss prior CLSA results and WTLP goals;
 - b. If necessary, request the youth complete another CLSA and incorporate the results into the WTLP.

Supervisory Review and Approval

Upon completion of the initial and subsequent CLSA by the SSCM, the Social Services Supervisor will:

1. Confirm that the CLSA has been completed and uploaded into Georgia SHINES External Documentation;
2. Verify that the Youth Detail Page in Georgia SHINES has been updated to reflect completion of the CLSA; and
3. When reviewing and approving the WTLP in Georgia SHINES, ensure the results from the CLSA have been incorporated into the steps and goals of the plan.

Practice Guidance

Casey Life Skills Assessment

The Casey Life Skills Assessment (CLSA) tool was developed by Casey Family Programs (Casey) from 1994-2000 as a tool for child welfare to assess the life skills of youth. The CLSA is not an exhaustive list of all the skills required to live independently; rather, it provides an indication of skill level and readiness for living independently. The assessments are designed as the first step in preparing youth to live on their own. Other steps include goal setting, action planning, instruction, learning, and application, followed again by ongoing assessments to measure progress.

The Casey Life Skills Assessment and detailed information on how to complete the assessment may be accessed online at www.casey.org/casey-life-skills. The life skills assessments provide instant feedback with customized learning plans. These plans provide a clear outline of next steps.

The Casey Life Skills Assessment must be administered upon the youth's entry in foster care and at ages 15 and 17. Results from the assessments will be used as a basis for the goals of the Written Transitional Living Plan (WTLP). The CLSA may be used more frequently as the WTLP is updated based the individual needs of the youth. Additionally, the CLSA may be used as a tool to assess a youth as he or she demonstrates they have mastered a particular skill.

Procedures

Developing the WTLP for Youth in Foster Care or Participating EYSS Program

The Social Services Case Manager (SSCM) will:

1. Schedule a formal meeting such as a Family Team Meeting (FTM) or Transition Roundtable (TRT) with the youth and the youth's support system (see policy 19.3 Case Management: Solution-Focused Family Team Meetings);
2. Review the youth detail page and the most recent, pertinent case documentation to determine youth's:
 - a. Reason(s) for Removal from Family / Foster Care Entry

 - c. Case Plan Goal
 - d. Individual and Family Developmental Stage(s)
 - e. Educational Status (highest grade level achieved and related performance),

 - g. Housing (current living arrangement)
 - h. Health (physical or mental health diagnosis and prescribed medications),
 - i. Supports (identified adult and peer connections)
 - j. Services (formal and informal/paid and unpaid)
3. Engage and assist the youth with the completion of the Casey Life Skills Assessment (CLSA) (see policy 13.2 Independent Living Program: Casey Life Skills Assessment);

The CLSA is not required for youth 18 years and older; however, prior to development of the WTLP it is important to review previous CLSAs for any information that may be helpful in developing or modifying outcomes.

4. Conduct a monthly purposeful contact with the youth and caregiver prior to the meeting (FTM/TRT):
 - a. Discuss findings (observations concerning youth strengths and needs) from the case review and CLSA.
 - b. Discuss the youth's academic and professional aspirations;
 - c. Obtain caregiver and youth perspective regarding the youth's strengths / assets and needs as it relates to the following five protective factors:
 - i. Resilience: Youth's ability to manage stress and function when faced with adversity or trauma.
 - ii. Social Connections: Youth's access to caring adults, positive peers, parents, and community supports that offer a sense of identity and belonging.
 - iii. Concrete Support in Times of Need: Youth's knowledge of and access to resources that address a specific issue or area of need.
 - iv. Knowledge of Child Development: The extent to which youth understand themselves – the impact of development on their physical changes, cognition, emotion and identity development.

- v. Cognitive and Social-Emotional Competence: Youth's ability to self-regulate thinking, emotions and behavior based on self-awareness and self-efficacy.
 - d. Reach a consensus regarding individual level outcomes the youth would like to achieve and describe how the FTM or TRT process will assist the youth in achieving outcomes;

 - vii. He/she has rights pertaining to education, health, visitation, court participation, receipt of an annual credit report, staying safe and avoiding exploitation; and
 - viii. He/she will receive a written copy of the rights discussed.
 - f. Engage the youth to identify supporters that he/she would like to invite to the FTM or TRT, and obtain contact information;
5. Conduct the formal meeting (FTM or TRT) with the youth and the youth's support system:
- a. Develop specific outcomes and tasks for the WTLP. Include formal and informal supports and services that may aid the youth in achieving outcomes associated with well-being and transition, see Practice Guidance in policy 13.4 Independent Living Program: Transition from Foster Care for transition planning description and guidance.
 - b. Develop a corresponding Action Plan to overcome potential barriers to outcomes that may prove difficult for the youth to achieve based on their assessed level of functioning, when appropriate. The Action Plan should assist youth and their support system to:

 - ii. The anticipated amount of time available to prepare the youth for the transition from foster care to independent living;
 - iii. The anticipated location and living situation of the youth upon discharge from foster care;

- iv. A description of the assessment processes, tools, and methods that have been, or will be used to determine the programs and services needed to assist the youth in preparing for the transition from foster care to independent living;

 - b. Juvenile court (for youth under 18 years old); and

 For youth in foster care ages 14-17 the juvenile court must approve the WTLP.

 - c. Independent Living Specialist (ILS).
 10. Review the youth's final dispositional order to ensure language reflecting approval of the initial/updated WTLP has been included in the court order;
 11. Contact the Special Assistant Attorney General (SAAG) should there be any issues with court orders relating to the incorporation of the WTLP into the case plan.
 12. Engage collaterals concerning services, supports and overall progress of the child toward the achievement of WTLP outcomes.
 13. Engage the youth during monthly purposeful contacts to review the WTLP outcomes, tasks and services being provided. Conversations should include a discussion of the following:
 - a. Progress towards legal permanency by reunification, adoption or guardianship (if applicable);
 - b. What progress has been made toward WTLP outcome achievement:
 - i. Acknowledgment and celebration of completed tasks and outcomes;
 - ii. What, if any barriers exist that may be influencing outcome achievement and potential solutions;
 - iii. Any changes that need to be made to the WTLP; and Independent Living Program services may be available to eligible youth who are no longer in foster care. When a youth who is no longer in foster care or in the EYSS program is approved to receive ILP services the ILS will initiate and the develop the WTLP using the guidelines above, where applicable.

Ongoing Reviews of the WTLP

At least every six months and prior to any case review or permanency plan hearing conducted by the juvenile court, the Social Services Case Manager (SSCM) will:

1. Schedule a meeting to review and possibly revise the WTLP;
2. Provide written notification within at least five calendar days of the meeting to the child and other relevant parties of the need to meet to review/revise the WTLP;
3. Engage collaterals concerning services, supports and overall progress of the child toward the achievement of WTLP outcomes.
4. Conduct a meeting with the family (if the case plan goal is reunification) or the child and care-giver (if the case plan goal is non-reunification) and the youth's supports to engage to discuss:
 - a. Progress towards legal permanency by reunification, adoption or guardianship (if applicable);
 - b. What progress has been made toward WTLP outcome achievement;

- c. What progress has been made toward outcome achievement of the Action Plan, if applicable;

8. Provide copies of the completed, approved and signed WTLP to the youth, ILS and juvenile court (for approval);
9. Review the court order for language that incorporates the WTLP following Citizen Panel Reviews, Judicial Reviews or Permanency Plan hearings;

11. Ensure the court issues a modification order reflecting any changes to the WTLP that occur outside of the normal review process;

The ILS is responsible for conducting ongoing reviews of the WTLP for youth no longer in foster care and no longer participating in EYSS. The ILS will:

5. Review and approve any changes that are made to the WTLP on an ongoing basis.

Practice Guidance

Developing, Reviewing, and Amending the WTLP

Developing the WTLP

Assisting a youth in the development of a transition plan that is actionable and self-directed begins with a quality assessment. Prior to drafting a plan the SSCM or ILS should be aware of the reason(s) the youth is in foster care and the possible trauma implications associated with those reasons. A review of pertinent case documentation is essential in gaining insight to:

1. The child's maltreatment history and surrounding circumstances;
2. How the parents or caregivers function with respect to daily life management including management of tasks associated with parenting a teenage child;
3. How the child manages tasks associated with their developmental stage (early, middle or late adolescence) - specifically, how the child functions physically, cognitively and emotionally on a daily basis to include self-regulation / impulse control, problem-solving, relational skills / social competencies, self-efficacy and involvement in positive activities;
4. Who and what serve as supports for the child (identify any caring adults, positive peers, parents and/or substitute caregivers who possess parenting competencies; community based supports such as the school environment, place of worship, and place of employment as applicable)

The SSCM/ILS should meet with the youth and caregiver to administer the Casey Life Skills Assessment (CLSA) to obtain additional information regarding the youth's mastery of specific daily life skills such as cooking, shopping, cleaning, money management, self-care (nutrition, hygiene, medication management, personal safety) and career planning.

At a meeting subsequent to the case file review and CLSA, the SSCM or ILS should meet with the child and caregivers to share assessment findings – the demonstrated assets or strengths and possible needs for the youth's successful transition to adulthood. During the meeting the SSCM or ILS should also obtain the youth's perspective concerning their strengths and needs. SSCM or ILS should consider utilizing the interviewing technique of 'normalizing' to broach sensitive subjects and to reach a consensus regarding desired outcomes associated with those areas of challenge. Normalizing, a method of understanding a behavior challenge within the context of normal adolescent development, can help to create an environment for open, honest dialogue and prevent defensiveness on the part of the youth. Normalizing provides an opportunity for the worker to express understanding and empathy regarding a behavior without condoning any particular action. For example:

Presenting challenge: A 17-year-old periodically sneaks out of the home at night to spend time with a boyfriend.

Possible Normalizing Language: 'It's not unusual for someone of your age to be involved in a serious relationship. I understand that you would want to spend time with someone who is important to you. Tell me what you like most about your boyfriend.'

Once the conversation is started, the worker can begin to explore other related issues that may need to be addressed in the WTLP such as personal safety, family planning and housing / placement stability. The SSCM and ILS will need to be familiar with adolescent development in order to use normalizing effectively (see Forms and Tools: Stages of Adolescent Development).

The SSCM/ILC should convey to the child and caregiver the importance of formally documenting a transition plan that will address identified needs. Utilization of a formal process such as an FTM or TRT adds structure to the conversation - structure intended to help participants focus on the required plan elements. A FTM format is most appropriate for youth whose case plan goal is reunification as the youth's parents must be involved in the transition planning discussion. A TRT is most appropriate for youth with a non-reunification case plan goal. As appropriate, a description of either the FTM or TRT process should be shared with the youth and caregiver as a method for devising the best possible plan. The SSCM/ILC should obtain the names and contact information of persons identified by the youth as his or her support system for participation in plan development. Youth have a legal right to participate in case plan development and to choose up to two members of the case planning team who are neither their foster parent nor caseworker. The date, time and location of the transition planning meeting should facilitate involvement of the youth and their supporters.

During the FTM, TRT or other formal meeting conducted to develop the WTLP, the youth and their support team will identify individualized goals/outcomes and corresponding tasks that will support a successful transition.

WTLP Outcomes and Tasks

Outcomes define the desired change or preferred conditions that must exist to facilitate a successful transition to adulthood. Outcomes should be individualized based on the assessed strengths and needs of the youth and must be:

1. behaviorally specific,
2. measurable,
3. attainable,
4. relevant to the successful transition to adulthood,
5. time-limited,
6. positively stated and
7. written in clear and simple language

Tasks define detailed, sequential steps that advance the youth toward the achievement of a specific outcome. Tasks are those activities that identify who will do what, when, how often and where. For example:

Outcome: Angela will complete all requirements for high school graduation by May 20th.

Task: Angela will attend Spanish tutoring three times per week (M/W/TH), 3:00 – 4:00 p.m. at Central H.S.

Task: ILS, Ms. Jones, will meet with Angela and FP's, Mr. & Mrs. Stevens, within 90 days to explain how to access financial supports available through ILP to assist with fees related to H.S. graduation.

Task: Angela's mother, Ms. Clark, will attend Central H.S.' Open House scheduled March 12th to meet Angela's teachers and to determine the number of remaining credits and other requirements needed for Angela to graduate.

Task: CASA, Ms. Gerber, will coordinate and accompany Angela on local college campus visits quarterly when Angela receives passing grades in all courses.

Tasks should NOT be assigned to individuals who do not participate in the transition planning meeting. Youth should be assigned age and developmentally appropriate tasks.

Reviewing the WTLP

A regular review of WTLP progress must be conducted by the SSCM for youth participating in EYSS. The ILS must conduct reviews for youth no longer in foster care but eligible and receiving ILP support. Monthly purposeful contacts with the youth by the SSCM serves as an opportunity to engage youth concerning the agreed upon goals and steps detailed in the plan. ILS should review WTLP progress during quarterly contact with those youth who are no longer in DFCS custody.

Amending the WTLP

The same process of engagement utilized to develop the initial WTLP should be employed to formally review and update or amend the plan. SSCM or ILS (as appropriate) should meet with youth and their identified support system as WTLP goals are achieved or issues arise that may require an amendment of the WTLP. For example, if it is determined that a youth's grades have declined dramatically, the SSCM or ILS should engage the youth, collaterals and the youth's support team to determine the root cause of the decline. The SSCM or ILS should reach a new consensus with the youth concerning required outcomes and related tasks based on the new information. The WTLP must be modified to reflect changes including services and supports. If additional services are initiated, updates should also be documented in Georgia SHINES on Youth Detail Reporting Page under the service categories (see policy 13.13 Independent Living Program: National Youth in Transition Database). Whether initiating or updating a plan, it is important that the youth assumes ownership of the goals and steps contained in the WTLP. Engagement should extend beyond the youth to the adults identified by the youth as allies or supporters. Efforts should be made to secure a commitment from the youth support system to provide assistance toward achieving the goals and steps in the WTLP. Partnerships will help lead to successful outcomes.

Action Plan

When appropriate, develop a corresponding Action Plan to overcome potential barriers to outcomes outlined in the WTLP. Like the WTLP, the Action Plan is a problem-solving tool intended to achieve outcomes, however the Action Plan differs from the WTLP as it drills down on specific tasks within the plan that may prove problematic for the youth based on their assessed level of functioning. The Action Plan should assist youth and their support system to:

1. Identify those difficult situations or tasks that the youth must manage to achieve outcomes / goals;
2. Identify early warning signs or unproductive behavior or signs that a youth is 'off track' related to goal achievement;
3. Include steps for the youth to prevent a loss of focus and direction;
4. Identify measures the youth can take to interrupt or escape unproductive behaviors and re-focus in the event the youth does lose sight of their goals.

For Example:

WTLP Outcome: Christopher will increase safety for himself and others by reducing the number of outbursts and altercations that occur in the home and community.

WTLP Task: Christopher will participate in trauma-focused cognitive behavior therapy (TF-CBT) sessions twice per week to learn coping strategies for managing difficult emotions such as depression, anger and frustration.

WTLP Task: Behavior Aide, Mr. Peters, will pick-up Christopher from school Tuesday and Thursday for transport to and from therapy sessions.

WTLP Task: Therapist, Ms. Carter, will help Christopher identify (verbally describe) thoughts and feelings that trigger mood swings.

WTLP Task: House Parent, Mr. Steele, will use a calendar to record the dates and times that Christopher appropriately responds to negative behavior triggers.

Christopher's 'Stay Calm and Carry On' Action Plan

Difficult / High Risk Situation

Riding home on the school bus with peers and getting teased

Warning Sign(s)

Feeling hot, heart beats faster, body becomes tense, mouth becomes dry

Prevention Plan

Sit in a seat close to the bus driver or bus monitor

Sit with a friend on the bus

Interruption Plan

If I can't sit next to the bus driver, monitor, or a friend on the bus and someone begins to tease me, I will wait until it is safe then move to another seat away from the person teasing.

And/or I will use earbuds to listen to music and try to ignore the teasing.

Escape Plan

If I am on the bus and begin to sense warning signs of anger or frustration, I will tell the bus driver or monitor how I am feeling and ask for help.

Regular reviews of the action plan should be conducted to assess how the youth is progressing toward goal achievement. The Action Plan is a fluid document that should be amended regularly to reflect accomplishments and to address setbacks.

Transition Roundtable (TRT)

The TRT is a youth-centered, structured, case consultation convened for the purpose of developing individualized plans to address legal permanency, permanent connections, housing, health insurance/health needs, education, employment and life skills. TRTs are most appropriate for youth 16 years of age and older with a non-reunification case plan goal (adoption, guardianship or APPLA) but may be utilized with youth as young as 14. A transition meeting is required for all youth in foster care at age 17. The resulting transition plan should be reviewed when the youth is 17 and 6 months and again at 17 and 9 months (90 days prior to their 18th birthday) to meet requirements of the Fostering Connections Act, see policy 13.4 Independent Living Program: Transition From Foster Care for the full list of items that must be addressed at the 90-day meeting. The TRT is a recommended tool to achieve compliance. Youth guide and inform the meeting with help from a facilitator who assists the team in identifying supports and services that meet the individualized needs of the youth. Resulting goals and action steps are incorporated into the youth's WTLP.

Prior to the transition roundtable, youth should participate in a Preparation Meeting conducted by the SSCM, ILS, Adult or Peer Advocate to:

1. Discuss the TRT purpose and six-phase process;

2. Explore how youth are managing activities and tasks related to their developmental stage - noting any challenges as well as areas where they are performing well (case documentation and the CLSA may be used to facilitate this conversation);
3. Reach a consensus regarding individual level outcomes the youth hopes to attain;
4. Identify significant people in their lives or permanent connections who can participate in their meeting; and
5. Agree on a meeting location and time that would be convenient for the youth and their supporters.

TRT team participants will vary based on the needs and wishes of the youth however the youth must always be present unless there is a compelling reason (e.g. incapacitating disability, resides out of state). Use technology (teleconferencing, Skype / video conference) to engage relevant team members who are unable to attend in person. Other team members should include:

1. Allies / Support System invited by the youth – In addition to responsible, committed, adults, youth are permitted to invite siblings or peers (boyfriend / girlfriend) who may serve as a support and/or positive influence during transition.
2. Youth’s current caregiver (kinship caregiver, foster parent, provider) unless youth says “no”.

 If the caregiver is unable to attend for any reason, a conversation should be held in advance of the TRT to obtain their perspective on the youth’s day to day functioning and management of age and developmentally appropriate tasks

3. Youth’s Social Services Case Manager
4. SSCM Supervisor
5. Independent Living Specialist
6. Therapist / Treatment Provider / Amerigroup Care Coordinator (if the youth has unmanaged mental health needs or developmental disabilities)
7. Regional Adoption Coordinator (RAC) (if there is a Termination of Parental Rights (TPR) has occurred on at least one parent or there is a special request for a RAC to participate based on an anticipated TPR filing)
8. Education Support Monitor (if the youth is below grade level or at grade level, but failing or youth has an IEP in place or youth is pursuing a GED)

WTLP Development for Youth with Diagnosed Disability

Special consideration and planning must occur in the development of a WTLP with youth diagnosed with a physical, emotional or mental / cognitive disability - particularly those who are experiencing challenges managing typical life situations as a result of the disability. If a youth’s capacity is diminished to the extent that they cannot appreciate and/or effectively engage in the transition planning process, then the youth’s interest should be represented by a parent, CASA, GAL or other identified advocate. Collaboration with other departments or agencies such as DFCS’ Well-Being Services Section, Amerigroup Care Coordinators, Department of Aging Services (APS), Department of Behavioral Health and Developmental Disabilities (DBHDD) and the Department of Vocational Rehabilitation should be sought when developing WTLP goals for this population of youth. DFCS’

Placement Resource Operations (PRO) Unit should be engaged if placement support is needed. The SSCM and the ILS must work in conjunction with other community agencies to ensure that needed services will continue to be provided as the youth transitions to adulthood. Documentation of a youth’s disability and extent of their limitations should be indicated in the Youth Detail Page Report.

Youth Unable to Make Decisions on their Own Behalf

The SSCM will:

1. Explore with the transition planning team what level of decision-making supports the youth will need ongoing:

 - a. Consult with the SAAG, in conjunction with the SSS when making the determination regarding the least restrictive decision-making support alternatives or whether the youth may qualify under law for a guardian when they turn 18, if the least restrictive options are not appropriate to meet the needs of the youth. If the decision is to seek an adult guardianship in Probate Court:
 - i. Discuss whether there is an adult in the youth's life that is willing and able to serve as the youth's guardian when they turn 18, i.e. kin, foster parent, other committed adult(s); and
 - ii. Provide the SAAG with information on the efforts made to explore and locate individuals to nominate as a guardian for the youth when they turn age 18 (see Practice Guidance: Guardianship for the order of preference in the selection of guardians from Georgia law).

 A guardian does not need to be either a blood relative or fictive kin.

 - b. If a guardian of last resort (public guardianship) will be pursued, inform the DAS/Public Guardianship Office (PGO), of DFCS' intent to proceed with filing the guardianship petition.
3. In conjunction with the SAAG, ensure the petition for guardianship is ready to be filed in Probate Court within 6 months prior to the youth's 18th birthday (see Forms and Tools: Checklist to File the Petition for Appointment of an Adult Guardian).

The ILS will:

1. Participate in all TM to develop, review and finalize the transition plan.
2. Collaborate with the SSCM to support the youth in addressing the transition planning items needing attention.

The SSS will:

1. Conduct a staffing with the SSCM prior to the TM or foster care exit meeting to assist the SSCM in directing, planning and conducting the meetings.

2. During ongoing supervisor staffings, include:
 - a. A review of the youth's progress with their transition plan;
 - b. Proactive planning with other agencies for youth with complex needs including intellectual or developmental disabilities or who may need decision-making support, to ensure they receive appropriate services; and
 - c. Discussion of adjustments that may be needed in the youth's transition plan.
3. Provide guidance to the SSCM regarding the level of decision-making supports the youth with need ongoing, including community supports available to meet the youth's need; and/or alternative decision-making support options, using the least restrictive to meet the youth's needs.
4. Participate in the consultation with the SAAG regarding the least restrictive options for the youth or the filing a guardianship in Probate Court if it appears the youth will qualify for a guardian when they turn 18.
5. Attend the TM or foster care exit meeting (if possible).
6. Review the documentation from the meeting to ensure the required items were discussed. Review and approve the Transition Plan.
7. Review the case record to ensure required documents are available for issuance to the youth prior to exit from foster care.

Practice Guidance

Transition Planning

The Fostering Connections to Success and Increasing Adoptions Act of 2008 outlines provisions for a transition plan for youth within the 90 days preceding their 18th birthday and eventual exit from foster care. Transition planning should begin on day one of a child's placement into foster care and occur over the life of the case. Transition plans help youth in foster care make a successful transition to adulthood. Successful transition plans consider the youth's age, skills and abilities. It should be developed in a manner that allows the youth to see the value of the plan as they transition out of foster care, and to ensure the youth understands it and will refer to it as a resource.

The transition plan is personalized and youth-directed and include services and resources that help ensure youth are prepared to make healthy decisions about their future. Youth, like adults, are more likely to assume ownership of a plan they participated in developing. Therefore, SSCMs should actively engage youth in the development and implementation of their transition plan to ensure its success. The transition plan must be as detailed as the youth chooses. All identified needs must be resolved or near resolution by the 90th day prior to the youth's exit from foster care.

While case planning/permanency planning is DFCS' ongoing efforts to transition youth out of foster care to a permanent living situation, transition planning is the youth's plan for after foster care if they have not achieved permanency. It describes where youth will live, how they will support themselves and other immediate daily living goals that must be met, beginning day one of their exit from foster care.

Special consideration must be given to undocumented immigrant youth in foster care approaching age 18. In accordance with the Georgia Immigration and Security Act, no state or local government funding is available for undocumented immigrant children once they reach 18 years of age unless/until they obtain a legal immigration status. Therefore, unless the youth has a legal status, they will not be able to participate in EFC.

Scattered Site Placement Readiness Assessment for Participant in Extended Foster Care

The purpose of this assessment tool is to determine youth readiness for placement in an Independent Living Scattered Site Placement setting on their 18th birthday. The assessment must be completed by the Independent Living Specialist assigned to the participant’s legal region. This assessment should be completed with the participant, the participant’s case manager, and other members of the participant’s support network. The assessment may take up to 45 minutes to complete. It is recommended that the assessment is completed at the transition planning meeting held within 90 days of a youth turning age 18 if the youth is planning to participate in EFC, to support their transition.

Transition Planning for Youth Assessed Unable to Make Decisions on their Own Behalf

The CCTU, WPAC, DAS, DBHDD, Amerigroup among other appropriate entities should be engaged to assess whether youth may need decision making support when they become an adult. If so, it is each department’s responsibility to plan, in advance, to ensure that the youth’s identified needs are met without a gap in services when they turn 18 years old. To accomplish this transition, all agencies will need to collaborate to develop the best plan for the youth based on his/her individual needs, beginning as early as possible. As the legal custodian of the youth, DFCS should take the lead and serve as the facilitator for the youth’s transition team.

Care Coordination Treatment Unit

Provides consultation for youth with high-end mental/behavioral health needs, intellectual/developmental disabilities, and complex medical issues via regionally assigned Therapeutic Support Specialists (TSSs). If a youth is identified as having an intellectual/developmental disability, or medical condition which may impact their decision-making capacity, the TSS should be contacted to attend the initial TM staffing. TSSs offer the ability to support the county by reviewing key documentation/files, identifying service gaps, providing case consultation, coordination of follow-up meetings as needed, referrals to the appropriate resources, guidance on necessary assessments, and assistance with connections to affiliate agencies.

Wellness Programming Assessment and Consultation (WPAC)

Participates in the transitional planning for youth by assisting in identifying appropriate assessments that would aid in transition planning, addressing barriers in accessing medical services/coverage, provide guidance in planning youth's medical transition from pediatric care to adult care providers, and reviewing health information in Georgia SHINES to ensure appropriate documentation.

Collaboration with Division of Aging Services

APS investigates allegations of reports of abuse, neglect, and exploitation of disabled adults age 18 years or older and elder persons 65 years of age or older who are not residents of a licensed or long-term care facility. Investigations of allegations of abuse or exploitation of persons (any age) residing in facilities are reported to and conducted by the Department of Community Health, Healthcare Facility Regulation Division. APS also evaluates and arrange for services needed to prevent or alleviate further maltreatment (abuse, neglect or exploitation).

 APS can only file for guardianship when there is abuse/neglect or exploitation involved in the case of an adult subject to their authority. In such cases, APS will consult with PGO.

APS can assist DFCS on complex cases by participating in case staffings or transition planning meetings and provide information regarding available services and supports. Complex cases include but are not limited to medically fragile youth and youth who cannot self-advocate. It is preferred to engage APS when youth reach 16 years old for future planning purposes. Before the staffing/transition planning meeting, DFCS should provide APS with a detailed social history, medical history, and any other documents to help in determining the future needs of the youth.

DECISION MAKING SUPPORT OPTIONS
Type	Description
Supported Decision-Making (SDM)	Allows individuals with disabilities to make choices about their own lives with support from a team of people they choose. Individuals with disabilities choose people they know and trust to be part of a support network to help with decision-making. Supported decision-making is an alternative to guardianship. Instead of having a guardian make a decision for the person with the disability, SDM allows the person with the disability to make his or her own decisions.

Power of Attorney (POA)	A legal document that gives one adult legal authority to act for another adult. The person giving the authority is called the “principal.” The person who is given the authority to make decisions on behalf of the principal is called the “agent.” The agent can give as little or as much power as they want to give to the principal. This means the principal may limit a POA to a very specific transaction or grant full power to someone over all of their affairs. A POA can cover tasks like writing and signing checks to more complex matters likes selling a person’s home or property. With a POA, the principal can choose who they want to act as their agent. Types of POA: <ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1. General POA: grants agents’ powers that end at the principal’s incapacity. 2. Durable POA: grant agents’ powers that are not terminated by the principal’s incapacity. A POA becomes a Durable Power of Attorney (DPOA) when it states that the agent’s power continues when the principal is unable to communicate his or her wishes. Types of durable POA are: <ol style="list-style-type: none"> a. Limited Durable POA b. General Durable POA 3. Special or Limited POA (for specific purpose limited) 4. Springing POA (effective upon incapacity)
Advance Directives for Healthcare	Authorizes the agent to make health care decisions for the individual, consistent with the terms of the document and based on the wishes of the individual. A person can name someone as an agent to make healthcare decisions. It can also include statements of the person’s wishes concerning medical treatment.
Representative Payee	A representative payee is a person, or an organization appointed as a payee to receive the Social Security or SSI benefits for anyone who can’t manage or direct the management of their benefits. A payee’s main duties are to use the benefits to pay for the current and future needs of the beneficiary, and properly save any benefits not needed to meet current needs. A payee must also keep records of expenses. When a report is requested, the payee must provide an accounting of expenses to SSA of how the benefits were used or saved.
Fiduciary/Conservator	A fiduciary is an agent in whom complete confidence is placed by another in regard to either a particular transaction or all of one’s general affairs or business. The relationship is not necessarily formally or legally established as in a declaration of trust but can be one of moral or personal responsibility, due to the superior knowledge and training of the fiduciary as compared to the one whose affairs the fiduciary is handling.
Adult Guardianship	A legal process where a court decides if a person lacks the capacity to make decisions for themselves and there are no less restrictive alternatives than guardianship. A guardian is granted custody and control (including decision-making) over the ward by the court. Guardians can be given limited or broad authority over the ward. Guardians are responsible for making sure the ward has adequate medical attention, an acceptable place to live, adequate food, etc. No guardian, including DHS as guardian of last resort, is required to use any of their own funds to acquire or pay for the needs of the ward including housing or medical care; rather the guardian assists the ward in utilizing the ward’s own resources and income to meet their needs to the extent possible.

Limits on Guardianship Authority

The court may impose limits on the duties of a guardian of the person in its order. The court also may limit the duration of the guardianship. In addition, a guardian of the person must respect the expressed wishes and preferences of the individual to the greatest extent possible. The guardian also must encourage the individual to participate in all decision to the maximum extent of the individual’s abilities in all decisions that affect him or her and must encourage the ward to regain the capacity to handle their own affairs. The guardian cannot restrict with whom the ward communicates or visits and cannot monitor or supervise the personal visitations of the ward. A guardian cannot force a ward to take medication or undergo medical care against the will of the ward.

The guardian of the person must submit annual reports to the court concerning the services the individual is receiving, the number and length of times the guardian visited the person during the year, and any major medical or mental health problems the individual experienced during the year.

Guardianship - Rights Retained by the Ward

The ward retains the right to have a guardian who is qualified to serve as guardian, acts in their best interest, and is reasonably accessible. They also maintain the right to file motions or actions relating to the guardianship, have their property used to provide for their support, care, education, health, and welfare, have the least restrictive form of guardianship, tailored to the person's functional limitations, personal needs, and preferences; for the guardianship to end or be terminated at the earliest possible time; and to communicate and visit freely and privately with persons other than the guardian (unless a court has issued an order prohibiting or limiting contact). The ward does not lose other rights that are not mentioned in the guardianship law. This includes the right to refuse psychotropic medications, refuse in-patient psychiatric treatment, maintain physical integrity. Generally, the ward can still refuse invasive surgeries, such as amputations, organ removals, etc. The guardian should obtain the permission of the court to override the person's refusal to undergo procedures this drastic.

Guardianship - Rights Removed from the Ward

A full guardianship removes from the ward the following rights:

- To get married and to get divorced;
- To make, modify, or terminate any and all contracts, which includes examples such as hiring or firing professional supports or care, enrolling in college, signing a lease, starting or stopping cell phone, TV, or internet service or adding apps to smart devices, joining a gym, buying an airplane ticket or concert ticket, purchasing products for home delivery from an online retailer, getting a shopper's discount/reward card or account for a pharmacy, grocery store, or fast-food restaurant, getting or cancelling a credit card or debit card, adding or dropping insurance for a car
- To consent to medical treatment, which includes therapies (occupational, speech, etc.), medications, procedures, and surgeries
- To decide where to live
- To change legal address/residence
- To revoke a revocable trust established by the respondent
- To bring or defend any court case, administrative agency decision, or other legal claims, whether in arbitration, mediation, an agency, or in court, except:
 - In probate court, anything related to the guardianship,
 - Civil commitment,
 - Involuntary administration of psychotropic medications,
 - Some medical procedures, and
 - Criminal cases.

Any limited or full guardianship removes the right of the person to obtain a weapon carry permit.

Guardianship Proceeding

In a guardianship proceeding, the court must first determine if the individual is in fact in need of a guardian under the law, then who is the appropriate party to be appointed as guardian. The court appoints a guardian to assist in making personal decisions on behalf of the individual deemed to lack capacity (ward). A person will be deemed to lack capacity if their ability to receive and evaluate information effectively and to communicate decisions is so impaired that he or she cannot meet the essential requirements for his or her physical health or safety. The authority of a guardian to make decisions on behalf of an incapacitated person depends in large part on the scope of the court's order.

The court can appoint a person to act as a "plenary" guardian of the person or as a "limited" guardian of the person. If the court appoints a "limited" guardian of the person, it must designate the guardian's specific duties, such as general care and maintenance of the individual; deciding where the individual will live; assuring that the individual receives necessary services and health care. A person who is the plenary guardian of the person can make all such decisions on behalf of the individual and many other significant personal decisions.

Prior to appointing any guardian, the petitioners must present evidence as to whether alternatives to guardianship have been pursued to ensure the continued protection and preservation of the rights of the person under guardianship. Alternatives to guardianship may include informal or formal support structures that exist without court action or the removal of constitutional rights, i.e. Supported Decision Making, having a financial or healthcare Power of Attorney to assist with specific needs, or having a Representative Payee to handle limited financial needs. The SSCM should make and document efforts to explore the least restrictive alternatives before making the decision to take the matter to court.

The Probate Court determines the guardian pursuant to Georgia law which provides the following order of preference in the selection of guardians:

1. The individual last nominated by the proposed ward;
2. The spouse of the proposed ward or an individual nominated by the proposed ward's spouse;
3. An adult child of the proposed ward or an individual nominated by an adult child;
4. A parent of the proposed ward or an individual nominated by a parent of the proposed ward;
5. A guardian appointed during the minority of proposed ward;
6. A guardian previously appointed in Georgia or another state,
7. A friend, relative or any other individual;
8. Any other person, including a volunteer to the court, found suitable and appropriate who is willing to accept the appointment; or,
9. The county guardian.

The Probate Court Guardianship Process

1. Any interested adult, including the proposed ward, may file a petition for the appointment of a guardian in the Probate Court. The petition shall be:

a. Sworn to by two people as petitioners; or i The SAAG cannot be the petitioner, however, can file the petition on behalf of DFCS.

b. Supported by one petitioner and a notarized affidavit of the professional working with the youth (i.e. a psychiatrist, psychologist, licensed clinical social worker).

i Any affidavit shall be based on personal knowledge and shall state that the affiant has examined the proposed ward within 15 days prior to the filing of the petition and that, based on the examination, the proposed ward was determined to lack sufficient capacity to make or communicate significant, responsible decisions concerning the proposed ward's health or safety. The affidavit shall state the foreseeable duration of the guardianship and may set forth the affiant's opinion as to any other limitations on the guardianship.

2. Upon the filing of the petition and affidavit, if any, the court will determine if there is probable cause to believe the proposed ward is in need of a guardian. If there is no probable cause, the case is dismissed.

3. If the Probate Court finds probable cause:

a. The proposed ward will be personally served with notice informing them:

i. A court action has been initiated to have a guardian appointed for them;

ii. The Probate Court will conduct an evaluation and the date and time to submit to the court's evaluation; and

iii. Of their right to counsel, which will be appointed by the court within two days of service unless the proposed ward indicates he or she has retained counsel in that timeframe.

i The Probate Court may appoint a GAL for the subject of the petition.

4. The Probate Court will:

a. Conduct a hearing.

b. Determines if the petitioners have presented clear and convincing evidence at the hearings that the proposed individual meeting the qualification for needing a legal guardian and appoints a guardian if the court finds the proposed ward lacks sufficient capacity to make or communicate significant responsible decisions concerning their health or safety.

c. Determines the fitness of the proposed guardian. (This includes using information from background checks (criminal history, credit check), etc.).

d. Ask why other individuals cannot serve as a guardian when an appointment of DHS as guardian of last resort is being sought.

5. The order for guardianship must be obtained before the appointed guardian can take the oath of guardianship.

6. Fees vary depending on the jurisdiction of the Probate Court. Each jurisdiction may have add-on fees based on what is allowable by law.

Guardian of Last Resort (Public Guardian)

In Georgia, DHS DAS/Public Guardianship Office (PGO) may serve as the guardian of an adult when there is no one qualified, suitable, or available to serve. This is referred to as “guardian of last resort.” The court appoints DHS as an entity. Prior to appointing DHS as guardian, the court must first determine that guardianship is necessary and second, that no other alternate guardians as listed in the priority section are willing or appropriate to serve in that role. Before considering DHS as a guardian the SSCM should make and document efforts to locate an interested and appropriate individual in the youth’s life to serve as a guardian and rule out these options before seeking a last resort guardian.

Before filing the petition for a guardian of last resort, the SSCM should inform the DAS/PGO of the intent to file the petition to facilitate a DAS/PGO case manager’s attendance at the hearing.

The DAS/PGO was created and split from APS. PGO has its own staff, supervisory structure, and training protocols.

Requirements

The Division of Family and Children Services (DFCS) will:

1. Offer any youth that meets the eligibility requirements the option to open a matched savings account known as the Individual Development Account (IDA). The purpose of the IDA is to assist eligible youth, in or out of foster care, with the accumulation of assets and resources needed for independent living. To qualify for the IDA, youth must meet the following eligibility criteria:
 - a. Be enrolled in the Georgia Independent Living Program (ILP)
 - b. Be between 16 to 21 years of age;
 - c. Qualify to open a banking account (i.e., meet the financial institution's identification and previous banking history requirements); and
 - d. Participate in an IDA orientation and financial literacy training.
2. Match up to $1,000 of a youth's deposits for qualified asset purchases.

The DFCS match component of the IDA is determined based upon the availability of funding. If match funding is not available, existing participants will be notified in writing, and future participants will be notified during the IDA sign-up process. If funding becomes available later, participants will be informed in writing at that time of the new availability of matching funds.

3. Allow eligible youth to make emergency withdrawals of IDA funds that are not qualified asset purchases on a case-by-case basis. Emergency withdrawals shall only include funds deposited by the applicable youth and shall not include any DFCS matching funds.
4. Periodically review the participation of youth enrolled in the IDA program to determine their level of engagement.

The ILP Business Operations Specialist (BOS) shall exercise administrative oversight authority over Individual Development Accounts.

Procedures

Determining Eligibility for an IDA and Enrollment

The Social Services Case Manager (SSCM) or Independent Living Specialist (ILS) will:

1. Verify that the youth is between the ages of 16-21, and enrolled in the Independent Living Program;
2. Confirm that the youth satisfies the requirements of the financial institution, including the following:
 - a. The youth possesses documents that are accepted as verification of his or her identity such as a government issued photo ID card or Driver's License, etc. If the youth does not possess proper identification, DFCS must assist the youth with obtaining a valid state identification card (see Georgia's Department of Driver Services' website for information on how to obtain a state identification card).
 - b. The youth has a satisfactory previous banking history, if applicable.
3. Confirm that the youth has attended the required IDA orientation and Financial Literacy Training.
4. Assist the youth with opening an IDA at an authorized financial institution.

5. Provide the ILP BOS with the required bank account information within five business days of verifying the youth has completed all IDA enrollment requirements.

The ILP Business Operations Specialist (BOS) will:

1. Provide an IDA Award Letter to eligible youth, the youth's SSCM, and the ILS within five business days of receiving the banking information and verification of eligibility.
2. Assign a Survey ID to eligible youth which enables youth to participate in the Opportunity Passport Baseline Survey.

Account Matching Procedures

To initiate the request for DFCS to match their deposits eligible youth must complete an Asset Purchase Intent Form and submit the form to their ILS or SSCM.

Within five business days of receipt of the Asset Purchase Intent Form from the youth, the ILS will:

1. Verify the youth's bank account has been open for at least three months;
2. Verify at least $5.00 has been deposited into the youth's bank account monthly for at least the last three consecutive months prior to the request;
3. Verify that there is a balance of at least $250 in the youth's bank account;
4. Forward each approved Asset Purchase Intent Form to the ILP BOS within 72 hours of completing the verification process.

Within five business days of receiving the approved Asset Purchase Intent Form, the ILP BOS will:

1. Inform the youth's banking institution that the youth is eligible for DFCS to match IDA funds; and
2. Ensure the appropriate documentation is provided to the youth and the banking institution.

Emergency Withdrawal Procedures

To initiate a request for an emergency withdrawal from their IDA account, eligible youth must:

1. Contact the ILS to discuss the emergency;
2. Provide a specific explanation as to why the emergency funds are needed; and
3. Identify other resources that were explored prior to making an emergency withdrawal request.

Upon receiving an emergency withdrawal request from a youth the ILS will:

1. Discuss the emergency withdrawal request with the youth and remind the youth that DFCS does not match funds in emergency withdrawal situations;
2. Verify that the request is a legitimate emergency and that the youth has explored other options prior to requesting emergency funds from their IDA account;
3. Assist the youth with identifying and exploring other resources to assist in meeting his or her needs prior to approving the emergency withdrawal request.
4. If the emergency withdrawal is deemed appropriate, notify the ILP BOS of the specific amount that is approved for withdrawal. Emergency withdrawals may be approved for day-to-day living expenses such as food, bills (in the youth's name), prescriptions for the youth or the youth's child, clothing for school or work, etc.

When contacted by the ILS with an approved request for an emergency withdrawal of IDA funds, the ILP BOS will:

1. Inform the appropriate banking institution that the youth has been approved to withdraw funds, including the specific amount that has been approved for withdrawal from the IDA account; and
2. Provide the bank and youth with the appropriate documentation to release the funds.

Monitoring Youth's Participation in the IDA Program

During periodic reviews of a youth's engagement in the IDA program the SSCM or ILS will:

1. Discuss IDA contributions and/or withdrawals during monthly contacts, as part of the Written Transitional Living Plan (WTLP) discussion, or at other meetings.
2. For youth ages 18-21 who are not participating in the EYSS program, contact the youth at least every six months to discuss the youth's contributions and/or withdrawals to their IDA account;
3. Contact the ILP BOS at least every six months to discuss the balance in the youth's IDA bank account and any contributions or withdrawals that occurred during this period; and
4. Document the youth's participation, level of engagement and IDA account status in Georgia SHINES, the Statewide Automated Child Welfare Information System.

In order to allow as many youth as possible to actively participate and benefit from the IDA program, the ILP BOS will:

1. Review the IDA program participant rolls at least once per year to determine if current enrollees are actively engaged in the program and contact their SSCM or ILS if participation issues are noted.
2. Remove IDA program participants from the active roster and ensure their IDA is closed if any of the following has occurred:
 - a. A youth has reached their savings or asset purchase goals;
 - b. DFCS has met the match contribution maximum of $1,000;
 - c. A youth has not made a deposit beyond DFCS participation incentive funds for nine months after the account was opened;
 - d. A youth has kept an account open for at least nine months with no deposit activity in the most recent six consecutive months.
3. Mail a certified to the last known address of the youth to inform them of their account status and offer an opportunity to discuss the account status prior to the closing of the account;
4. Update the records, file all correspondence into the participant's file, and proceed with closure of the IDA if the youth does not respond to the certified letter within 30 calendar days, or notifies the ILP BOS of their desire to proceed with closing the IDA.

Youth who are removed from the active participation roster are not eligible to re-enter the IDA program for a period of at least one year. However, they maintain access to the funds in their account after the closure of the IDA.

Practice Guidance

Overview of the Individual Development Account Program

The IDA program helps eligible youth, that are either in or transitioning from foster care, to accumulate assets. The IDA helps ensure they have the resources needed to begin living on their own as adults. The IDA is established at a financial institution within the community and is opened in the name of the youth. The account earns interest, usually at the bank's savings rate. Withdrawals from the account may only occur with the approval of the IDA administrator, which is the ILP BOS.

As the administrator for the IDA program in Georgia, the ILP BOS is responsible for monitoring the program's activities, tracking participation at orientations and financial literacy trainings, processing match and incentive funds, and all other administrative functions of the program. The SSCM and ILS are responsible for informing eligible youth about the benefits of the IDA program, supporting their participation and trouble-shooting any issues with opening bank accounts, making regular deposits, understanding asset purchase requirements or requesting matches.

ILP encourages all enrolled youth to participate in the IDA program to the fullest extent possible. However, some participants are unable to continue their participation or become disinterested in continuing the program for a variety of reasons. When youth reach their savings or asset purchase goals, or discontinue participation in the IDA program, the IDA is closed with DFCS. However, the youth maintains access to the remaining funds in their account.

Individual Development Account (IDA) Asset Goals

The goal of the IDA program is to help youth transitioning to adulthood to accumulate the assets they will need to become self-sufficient. The IDA program accomplishes this by presenting opportunities for youth to obtain matching funds from DFCS (up to $1,000) to reach savings or asset goals. When determining if an asset goal is an acceptable for the Georgia ILP IDA program, two general guidelines are applied:

1. Economic self-sufficiency: the goal should enable participants to sustain themselves as they transition to self-sufficiency.
2. Value appreciation: Investment goals should likely increase in value, or provide enhanced usage for the youth, over time.

When youth become eligible to participate in the IDA program, they indicate which asset they plan to purchase with the funds in their IDA on the Georgia Youth Opportunities Initiative Application. Once the youth has saved their portion of the cost of the asset, the youth must complete the Asset Purchase Intent Form, which describes the specific asset for which the youth is requesting matching assistance to purchase.

Common asset purchases qualifying for DFCS matching funds include, but are not limited to:

1. Purchasing a vehicle;

2. Car Insurance/Repairs;
3. Investments;
4. Housing;
5. Educational expenses;
6. Health and dental care;
7. Microenterprise; and
8. Credit building.

The ILP BOS may approve matching funds for assets not listed above, on a case-by-case basis.

IDA Orientation

The orientation required for IDA eligibility includes:

1. An overview of the application process and legal documentation requirements such as a government issued photo ID card or Driver's License; (Youth must bring their ID to the orientation if available);
2. Discussions around the youth's commitment to and understanding of the IDA savings/matching process;
3. The process for opening a bank account, including the financial institution's account opening requirements and record check systems such as the CHEXSystem reporting service. Youth that are identified in the CHEXSystem as having a negative banking record must attend a class offered by the banking institution in order to resolve the negative banking history prior to enrolling in the IDA program.
4. Expectations regarding financial literacy training, and options for attending upcoming training courses;
5. Explanations of financial incentives provided at various checkpoints during the participation in the IDA program;
6. IDA specifics, such as the amount and frequency of deposits, desired goal amount (maximum), purpose of the account, matching fund ratio, authorized withdrawal purposes, and beneficiary information;
7. Developing a plan to open a bank account within 30 calendar days of the completion of the IDA orientation; and
8. Completion of the Georgia Youth Opportunities Initiative Application.

Participation Incentives

(See COSTAR Manual for specifics and official amounts)

In addition to matching youth deposits, incentive dollars can be earned by the youth and deposited into their respective IDA. Incentives include the following:

1. Financial Literacy Training Incentive;
2. IDA Savings account match;

3. Seed Payment
4. IDA Survey Incentives
5. IDA Incentives

Opportunity Passport Surveys

The IDA program is a component of the Georgia Youth Opportunities Initiative (GYOI). Along with participants in other states Georgia ILP youth participating in the IDA program will complete surveys as a part of the national database. The purpose of the surveys is to learn more about the impact of the program and whether it has made a difference to participants in the areas of permanency, education, employment, financial capability, housing, physical and mental health, and social capital. Surveys are administered online at the time of enrollment into the program (baseline) and twice a year thereafter.

Applying for a State of Georgia Identification Card

To meet eligibility requirements for opening a bank account a government issued picture identification document is required. To obtain a State of Georgia Identification Card the youth will need to supply:

1. Proof of his/her identity (1 document), such as:
 - a. Valid U.S. passport;
 - b. U.S. birth certificate (issued by the Office of Vital Statistics or equivalent); or
 - c. Certificate of Birth Naturalization (N-550/N-570) issued by the Department of Homeland Security (DHS).
2. Proof of Georgia residency (2 documents), such as:
 - a. Utility bill issued within 60 days;
 - b. Financial statement (bank, credit card, etc.);
 - c. Current rental agreement; or
 - d. If the youth is a dependent and cannot prove residency, the Georgia Department of Drivers Services (DDS) will also accept:
 - i. A State or Federal income tax return for the current or preceding year (listing the youth as a dependent); or
 - ii. School transcript with the youth's residence shown
3. Proof of Social Security number (1 document), such as:
 - a. Social Security card (original or copy);
 - b. W-2 form; or
 - c. Social Security denial/refusal letter.

2. If there is no credit history, document the discussion with the youth in Georgia SHINES within 72 hours.
3. If there is credit history reported, the SSCM should, in addition to discussing the report with the youth:

Subsequent Annual Credit Reports and Consumer Credit Training

Youth ages 14-17 who remain in foster care must have an annual credit report completed and receive annual consumer credit training. In order to obtain subsequent annual credit reports the ILP CRS will:

The youth may participate in individual, group, or electronic learning to meet the yearly training requirement.

3. Document the specific annual training the youth completed in Georgia SHINES.

RBWO providers should document all credit report training provided in the ILP Monthly Services Report under Budget and Finance Management.

Assisting Youth with Resolving Credit Report Inaccuracies

To help the youth resolve all inaccuracies on their credit report, the SSCM will:

1. Collaborate with the youth's Guardian Ad Litem (GAL) and/or Court Appointed Special Advocate (CASA) to assist the youth in disputing and resolving the credit report findings by following the steps outlined in the article Taking Charge: What to do if Your Identity is Stolen;

Any information shared in electronic form with an outside entity (credit bureaus etc.) must be sent in an encrypted file. Contact the Business Application Specialist (BAS) for assistance in creating an encrypted email.

3. Forward all correspondence received concerning resolution of the youth's credit report to the ILP CRS and request that the youth's credit history information memorandum is updated;
4. Upload all correspondence from the credit reporting agencies into Georgia SHINES External Documentation.

The ILP CRS will:

1. Complete a new credit history memorandum within 30 calendar days upon receipt of information resolving the youth's credit history including:

- a. The date of the resolution;

Consumer Credit Training Courses

The following may be used to meet the annual credit training requirements for youth:

1. Individual or group training that includes information on interpreting and understanding credit reports that is facilitated by a SSCM, Room, Board and Watchful Oversight (RBWO) provider, Independent Living Specialist (ILS) or other provider who has been trained in a consumer credit counseling curriculum (Credibility, etc.)
2. Electronic learning such as webinars, DVD programs, podcasts, or other electronic trainings. The following options are free of charge:

- a. TransUnion Consumer Education: Understanding How Credit Reporting Works
- b. National Foundation for Credit Counseling: College Credit for Life: The College Credit for Life video and Tool Kit introduces students to lessons surrounding the temptations and responsible use of credit cards. Much of the video features young people talking about the mistakes they themselves made in college. The video also features other voices, in the form of an apartment rental agent, a car salesman, and a human resources executive, all discussing the implications that both responsible or irresponsible use of credit can have as students prepare to move on from college and into the real world. This video may be accessed through the following link: College Credit for Life.
- c. Consumer Credit Basics PowerPoint-Michigan Credit Unit League

This presentation includes basic information about lending and credit that everyone needs to know in order to use credit wisely and enjoy personal financial health. This training is appropriate for middle and high school students, as well as adult audiences and may be accessed through the following link: Consumer Credit Basics Power Point

Other consumer credit training sources may be used, but must include information on interpreting and understanding credit reports.

Credit Reports for Older Youth in Foster Care

The Child and Family Services Improvement and Innovation Act (P.L. 112-34) requires that all youth in foster care who are 16 to 18 years of age receive assistance in obtaining a copy of their consumer credit report each year until they leave foster care. The law also includes the provision that the youth receives assistance in interpreting the credit report and resolving any discrepancies. The Preventing Sex Trafficking and Strengthening Families Act (P.L. 113-183) amended this provision to increase the requirement for credit reports for youth in care to begin at age 14. The youth's credit report must be generated from all three (3) credit reporting agencies and reviewed every 12 months from age 14 thru age 18 as long as the youth remains in foster care. Georgia law (O.C.G.A.

10-1-914) allows for additional protection for consumers under the age of 16 for whom a guardian has been appointed.

All youth, in or out of foster care, should be educated on the importance that credit history plays in their lives. Youth should be well informed and understand:

1. The information contained in credit reports is used to evaluate applications for loans, cell phones, cable, utilities, credit cards, insurance, employment, purchasing a car or home, renting an apartment, etc.
2. Regular monitoring of their credit report is important to ensure information is accurate, up-to-date, and to prevent identity fraud.
3. Once a youth reaches 18 years of age they can request their own annual free credit report at www.AnnualCreditReport.com.
4. If they have a less than favorable credit score, they can be denied many of the aforementioned services, be asked for a large deposit to cover the cost of a service, or be denied employment opportunities.
5. The importance of correcting discrepancies and/or negative information on the credit report when they are first discovered.
6. The importance of protecting their identity and ways to protect their personal identifying information such as social security numbers and birth dates, etc.

Identity Theft (also referred to as Identity Fraud)

Identity Theft/Fraud occurs when someone uses your identifying information, like your name, Social Security number or credit card number, without your permission, to commit fraud or other crimes.

Some examples of identity theft include, but are not limited to, the following:

1. Credit card accounts that the youth has not opened;
2. Utility bills in the youth's name created prior to the youth residing on their own, in their own home;
3. Car purchases if the youth does not have a vehicle;
4. Recurring electronic payments that are set up using the youth's debit or credit card information; or
5. The filing of income taxes using the youth's information.

All youth need to be aware that fraud or identify theft can occur in multiple ways such as by placing card readers or "skimmers" on ATM machines or gas pumps. Similarly, thieves are also able to use handheld devices, or "hack" into online accounts to obtain credit or debit card information from consumers, including personal identification numbers (PIN). Foster youth are at even greater risk of identity fraud due to the number of individuals that have access to their personal information, such as birthdates or social security numbers. As such, in addition to having an awareness concerning their personal information and finances, youth also need to know that if they find that their ATM or Debit card information has been used without their permission, their bank should be contacted immediately to assist the youth in deactivating their account information and assist in the recovery of funds. For more information on identity theft or fraud, visit Consumer Information-Protecting Your Identity.

Initial Fraud Alert

When discrepancies are noted on a consumer's credit report at least one of the three credit reporting agencies should be contacted and a request made to place a fraud alert on the consumer's credit history. If an initial fraud alert is placed on an account, potential creditors must verify a person's identity before extending credit. Initial fraud alerts are free and remain in effect for 90 days. An extended fraud alert may also be placed on a consumer's credit history if requested and remains in effect for seven years.

 Each credit reporting agency that receives a request to initiate a fraud alert is required to notify the other two agencies in order that they also place a fraud alert on the consumer's credit history.

Federal Government Consumer Credit Protection and Assistance Agencies

The Federal Trade Commission (FTC) is the nation's consumer protection agency. The FTC's Bureau of Consumer Protection works to prevent fraud, deception, and unfair business practices in the marketplace including enforcing the Fair Credit Reporting Act (FCRA) with respect to the nation's consumer reporting agencies — Equifax, Experian, and TransUnion. The FCRA requires these agencies to provide consumers with free copies of their credit reports, upon request, once every 12 months. The FCRA promotes the accuracy and privacy of information in the files of the nation's consumer reporting companies. A credit report includes information on where you live, how you pay your bills, and whether you have been sued or arrested, or have filed for bankruptcy. Nationwide consumer reporting companies sell the information in your report to creditors, insurers, employers, and other businesses that use it to evaluate your applications for credit, insurance, employment, or renting a home. National Identity Theft Victim Assistance Network (NITVAN)

The National Identity Theft Victim Assistance Network is funded by the United States Department of Justice and is a resource that offers victim compensation and assistance throughout the United States. In addition, NITVAN offers programs to service providers in order to enhance their ability to assist identity theft victims.

WTLP Goal

Credit reporting goals are required to be added to the WTLP. Once included in the WTLP, the two goals related to credit reporting must be completed within the next six months in which they were included or prior to the next WTLP update.

Youth Age 18 and Older Participating in the Extended Youth Supportive Services (EYSS) Program

Although the requirement to obtain a credit report for youth in foster care ends in Georgia when the youth turns 18, the SSCM should assist youth participating in the EYSS program in obtaining their own annual free credit report online at www.AnnualCreditReport.com.

i www.AnnualCreditReport.com is the only authorized source for the free annual credit report that adults can obtain pursuant to the Fair Credit Reporting Act.

For adults to obtain a free credit report online annually:

1. Go to www.AnnualCreditReport.com;
2. Select State and click "Request Report";
3. Complete the form - including Social Security number, date of birth, etc.;
4. Click "Continue" which will navigate to a page that* lists all three reporting agencies (Equifax, Experian, TransUnion);
5. Click the check box for all three names;
6. You will be led through each agency;
7. The reports can be reviewed, saved and printed;

i The FREE credit report is only available ONCE per year (additional reports will cost). As such, try to establish a good time to do the credit reports annually – such as birthdays, etc. The reports will also provide information on what to do to resolve any false or inconsistent information.

2. Step Two Grievance: If the complaint is not satisfactorily resolved within 10 business days from the date the complaint is received by the ILS, submit a written complaint with a copy of the original complaint filed with the ILS, the written response, and any other pertinent documentation to the Division Director or Designee by:

- b. Mail:

Division of Family and Children Services
Georgia Department of Human Services

Practice Guidance

Rights and Responsibilities

The discussion of youth rights and responsibilities should occur in a manner that is most effective for each individual youth. During the discussion, words and terminology that make sense to the youth should be used. The case record should be documented if a child has cognitive, physical or behavioral challenges that would prevent the youth from fully appreciating the rights and responsibilities presented. A description of a related challenge or limitation should be recorded in SHINES.

Right to Information Regarding Heritage and Cultural Background

Children who indicate that they are not aware of the racial identity and/or religious preference of their parent(s) should be provided with such information if known. Youth should be provided opportunity to participate in age and developmentally appropriate, cultural activities when possible.

Right to Know Why They are in the Foster Care System

Youth should be encouraged to exercise their rights to participate in case plan development and attend juvenile court proceedings where reasons for foster care entry are addressed. Youth may also consult with their SSCM, GAL and/or CASA regarding reason(s) for removal from their parent or guardian.

Youth may NOT receive a copy of the related investigation or any other case record documentation that would violate laws regarding confidentiality as in O.C.G.A 49-5-41.

Grievance Process

There may be occasions in which youth feel they have not been treated appropriately by their caregivers or case managers. A formal grievance procedure has been developed for such occasions. However, youth should first seek to address their concerns informally by talking to the offending person, whether it is a caregiver, case manager, or a member of a private agency's staff. If necessary, youth should address the matter with that person's direct supervisor. Youth may also talk to their GAL or CASA. Youth should continue to seek resolution of their concerns through informal measures until reaching the point where youth feel a formal grievance is required.

Learning how to advocate for oneself is an important life lesson. It's important to encourage youth to address their concerns in a constructive manner. The formal grievance process affords youth the opportunity to learn how to accept decisions made by those entrusted with the authority to make them (e.g. parents, teachers, employers, judges, etc.). Moreover, the grievance process serves as a way for DFCS and CPAs to monitor business operations and customer service.

The rights and responsibilities outlined in this policy section were developed in collaboration with a group of youth who have been through Georgia’s foster care system and now serve in an advisory capacity.

Practice Guidance

Identification for Youth in Foster Care

States establish requirements that seek to ensure that the person requesting proof of identification is truly the person who is the subject of the document.^[7] These requirements have become progressively more stringent in federal and state law and can often make it difficult for youth/young adults in foster care to access the vital records they need to make a successful transition to adulthood or prevent homelessness. This is because many of these youth/young adults may not have access to the information or documents needed. For these youth/young adults, the challenge of obtaining an ID can be almost as daunting as trying to navigate in today's world without it. It is critical that SSCM, ILS and the caregiver work together with the youth to obtain an ID.

- iii. A letter from the DFCS office that has legal custody of the child that is written on official letterhead and includes the youth's name, date of birth, address, and the name and phone number of the County Director.
- c. Full social security number, which may be provided by:
- i. A social security card issued by the Commission of the Social Security Administration; or
 - ii. A W-2, SSA-1099, or Paystub that shows the youth's full social security number.

 Complete and submit a Responsible Adult Affidavit to the Department of Driver Services (DDS) for youth who do not have all the required documentation to support their application. The Responsible Adult must sign the affidavit stating the relationship to the minor, provide a State-issued Identification or a Letter from a State Agency to verify their identity, and submit documentation to show the relationship (for example, the minor is in the custody of DFCS, and the Responsible Adult is an employee of the agency that has custody). This is only required for Driver's License purposes and not acquiring a new state ID.

2. Assist the youth in obtaining an instructional permit (learner's permit) through DDS.

 Contact the ILS if the youth is unable to successfully pass the exam following three attempts.

3. Assist the youth in enrolling in an accredited Driver's Education course (a Driver Education course is not mandated for youth 17 years or older but is highly recommended):

- a. This may be done through their school, local community, or Independent Living Specialist (ILS);
- b. Coordinate with the ILS to pay all applicable fees for the youth to complete a community-based driver's education course if there is not a course offered through the youth's local school system.

 It is preferred that the Driver's Education Course selected by the youth also include the Alcohol and Drug Awareness Component (ADAP), as the youth will be required to take this portion of driver's education separately if not included in the curriculum. Review the COSTAR Manual for guidance on fees and note that there is a cap for these costs. If the cost of the course is more than the cap, the DFCS county office will be responsible for the additional costs or will need to seek a course within the budget limit.

4. Assess the youth's driving experience with the youth, caregiver or RBWO provider, and the parent(s)/guardian(s) (when applicable) as a part of the WTLP review and adjust the plan as necessary based on the youth's performance and maturity to determine the youth's readiness to obtain their driver's license.
5. Assist the youth in obtaining upgrades in licensure as the youth completes the graduated licensing requirements.
6. Advise youth that:
- a. Upon reaching age 18, if they seek to purchase and own a vehicle, they should do so in consultation with their caregiver and SSCM; and
 - b. Independent Living Program (ILP) funds may not be used to purchase or maintain a vehicle.

- c. They will be legally responsible for all acts or omissions that result from their driving or owning a vehicle.

The Social Services Supervisor will:

1. Monitor the youth’s WTLP to ensure that all activities related to the youth obtaining a driver’s license are occurring in a timely manner;
2. Ensure consent and acknowledgement forms are signed and uploaded into Georgia SHINES in a timely manner;
3. Verify the youth’s insurance coverage for the vehicle they will be driving.

The SSCM or ILS will:

2. Provide or assist the youth with obtaining his/her identification information
 - a. Georgia Identification Card;
 - b. Social Security Card; and
 - c. Birth Certificate

Practice Guidance

Regular preventive health care is important for all people and medical bills can be financially disastrous even for those who are generally healthy. Many children enter foster care suffering from poor health and chronic physical and emotional illnesses. As they reach age 18 and older, these young people need continuous health care to successfully transition to adulthood. Medicaid coverage serves as the primary safety net for this population, even if they opt out of foster care at age 18 or older.

Medicaid

The Medicaid program is a joint federal/state program that is authorized under the Social Security Act. Funds are available to states for providing medical services to eligible recipients and for reimbursing activities that support the administration of the Medicaid program. DFCS accesses Medicaid funds through the Department of Community Health (DCH) and the Division of Medical Assistance (DMA) for case management and services for children in out-of-home care. Consequently, the Medicaid Class of Assistance (COA) for which these youth may qualify must be determined. Each COA has resource limits and certain deductibles. Most children in foster care are eligible for Medicaid.

Child Welfare Foster Care (CWFC)

CWFC Medicaid provides medical coverage to youth 18 to 21 years of age receiving EYSS or participating in the ILP after opting out of foster care. Eligibility continues through the month in which the youth reaches age 21 provided that eligibility requirements are met after the youth turns 18. The youth must meet citizenship/alien/age requirements. Youth 18-21 years of age receiving EYSS may continue to receive CWFC.

John H. Chafee Foster Care Independence Program Medicaid Coverage

Effective July 1, 2008, the Foster Care Independence Act allowed Medicaid coverage to be extended to age 21 for youth who opted out of foster care at age 18. The youth's Medicaid eligibility is allowed to continue unless one of the following occurs:

1. The youth dies;
2. The youth moves out of state;
3. The youth requests closure of their Medicaid case;
4. DFCS determines another Medicaid program would be more beneficial;
5. The youth is incarcerated; or
6. The youth fails to cooperate with their eligibility redetermination or case review.

Chafee Medicaid is also available to youth who were in foster care during the month of their 18th birthday, but choose to exit. For example, if a youth decides to exit EYSS/ILP at age 20, the youth is still eligible for Chafee Medicaid until age 21 if the youth was in foster care during the month in which the youth reached the age of 18.

Former Foster Care Medicaid

This type of Medicaid became effective 01/01/ 2014 in accordance with the Affordable Care Act (ACA). The ACA allows Medicaid coverage to be extended for individuals who opt out of foster care, or out of Chafee, until the last day of the month in which they reach 26 years of age. Applicants may not be determined ineligible based on a diagnosis or pre-existing condition. The eligibility month is the month following the youth’s 18th birthday, the month following the closure of Chafee Medicaid, or until the youth reaches the age 26 (as long as the youth was in foster care during the month of their 18th birthday).

Georgia Families 360

On March 03, 2014, the Georgia Department of Community Health (DCH) transitioned from a standard fee-for-service Medicaid program to a statewide Medicaid Care Management Organization (CMO) through Amerigroup Georgia Managed Care Company. The transition impacted children in DFCS custody and children receiving AA as they became members of a new program called Georgia Families 360 which is separate from Georgia Families, the general Medicaid program administered by DCH. Georgia Families 360 is designed to provide coordinated care across multiple services and focus on the physical, dental, and behavioral needs of member children. The program is designed to ensure each member has a medical and dental home, access to preventive care screenings, and timely assessments. It also seeks to ensure medical providers adhere to clinical practice guidelines and evidence-based medicine.

Advance Directive for Health Care

Effective October 1, 2010 the Foster Care Independence Act required that adolescents participating in the Chafee program be provided with education about the importance of designating another individual to make health care treatment decisions on their behalf if the youth becomes unable to participate in such decisions. Youth should be educated about the importance of this designation, and must understand how to execute a health care proxy or health care power of attorney. Youth should understand that if they become unable to participate in their own health care decisions, and do not have a relative authorized under State Law to make such decisions on their behalf, there are options available to designate an individual to make health care decisions on their behalf and in line with their wishes.

Practice Guidance

Emergency Financial Assistance

Chafee Foster Care Independence Act supports youth with services and financial support to prevent homelessness.^[8] Youth applying for emergency assistance will be offered time limited supportive services along with life coaching to assist them in maintaining self-sufficiency. 2. Provide specific and agreeable terms that define how financial concerns will be resolved; and
3. Denote the duration of payments (not to exceed 90 days).

Emergency financial assistance funds are distributed directly to the vendor for payment for services.

Life Coaches

Life coaching is a practice aimed at helping youth achieve goals related to successfully transitioning to adulthood by providing them with a resource that can provide one on one targeted life skills training based on the individual's particular need. When identified as a need, the ILS can assign a youth a life coach who will use various methods to assist the youth in meeting an identified need. Expectations of Life Coaches are:

1. To meet with the youth, face-to-face, within two business days of being assigned;
2. To participate in the development of agreements and plans with youth;
3. To monitor and ensure compliance with the agreement;
 - a. The life coach must immediately contact the youth to address issues of noncompliance and assist the youth in rectifying the identified issues.
 - b. Ensure the youth understands that continued noncompliance issues that cannot be rectified will result in the youth's dismissal from the program.
4. To conduct a face-to-face weekly meeting with each youth and provide a monthly report to the ILS regarding the youth's progress toward self-sufficiency; and
5. Email the ILS the monthly summary by the 5th of the following month.

If a youth is not satisfied with services provided by the Life Coach or ILS, the State GARYSE Chafee Independent Living Program Director or Designee may be contacted via the Georgia Independent Living Website at georgiailp@dhs.ga.gov.

Post-Secondary Education Financial Support

Post Foster Care services also allow DFCS to provide post-secondary education financial assistance to youth who qualify. Based upon the youth's educational plan, history, abilities and current interests, which may include vocational training, certificate programs and two or four year colleges, the SSCM and ILS can assess a youth's readiness to receive further schooling or training. DFCS should continue to encourage the youth to seek a degree of his or her choice, or otherwise further their education as much as possible, and provide assistance to the youth as much as possible.

The Independent Living Program funds Post-Secondary Financial Support services through the Federal Education and Training Vouchers (ETV) Program as well as State Independent Living Program college funding. Services that may be funded through these programs include:

1. Application fees (waiver of fees should be requested);
2. Registration fees;
3. Tuition;
4. Room and board (On campus housing and meal plans must be used, if available);
5. Course books & supplies;
6. Tutoring;
7. Testing (SAT, ACT, etc.);
8. Educational stipends for hygiene and personal maintenance (youth may be eligible for funds up to $75.00 a month if youth live on campus, or up to $150 a month for youth living off campus); and

9. Transportation assistance

To be eligible for Post-Secondary Education Financial Support, youth must meet the following criteria:

For ETV:

1. Meet ILP eligibility requirements;
2. Be between the ages of 18 and 21 years old and participating in the EFC program;
3. Be between the ages of 18 to 23 years old and not participating in the EFC program; or

If the youth meets the eligibility requirements stated above, but graduated high school between the ages of 20-22, the youth will be assessed for post-secondary state funding support.

4. Adopted from foster care after his or her 16th birthday

If a former foster youth requests ILP post-secondary funding on the date of their 21st birthday, the youth must provide documentation that supports their previous enrollment in a full-time post-secondary educational or training program at least 6 months prior to their 21st birthday.

For State ILP College Funding:

1. Meet ILP eligibility requirements;
2. Be under the age of 25; and

2. Be interested or enrolled in a certification program that is at least 12 months in length or a two-year college;

5. Maintain a minimum GPA of 2.0 or be in good standing with the institution;

Youth failing to achieve a 2.0 GPA will be referred for tutoring or any other known supports available through their educational institution.

7. Submit their grades within 14 days of grades being posted by the educational institution;

If grades are not submitted timely, youth will have to reapply for post-secondary support to receive financial support for the next semester. Youth, ages 18 to 23 failing to maintain a 2.0 GPA for two consecutive semesters will be ineligible for funding for one academic year, only if they are not in good standing with the institution.

8. Enroll in the next available enrollment session offered by the applicable educational institution if his or her chosen course of study or institution is changed for which he or she is currently receiving funding.

If a youth is dismissed from his or her educational institution for failure to maintain an adequate Grade Point Average (GPA), ILP services will discontinue financial payments to the school. If the youth determines that he or she wishes to re-enroll and requests Post-Secondary Education Financial Support the youth must participate in a meeting with the ILS, SSCM (current or former, as needed), life coach, and any other supporting person identified by the youth. During the meeting, the youth must be prepared to discuss the reasons he or she feels they are ready to re-enroll in school, and what changes have been made so that they will be able to maintain an acceptable GPA. During this meeting, remedial tutoring should be offered to the youth in addition to assistance in re-enrolling the youth in school if it were determined that Post-Secondary Education funds would be appropriate.

The Division of Family and Children Services (DFCS) will:

1. Ensure compliance with federal requirements regarding data collection of case-level information of youth in foster care; otherwise known as the National Youth in Transition Database (NYTD). Data collection must include the following:
 - a. Services paid for or provided through the state administered Independent Living Program.
 - b. Outcome information on youth who are in, or who have aged out of foster care.
2. Ensure participation and collect data on the following three (3) distinct populations as required by NYTD:
 - a. Served population: consists of any youth receiving at least one formal or informal independent living service paid for or provided by the Independent Living Program (ILP) whether through a Social Services Case Manager (SSCM), foster parent or group home staff, etc.
 - b. Baseline population: consists of all youth in foster care as defined by Chapter 45 of the Code of Federal Regulations (C.F.R.) § 1355.20 any time between their 17th birthday and the 45 days following the youth reaching the age of 18; and
 - c. Follow-up population: for Georgia, includes all youth who reach their 19th or 21st birthday in a Federal Fiscal Year and who have participated in data collection as part of the baseline Population.

3. Gather data related to Independent Living services provided to youth in the applicable served and baseline population that is reported to NYTD by entering independent living activities and services into the Youth Detail Page in Georgia SHINES.
4. Ensure that youth identified in the baseline population complete the Foster Club online survey between their 17th birthday and the 45 days following their 17th birthday. Effective October 1, 2010 and every FFY three-year cycle thereafter,
5. Ensure that youth identified in the follow up population participate in the outcomes data collection survey. Effective October 1, 2010 and every FFY three-year cycle thereafter,
6. Ensure data is submitted to NYTD semi-annually, based on two reporting periods; October 1 through March 31, and April 1 through September 30 of the reporting year utilizing information captured on the Youth Detail Page in Georgia SHINES for applicable populations.

Procedures

Reporting NYTD Data

In order to capture all Independent Living services that are being provided to a youth who meets the criteria to be considered part of the Served, Baseline, or Follow Up populations the Social Services Case Manager (SSCM) and Independent Living Specialist (ILS) will:

1. Update the Youth Detail Page in Georgia SHINES during the six-month reporting periods of October 1 through March 31, and April 1 through September 30 with specific information related to services and activities provided for the applicable youth including but not limited to:
 - a. Independent living needs assessment
 - b. Academic support
 - c. Post-secondary educational support
 - d. Career preparation
 - e. Employment programs or vocational training
 - f. Housing education and home management training
 - g. Budget and Financial management
 - h. Health education and risk prevention
 - i. Family support and healthy marriage education
 - j. Mentoring
 - k. Supervised independent living
 - l. Room and board financial assistance
 - m. Education financial assistance
 - n. Any other financial assistance provided

An independent living service is considered provided by DFCS if it is delivered by DFCS staff, or an agent of DFCS, including but not limited to: a foster parent, Room Board Watchful Oversight (RBWO) provider; or if the service is provided pursuant to a contract between DFCS and a provider agency. Services may be formal and informal.

For youth who have been identified as a part of the baseline population; effective October 1, 2010, and every FFY three-year cycle thereafter the SSCM and ILS will ensure that youth identified in the baseline population complete the Foster Club online survey upon reaching the age of 17 and no later than 45 calendar days subsequent to the youth's birthday.

 The survey cannot be completed prior to a youth's 17th birthday.

In order for a youth to receive a survey, the SSCM or ILS must ensure the youth:

1. Has an email account established;
2. Is capable of completing the survey without assistance; or
3. Has assistance to complete the survey, if deemed necessary.

The Social Services Supervisor (SSS) will:

1. Discuss youth participation in Independent Living skills activities and services with the SSCM in a monthly staffing;
2. Review the Youth Detail Page in Georgia SHINES during each of the two reporting periods to ensure the page has been updated with the most current information concerning the Independent Living services the youth has received, or is currently receiving.

NYTD Surveys and Participation in the Baseline and Follow Up Population

In order to ensure that a youth identified as a member of the baseline or follow up population participates in the NYTD data collection process during applicable reporting periods the SSCM and ILS will:

1. Identify the baseline population eligible to participate in the Foster Club online survey within the first 15 calendar days of each reporting period;
2. Identify the follow up population eligible to participate in the outcomes data collection survey within the first 15 calendar days of each reporting period;
3. Attempt to locate the youth whose whereabouts are unknown within the first 30 calendar days of the applicable reporting period;
4. Upon determining the youth's whereabouts;
 - a. Invite the youth to participate in the survey;
 - b. Provide the necessary information needed to complete the survey; and
 - c. Inform the youth of the timeframe for survey completion.
5. Follow up if the youth does not complete the survey and identify a valid reason for why the youth did not complete the survey. Valid reasons for not completing a survey include:
 - a. Youth Declined: The agency located the youth successfully and invited the youth's participation, but the youth declined to participate in the data collection;
 - b. Parent Declined: The agency invited the youth's participation, but the youth's parent/guardian declined to grant permission. This response may be used only when the youth has not reached the age of majority in State law or policy requires a parent/guardian's permission for the youth to participate in information collection activities;

- c. Youth Incapacitated: The youth has a permanent or temporary mental or physical condition that prevents him or her from participating in the outcomes data collection;
- d. Youth incarcerated: The youth is unable to participate in the outcomes data collection because of his or her incarceration;
- e. Runaway/Missing: A youth in foster care is known to have run away or to be missing from his or her foster care placement;
- f. Unable to locate/Invite: The agency could not locate a youth who is NOT in foster care or otherwise invite such a youth's participation;
- g. Death: The youth died prior to his participation in the outcomes data collection;
- h. Not in Sample: The 19-year-old youth participated in the outcomes data collection as part of the baseline Population at age 17, but the youth is not in the state follow-up sample. This response option applies only when the outcomes data collection is required on the follow-up population of 19-year-old youth.

A youth has participated in the outcomes data collection if the youth completes one valid response to any of the survey questions.

Practice Guidance

Baseline Population Criteria

The Baseline Population consists of all youth in foster care^[11], at any time between their 17th birthday and the 45 days following their 17th birthday, and youth who turn 17 within the FFY of each applicable reporting year. A youth does not have to be in foster care on his/her 17th birthday to be included, but must be in foster care at some point within the 45 days following his/her birthday. When determining whether a youth should be included in the NYTD Baseline Population, consider the following:

1. Did the youth's 17th birthday occur during a FFY in which baseline data are required to be collected (i.e., a youth in the first NYTD Baseline cohort must have a 17th birthday between October 1, 2010 and September 30, 2011); and,
2. Was the youth in foster care on this or her 17th birthday; or
3. Did the youth enter foster care between his or her 17th birthday and 45 days after this date?

For the purpose of the baseline survey, Foster Care does not include the following:

1. Youth who are in their own homes under the responsibility of the DFCS, including, for the purpose of the NYTD only, those home on trial visits;
2. Youth Development Centers/Youth Forestry Camps;
3. Detention centers (or facilities that are primarily for the detention of children who are adjudicated delinquent);
4. Secure residential facilities;

5. Psychiatric Residential Treatment Facilities (accredited-PRTF); or
6. Hospitals (general hospitals or freestanding psychiatric hospitals).

Follow-up Population Criteria

The Follow-Up Population includes:

1. All youth who reach their 19th or 21st birthday in a FFY who have participated in data collection as part of the Baseline Population at age 17; or
2. A youth who participated in the data collection at age 17, but not at age 19 for a reason other than being deceased.

-  A youth is in the Follow-Up Population as described regardless of the youth's foster care status at ages 19 or 21, and regardless of whether the youth ever received independent living services.
-  Youth that complete the survey outside of the 45-day window for survey collection will not be a part of the Follow-up Population.

NYTD Implementation

The Administration for Children and Families (ACF) required states to collect both Baseline Population data and Served Population data beginning October 1, 2010. The first reporting period data was then due no later than March 15, 2011. Subsequent data submission to NYTD is required semi-annually based on two reporting periods, October 1 through March 31, and April 1 through September 30 of the reporting year.

In order to comply with Federal statutes and to ensure that all youth are receiving life skills development services the SSCM and ILS must ensure that the NYTD services categories are documented each reporting period. Service providers include DFCS or an agent of DFCS including but not limited to:

1. Non-relative foster homes;
2. Kinship foster homes (whether or not payments are being made to the caregiver);
3. Group homes;
4. Emergency shelters;
5. Residential facilities;
6. Child care institutions (public facilities with less than 25 beds);
7. Private facilities (with any number of beds); and
8. Pre-adoptive homes.

Served Population Criteria

A youth meets the criteria to be classified as in the Served Population if during the reporting period:

1. The youth is eligible to receive independent living services; and

- The youth receives an independent living service paid for or provided by DFCS during the reporting period.

The Served Population is not limited on the Federal level by placement type. Tribal youth, youth involved with the juvenile justice system, youth who receive services through foster care providers, and youth no longer in foster care are a part of the served population, if they receive an independent living service paid for or provided by DFCS during the reporting period.

Requirements

The Division of Family and Children Services (DFCS) will properly account for and safeguard all Independent Living Program (ILP) assets by tracking ILP disbursements, monitoring the supply of ILP assets, and bi-annually reconciling ILP assets.

Procedures

Asset Approval and Tracking Process

In order to ensure fiscal responsibility and track ILP disbursements and assets, the Independent Living Specialist (ILS) will:

Manager/Designee for approval;

3. As the preferred priority, complete the ILP asset purchase(s) by using the purchase order process as outlined in Department of Administration Services Georgia Procurement Manual Chapter 6 - Award Process Section 6.3 State and Supplier Finalize Contract Award - 6.3.1 Purchasing Order or using the State of Georgia's VISA® Purchasing Card (P-Card), if deemed necessary;
4. Track the asset purchase by completing the ILP Inventory Asset Log to include:
 - a. A description of the item;
 - b. Quantity purchased;
 - c. Date of purchase;

Approvals for purchases will only be granted through the submission of the ILP Purchase Request Form. Upon approval, the purchase order and P-Card process may be initiated

Upon receipt of an ILP purchase request from the ILS, the State ILP Manager/Designee will:

1. Review the purchase request to ensure the items requested are essential and that funding is available for purchases;
2. Approve or deny the purchase request within 10 business days of receipt;
3. If pre-approved, and upon submission from the ILS, review the ILP Event Purchase Request Form to verify that the items pre-approved are consistent with items actually being requested for purchase;
4. Return the approved PR form to the ILS within 10 business days of receipt.

Gift Card Distribution and Tracking

A gift card is considered an ILP asset and must follow the above procedures for approval and tracking prior to making any purchases or distributing the gift cards to eligible youth. In order to maintain and track the gift cards purchased with ILP funds, the ILS will:

1. Maintain a Gift Card Log of all gift card numbers (see Field Fiscal Services Financial Manual Section 2308.1 Direct Benefits: Employability Services Programs - TANF Gift/Gas Card Policy/Procedures);
2. Update the Gift Card Log as the cards are disbursed to eligible youth to include:
 - a. The date the gift card was disbursed to the youth;

- b. The name of the youth;
 - c. UAS Program Code used to purchase the Gift Card; and
 - d. A signature from the youth acknowledging receipt of the Gift Card
3. Secure unused Gift Cards in a locked area;
 -  Unused Gift Cards should be included in the ILP Inventory and Asset Log.
 4. Complete a monthly Gift Card Reconciliation Report and provide a copy to Regional Accounting and the ILP Business Operations Specialist.

The ILP Business Operation Specialist (BOS) will perform a full accounting reconciliation of all ILP assets at least bi-annually.

Practice Guidance

ILP Business Operations Specialist

The ILP Business Operations Specialist (BOS) is a state-level position that reports to the State ILP Manager. The BOS is primarily responsible for managing the fiscal operations and budget of ILP including Chafee funds and Educational Training Vouchers. The BOS may serve as the designee to sign purchase orders, authorizations for disbursements, and ILP event approval and purchase request forms.

Promotional Items

Promotional items are a type of asset designed to promote and further the Independent Living Program. These promotional items still follow the asset approval process; however, these items are not tracked nor do they require a signature as they are distributed. The State ILP Manager will determine if a purchase qualifies as a promotional item based on the planned use of the product, cost, and quantity. The ILS will add the promotional items to the ILP Inventory and Asset Log as “PROMO” for record keeping purposes.

Requirements

The Division of Family and Children Services (DFCS) will ensure that the Independent Living Program (ILP) events are in support of one or more of the Chafee purpose goals for eligible youth by adhering to the following process:

1. Developing an annual ILP Event Plan for the fiscal year;
2. Requiring all ILP Events and related purchases have advance approval by the ILP Manager/Designee;

2. Notify the County Director for county specific events, or the Regional Director for regional functions.
3. Submit the PR form to the ILP Manager or Designee for final approval.

The State of Georgia P-Card should be used for all ILP event purchases unless the vendor does not accept VISA® credit card purchases. In this case, the purchase should be made using the Purchase Order process (see Department of Administration Services Georgia Procurement Manual Chapter 6 - Award Process Section 6.3 State and Supplier Finalize Contract Award - 6.3.1 Purchasing Order).

4. Ensure that all youth that attend the ILP events are accounted for by having the youth sign in using the ILP Event Sign-In Log.
5. At the time of the event, require any youth that received an incentive sign the ILP Incentive Log and/or Gift Card Log indicating receipt of the item(s) obtained during the ILP Event (see policy 13.14 Independent Living Program: Asset Inventory).

Social Services Case Managers, ILS and/or Providers

1. Document the youth attendance at the ILP event and relevance to their Written Transitional Living Program (WTLP) goals in Georgia SHINES, Log of Contacts.
2. Update the Youth Detail Page in Georgia SHINES, if applicable. (SSCM only)

This is required for all events applicable to the services category subjects.

Practice Guidance

The John H Chafee Foster Care Independence Program (CFCIP) provides flexible funding to support the personal achievement and development of youth likely to remain in foster care through 18 years of age successfully transition to adulthood. In support of those goals, the state Independent Living Program (ILP) hosts events for eligible youth that include life skills workshops, support groups, social outings, and other such group activities. Youth who attend these events are able to socialize with their peers and build lasting relationships that can carry into their transition to adulthood. ILP events further enable youth to engage in learning that will be directly applicable to goals outlined in their WTLP and develop skills that can be applied during the transition out of foster care.

Requirements

The Division of Family and Children Services (DFCS) will initiate and manage all Independent Living Program (ILP) contracts at the state level.

Procedures

Independent Living Specialist

1. Notify the ILP Manager if there is a need for a contract related to the ILP on the county or regional level.

ILP Manager

1. Collaborate with the DFCS Contracts Liaison to initiate ILP contracts.
2. Serve as the programmatic manager for all ILP contracts.

Practice Guidance

DFCS will frequently engage in contracts that employ vendors to perform tasks outside the scope of the department. Similarly, ILP uses vendors to provide an array of services to youth. Vendors are an asset and essential to the success of the ILP. Still, it is imperative that vendors are evaluated to ensure they are qualified, reliable and accountable. Contract centralization is the key to consistency and necessary for the security of all parties involved, including the youth. It is of greater benefit to establish a vendor contract for the purchase of goods/services instead of developing an informal agreement with vendors. It is understood that a contract is not appropriate or required for every good/service purchase; however, it is important that whenever feasible a contract is developed. Should there be a circumstance when a contract is not developed; the vendor must be fully vetted through the Secretary of State, Federal Excluded Parties List, and the State Suspended and Debarred Suppliers List.

[1] The six months is a noncontiguous time. For example: the youth was in care for 3 months when he was 5 and then for 2 months at age 9 and finally for 1 month at age 14. This youth would meet the six-month requirement. All eligible youth must be in care at some point on or after their 14th birthday. A youth could accumulate the six months prior to 14 years old and be eligible for some after care services.

[2] May be used for a youth ages 18 to 21 when appropriate.

[3] Equifax, TransUnion, and Experian are the three nationwide credit reporting agencies.

[4] Unless the court determines unsupervised visitation is not in the child's best interest (O.C.G.A 15-11-112).

[5] DFCS may reject an individual selected by a youth if it has good cause to believe that individual would not act in the best interest of the youth.

[6] This right applies only to youth who have been in foster care for at least six months prior to their exit.

[7] Proving I Exist: Strategies for Assisting Youth in Obtaining Identification Documents by Laura Kolb and Jenny Pokempner, American Bar Association October 2, 2017

[8] Emergency financial assistance is limited both in dollar amount per request as well as frequency of requests per Federal Fiscal Year (FFY).

[9] The Chafee Foster Care Independence Program funding allows expenditures for all services provided through the transitional living support program. DFCS may utilize other housing resources (e.g., Section 8, subsidized housing vouchers) to supplement housing support to eligible youth.

[10] Please note there is a maximum funding limit for this assistance.

[11] Foster Care is defined as 24-hour substitute care for all youth placed away from their parent(s) or guardian(s) and for whom the child welfare agency has placement care and responsibility.

Discussion

Georgia's Foster Care Program seeks to strengthen families, protect children from further child abuse, and ensure permanency for every child in care. When it is necessary for children to experience out-of-home placements due to safety threats in their own homes, the Division of Family and Children Services (DFCS) is committed to ensuring their safety and well-being. To fulfill this commitment, DFCS recruits and works closely with the child's kin (relatives, fictive kin), and members of the community interested in serving as caregivers for this population of children. DFCS also works in partnership with Child Placing Agencies (CPAs), which expands the number of placement family resources available to children in foster care. CPA caregivers who are to be considered for placement of children in DFCS custody must be approved, re-evaluated, and held accountable to and supported according to the policies in this chapter.^[1]

DFCS and CPAs will adhere to the requirements of the Multiethnic Placement Act of 1994 as amended by the Interethnic Placement Act of 1996 (MEPA-IEPA). In addition, qualified individuals with disabilities will be afforded an equal opportunity to participate in, and benefit from, the DFCS foster care and adoption program. DFCS and CPAs will not discriminate based on disability in decisions relating to the selection, retention, or termination of participants in the foster care and adoption program. This applies in every phase of the process to become a foster or adoptive parent, from initial inquiry to approval. For more information, see policies 1.4 Administration: Non-Discriminatory Child Welfare Practices and 1.5 Administration: Americans with Disabilities Act \(ADA\)/Section 504 and Reasonable Modifications.

The DFCS caregiver practice model is called Partnership Parenting. Partnership Parenting is a trauma-informed shared parenting model between caregivers and birth parents that is designed to keep parents parenting while their children are in out-of-home placement. By keeping parents connected and involved with parenting their children, permanency can be achieved faster, the trauma of placement can be reduced, child and parent bonds can be preserved, and parents can demonstrate and increase their parental protective capacities. Partnership Parenting also emphasizes and supports concurrent permanency planning.

Caregiver Types

Throughout this chapter, the general term “caregiver” is used to collectively refer to all foster parent types, including those who serve through CPAs. The Partnership Parenting model has the following types of caregivers:

1. Partnership Parents (PPs) are foster parents who provide temporary homes for children in foster care. They are expected to work in partnership with birth families and act as parenting mentors whenever possible. PPs share parenting responsibilities with birth parents through “parenting opportunities.” Parenting opportunities are any favorable times, occasions, situations, or conditions that allow a parent to safely teach, support, nurture, discipline, care for, or guide children.
2. Kinship Partnership Parents (KPPs) are foster parents related by blood, marriage, or adoption to children placed in their home. This includes the spouse of any of those persons even if the marriage was terminated by death or dissolution. Kinship includes “fictional kin”, which means a person who is not related to the child by blood, marriage, or adoption but who, prior to the child’s placement into foster care is known to the family, has a substantial and positive relationship with the child, and is willing and able to provide a suitable home for the child. KPPs follow the same approval process as regular PPs and have all the benefits and responsibilities associated with being a PP, including full foster care per diem reimbursement.
3. Adoptive Parents are “forever families” who make a lifelong commitment to a child. They serve children whose birth parents’ parental rights have been voluntarily surrendered or terminated by a court, thus making the children legally free for adoption. Adoptive Parents may also be part of a child’s kinship circle, in which case they are called Kinship Adoptive Parents.
4. Adoptive Parent-Legal Risk Parents are adoptive parents who accept placement of children who are not completely legally free for adoption and thus, legal risk exists in accepting the placement.
5. Resource Parents (RPs) are foster parents who are willing to become the adoptive parent (permanent family) for a child placed in their home. Children placed with RPs have a concurrent permanency plan, meaning that two permanency goals are being pursued simultaneously. At least one of the permanency goals is adoption with the RP named as the permanency resource. RPs must be able to concurrently fulfill the roles of being a PP and an adoptive parent. A RP may also be part of a child’s kinship circle in which case they are called Kinship Resource Parents.

- Caregivers serving children through the Interstate Compact on the Placement of Children (ICPC) are known as ICPC-Partnership Parents, ICPC- Adoptive Parents, ICPC-Kinship Partnership Parents and ICPC-Kinship Adoptive Parents.

Caregiver Applicants

Prior to final approval, all prospective caregivers are referred to as applicants. Applicants are evaluated to ensure they possess the protective capacities needed to ensure children in foster care remain safe from danger and can provide appropriate nurturing and family life for the children. Applicants who meet the qualifications for approval partner with DFCS, CPAs, and parents to ensure the safety, well-being and permanency of children.

The caregiver preparation and service continuum helps applicants make an informed decision about becoming a caregiver. Applicants receive information and training to enhance their parenting knowledge and skills, as well as to clarify their role when working with children, their families, and other community partners. The preparation and training continuum includes a mechanism for providing practical knowledge of available financial, structural, and administrative support. It also addresses skills and competencies required to meet the behavioral and psychosocial needs of children in care. Moreover, the preparation and service continuum serves as a strategy to develop and enhance the pool of approved caregivers. A well-prepared and supported caregiver directly impacts the strength, success, and overall positive outcomes of Georgia's foster care program.

Caregiver Preparation and Service Continuum

The preparation and training continuum addresses three important phases of family readiness in caring for children in foster care:

- Phase 1: Inquiry: Inquiry is made through the Foster Georgia Inquiry Line (1-877-210-KIDS [5437]) or the Foster Georgia Website (www.fostergeorgia.com).
- Phase 2: Information Session: Provides basic information about the child welfare system, types of caregivers, safety screening requirements and other key points to help prospective caregivers decide whether to proceed or opt out of the evaluation process.
- Phase 3: Pre-service Training and Initial Home Evaluation

Continued Parent Development

After final approval of their Initial Family Evaluation, caregivers are re-evaluated every two years. Support services including on-going educational activities are also provided. Continuing education is crucial and impacts the continued readiness of families to meet the ever-changing and varied needs of children in care. This requires honest disclosure by families and keen observations by DFCS Case Managers regarding the training needs of these families. These on-going skills and competencies may be obtained through specialized training sessions based on specific needs and expectations, seminars, workshops, conferences, etc. Families may also have additional opportunities to experience personal growth by reflecting on their own personal needs and experiences in order to give their best to children placed in their care. The annual continuing parent development requirement continues to focus on skills and competencies required by families for the on-going challenge of parenting children placed in their home.

Firearms

References

Three references should be obtained as part of the SAFE Home Study. When securing references for an applicant couple, select references that apply to both members of the couple. Obtain additional references if conflicting, ambivalent, or inadequate information is received from those initially requested. Children residing in the applicant's home will be interviewed as part of the household being evaluated and are not treated as references. Permission should be obtained from applicants prior to contacting their children who reside outside of the applicant household. If permission is not granted, or a child refuses to provide a reference, then the reasons should be reviewed with the applicant and addressed in the SAFE Home Study Report. The applicant's children cannot be used for all three references. Below are suggestions for references:

1. Extended family members not residing in the home of the applicant(s).
2. Previous or current employers, if the applicant is or has been employed in a setting that involves children (e.g., school, childcare facility, group home, etc.).
3. Any prior agency for which an applicant served as a foster or adoptive parent.

4. Notify the licensing agency if a DFCS foster home that also holds a childcare license or provides family daycare is closed because a substantiated CPS investigation in accordance with policy 6.9 Special Investigations: Notifications in Special Investigations.

Procedures

When foster parents notify the agency of their desire to operate a family childcare center in their home or is operating a family child care center prior to approval, DFCS or CPA staff will:

1. Discuss with the caregivers the impact of the child care center operation in relation to each child currently placed in the home considering such issues as:
 - a. The age of the child;
 - b. The special needs of the child;
 - c. The frequency of birth parent-child visits;
 - d. The effects of birth parent contacts on the child;
 - e. The length of time the child has been in foster care;
 - f. The permanency plan for the child; and

Such cases will need to be staffed individually to determine the most appropriate and least restrictive placement for the children involved. A waiver must be requested from the Division Director/Designee for children to remain in such placements.

3. Notify Personal Care Home providers who close their home for such business that they may be approved as a DFCS foster home, provided all other DFCS requirements are met.

Practice Guidance

Foster Parent Providing Family Childcare

Children in foster care have experienced separation from their families often resulting in trauma and anxiety. Observing other parents and children separating and reuniting daily can be traumatic for already vulnerable children. It is possible that a child care provider known to the children in foster care may be less stressful, such as providing child care for children who:

1. Are relatives or friends of the foster parent;
2. Live in the neighborhood;
3. Attend the same school, church, etc. as the child.

The decision regarding the number of children for whom a particular foster home can provide family childcare is based on the home's approval specifications as well as the number of children that would be in the home from the time school is out until the children in the childcare setting leave.

Assessing Impact on Placement

When a child is adversely affected by caregivers providing family child care in the home, consider the following questions in deciding whether or not to move the child:

1. What areas of the child's functioning are being negatively affected in the home?
2. What would be the effect of moving the child to another placement?
3. Which possible placement resources could meet the needs of the child?
4. What type of child is appropriate for future placements in this home?

Meet face-to-face with the caregivers to discuss areas of concern.

Family Child Care Center

This is a program that operates in a private residential home less than 24 hours per day. The operator receives pay for providing care for three to six children under 13 years of age or 18 years of age if the child meets the criteria for CAPS special needs or court-ordered supervision. Bright from the Start: Georgia Department of Early Care and Learning (DECAL) oversees the licensing and monitoring of all home-based child care facilities, including investigating complaints of child care programs and reports of unlicensed child care. For more information visit the Bright from the Start website.

Personal Care Homes

"Personal Care Home", "home" or "facility" means any dwelling, whether operated for profit or not, which undertakes through its ownership or management to provide or arrange for the provision of housing, food service, and one or more personal services for two or more adults who are not related to the owner or administrator by blood or marriage.

Procedures

Caregiver Recruitment and Retention Unit

1. Provide monthly monitoring plans of regional recruitment and retention activities.
2. Present a quarterly report focused on five major issues (recruitment indicators, retention indicators, closures, foster parent support, and statewide initiatives) during the Statewide Recruitment and Retention Meeting.

Practice Guidance

The recruitment and retention of caregivers is critical to the overall success of the foster care and adoption programs in Georgia. An effective recruitment and retention program is necessary to ensure the availability of appropriate resources for children who enter the foster care system. Recruitment and retention efforts must be designed to provide the community with information about the characteristics and needs of the children (and their families) requiring foster or adoptive homes, as well as the basic requirements and minimum standards. In addition to presenting information, it involves providing feedback and consultation. Effective recruitment strategies build public interest and awareness of the need for foster and adoptive parents for children. Recruitment efforts must not focus solely on developing a certain number of families, but on developing the most appropriate families to meet the needs of children in foster care.

MEPA-IEPA and Recruitment

Experience demonstrates that minority communities respond when given information about the need for homes and when they are treated with respect. Recruitment strategies must not systematically discourage or deter the interest of prospective caregivers in trans-racial or interethnic placements. In addition, placement of a child in an appropriate household must not be delayed by the search for a same race placement. Moreover, DFCS must avoid the arbitrary use of race-neutral recruitment factors (e.g., income, age, educational level, family structure, home ownership status, etc.) that have the effect of excluding groups of people based on race, color, or national origin.

General Recruitment Strategies

Examples of general recruitment strategies include, but are not limited to:

1. Posting information about foster care and adoption on bulletin boards in various places of business within the community.
2. Hosting an information table at farmers markets, fairs, and community festivals.
3. Partnering with pizza places and other local restaurants to have them attach small flyers to pizza boxes or use tray liners that encourage people to considering becoming foster or adoptive parents.

4. Utilizing existing caregivers to share their firsthand knowledge of the needs of children in care and their experience working with DFCS to help meet those needs.
5. Partnering with faith-based communities to inform the public about the needs of children in foster care.
6. Engaging the medical community by providing information regarding the special medical needs of children in foster care.

Targeted Recruitment Strategies

Targeted recruitment strategies target a specific population in need of foster or adoptive home resources (e.g., teens). One strategy might include developing community-based recruitment teams to build a resource pool for specific populations of children in care. Recruitment activities should provide potential foster and adoptive parents with information about the characteristics and needs of the target population. Recruitment efforts should focus on identifying an adult or groups of adults (e.g., church group, nurses, teachers, etc.) that potentially meet the needs of the target population. Targeted recruitment efforts may also focus on a particular area (i.e., zip code or school zone) in which there is a high removal rate.

Child Specific Recruitment Strategies

Child specific recruitment strategies help to identify caregivers for specific children in foster care. These strategies begin with a comprehensive child assessment and preparation process. Examples of child specific recruitment strategies include:

1. Conducting intensive case file mining, including talking with older youth to explore past connections and important relationships with supportive adults who might be able to provide permanency at this time, even if they were unable in the past;
2. Featuring children in photo listing services (i.e., It's My Turn Now Georgia and Adopt Us Kids);
3. Using local media partnerships such as Wednesday's Child for featuring a child, youth, or sibling group;
4. Developing a Heart Gallery – a traveling exhibit of high quality, compelling photographs capturing the unique personalities of children in care; and
5. Creating presentations with youth using technology (e.g., PowerPoint and iMovie) that can bring the personalities and stories of youth to life in their own words, pictures, and graphics.

Retention Variables

In order to maintain an adequate pool of caregivers to meet the needs of children in foster care, special attention must be made to the support that is offered. Homes are closed for a variety of reasons. Some home closures are related to positive events, such as a child being adopted by their foster parent. On the other hand, some caregivers request closure of their home due to negative experiences related to retention variables such as the following:

1. Satisfaction with DFCS Staff – This includes customer service, response to phone calls, or any other interaction with DFCS staff or providers.
2. Confidence in Ability to Meet the Needs of Children – This includes how confident the caregiver feels about being able to manage the demands of being a partnership or resource parent.

3. The ability to express concerns without fear of retaliation from DFCS.

Retention Plans

County retention plans must address local issues affecting foster parent retention and may include activities such as the following:

1. Customer service training for DFCS staff - Webinars and on-site presentations may help address general customer service issues, such as how to best respond to visits and phone calls from foster parents.
2. AFPAG/Foster Parent Partnership Meetings – These may serve as a forum for foster parents to offer wisdom and expertise on ways to recruit, retain, and support foster homes.
3. Regular email, phone or web-based survey of foster parents - Surveys may help the county determine what is working and what needs improvement to ensure that foster parents are provided with ongoing support.
4. Exit interviews with families leaving the program - Brief interviews with foster parents leaving the program should be conducted by staff not known to the families. Results of interviews should be used to assess current practices and make improvements.
5. Clearly communicated Foster Parent Grievance Procedure – The County Director should use this opportunity to assess what event(s) occurred that caused the foster parent to file a grievance. Recommendations and “lessons learned” from the staffing and/or case review should be employed across program areas to improve practices as it relates to supporting caregivers.
6. Respite care partnerships- Develop respite partnerships with parent support groups to ensure the availability of such resources when caregivers need temporary relief from their caregiver responsibilities.
7. Procedures for placement disruptions- Establishing procedures for placement disruptions in advance helps reduce stress on caregivers and DFCS staff. Moreover, all parties will know what is expected of them to facilitate a smoother transition for the child(ren) involved.

 4. Complete and submit the DFCS CPS Screening Request to initiate safety screenings that must be completed by DFCS (see policy 19.9 Case Management: Safety Screenings).

Practice Guidance

Inquiries

Prospective caregivers may inquire about becoming a foster or adoptive parent by calling a toll-free number (1-877-210-5437 or 1-877-423-4746) which serves as the central intake line for all telephone inquiries. They may also make web-based inquiries at www.fostergeorgia.com. The County Department should contact the Caregiver Recruitment and Retention Unit (CRRU) at the state office regarding concerns about the inquiry line or website.

Information Sessions

The Information Session (previously referred to as Orientation) constitutes the first phase of pre-service training/preparation and is mandatory for all potential foster and adoptive families. The scripted Information Session video and PowerPoint presentation should be used. Families approved by other states are also required to have the fundamental information needed to consider fostering or adopting in this state. The Information Session provides a basic introduction of applicable DFCS policy to assist interested parties in making an initial decision about becoming a foster or adoptive parent. Subsequently, they can determine whether to continue the process. The Information Session may be completed within a scheduled group setting or individually. Regardless of the format, persons interested in becoming foster or adoptive parents should not have to wait more than 14 calendar days to attend an Information Session. Making people wait leads to increased drop-out rates, therefore DFCS must move quickly to help people act upon their initial interest and nurture their desire to foster or adopt. Otherwise, such interest and desire may gradually disappear resulting in the loss of a potential resource for a child.

Following the Information Session, persons interested in continuing the application process must complete all required onboarding documentation and supplemental verifications (see policy 14.10 Resource Development: Initial Family Evaluation). Any negative findings from safety screenings and criminal history record checks should be reviewed and approved by the County Director/Designee or CPA Director/Designee before an invitation to pre-service training is extended.

Applicant

This term refers to a prospective foster or adoptive parent who has made an inquiry and submitted a Prospective Caregiver Application but has not yet obtained final approval as a foster or adoptive parent. No individual should be denied the opportunity to apply based on race, color, or national origin (of the person or child involved).

As necessary, such preparation shall continue after placement of the child and includes knowledge and skills relating to the reasonable and prudent parenting standard.*
- Require prospective caregivers to complete a pre-service training program [National Training and Development Curriculum (NTDC)] to become approved foster or adoptive parents for children in DFCS custody.
 - Caregivers who voluntarily closed their homes while in good standing and desire to have their home reopened are not required to repeat pre-service training if they completed it within the last three years.

 - Child Development
 - Attachment
 - Separation, Grief, and Loss
 - Trauma Related Behavior
 - Trauma Informed Parenting

- c. A waiver of pre-service training may be considered for families who are approved to foster or adopt in another state and are moving to Georgia with children placed by that state through the Interstate Compact on the Placement of Children (ICPC).
3. Make it possible for prospective caregivers to attend pre-service training no later than 60 days after submitting the appropriate documents from the Prospective Caregiver Application Packet.
 4. Require pre-service training sessions to be facilitated only by DFCS certified NTDC trainers.
 5. Restrict parent co-leaders from being solely responsible for an entire training session or completing In-Home Family Consultations.
 6. Hold preservice training sessions on days and times that meet the needs of the participating families while ensuring the entire curriculum is completed within 10 weeks. Meetings may be held at night, during the day, and/or on weekends.
 7. Require participants to attend all sessions.
 8. Require all adult household members (age 18 and over) of prospective foster parents to complete pre-service training if they will be involved in the parenting of children placed in the home. For adoptive families, these household members are strongly encouraged to participate.
 9. Require DFCS staff who will not facilitate pre-service training sessions to receive an abbreviated “overview session” of the curriculum from Resource Development (RD) staff or another approved facilitator. At a minimum, the following DFCS staff will be provided an overview of the NTDC Curriculum:
 - a. Regional Directors;
 - b. Field-based Consultants;
 - c. County Directors;
 - d. Deputy Directors;
 - e. Social Services Program Directors and Social Services Administrators;
 - f. Social Services Supervisors and Case Managers; and

g. Independent Living Specialists.

Procedures

NTDC Facilitators

1. Evaluate the needs of the family, as well as the needs and resources of the agency, to choose a mode of pre-service preparation (i.e., group or individual sessions) for the family. Group is the preferred mode.

Approval must be obtained from the Regional Adoption Coordinator (RAC) to pay for individual sessions.

2. Help participants make the decision to “select out” as a part of the joint selection process whenever participants decide they do not wish to foster or adopt. Participants who select out may be allowed to remain in the group, unless they are disruptive to the group. However, one-to-one sessions are discontinued.
3. Offer classes in the configuration that best meets the needs of their participants and still allows for completion of the entire curriculum within 10 weeks.
4. Request a waiver of pre-service training for families who are approved to foster or adopt in another state and are moving to Georgia with children placed by that state through the Interstate Compact on the Placement of Children (ICPC).
 - a. All applicable ICPC requirements must be met, and the Georgia ICPC Administrator must authorize the placement of children from other states into Georgia.
 - b. ICPC allows provisional approval of families. This means ICPC families can be provisionally approved before pre-service training is completed. The family will have to complete pre-service training within 120 calendar days in order to maintain approval status.
5. If applicants were approved in other states within the last five years, take the following actions to confirm the training hours and begin collecting information for the SAFE Home Study:
 - a. Obtain Authorization for Release of Information.
 - b. Contact the other state in writing.
 - c. Obtain a description of the training content and number of hours earned as part of pre-service and in-service hours.
 - i. Assess whether the training content was trauma informed.
 - ii. If the training content was not trauma informed, require the applicants to complete the following NTDC trauma informed modules:
 1. Trauma Related Behaviors
 2. Trauma Informed Parenting Mental Health Considerations
 3. Parenting a Child with Sexual Trauma
 - d. Request a copy of the family’s initial evaluation and any subsequent evaluations.
 - e. Request a written recommendation from the state as to the capabilities and protective capacities of the family.

f. Enter all information collected into Georgia SHINES.

Practice Guidance

National Training and Development Curriculum (NTDC)

The National Training and Development Curriculum (NTDC) has been adapted to address the needs of Georgia families and equips potential foster, kinship, and adoptive parents with the information, resources, and tools needed to parent a child who has experienced trauma, separation, or loss. NTDC requires 34 hours to complete and is designed as a hybrid model that can be delivered both virtually and in-person (at the discretion of the DFCS region). It is recommended that the first and last sessions be conducted in-person. The training schedule can be modified as long as the entire curriculum is not completed in a condensed format such as in one week or weekend. NTDC gives parents access to information and resources needed to continue building their skills once they have a child in their home through Right-Time Training (RTT). The NTDC curriculum and RTT themes are accessible from the agency's learning management system, IOTIS.

Right-Time Training (RTT)

Right-Time Training (RTT) is a component of NTDC that serves as a supplement to the classroom-based training. It provides caregivers online access to beneficial information on-demand whenever they want it. RTT includes 15 themes specifically for caregivers who are fostering or adopting. Each of the themes (listed below) takes about an hour to review.

- Accessing Services and Support
- Building Children's Resilience
- Building Parental Resilience
- Common Feelings Associated with Being Adopted
- Education
- Family Dynamics
- Intercountry Adoptions: Medical Considerations
- Life Story: Birth Story and Adoption Story
- Managing Placement Transitions
- Preparing for Adulthood
- Preparing for and Managing Visitation
- Responding to Children in Crisis
- Sensory Integration
- Sexual Development and Identity
- Sexual Trauma

Caregivers may use RTT to enhance their knowledge of any of the particular topics. RTT may also be used to address specific parenting needs when a Corrective Action Plan (CAP) with a foster or adoptive parent has been developed. RTT completed by approved caregivers during a calendar year may be credited towards their annual training requirement (see policy 14.09 Resource Development: Continued Parent Development). However, prospective caregivers will not receive credit for training taken prior to home approval.

Reducing the Waiting Period

Potential applicants could become discouraged or lose interest if they are left waiting to begin pre-service training. Some strategies to help reduce the amount of time applicants have to wait to participate in pre-service training include:

1. Conducting pre-service training groups across county lines;
2. Having reciprocal arrangements with other counties and agencies to make groups available to each other;
3. Co-leading groups with other public or private agencies that have approved trainers;
4. Referring prospective adoptive families to the Regional Adoption Coordinator (RAC) for linkage to a private adoption agency under contract with DFCS.

Consistent Group Leaders

It is preferred that group leaders remain the same throughout all assigned sessions of the pre-service training to enhance effectiveness. Leaders should not start group or individual training if it is known in advance that they will not be able available for the entire duration of the series. Each leader brings unique perspectives and experiences to the learning process.

Parent Co-Leaders

Pre-service preparation is most effective when jointly presented by DFCS staff and a competent, experienced foster or adoptive parent using an instructive and practical approach. DFCS County Offices/Regions and CPAs should maintain enough certified parent co-leaders to meet the training needs of the county/region. Parent co-leaders should be active partners in conducting groups and share an active role in planning, scheduling, logistics, and delivery. The DFCS and parent co-leaders should collaborate following each group meeting to discuss the meeting and exchange feedback on performance. Caregivers selected to become approved co-leaders should:

1. Be an approved, active caregiver; or a previous caregiver whose home was voluntarily closed while in good standing;
2. Demonstrate the ability to grasp and impart information;
3. Have at least two years of experience as a caregiver;
4. Demonstrate functional knowledge and understanding of the general needs of the children in foster care;
5. Demonstrate the ability to manage, nurture, and support children in foster care;
6. Demonstrate a functional understanding of the DFCS mission to strengthen and support birth families;
7. Have a positive working relationship with DFCS;
8. Provide an environment that ensures the health and safety of the child;

9. Understand the role they have assumed as caregivers and the ongoing impact this has on their family and themselves; and
10. Have no active CPS investigations.

Parent Co-Leader Scheduling

Counties/Regions should develop an annual training plan and inform parents of plans and approximate times that parents will be co-leading groups. DFCS and parent co-leaders must ensure the needs of the child(ren) placed in the parent co-leader’s home are being met before scheduling the parent to co-lead pre-service training. The parent co-leader must be able to state how the child(ren)’s needs will be met during the parent co-leader’s absence.

5. Meet with the SAFE Supervisor prior to the first home study interview to review the Prospective Caregiver Application, Questionnaire 1 (Q1) and Q1 Harvesting Sheet.
 - a. Organize all the information that has been received up to this point and plan the home study interviews. Identify things that generate curiosity and plan to address them over the span of all the home study interviews, not in a single interview.

- b. If the results of the home inspection, safety screenings and criminal records history checks, etc. are satisfactory, contact the applicant to schedule the first home study visit. If the results are not satisfactory, consider other ways to partner with applicants (see policy 14.7 Resource Development: Inquiries and Information Sessions for ideas).
 - c. Plan to conduct home study visits no less than seven and no more than 10 days apart.
 6. Conduct the number of home study visits and interviews necessary to complete the SAFE Home Study (see Practice Guidance: Home Study Interviews).
 - a. Interview all children and adults who reside in the home or are frequently in the home.
 - b. Discuss things that made the HSP and SAFE Supervisor curious.
 - c. Complete the Psychosocial Inventory (PSI) following each home visit.
 7. Directly administer Q2 to applicants while maintaining sight and control of the tool at all times.
 - a. Do not provide Q2 to applicants before the moment it is administered.
 - b. Administer Q2 in a private setting. For couples administer Q2 with both applicants present and together.
 - c. Instruct members of a couple not to communicate with each other or ask any questions of each other or the HSP while completing Q2.
 - d. Conduct a private, one-on-one interview with each applicant after Q2 has been completed.
 - e. For couples, ask one applicant to leave or go to another area of the home and interview the other applicant privately. Repeat the process with the other applicant.
 - f. Interview applicants privately and individually for no longer than 45 minutes each.
 8. Meet with the SAFE Supervisor following each home visit for consultation and feedback.
 9. Send all references the Reference Questionnaire. After receiving a response, speak with each reference as needed to gather more information and seek clarification of any of the information provided.
 10. If applicants indicate they were approved in other states, take steps to secure confirmation, and begin collecting information for the home study:
 - a. Obtain a Release of Information;
 - b. Contact the other state in writing;
 - c. Obtain a description of the training content and number of hours earned as part of pre-service and in-service hours;
 - d. Request a copy of the family's initial evaluation and any subsequent evaluations;
 - e. Request a written recommendation from the state regarding the capabilities and protective capacities of the family; upload into Georgia SHINES.

 Do not make this a barrier to approval.

11. Send a written explanation, signed by the County Director/Designee or CPA Director/Designee, to all families whose Initial Family Evaluation will not be completed within the designated time-frame.

12. Provide applicants the opportunity to read the authorized portion of the Home Study Report pertaining to their family and have them acknowledge doing so by signing the document.
13. Provide written notification to applicants of the approval decision (approved or disapproved) via email within one business day of the decision.
 - a. Initial contact may be made by telephone but must be immediately followed by the email.
 - b. If approval is granted, cordially welcome approved caregivers to the foster/adoption team and advise them of subsequent procedures.
 - c. If approval is not granted, inform the applicants in a clear, concise, and non-judgmental manner.
14. Conduct a home visit with the approved caregivers within three business days of approval for the review and signing of the Caregiver Child Safety Assessment Agreement.

Social Services Supervisor

1. Ensure all required safety screenings, criminal history records checks, and the Caregiver Home Inspection Safety and Compliance Checklist are completed before the HSP is assigned to begin the SAFE Home Study.
2. Meet with the Caregiver Recruitment and Retention Specialist (CRRS)/CPA Resource Development (RD) Staff to review the results of the safety screenings, criminal history records checks and Caregiver Home Inspection Safety and Compliance Checklist to determine whether the family is eligible to continue the family evaluation process.
3. Assign the home study for completion to a SAFE certified HSP who can address sensitive and difficult issues in an appropriate manner.
4. Ensure all SAFE tools [Questionnaire1 (Q1), Questionnaire 2 (Q2), Q1 Harvesting Sheet, SAFE Desk Guide, Psychosocial Inventory (PSI) and Home Study Report] are used correctly.
5. Meet with the HSP to discuss the Prospective Caregiver Application, results of Q1, and Q1 Harvesting Sheet to help organize the information and plan the home study interviews.
6. Meet with the HSP following each home study interview.
 - a. Meet with the HSP timely to prevent delays in the home study process.
 - b. Review the Interview Worksheet to identify potential concerns and missed issues.
 - c. Review the PSI after each home study interview and provide feedback to the HSP prior to the next home visit so the appropriate action can be taken regarding any concerns.
 - d. Review Q2 after the Q2 home study interview.
 - e. Review Desk Guide Ratings carefully. Check for expected SAFE Desk Guide ratings of 3, 4 or 5 as well as any surprise ratings that may require more discussion with the HSP.
 - f. Ensure the HSP completes a sufficient number of interviews at the appropriate intervals (seven to 10 days apart).
7. Meet with the HSP to discuss the final desk guide ratings and mitigation. Ensure that mitigation of a SAFE Desk Guide rating of 3, 4 or 5 is appropriate and supported by outside sources.
8. Review the SAFE Home Study Report to ensure that it is thorough and that all issues are identified and discussed prior to final approval.

9. Complete the SAFE Supervisor Home Study Certification and include in the file.
10. Ensure applicants are given the opportunity to read the authorized portion of the Home Study Report pertaining to their family and have so acknowledged by signing the document.
11. Routinely assess the foundational skills of the HSP (engagement and forensic interviewing skills; analytical and evaluation skills; and writing skills) and provide the education and support necessary to help the HSP strengthen skills as needed.

Practice Guidance

Structured Analysis Family Evaluation (SAFE) Home Study Components

The SAFE Home Study is a placement document, an investigation, a psychosocial evaluation, and a clear written report. It has four components:

1. Information Gathering Tools - These tools support the Home Study Report and are designed to prompt the HSP to ask questions not provide answers:
 - a. Questionnaire 1 (Q1) - It is completed by each applicant and covers eight areas of family history and functioning (i.e., Personal History; Parenting Practices; Personal and Family Values; Health; Support System; Work; Family Relationships; Marital/Partner Relationship).
 - b. Q1 Harvesting Sheet - It is used to review the Prospective Caregiver Application, QI and other documents submitted by applicants. It helps organize information to provide a complete overview of each applicant's specific issues, behaviors, or events that should be addressed in upcoming home study interviews.
 - c. Questionnaire 2 (Q2) - It contains the sensitive and critical questions that need to be addressed in a home study (i.e., problem issues/behaviors; personal alcohol consumption; personal legal/illegal drug usage; family substance abuse; history of sexual, emotional, or physical victimization; child abuse allegations/convictions; family violence and crime; family sexual perpetrators; domestic violence; mental illness). Each applicant is interviewed privately and individually (one-on-one) immediately after the administration of Q2. Due to the sensitive and complex nature of these topics, this can be a very emotionally charged interview.
 - d. Reference Letter - It was designed to enable the HSP to obtain more complex information about applicants for analysis and follow-up. After receiving the SAFE Reference Letter, the HSP should speak with each reference to gather more information and seek clarification of anything in the letter. Other than indicating they received the required references, the HSP should not mention the individual references specifically in the narration of the SAFE Home Study Report. Issues raised by references should be addressed with applicants. Any issues that merit a SAFE Desk Guide Rating of 3, 4, or 5 should be discussed in the Psychosocial Evaluation Section of the SAFE Home Study Report without revealing sources.
2. Structured Analysis - SAFE has identified 70 Psychosocial Factors that research has demonstrated to be necessary for safe and effective parenting whether through adoption, kin, or foster care. The Psychosocial Inventory (PSI) and SAFE Desk Guide allow the HSP to systematically analyze information gathered during the home study process, as well facilitate a clear and uniform identification of specific family strengths and issues of concern. The PSI and Desk Guide are grouped into the following nine sections: History; Personal Characteristics; Marital/Partner

Relationship; Children/Others Residing/Frequently in the Home; Extended Family Relationships; Physical/Social Environment; General Parenting; Specialized Parenting; and Adoption/Foster Care Issues.

The PSI is designed to look at a person's history of issues, concerns, behaviors, and events and determine how they affect the person's current functioning and ability to parent. The PSI strives to help the HSP determine whether an applicant can parent, and if so, who they can parent. Only one PSI is used per family and is completed after each home study visit. The SAFE Desk Guide is a severity scale that indicates the potential seriousness of an issue, behavior or event experienced by an applicant.

The PSI and SAFE Desk Guide contain research-based factors that support safe and effective family functioning and the ability to parent. The factors are rated on a scale of 1 to 5 and marked on the PSI. The ratings represent the following: 1=Exceptional Strength; 2= Strength; 3=Concern; 4=Serious Concern; 5=Extremely Serious Concern. A rating of 2 is the default rating until proven otherwise. A rating of 2 may also be used early in the home study process when the HSP does not have enough information to rate a factor. In other words, it can function as the "I don't know" rating until more information is gathered. A completed home study report should not have an abundance of "2" ratings which is not indicative of a thorough assessment. Any psychosocial factor that merits a rating of 3 (Concern), 4 (Serious Concern) or 5 (Extremely Serious Concern) must be specifically addressed in the Home Study Report. As more information is gathered during the home study interview process, a rating may move to a more serious rating, but not in reverse.

As soon as possible following each home study visit, the HSP should mark the applicable SAFE Desk Guide ratings on the PSI. Entering the ratings while the visit is still fresh in one's mind prevents one from forgetting issues of concern or confusing them with other studies. A different symbol is used to mark the ratings on the PSI for each home visit. For example, the symbol used to mark the rating for the first home study visit is a backward slash, whereas the symbol used to mark the second home study visit is a forward slash. The SAFE Desk Guide ratings should reflect everything the HSP knows up to that point. After each interview, the HSP submits the PSI to the Supervisor for review and feedback. The final SAFE Desk Guide Rating is made after the last home study visit and must be made with a high degree of confidence based on the HSP and the SAFE Supervisor's professional assessment.

3. Home Study Report – The narrative is designed to assist the HSP in focusing on the issues of concern within a family that will or could impact its ability to care for a child placed in the home. A home study should be specific to the applicant. The HSPs should use behaviorally specific language and avoid repeating the same thing throughout the study. There are six sections to a SAFE Home Study Report:
 - a. Non-narrative reporting required by the agency (i.e., general information; contact information; household demographics; medical/school reports; safety screening and criminal records history results; confirmation statements; attachments and verifications)
 - b. Motivation, Profile and Lifestyles of Applicants
 - c. SAFE Psychosocial Evaluation
 - d. Conclusions and Placement Considerations
 - e. Signatures and Approvals

f. SAFE Psychosocial Inventory Results (NOTE: this page should be removed when the SAFE Home Study Report is shared with applicants)

4. Compatibility Inventory - This is an optional matching tool designed to facilitate successful placements. This tool helps the HSP determine the willingness and ability of an applicant to parent children with certain issues and behaviors.

Home Study Interviews

The home study interview is the foundation of the home study process. The various gathering tools used with the SAFE model support the interviews and help the HSP develop questions for the applicants. HSPs learn more from applicants when applicants are interviewed at home where they are most comfortable. During interviews, HSPs should avoid using standardized questions and rushing ahead with their own agenda. Instead, the HSP should seek a natural, organic flow of communication with applicants. HSPs should trust their instincts but must be mindful of their own biases. HSPs must also remain keenly aware of non-verbal communication which guides about 80% of human interaction. No interview should take longer than an hour and a half. It is unlikely that any party will remain as alert as they need to be for longer than that period of time. Home visits should be no closer or further than a week apart because applicants need time to process the information covered between visits, but not so much time that they begin to lose information.

The initial visit to during which the Caregiver Home Inspection Safety and Compliance Checklist is completed should not be confused with a Home Study Interview. These are two different things and should not be done at the same time. The home inspection is authoritative and regulatory whereas the home study interview is collaborative and transparent. The more interviews a HSP has with an applicant, the more comfortable the HSP will be about recommending approval or denial. SAFE recommends a minimum of four interviews (three meetings) to complete an acceptable home study report. Depending on the circumstances, more than four interviews may be required. HSPs should prepare a plan for which interviews will be conducted during each visit such as the following:

Home Study Visit 1 (1st Interview)

- This is an introductory interview to develop the relationship between the HSP and the applicants.
- SAFE Questionnaire 1 (Q1) is discussed.

Home Study Visit 2 (2nd and 3rd Interview if it is a two-parent home)

- The HSP administers SAFE Questionnaire 2 (Q2), and it must never be out of the sight or control of the HSP.
- This is a one-on-one history interview. The purpose is to examine issues, behaviors, and events that affect or could affect the applicant's current functioning or ability to parent and how the applicant has resolved those issues. The focus is on past patterns of behavior.
- The HSP observes all applicants while they complete Q2. The applicants are instructed not to talk or discuss the questionnaire. When Q2 is completed, the HSP immediately interviews each applicant separately and privately. No children or other adults should be in the home when Q2 is administered. If others must remain in the home, they should not be in an area near where Q2 is being administered. The HSP must be skilled and prepared to handle sensitive and complex issues and work with emotionally charged situations.

- Q2 interviews should be no longer than 45 minutes each. However, due to their complexity, additional one-on-one/history interviews might be necessary before the marriage or support interview.

Home Study Visit 3 (4th Interview)

- This is a marriage or support interview.
- The family and others residing or frequently in the home can be interviewed at this time. The number of interviews performed will depend on the number of individuals involved.
- The HSP should examine the applicants' relationship with a focus towards the strength and dynamics of their marriage/partnership. For single applicants, the focus should be on their support systems.

Mitigation

Within the SAFE model, mitigation is where the HSP balances the truth (Final SAFE Desk Guide Ratings) and Justice (the HSP's clinical analysis of how those issues affect an applicant's current functioning and ability to parent). Mitigation is a fact or series of facts that exist to support the decision to mitigate an issue/behavior/event and must be corroborated by outside sources (e.g., other family members, professionals, clinicians). The HSP does not use the SAFE Desk Guide during the mitigation process. Mitigation is applied to all Final SAFE Desk Guide Ratings of 3, 4 and 5. Mitigation always focuses on current functioning or ability to parent rather than what happened in the past. The goal is to capture how the applicant's ability to parent is presently affected. Mitigation results in a mitigation rating using the SAFE severity scale. The mitigation rating should reflect the HSP and their supervisor's professional assessment (supported by evidence) of whether a Final SAFE Desk Guide Rating of 3, 4 or 5 is warranted based upon how an applicant is currently affected by the issue, behavior, or event. The mitigation rating is handwritten into the blank column to the right of all the Psychosocial Inventory factors with a final SAFE Desk Guide Rating of 3, 4 or 5. The three choices in mitigation are as follows:

1. Sustain: The issue/behavior/event is not resolved.
2. Reduce: The applicant has a degree of resolution, but the issue/behavior/event still affects their current functioning or ability to parent.
3. Erase: The issue/behavior/event is totally resolved and does not affect the applicant's current functioning or ability to parent.

Who is qualified to complete the SAFE Home Study?

SAFE Certified DFCS staff, SAFE Certified CPA Resource Development staff, or contractors may qualify as a SAFE Home Study Practitioner (HSP) able to complete the Initial Family Evaluation. Private contractors must meet the following criteria:

1. Certification in the SAFE model.
2. A minimum of a bachelor's level of education in Social Work, Counseling, Psychology, or a related field.
3. Ability to understand and implement the philosophy and conceptualizations inherent in pre-service training.

4. A functional understanding of the agency's mission.
5. Ability to provide thorough, well-written home studies with supported recommendations.

The SAFE Home Study Practitioner Skills Assessment can be used to help supervisors assess their Home Study Practitioners' foundational skills (engagement and forensic interviewing skills; analytical and evaluation skills; and writing skills).

Reimbursement of Expenses

If approved, applicants may be reimbursed for certain expenses incurred during the approval process. The guidelines are in Field Fiscal Services' COSTAR manual located at ffs.dhs.ga.gov/ffs/manuals/costar/index.php.

U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, Office for Civil Rights and the Georgia Department of Human Services' Settlement Agreement, OCR Transaction Number: 09-102792

Requirements

The Division of Family and Children Services (DFCS) will:

1. Ensure that no qualified individual with a disability is excluded (by reason of such disability) from participation in or denied the benefits of its services, programs or activities (see policy 1.5 Administration: Americans with Disabilities/Section 504 and Reasonable Modifications).
2. Provide individuals with disabilities the opportunity to benefit from or participate in child welfare programs, services, and activities that are equal to those extended to individuals without disabilities.
3. Conduct an Individualized Assessment (IA) of any prospective or existing caregiver under the following circumstances:
 - a. An individual makes it known that they have a disability for which they are requesting an auxiliary aid or modification to the Foster Care or Adoption program;
 - b. An individual has a disability that the home assessor reasonably believes may interfere with the individual's ability to be approved or continue to participate in the Foster Care or Adoption program; or
 - c. The results of an Initial Family Evaluation or Re-evaluation will result in a denial based on a covered disability.

The IA must be reviewed and approved by the DFCS Placement and Permanency Services Director (or his or her designee), prior to any decisions being finalized.

4. Screen a prospective caregiver out of the approval process or close the home of an existing caregiver if the individual poses a direct threat^[2] to the health or safety of others.
5. Eliminate eligibility criteria for participation that screens out or tends to screen out a person with a disability or any class of individuals with disabilities from full and equal enjoyment in such participation. This does not apply to eligibility requirements that are necessary for the provision of the foster care/adoption program.

6. Provide an auxiliary aid or modify its policy, practice, or procedures if doing so will not fundamentally alter the nature of its foster care/adoption program or result in undue financial and administrative burdens.
7. Assess individuals with disabilities on a case-by-case basis consistent with facts and objective evidence and not on stereotypes or generalizations about individuals with disabilities.
8. Require Child Placing Agencies (CPAs) to create comparable procedures to ensure that their prospective and existing program participants are likewise protected under applicable disability laws and that all Reasonable Modification requests are documented.

Procedures

DFCS Caregiver Recruitment and Retention Specialist / CPA Resource Development Staff

1. Identify whether circumstances exist that warrant the completion of an Individualized Assessment (IA) to address the impact of a disability on the prospective or existing caregiver's ability to meet the Safety and Quality Standards and skills required to be approved as a foster or adoptive caregiver (see policy 14.1 Resource Development: Safety and Quality Standards).
2. Conduct the Individualized Assessment (IA) using the "Individualized Assessment Tool for Prospective & Existing Foster Caregivers" (IA Tool) if a certifying medical official, as described in subsection d below, states that a prospective or existing caregiver has a disability that may affect his or her ability to care for a child:
 - a. Complete the IA Tool with the prospective or existing caregiver.
 - b. Gather information regarding the nature of an applicant or other household member's condition.
 - c. Assess whether the prospective or existing caregiver is a qualified individual with a disability (see Practice Guidance: Individualized Assessment).
 - d. Assess whether a qualified individual with a disability poses a direct threat to the health or safety of others. Direct threat is defined as a significant risk of harm to the health or safety of others that cannot be mitigated by reasonable modifications of policies, practices or procedures, or by the provision of auxiliary aids or services. Individuals deemed a 'direct threat' may be screened out or have their Family Evaluation denied solely based on this factor. When 'direct threat' is the justification for screening out an individual with a disability, the IA must include:
 - i. Current medical evidence or the best available objective evidence in determining:
 1. The nature, duration, and severity of the potential risk;
 2. The probability that potential injury will occur;
 3. Whether reasonable modification in policies, practices, or procedures will mitigate the risk. If not, explain why.
 - ii. The actual abilities and limitations of the prospective or existing caregiver.
 - e. Obtain the endorsement of a certifying medical official regarding whether the primary or secondary caregiver (as applicable) has any medical, cognitive, or other condition that may adversely impact their ability to care for a child or meet the DFCS Safety and Quality Standards (see policy 14.1 Resource Development: Safety and Quality Standards).

- f. For each Safety and Quality Standard and other necessary skill, assess whether the individual can meet the requirements. The IA shall specifically address the impact of a disability on the caregiver's ability to meet the Safety and Quality Standards in accordance with policy 14.1 Resource Development: Safety and Quality Standards; and exhibit the following skills required of all approved caregivers:
 - i. Understanding the Impact of Fostering /Adopting
 - ii. Teamwork and Communication
 - iii. Parenting Abused/Neglected Children
 - iv. Understanding Grief, Loss and Attachment
 - v. Understanding, Preventing and Managing Misbehavior
 - vi. Supporting Primary/Birth Family Relations
 - vii. Providing a Safe, Healthy and Nurturing Environment.
 - g. Determine if the potential risks can be mitigated by a reasonable modification in policies, practices or procedures, or by the provision of auxiliary aids or services in a manner that will not fundamentally alter the nature of the foster care or adoptive services program or pose an undue financial or administrative burden on DFCS, as required by federal law. If not, a denial decision may be made based on this factor.
3. Document the results from the IA Tool in Georgia SHINES within 72 hours of completion. Include the following:
 - a. Name of the applicant and the date and time of the IA;
 - b. Findings of the IA; and
 - c. A statement indicating the basis of a denial, including whether the denial is based on a disability, and whether reasonable modifications could allow the applicant to participate.
 - d. Upload the IA Tool into External Documentation in Georgia SHINES. Use the Foster/Adoptive Home Information Document Class and use the heading "ADA Individualized Assessment."
 4. Consult with the Regional ADA/Section 504 Coordinator throughout the IA process for technical assistance.
 5. If it appears that a disability may interfere with the individual's ability to be approved or continue to participate in the Foster Care or Adoption program, ask the individual if he/she would like to request a reasonable modification.
 - a. Direct all requests for reasonable modifications made by or on behalf of individuals with disabilities to the Regional ADA/Section 504 Coordinator for review and approval (see policy 1.5 Administration: Americans with Disabilities Act \(ADA\)/Section 504 and Reasonable Modifications for submitting requests for reasonable modifications).
 6. If the results of an Initial Family Evaluation or Re-evaluation may result in a denial decision based on an individual's disability, staff the case with the Regional ADA/Section 504 Coordinator and the Caregiver Recruitment and Retention Unit Director before taking any action that may adversely affect the ability of caregivers with disabilities to participate in the Foster Care or Adoption program.

- a. If there is concurrence at this level regarding the denial, that decision must be forwarded to and reviewed by the Caregiver and Wellbeing Coordination Section Director (or designee) for finalization.
 - b. After review by the Caregiver and Wellbeing Coordination Section Director, the Regional Coordinator will forward all denials to the State DFCS Civil Rights, ADA/Section 504 Coordinator for final review and approval by the Division Director (or designee).
7. Send caregivers a letter notifying them of the final decision regarding their request for reasonable modifications within 30 business days of receiving the request.
- a. Final decision letters must be signed by the local County Director.
 - b. Letters of denial must include the basis of the denial.
 - c. Upload the final decision letter into External Documentation in Georgia SHINES. Use the Foster/Adoptive Home Information Document Class and the heading “ADA/RA DFCS Response.”
8. Upload any subsequent communications regarding the reasonable modifications request into External Documentation in Georgia SHINES. Use the Foster/Adoptive Home Information Document Class and the most applicable heading.

Practice Guidance

How does the ADA define disability?

The ADA defines disability as:

1. A physical or mental impairment that substantially limits one or more of a person’s major life activities;
2. A record of such impairment; and
3. Being regarded as having such an impairment.

What is a qualified individual with a disability?

Federal law defines a ‘qualified individual with a disability’ as an individual with a disability who, with or without reasonable modifications to rules, policies, or practices, the removal of architectural, communication, or transportation barriers, or the provision of auxiliary aids and services, meets the essential eligibility requirements for the receipt of services or the participation in programs or activities provided by a public entity.

Individuals with disabilities must be provided opportunities to benefit from or participate in child welfare programs, services, and activities that are equal to those extended to individuals without disabilities. This principle can require the provision of aids, benefits, and services different from those provided to other parents and prospective caregivers where necessary to ensure an equal opportunity to obtain the same result or gain the same benefit, such as family reunification. For example, a child welfare agency must provide an interpreter for a father who is deaf when necessary to ensure that he can participate in all aspects of the child welfare interaction.

Individualized Assessment (IA)

Prospective or existing caregivers, with or without a disability, may pose a significant risk to the health or safety of the child that cannot be mitigated by reasonable modification. As a result, they may not be deemed an appropriate placement for a child. IA is a process used to determine whether a qualified foster or adoptive caregiver with a disability needs reasonable modifications to participate in the foster care or adoption program. The IA process is designed to assess the individual capacity of a foster or adoptive caregiver with a disability to provide a healthy and safe environment for the child.

On a case-by-case basis, the IA is used to examine the circumstances of individuals with disabilities based upon facts and objective evidence. Decisions must never be made based on speculation, stereotypes, generalizations or unfounded fears about individuals with disabilities. Technical assistance may be requested from the Regional or State DFCS ADA/Section 504 Coordinator at any time during the IA.

The IA includes a review of auxiliary aids, services or modifications that may be afforded to the caregiver so that they can participate in the program, and an assessment of whether or not the caregiver is a 'qualified individual with a disability' as defined by the ADA (See 42 U.S.C. § 12131) and whether the caregiver poses a 'direct threat' to the health or safety of a child in DFCS custody.

What is the fundamental nature of the DFCS foster care and adoption program?

The fundamental purpose of the DFCS foster care and adoption program is to promote the safety and well-being of children in DFCS care. DFCS seeks to identify qualified individuals to serve as partners in caring for, supervising, protecting and promoting the welfare of children in foster care. These partners serve as caregivers 24 hours a day, seven days a week. The recipient of the services of the DFCS foster care and adoption program is the child in foster care.

Requests for Reasonable Modifications

Participants have the right to request a reasonable modification (sometimes referred to as "reasonable accommodation"). The request may be made orally or in writing. The determination of whether DFCS will provide an auxiliary aid or modify its policies, practices, or procedures is made on a fact-specific, case-by-case basis and relies upon an individualized assessment of the caregiver making the request. For additional information regarding reasonable modifications, refer to policy 1.5 Administration: Americans with Disabilities Act \(ADA\)/Section 504 and Reasonable Modifications.

DFCS ADA/Section 504 State and Regional Coordinators

DFCS has at least one state office ADA/Section 504 Coordinator and a coordinator for each region. They serve both foster care and adoptions programs. Before taking action, which might adversely affect the ability of a prospective or existing caregiver with disabilities to participate in the foster care and adoption program, the local DFCS office must seek guidance from the applicable coordinator. The Region's ADA/Section 504 Coordinator will serve as a second level reviewer/approver in cases where the local DFCS is considering not approving a prospective or existing caregiver who has a disability. If technical assistance or additional information is needed regarding DFCS' civil rights compliance, the Regional Coordinator may contact the State DFCS Civil Rights, ADA/Section

504 Coordinator, using the information below:

Practice Guidance

What is the purpose of the SAFE Update?

The assessment of an approved home is an ongoing process between DFCS/CPA and caregivers. A SAFE Update may be completed at any time during an approved home's approval period but is usually completed just prior to the expiration of the current approval period. The key purpose of the SAFE Update is to utilize information gathered during the approval term to determine if a home continues to be a safe and suitable environment for the placement of children in foster care and meets SQS. Information gathered from various sources (e.g., in-home consultation, feedback from caregivers, case managers, children placed in the home, documentation, safety screening, training logs) is used to conduct a holistic review of the caregiver and household.

SAFE Update Approval Period

No home shall have more than 24 months of approval. If a SAFE Update is completed within 30 calendar days of the due date, then the approval period (starting month to ending month) will remain the same as it was previously. If the SAFE Update is completed more than 30 calendar days early or late, then the approval period must change.

Who is qualified to complete the SAFE Update?

SAFE Certified DFCS staff, SAFE Certified CPA Case staff, or contractors may qualify as a SAFE Home Study Practitioner (HSP) able to complete the SAFE Update. Private contractors must meet the following criteria:

1. Certification in the SAFE model.
2. A minimum of a bachelor's level of education in Social Work, Counseling, Psychology, or a related field.
3. Ability to understand and implement the philosophy and conceptualizations inherent in pre-service training.
4. A functional understanding of the agency's mission.

5. Ability to provide thorough, well-written home studies with supported recommendations.

1. Go to www.safehomestudy.org.
2. Select 'Download Reports'.

In order to download SAFE forms and templates you must have completed the full two-day SAFE training and be a certified SAFE user.

3. Enter your email address and select 'validate' to receive an email that includes a link.
4. Use the link received via email to access the applicable section of the website.

6. Encourage partnership parenting between foster parents and birth parents when it is appropriate and safe. This includes discussing with the caregivers the input of the child's parents regarding the types of activities in which they would like the child to participate. Whenever possible, include the birth parents in the decision making.

When making decisions regarding the selection and use of an approved home, the Resource Development (RD) Case Manager will:

1. Make a mutual decision with the RD supervisor and the caregiver regarding the suitability of a placement.
2. Select a placement for a child by matching the characteristics and needs of the child with the strengths and protective capacities of the caregivers.

- c. A child gets into serious trouble with school, law enforcement, etc.
- d. A child's parent(s), relative, or other unauthorized person attempts to remove the child from the foster home.

4. Provide coaching to the SSCM and RD Case Manager, as needed, regarding conducting and documenting a quality visit.

Practice Guidance

Partnership Parenting

Parents may be allowed to have parent-child visitation in the home of the caregivers. Caregivers often have life experiences, parenting knowledge, and skills that may benefit parents. Caregivers should be encouraged to share these with parents to assist them in meeting the needs of their children in the future. In some instances, caregivers could serve as a resource to the birth family after reunification, helping to ensure the safety and well-being of the children.

Purposeful Contacts

Although it may not always be possible, face-to-face contact is the preferred method of contact with caregivers. Case managers should make both announced and unannounced visits. Below are some topics that should be discussed during contacts with caregivers:

1. Health and safety issues
2. Behavioral issues
3. Educational issues
4. Ongoing opportunities children have had to engage in age or developmentally appropriate activities
5. Needed supports, training, or services
6. Changes within the foster home (i.e., household members, health, etc.)
7. Progress toward goals of the Family Plan
8. Children's permanency plans
9. Caregiver issues or concerns

Initial Placement

The caregiver's relationship with DFCS and his/her perception of being supported by DFCS are strongly influenced by the initial placement experience. The transition from pre-service training to in-service situations can be a nervous and unsettling experience for caregivers. A recently approved family needs more frequent contacts by the RD and SSCM to help them adjust to the initial placement. The caregivers should be encouraged to communicate openly about their foster parent experience and the effects on the foster family. The caregivers may have questions or need clarification about training, policies, and related issues.

Emergencies in Foster Homes

Caregivers should always have an updated listing of contact numbers for SSCMs and county leadership. There should never be an emergency situation involving a child in DFCS custody in which the caregivers are unable to contact anyone at the County DFCS. The County DFCS should designate someone to be responsible for updating and distributing the contact list to ensure caregivers always have the most current and accurate contact information. Some find it helpful to distribute contact lists at caregiver meetings or circulate them with monthly newsletters.

After such training, a volunteer will be permitted to serve as an advocate for an accused foster parent. All communication received by the advocate in this capacity shall be strictly confidential.

DFCS will also consider the following issues as grievable:

1. The local DFCS fails to provide face-to-face contact with the foster parent(s) to discuss the reasons for the involuntary closure of their foster home and to offer support to the foster family as children are placed with other resources.
2. The local DFCS fails to send a letter describing the reasons the home is being closed and notification of the closing date within 10 business days of the face-to-face contact.

Practice Guidance

The Foster Parent Bill of Rights became law on July 1, 2004. The law covers issues such as non-discrimination, distribution and disclosure of information, financial reimbursement, and the right to have input into case planning for children. It includes a provision for advocates who can provide support to foster parents during child protective services investigations or through the grievance process. The Bill of Rights also allows for foster parents to file grievances when they believe that any of these rights have been violated. Care should always be taken to mention only case situations, not case names. The Foster Parent Bill of Rights may be viewed at the Adoptive and Foster Parent Association of Georgia \(AFPAG\) website.

Besides partnering with DFCS and foster care team members, foster and adoptive parents in Georgia can also get support from AFPAG and the Georgia Center for Resources and Support. These organizations provide ongoing training and advocacy to foster and adoptive parents. Refer to their website for contact information and resources for foster and adoptive parents.

Title IV-E of the Social Security Act Sections 471(a)(10), 471(a)(24), 475(10), and (11)

Requirements

The Division of Family and Children Services (DFCS) will:

1. Require foster parents to provide safe and appropriate supervision for each child in DFCS custody that has been placed under their care and oversight.
 - a. Foster parents must use an adult (at least 18 years of age) for the supervision of children in DFCS custody.

Foster parents can make reasonable and prudent parenting decisions when determining whether to allow youth 14 years of age and older to be left under their own supervision for short periods of time (see Practice Guidance: Supervision of Older Youth).

- b. Foster parents shall make reasonable and prudent parenting decisions in assessing the appropriateness of the activities and approving the plan of supervision before children participate in activities during which they will not be under the direct supervision or oversight of their approved foster care provider, DFCS staff, or DFCS authorized provider (see policy 10.14 Foster Care: Promoting Normalcy for Children in Foster Care).
 - c. Foster parents must be reasonably assured that any substitute caregivers possess the necessary skills to manage the parenting and/or special needs of the children left in their care and that the substitute caregivers will follow DFCS guidelines regarding supervision, discipline, and other safety practices.
 2. Allow foster parents to arrange for routine care (unreimbursed) for children in DFCS custody. Routine means more than once a week, usually at designated times. Conduct safety screenings and criminal records checks (CRC) on prospective routine caregivers.
 3. Allow foster parents to arrange for occasional or short-term unreimbursed respite care for relief of the foster parent by a person or entity. Safety screenings and criminal records checks are not required for occasional or short-term respite care up to 72 consecutive hours.
 - a. Foster parents shall use the reasonable and prudent parenting standard in selecting and arranging appropriate respite care.
 - b. 'Occasional' means once per week or less on varying days and not exceeding twice per month.
 - c. 'Short-term' means up to 72 consecutive hours, or for longer periods of time.

Short-term respite care for longer than 72 consecutive hours is hereafter referred to as "Extended Respite Care".

4. Require the following of foster parents when using short-term respite care (up to 72 consecutive hours)
 - a. Document the use of short-term respite care (up to 72 consecutive hours) by completing the Unreimbursed Substitute In-Home/Out-of-Home Caregivers form.
 - b. Review the Caregiver Child Safety Agreement with short-term respite caregivers and provide them a copy.

c. Inform DFCS of the use of short-term respite caregivers by submitting the Unreimbursed Substitute In-Home/Out-of-Home Caregivers form to the local DFCS.

a. Advance written notice (at least 72 hours is recommended) from the foster parents of their intent to use Extended Respite Care to the DFCS Social Services Case Manager (SSCM) or such SSCM's supervisor and, if applicable, the CPA.

i. The advance written notice shall include the full name of the respite caregiver, the address where the respite care will occur (e.g., in the foster home), and when the respite care period will begin and end.

ii. Email is the preferred method for providing advance notice to DFCS and, if applicable, the CPA.

b. An assessment of the prospective Extended Respite caregiver to determine their suitability to provide temporary care for the child(ren) prior to providing extended respite care:

i. Safety screenings on the prospective respite caregivers and all adults residing in the home.

 Safety screenings must be conducted annually.

ii. A check of the National Crime Information Center (NCIC) database utilizing electronic fingerprinting (Live Scan) on the prospective respite caregivers and all adults residing in the home.

 CRCs for extended respite caregivers are valid for one year.

iii. Completion of the DFCS designated pre-service respite training by the prospective respite caregivers.

iv. A home visit and face-to-face interview with the prospective respite caregivers and all household members.

v. An assessment of the prospective respite caregivers' physical home environment to determine if it is safe and appropriate to meet the needs of each child.

vi. A review of the Caregiver Child Safety Agreement and Unreimbursed Substitute In-Home/Out-of-Home Caregivers form with the prospective respite caregivers. Caregivers must sign and receive a copy of the agreement.

An assessment is not required for a foster parent to provide (unreimbursed) Extended Respite Care for another foster parent.

c. Written approval (email preferred) from DFCS prior to utilizing extended respite care. DFCS County Director approval is required for extended respite care.

The regional director or designee is responsible for coordinating the approval for extended respite care if the foster parent requests extended respite care for children from multiple counties or regions.

6. Provide paid respite care as a support service to foster parents who need time away from their parenting responsibilities.

- a. Foster parents may receive 10 calendar days of paid respite per fiscal year (taken individually or consecutively).
 - b. Paid respite may only be provided by an approved foster parent.
 - c. Foster homes providing paid respite may not exceed their approved capacity without a waiver from the applicable DFCS County Director or CPA Director.
7. Require foster parents to provide to routine caregivers, occasional or short-term respite caregivers (including extended respite caregivers), and paid respite caregivers with the following prior to leaving a child in their care:
 - a. Information about the child’s emotional, behavioral, medical, and physical condition, if any, necessary to provide care for such child during the supervision period.
 - b. Any medication that should be administered to the child during the supervision period.
 - c. Emergency contact information that is valid for the duration of the supervision period.
 8. Maintain open communication with foster parents regarding the use of routine and respite caregivers and their plan for ensuring the care and supervision of the children placed in their home.

Procedures

Routine Care (unreimbursed)

The Social Services Case Manager (SSCM) will:

1. Confirm that a foster parent plans to use a caregiver to provide routine care for a child in DFCS custody.

 - a. If the results of the GCIC reveal disqualifying findings, then give the prospective routine caregiver the option to undergo a check of the NCIC database utilizing electronic fingerprinting (Live Scan) or be disqualified based on the results of the GCIC.

This option is available because GCIC are not as reliable as NCIC fingerprint-based searches.

3. Verify the documents are uploaded into Georgia SHINES External Documentation.

Short-Term Respite Care (up to 72 consecutive hours) unreimbursed

Extended Respite Care (more than 72 consecutive hours) unreimbursed

The SSCM will:

If a CPA foster parent, confirm that they notified their CPA.

2. Add the prospective extended respite caregiver to Georgia SHINES Person List page.
3. Complete safety screenings in accordance with policy 19.9 Case Management: Safety Screenings. If the results of the screening reveal disqualifying findings, then notify the foster parent, the prospective respite caregiver is ineligible to serve as a caregiver for children in DFCS custody.

4. Complete a fingerprint-based CRC of the NCIC database in accordance with policy 19.8 Case Management: Criminal Records Checks. If the prospective respite provider is disqualified by the results of the CRC, then notify the foster parent, the prospective respite provider is ineligible to serve as a caregiver for children in DFCS custody.
5. Request the prospective extended respite caregiver complete the DFCS designated pre-service respite training.
6. Make a visit to the prospective respite caregiver's home.

7. Review the information gathered during the assessment and decide whether the prospective respite caregiver will be recommended for approval.
8. Obtain approval from SSS.
9. Notify the foster parent and the prospective respite caregiver of the DFCS' approval decision.

If a CPA foster parent, also notify the CPA of the approval.

The SSS will:

1. Review the information gathered during the assessment, including the CRC and safety screenings, and make an approval decision.
2. Verify any prospective extended respite caregiver has been added to the Georgia SHINES Person List page.
3. Submit the assessment to the County Director for approval.
4. Verify the documents are uploaded into Georgia SHINES External Documentation.

Practice Guidance

Substitute Caregivers

The use of substitute caregivers is only applicable for children in DFCS approved foster homes and CPA foster homes.

1. Routine Care (unreimbursed): more than once per week, usually at designated times. DFCS does not make payments to routine caregivers or reimburse foster parents for any payments the foster parents make to the routine caregiver.

2. Respite (unreimbursed): DFCS does not make payments to unreimbursed respite caregivers or reimburse foster parents for any payments the foster parents make to the unreimbursed respite caregiver. Foster parents may use unreimbursed respite care for purposes including, but not limited to, medical or other health care appointments, grocery or other shopping, personal grooming appointments, special occasions, foster parent training classes, school related meetings, business meetings, adult social gatherings, or an occasional evening out. The types of unreimbursed respite care include:
 - a. Occasional Respite Care: once per week or less on varying days and not exceeding twice per month.
 - b. Short-term Respite Care: up to 72 consecutive hours
 - c. Extended Respite Care: longer than 72 consecutives
3. Respite Care (paid): Respite is not to exceed 10 calendar days per fiscal year (taken individually or consecutively). Respite is paid at the child's current per diem rate. Paid respite care is a support service designed to allow foster parents time away from their parenting responsibilities. It is designed to give foster parents a needed break from parenting for such purposes as vacation, hospitalization, or any other circumstance that makes the foster parent unable to provide for the child's care in the home.

How to Determine Paid Respite Hours

When determining the number of respite days to be applied, there should be a negotiation with the foster parent to clearly establish how the days will be counted. The rule of thumb is that if a child sleeps at the respite home, it counts as a respite day (AKA head in the bed rule). Circumstances may vary, so it is important for DFCS to negotiate the number of respite days to be applied with each foster parent involved. This will help prevent conflict between any of the parties after respite services have been provided. Training for foster parents falls under current per diem, not respite. When a foster parent's attendance at an approved conference is overnight or extended care is needed, the foster parent's respite balance is not impacted (see Fiscal Field Services Manual Costar Section 3001 Family Foster Care Programs). Consult with the office of the Caregiver and Well-Being Coordination Section Director as needed regarding these situations.

Use of family foster homes between CPAs or between CPA and DFCS family foster homes is permissible, but it should be done in consultation with the Caregiver and Well-Being Coordination Section Director who will be able to assist with troubleshooting payment or Residential Child Care (RCC) rules.

Supervision of Older Youth

Reliable and competent youth 14 years and older may be left under their own supervision under certain circumstances and for short periods of time so as not to jeopardize their safety and well-being. At this stage in their lives, many youths can benefit from experiences that foster a sense of responsibility, independence, and self-control. The primary factors to consider in determining if youth may be left alone is their level of maturity and ability to function in a safe, responsible manner for short periods of time without a caregiver present, as well as knowing when and how to access the foster parent or other designated adult. Some factors that should be considered include the following:

1. Length of time a youth has been in the placement setting
2. Youth’s judgment and level of maturity or development
3. Youth’s demonstration of dependability, responsibility, and trustworthiness
4. Youth’s history of emotional/psychological stability
5. Whether a youth has a history of running away and other status offenses
6. Whether a youth has a history of delinquent behavior
7. Youth’s history of alcohol or other substance misuse
8. Number of youth present in the home, gender, and their relationship with each other
9. Whether a youth has a history of sexual misconduct
10. Youth’s school performance
11. Safety of the home environment (firearm safety, water safety, any other potential hazards, etc.)
12. Youth’s ability to readily access their foster parent or other identified person should the need arise

Taylor v. Ledbetter, 791 F.2d 881 (11th Cir.1986)

Requirements

The Division of Family and Children Services (DFCS) and Child Placing Agencies (CPA) will:

1. Prohibit approved caregivers, school systems, and any other caregivers for children in DFCS custody from using physical/corporal or emotional punishment as a method of disciplining children in foster care.

2. Prohibit caregivers for children in DFCS custody from using parenting practices that demean, humiliate, degrade, create anxiety/fear, and deny children their basic right to be reared in a manner that is instructive, firm, nurturing, and humane. This includes name-calling, criticism, or deprecation of a child's racial/ethnic heritage and socio-economic station in life.

Procedures

Resource Development and/or Social Services Case Manager and CPAs

1. Ensure all approved caregivers have a copy of the Caregiver Child Safety Agreement and adhere to the agency's discipline policy.
2. Share any known behavior issues the child may have with the caregivers and any behavior management techniques that have been successful with the child in the past.
3. Respond promptly to concerns expressed by caregivers regarding managing the behavior of a child placed in their home/facility, and identify appropriate resources to assist in the implementation of effective discipline techniques.
4. Recognize high stress factors within the placement setting home and offer appropriate services to help maintain a safe, nurturing environment.
5. Provide school principals written notification of the identity of a child in foster care, including a statement that corporal punishment is prohibited as a means of discipline or correction. This (confidential) statement is to be provided at the time of enrollment.

Practice Guidance

Discipline and Punishment

The 1989 U.S. District Consent Decree, Taylor vs. Ledbetter, guides the DFCS Discipline Policy. The Decree provides that any physical/corporal or emotional punishment to a child in foster care is prohibited. Physical/corporal punishment is defined as the deliberate infliction of pain to the body of the individual. Emotional punishment involves deliberate actions toward a child that produce, hurt, fear, anxiety and any other negative emotions in a child.

The Department acknowledges that parenting is extremely challenging. The responsibilities of caring for children in agency custody are great and require an understanding of each child's needs. Caregivers are required to know the difference between discipline and punishment. Disciplinary approaches should be based on the child's age and particular needs as well as the circumstances. It is more important to use positive reinforcement than punishment to manage behavior.

Discipline establishes a standard of behavior. It is training that seeks to produce a specific character or pattern of behavior. It should be a constructive process that helps a child learn to control his/her own behavior (self-discipline). On the other hand, punishment focuses on controlling behavior through use of coercive means (i.e., force, dominance, harsh penalties). Caregivers may have used some forms of physical/corporal and emotional punishment with their own children. However, it is necessary to remember that children reared in a nurturing family where their needs are consistently met may be able to tolerate punishment in a different way than children removed from their families where they experienced severe abuse and neglect. Children entering foster care usually feel at least one and often all of the following:

1. Negative attention is better than no attention;
2. The natural response to frustration, disappointment, anger, etc. is violence or verbal abuse;
3. Any form of physical action by a care taker may lead to severe abuse, creating fear and mistrust;
4. They are not loveable, which is reinforced by physical/corporal punishment and verbal demeaning; and/or
5. They are the reason their family is not together and deserve punishment.

Discipline within the School System

As an agency charged with the well-being of children, DFCS has a responsibility to advocate for the adoption of policies which are in the best interest of children who have been traumatized due to acts of neglect and abuse. Therefore, DFCS staff should advocate with school systems for the abolition of corporal punishment as a method of disciplining children in care. Some schools, in keeping with state laws relating to this issue, may require a statement from a licensed medical doctor stating that corporal punishment is detrimental to a child’s mental or emotional stability.

Application of the DFCS Discipline Policy

The DFCS Discipline Policy applies to all children in DFCS custody regardless of placement type.

5. Conduct a policy violation assessment on a DFCS foster, adoptive or kinship foster home to assess policy violations identified but not assessed during a special investigation in accordance with policy 14.22 Resource Development: Policy Violations.

Procedures

Resource Development Case Manager

1. Immediately review the allegations of the Intake Assessment with the RD Supervisor to discuss potential impact on any current placements.
2. Verify the placement resource was placed on hold in Georgia SHINES pending the outcome of the investigation. If the home is not on hold, manually complete the process.

The Office of Provider Management (OPM) is responsible for placing CPA foster/adoptive homes on hold.

3. Be available to consult with the CPS Investigator, as needed, to support a thorough assessment of child safety and family functioning in the foster/adoptive home.
 - a. Share known history of the placement provider with the CPS Investigator so that it may be considered during the assessment of child safety.
 - b. Provide information requested by the CPS Investigator.
 - c. Refrain from sharing any details of the CPS Investigation obtained from the investigator (or any other source) with the caregivers.
4. Continue normal case management activities during a special investigation (e.g. making monthly contacts, quarterly visits, monitoring training hours and changes to the household). However, the annual re-evaluation of a placement resource may not be approved until the investigation has concluded (see policy 14.13 Resource Development: Family Re-evaluation).

- b. If child abuse is unsubstantiated, but there are significant concerns about the appropriateness of a caregiver to provide care for children in DFCS custody, then discuss whether closure of the placement resource is warranted (see policy 14.23 Resource Development: Case Closure).
 - c. If child abuse is unsubstantiated, but a policy violation exists, then discuss if a corrective action plan is warranted (see policy 14.22 Resource Development: Policy Violations).
7. Refrain from communicating any details of the staffing with the caregivers. Allow the CPS investigator to communicate the special investigation outcome to the caregivers.
 8. Initiate a policy violation assessment when the CPS Investigator identifies potential policy violations that were not assessed during the investigation in accordance with policy 14.22 Resource Development: Policy Violations.
 9. Notify CRRU when there is a recommendation to close a DFCS foster/adoptive home or kinship foster home based on a violation of DFCS policy.

Resource Development Supervisor

1. Immediately review the allegations of the Intake Assessment with the RD Case Manager to discuss potential impact on any current placements.
2. Verify the DFCS foster or adoptive home was placed on hold in Georgia SHINES pending the outcome of the investigation.
3. Ensure RD staff remains available and responsive to the CPS investigator without compromising the investigative process.
4. Ensure no annual re-evaluation is approved on a placement resource that is the subject of an active CPS investigation.
5. Participate in the multi-disciplinary staffing held at least 48-hours prior to the special investigation being submitted for closure (see policy 6.8 Special Investigations: Making a Special Investigation Determination).
6. Carefully consider the history of the placement provider and the findings of the current special investigation to make decisions regarding the future status of the placement provider (e.g. whether a separate policy violation assessment needed, whether the placement resource should remain open).

Practice Guidance

Maintain Neutrality During the Investigation Process

RD Case Managers should be careful not to interfere with a CPS investigation and should maintain neutrality throughout the investigative process. This includes not sharing information pertaining to the investigation with caregivers. The CPS investigator will communicate the appropriate information to the caregivers at the appropriate time. RD staff may arrange services required to preserve the current placement(s) in the foster/adoptive home but may not serve in the role of an advocate. Foster and adoptive parents may obtain such advocacy via the Adoptive and Foster Parent Association of Georgia (AFPAG). Foster and adoptive parents are provided with a “Notification of Rights” brochure at the initial CPS investigation meeting, which informs them of their right to an advocate and instructions on requesting an advocate. Foster or adoptive parents may authorize an AFPAG advocate to be present for all portions of investigations of child abuse at which an accused foster or adoptive parent is present. However, CPS investigations including applicable response timeframes are not impacted by the presence or absence of advocates.

Practice Guidance

What are Policy Violations?

Policy Violations are actions performed by an approved caregiver (DFCS or CPA Family Foster Home, Foster Care Kinship Placement, or CCI), that may breach any DFCS Safety and Quality Standard, Foster Parent Manual, RBWO Minimum Standards or other DFCS policy, but do not constitute child abuse. Violations generally fall into one of the categories below:

1. Actions that pose an immediate or potential threat to the safety or well-being of the child in care. These may include, but are not limited to, inappropriate disciplinary measures (both physical/corporal and emotional), violations of supervision, or any other safety requirements.
2. Actions that do not pose a direct or immediate risk to the safety and well-being of the child. These may include the following or similar infractions:
 - a. Failure to complete required hours of annual Continued Parent Development (CPD);
 - b. Inappropriate utilization of an approved home (see policy 14.1 Resource Development: Safety and Quality Standards);
 - c. Failure to cooperate with or assume a partnership role with the agency in meeting the needs of the child;
 - d. Inappropriate disclosure of confidential information regarding the child;
 - e. Inappropriate use of acceptable disciplinary practices (e.g., extended periods of time out, etc.); and
 - f. Inappropriate assignment of chores or work responsibilities.

Tips for Preparing to Conduct a Policy Violation Assessment

1. Review prior history of policy violations or CPS complaints regarding the caregiver.
2. Review the child's history in order to gain a thorough understanding of the child's needs and the caregiver capacity necessary to meet those needs.
3. Review the initial family evaluation on the foster home to confirm that the type of children placed in the home match what the caregivers indicated on the Caregiver Placement Preferences.
4. Review the Kinship Assessment on a foster care kinship placement that is not an approved foster home.
5. Determine if assistance is needed from the Permanency or Adoption Case Manager to interview the children.
6. Determine if any of the children have special needs that will impact the interview process (e.g. speech impairment, etc.).
7. Determine the need for interpretation services for non-English speaking individuals or auxiliary aids for sensory impaired individuals (see policy 1.5 Administration: Americans with Disabilities Act \(ADA\)/Section 504 and Reasonable Modifications).
8. Determine if the concerns that are reported call for the child to be interviewed away from the home.

Conflicts of Interest in Policy Violation Assessments

To avoid conflicts of interest a PV assessment could be conducted by an SSCM and SSS without primary case management responsibilities or from outside the county in which the home or resource is located. It is permissible for the County Department where the resource or home is located or with primary case management responsibilities to initiate the PV assessment to ensure child safety when a SSCM from the other County Department is not readily available.

Policy Violations May Lead to Closure of a Foster Home

While generally less severe than an allegation of child abuse, a policy violation may be sufficient grounds for closing a foster home or may require other action. Unless policy requires a home to be closed, the County Director should consider the following factors in determining whether or not to allow an approved DFCS foster home to remain open:

1. Severity of the incident;
2. Parenting practices demonstrated by the caregivers;
3. Prior placement disruptions experienced by the foster parent or child;
4. Willingness of the caregivers to embrace alternative approaches to correct the problem or change the undesirable behavior (e.g., training or counseling);
5. Quality of the relationship between the caregivers and the child in care; and
6. Caregivers' demonstration of increased protective capacity as a result of satisfactory completion of a CAP.

 These factors should also be considered when implementing a CAP with the family.

Corrective Action Plan (CAP)

The purpose of a CAP is to support caregivers in the development and utilization of acceptable methods of meeting the needs of children in care and to clarify the agency and the caregiver's role in preventing further policy violations, thus ensuring the safety and well-being of the child in the home. The CAP serves as a supportive rather than a punitive intervention. It is implemented following a PV that has been supported and must:

1. Identify the issues to be addressed;
2. Set forth the steps for taking corrective action;
3. Identify any assistance or resources that will be utilized to complete the action steps; and
4. Specify dates for completing each step. All steps are to be completed no later than six months from the date the CAP is approved.

After working with the family to define problems as difficult situations in everyday life, the RD or SSCM utilizes the CAP as a tool to build a partnership for change with the caregivers. RD Case Managers are primarily responsible for monitoring CAPs in DFCS Foster Homes. Permanency Case Managers are primarily responsible for reporting compliance with CAPs in DFCS family foster homes as well as managing CAPs involving foster care kinship caregivers who are not approved foster homes. CPA staff is responsible for monitoring CAPs in CPA Foster Homes. OPM staff is primarily responsible for monitoring CAPs in CCIs. Results should be measurable, tangible, time-limited, and documented in Georgia SHINES. The plan may be adjusted if needed but should be completed within six months. IMPACT modules may be used as a part of the CAP.

CAPs are mutually developed with the involvement of the foster parent(s), kinship caregivers, licensing/approving authority, and DFCS staff responsible for the children residing in the placement resource. Other parties (e.g., child service providers, etc.) may also participate in the development of a CAP. The CAP should be signed by the applicable agency monitor (i.e., RD/Permanency Case Manager, CPA staff, or OPM staff) and both caregivers (if applicable). The CAP must be approved and signed by the applicable agency director or designee (i.e., DFCS County Director, CPA Director, or OPM Director) to ensure that liability and safety issues have been adequately addressed. The caregivers and DFCS staff responsible for the children placed in the home should always be given a copy of the CAP. Unannounced visits may be required as a component of a CAP. The CAP is not used as a safety plan for foster parents. If the safety of children in a home is an issue, action should be taken to expedite their removal and consideration given to closure of the foster home.

Residential Child Care (RCC)

RCC is part of the Office of the Inspector General. RCC inspects, monitors, and licenses Child Caring Institutions (CCI), Child Placing Agencies (CPA), Outdoor Child Caring Programs, Children’s Transitional Care Centers, and Maternity Homes.

Requirements

The Division of Family and Children Services (DFCS) will

1. Permanently close the home of approved caregivers under the following circumstances:
 - a. Following a substantiated case of child abuse or neglect, unless a waiver is granted by the appropriate State Office department for the home to remain open in order to facilitate permanency for a specific child;

- b. Following an unsubstantiated case of child abuse or neglect if, based on all known information, there are concerns about the appropriateness of a caregiver to provide care for children in DFCS custody.
 - c. Following any violation of Foster Care Policy that has a direct impact on the safety and well-being of a child in the home;
 - d. Following a second policy violation, unless a waiver is granted by the appropriate State Office department for the home to remain open in order to facilitate permanency for a specific child already placed in the home.
 - e. When a family is unable or unwilling to demonstrate caregiver protective capacity and is not amenable to change, corrections, or DFCS intervention (e.g., refuses to sign a Corrective Action Plan); and
 - f. When the home fails to meet the Safety and Quality Standards despite directives for corrective measures and opportunity for correction.
2. Assess the need to close an approved home under the following circumstances:
 - a. The home has consistently refused to accept placements;
 - b. The caregiver has requested closure;
 - c. The home has been determined to be inappropriate (based on re-evaluation or reassessment) to provide care and services on behalf of the target population of children and families being served; and
 - d. Caregivers have relocated and have failed to notify the County DFCS of the move for a period of six months or more.
 3. Send a letter to the family within 10 days of a face-to-face meeting describing the reasons for closure and the official closure date. If the face-to-face meeting is not possible, DFCS will document the reason no face-to-face meeting was conducted.

Procedures

Upon the decision that an approved home is to be closed, the local DFCS will:

1. Conduct a face-to-face meeting to discuss the reason(s) for closure and determine if there are special supportive services needed to assist the family in bringing closure to any unresolved issues around the removal of the children or the agency's role and responsibility.
2. Send a letter to the family within 10 days of the face-to-face meeting describing the reasons for closure and the official closure date. The letter will include the County Director's/Designee's availability to meet with them, an explanation of the grievance process, and a statement regarding whether or not the closure of the home is related to a grievable issue.
3. Notify caregivers that closure due to substantiated child abuse and/or neglect in their home is a non-grievable issue. If requested, the County Director/Designee may meet with caregivers to afford them the opportunity to be heard.
4. Reassess caregivers that have been inactive for a period of six months due to the request of the caregivers and provide notification (verbal and written) if the caregivers have been determined to be unable to meet the needs of children entering care.
5. Document the home closure and required Director/Designee approval in the Contact Detail in the Georgia SHINES.

6. Notify the State Permanency Unit when an approved adoptive home is closed.
7. Request the foster parent(s) to complete the Foster Parent Exit Survey
 - a. Provide the web address (see Forms and Tools section).
 - b. Explain that the local DFCS is not involved in the exit survey process.

Practice Guidance

Some caregivers will depart from DFCS due to circumstances unrelated to the foster care program. DFCS should use this opportunity to explore with the caregivers any recommendations or suggestions they are willing to share regarding the foster care program as well as other ways they may be of service to DFCS. The closure of an approved home should be carefully considered and conducted in a manner that recognizes the family's contributions to the foster care program. Whenever possible, the decision to close a home should be mutually determined by the County DFCS and the caregivers. Counties should consult their Regional Adoption Coordinator (RAC) as needed. When the recommendation for the closure of a home is received from the State Office, the County DFCS should notify the State Permanency Unit of the actual date of closure within two business days.

Closing a Home following an Unsubstantiated Child Protective Services (CPS) Investigation

An “unsubstantiated” case disposition is not indicative of reported allegations being unfounded or untrue. The “unsubstantiated” case disposition simply indicates there was not a preponderance of evidence to support an allegation of maltreatment. Therefore, after carefully considering all known information, DFCS may still have concerns about the appropriateness of a foster home to provide care for children in DFCS custody. In accordance with DFCS Safety and Quality Standards, approved caregivers must demonstrate the maturity, stability, fitness, skills, and competency to successfully protect, nurture, and meet the developmental needs of children. When there are concerns about a caregiver's ability to do so, DFCS has a responsibility to consider all known information that impacts child safety and well-being. This may result in DFCS exercising its discretion to close the foster home to ensure the ongoing safety and well-being of children in DFCS custody.

Homes with a History of Refusing or Ejecting Placements

When reassessing inactive homes for closure, the assessment must include a discussion with the caregivers around their ongoing motivation and commitment, the needs of the children entering care, and the ability of the caregivers to provide care based on these needs.

Waivers to Allow a Home to Remain Open

When there is a policy requirement for a home to be closed, a waiver may be requested to allow the home to remain open. Such a request is usually only granted to facilitate permanency for a specific child already placed in the home. The waiver request must contain a compelling justification for the home to remain open, including the following:

1. Documentation of the safety of children in the home;
2. The length of time any child in DFCS custody has been in the home and the child's permanency goal;

3. An approved CAP; and
4. Any additional documentation from treatment providers and/or other professionals that have knowledge of the family and/or child.

Waiver requests should be sent to the office of the State Foster Care Services Director via the state waiver mailbox: dfcs-waivers@dhs.ga.gov.

Exit Meeting at Termination of Service

Homes may be closed voluntarily at the request of the caregiver or involuntarily due to failure to meet agency expectations regarding good practice in child welfare. Caregivers are a valuable source of information for improvement of DFCS policy and service delivery to children and families. They can also help the agency strengthen its collaboration on behalf of children with community stakeholders. Consequently, when the decision is made to close a home, the DFCS County Director/Designee will:

1. Send a letter to the caregiver within 10 days of the closure indicating the reasons for closure and the effective date;
2. Indicate in the closure letter, the desire to conduct an exit meeting with the family at a scheduled date and time; and
3. Address the following areas in the exit meeting with the family:
 - a. The appreciation DFCS has for the family’s contribution as a member of the foster care team;
 - b. The DFCS role as mandated protector of children in foster care;
 - c. The primary reason the family decided to discontinue foster, if applicable;
 - d. What, if anything, DFCS might have done differently that would have prevented the foster home closure;
 - e. Description of the family’s overall experience with DFCS; and
 - f. Recommendations or suggestions for improvement the family may be willing to share.

Requirements

The Division of Family and Children Services (DFCS) will:

1. Re-evaluate caregivers who move to another county or change their agency affiliation.
 - a. The approval status of a caregiver is non-transferrable.
 - b. Caregivers currently approved with another County DFCS or CPA shall go through an abbreviated approval process with the new county or new agency.
2. Prohibit any child in DFCS custody from relocating with a caregiver to a different county without prior written approval from the DFCS County Director in the county with legal custody of the child.
3. Restrict individuals from serving as caregivers for more than one agency at a time.

Procedures

When a DFCS caregiver plans to move to another county in Georgia, the RD Case Manager in the county where the family currently resides will:

1. Confirm the family's desire to continue providing foster or adoptive services and notify any other County DFCS with children in the home so they can make appropriate plans.
2. Notify the RD Supervisor in the new county of the family's plan and provide the new address, Georgia SHINES Resource ID number, and any other helpful information regarding the family.
3. Request post-adoptive placement services, if applicable.
4. Complete the appropriate Dissemination Log before transferring Criminal Records Information (CRI) regarding the foster family.

The CRI must be signed out to a person in the receiving county who has completed Security Integrity training.

5. Place the home on hold in Georgia SHINES until the transfer is approved.
6. Instruct the family to notify the new county within five calendar days of their move.

When a DFCS caregiver plans to move to another county in Georgia, the RD Manager in the receiving county will:

1. Acknowledge receipt of the notification of transfer and/or request for post-adoptive placement services within five business days.

If a family moves to an adjoining county, the original county may request permission from the new county to continue to provide post-adoptive placement supervision.

2. Complete a SAFE Update on the home as soon as the family relocates to the new county (see policy 14.13 Resource Development: Family Re-evaluation).

3. Update the Foster Home record in Georgia SHINES to reflect the change in county, address, phone number, etc.
4. Take the home off hold in Georgia SHINES.
5. Provide supervision of the foster home.

When approved caregivers (DFCS or CPA) request to transfer between agencies (DFCS □ CPA □ CPA), the RD Case Manager or CPA staff will:

1. Inform the caregiver(s) they can serve as a foster family for only one agency at a time (i.e., a County DFCS or a single CPA), discuss the re-evaluation process, and ask them to sign an Authorization for Release of Information so information may be shared between the agencies involved.
2. Request and review the caregiver's SAFE Home Study from the previous agency. This includes any subsequent evaluations, pre-service training certificate, documentation of annual training hours, and history of policy violations or corrective actions.
3. Utilize an abbreviated foster home re-evaluation process to assess the family:
 - a. Determine if any components of the SAFE Home Study are missing or need to be updated (e.g., medical evaluations, drug screens, etc.) and ensure all required attachments and verifications are obtained (see policy 14.10 Resource Development: Initial Family Evaluation).
 - b. Conduct safety screening in accordance with policy 19.9 Case Management: Safety Screenings.
 - c. Conduct a fingerprint-based criminal records check (CRC) in accordance with policy 19.8 Case Management: Criminal Records Check on all adult household members.
 - i. The results of a CRC may not be transferred between agencies. Therefore, a new CRC is necessary if the caregiver is transferring between CPAs or between a CPA and DFCS.
 - ii. A new CRC is not necessary when the caregiver is moving from one county in Georgia to another but remaining with the same agency.
4. Request a recommendation from the previous agency regarding the caregivers' protective capacities and confirmation from the DFCS or CPA Director or Designee that the caregivers are active and in good standing.
5. Conduct at least one family consultation.
6. Submit the SAFE Home Study for supervisory approval and final approval from the DFCS or CPA Director.
7. Provide written notification of the approval decision to the applicant.
8. DFCS staff will upload all information received from the CPA, including the home study addendum, into Georgia SHINES External Documentation.

When children are placed in a CPA home that is transferring to another agency the RD Case Manager or CPA staff will:

1. Delete the home from the current CPA list in Georgia SHINES.
2. Add the home to the new CPA list.

3. Update the home information page for the resource (i.e., non-DFCS certifying entity, capacity, etc.). Certain changes may require the home to be moved to pending approval status.
4. Contact the Data Integrity Specialist (DIS) in the county where the case is located and ask the DIS to update the placement. The DIS will have to go into the current placement, select the resource again, and save it. At that point, the resource will show the new CPA.

Practice Guidance

Approved DFCS Caregiver Moves to another County

DFCS staff should maintain regular contact with approved families and be aware when families have plans of moving to another county. When families have children placed in their home, transition planning must include all local DFCS involved. Each local DFCS is responsible for planning for the children in their custody. The decision whether or not to allow a child to move out of county with a family is made only after careful consideration and requires the prior approval of the County Director/Designee. The proximity of the new county, the ongoing treatment needs of the child, and the child's permanency plan are important factors to consider. Ultimately, placement decisions should be based upon what is in the best interest of the child.

Family Transfers between a CPA and DFCS

It is incumbent upon DFCS and CPAs to ensure transferring families meet the DFCS Safety and Quality Standards (SQS). A thorough assessment of the family's current circumstances and protective capacities must be clearly documented in the SAFE Update.

Please note that CPAs are not required to use IMPACT FCP for pre-service training. Certificates of pre-service training from Model Approach to Partnerships in Parenting/Group Preparation & Selection (MAPP/GPS), Parent Resources for Information, Development, and Education (PRIDE), Parents as Tender Healers (PATH), or Treatment Parent Readiness Training are acceptable. Any other pre-service training will require a waiver from the Office of Provider Management (OPM) Director, or the family must attend IMPACT FCP.

If a family decides to transfer between agencies prior to attaining full approval status, then standard intake and approval procedures for prospective caregivers shall apply. Standard intake and approval processes shall also apply in the following instances:

1. Information from the previous agency is unable to be obtained.
2. Information from the previous agency indicates a family has been voluntarily inactive for more than five years.
3. Information from the previous agency indicates a family was not in good standing.

 Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction and Enforcement Act

Discussion

Children in the custody of the Division of Family and Children Services (DFCS) who are placed outside of Georgia will be assured the same protection and services that would be provided if they remained in their home state. The Interstate Compact on the Placement of Children (ICPC) is the best means to ensure protection and services to children who are placed across state lines. The Compact is a uniform law enacted by all 50 states, the District of Columbia, and U. S. Virgin Islands establishing orderly procedures for the interstate placement of children and assigns responsibility for those involved in placing the child. Georgia legislature enacted the Compact March 23, 1977. Under the terms of the law, the state agrees to follow uniform procedures when making or accepting interstate placements of children. Since the Compact is also a contract among the member states and has been codified into law by statute, it must be interpreted and implemented uniformly by all states.

The Compact accomplishes the following:

1. Provides the sending state/agency the opportunity to obtain home studies (an evaluation of the proposed placement) prior to making a determination that the placement is in the child’s best interest.
2. Allows the prospective receiving state to ensure that the placement is not “contrary to the interests of the child,” and that applicable laws and policies have been followed before approval of the placement.
3. Assures liability and responsibility for the safety of a child placed contrary to ICPC requirements (ICPC violation) rests with the sending state.

4. Guarantees the child legal and financial protection by assuring that the sending state retains legal and financial responsibility for any child placed subject to the Compact.
5. Provides the sending state/agency the opportunity to obtain supervision and regular reports on the child's adjustment and progress in the placement.

Background

The need for a Compact to regulate the interstate movement of children was recognized in the 1950s. At that time, a group of east coast social service administrators joined informally to study the problems of children moved out of state for foster care or adoption. Among the problems they identified was the failure of importation and exportation statutes enacted by individual states to provide protection for children. They recognized that a state's jurisdiction ends at its borders and that a state can only compel an out-of-state agency or individual to discharge its obligations toward a child through a compact. The administrators were also concerned that a state to which a child was sent did not have to provide supportive services even though it might agree to do so on a courtesy basis. In response to these and other problems, the Interstate Compact on the Placement of Children was drafted, and in 1960 New York was the first state to enact it.

In accordance with ICPC rules and regulations the following definitions will be used when complying with ICPC requirements:

Child

A person, who by reason of minority is legally subject to parental guardianship or similar control.

Home Study

An evaluation of a home environment conducted in accordance with applicable requirements of the State in which the home is located, to determine whether a proposed placement of a child would meet the individual needs of the child, including the child's safety, permanency, health, well-being, and mental, emotional, and physical development.

Interstate Home Study

A home study conducted by a state at the request of another state, to facilitate an adoptive or foster care placement in the state, of a child in foster care under the responsibility of the state.

Placement

The arrangements for the care of a child in a family or boarding home or in a child caring agency or institution, but does not include any institution caring for the mentally ill, mentally defective or epileptic or any institution primarily educational in character, and any hospital or other medical facility.

Receiving State

The state to which a child is sent, brought, or caused to be sent or brought, whether by public authorities or private persons or agencies and whether for placement with private agencies or persons.

Safe Timely Interstate Home Study

An interstate home study report completed by a state if the state provides to the other state that requested the study, within 60 days after receipt of the request, a report on the results of the study. The preceding sentence shall not be construed to require the state to have completed, within the 60 day period, the parts of the home study involving the education and training of the prospective foster or adoptive parents.

Sending Agency

A member state, officer or employee thereof; a subdivision of a member state, or officer or employee thereof; a court of a member state; a person, corporation, association, charitable agency or other entity having legal authority over a child who sends, brings, or causes to be sent or brought any child to another state.

Visit

A social or cultural experience of short duration provided to the child, such as a stay in camp or with a friend or relative who has not assumed legal responsibility for providing child care services. The child's stay is intended to be no longer than thirty (30) days. As defined, a visit is not subject to Interstate Compact on the Placement of Children.

O.C.G.A. § 39-4-1 through § 39-4-10, Interstate Compact on the Placement of Children
ICPC Regulation 3, Definitions and Placement Categories

Requirements

The Division of Family and Children Services (DFCS) will ensure that no child in the custody of DFCS is placed into another state without first complying with the applicable placement requirements of the Interstate Compact on the Placement of Children (ICPC).

Georgia law and ICPC practice permits the development of “agreements” between DFCS and the state child welfare agencies of other states. Georgia has implemented “border agreements” with states sharing a common geographical border with Georgia (see policy 15.8 Interstate Compact on the Placement of Children: Border Agreements).

DFCS will adhere to the following placement types subject to ICPC compliance when the court retains jurisdiction subsequent to a finding of dependency:

1. Adoptions: Placement preliminary to an adoption (independent, private or public adoptions);
2. Licensed or approved foster homes (placement with related or unrelated caregivers);
3. Placement with parents and relatives (as defined by blood, marriage or adoption) when the parent or relative is not making the placement as defined in Article VIII(a) of the ICPC Articles, “Limitations”;
4. Group homes/residential placement of all children, including children adjudicated delinquent in institutions in other states as defined in Article VI and Regulation No. 4 of the Compact.

A child welfare agency operated by another state seeking the placement of children into Georgia in any of the placement types identified in items 1-4 above likewise shall comply with ICPC regulations and procedures.

The following placement types are not subject to the provisions of ICPC:

1. Placements with parents or relatives when the child’s parent or guardian is making the placement;
2. Placements made in medical facilities;
3. Placements made in mental health facilities; and
4. Placements in any Child Caring Agency or institution that is primarily educational in character (boarding schools).

Child Caring Agency is defined as an institution caring for the mentally defective or any institution that is principally educational in nature; any hospital or other medical facility is exempt from ICPC requirements.

Procedures

N/A

Practice Guidance

All children for whom the State of Georgia, acting by and through the County DFCS Office and who are subject to an order of custody (voluntary, temporary or permanent custody), are subject to ICPC regulations and procedures.

Any child who is the subject of a voluntary or judicial order of custody or commitment from another state is likewise subject to ICPC regulations and procedures.

A primary component of determining the appropriateness/approval of a prospective placement is the completion of all required Child Protective Services screens and background checks. This shall be fully adhered to prior to the placement of a child in another state.

Contact between county and/or state agencies should only occur after the approval of the compact request. The Georgia County DFCS should contact the State Office ICPC Unit if contacted by another state regarding a request or request consideration.

Occasionally, due to the proximity of a mental health or medical treatment facility to a bordering state, a child in state custody may have been hospitalized in a medical or mental health facility in another state. The necessity of treatment for the medical or mental health condition exempts the compliance with ICPC in such circumstances. The custodial entity is responsible for assuring that the child’s needs are fully met. The state in which the child receives treatment is neither legally nor fiscally responsible for the child’s care, treatment or assurance of safety.

O.C.G.A. § 39-4-1 through § 39-4-10 Interstate Compact on the Placement of Children

ICPC Regulation 2 – Public Adoption, Foster Care with Parents or Relatives

ICPC Regulation 6 – Permission to Place a Child

Requirements

The Division of Family and Children Services (DFCS) will secure the permission of the receiving state prior to placing a child that is in DFCS custody into another state.

 The placement of a child in DFCS custody into another state by any person or entity prior to approval is a violation of the Interstate Compact on the Placement of Children (ICPC). The existence of a Border Agreement does not grant permission for the placement of a child. Only the receiving state may grant permission.

Procedures

Preliminary Assessment of Out of State Potential Resource

Prior to submitting the ICPC placement request, the Social Services Case Manager (SSCM) will complete the following preliminary actions:

1. Conduct a diligent search for relatives and other persons who have demonstrated an ongoing commitment to the child(ren).
2. Contact the identified relatives or other persons and determine their interest, willingness and capability to provide a safe and stable home for the child(ren) subject to the request.
3. Document the results of the contacts in the Georgia SHINES Diligent Search tab. At a minimum, the following items shall be documented:
 - a. Name, Date of Birth and Social Security number of the primary and any secondary caregiver;
 - b. Relationship to the child(ren) subject to the request;
 - c. Mailing address of the residence to be studied;
 - d. Physical address and directions to the residence;
 - e. Telephone number or other means of contacting the proposed caregiver;
 - f. Physical description of the residence (number of rooms, bedrooms, identification of any safety hazards);
 - g. Name, age and relationship to the proposed caregiver of all household members;
 - h. Ability of the proposed caregiver to assure the financial, medical, educational, child care, mental health and other wellbeing needs of the child(ren), or if assistance in meeting the needs will be necessary;
 - i. Willingness of the potential resource to cooperate with the receiving state in the completion of the study, including the willingness of all adults to undergo criminal history and Child Protective Services (CPS) background checks.
4. In conjunction with the Supervisor, evaluate the responses received from each relative/fictive kinship resource to determine which placement resource will offer the child(ren) the greatest opportunity to assure safety, permanency and well-being.
5. Upon identifying, assessing and determining that the placement of the child with a relative in another state is in the best interest of the child, proceed with initiating the ICPC process.
6. For relatives living in other states who have been assessed to be willing, interested and capable of meeting the children's safety and well-being needs, the "Case Manager Statement of Potential Placement/Party, under Regulation 2" is completed and must accompany the Interstate Compact for the Placement of Children (ICPC) request.

Making an ICPC Request

When the County DFCS makes the decision to place a child(ren) in DFCS custody with a placement resource in another state, the DFCS SSCM will:

1. Complete the Interstate Compact on the Placement of Children Request (ICPC Form 100A) in Georgia SHINES.
2. Upload the following documents in Georgia SHINES External Documentation, for each document uploaded review the External Documentation Detail Page in Georgia SHINES, check the box labeled “ICPC Document”, clearly indicate the type of document and associate each document with the relevant person(s) by selecting the person’s name in the Person’s Section:
 - a. ICPC request for home evaluation cover letter;
 - b. Court Orders;
 - c. Comprehensive Child and Family Assessment/Reassessment;
 - d. Medical reports;
 - e. Dental reports;
 - f. Psychological reports;
 - g. Educational reports;
 - h. Birth certificate or verification;
 - i. Social Security card or verification;
 - j. IV-E Determination;
 - k. Financial/Medical Plan to assure sending state responsibility for expenses;
 - l. Case Manager Statement of Potential Placement/Party Under Regulation 2.

Please adhere to the procedures outlined in the Georgia SHINES Job Aide “Documenting ICPC Cases in Georgia SHINES (Georgia is the Sending State)” for completing the ICPC request.

3. Contact the ICPC unit via email at ICPC@dhr.state.ga.us when a new ICPC request is completed in Georgia SHINES. In the email, include the:
 - a. Georgia SHINES case identification number;
 - b. Name of the oldest child on the referral;
 - c. Date of Birth of the oldest child on the referral.

Within 3 business days, the Georgia ICPC Unit will:

1. Review and approve the Application Packet for transmittal to the receiving state;
2. Retain one copy of the packet and forward two copies to the receiving state;
3. Send a transmittal to the receiving state requesting a Home Evaluation with the due date and copy the DFCS County ICPC Liaison.
4. The receiving state must conduct and complete a Safe and Timely Interstate Home Study Report within 60 calendar days from receipt of the request by the receiving state ICPC office. The home study report shall:

- a. Assess the safety and suitability of the home environment for the placement of the child(ren) that are the subject of the ICPC request;
 - b. Articulate the extent to which the assessed home would meet the needs of the child(ren); and
 - c. May or may not include a statement approving or denying permission to place the child(ren):
 - i. In the event the component of the study involving the education and training requirements for the prospective placement resource is incomplete, the report can be completed with a reference to the anticipated date that the training requirements will be completed.
5. Final approval or denial of the placement resource shall be provided by the receiving ICPC Administrator in the form of a signed ICPC request as soon as practical but no later than 180 calendar days from receipt of the initial home study request. The six month approval window is to accommodate licensure and/or receiving state requirements applicable to foster or adoptive home study requirements.
6. The approval provided by the receiving state expires six months from the date the ICPC request was signed by the receiving state. If the child(ren) are not placed with the placement resource within six months of approval by the receiving state, the placement approval expires and a new ICPC request shall be initiated.

Placement of a Georgia Child into Receiving State

1. Placement approval by the Georgia ICPC Administrator shall be secured before the County department proceeds with placement of the child(ren) out of state.
2. Once the Georgia ICPC Administrator receives authorization to proceed with placement from the receiving state, the child(ren) can be placed with the approved placement resource, unless within 14 calendar days of receipt, a determination is made based on grounds specific to the report that reliance on the report will be contrary to the child's welfare.
3. If the approved ICPC placement resource will not be used for placement, the Interstate Compact on the Placement of Children Report on Child's Placement Status (ICPC Form 100B) shall be completed in Georgia SHINES and the assigned Georgia ICPC Administrator shall be notified so the receiving state may be notified of the closure of the ICPC case.
4. Upon the receiving state and Georgia ICPC office granting approval for a placement, the County DFCS and receiving state agency or facility will discuss and agree upon the logistical issues related to the placement to proceed with the following:
 - a. Submission of the Interstate Compact on the Placement of Children Report on Child's Placement Status (ICPC Form 100B) will serve as notification to the receiving state to initiate supervision.
 - b. The County DFCS will complete an ICPC Report on Child's Placement Status in Georgia SHINES (ICPC Form 100B) confirming the date of placement and notify via email the Georgia ICPC Administrator assigned to monitor compliance with the Compact of its completion;
 - c. The ICPC Report on Child's Placement Status (ICPC Form 100B) will be completed expeditiously and forwarded to the receiving state by the Georgia ICPC Administrator within two (2) business days of notification.

5. The approval (permission) for placement is valid for six (6) months from the date the receiving state Compact Administrator signs the ICPC request. If a placement is not made within six (6) months of the approval, the County department shall request a reevaluation of the home before a placement occurs.
6. Along with the approved request to place and home study, the Georgia ICPC Administrator shall authorize a travel waiver to cover the child(ren)'s travel expenses.
7. The Case Manager's travel is covered under Grant in Aid (GIA). Advance approval for the case manager's travel shall be requested through the Division Deputy Director using the Interstate Travel Request.
8. If someone other than the DFCS SSCM transports the child(ren), travel expenses for this provider shall be the responsibility of the provider or County office.
9. Georgia DFCS shall retain legal custody of all children placed out of state pursuant to the ICPC policies and procedures. Legal custody of a child in foster care cannot be transferred to a family member or other entity without first securing the approval of the receiving state ICPC office and Georgia ICPC Administrator. Children subject to a Georgia Juvenile Court order of custody remain subject to the venue of that court until the child reaches the age of 18 (Exception: A finalized adoption or permanent guardianship terminates the jurisdiction of the court).
10. Georgia DFCS maintains legal and financial responsibility for a child placed through the Compact; therefore, if at any time it is determined the placement is no longer suitable for the child due to the child's disruption or the resource no longer being capable or willing to maintain the safety and well-being of the child, upon the request of the receiving state, Georgia shall take the necessary actions to return the child to Georgia within five (5) business days.

Practice Guidance

The assessment and approval of potential placement resources via the ICPC process is not intended for the assessment of every out of state relative or fictive kinship resource identified through the reasonably diligent search. The SSCM and supervisor shall evaluate the responses received from each relative/fictive kinship resource to determine which placement resource will offer the foster child(ren) the greatest opportunity to assure safety, well-being and permanency. Issues to consider when assessing and selecting identified resources include:

1. Relatives should be given preference over non-relative placements unless no relative can be identified that is willing or capable of meeting the child(ren)'s needs for safety, well-being and/or permanence or the child has an existing strong bond with a non-relative;
2. Proximity to the child(ren)'s parent/caregiver, whenever the permanency plan is reunification;
3. The willingness of the placement resource to preserve the child(ren)'s important connections to family, community, culture and faith;
4. The capacity of the placement resource to meet the special needs of the child(ren) including physical, cognitive, behavioral and/or emotional needs; and
5. The willingness of the placement resource to work in partnership with both the sending and receiving state in the achievement of permanency.

ICPC Request

The ICPC request Application Packet shall include the following current information:

1. ICPC Cover Letter: The cover letter includes the following information:
 - a. The name, date of birth, race/ethnicity and sex of the child under consideration for inter-state placement;

The Safe and Timely Interstate Home Study Report must be completed within sixty (60) calendar days. Note that this report is not equivalent to a placement decision.

Timeframe for Completion of Safe and Timely Interstate Home Study Report

As quickly as possible, but not more than sixty (60) calendar days after receiving a home study request, the receiving state shall:

1. Directly or by contract, complete a study of the home environment for purposes of assessing the safety and suitability of the child being placed in the home.
2. Return to the sending state a report on the results of the home study that shall address the extent to which placement in the home would meet the needs of the child.
 - a. This report may or may not include a decision approving or denying permission to place the child.
 - i. In the event the parts of the home study involving the education and training of the placement resource remain incomplete, the report shall reference such items by including an anticipated date of completion.

Receiving State Placement Decision may be Postponed

If the receiving state cannot provide a decision regarding approval or denial of the placement at the time of the safe and timely home study report, the receiving state should provide the reason for delay and an anticipated date for a decision regarding the request. Reasons for delay may be factors such as the receiving state requiring all relatives to be licensed as a foster home. If such condition must be met before approval, a reasonable date for compliance shall be set forth in the receiving state transmittal accompanying the initial home study, if possible.

Receiving State Decisions to Approve or Deny Placement Resource (Request)

1. Timeframe for final decision: Final approval or denial of the placement resource request shall be provided by the receiving state Compact Administrator in the form of a signed Interstate Compact Placement on the Placement of a Children Request (100A), as soon as practical but no later than one hundred and eighty (180) calendar days from receipt of the initial home study request. This six (6) month window is to accommodate licensure and/or other receiving state requirements applicable to foster or adoption home study requests.
2. Expedited communication of decision: If necessary or helpful to meet time requirements, the receiving state ICPC office may communicate its determination to the sending agency's state Compact Administrator by FAX or other means of facsimile transmission or electronic transmission, if acceptable to both receiving and sending state. However, this may not be done before the receiving state Compact Administrator has actually recorded the determination on the Interstate Compact Placement on the Placement of a Children Request (ICPC Form 100A). The written notice (the completed Interstate Compact Placement on the Placement of a Children Request (ICPC Form 100A)) shall be mailed, sent electronically, if acceptable, or otherwise sent promptly.

The receiving state home study local agency shall not send the home study and/or recommendation directly to the sending state local agency without approval from the sending and receiving state ICPC offices.

- 3. Authority of receiving state to make final decision: The authority of the receiving state is limited to the approval or denial of the placement resource. The receiving state may decline to provide a favorable determination if the receiving state Compact Administrator finds that based on the home study, the proposed caregiver would be unable to meet the individual needs of the child, including the child's safety, permanency, health, well-being, and mental, emotional and physical development.
- 4. Authority of sending court/placing agency: When the receiving state has approved a placement resource, the sending court/placing agency has the final authority to determine whether to use the approved placement resource in the receiving state. The receiving state Interstate Compact Placement on the Placement of a Children Request (ICPC Form 100A) approval expires six (6) months from the date the request was signed by the receiving state.

Reconsideration of Denied ICPC Assessments

Georgia may request reconsideration of a denied ICPC placement within 90 calendar days of the date of receipt of the signed ICPC request from the receiving state ICPC Administrator. The basis of the reconsideration shall be:

- 1. Request reconsideration without a new home study: Georgia's ICPC office can request the receiving state ICPC office to reconsider the denial of placement of the child with the placement resource. If the receiving state ICPC office chooses to overturn the denial, it can be based on review of the evidence presented by Georgia's ICPC office and/or any other new information deemed appropriate. If approved, a new request giving an approval without a new home study will be signed.
- 2. Request new home study re-examining reasons for original denial: Georgia's ICPC office may send a new ICPC home study request if the reason for denial has been corrected; i.e., move to new residence with adequate bedrooms. The receiving state ICPC office is not obligated to activate the new home study request, but it may agree to proceed with a new home study to reconsider the denial decision if it believes the reasons for denial have been corrected. This regulation shall not conflict with any appeal process otherwise available in the receiving state.
- 3. The receiving state ICPC office has 60 days from the date the formal request to reconsider denial has been received from Georgia's ICPC office. If the receiving state ICPC administrator decides to change the prior decision denying the placement, an ICPC transmittal letter and the new request shall be signed reflecting the new decision.

Upon receipt of an authorized ICPC Request and attachments from the Georgia ICPC Administrator/designee:

1. The DFCS County ICPC Liaison shall acknowledge receipt of the ICPC packet via email and include the name of the SSCM assigned responsibility for assuring the timely completion of the study;
2. Within five business days of assignment of the ICPC home study request the SSCM shall:

Administrator and County Supervisor. No decision concerning the placement of children shall be unnecessarily delayed. The 45 calendar day requirement is the maximum length of time the County has to complete the assessment and ICPC Request reflecting the approval decision. Completion of the home study does not constitute authorization for placement.

The Georgia ICPC Administrator shall:

1. Immediately transmit to the sending state ICPC Administrator a report on the results of the home study that shall address the extent to which placement in the home would meet the needs of the child.
 - a. This report may or may not include a decision approving or denying permission to place the child(ren).
 - b. In the event the parts of the home study involving the education and training of the placement resource remain incomplete, the report shall reference such items by including an anticipated date of completion.
2. Provide final approval or denial of the placement resource in the form of a signed ICPC Request, as soon as practical but no later than 180 calendar days (six months) from receipt of the initial home study request.

This six month window is to accommodate licensure and/or other receiving state requirements applicable to foster or adoption home study requests.

Upon the Approval of the Placement

1. The requesting state has six months in which to utilize an approved placement.
2. If the requesting state decides to use the approved placement, they shall send an ICPC Interstate Compact Report for Child's Placement Status (ICPC-100B) notifying the Georgia ICPC Administrator of the intent to place the child(ren).

Contact standards will be at least one face to face monthly visit or more frequently if such is agreed upon by the sending and receiving states (see policy 10.18 Foster Care: Purposeful Contacts in Foster Care). Document contacts with the child(ren) and the placement resource(s) in Georgia SHINES Contacts/Summaries.
5. On a monthly basis complete the Interstate Compact Report on Child's Placement Status (ICPC-100B), attach documentation of the purposeful visits with the child(ren) and placement resource(s) and upload to Georgia SHINES External Documentation.
6. The State Office ICPC Unit will retrieve from Georgia SHINES External Documentation the Interstate Compact Report on Child's Placement Status (ICPC-100B) completed by the Case Manager and forward to the sending state. Documentation of contacts with the child(ren) and placement resource(s) shall be shared with the sending state as specified in the ICPC Interstate Compact Report for Child's Placement Status.

ICPC Reporting

The State Office ICPC Unit shall assist the County office in ongoing monitoring of relative/ foster/adoptive home study requests to ensure compliance with the Safe and Timely Act by providing ICPC data reports to each Regional Director. This shall be achieved as follows:

1. Each Regional Director or their designees shall receive a listing of all ICPC overdue and pending cases assigned to their region by the fifth of each month.
2. The Regional Director/designee shall provide an update on each pending and overdue case to the State Office ICPC unit within five business days of receipt of the overdue/pending list. All cases listed as overdue must have a plan developed for immediate completion of the home study request. This update should be emailed to the assigned ICPC Administrator and ICPC@dhs.ga.gov.
3. The Georgia ICPC Administrator shall provide a report to the Regional Director/designee by the 15th of each month detailing:
 - a. ICPC cases that have been open at least 30 days with no activity;
 - b. Status/movement of all overdue cases;
 - c. Cases where no update has been provided.
4. The Georgia ICPC Administrator shall send monthly updates to the requesting states based upon the progress indicated by the County offices.

County Receipt of ICPC Study Requests Directly From Other States

If an ICPC request for placement of a child(ren) is received directly by a County Department, the County Department shall:

1. Immediately forward, via US Mail, all information to the Georgia ICPC Administrator:
 - a. An email message shall be sent to the Georgia ICPC Administrator informing them of the receipt of the information and that it is being mailed to the Georgia ICPC Administrator for handling.
 - b. If a request is received by telephone to a County DFCS office from another state, DFCS staff shall inform the sending state to transmit a written request through the sending state ICPC office to the Georgia ICPC Office for processing.
2. The County DFCS shall not initiate the home evaluation until an official request is received from the Georgia ICPC office.

 The existence of an Border Agreement, properly executed by the Commissioners/Directors of both the sending state and receiving state, permits requests for assistance in assessing relative and foster homes to occur immediately, prior to receiving the approval of the respective state's ICPC Compact Administrators (see policy 15.8 Interstate Compact on the Placement of Children: Border Agreements).

Practice Guidance

Once the Georgia ICPC office has received a request from a sending State/Tribe to place a child(ren) in Georgia, time is of the essence for work to be completed so the child(ren) can be placed. The timely assessment of relative placements is critical to assuring that children in foster care maintain important family connections, experience placement stability, and achieve safety, well-being and permanency, while also impacting each state’s achievement of performance benchmarks. For this reason, the county’s completion of the home study as thoroughly and quickly as possible is essential.

Georgia ICPC Administrators are subject matter experts in the law and regulations governing interstate placements. Maintaining open communication with the assigned ICPC Administrator ensures decisions agreed upon are in the best interests of the child(ren) addressed in the requests.

SHINES is the official case record and must be utilized to document all activities related to such requests from other states for the assessment of relative, foster and adoptive resources. Due to the child(ren) subject to the request not being in the custody of the State of Georgia, the Georgia ICPC Administrator shall assume the role of the primary worker and input the Intake that initiates services into SHINES. While the County SSCM is assigned as a secondary worker, the responsibility for assuring all case management responsibilities are completed rests with the County DFCS SSCM. The standard for assuring all documents and case activities are entered/uploaded into Georgia SHINES is within 72 hours of occurrence.

Requests for Provisional Approval or Denial

Upon request and receipt of the documentation (including an Order of Compliance and a request for provisional approval or denial) from the sending agency and agreement of the receiving state to make a provisional determination, the receiving state shall expedite provisional determination of the appropriateness of the proposed caregiver by having the assigned SSCM:

2. Provisional placement, if approved, shall continue pending a final approval or denial of the placement by the receiving state or until the receiving state requires the return of the child to the sending state.

3. If provisional approval is given for placement with a parent from whom the child was not removed, the court in the sending state may direct its agency to request concurrence from the sending and receiving state ICPC Administrators to place the child with the parent and relinquish jurisdiction over the child after final approval is given. If such concurrence is not given, the sending agency shall retain jurisdiction over the child as otherwise provided under Article V of the ICPC.
4. A provisional denial means that the receiving state cannot approve a provisional placement pending the more comprehensive home study or assessment process due to issues that need to be resolved.

Practice Guidance

ICPC Regulation 7

The intent of this regulation is to expedite ICPC approval or denial by a receiving state for the placement of a child with a parent, step-parent, grandparent, adult uncle or aunt, adult brother or sister, or the child's guardian, and to:

1. Help protect the safety of children while minimizing the potential trauma to children caused by interim or multiple placements while ICPC approval to place with a parent or relative is being sought through a more comprehensive home study process.
2. Provide the sending state court and/or sending agency with expedited approval or denial. An expedited denial would underscore the urgency for the sending state to explore alternative placement resources.

For cases involving a child who is under the jurisdiction of a court as a result of action taken by a child welfare agency, the court has the authority to determine custody and placement of the child or has delegated said authority to the child welfare agency as the child is no longer in the home of the parent from whom the child was removed, and the child is being considered for placement in another state with a parent, step-parent, grandparent, adult uncle or aunt, adult brother or sister, or the child's guardian. One of the following criteria must be met in order to be considered a Regulation 7 case:

1. Unexpected dependency due to a sudden or recent incarceration, incapacitation or death of a parent or guardian. Incapacitation means a parent or guardian is unable to care for a child due to a medical, mental or physical condition of a parent or guardian; or
2. The child sought to be placed is four years of age or younger, including older siblings sought to be placed with the same proposed caregiver; or
3. The court finds that any child in the sibling group sought to be placed has a substantial relationship with the proposed caregiver. Substantial relationship means the proposed caregiver has a familial or mentoring role with the child, has spent more than cursory time with the child, and has established more than a minimal bond with the child; or
4. The child is currently in an emergency placement.

This regulation shall not apply if:

1. The child has already been placed in violation of the ICPC in the receiving state, unless a visit has been approved in writing by the receiving state Compact Administrator and a subsequent order entered by the sending state court authorizing the visit with a fixed return date in accordance with Regulation 9.

2. The intention of the sending state is for licensed or approved foster care or adoption.

In the event the intended placement [must be parent, step-parent, grandparent, adult aunt or uncle, adult brother or sister, or guardian as per Article VIII(a)] is already licensed or approved in the receiving state at the time of the request, such licensing or approval would not preclude application of this regulation.

1. The court places the child with a parent from whom the child was not removed, the court has no evidence the parent is unfit, does not seek any evidence from the receiving state the parent is either fit or unfit, and the court relinquishes jurisdiction over the child immediately upon placement with the parent.

ICPC Regulation 11, Responsibility of States to Supervise Children

Requirements

The Division of Family and Children Services (DFCS) will provide supervision for children placed into Georgia pursuant to an approved Interstate Compact on the Placement of Children (ICPC) request, if supervision is requested by the sending state, and:

1. The sending agency is a public child placing agency;
2. Georgia DFCS completed the home study for placement of the child; and
3. The child's placement is not in a residential treatment center or a group home.

When Georgia is the receiving state, the assigned Social Services Case Manager (SSCM) will be responsible for supervising ICPC placements in the same manner as any other placement.

When Georgia is the sending state, the assigned SSCM is responsible for receiving written supervisory (progress) reports from the out-of-state agency at least once every ninety (90) days. These progress reports are to ensure the safety and well-being needs of the child(ren) are continually assessed in the receiving state unless and until:

1. Authorization is received for the transfer of legal custody to the relative, adoptive home or foster home providing for the child's care;
2. Georgia DFCS is relieved of legal custody and responsibility for supervision of the child by the Juvenile Court exercising jurisdiction.

 If progress reports from the other state are not received, the Georgia ICPC Administrator should be contacted for assistance.

Procedures

2. Supervision shall include the following components and occur as outlined:

Providing a Written Supervision Report for Children Placed into Georgia

1. A written supervision report shall be completed by the SSCM providing supervision and uploaded to Georgia SHINES External documentation at least once every ninety (90) days following the date of the receipt of the Interstate Compact Report on Child's Placement Status (ICPC-100B) requesting supervision. Following uploading the supervision report to Georgia SHINES External Documentation the SSCM will send notification of the report via email to the assigned Georgia ICPC Administrator and ICPC@dhr.state.ga.us. The Georgia ICPC Administrator will retrieve the report from Georgia SHINES External Documentation and forward to the sending state's ICPC Compact Administrator. More frequent reporting may be provided if agreed to by the SSCM providing supervision and approved by the Supervisor and Georgia ICPC Administrator.

Child Maltreatment Reports for Children Placed in Georgia

The County DFCS office responsible for providing placement supervision shall respond to any report of child maltreatment for a child placed in Georgia in the same manner as it would to a report of child maltreatment for any other child residing in Georgia.

1. When a report of child maltreatment is received in a County office:
 - a. The DFCS County Liaison shall immediately send notification of the report via email to the assigned Georgia ICPC Administrator and ICPC@dhs.ga.gov;
 - b. The Georgia ICPC Administrator shall promptly notify the ICPC Administrator in the sending state of any report of child maltreatment of a child placed in Georgia pursuant to an approved placement, regardless of whether or not the report is substantiated.
2. If it is determined that a child shall be removed from the placement in order to ensure their safety, and it is not possible for the child placing agency in the sending state to move the child at the time that the determination is made by Georgia, the sending state shall authorize the child to be moved or an emergency request shall be made to juvenile court. The child shall be placed with a Georgia placement resource pending the sending state making the appropriate arrangements to retrieve the child. The Georgia ICPC Administrator shall promptly notify the sending state when a child is moved to another home or other substitute care facility.
3. It is the responsibility of the public child placing agency in the sending state to:
 - a. Take action to ensure the ongoing safety of a child placed in Georgia pursuant to an approved placement, including return of the child to the sending state as soon as possible when return is requested by the Georgia ICPC Administrator;
 - b. Take timely action to relieve Georgia of any financial burden that Georgia has incurred as a result of placing a child into substitute care after removing the child from an unsafe placement in which the child was previously placed by the public child placing agency in the sending state.

Supervision of Children Placed in Other States by Georgia

1. The County SSCM shall request that supervision begin when:
 - a. The child is placed in the receiving state pursuant to an approved home evaluation, approval or provisional approval of the placement and the Georgia ICPC Administrator has sent the Interstate Compact Report on Child's Placement Status (ICPC-100B) to the receiving state indicating the date of the child's placement.

- b. Supervision can and should begin prior to receipt of the Interstate Compact Report on Child's Placement Status (ICPC-100B) if the receiving state ICPC Compact Administrator has been informed by other means that the child has been placed pursuant to an approved placement.
- c. Supervision shall continue until any of the following conditions apply:
 - i. The child reaches the age of majority or is legally emancipated;
 - ii. The child's adoption is finalized;
 - iii. Legal custody of the child is granted to a caregiver or a parent and jurisdiction is terminated by the sending state;
 - iv. The child no longer resides at the home approved for placement of the child subject to the approved ICPC home study request;

 - vii. The receiving state requests in writing that supervision be discontinued, and the Georgia County DFCS office and Georgia ICPC Administrator concur.

Supervision of a Georgia child in the receiving state may continue, notwithstanding the occurrence of one of the events listed above, by mutual agreement of the receiving state and Georgia ICPC Compact offices.

Requesting Supervision for Children from Georgia Placed in Other States

The request for supervision shall be accompanied by a completed Interstate Compact Report on Child's Placement Status (ICPC-100B) and shall include requests for:

1. Face-to-face visits with the child at least once each month, beginning no later than 30 days from the date on which the child is placed, or 30 days from the date on which the Georgia ICPC Administrator notified the receiving state of the child's placement, if notification occurs after placement has occurred;
2. A majority of the required visits occur in the child's resource home;
3. Significant issues of concern that are identified during a face-to-face visit or at any time during a child's placement are promptly reported to the assigned Georgia ICPC Administrator and County DFCS SSCM;
4. Written reports to be sent to the Georgia ICPC Administrator for forwarding to the county DFCS SSCM at least once every ninety (90) days following the date of the receipt of the Interstate Compact Report on Child's Placement Status (ICPC - 100B) requesting supervision. More frequent reporting may be requested if agreed to by the receiving state ICPC Compact Administrator. Codes/References

O.C.G.A. § 39-4 Interstate Compact on the Placement of Children
 ICPC Regulation 1 - Relocation of Family Units
 ICPC Regulation 2 - Public Court Jurisdiction Cases
 ICPC Regulation 9 - Definition of a Visit

Requirements

The Division of Family and Children Services (DFCS) will assume responsibility for assuring the proper maintenance and follow-up of Interstate Compact on the Placement of Children (ICPC) requests received from a sending state ICPC Administrator that require formal and informal action on the part of County DFCS staff. These actions include:

1. Custody Reviews
2. Protective Custody Services
3. Georgia Court as the Sending Agency
4. Out of State Foster Home
5. Out of State Residential Placement (Group Home)
6. Interstate Visits
7. Relocation of Family Units
8. Status Offenders return to state of residence

Procedures

Custody Reviews (Court and Subsidies)

1. For cases in which the Georgia Court granted permanent custody of a child to a relative prior to January 1, 2014, the Juvenile Court Judge reviews the circumstances of the child in the permanent custody of a relative every 12 or 36 months, based on the established jurisdiction where custody was originally transferred to the relative and location of the relative (in state or out of state).

2. If DFCS is requested to complete the court review, ICPC requirements apply.
3. Per policy 22.8 Kinship: Financial and Non-Financial Supports for Children in Foster Care or Who Have Achieved Permanency, if a relative is approved to receive Relative Care Subsidy and relocates to another state, the legal county of the child shall make subsidy payments as long as all eligibility criteria are met. Georgia will continue to be responsible for subsidy payments for eligible children as long as a Georgia court retains legal jurisdiction and the child remains eligible.
4. Should the relative placement no longer be appropriate and/or there is a court order changing the custody arrangements, the RCS payments are terminated. Refer to policy 22.8 Kinship: Financial and Non-Financial Supports for Children in Foster Care or Who Have Achieved Permanency for the procedures for terminating the RCS.

There are no new relative subsidies established effective 1/1/ 2014.

Protective Custody Services

This situation presents when (1) protective services and/or supervision of a family is needed in Georgia (Georgia is receiving state) or in another state (Georgia is sending state) and (2) the court has established jurisdiction. In such cases, the court becomes the sending agency and ICPC applies.

When Georgia is the sending/legal state, the county department shall request the court to sign Interstate Compact Placement Request (ICPC-100A) and to be listed on the form in the two sections regarding financial responsibility.

1. If the court will not agree to retain jurisdiction or be identified as responsible for the placement, the county department “by order of the appropriate court”, can be listed in the section regarding responsibility.
2. The county director or designee must sign the Interstate Compact Placement Request (ICPC-100A). Information in these cases may be limited.
3. A cover letter, court order and any available information should be collated in three packets and forwarded along with the Interstate Compact Placement Request (ICPC-100A) to the ICPC office. A copy of the ICPC packet is to be uploaded into External Documentation in SHINES.

An open child protective services case without a protective order is not subject to the Compact. Neither are protective services situations, which do not involve a court in another state for court-ordered supervision or placement. For such situations, the county department should respond directly to the agency making the request. If a Georgia family receiving child protective services leaves the state, the county department should send a request for services directly to the agency in the other state. Refer to the APWA Directory for addresses. Do not submit an Interstate Compact Placement Request (ICPC-100A).

Georgia Court as the Sending Agency

Typically, when a Georgia court becomes the sending agency, the situation involves relatives who are in dispute over placement plans for the child. ICPC does not apply to most divorce custody cases. If there is a third party involved other than the parents, ICPC may apply. When such situations arise, the Georgia ICPC Administrator will assist with clarification on these cases.

Placement with an Out of State Foster Home

Under special circumstances, an out of state foster home may be sought for placement of a child who is in the custody of Georgia DFCS. Relatives or non-relative foster homes may also be sought for children in need of placement. Follow the steps outlined below:

1. The cover letter should request the receiving state to complete a foster home study.
2. The request should provide the amount of per diem Georgia will pay, and ask the receiving state to accept this per diem rate for the family if the home is approved.
3. An out of state non-relative may be considered for placement through the compact if there is reason to believe that this placement is in the best interest of the child.
4. The child's IV-E status should be documented when making this referral.

If parental rights have been terminated by a Georgia court and placement is sought with a birth family member, a foster home study will be requested rather than a relative home study.

Out of State Residential Placement (Group Home)

In rare instances, a child in Georgia DFCS custody may require an out of state group home placement. When such circumstances exist, a child may be placed in an approved out of state group home, childcare institution or basic IFC facility.

1. A multidisciplinary team meeting must be held to discuss the recommendation to place a child in DFCS custody in an out of state group home to discuss the following:
 - a. The rationale for considering such a placement;
 - b. What in-state services and facilities were used or considered;
 - c. Why in-state services are not being recommended;
 - d. Any additional information required by the placement facility must be shared.
2. Prior to initiating the ICPC procedures, obtain:
 - a. Approval from the County Director;
 - b. A waiver from the Regional Director and the Director of Foster Care Services.
3. Upon receipt of the approved waiver, apply the referral procedures referenced in policy 16.3 Room Board and Watchful Oversight \(RBWO\): RBWO Placement Referral.
4. Initiate ICPC procedures.
5. When an out-of-state group home placement is recommended or made, the case plan shall comply with O.C.G.A. § 39-4-4, the Interstate Compact on the Placement of Children. Update the case plan to include the following:
 - a. The recommendation of the multidisciplinary team and the rationale for such particular placement;
 - b. Which in-state services or facilities were used or considered and why they were not recommended;
 - c. Why the selected placement is in the best interest of the child.

Interstate Visits

An interstate visit is not considered a placement. Visits and placements are distinguished on the basis of purpose, duration, and the intent of the person or agency with court-ordered responsibility for planning for the child. An interstate visit shall not exceed thirty (30) days and is not subject to ICPC.

1. The purpose of a visit is to provide the child with a familial, social or cultural experience of short duration, such as an overnight camp or visiting with a friend or relative who has not assumed legal responsibility for said child.
2. A visit may not be approved or extended if the approval or extension exceeds thirty (30) days. A visit or proposed stay of longer than thirty (30) days constitutes a placement event, and must conform to ICPC regulations.
3. If at the onset of a visit the stay does not have a planned ending date or if its duration is not clear, it shall be considered a placement or proposed placement and must comply with ICPC regulations.
4. An interstate visit should not be authorized unless the visiting resource is found to be a safe environment for the child subject to the request.
 - a. Home assessments and supervision are not required when children are visiting out of state.
 - b. Request of, or receipt of a request for a home study or supervision made by a person or agency that sends or proposes to send a child on a visit must be explored with the person or entity to determine if the plan is for the child to remain with the visiting resource. Under such circumstances, ICPC regulations and policy apply.

Relocation of Family Units

A placement initially intrastate in nature becomes an interstate placement subject to the Interstate Compact on the Placement of Children (ICPC) when a child's principal residence permanently relocates to another state, except as set forth herein.

1. A request that the receiving state assess and approve the placement is mandatory.
2. The sending state must retain legal jurisdiction for the child until approval to do so is provided by the receiving state.
3. Assurance that a safe and stable placement is maintained for the child subject to court jurisdiction is the responsibility of both the sending and receiving states.
4. Additionally, it is the intent of the Compact that services and supports for the child and placement resource are uninterrupted, that the placement resource and sending state comply with the requirements of the receiving state, and that both states comply with all applicable state and federal laws, rules and regulations.
5. These guidelines apply to the relocation of a child and the placement resource where supervision is ongoing.
 - a. A request for a home study solely for the purpose of a periodic assessment of the placement where there is no ongoing supervision are not addressed by this process and shall be a matter of courtesy between the states.
 - b. The sending state has the option to contract privately for a periodic assessment of the placement.

Status Offenders Return to State of Residence

DFCS recognizes it's responsible for the proper supervision or return of status offenders who are on probation or parole and who have absconded, escaped or run away from supervision and control and in so doing have endangered their own safety and the safety of others. Additionally, DFCS recognizes that each state is responsible for the safe return of juveniles who have run away from home and in doing so have left their state of residence.

Requirements

The Division of Family and Children Services (DFCS) will ensure that interstate travel expenses are only authorized by the Interstate Compact on the Placement of Children (ICPC) State Office.

1. These reimbursable travel expenses are associated with a child's approved ICPC placement to and from an approved ICPC out of home resource.
2. Travel costs include subsistence, mileage and/or airfare for the child only.
3. The Interstate Travel Expenses Waiver is completed by the Georgia ICPC Administrator and sent to the County Department at the time the County is notified that the ICPC placement is approved.

County DFCS staff will request authorization for the child's travel expenses when placing the child in another state. If a Georgia child's placement disrupts, authorization for the child's travel expenses must be reauthorized via a request submitted to the Georgia ICPC Administrator.

When it is necessary for the Social Services Case Manager (SSCM) or other DFCS staff person to accompany the child:

1. The SSCM's travel costs are paid from Grant in Aid (GIA).
2. Advance approval for the SSCM's travel must be requested through the Deputy Director of Financial and Administration using the Child Related Out-of-State Travel Request (Form 5354).

2. The Georgia ICPC Administrator is responsible for approving the Interstate Travel Expense Waiver for the payment of the child(ren)'s travel. Interstate Travel Expense Waivers are not approved for court only jurisdiction cases (where the child is not in DFCS custody).
3. Travel Incorporated is the travel agency used to make the travel arrangements and secure payment authorization. The DHS Office of Financial Services/Travel Section should be contacted if assistance is needed.
4. All expenses related to the child(ren)'s travel are submitted to the Regional Accounting department, and copies should be maintained in Georgia SHINES External Documentation in the child's FCC stage for audit purposes. Georgia currently does not have an approved Border Agreement with North Carolina but does have an approved Border Agreement with the other states.

The components of a properly executed border agreement will:

1. Identify by county/region and/or state the parties to the agreement;

 - f. If required, compliance with policies and procedures outlined in the Interstate Compact for the Placement of Children (ICPC).
4. Require compliance with federal, state and other policy and regulatory requirements;
 5. Require that the sending state remain programmatically, legally and fiscally responsible for the child as allowable under the sending state's policies and procedures;
 6. Provide for a mechanism for conflict resolution should problems arise; and
 7. Provide for the training of staff members in the counties, regions and states that are a party to the border agreement.

A properly executed border agreement will not:

1. Impose requirements or standards that are in violation of federal or state law, regulation or policy;
2. Result in an expense being incurred for the cost of maintenance of the child in the resource home that is not allowable under the fiscal policies of the sending state;
3. Transfer fiscal responsibility for a child subject to the border agreement to the receiving state, except for those services otherwise available to the child or resource parent absent child welfare involvement;
4. Violate federal or state law, rule, regulation or policy established by the parties to the border agreement.

The signature of the Georgia DHS Commissioner or DFCS Director and the Child Welfare Commissioner/Director of the border state is required for the border agreement to be effective and enforceable.

Procedures

See Appendices for the specific requirements included in the Border Agreement between Georgia and bordering states.

Practice Guidance

The purpose of the ICPC Regulations is to provide the member state agencies with guidelines for the achievement of permanency of children through their safe and timely placement with permanency resources in other states. Both Georgia law and the ICPC agreement acknowledge that under certain circumstances it may be beneficial for states sharing a geographical border to enter into compact agreements resulting in expedited placements that enhance child safety, permanency and well-being by agreeing to work collaboratively and in the best interests of children.

Discussion

The mission of the Division of Family and Children Services (DFCS) foster care program is to strengthen families, protect children from further abuse and ensure that every child has a permanent family. The private provider community is an important and integral part of DFCS's ability to achieve its mission. The Room Board and Watchful Oversight (RBWO) providers follow and support the DFCS mission.

RBWO is the provision of lodging, food and attentive responsible care to children. Providers shall be responsible for the provision or acquisition of services to ensure that each child's physical, social, emotional, educational/vocational, nutritional, spiritual/cultural and permanency needs are met. These services are defined as follows:

1. Physical – all health services pertaining to the body (medical and dental). This includes medication monitoring, documenting and administering by staff or foster parents trained in medication dispensing.
2. Social – the provision of an environment in which the child's relationships with peers, staff, significant others and community are improved through the use of recreational and leisure activities.
3. Emotional - a support network that implements recommendations of treatment providers; provides access to treatment; and recognizes behaviors, such as anger, and negative and positive stress, often accompanied by physiological or psychological changes.
4. Educational/Vocational – enrollment of youth in an accredited educational school system; monitoring of progress and support of the youth's education by participation in student support team (SST) meetings, individual education planning (IEP) meetings, parent/teacher conferences and disciplinary meetings; opportunities for participation in school-related extra-curricular activities; for those youth who have completed high school or who have achieved a high school diploma or GED, access to academic or vocational opportunities that will prepare them to lead self-sufficient lives.

5. Nutritional – the provision or acquisition of food services to ensure healthy physical and emotional development, which is inclusive of the child's religious, cultural, and health needs in accordance with the United States Department of Agriculture (USDA) guidelines for servings per child.
6. Spiritual/Cultural – awareness, sensitivity and competence in understanding the child's and family's religious values, belief system, mores, customs, training, social growth or development.
7. Permanency – providing the child with continuous and guided interaction with family members and significant others for the purpose of transitioning the child back to the home and community and/or working to secure another permanent option for the child. Permanency planning begins during the admission process and continues through discharge.

The DFCS Office of Provider Management (OPM) is responsible for establishing and maintaining standards for child placing agency (CPA) foster family homes, child caring institutions (CCI), and Independent Living Programs which are reasonably in accord with recommended standards of national organizations concerned with standards for such institutions or homes, including standards related to admission policies, safety, sanitation, and protection of civil rights and which shall permit use of the reasonable and prudent parenting standard. The standards so established are applied by DFCS to any CPA foster family home or CCI receiving funds under Titles IV-E or IV-B. The standards shall require, as a condition of each contract entered into by a CCI to provide foster care, the presence on-site of at least one official who, with respect to any child placed at the CCI, is designated to be the caregiver who is authorized to apply the reasonable and prudent parent standard to decisions involving the participation of the child in age or developmentally-appropriate activities, and who is provided with training in how to use and apply the reasonable and prudent standard in the same manner as prospective foster parents are provided the training pursuant to paragraph 471(a)(24).

The standards for foster family homes and CCIs shall include policies related to the liability of foster parents and private entities under contract by the State involving the application of the reasonable and prudent parent standard, to ensure appropriate liability for caregivers when a child participates in an approved activity and the caregiver approving the activity acts in accordance with the reasonable and prudent parent standard. DFCS may provide waivers of such standards only on a case-by-case basis for non-safety standards (as determined by DFCS) in relative foster family homes for specific children in care. In order for a child to be eligible for Title IV-E funding, the licensing file for a CCI must contain documentation which verifies that safety considerations with respect to the staff of the institution have been addressed.

In order for a child to be eligible for title IV-E funding, the licensing file for a CCI must contain documentation which verifies that safety considerations with respect to the staff of the institution have been addressed. DFCS shall provide procedures for any CCI, including a group home, residential treatment center, shelter, or other congregate care setting, to conduct criminal record checks, including fingerprint-based checks of national crime information databases (as defined in section 534(f)(3)(A) of title 28, United States Code), and child abuse registry checks, on any adult working in a CCI, including a group home, residential treatment center, shelter, or other congregate care setting (see policy 19.8 Case Management: Criminal Records Checks and 19.9 Case Management: Safety Screenings).

RBWO providers contracted with DFCS adhere to a set of guiding principles outlined in the RBWO Minimum Standards. RBWO Minimum Standards are focused on securing positive permanency, health and education outcomes for children and on reducing risks to their welfare and safety. Providers shall aim to provide the best care possible for the children under their supervision. Observing the Minimum Standards is essential, but only a part of the overall responsibility to safeguard and promote the welfare of each individual child placed. The Minimum Standards are intended to be qualitative, in that they provide a tool for judging the quality of care provided and are also designed to be measurable.

The OPM shall monitor RBWO providers against the Minimum Standards using annual comprehensive and random safety reviews. During monitoring visits, the OPM will look for evidence that the requirements are being met. Provider practices that exceed the requirements of the Minimum Standards will also be identified and documented in the OPM monitoring report. The following are the six broad areas comprising the Minimum Standards:

1. Safety;
2. Quality of care;
3. Permanency support;
4. Family foster homes;
5. Child caring institutions; and
6. General administrative matters.

OPM may execute the following reviews of contracted CCIs/CPAs and Independent Living Programs (ILP) to ensure adherence to the high standard of care and contractual obligations:

1. Annual Comprehensive Review (ACR) - an overall assessment of provider performance in the areas of safety, permanency and well-being; it is done to determine the provider's compliance with RBWO Minimum Standards as well as DFCS policy. ACRs are conducted on each CCI and CPA at least annually without prior notice to the provider. However, the list of files selected for review is withheld until the actual ACR. ACRs can take approximately two to four days to complete depending on the size of the agency. The ACR includes:
 - a. Staff and/or foster parents and child record reviews;
 - b. Staff and/or foster parents and child interviews;
 - c. Physical plant inspection;
 - d. All service delivery aspects incorporating safety, permanency and well-being; and
 - e. Review of agency's policies.
2. Safety Review (SR) – conducted to assess and identify immediate safety issues within a CPA, CCI, or Independent Living Program (ILP) and ensure that the agency staff and/or foster parent(s) have the capacity and support needed to maintain the child's safety. During a SR:
 - a. The family composition is assessed;

- b. Children are interviewed;
- c. Staff and/or foster parent(s) are interviewed; and
- d. A walkthrough of the facility/home is conducted.

A SR is designed to be employed randomly and frequently across all CCIs, CPAs, and ILPs. A SR may be used in response to risk and safety concerns instead of a full comprehensive review. A SR usually takes about 60 to 90 minutes to complete, and prior notice to the provider is not provided.

- 3. Foster Home Approval Review and Re-Evaluations – a random desk review of newly approved or re-approved foster homes. During this review, documentation is reviewed to determine if DFCS policies 14.10 Resource Development: Initial Family Evaluation and 14.13 Resource Development: Family Re-evaluation were followed during the approval or re-approval process (CPAs only).
- 4. Performance Based Placement Review – a review of self-reported provider data in GA Shines. Self-reported data includes staff training, placement stability, sibling contacts, Health Checks (medical & dental visits), academic supports, every child every month (ECEM) visits and general contacts. This visit is announced.
- 5. Safety Desk Check – A Safety Desk Check is conducted quarterly to review all safety screenings completed on employees of providers (i.e., Criminal Background (OIG), CPS History Check, Pardons and Parole, GA Sex Offender Registry and Department of Corrections).

Description of Program Types

Child Caring Institution (CCI)

A CCI is any institution, society, agency, or facility, whether incorporated or not, which either primarily or incidentally provides full-time care for children through 18 years of age outside of their homes, subject to such exceptions as may be provided in rules and regulations of the board. Such term includes a qualified residential treatment program (QRTP).

The children in CCIs are residing outside of their own home environment. These facilities provide care, supervision and oversight in a residential setting, including neighborhood-based group homes, campus-based arrangements and self-contained facilities. The CCI's Human Service Professionals or Child Care Workers work as a team to provide a stabilizing and nurturing environment that breaks down barriers to support the child stepping down to a less restrictive environment.

1. Maternity and Parenting Support Programs

- a. Maternity Home – any place in which any person, society, agency, corporation, or facility receives, treats, or cares for, within any six-month period, more than one pregnant woman whose child is born out of wedlock, either before, during, or within two weeks after childbirth. This definition does not include women who receive maternity care in the home of a relative or in general or special hospitals, licensed according to law, in which maternity treatment and care is part of the medical services performed and the care of children is only brief and incidental. Such term does not include a commercial sexual exploitation recovery center.
- b. Parenting Support Programs (PSP), also called Second Chance Homes, are specialized, adult supervised RBWO programs established for young mothers and their children. A PSP is a licensed maternity home that provides full-time residential care, support, and supervision to pregnant and parenting youth (21 years of age or younger) and their children. Services can be provided by a CCI or CPA (in a residential setting, supportive foster home, transitional or independent living environment) and are expected to last for more than an eight-week period following delivery. Program services help young mothers develop parenting skills and improve their knowledge of child development. Additionally, services assist with education, job training, family budgeting, health and nutrition, and transitioning to independent living. PSP providers who offer services in a residential setting must be licensed through RCCL as a Maternity Home and may serve no more than a total of 16 residents (i.e., parenting youth and their children).

2. Qualified Residential Treatment Program (QRTP) – a QRTP is a program that:
 - a. Has a trauma-informed treatment model that is designed to address the needs (including clinical needs as appropriate) of children with serious emotional or behavioral disorders or disturbances and, with respect to a child, is able to implement the treatment identified for the child by the assessment to determine appropriateness of placement as provided for in Code Section 15-11-219;
 - b. Has registered or licensed nursing staff and other licensed clinical staff who:
 - i. Provide care within the scope of their practice;
 - ii. Are on-site according to the treatment model referred to in subparagraph (a) of this paragraph; and
 - iii. Are available 24 hours a day and seven days a week;
 - c. To extent appropriate, and in accordance with the child’s best interests, facilitates participation of family members in the child’s treatment program;
 - d. Facilitates outreach to the family members of the child, including siblings, documents how the outreach is made (including contact information), and maintains contact information for any known biological family and fictive kin of the child;
 - e. Documents how family members are integrated into the treatment process for the child, including post-discharge, and how sibling connections are maintained;
 - f. Provides discharge planning and family-based aftercare support for at least six months post-discharge; and
 - g. Is licensed pursuant to Chapter 5 of Title 49 in accordance with 42 U.S.C. Section 671(a)(10) of the Social Security Act and accredited in accordance with 42 U.S.C. Section 672(k)(4)(G).

 Georgia has not implemented QRTPs.

3. Children’s Transition Care Center (CTCC) - provides a temporary, home-like environment for medically fragile children, technology-dependent children and children with special health care needs, who are deemed clinically stable by a physician but are dependent on life-sustaining medications, treatments and equipment. These children require assistance with activities of daily living to facilitate transitions from a hospital or other facility.
4. Outdoor Child Caring Program “Specialty” Camp (OCCP) - provides room, board and watchful oversight in a wilderness or camp environment that is designed to improve the emotional and behavioral adjustment of the children in care. The use of physical, environmental, athletic and other challenging activities is designed to improve the functioning of the children and to teach them pro-social and adaptive skills.

5. Independent Living Program (ILP) – a specialized RBWO program for youth 18 through 21 years of age. ILP is different from transitional living in that youth may live in an alternative living arrangement (i.e., community-based housing) rather than a group home or other residential type facility. Independent living placements shall begin no earlier than a youth’s 18th birthday. Youth in ILP will experience “graduated independence” regarding program expectations, skill development and levels or types of supervision provided. The goal of an independent living placement is to prepare youth to become socially, emotionally and personally independent of social services while connecting them to life-long permanency connections and laying the foundation for the pursuit of educational and career opportunities.
6. Transitional Living Program (TLP) - a specialized RBWO program for youth at least 16 years of age. Youth may be older than 18 years old if they have agreed to participate in the Extended Foster Care program. Transitional living is designed for youth who are ready to enter a phase of care that will eventually transition them to independent living. Transitional living affords youth an opportunity to practice basic independent living skills in a variety of settings with decreasing degrees of supervision. This specialized RBWO placement provides youth the opportunity to experience increased personal responsibility, so youth can become responsible for their own care when they exit foster care. The goal of a transitional living placement is to prepare youth to become socially, emotionally and personally independent of social services while connecting them to life-long permanency connections and laying the foundation for the pursuit of educational and career opportunities.
7. Commercial sexual exploitation recovery center- a CCI certified as a victim assistance program, as provided for in subsection (e) of Code Section 15-21-132, which provides full-time residential care and support services to youth through 18 years of age who are victims of sexual exploitation as defined in Code Section 49-5-40.

Child Placing Agency (CPA)

A CPA is an agency that places children in foster and adoptive homes for individualized care, supervision and oversight. CPAs are responsible for assessing the appropriateness of the room, board and watchful oversight that the prospective foster and adoptive families will provide. The CPA’s employees and their foster and adoptive parents work as a team to provide a stabilizing and nurturing environment that promotes safety, permanency and well-being.

Foster Family Home

A foster family home is the home of an individual or family approved as meeting the standards established by the State licensing or approval authority(ies) that provides 24-hour out-of-home care for children. The term may include group homes, agency-operated boarding homes or other facilities licensed or approved for the purpose of providing foster care by DFCS. Foster families that are approved must be held to the same standards as foster family homes that are licensed. Anything less than full licensure or approval is insufficient for meeting Title IV-E eligibility requirements. A foster family home may be operated by a CCI or a CPA.

These children are deemed clinically stable by a physician but are dependent on life-sustaining medications, treatment/procedures and equipment. Children ages 0-12 are not permitted to be placed in a group setting without approval of a DFCS Regional Director. Children 10 and younger require a waiver from the Foster Care Services Director.

Specialty Medically Fragile Watchful Oversight - SMFWO (CPA)

A child served in the specialty medically fragile program has serious to severe medical conditions. Non-compliance with any prescriptive regimen of care will endanger the life or health of the child. These children require time-intensive treatments/procedures to be performed daily. Due to the severity and required attentiveness in caring for a child approval with a specialty program designation, other children are not permitted to be placed in the home without the written approval from a DFCS Designee. Some of the characteristics in which a child would qualify for SMFWO include, but are not limited to:

- Several years behind in the development of age-appropriate knowledge of self-care or life skills; and/or
- Medical interventions may be required while in school.

Maternity Homes & Parent Support Programs (Second Chance Homes)

A child served in the maternity homes and parenting support programs (Second Chance Homes) is preparing for motherhood or receiving hands-on parenting training. The premise is to support an adolescent who is either pregnant or has a child(ren) with the skills and knowledge to care for her child(ren). Their emotional and/or behavioral management problems are mild. The following are the child characteristics and operational impact on children, according to the Difficulty of Care Factors, that children in these placements may exhibit:

- Learning disability requiring supports such as Student Support Team and tutoring services;
- Poor concentration at school and home;
- Occasional disruptive or disobedient behaviors resulting in in-school suspension;
- Behaviors that are managed by medications;
- Non-compliance with curfew and/or limits set by adults;
- Difficulty in adjusting to new environments;
- Behavioral outbursts inclusive of profane and/or provocative language;
- “Annoying” behaviors to include excessive teasing, horseplay, and language taunting;
- Impulsive behaviors that create mild risk, such as inappropriate verbal outbursts or wandering away from the group;
- Easily frustrated; temper tantrums; and/or
- Difficulty making friends.

A child under maternity and parenting support (Second Chance Homes) has minimal to mild medical needs and can have a mild developmental delay that does not coexist with any medical condition.

Transitional Living Program (TLP)

A child served in the transitional living/independent living program greatly benefits from life skill training to be more self-sufficient and prepared for adulthood. The premise of this program designation assignment is not behavioral based, as are BWO, AWO and MWO. Behaviors may be considered in the placement of a child based on each approved provider admission criteria. This program designation can serve adolescents as young as 16.

Specialty Camp

A child served in the specialty camp will have moderate to severe emotional and/or behavioral management problems that interfere with the child’s ability to function in the family, school and/or community outside of a supervised and structured setting. The child characteristics on children approved for the camp are the same as AWO and MWO. A child serviced in a camp has minimal to mild medical needs and can have a mild developmental delay that does not coexist with any medical condition.

Commercial Sexual Exploitation Recovery Center

A child served in a commercial sexual exploitation recovery center has been a victim of sexual exploitation and is in need of full-time residential care and support services.

Requirements

The Division of Family and Children Services (DFCS) will use the performance-based placement (PBP) score to assist in making an informed Room Board and Watchful Oversight (RBWO) provider selection decision.

Procedures

Social Services Case Manager

1. Access the RBWO Provider Profile;
2. Review the potential placement providers' profile and their quarterly PBP grade; and
3. Use this information to assist in selecting the best RBWO placement for the child.

Practice Guidance

Performance based placement (PBP) scorecards for child placing agencies and child caring institutions are available to assist in making more informed RBWO placement decisions for the children served. PBP grades provide some support and additional information in the decision-making process.

PBP quarterly grades are based on a 100 point scale with an additional 10 incentive points possible. The base and incentive points are based on safety, permanency and well-being goals tailored to each provider type and monitoring reviews conducted by the Office of Provider Management (OPM). Each quarter, providers receive scorecards with breakdowns of their performance on all areas and an overall numerical score with a corresponding letter grade from A-F. The minimum satisfactory overall performance grade is 70/C.

Social Services Case Managers can use PBP grades to help select the best RBWO placement providers. Each provider’s overall numerical score and letter grade is available to staff on the provider’s profile sheet. The provider profile guide is a complete listing of all providers with a description of their services, contact information and their PBP quarterly grades.

In order to review a provider’s complete scorecard, submit a request to OPM at opmtraining@dhs.ga.gov.

Providers who earn less than 70 percent in any three consecutive quarters will be subject to admissions suspensions and other remedies as appropriate in order to address their performance deficits. PBP is one component of risk management that OPM employs to monitor provider performance. Therefore, unless OPM has suspended admissions to a provider, despite quarterly scores below the minimum expected threshold, the provider is still an active approved provider and can be considered for continuing existing placements and future placements.

If you have any questions or need help with PBP, please contact OPM at opmtraining@dhr.state.ga.us.

If the child has significant needs that cannot be adequately maintained at the RBWO program designation levels of base, traditional and/or additional watchful oversight, a specialty program designation may be required. Practice Guidance

Applications for a RBWO placement should only be submitted to RBWO providers who are approved to serve the type of youth for whom placement is being sought. Health or psychological information of any other individual related to the case, besides the youth whom placement is being sought, should not be included with the application or the material submitted after placement approval to prevent HIPPA violations (see policy 2.5 Information Management: Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act \(HIPAA\)).

Provider Profile Guide

The RBWO provider guide is a comprehensive listing of all approved RBWO providers, provider profiles and quarterly performance-based placement score/grade. It contains a description of services and contact information for each provider and is updated quarterly.

Universal Application

The Universal Application serves as the singular document for RBWO Program Designations requests, Specialized Foster Care requests and placement referrals. Requirements

The Division of Family and Children Services (DFCS) will:

1. Make a specialty RBWO waiver request for a child in the joint custody of DFCS and the Georgia Department of Juvenile Justice (DJJ) after obtaining a written authorization letter from the local DJJ Expeditor confirming that DJJ has agreed to pay 50 percent of the child's placement costs.
2. Submit a waiver request for consideration to the DFCS Care Coordination Treatment Unit for a child in foster care who has significant levels of mental, emotional and physical needs that require care and services that cannot be adequately provided at the following Room Board and Watchful Oversight (RBWO) program designation levels:
 - a. Traditional [Child Placing Agency (CPA)];
 - b. Base-BWO [Child Caring Institution (CCI)];
 - c. Base-BWO (CPA); or
 - d. Additional Watchful Oversight (CCI).

The county department can assign a program designation level of traditional, base, and/or additional watchful oversight (AWO) without the approval of the DFCS Care Coordination Treatment Unit.

3. Place no more than one child in a CPA family foster home or in a home for the purpose of respite when that child has been assigned a program designation level of specialty base (SBWO), specialty maximum (SMWO) or specialty medically fragile (SMFWO).

Any exceptions to this standard (whether for respite or placement) must be approved in advance of the placement by the Office of Provider Management (OPM).

Procedures

Requests for Program Designation Higher than Traditional, Base and/or Additional Watchful Oversight (AWO)

The Social Services Case Manager (SSCM) or RBWO provider will:

1. For a child in the joint custody of DJJ and DFCS, obtain an authorization letter from the local DJJ Expeditor stating that DJJ has agreed to pay for 50 percent of the child's placement costs.
2. Complete the Universal Application in Georgia SHINES.
3. Gather the required documentation to support the application.
4. Submit the following to the DFCS Care Coordination Treatment Unit via GA Score website:
 - a. Universal Application;
 - b. Psychological / Psychiatric Evaluation or Trauma Assessment;
 - c. Other supporting documentation;
 - d. A statement, email or other documentation indicating that the Social Services Case Manager concurs with the application, if a provider initiated the application.
 - e. Proof that a supplemental security income (SSI) application has been submitted to the Social Security Administration, if this is a subsequent application; and
 - f. The authorization letter indicating that DJJ will pay for 50 percent of the child's placement costs, if the child is in the joint custody of DJJ and DFCS.

Failure to submit a complete packet will result in an automatic denial. A complete packet should not exceed 25 pages.

5. Upload the program designation approval decision received from the DFCS Care Coordination Treatment Unit to Georgia SHINES External Documentation.
6. Provide a copy of the program designation approval notice received from the DFCS Care Coordination Treatment Unit to the following, if approved:
 - a. Regional Accounting Office; and
 - b. RBWO provider.

The DFCS Care Coordination Treatment Unit will:

1. Make a decision on the application within:
 - a. The same business day for an emergency request; or
 - b. Four business days for a routine request; or
 - c. Seven to 14 business days if the application involves a pending adoption.
2. Notify the SSCM via memorandum of the approval decision.

Notification of decisions concerning emergency requests may be initially conveyed verbally and/or via email by the DFCS Care Coordination Treatment Unit Director/designee until such time as the formal written waiver can be prepared and issued.

3. If approved, provide a memorandum that includes the:
 - a. Date the rate will begin; and
 - b. Date the rate will end.
4. If denied, provide a denial letter indicating the reason(s) for denial.

Specialty Program Designation Capacity Waiver Request

The SSCM or RBWO provider will:

1. Complete the RBWO Capacity Waiver; or
2. In the circumstance of respite, complete the RBWO Respite Waiver Request for Specialty Placements; and
3. Submit the following documents to the DFCS Care Coordination Treatment Unit via the GA Score website:
 - a. An explanation of the supporting circumstances; and
 - b. A letter of concurrence from the child's SSCM(s).

Practice Guidance

The county department can assign a program designation level of base, traditional and/or additional watchful oversight (AWO) without the approval of the DFCS Care Coordination Treatment Unit; all other program designation levels shall be approved by OPM. OPM program designation level approvals are effective for one year and must be re-applied for annually. At the point it becomes apparent that a child requires this higher level of care on a continuous basis, the SSCM should apply for Supplemental Security Income (SSI) on behalf of the child. Proof of the application for SSI will be included with any subsequent program designation level application/request submitted to the DFCS Care Coordination Treatment Unit.

When submitting an emergency request for a MWO program designation, the SSCM will submit as much information as is available to determine the child's level of need and a statement indicating why an emergency determination is needed. An emergency request that does not contain all the required information may be approved for a period of no greater than 30 days to allow the SSCM to obtain and submit a program designation waiver request with all the required supporting documentation. Therefore, an emergency MWO program designation based on limited information will be subject to change once all the required information is provided to the DFCS Care Coordination Treatment Unit.

Children in the Joint Custody of DJJ and DFCS

The county department should engage the local DJJ Expeditor as soon as possible upon realizing a child has been placed in the joint custody of DJJ and DFCS. Immediately acquiring all court orders referencing the child's continued joint custody and related conditions is very important and should be immediately uploaded into SHINES. Lastly, although the child may continue to be in joint custody, the child's placement must meet the child's individual needs, including being consistent with the child's case plan, permanency plan and Written Transitional Living Plan (WTLP), as appropriate.

Universal Application

The Universal Application serves as the singular document for RBWO Program Designations requests, Specialized Foster Care requests and placement referrals. Codes/References

N/A

Requirements

The Division of Family Children Services (DFCS) will place children in the least restrictive and most appropriate placements. Congregate care or group home placements may be considered when it is the most appropriate and least restrictive environment and the youth is at least 12 years of age.

An age-based waiver will be granted before a child age 10 and under can be placed in a congregate care or group home setting. For a child age 11, the Regional Director shall make the age-based waiver approval decision. For a child age 10 and under, the State Office Placement and Permanency Services Director shall make the age-based waiver approval decision. If the child is under the age of 10 and the child of a teen parent who is also placed in the CCI, an age-based waiver request is not required.

Procedures

Social Services Case Manager

1. Assess the child's placement needs and ensure that a congregate or group home placement is the least restrictive and most appropriate environment prior to pursuing such a placement.
2. Draft a waiver request documenting the following:
 - a. Child's exceptional needs;
 - b. Why the child's needs cannot be satisfied in a foster home setting or other facility;
 - c. Length of time needed to identify a family home if the placement assessment does not require a CCI placement;
 - d. Planned sleeping arrangements;
 - e. Child vulnerabilities; and
 - f. Special supervision needs.
3. If the child is 11 years of age, submit the age-based waiver request to the Regional Director for an approval decision.
4. If the child is under the age of 10 and not the child of a teen parent who is also placed in the CCI, submit the age-based waiver request to the State Office Placement and Permanency Services Director for an approval decision at dfcswaivers@dhs.ga.gov.

The Regional Director has night and weekend approval authority until the next business day for waivers requiring the State Office Placement and Permanency Services Director.

5. Upload the age-based waiver request and the approval decision to Georgia SHINES External Documentation.

State Office Placement and Permanency Services Director or Regional Director

1. Review the waiver request.
2. Request additional information, if needed to assist with the decision.
3. Provide written notification of the decision within four business days.

If the youth is 12 years of age or older, follow the guidelines and process outlined in policy 16.3 Room Board and Watchful Oversight \(RBWO\): Placement Referral for placing a child in a RBWO provider program.

Practice Guidance

Congregate or group home care may be assessed to be the least restrictive and most appropriate placement depending on the needs of the child. Residential care's primary purpose is to address the unique needs of children and youth who require more intensive services than a family setting can provide.

Congregate or group care should not be used as a default option for any youth, especially older youth. Each placement requires an assessment of what the child's needs are and where they can best be met in the least restrictive environment. Family homes provide the most "normal" replication of family operations.

CCIs standards are developed for the needs of older youth (12 years and up); staffing ratios, training expectations, routines, daily meal planning, etc. are based on programming for these older youth. Developmental and emotional needs, as well as monitoring and supervision needs of younger children vary greatly from that of older children. Therefore, age-based waiver requests for placement of younger children in a CCI will consider the room assignments, the younger child's vulnerability and exposure to situations or material that may not be suitable for a younger child but appropriate for older youth, impact on the provider (such as providing transportation to elementary schools when they are accustomed to only providing transportation to high schools), and how placement in a CCI may create a barrier to permanency options (since the majority of adoptions are foster parent adoptions).

16.7 Discharge Planning

	Policy Title:	Discharge Planning
	Policy Number:	16.7	Previous Policy Number(s):	N/A
	Effective Date:	October 2015	Manual Transmittal:	2015-09

Codes/References

N/A

Requirements

The Division of Family and Children Services (DFCS) will:

1. Use discharge planning to minimize trauma when transitioning a child from one placement setting to another.
2. Obtain a 14-calendar-day notice to move a child from a Child Caring Institution (CCI) or a Child Placing Agency (CPA) family foster home.

 In cases where the RBWO provider requests a discharge based on the best interest of the child due to safety concerns, a 14-day notice is not required. In these circumstances, DFCS shall determine whether a minimum 72-hour notice, if appropriate, shall be obtained from the CCI or CPA family foster home. If the 72-hour notice is not appropriate, the reasons for the failure to notify in advance must be documented in the child's record.

3. Obtain a discharge summary from the RBWO provider, at the time of notification of a placement move or disruption, the discharge summary shall include:
 - a. General information covering the child's placement;
 - b. Progress;
 - c. Challenges; and
 - d. Recommendations for services and supports the child will need to be successful at home or in the next placement.
4. Only make the decision for placement disruption after all possible interventions to maintain the child in their current placement setting have proven unsuccessful including participating in a Placement Team Meeting as requested. If the discharge is a result of a placement disruption, obtain a discharge summary from the RBWO provider that also include the following:
 - a. The circumstances leading to the disruption;
 - b. The actions that were taken by the agency to prevent the disruption;
 - c. The reason(s) for the discharge decision;
 - d. The services and supports the child will need to be successful in the next placement; and
 - e. Details of the child's transfer from the CCI or CPA family foster home to the Social Services Case Manager or other placement.

If a child is discharged on an emergency basis (less than 14 days), the discharge summary shall be provided within five business days of the discharge notification.

Procedures

Social Services Case Manager

1. Review the discharge summary information.
2. Use the information provided in the discharge summary to assist in assessing the future placement and/or service needs of the child.
3. Upload the discharge summary to Georgia SHINES External Documentation.
4. Update the placement information in Georgia SHINES within three business days.

Practice Guidance

Discharge planning is essential to minimize trauma and prepare the child for his/her next move, whether it is identified as a move back home to his/her parent(s), relative placement or to another resource home. Decisions about the child's long-term or continued placement in the program should not be made during a crisis. At best, a decision to discharge a child from a placement should be made by mutual discussion between the provider and the Division concerning the child's situation, either in a face-to-face or telephone conference.

The 14-calendar-day notice should be used to prepare all parties involved for the move. Communication with the current CCI/CPA foster family, child and the potential placement resource is necessary to ensure a smooth transition and increase the chance of placement success. The CCI/CPA foster family and the child should be informed of the date and time the move will take place so the placement resource can prepare the child. The child should be able to say his/her good-byes to the CCI/CPA foster family he/she is leaving, whenever appropriate. Refer to policy 10.3 Foster Care: Changes in Placement, 10.22 Foster Care: Permanency Planning and 10.26 Foster Care: Case Closure and for additional requirements and procedures for placement changes.

For placement disruptions that occur within 10 days of placement or admission to the provider, providers will document a review of the initial placement decision and identify any changes needed in the admissions review or placement matching process. Providers will have and follow their protocol on addressing foster parents who have patterns of ejecting children within 60 days of placement or where other disruption patterns are identified.

Discussion

Child welfare policy is guided by federal and state laws as well as good social work practice with the intent of preserving families, whenever possible, and ensuring the safety, well-being and permanency of children. Child welfare and law enforcement agencies have a specific legal authority to investigate, intervene and protect children from maltreatment. A child's right to protection and safety outweigh a parent's right to the child when there is serious maltreatment.

The juvenile court is a significant part of the child welfare network. Determining when to initiate juvenile court action is one of the most important and difficult decisions made in Child Protective Services (CPS). Involving the court too quickly may be a misuse of the authority granted both CPS and the court; and may create an adversarial relationship with parents and children. However, not seeking the authority and protection of the court, when necessary, may constitute a failure to adequately protect the child or properly utilize the authority given to DFCS.

Legal services are provided to county departments by the Special Assistant Attorney General (SAAG) who is appointed by the Office of Attorney General to represent each county department. The expertise of the SAAG in representing the county department, including researching legal questions, consulting on cases, preparing staff to testify, etc., is essential for the SSCM to effectively perform his/her role, especially in relation to dependency and termination proceedings. Thus, the SSCM must make efforts to maintain a good relationship with the SAAG through regular staffing, meetings, information sharing and cross training. The SSCM must be knowledgeable of child welfare laws and policies guiding interaction with the juvenile court and other legal partners. In addition, the SSCM must provide helpful information and timely documentation to the SAAG to ensure the appropriate application of legal processes in support of children and families.

The purpose of this chapter is to provide DFCS staff with applicable state and federal laws, the juvenile court process, other legal procedures and the legal partners involved in child welfare to support making decisions for preserving families and ensuring the safety, permanency and well-being of children.

Requirements

The Division of Family and Children Services (DFCS) will:

1. Seek court intervention to protect a child, when:
 - a. Access to the alleged maltreated child(ren) or the home cannot be gained to assess child safety.
 - b. A court order for either a physical examination, psychiatric, or psychological examination of a child or other children in the home is needed.
 -  This request may be made ex parte^[1].
 - c. A protective order is needed to restrain or otherwise control the conduct of a parent, guardian, or legal custodian or relative in accordance with policy 17.3 Legal: Court Orders and Placement Authority.
 - d. A temporary alternative to foster care (TAFC) order.
 - i. Authorize or continue any voluntary kinship agreement between the parent, guardian, legal custodian, and DFCS, pending further action by the court on a dependency petition for temporary guardianship or custody to the third party; or
 - ii. Obtain a temporary protective order to impose conditions or limitations on the conduct of the parent, guardian, or legal custodian while the child remains in the home. For the specified limitations or conditions see policy 17.3 Legal: Court Orders and Placement Authority.
 -  A TAFC order may be made ex parte.
 - e. Evidence indicates the child should not remain in the home or be returned home due to safety concerns and there are no alternative safety options for the child. Some of these situations may include, but are not limited to:

- i. A child has experienced life-threatening maltreatment or serious injury at the hands of a parent, guardian, or legal custodian.
 - ii. A child was intentionally abandoned by the parent, guardian, or legal custodian.
 - iii. A child steadfastly refuses to return to the parent, guardian, or legal custodian, and the return could cause significant physical or emotional harm to the child.
 - iv. The parent, guardian, or legal custodian steadfastly refuses to have a child returned to them.
 - v. The parent, guardian, or legal custodian has a significant mental illness, untreated illness, or significant mental disability that renders them unable to care for the child, and/or pose a safety threat to a child.
 - vi. A parent, guardian, or legal custodian has sexually abused the child, the offending parent, guardian, or legal custodian will have access to the child, and the non-offending parent, guardian, or legal custodian fails to protect the child.
 - vii. A parent, guardian, or legal custodian has caused the death of a child through maltreatment.
 - viii. The parent, guardian, or legal custodian has a chronic or severe drug or alcohol use disorder that has not been rehabilitated, rendering them unable to care for the child, and/or posing a threat to the safety of the child. This includes a parent of an infant born with prenatal substance or alcohol exposure, who is non-compliant with their substance or alcohol use disorder treatment plan, and the parent's substance or alcohol use poses a safety threat to the infant.
 - ix. A child requires medical treatment to prevent a serious illness, disability, or death, and the parent, guardian, or legal custodian is unwilling or refuses to seek medical treatment.
 - x. A non-offending parent, guardian, or legal custodian is unwilling or unable to protect a child from the offending parent, guardian, or legal custodian.
 - xi. The parent, guardian, or legal custodian is involved in repeated, serious criminal activity or has a conviction of a felony and imprisonment which has a demonstrable negative effect on the safety of the child.
 - xii. The parent, guardian, or legal custodian denies serious maltreatment and is unwilling to participate in the case plan.
 - xiii. The parent, guardian, or legal custodian's explanation for an injury or illness is inconsistent with the medical evaluation and/or assessment findings.
- f. When a parent, guardian, or legal custodian's moderate to high-risk substance or alcohol use is a contributing factor to child maltreatment (dependency) refer them to participate in the Family Treatment Court (FTC) when the minimum eligibility criteria for participation are met (refer to the Memorandum of Understanding) in the applicable FTC jurisdiction (see policy 19.24 Case Management: Family Treatment Court).

The dependency petition/complaint shall include the recommendation for FTC participation.

- 2. At its discretion, file a petition alleging dependency if DFCS has actual knowledge of the abuse, neglect, or abandonment of a child or is informed of the abuse, neglect, or abandonment and believes it to be true.

 Such petition shall not be accepted for filing unless the court or person authorized by the court has determined and endorsed on the petition that the filing of the petition is in the best interests of the public and the child.

3. At its discretion, file a dependency petition requesting placement authority for a child or requesting that temporary custody of a child be transferred to another party.

4. When a TAFC order is issued, if probable cause exists, and:

- a. The child was not removed from his or her home or if a child was removed from his or her home but was released from protective custody at the PPH, a petition alleging dependency shall be filed within 30 days of the PPH; or
- b. The child was removed from his or her home, and a petition alleging dependency shall be filed within five days of the PPH.

 The court may continue to impose the TAFC after the PPH.

5. Obtain approval of placement authority from the juvenile court when a child must be removed and placed in foster care.

6. Consult with the Special Assistant Attorney General (SAAG) prior to any scheduled juvenile court hearings (see Practice Guidance: Consultation with the SAAG).

7. Immediately inform the SAAG of any discovery requests to obtain direction on handling the request.

8. Adhere to the procedures and practices established by the juvenile court.

9. Request the court to appoint an attorney for:

- a. An alleged dependent child; and
- b. Any young adult receiving extended foster care services.

 An attorney will be appointed at all stages of the dependency proceedings. The appointment of the attorney shall be made as soon as practicable to ensure adequate representation of such child/young adult and in any event before the first court hearing that may substantially affect the interest of the child/young adult.

10. Adhere to the Indian Child Welfare Act (ICWA) in accordance with policy 1.6 Administration: Indian Child Welfare Act \(ICWA\) and Transfer of Responsibility for Placement and Care to a Tribal Agency regarding:

- a. Informing the court if there is a reason to know the child is a member of a federally recognized Indian tribe; or eligible for membership in a federally recognized Indian tribe and is the biological child of a member/citizen of a federally recognized Indian tribe or a member of a Georgia recognized tribe.
- b. Notification requirements for removal and termination proceedings.

11. Notify the court of a parent, guardian, or legal custodian's military service when the parent, guardian, or legal custodian is on active military duty and serving outside the state of the court that has jurisdiction over the legal proceeding.

For the purposes of Section 521 of the Service Members Civil Relief Act (SCRA), the term “state” includes the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, and Guam.

12. File a petition for dependency within five days of the child’s PPH when the child is not released from DFCS custody at this hearing. If the child was not removed from the home or was returned to the PPH, the petition shall be filed within 30 days of the PPH.

13. Attend all court hearings including:

- a. The PPH is held within 72 hours of the child’s placement into foster care.
- b. The adjudication hearing is scheduled no later than 10 days after the filing of the petition for dependency if the child is in foster care. If the child is not in foster care, the adjudication hearing shall be held no later than 60 days after the filing of the petition for dependency.

If the adjudication is not completed within 60 days of the removal, the dependency petition may be dismissed without prejudice.

c. The disposition hearing is held and completed within 30 days after the conclusion of the adjudication hearing, if not held in conjunction with the adjudication hearing.

d. Review hearings:

- i. The initial review is held within 75 days following a child’s removal from the home.
- ii. The subsequent periodic review is held four months following the initial review.

The Judicial Citizen Review Panel (JCRP) may conduct any periodic review as requested by the court.

iii. Subsequent review hearings consistent with federal law are held no less frequently than once every six months (see policy 17.2 Legal: Case Review/Permanency Plan Hearings).

e. The permanency plan hearing held:

- i. No later than 30 days after DFCS submits a non-reunification case plan to the court.
- ii. No later than nine months after the date the child is considered to have entered care, for a child under seven years of age at the time a petition for dependency is filed.
- iii. No later than 12 months after the date the child is considered to have entered care, for children seven years of age and older at the time a petition for dependency is filed.

For siblings removed at the same time and in which at least one child is under seven years of age at the time the dependency petition is filed, the permanency plan hearing shall be held no later than nine months after the children are considered to have entered foster care.

iv. At least every six months after the initial permanency plan hearing, as long as the child remains in care or more frequently as deemed necessary by the court until the court determines that such child’s permanency plan and goal have been achieved.

v. The Termination of Parental Rights (TPR) Hearing, if applicable (see Practice Guidance: Termination of Parental Rights Hearing).

14. Determine the date the child is considered to have entered foster care to be the date of the first judicial finding that the child has been subjected to child abuse or neglect or the date that is 60 days after the date on which the child is removed from his or her home, whichever is earlier (see Practice Guidance for guidance on calculating the time in foster care).
15. Conduct a diligent search for parents, relatives (including the parents of the child's siblings, when that parent has legal custody of such siblings), fictive kin, and others who have demonstrated an ongoing commitment to the child in accordance with policy 19.20 Case Management: Diligent Search.
16. Submit an updated diligent search report to the court at each periodic review hearing (see policy 19.20 Case Management: Diligent Search).
17. Submit a written report (case plan) to the court within 30 days of the removal and at each subsequent review of the disposition order.

A hearing to review the case plan shall be held if the parent, guardian, or legal custodian disagrees with a proposed case plan for reunification and exercises his or her right to request a hearing before the court within five days of the receipt of the plan (see policy 10.23 Foster Care: Case Planning).

18. At the permanency plan hearing for non-reunification:
 - a. Demonstrate, by clear and convincing evidence, that a reunification plan is not appropriate considering the child's health, safety, and need for permanency.
 - b. Notification to the court whether and when DFCS intends to file for TPR.

The court shall consider in-state and out-of-state permanent placement options for the child and incorporate a permanency plan for the child in the order from this hearing.

Procedures

Court Intervention

The Social Services Case Manager (SSCM) will:

1. Consider requesting a court hearing when:
 - a. The parent, guardian, or legal custodians fail to comply with critical elements of the case plan and exhibit continued diminished protective capacities, despite documentation reflecting that DFCS provided support and services necessary to achieve these critical elements.
 - b. A change of custody is recommended.
 - c. A change in the specific provisions of the court order is needed.
 - d. The outcomes of the case plan have been met, and it is appropriate to request to be relieved of custody/court-ordered supervision.
 - e. Other individual circumstances are identified and need to be brought to the court's attention.
2. Seek court intervention when the safety of a child cannot be assured and/or a caregiver is non-compliant and court intervention may be necessary to protect the child:

- a. In conjunction with the Social Services Supervisor (SSS) consult with the SAAG to determine whether there is a need to file a dependency complaint and/or petition either for custody of the child or TAFC.
 - b. Conduct a Family Team Meeting (FTM) or other family meeting prior to any court action, when possible, to notify the family of the impending court action and possible outcomes and to discuss any changes in the safety or case plans (see policy 19.3 Case Management: Solution-Focused Family Team Meetings).
 - c. Consult with the SAAG and request they file a dependency complaint and petition with the juvenile court when court action is being sought.
 - d. Afford the person against whom a protective order is directed due notice and an opportunity to be heard, prior to an order being granted by the court (accomplished by service of the petition as required by state law).
 - e. Request that a protective order be modified, extended, or terminated by the court as deemed necessary and in the best interest of the child.
3. When it is determined that a TAFC is needed to expedite legal intervention:
- a. In conjunction with the SSS, consult with the SAAG regarding the appropriateness of seeking a TAFC order. Prepare to present the following information in court or provide to the SAAG, if the TAFC will be obtained ex parte:
 - i. The reason DFCS is requesting a TAFC order;
 - ii. The approved Kinship Assessment (see Practice Guidance: Temporary Alternative to Foster Care and policy 22.3 Kinship: Kinship Assessment);
 - iii. Services and options to prevent placement that have been explored/provided to the family and the safety issues requiring legal intervention;
 - iv. The legal options being considered:
 1. Temporary Guardianship (see policy 22.11 Kinship: Guardianship in Child Protective Services);
 2. Temporary custody to a third party (see policy 22.12 Kinship: Temporary Custody to a Third Party in Child Protective Services); or
 3. Temporary protective order while the child remains in their home (see policy 17.3 Legal: Court Orders and Placement Authority).
 - b. Obtain and review the TAFC order.
 - c. Participate in the PPH hearing.
 - d. File a dependency petition when the court finds probable cause in the PPH to believe a child is a dependent child pending an adjudication hearing.
 - e. Prepare for the adjudication hearing in conjunction with the SAAG to discuss DFCS' recommendations and to confirm completion of any tasks ordered by the court. Document issuance of the TAFC court order in Georgia SHINES:
 - i. Update the Legal Action and Outcomes Detail page.
 - ii. Upload the TAFC order into External Documentation.
4. When the decision is made to remove the child:

- a. Consult with the SAAG and request they obtain authorization from the court or designated intake officer for DFCS to obtain placement authority for the child if law enforcement does not make the removal.

A verbal order may be issued by a juvenile court judge but must be followed by a written order that is obtained the first business day after the issuance of the verbal order. DFCS cannot remove children without court authorization.

- b. Provide the SAAG with all necessary and relevant supporting evidence and information pertaining to possible witnesses if the court requires a hearing or other sworn testimony/statement prior to authorizing the removal of the child.
- c. Obtain a copy of the ex parte removal order, if issued by the court, or “authorization” to take the child into custody.
- d. Document legal actions and outcomes following in Georgia SHINES:
 - i. Upload the authorization or order into External Documentation, if not uploaded via the Case Plan Reporting System (CPRS) interface.
 - ii. Custody Detail page.
 - iii. Legal Action and Outcomes Detail page.
 - iv. Legal Status page.
- e. File a dependency complaint if it was not filed to obtain authorization for placement authority.

A dependency action may be filed in the county in which the child legally resides or in the county where the child is present when the proceeding is commenced provided that the child is present in that county without his parent, guardian, or legal custodian or the acts underlying the dependency allegation are alleged to have occurred in that county. This is referred to as the venue. The court may transfer the proceedings to the county in which a child legally resides if the proceedings start in a different county (see policy 17.13 Legal: Court Transfer of Jurisdiction).

5. When the decision is made by the court to remove a child pursuant to a CHINS disposition or a disposition of delinquent act:
 - a. Consult the SAAG regarding the court’s request to attend the disposition hearing and to prepare for the hearing.
 - b. Attend the disposition hearing and be prepared to provide information to the court as to the availability of services for the child.
 - c. Obtain a copy of the removal order, if issued by the court, or “authorization” to take the child into custody.
 - d. Attend the preliminary protective hearing (PPH) not later than 72 hours after the child is placed in DFCS custody.
 - e. File the dependency petition, if dependency exists, in conjunction with the SSS and SAAG.

If there is a question about whether dependency exists, in conjunction with the SSS, SAAG, and County Director, staff with the Regional and District Director. The County, Regional, or District Director may consult with the Office of the General Counsel if needed.

f. Prepare for and attend the adjudication hearing to discuss DFCS' recommendations.

If the court finds the child dependent at the adjudication hearing, follow the dependency court procedures below.

g. Document legal actions and outcomes following in Georgia SHINES:

- i. Upload the court order(s) into External Documentation, if not uploaded via the Case Plan Reporting System (CPRS) interface.
- ii. Custody Detail page.
- iii. Legal Action and Outcomes Detail page.
- iv. Legal Status page.

Preparing for Court

Prior to any court hearing, the SSCM will:

1. Review the case record.
2. Staff with the SSS all available information that supports DFCS' position on a case.
3. Discuss the case plan/services with the family and family support team via a Family Team Meeting (FTM) or other family meetings (see policy 19.3 Case Management: Solution-Focused Family Team Meetings).
4. Develop a court report to present to the court, when necessary, summarizing:
 - a. The background of the case.
 - b. Services and/or steps taken to resolve the issues.
 - c. Progress toward completion of the case plan.
 - d. DFCS' recommendations, including visitation if applicable.
5. Consult with the SAAG prior to any upcoming hearing, if available:
 - a. Contact SAAG and request a consultation that will ensure timely preparation for the upcoming hearing.
 - b. Apprise SAAG of all the information.
 - c. All evidence, potential witnesses, and DFCS' recommendations.

Include the Court Appointed Special Advocate and Guardian Ad Litem (GAL), if appropriate based on consultation with the SAAG.

6. Notify the SAAG of the following, any time there is reason to know:
 - a. When either parent, guardian, or legal custodian is on active duty in the military, the SAAG can notify the court.
 - b. Whether there is reason to know the child is a member of a federally recognized Indian tribe; or eligible for membership in a federally recognized Indian tribe and is the biological child of a member/citizen of a federally recognized Indian tribe [see policy; or a member of a Georgia recognized tribe.

Juvenile Court Hearings

The SSCM will:

1. For the preliminary protective hearing (PPH):

- a. Staff the case with the SSS and SAAG prior to the hearing.
- b. Be prepared to provide testimony.
- c. Ensure a dependency petition is presented to the court within five calendar days of the PPH, if the court finds probable cause to believe that the child is dependent, and the judge orders the child to remain in foster care.
- d. Update the Legal Status and/or Legal Action and Outcomes Detail pages in Georgia SHINES within 72 hours of the hearing.

If the court finds probable cause to believe the child is dependent, but does not find that protective custody is necessary, then the court shall return the child to his parent, guardian, or legal custodian pending the hearing on the dependency petition.

2. For the adjudication hearing:

- a. Ensure a staffing occurs between the investigator, investigator's SSS, Permanency SSCM, Permanency SSS, and SAAG to discuss the evidence to be presented, witnesses needed, etc. prior to the hearing.
- b. Be prepared to provide testimony.
- c. Update the Legal Status and/or Legal Action and Outcomes Detail pages in Georgia SHINES based on the court findings, within 72 hours of the hearing.

Such findings become the basis of the initial case plan for reunification, including any findings of dependency as a result of alcohol or other substance abuse.

3. For the disposition hearing:

- a. Share the results of the Comprehensive Child and Family Assessment (CCFA) with the court, if available, to assist with the decision-making regarding the placement and needed services.
- b. Be prepared to present agency recommendations.
- c. Present the initial case plan to the court to be entered into the disposition order.

The initial case plan must be submitted to the court within 30 days of removal and at least 48 hours prior to the disposition hearing.

- d. Present the initial diligent search to be entered into the disposition order.

The initial diligent search must be submitted to the court within 30 days of removal (see policy 19.20 Case Management: Diligent Search).

- e. Update the Legal Status and/or Legal Action and Outcomes Detail pages in Georgia SHINES within 72 hours of the hearing.

4. For a review hearing or permanency plan hearing:
 - a. Staff the case with the SSS and SAAG to discuss the evidence to be presented, witnesses needed, etc.
 - b. Submit a case plan to the court five days prior to the permanency plan hearing (see policy 10.23 Foster Care: Case Planning) including:
 - i. A recommended permanency plan for the child.
 - ii. An estimation of when the plan will be achieved.
 - iii. Documentation of the reasonable efforts taken by DFCS to finalize the permanent placement of the child.
 - c. Submit an updated diligent search to the court at each periodic review hearing (see policy 19.20 Case Management: Diligent Search).
 - d. Be prepared to provide testimony.
 - e. Request the court review the following, if a permanency plan hearing is being held on a case where voluntary surrenders were obtained:
 - i. The circumstances of the child.
 - ii. Child-specific recruitment strategies DFCS has utilized, such as the use of state, regional, and national adoption exchanges and/or electronic exchanges.
 - iii. Any other steps taken by DFCS to pursue a permanent home for the child.
 - f. Update the Legal Status and/or Legal Action and Outcomes Detail pages in Georgia SHINES within 72 hours of the hearing.

The SSS will:

1. Review the case record including any documented evidence to help determine whether:
 - a. Court intervention is warranted;
 - b. The type of legal intervention needed to protect a child (i.e., protective order, TAFC, custody);
 - c. Sufficient evidence exists to support:
 - i. Present or impending danger.
 - ii. Each allegation of the dependency petition.
 - iii. The case plan or permanency plan to be considered by the court.
 - d. Services were provided to prevent foster care placement; and
 - e. ICWA notification requirements when the child is an Indian child as defined in ICWA.
2. The initial diligent search is completed and submitted to the court within 30 days of the child's entry into foster care, and an updated diligent search is completed and submitted prior to each periodic review hearing.
3. Assist the SSCM in:
 - a. Determining DFCS' recommendations to the court, including whether visits with a child in DFCS custody need to be supervised (see Practice Guidance: Best Interest Determination).

- b. Preparing for court testimony.
4. Staff the case with the SSCM and the SAAG prior to any court hearing (see policy 19.6 Case Management: Supervisor Staffing; also see Procedures on Preparing for Court).
5. Attend court hearings, as needed, to provide guidance and support to the SSCM.
6. Verify documentation of legal actions in Georgia SHINES and that court orders and other legal documents were uploaded to External Documentation.

Practice Guidance

Preserving and strengthening families to prevent the unnecessary removal of children from their homes is an integral part of permanency planning. It recognizes that most children's needs for permanency are met by the continuity of family relationships. In many ways, the court acts as a "gatekeeper" for children entering and exiting the foster care system. Consequently, DFCS and the court must work in partnership and share accountability in ensuring permanency at the earliest possible time for children. To enhance the partnership with the court and ensure the best outcomes for children and families, the SSCM should be knowledgeable about the following:

1. The rights, roles, and responsibilities of the County Department when serving as custodian of a child in foster care.
2. Procedural safeguards for the parent, guardian, or legal custodians of children in foster care.
3. The juvenile court process, including courtroom etiquette.
4. The applicable federal laws and sections of the Official Code of Georgia (O.C.G.A.).
5. Court order requirements for title IV-E funding.
6. Timeframes for custody and other legal actions.

Court Intervention to Protect Children

Determining when to initiate juvenile court action is one of the most difficult and important decisions for DFCS staff. Involving the court too quickly may be a misuse of the authority granted to DFCS and the court. Not involving the authority and protection of the court when a child is not safe or is at significant risk may constitute a failure to adequately protect the child and a failure to discharge the authority given to DFCS. Therefore, when making the decision whether to pursue court intervention, the health, and safety of the child is the paramount concern.

Some caregivers cannot or will not protect their child or ensure the child's needs are met; and despite reasonable efforts to remedy or improve the circumstances leading to the abuse or neglect, a child may remain in imminent danger. When making critical decisions about whether to seek court action to remove a child from the home as the only alternative for the child to be protected and safe, a child's right to protection and safety outweighs a caregiver's right to the child.

Consultation with the SAAG

The SAAG provides legal representation for DFCS. To provide competent legal representation, the SAAG must communicate with DFCS staff to learn the facts and details of the case. Conversely, this communication helps DFCS staff understand the court processes, procedures, and expectations. Consultation with the SAAG increases the likelihood of achieving the expected outcome in court. It is recommended that staff consult with the SAAG, as early as possible, prior to scheduled court hearings (with an exception for emergency court hearings or preliminary protective hearings). Early and consistent involvement of the SAAG can help to increase staff preparedness for court and improve overall outcomes for families.

Child's Attorney

The court shall appoint an attorney for an alleged dependent child before the first court hearing which may substantially affect the interest of the child to ensure the child's interests are adequately represented. An attorney for an alleged dependent child may serve as a child's GAL unless or until there is a conflict of interest between the attorney's duty to the child as the child's attorney and the attorney's opinion of the best interest of the child as GAL. A child's attorney owes the child the duties imposed by the laws of Georgia in an attorney-client relationship. Neither a child nor a representative of a child may waive a child's right to an attorney in a dependency proceeding

The court shall appoint an attorney for any young adult receiving extended foster care services at all stages of proceedings. The appointment shall be made as soon as practicable to ensure adequate representation of the young adult and in any event before the first court hearing that may substantially affect the interest of the young adult. If the young adult does not have an attorney, a young adult shall be informed prior to any hearing of their right to have legal representation and shall be given an opportunity to:

1. Obtain an attorney of his or her own choice;
2. Obtain a court-appointed attorney at the court's discretion; or
3. Waive the right to an attorney.

Court Appointed Special Advocate (CASA)/Guardian ad Litem (GAL)

In dependency hearings, an attorney CASA or both may be appointed as the child's GAL to ensure the child's interests are adequately represented. See policy 17.10 Legal: Court Appointed Special Advocate \(CASA\)/Guardian Ad Litem \(GAL\).

Parent's/Guardian's/Legal Custodian's Attorney

Whenever a parent, guardian, or legal custodian is represented by an attorney, the County Department shall recognize the implications of the attorney-client relationship. The SSCM needs to ensure the SAAG is informed of the attorney representing the parent, guardian, or legal custodian. If the parent, guardian, or legal custodian's attorney is appointed by the court, the attorney cannot be relieved of responsibility until the court issues an order indicating he/she is no longer the attorney of record. If an attorney has entered an appearance in the juvenile court, he/she remains the parent's attorney for the matter until the court has permitted the attorney to withdraw by appropriate order.

If the parent, guardian, or legal custodian seeks to bring an attorney as his/her representative to any conference or review held at the County Department or other location, the County Department shall consult with the SAAG regarding the attorney's presence and whether the SAAG should also be present.

Party

A party means the state, a child, parent, guardian, legal custodian, or other person subject to any judicial proceeding under Chapter 11 of Title 15 of the Official Code of Georgia. However, for CHINS and delinquency actions, only the child and the state shall be a party. A party to a hearing has the right to:

1. Be present.
2. Be heard.
3. Present evidence material to the proceedings.
4. Cross-examine witnesses.
5. Examine pertinent court files and records.
6. Appeal the orders of the court.

All children subject to a dependency action are parties. The court may exclude a child from any part or parts of any proceeding if the court determines that it is not in the child's best interest to be present. The attorney for an excluded child shall not be excluded from the proceedings.

Service Members Civil Relief Act (SCRA)

Under the provisions of SCRA, a person on active-duty military service, or someone on his/her behalf, may petition the court for a stay of the proceeding if he/she feels his/her military service materially affects his/her ability to defend himself/herself.

The court does not automatically grant each request for a stay; only when it is determined that the parent, guardian, or legal custodian's ability to defend himself/herself is materially affected by military service will a stay be granted. The court may, on its own motion, postpone the proceeding for the presence of the parent, guardian, or legal custodian.

Discovery

Prior to any court proceedings, a party may request information from another party to assist them in the presentation of their case in court. Although state law dictates that upon written request a party to a proceeding shall have full access to certain information for inspection, copying, or photographing, these requests are usually handled by the attorneys (i.e., SAAG, parent, guardian, or legal custodian's attorney, child's attorney, etc.) in the proceedings. If DFCS receives a written request from the attorney for a parent or child in a dependency case for records or information, DFCS should immediately notify the SAAG of the request. In order to meet the discovery requirements of the Juvenile Court Code, the SSCM should immediately request to staff the case with the SAAG if the following information is requested:

1. The names and telephone numbers of each witness likely to be called to testify at the hearing by another party.
2. A copy of any formal written statement made by the child or any witness concerning the testimony of the witness that a party intends to call as a witness at the hearing.
3. Any scientific or other report that is intended to be introduced at a hearing or that pertains to physical evidence that is intended to be introduced unless a court order or written consent from the appropriate person is required.

4. Any drug screen concerning the child or his/her parent, guardian, or legal custodian.
5. Any case plan concerning the child or his or her parent, guardian, or legal custodian.
6. Any visitation scheduled is related to the child.
7. Photographs and any physical evidence that are intended to be introduced at any hearing.
8. Copies of any police reports that are included in the basis for the petition.
9. Any other relevant evidence not requiring consent or a court order.

The SAAG will provide directions to DFCS concerning the provision of information or records, including responses to discovery requests, to a child or parent's attorney while a dependency case is pending in juvenile court.

Upon presentation of a court order or written consent from the appropriate person permitting access, any party shall have access to the following:

1. Any psychological, developmental, physical, mental, or emotional health or other assessments of the child or his/her family, parent, guardian, or legal custodian.
2. Any school record concerning the child.
3. Any medical record concerning the child.
4. Transcriptions, recordings, and summaries of any oral statement of the child or of any witness, except child abuse reports that are confidential.
5. Any FTM report or multidisciplinary team meeting report concerning the child or his/her parent, guardian, or legal custodian.
6. Supplemental police reports, if any, regarding an occurrence that is included in the basis of the petition.
7. Immigration records concerning the child.

If DFCS receives a court order providing access to any of the above, immediately staff the request with the SAAG.

Any request for discovery shall be complied with no later than five days from receipt of the request or 72 hours prior to any hearing unless the timing of the request does not allow the party to meet these timeframes. If a request for discovery is made fewer than 48 hours prior to the hearing, the response should be produced in a timely manner. DFCS shall immediately inform the SAAG of all discovery requests and the SAAG should assist the County Department with all discovery requests.

Date Child is Considered to Have Entered Foster Care

When a child is alleged to be a dependent child, the date such child is considered to have entered foster care shall be the date of the first judicial finding that such child has been subjected to child abuse or neglect or the date that is 60 days after the date on which such child is removed from his or her home, whichever is earlier.

In order to meet the time frames for permanency plan hearings required under Title IV-E rules and regulations, DFCS staff is advised to schedule permanency plan hearings using the removal date as the beginning point from which the permanency plan hearing time limits are calculated. As an example, an initial permanency plan hearing that must be held no later than 12 months from the time a child is considered to have entered foster care would be scheduled 12 months from the date the child was removed from the home. This practice will ensure that hearings are held within the time limits required by federal law.

Emergency Removal

DFCS does not have the authority to remove a child without the written consent of the parent, guardian or legal custodian or order of the court, except in short-term emergency care situations (see policies 3.21 Special Circumstance: Intakes Involving Short Term Emergency Care \(Emergency or Illness\); 3.22 Special Circumstance: Intakes Involving Short Term Emergency Care \(Human Trafficking\); 20.8 Special Circumstances: Short Term Emergency Care \(Emergency or Illness\); and 20.9 Special Circumstances: Short Term Emergency Care \(Human Trafficking\)). In situations where the life of a child is in immediate danger because of maltreatment or the child is a victim of trafficking for labor or sexual servitude and removal must take place without a court order, removal must be completed by law enforcement officials or by a duly authorized officer of the court.

Any law enforcement officer has the authority and responsibility to take necessary action to protect children from immediate danger. This authority allows the officer to take a child into custody without a court order. If immediate medical treatment is needed, the officer is further authorized to take the child directly to a medical facility, giving notice of this action promptly to juvenile court and DFCS.

If a law enforcement officer removes a child, the officer should not expect that DFCS will take placement responsibility for that child without first having a judge's signed order or the signed order of a juvenile court intake officer. If any law enforcement agency leaves a child at a DFCS office without having obtained the required legal documentation, DFCS shall immediately initiate procedures to obtain an emergency custody order.

Prior to authorizing the removal of a child from their home or ordering a child to remain in protective custody, the court shall consider whether there are reasonable alternatives to the removal of the child and placement into foster care.

Temporary Alternatives to Foster Care (TAFC)

The juvenile court may order a TAFC to prevent or reduce the trauma of removal. This may include authorizing or continuing any voluntary agreement between the parent, guardian or legal custodian and DFCS to allow a child to be cared for by persons with whom the child has an existing bond or attachment; or other actions to ensure the safety of the child pending further action by the court on the dependency complaint or petition (see policy 17.3 Legal: Court Orders and Placement Authority Practice Guidance: Temporary Alternatives to Foster Care [TAFC] Orders for the actions that a court may order in conjunction with a TAFC).

TAFC may be ordered by the court ex parte, prior to or following a PPH. When entering an order for a TAFC authorizing or continuing any voluntary agreement between the parent, guardian, or legal custodian and DFCS for the child to be cared for by a relative or fictive kin, the court shall order a preliminary assessment of the person who is to provide care for the child by a probation officer, or other individual or agency as the court may designate. DFCS utilizes the Kinship Assessment to meet the requirements of the preliminary assessment (see policy 22.3 Kinship: Kinship Assessment). The preliminary assessment shall be completed no later than 72 hours after the time the order is entered. If the order is entered on a weekend, the preliminary assessment may be completed no later than five days after the order has been entered.

The preliminary assessment shall include at a minimum:

1. A walk-through of such a person's residence to identify safety hazards;
2. An in-state criminal record check of the relative or fictive kin and all other adults living in the residence;
3. A search of the Georgia Sex Offender Registry for the relative or fictive kin and all adults living in the home; and
4. A search of data provided electronically to the public by the Department of Community Supervision and the Department of Corrections for information on the relative or fictive kin and all adults living in the home.

Best Interest Determination

The SSCM shall consider the "best interests" of the child whenever making recommendations to the court. Whenever a best interest determination is required (at any juvenile court proceeding), the court shall consider and evaluate all the factors affecting the best interests of the child based on the child's age and developmental needs. Such factors shall include:

1. The physical safety and welfare of the child, including food, shelter, health, and clothing.
2. The love, affection, bonding, and emotional ties existing between the child and each parent or person available to care for the child.
3. The love, affection, bonding, and emotional ties existing between the child and his/her siblings, half-siblings and stepsiblings, and the residence of the other children.
4. The child's need for permanence, including the child's need for stability and continuity of relationships with his/her parents, siblings, other relatives, and any other person who has provided significant care to the child.
5. The child's sense of attachment, including his/her sense of security and familiarity, and continuity of affection for the child.
6. The capacity and disposition of each parent or person available to care for the child, to give him/her love, affection, and guidance, and to continue the education and rearing of the child.
7. The home environment of each parent or person available to care for the child is related to the child's nurturance and safety.
8. The stability of the family unit and the support systems within the community to benefit the child.
9. The mental and physical health of all individuals involved.
10. The home, school, and community history of the child as well as any health or educational special needs of the child.
11. The child's community ties, including church, school, and friends.

12. The child's background and ties, including familial, cultural, and religious.
13. The least disruptive placement alternative for the child.
14. The uniqueness of every family and child.
15. The risks of entering and being in substitute care.
16. The child's wishes and long-term goals.
17. The preferences of the people available to care for the child.
18. Any evidence of family violence, substance abuse, criminal history, or sexual, mental, or physical child abuse in any current, past, or considered home for such child.
19. Any recommendation by a court-appointed custody evaluator or Guardian Ad Litem (GAL).
20. Any other factors considered by the court to be relevant and proper to its determination.

Court Ordered Visitation

When a child is removed from his/her home, the court will order reasonable visitation that is consistent with the age and developmental needs of a child if the court finds it is in the child's best interests. State law provides that there be a presumption that visitation will be unsupervised unless the court finds that unsupervised visitation is not in the child's best interests. Thus, the court's order must specify the frequency, duration, and terms of visitation, including whether visitation will be supervised or unsupervised. DFCS has a responsibility to make recommendations to the court initially and on an ongoing basis, including whether visitation should be supervised or unsupervised. Information that must be considered includes, but is not limited to:

1. CPS history and prior Permanency (Foster Care) history;
2. Current allegations;
3. Current family conditions;
4. Sufficiency of the safety plan;
5. Caregivers' intent and attitudes towards the support of the safety plan;
6. Progress towards the enhancement of caregiver protective capacities; and
7. The best interest of the child including safety, permanency, and well-being.

Within 30 days of the court finding that there is a lack of substantial progress toward completion of a case plan, the court shall review the terms of visitation and determine whether the terms continue to be appropriate for a child or whether the terms need to be modified.

Preliminary Protective Hearing (PPH)

The purpose of the PPH is to allow the court to determine whether there is probable cause to believe a child is a dependent child and whether protective custody of a child is necessary to prevent abuse or neglect pending the hearing on the dependency petition. At the PPH, the court informs the parties of:

1. The contents of the complaint.
2. The nature of the proceedings.

3. The parties' due process rights, including the parties' right to:
 - a. An attorney or an appointed attorney if they are indigent persons;
 - b. Call witnesses and to cross-examine all witnesses;
 - c. Present evidence; and
 - d. A trial by the court on the allegations in the complaint or petition.

At the PPH, the court may:

1. Dismiss the case and return the child to the parent, guardian, or legal custodian;
2. Return the child to the parent, guardian, or legal custodian pending the hearing on the dependency petition. The court may also order a temporary alternative to foster care if it determines that such an order is necessary to prevent abuse or neglect prior to the adjudicatory hearing and to prevent the need for the child to be placed in foster care; or
3. Place the child in the temporary custody of DFCS pending the hearing on the dependency petition. DFCS shall prioritize temporary placement with an adult who is a relative or fictive kin, provided that the individual has met DFCS' requirements for relative placement and the placement is in the best interest of the child.

The judge will hear limited testimony from the parties to determine whether there is probable cause to believe that the allegations of dependency are true. The court may consider any evidence, including hearsay evidence, that the court finds to be relevant, reliable, and necessary to determine the needs of an alleged dependent child or to make determinations or findings.

The first order signed by a judge sanctioning the removal of the child or ordering a temporary alternative to foster care must contain the language and finding that "continuation in his or her home would be contrary to the welfare of the child" or "removal is in the best interest of the child". A judicial determination shall be made at this time as to whether DFCS has made "reasonable efforts to preserve and reunify families".

Adjudication Hearing

The purpose of the adjudication hearing is to determine whether the allegations in the petition are true and if the child is "dependent" under Georgia law. At the adjudication hearing, the issue is whether the child is a dependent child. The judge may not allow hearsay evidence; thus, people with firsthand knowledge of the matter must personally testify. DFCS bears the burden of proof that the allegations in the petition filed are true by clear and convincing evidence. If the court finds the allegations in the petition are true, it should make both specific findings of fact and conclusions of law. If the child is found to be dependent, the court may immediately, or within 30 days, make a disposition as well as make a finding whether such dependency is a result of substance abuse by the child's parent, guardian, or legal custodian. A judicial determination must be made, at this time and in court orders for later hearings, as to whether DFCS is making "reasonable efforts to preserve and reunify families". If the child is not found dependent, the court shall dismiss the petition and order the child discharged from foster care or other restrictions previously ordered.

The following persons shall have a right to participate in the adjudication hearing:

1. The parent, guardian, or legal custodian of the child, unless such person cannot be located or

- fails to appear despite being notified;
- 2. The attorney and guardian ad litem of the child;
- 3. The child, unless the court finds that being present is not in the child's best interests;
- 4. The attorneys for the parent, guardian, or legal custodian of the child;
- 5. The assigned DFCS employee; and
- 6. The SAAG for DFCS.

The following persons may also be present at an adjudication hearing if the court finds it is in the child's best interest:

1. Any relative or other persons who have demonstrated an ongoing commitment to a child and with whom he/she might be placed;
2. DFCS employees involved with the case;
3. An advocate as requested by the parent, guardian, or legal custodian of the child; and
4. Other people who have knowledge of or an interest in the welfare of the child.

Disposition Hearing

The disposition hearing is often held immediately following the adjudication hearing, but the court may schedule it at a later date. The purpose of the disposition hearing is to determine the needs of the child who has been adjudicated dependent and the most appropriate disposition for the child now that he/she has been found "dependent." The court may consider any evidence, including hearsay evidence, that the court finds to be relevant, reliable, and necessary to determine the needs of a child adjudicated as a dependent child and the most appropriate case plan and permanency plan (see policy 17.3 Legal: Court Orders and Placement Authority). At the conclusion of the disposition hearing, the court shall set the time and date for the first periodic review hearing and the permanency plan hearing.

Before determining the appropriate disposition, the court shall receive, not less than 48 hours prior to the disposition hearing, the following in evidence:

1. The social study report (usually the Comprehensive Child and Family Assessment [CCFA]), if the court directs as discussed in Practice Guidance: Social Study; and
2. The child's proposed written case plan (including the WTLF if the child is 14 years old or older).
3. The completed diligent search.

 If the court elects to hold the disposition hearing in conjunction with the adjudication hearing, timeframes for submitting the initial case plan, social study, and diligent search will be shortened. Thus, the SSCM will need to ensure the case plan and social study are completed and submitted to the court at least 48 hours prior to the disposition hearing and the diligent search is completed before the disposition hearing.

The court shall also consider:

1. Any study or evaluation made by the GAL.

2. Any psychological, medical, developmental, or educational study or evaluation of the child.
3. Other relevant evidence, including, but not limited to, the willingness of the caregiver to provide permanency for the child if reunification is not successful.

Prior to a disposition hearing and upon request, the parties and their attorneys shall be given an opportunity to examine any written report received by the court. Portions of written reports may be withheld by the court. Parties and their attorneys shall be given the opportunity to dispute written reports and to cross-examine individuals making the reports.

The court may make any of the following orders of disposition or combination of dispositions best suited to the protection and physical, emotional, mental, and moral welfare of the child:

1. Permit the child to remain with his or her parents, guardian, or legal custodian, with or without conditions by the court, including supervision.
2. Grant or transfer temporary legal custody to any of the following persons or entities:
 - a. Any individual, including a biological parent, who has been studied and has been determined to be qualified to receive and care for the child, provided that priority placement is given to an adult who is a relative or fictive kin;
 - b. An agency or other private organization licensed or legally authorized to receive and provide care for a child;
 - c. Any public agency authorized by law to receive and provide care for the child except the Department of Juvenile Justice (DJJ), the Department of Behavioral Health and Developmental Disabilities (DBHDD); or
 - d. An individual in another state, with or without supervision, pursuant to the Interstate Compact on the Placement of Children (see policy 15.6 Interstate Compact on the Placement of Children \(ICPC\): Court Jurisdiction Cases and Other ICPC Components).
3. Transfer jurisdiction of the child in compliance with ICPC.
4. Order the child and his/her parent, guardian, or legal custodian to participate in counseling or other services as determined by the court.
5. Order the parent, guardian, or legal custodian of the child to participate in a court-approved educational or counseling program designed to contribute to the ability of the parent, guardian, or legal custodian to provide proper care and supervision of the child including, but not limited to, parenting classes.
6. Order DFCS to implement and the parent, guardian, or legal custodian to cooperate with any court-approved plan.
7. Order temporary child support.

If a child is adjudicated as a dependent child and the dependency is found to have been the result of substance abuse by his or her parent, guardian, or legal custodian and the court orders the transfer of temporary legal custody of such child, the court shall be authorized to further order that legal custody of such child may not be transferred back to his or her parent, guardian, or legal custodian unless such parent, guardian, or legal custodian:

1. Undergoes substance abuse treatment and random substance abuse screenings and those screenings remain negative for a period of no less than 12 consecutive months; or

2. Successfully completes programming through a family treatment court division.

Permanency Plan Hearing

The purpose of the permanency planning hearing is to determine the future permanent legal status of each child in DFCS custody. The permanency plan adopted by the court is entered into an order. The case plan developed to achieve the adopted permanency plan is monitored at subsequent permanency plan hearings and should result in the child's timely exit from foster care into a safe, permanent home. Both federal and state statutes govern the time frames in which permanency plan hearings must be held (see policy 17.2 Legal: Case Review/Permanency Plan Hearings).

Termination of Parental Rights Hearing

The termination of parental rights hearing is conducted within 90 days of the date the TPR petition is filed. In all TPR proceedings, the standard of proof is by clear and convincing evidence. When parental rights are terminated, there is the expectation that the child will achieve permanency through adoption. To make sure that agency efforts are directed toward achieving this outcome, both federal and state law require certain status reports, hearings, and case plan documentation as a way to provide judicial oversight of agency efforts to place the child in an adoptive home (see policy 17.11 Legal: Termination of Parental Rights).

Social Study

If the allegations of the dependency petition are admitted or after the child is adjudicated dependent, the court may direct a person to complete a written social study and report. In most situations, the CCFA will serve as the social study for the case. A social study shall include, but not be limited to, a factual discussion of the following:

1. The plan for reunification and for achieving permanency for the child if reunification efforts fail.
2. Whether it is in the best interest of the child to grant reasonable visitation rights to his/her other relatives to maintain and strengthen the child's family relationships.
3. Whether the child has siblings under the court's jurisdiction, and if so:
 - a. The nature of the relationship between the child and his/her siblings.
 - b. Whether the siblings were raised together in the same home and whether they have shared significant common experiences or have existing strong bonds.
 - c. Whether the child expresses a desire to visit or live with his/her siblings and whether ongoing contact is in the child's best interest.
 - d. The appropriateness of developing and maintaining sibling relationships.
 - e. If siblings are not placed together, why they are not placed together, the efforts being made to place them together, or why those efforts are not appropriate.
 - f. If siblings are not placed together, the frequency and nature of visitation with siblings.
 - g. The impact of the sibling relationship on the child's placement and planning for legal permanence.
4. The appropriateness of a placement with a relative.

5. Whether a caregiver desires and is willing to provide permanency for the child if reunification is not successful.

Requirements

The Division of Family and Children Services (DFCS) will:

1. In collaboration with the juvenile court have a case review system that meets the federal requirements of Title IV-E and ensures that:
 - a. A review of each child’s status is made no less frequently than once every six months either by a court or by an administrative review to:
 - i. Determine the safety of the child and the continuing need for and appropriateness of the placement;

- ii. Determine the extent of compliance with the case plan;
- iii. Determine the extent of progress made toward alleviating or mitigating the causes necessitating the placement; and
- iv. Project a likely date by which the child may be returned and safely maintained at home or placed for adoption or legal guardianship;
- v. For a child for whom another planned permanent living arrangement (APPLA) has been determined as the permanency plan, determine the steps DFCS is taking to ensure the child's foster family home or childcare institution is following the reasonable and prudent parent standard and to ascertain whether the child has regular, ongoing opportunities to engage in age or developmentally appropriate activities;

DFCS has not implemented qualified residential treatment programs (QRTP), therefore provisions for case reviews of children placed in a QRTP will be incorporated at such time the program has been implemented.

- b. If an administrative review is conducted instead of a case review, the following requirements will be met:
 - i. The review will be open to the participation of the parents of the child;
 - ii. The review will be conducted by a panel of appropriate persons, at least one of whom is not responsible for the case management of, or delivery of services to either the child or the parents who are the subject of the review.
- 2. Inform the court if there is reason to know the child is a member of a federally recognized Indian tribe, or eligible for membership in a federally recognized Indian tribe and is the biological child of a member/citizen of a federally recognized Indian tribe (see policy 1.6 Administration: Indian Child Welfare Act \(ICWA\) and Transfer of Responsibility for Placement and Care to a Tribal Agency).
- 3. Conduct a formal evaluation of all cases at least two weeks prior to any initial or subsequent periodic review or permanency plan hearing.
- 4. Utilize DFCS panel case reviews only when the child is no longer subject to permanency plan hearings by the court to ensure the child's case is reviewed every six months.
- 5. Participate in all case reviews/permanency hearings including:
 - a. The initial review conducted by the court within 75 days following a child's removal from the home;
 - b. The periodic review conducted by the court or the Judicial Citizen Review Panel (JCRP) within 4 months following the initial review;

The JCRP may conduct any other periodic review as requested by the court.

- c. Any subsequent review hearings the court shall schedule at its discretion;
- d. A review when a child is placed pursuant to a permanency plan of adoption following a termination of parental rights and the adoption petition is not filed within six months following the disposition order.

If at any review subsequent to the initial 75-day review the court finds that there is a lack of substantial progress towards completion of the case plan, the court shall order DFCS to revise the case plan and select a permanency plan other than reunification or add a concurrent plan within 14 days of such review.

6. Submit a revised case plan to the court within 14 calendar days of the review in which the court finds there has not been substantial progress toward completion of the case plan and orders DFCS to revise the case plan and select a permanency plan other than reunification or add a concurrent plan (see policy 10.23 Foster Care: Case Planning).

The court shall review and adopt the revised case plan, as submitted or as amended, within 45 days of the review or at a previously scheduled hearing.

7. Notify the court, at each review hearing, whether and when DFCS intends to proceed with the termination of parental rights.
8. Submit an updated diligent search to the court at each periodic review hearing (see policy 19.20 Case Management: Diligent Search).
9. Submit a written report to the court recommending a permanency plan at least five days prior to a permanency plan hearing.

A thoroughly completed case plan should meet the requirements of a written report recommending a permanency plan (see Practice Guidance: Written Report for Permanency Plan Hearings).

10. Ensure written notification of the permanency plan hearing and submission of the recommended permanency plan for the court's consideration is provided at least 72 hours prior to the permanency plan hearing to the following:
 - a. The child;
 - b. The parent, guardian, or legal custodian;
 - c. The child's attorney;
 - d. The Guardian Ad Litem (GAL);
 - e. Foster parents, pre-adoptive parents, kinship caregivers, or other placement resources (see policy 17.8 Legal: Caregiver's Right to be Notified and Heard); and
 - f. Other parties.
11. Provide documentation to the court of the compelling reason for the alternate plan if DFCS concludes, after considering reunification, adoption, legal guardianship, or permanent placement with a fit and willing relative, that the most appropriate permanency plan for a child is placement in another planned permanent living arrangement (APPLA).
12. Document in the case plan presented at each permanency plan hearing held in the case of any child for whom APPLA is the permanency plan:
 - a. The intensive, ongoing, and, as of the date of the hearing, unsuccessful efforts made to return the child home or secure a placement for the child with a fit and willing relative (including adult siblings), a legal guardian, or an adoptive parent, including through efforts that use search technology (such as social media) to find biological family members for the children;
 - b. The steps DFCS is taking to ensure the child's foster family home or child care institution is fol- lowing the reasonable and prudent parent standard; and

- c. The steps DFCS is taking to ensure the child has regular, ongoing opportunities to engage in age and developmentally-appropriate activities (including by consulting with the child in an age-appropriate manner about the opportunities of the child to participate in the activities).*

DFCS has not implemented the qualified residential treatment program (QRTP), therefore provisions for permanency plan hearings of children placed in a QRTP will be incorporated at such time the program has been implemented.

13. Participate in permanency plan hearings held for all children in foster care under the responsibility of the state, including children for whom DFCS claims federal reimbursement for the costs of voluntary foster care maintenance payments. Ensure a permanency plan hearing:
 - a. Determines the permanency plan for a child including whether and, if applicable, when a child will be returned to the parent or placed for adoption, whether DFCS will file a petition for termination of parental rights (TPR), or a child will be referred to legal guardianship, or only in the case of a child who has attained 16 years of age (in cases where DFCS has documented to the court a compelling reason for determining, as of the date of the hearing, that it would not be in the best interest of the child to return home, be referred for TPR or be placed for adoption, with a fit and willing relative or a legal guardian) placed in another planned permanent living arrangement (APPLA);*
 - b. Considers in-state/Tribal service area and out-of-state/Tribal service area placement options (in the case of a child who will not be returned to the parent);*
 - c. Determines whether the out-of-state/Tribal service area placement continues to be appropriate and in the best interests of the child (in the case of a child placed out of the State/Tribal service area in which the home of the parent(s) of the child is located);*
 - d. Determines the services needed to assist the child in making the transition from foster care to successful adulthood (in the case of a child who has attained 14 years of age);*
 - e. Applies procedural safeguards to ensure the court conducts the hearing:*
 - i. Consult, in an age-appropriate manner, with the child regarding the proposed permanency plan or transition plan for the child; and*
 - ii. Ask the child about their desired permanency plan (for any child with a goal of APPLA); and*
 - iii. Makes a judicial determination explaining why, as of the date of the hearing, APPLA is the best permanency plan for the child, and the compelling reasons why it continues to not be in the best interest of the child to return home, be placed for adoption, be placed with a legal guardian, or be placed with a fit and willing relative (for any child with a goal of APPLA);*
 - iv. Determines if the permanency plan developed for a child that has attained 14 years of age, and any revision or addition to the plan, is developed in consultation with the child and, at the option of the child, with not more than 2 members of the permanency planning team who are selected by the child and who are not a foster parent of, or case manager for, the child, except that DFCS may reject an individual so selected by the child if the agency has good cause to believe that the individual would not act in the best interests of the child, and one individual so selected by the child may be designated to be the child's advisor and, a* necessary advocate, with respect to the application of the reasonable and prudent parent standard to the child.

- f. Applies procedural safeguards with respect to parental rights pertaining to the removal of a child from the home of his/her parents to a change in the child's placement, and any determination affecting visitation privileges of parents.
- g. Is held within 30 days of a court's determination that reasonable efforts to return a child home are not required unless the requirements of the permanency plan hearing are fulfilled at the hearing in which the court determines reasonable efforts to reunify a child and family are not required.
- h. Takes place within 12 months of the date the child is considered to have entered foster care [as defined within the meaning of 475(5)(F)] and not less frequently than every 12 months thereafter during the continuation of foster care. Georgia law requires:
 - i. A permanency plan hearing is to be held within nine months of the date the child is considered to have entered foster care for children under seven years of age at the time the dependency petition is filed (and any siblings that enter care at the same time);
 - ii. A permanency plan hearing must be held no later than 12 months after a child seven years of age or older is considered to have entered foster care;

If a sibling group enters care at the same time and at least one member of the group is under seven years of age at the time the dependency petition is filed, the permanency plan hearing for the entire sibling group shall be held no later than nine months after the children are considered to have entered foster care (see policy 17.1 Legal: The Juvenile Court Process Practice Guidance regarding calculating timeframes).

- iii. Subsequent permanency plan hearings shall be held at least every six months after the initial permanency plan hearing or more frequently as deemed necessary by the court.

A review compliant with federal case review requirements shall be completed as part of every permanency plan hearing.

- i. Makes judicial findings of reasonable efforts to finalize the permanency plan; however, this finding must be made within 12 months of the date the child is considered to have entered foster care.
- j. Conducted by an administrative body, appointed, or approved by the court, applies the procedural safeguards set forth in the definition of a permanency plan hearing.

In Georgia, permanency plan hearings shall be conducted by the court.

- 14. Inform the court, when the case plan is concurrent, of the reasonable efforts made to recruit, identify, and make a placement with kin (relatives and fictive kin), foster parent, or another person who has demonstrated an ongoing commitment to the child and has agreed to provide a permanent home for the child if reunification is not successful when the case plan is concurrent.
- 15. Re-evaluate concurrent case plans every 90 days via a formal meeting (i.e., Family Team Meeting (FTM), Permanency Roundtable, case staffing, etc.) with the parents, guardians or legal custodians, child, placement resource, and family's support team.

16. Upload any court orders, not uploaded via the Case Plan Reporting System (CPRS), in External Documentation in Georgia SHINES.

Procedures

Formal Evaluation

Prior to any review or permanency plan hearing, the SSCM will:

1. At least five calendar days in advance of the Family Team Meeting (FTM) to review and/or revise the case plan, provide written notification to the parents, guardians or legal custodians, child, extended family, Court Appointed Special Advocate (CASA)/Guardian ad Litem (GAL), placement resource, service providers and any other significant persons. Include in the notification:

- a. The purpose of the meeting;
- b. The date, time, and location of the meeting;
- c. The opportunity of the placement resource to share information about the child.

If they are unable to attend the review, then verbal or written input may be provided and considered at the time of the review;

- d. That a permanency plan hearing will be held no later than 30 calendar days from the date DFCS files a proposed non-reunification plan if DFCS is recommending non-reunification.
2. Conduct an FTM or other family meeting to evaluate progress toward achieving reunification or another permanency plan and address barriers towards achievement (see policy 19.3 Case Management: Solution-Focused Family Team Meetings).
 3. Complete an updated diligent search and submit it to the court at each periodic review hearing (see policy 19.20 Case Management: Diligent Search).
 4. Revise the case plan in Georgia SHINES including:

- a. Child Plan and permanency plan;
- b. Outcomes and tasks:
 - i. Dates when outcomes/tasks were completed;
 - ii. Progress or lack thereof on the Child Plan, Family Plan, and WTLP;
 - iii. Adding, deleting, or modifying outcomes/tasks, if applicable.
- c. Selecting and documenting the reason(s) for non-reunification is recommended on the Non-Reunification Checklist of the Family Plan, if applicable;
- d. Indicating whether DFCS intends to file a petition for TPR, and if so when.

If DFCS indicates it does not intend to petition for TPR, the court may appoint a GAL to determine whether termination proceedings should commence.

5. Review the case plan with and obtain signatures from the parents, guardians, or legal custodians, the child (if age and developmentally appropriate), the SSCM, and the Social Services Supervisor (SSS) on the case plan.

6. Provide a copy of the proposed case plan to the child (age 14 or older), the child's attorney, the guardian ad litem, if any, and the parent, guardian, or legal custodian at the time of the FTM, if possible. Otherwise, deliver it by United States mail, email, or hand delivery at the same time the report and case plan are transmitted to the court (see policy 10.23 Foster Care: Case Planning).
7. Submit the proposed case plan to the juvenile court or JCRP within the required timeframes prior to the review/hearing.

Case Plan Reviews Conducted by the Court and Permanency Plan Hearings

For initial reviews or subsequent periodic reviews conducted by the court and permanency plan hearings, the SSCM will:

1. Submit the proposed case plan to the court (via the CPRS interface, if applicable) five calendar days prior to the review/hearing, including a statement as to whether DFCS intends to proceed with TPR.
2. Submit an updated diligent search to the court at each periodic review hearing.
3. Attend the hearing and provide testimony supporting DFCS' recommendations.
4. Provide copies of the appropriate components of the case plan, upon receipt of the court order and approved plan from the court to the following:
 - a. Placement resource for the child (i.e., foster parent, kin, etc.);
 - b. Child (when age and developmentally appropriate);
 - c. GAL/CASA; and
 - d. Any other person (with the signed consent of the parent, guardian, or legal custodian).

Refer to policy 10.23 Foster Care: Case Planning for the components of the case plan required to be provided.

5. Submit a revised case plan to the court within 14 calendar days of the court finding there has not been substantial progress toward the completion of the case plan and ordering DFCS to revise the case plan and select a permanency plan other than reunification or add a concurrent plan.

The court shall review and adopt the revised case plan, as submitted or amended, within 45 days of the review or at a previously scheduled hearing.

6. Update the Legal Action and Outcomes Detail page, Family Plan, Child Plan, etc. in Georgia SHINES.

Subsequent Reviews Conducted by Judicial Citizen Review Panels (JCRP)

The SSCM will:

1. Attend the JCRP and be prepared to discuss the following:
 - a. Case plan information, including any updates from the last review;

- b. Information about the child, including:
 - i. Current placement;
 - ii. Educational, medical, and behavioral needs;
 - iii. Special needs;
 - iv. Appropriateness of services provided to the child, parent, guardian, or legal custodian and placement resource to address the child's needs.
- c. The frequency and outcome of parent-child visits;
- d. Sibling visits and efforts to place siblings together if they are not placed together;
- e. Progress on the outcomes and tasks by all parties of the case plan, including the level of participation/cooperation and any behavioral changes observed;
- f. Appropriateness of the recommended permanency plan and a projected date by which it can be achieved;
- g. The compelling reason for selecting a permanency plan other than reunification including an explanation of why the permanency plan is in the child's best interest and reunification or other permanency plans are not, if applicable;
- h. Specific steps to be taken by DFCS to finalize the permanent placement of the child; and
 - i. Whether DFCS intends to file for TPR and, if so when the petition will be filed.
2. Indicate whether DFCS agrees with the panel's findings and recommendations prior to the conclusion of the review.
3. Provide the placement resource with a copy of the portions of the report of the JCRP that involve the recommended permanency goal and the recommended services to be provided to the child.
4. Update the Legal Action and Outcomes Detail page, Family Plan, Child Plan, etc. in Georgia SHINES.

The JCRP and its local Program Coordinator will:

1. Review all cases of children in foster care in the legal custody of DFCS when directed to do so by the court.
2. Provide at least 72 hours advanced notice of any scheduled reviews to the following:
 - a. Parents, guardians, or legal custodians;
 - b. DFCS staff;
 - c. Foster parents/placement resource;
 - d. Relatives;
 - e. GAL/CASA; and
 - f. Any other person having specific knowledge of the case and who can assist the panel in its review.
3. Assist DFCS in developing the initial case plan, when designated by the court.
4. Conduct the review and complete findings and recommendations, including whether grounds for TPR exist.

5. Make a recommendation to DFCS and the child's attorney to file a TPR petition because a parent, guardian, or legal custodian has unjustifiably failed to comply with the ordered reunification case plan and such failure is significant enough to warrant consideration of TPR.
6. Provide the following to the court and parent, guardian, or legal custodian within five days after the review:
 - a. JCRP report, including findings and recommendations;
 - b. DFCS' proposed plan for reunification or other permanency plan.

DFCS Panel Case Review

When utilizing a DFCS Panel Case Review as the method of review, the SSCM will:

1. Determine if the DFCS Panel Case Review option is appropriate for a child in foster care depending on whether:
 - a. The child is exempt from mandatory judicial review (in accordance with the judge's approval); and
 - b. A Judicial Citizen Review Panel (JCRP) is not an option in the county or if it is, the child is exempt from JCRP review.
2. Provide 14 days advanced written notification of the scheduled review to the parents, guardians, or legal custodians, child (if age and developmentally appropriate), placement resource, and any others pertinent to the case planning process. The notification should include the following:
 - a. The purpose of the meeting;
 - b. The date, time, and location of the meeting; and
 - c. The parents, guardians, or legal custodians right to bring a representative to the meeting.
3. Conduct the DFCS panel case review with at least one member of the panel outside of the direct line of case management or service delivery for the child/family.
 - a. Obtain the appropriate release of information (ROI) and confidentiality agreements prior to beginning the meeting;
 - b. Discuss the following at the DFCS panel case review:
 - i. The purpose and goals of the review;
 - ii. The focus of the agency and court upon achieving permanency for the child;
 - iii. The continuing necessity for placement;
 - iv. The extent of parental involvement and responsibility in resolving the issues that led to the child's removal and/or prevent the child from being safely returned to the home;
 - v. The extent of progress or lack of progress toward the identified case plan outcomes and tasks that are designed to achieve permanency;
 - vi. The appropriateness of the placement and the services provided to the child;
 - vii. Outcomes and tasks outlined on the child's WTLP (see policy 13.3 Independent Living Program: Written Transitional Living Plan); and

- viii. Alternative options for the parents, guardians, or legal custodians in planning for a permanent home for their child.
- c. Review and obtain signatures of the parents, guardians, or legal custodians, the child (if age and developmentally appropriate), and each panel member on the case plan. Identify the panel member outside of the direct line of case management or service delivery using an asterisk;
- d. Provide an approved copy of the revised case plan to the parents, guardians, or legal custodians at the time of the meeting, if possible. If not, send a copy by certified mail to the parents, guardians, or legal custodians within five business days of the review. Copies should also be provided for the following:
 - i. Child (if age and developmentally appropriate);
 - ii. Panel members;
 - iii. GAL/CASA;
 - iv. Placement resource;
 - v. The court; and
 - vi. Any other significant person if the parent, guardian, or legal custodian signs a release of information.
4. Provide written notification to the parents, guardians, or legal custodians of any changes needed on the case plan and their right to appeal through a fair hearing (see policy 17.16 Legal: Fair Hearings).

Post-Termination Reviews

The SSCM will:

1. Prepare and submit a status report including:
 - a. The circumstances of the child;
 - b. The child-specific recruitment strategies, such as the use of state, regional, and national adoption exchanges and/or electronic exchanges which have been used to identify a home; and
 - c. Any other steps taken to achieve the permanency plan of adoption.
-  An updated case plan should suffice as the status report unless the judge requires a separate report.
2. Recognize there is no requirement for the court to receive a status report for review if the child is in an adoptive placement with a petition filed to finalize the adoption.
 3. Ensure the case plan is submitted every six months for review at a permanency plan hearing until the adoption is finalized.

The SSS will:

1. Review the case record to determine whether:

- a. An updated diligent search has been completed and submitted to the court prior to each periodic review hearing;
 - b. Reasonable efforts are being made and documented to achieve permanency;
 - c. Sufficient evidence exists to support the child's continued stay in foster care and/or permanency plan to be considered by the court.
2. Assist the SSCM in:
 - a. Determining DFCS' recommendations to the court, including whether or not visits with a child in DFCS custody need to be supervised (see Practice Guidance: Best Interest Determination in policy 17.1 Legal: The Juvenile Court Process);
 - b. Preparing for court testimony.
 3. Staff the case with the SSCM, other relevant DFCS staff, and the SAAG prior to any court hearing (see policy 19.6 Case Management: Supervisory Staffing).
 4. Attend court hearings as needed to provide guidance and support to the SSCM.
 5. Complete the following, either directly or indirectly through a designee, when the Judicial Citizen Review Panel (JCRP) is utilized to conduct the review:
 - a. Provide the local JCRP Program Coordinator with a master calendar of foster care cases to be reviewed at least quarterly;
 - b. Provide the local JCRP Program Coordinator with a list of individuals to be invited to each review at least 20 business days prior to the scheduled review;
 - c. Provide or ensure the local JCRP Program Coordinator has the following documents at least five business days prior to the scheduled review:
 - i. Comprehensive Child and Family Assessment (CCFA);
 - ii. Initial and subsequent case plans including the current proposed case plan;
 - iii. Petitions and court orders related to the case;
 - iv. Copies of psychological evaluations, mental health reports, school records, and any other pertinent document that would assist in case planning and decision making; and
 - v. Any additional information, within five business days of the request.
 - d. Ensure the Permanency SSCM or SSS assigned to the case attends the review;
 - e. Ensure the Permanency SSCM or SSS is knowledgeable and prepared to engage the panel in a thorough discussion of the case.
-  The above procedures for JCRPs are outlined by the Council on Juvenile Court Judges but may vary in each county based on protocols developed between the County Department and the JCRP Program Coordinator.
6. Ensure documentation is entered and court orders are uploaded in Georgia Shines within 72 hours of the case review/permanency plan hearing.
 7. Review court orders for:
 - a. Accuracy;
 - b. Required language and case-specific details;

- c. Court-ordered recommendations/tasks.
8. Ensure compliance with the orders of the court.

Practice Guidance

90-Day Re-evaluation of Concurrent Case Plans and Permanency Plans

The evaluation should be completed through the use of a formal process that ensures family engagement in the planning, development, and implementation of the primary plan of reunification as well as any alternative permanency plan. This may take the form of any type of evaluation in which the family, the SSCM, the SSS, and any other relevant family support team members, come together to formally review outcomes and levels of achievement and to decide on the next steps. At each evaluation, the progress toward achievement of the permanency plan(s) should be discussed as well as the status of placement with resource parents, visitation plan, and any barriers to achieving reunification or an alternate permanency plan.

Types of Reviews that Complies with Provisions of Title IV-E of the Social Security Act

There are three methods of review that comply with Federal requirements:

1. Case Review/Permanency Plan Hearings conducted by the juvenile court judge, associate judge, or judge pro tempore;
2. Judicial Citizen Review Panel (JCRP) conducted by a court-appointed panel of citizens acting in a review and advisory capacity on behalf of the judge who must approve the findings of the panel;
3. DFCS Panel Case Review conducted internally by DFCS staff with a three-person panel, with at least one panel member being out of the direct line of case management responsibility for either the child or family.

Timely reviews continue even when children are on runaway status; TPR has occurred but is under appeal, or children are on adoptive status pending finalization.

Initial, Periodic, or Other Review Hearings

For initial reviews, the court shall:

1. Provide 72 hours advanced written notice to all parties;
2. Hear the evidence, which may include oral and written testimony offered by the parents, guardians or legal custodians, foster parents, pre-adoptive parents, and/or kin caring for the child and the SSCM;
3. Consider any evidence, including hearsay evidence, that the court finds to be relevant, reliable, and necessary to determine the needs of a child adjudicated as a dependent child and the most appropriate case plan and permanency plan;
4. Approve the completion of the relative search;
5. Schedule the subsequent four-month review to be conducted by the court or JCRP;
6. Determine the following:

- a. Whether a child continues to be a dependent child;
- b. Whether the existing case plan is still the best case plan for the child and his/her family and whether any changes are needed in the case plan, including whether a concurrent non-reunification plan is appropriate;
- c. Compliance by all participants with the case plan;
- d. Whether the parent has made substantial progress toward completion of the case plan;
- e. Appropriateness of any recommended changes to the child's placement;
- f. Whether appropriate progress is being made on the permanency plan;
- g. Whether all legally required services are being provided to the child, his/her foster parents, and his/her parent, guardian, or legal custodian;
- h. Whether visitation is appropriate and, if so, approve and establish a reasonable visitation schedule consistent with the age and developmental needs of the child;
- i. Whether the services needed to assist the child (14 years of age and older) to make a transition from foster care to successful adulthood is being provided; and
- j. Whether reasonable efforts continue to be made to prevent or eliminate the child's removal and to reunify the family unless reasonable efforts were not required.

A parent, guardian, or legal custodian may request a hearing before the court within five days of receipt of the case plan when they do not agree with the initial case plan developed or the proposed revised case plan reviewed by the JCRP. Upon reviewing the case plan and hearing evidence, the court shall issue a supplemental order to incorporate any changes/revisions.

Other review hearings may be held at any time by the court at the request of any party to determine the continued appropriateness of the case plan outcomes, services, and progress made to date. The overall case outcome for permanency is usually the focus of these review hearings. The court may direct additional reviews by the JCRP (see policy 17.16 Legal: Fair Hearings).

Judicial Citizen Review Panels

The Council of Juvenile Court Judges administers Judicial Citizen Review Panels (JCRP) in select counties/ judicial circuits. The local juvenile court judge appoints volunteers from the community to serve as JCRP panel members and they receive specialized training by JCRP staff for their role in conducting reviews for children in foster care. They are appointed as sworn officers of the court and the judge affirms their confidentiality with respect to all information discussed and in acting in the best interest of the child. Although their role is advisory, their findings and recommendations are submitted to the judge with whom final authority rests regarding the case plan. The goal of a JCRP is to work collaboratively with DFCS, the court and other agencies to ensure reunification or to identify other permanency options when reunification is not possible.

The judge appoints a local Program Coordinator to schedule the reviews, mail out notification letters to all parties invited to the review, maintain all official case and JCRP records, and distribute the panel recommendations to the judge, DFCS, parents, guardians, or legal custodians and other appropriate agencies/parties. At the conclusion of the review, the JCRP will complete its findings and recommendations for submission to the judge and will include:

1. The permanency plan for the child and possible achievement date;
2. The documentation of a "compelling reason" should the panel select "another planned permanent living arrangement" as the child's permanency plan, along with an explanation as to why the other permanency options would not be in the child's best interests;
3. The appropriateness of the current placement and services provided for the child;
4. The visitation schedule and its outcome;
5. The documentation regarding compliance with outcomes of the case plan and any recommendations for changes in the outcomes or permanency plan for the child; and
6. The findings of fact regarding DFCS efforts to:
 - a. Make "reasonable efforts to finalize the permanency plan";
 - b. Ensure that the placement continues to be appropriate and in the best interest of the child; and
 - c. Determine the services needed to assist the child (age 14 years or older) in making a transition from foster care to being able to live independently.

Any party to the JCRP review may request a hearing on the proposed case plan in writing within five days of receiving a copy of the plan. The parent, guardian, or legal custodian shall be notified in writing that the case plan will be submitted to the court for consideration. If no hearing is requested or scheduled by the court on its motion, the court shall:

1. Review the proposed case plan;
2. Enter a supplemental order incorporating the case plan as part of its disposition in the case; or
3. Schedule a hearing within 30 days of a finding by the JCRP that there is a lack of substantial progress towards the completion of the case plan to determine whether a case plan for non-reunification is appropriate.

If the proposed case plan is for non-reunification, the SSCM shall notify the parent, guardian, or legal custodian in writing that the court will hold a permanency plan hearing within 30 calendar days of receipt of the proposed non-reunification case plan to review DFCS' recommendation that reunification is no longer appropriate.

In the event a hearing is held after the JCRP, the court shall, after hearing evidence, enter a supplemental order incorporating all elements that the court finds essential in the proposed revised case plan.

Findings of Fact and Dispositions at the Conclusion of Periodic Reviews

At the conclusion of a periodic review hearing or upon review of a report by a JCRP, the court will issue written findings of fact that include:

1. Why a child continues to be a dependent child;
2. Whether the existing case plan is still the best case plan for the child and family and whether any changes are needed including whether a concurrent non-reunification plan is appropriate;
3. The compliance with the case plan by all participants;

4. Whether the parent has made substantial progress toward completion of the case plan;
5. The basis for any changes to the child's placement;
6. Whether visitation is or continues to be appropriate;
7. The progress made on the permanency plan;
8. Whether all legally required services are being provided to the child, the child's foster parents, and the child's parent, guardian, or legal custodian;
9. Whether the services needed to assist the child (age 14 years of age or older) to make a transition from foster care to successful adulthood are being provided; and
10. Whether reasonable efforts continue to be made to prevent or eliminate the child's removal and to reunify the family unless reasonable efforts were not required.

Upon the conclusion of a periodic review hearing or review by a JCRP, the court will order one of the following dispositions:

1. Return the child to the parent, guardian, or legal custodian with or without court-imposed conditions;
2. Allow the child to continue in the current custodial placement because the current placement is appropriate to meet the child's needs;
3. Allow the child to continue in the current custodial placement although the current placement is no longer appropriate and direct DFCS to devise another plan which shall be:
 - a. Submitted within 10 days for court approval;
 - b. Furnished to all parties after court approval of the revised plan; and
 - c. Provided to the placement resource, child's foster parents, pre-adoptive parents, or kin caring for the child; or

Only those portions of the court-approved revised plan that involve the permanency outcome and services to be provided to the child may be provided.

4. Make additional orders regarding the treatment plan or placement of the child.

After transferring temporary legal custody of a child adjudicated dependent to DFCS, the court may at any time conduct, sua sponte (without prior motion or request), a judicial review of the current placement plan being provided for a child. After the review, the court may:

1. Order DFCS to comply with the current placement plan;
2. Order DFCS to devise a new placement plan; or
3. Make any other order relative to placement or custody outside of DFCS as the court finds to be in the best interest of the child.

Placement or a change of custody by the court outside DFCS shall relieve DFCS of further responsibility for such child except for any provision of services ordered by the court to ensure the continuation of reunification services to such child's family when appropriate.

DFCS Panel Case Review

Federal law requires periodic review of children in care by either a court or an administrative body (a panel). In Georgia, an administrative review is known as the DFCS Panel Case Review and it must be conducted by a three-person panel of DFCS staff, at least one of whom is not responsible for the case management or delivery of services to the child or parent, guardian, or legal custodian. This provision is intended to ensure objectivity in case planning and decision-making. DFCS Panel Case Reviews must be open to the participation of the parent, guardian, or legal custodian and child. Reviews must be held no less frequently than once every six months. If there is more than one County Department involved, the county of legal responsibility should arrange the DFCS Panel Case Review and provide the required written notice to the parent, guardian, or legal custodian. DFCS Panel Case Reviews should be utilized whenever the child or youth is exempt from mandatory judicial reviews.

Interdisciplinary staffing, treatment team reviews, etc. may substitute for a DFCS Panel Case Review if:

1. It meets timeliness requirements;
2. The SSCM is in attendance;
3. The parent, guardian, or legal custodian and child are invited and/or attend; and
4. The case plan is updated at the time of the meeting.

Extended family members may be involved in the DFCS Panel Case Review process, especially if they can provide input for case planning or placement planning purposes. To the extent possible, the parent, guardian, or legal custodian should always be present at the DFCS Panel Case Review unless TPR has been granted. An incarcerated parent, guardian, or legal custodian should be sent notice of the review and may participate by telephone if they are unable to be brought to the review. An incarcerated parent, guardian, or legal custodian may designate a representative to be present and give information during the review; however, the representative cannot sign the case plan for the parent, guardian, or legal custodian. It will be necessary for the parent, guardian, or legal custodian to sign a release to designate such individuals to attend and be a party to the review.

The child should attend a review. Excluding the child from participating in critical life decisions produces feelings of helplessness and confusion about being in foster care. However, if the child's attendance is not appropriate, the specific reasons should be documented in the case record. At the review, information regarding the child should be shared by the SSCM and/or the individual providing care for the child. A written report may be shared at the review about the child should an individual with direct knowledge about the child not be present.

Composing the DFCS Panel Case Review

The panel for the DFCS Panel Case Review shall be comprised of three DFCS staff members (one of whom will act in the capacity of chairing the review) including:

1. A person who is not directly responsible for case management or service delivery to the child or parent, guardian, or legal custodian;
2. The SSCM for the parents, guardians, or legal custodians and/or child (if rights are not terminated/surrendered); and

3. The SSS, another SSS, or another DFCS staff person of a higher position.

In addition, the following participants may attend the DFCS Panel Case Review:

1. DFCS Staff (SSS, Director, Field Program Specialist, State Office staff, etc.);
2. GAL/CASA (if appointed);
3. Facility representative where the child is placed; and
4. Other agency staff/service providers/interested parties who can contribute information.
 - a. The parent, guardian, or legal custodian must sign a release for these individuals to be present for the entire review;
 - b. A release is not necessary if the individuals only participate by giving information and answering questions during a portion of the review.

Review of Children on Adoptive Status

The focus of the adoptive status review is permanency for the child, including any services needed or provided to achieve permanency. If the child is not in an adoptive placement, the review must address the steps needed to find an adoptive family, including child-specific recruitment efforts and the use of regional and national adoption exchanges/electronic exchanges and registries. If the child is in an adoptive placement, the review should address the steps or services needed to facilitate the filing of a finalization petition. The legal county and the supervising county need to determine each other's roles in timely periodic reviews.

The responsibilities of the court in post-termination adoption cases include the following:

1. Review the circumstances of the child every six months, if the child remains unadopted, to determine what efforts have been to ensure that the child will be adopted,
2. Make written findings regarding whether reasonable efforts have been made to move the child to permanency;
3. Evaluate whether, in light of any change in circumstances, the permanency plan for the child remains appropriate;
4. Enter such orders as it deems necessary to further adoption or if appropriate, other permanency options, including, but not limited to, another placement.

The court may consider any evidence, including hearsay evidence, that the court finds to be relevant, reliable, and necessary to determine the needs of a child and the permanency and custody of a child whose parents have had their parental rights terminated or who have surrendered their parental rights.

Permanency Plan Hearing

The Official Code of Georgia states the purpose of the permanency plan hearing is to determine the future permanent legal status of each child in DFCS custody. The permanency plan adopted by the court is entered into an order. The case plan developed to achieve the adopted permanency plan is monitored at subsequent permanency plan hearings and should result in the child's timely exit from foster care into a safe, permanent home. Both federal and state statutes govern the time frames in which permanency plan hearings must be held.

Federal regulations do not consider paper reviews, ex parte hearings, consent orders, or other actions/hearings that are not open to the participation of the parents, guardian or legal custodian, the child (if age and developmentally appropriate), foster parents, kin, or pre-adoptive parents as permanency plan hearings. The court may consider any evidence, including hearsay evidence, that the court finds to be relevant, reliable, and necessary to determine the needs of a child adjudicated as a dependent child and the most appropriate permanency plan. At the permanency plan hearing, the court shall make written findings of fact that include the following:

1. Whether DFCS has made reasonable efforts to finalize the permanency plan that is in effect at the time of the hearing;
2. The safety and appropriateness of the placement and whether the placement is still necessary;
3. Compliance with the permanency plan by DFCS, parties, and any other service providers;
4. Whether the parent has made substantial progress toward completion of the case plan;
5. Efforts to involve appropriate service providers in addition to DFCS staff in planning to meet the special needs of the child and the parent, guardian, or legal custodian;
6. Efforts to eliminate the causes for placement outside of the child's home, toward returning the child safely to the home or obtaining a permanent placement for the child;
7. The date by which it is likely the child will be returned to the home, placed for adoption, placed with a permanent guardian, or in some other alternative permanent placement;
8. Whether the placement of a child who is placed out-of-state continues to be appropriate and in the best interests of the child;
9. What services are needed to assist the child (14 years of age or older) in transitioning from foster care to successful adulthood;
10. In the case of a child for whom APPLA is the permanency plan:
 - a. Whether DFCS has documented intensive, ongoing, and as of the date of the hearing, unsuccessful efforts to return the child to the home or to secure a placement for the child with a fit and willing relative, a legal guardian, or an adoptive parent, including through efforts that utilize search technology, including through social media, to find biological family members for the children;
 - b. Whether DFCS has documented the steps it is taking to ensure that the child's foster family home or child care institution is following the reasonable and prudent parent standard and the child has regular, ongoing opportunities to engage in age or developmentally appropriate activities, including by consulting with the child in an age-appropriate manner about the opportunities of the child to participate in the activities; and
 - c. The child's desired permanency outcome.
11. If a child has attained the age of 14 years old, whether the permanency plan developed for the child, and any revisions or additions to the plan, were developed in consultation with the child and, at the option of the child, with not more than two members of the permanency planning team who were selected by the child and who is not a foster parent of or caseworker for the child.
12. An explanation of the determination if the court finds, as of the date of the hearing, that APPLA is in the best interest of the child who is at least 16 years of age, and in its order, provide compelling reasons why it is not or continues to not be in a child's best interests to be reunified, referred for TPR and adoption, placed with a guardian or placed with a fit and willing relative.

The permanency plan incorporated in the court's order shall include:

1. If and when the child shall be returned to the parent, guardian, or legal custodian;
2. If and when the child shall be referred for Termination of Parental Rights (TPR) and adoption;
3. If and when, the child shall be placed with a permanent guardian; or
4. In the case in which DFCS has documented a compelling reason that none of the options listed above would be in the best interests of a child, whether, and if applicable when such child shall be placed in another planned permanent living arrangement.

Written Report for Permanency Plan Hearing

A thoroughly completed case plan should be submitted to the court prior to any permanency hearing and should serve as the written report required by the court. The written report is required to document the steps to be taken by DFCS to finalize the permanent placement of the child and shall include, but not be limited to:

1. The name, address, and telephone number of the child's parent, guardian, or legal custodian;
2. The date the child was removed from the home and placed in foster care;
3. The location and type of home/facility where the child is currently placed or will be placed;
4. The reasons for removing the child from the home;
5. A statement as to the availability of a safe and appropriate placement with a fit and willing relative or another person who has demonstrated an ongoing commitment to the child or a statement why placement with the relative or other person is not safe or appropriate;
6. Documentation that a placement that would maintain a child in the current school setting is unavailable or inappropriate or that a transfer to a new school is in the child's best interest;
7. A plan for ensuring the safety and appropriateness of the placement and a description of the services provided to meet the needs of the child and family, including a discussion of services that have been investigated and considered and are not available or likely to become available within a reasonable time to meet the needs of the child, or if available, why such services are not safe or appropriate;
8. The goal of the permanency plan shall include:
 - a. If and when the child shall be returned to the parent, guardian, or legal custodian;
 - b. If and when the child shall be referred for Termination of Parental Rights (TPR) and adoption;
 - c. If and when the child shall be placed with a permanent guardian; or
 - d. When DFCS has documented a compelling reason that none of the above options would be in the best interest of the child, if and when the child who has attained 16 years of age will be placed in another planned permanent living arrangement (APPLA). The case plan for a child with a permanency plan of APPLA should include:

- i. Documentation of a compelling reason or reasons why reunification, termination of parental rights and adoption, permanent guardianship, or placement with a fit and willing relative are not in the child's best interests;
 - ii. Documentation of the intensive, ongoing, and unsuccessful efforts made by the state agency to return the child home or secure a placement for the child with a fit and willing relative, a legal guardian, or an adoptive parent, including through efforts that utilize search technology, including social media, to find biological family members for the child; and
 - iii. Documentation of the steps the state agency is taking to ensure that the child's foster family home or child care institution is following the reasonable and prudent parent standard and documentation that the child has regular, ongoing opportunities to engage in age or developmentally appropriate activities, including by consulting with the child in an age-appropriate manner about the opportunities of the child to participate in the activities.
9. A description of the programs and services that are or will be provided to assist the child (age 14 years or older) in transitioning from foster care to successful adulthood. The description shall include all of the following:
 - a. The anticipated age the child will be discharged from foster care;
 - b. The anticipated amount of time available to prepare the child for the transition from foster care to successful adulthood;
 - c. The anticipated location and living situation of the child upon discharge from foster care;
 - d. A description of the assessment processes, tools, and methods that have been or will be used to determine the programs or services that are or will be provided to assist the child with the transition from foster care; and
 - e. The rationale for each program or service that is or will be provided to assist the child in preparing for the transition, the timeframes for delivering the programs or services, and the intended outcomes; and
10. A description of specific recruitment efforts, such as the use of state, regional, and national adoption exchanges, including electronic exchange systems, to facilitate orderly and timely in-state and interstate placements, when the recommended permanency plan is for TPR and adoption or placement in another home.

Requirements

The Division of Family and Children Services (DFCS) will:

1. At its discretion file a dependency petition with the juvenile court seeking a protective order to restrain or otherwise control the conduct of a parent, guardian, or legal custodian or relative in a case, to:
 - a. Stay away from the home or the child;
 - b. Permit a parent, guardian, or legal custodian to visit the child at stated periods;
 - c. Abstain from offensive conduct against the child, the parent, guardian or legal custodian or any person to whom custody of the child is awarded;

 - g. Ensure that the child attends school pursuant to any valid law relating to compulsory attendance;
 - h. Participate with the child in any counseling or treatment deemed necessary after consideration of employment and other family needs; or
 - i. Enter and successfully complete a substance abuse program approved by the court.
2. Obtain a temporary alternative to foster care (TAFC) order when appropriate to:
- a. Authorize or continue any voluntary kinship agreement between the parent, guardian, legal custodian, and DFCS, pending further action by the court on a dependency petition for temporary guardianship or custody to a third party; or
 - b. Obtain a temporary protective order to impose conditions or limitations on the conduct of the parent, guardian, or legal custodian while the child remains in the home, including requiring the individual to:
 - i. Prohibit access to the child by an individual;
 - ii. Comply with any existing visitation agreement associated with the voluntary placement;
 - iii. Abstain from offensive conduct against a child or his or her parent, guardian, or legal custodian;
 - iv. Give proper attention to the care of his or her home;
 - v. Cooperate in good faith with DFCS;
 - vi. Refrain from acts of commission or omission that may render a home an improper place for a child; or
 - a. Ensure that a child attends school pursuant to any valid law relating to compulsory attendance.

 DFCS shall not request a protective order for a child to remain out of their home.

3. Derive placement authority for children in foster care through any of the following means:
- a. Juvenile Court order granting temporary custody (for procedures when a child enters foster care see policy 10.1 Foster Care: Placement of a Child);

 If Juvenile Court orders a child into foster care pursuant to a child in need of services (CHINS) or delinquency, the court shall comply with the law pertaining to the dual designation of a child. Dual designation of a child is a child adjudicated both a dependent child and a child in need of services (CHINS); or adjudicated both a dependent child and a delinquent child.

- b. Juvenile Court order terminating parental rights (TPR) (see policy 17.11 Legal: Termination of Parental Rights);

- c. Voluntary Placement Agreement (VPA) to Place Child in Foster Care (see policy 10.2 Foster Care: Placement of a Child Via Voluntary Placement Agreement);
- d. Voluntary surrender of parental rights (see policy 17.12 Legal: Voluntary Surrender of Parental Rights);
- e. Superior Court order; or
- f. Short-term emergency care and supervision (see policies 3.21 Special Circumstance: Intakes Involving Short Term Emergency Care \(Emergency or Illness\); 3.22 Special Circumstance: Intakes Involving Short Term Emergency Care \(Human Trafficking\); 20.8 Special Circumstances: Short Term Emergency Care \(Emergency or Illness\); and 20.9 Special Circumstances: Short Term Emergency Care \(Human Trafficking\)).

DFCS shall provide short-term emergency care to a child without seeking a court order for a period not to exceed seven calendar days.

- 4. Obtain a verbal order when emergency removal or treatment of a child is required, and no option is available to obtain a signed order from a judge. A written order with the judge's signature shall be obtained the next business day following issuance of the verbal order.
- 5. Retain the rights and duties that would otherwise be executed by the parent, guardian, or legal custodians, when a child is placed in DFCS' custody, including:
 - a. Maintaining physical custody of the child, unless the child is on a trial home visit;
 - b. Determining the nature of care and treatment of the child (including ordinary medical care);
 - c. Providing for the care, protection, training and education and the physical, mental, and moral welfare of the child;
 - d. Determining and monitoring the placement of the child to assure the child's safety and well-being;
 - e. Selecting an appropriate training/educational facility for the child (see policy 10.13 Foster Care: Educational Needs);
 - f. Obtaining routine medical and dental care;
 - g. Providing for recreational activities;
 - h. Approving out-of-town trips;
 - i. Arranging for purchases for the child (i.e., clothing, haircuts, etc.);
 - j. Informing the parent, guardian or legal custodians of injuries, accidents, and illnesses of the child; and
 - k. Arranging for and monitoring visitation between the child and parent, guardian or legal custodian or other family members.

The Social Services Case Manager (SSCM) should consider the parent, guardian or legal custodian's wishes and/or religious beliefs and include them in the decision-making process about the child, when appropriate.

- 6. Ensure the parent, guardian or legal custodians retain the following rights when DFCS has temporary custody of the child:

- a. Participate in permanency planning for the child;
 - b. Visit the child;
 - c. Petition the court at any time for the return of custody;
 - d. Determine the child's religious affiliation;
 - e. Consent to the child's adoption, marriage, enlistment in military service, driving an automobile or traveling out-of-state;
 - f. Grant permission for major, non-emergency surgery (see policy 10.11 Foster Care: Medical, Dental and Developmental Needs); and
 - g. Receive timely notice of any changes in the child's placement.
7. Review court orders to determine if they contain the following findings:
- a. "Contrary to the welfare of the child" and "removal from the home is in the best interest of the child" findings in any order authorizing the child's removal from the home (see policy 9.4 Eligibility: Removal from the Home);
 - b. Written findings of fact, in an order placing or continuing the placement of a child in DFCS custody, stating:
 - i. The child's continuation in or return to the home would be contrary to his/her welfare;
 - ii. Reasonable efforts have been made to prevent or eliminate the need for placement unless the court has determined that such efforts are not required or shall cease (see policy 9.5 Eligibility: Reasonable Efforts); and

Procedures

Social Services Supervisor Manager

1. Review all court orders for accuracy and the appropriate court order language.
2. Obtain any clarification needed regarding what DFCS and the family have been ordered to do.
3. Notify the Special Assistant Attorney General (SAAG) of any inaccuracies in the court order and request an amended order.
4. Complete the Legal Action and Outcomes Detail and Legal Status Detail pages and upload the court order into External Documentation in Georgia SHINES, if it has not been uploaded through the Case Plan Reporting System (CPRS) interface.

5. Notify the Revenue Maximization Unit (RevMax) via the Notification of Change in Georgia SHINES of the receipt and uploading of the court order.
6. Complete the following when the county department receives custody/placement authority of a child via a Superior Court order:
 - a. Staff the case with the Social Services Supervisor (SSS) and SAAG to ensure understanding and strict adherence to the requirements set forth in the order, including the submission of any court reports;
 - b. Adhere to all stipulations outlined in the Superior Court order; and
 - c. Ensure case planning and periodic case review requirements are met.

Social Services Supervisor

1. Review court orders for accuracy and appropriate court order language.
2. Staff any court order issues and any Superior Court orders with the SSCM and SAAG (see policy 19.6 Case Management: Supervisory Staffing).
3. Ensure compliance with court orders.

Practice Guidance

Placement authority for most children in care is derived from an order of the court. The juvenile court has exclusive jurisdiction over a child who is alleged to be dependent. However, the juvenile court will not accept a dependency petition filed by one parent against another in a possible attempt to modify a custody award.

Based upon the evidence at any hearing held with respect to a child, the court may enter an order:

1. Accepting or rejecting any DFCS report;
2. Ordering an additional evaluation; or
3. Undertaking another review as deemed necessary and appropriate to determine the disposition in the child's best interests.

The court's order:

1. May incorporate all or part of the DFCS case plan; and
2. Shall include findings of fact which reflect the court's consideration of the oral and written testimony offered by all parties, as well as non-parties, who are required to be provided with notice and a right to be heard in any hearing to be held with respect to a child and DFCS.

Court Approval for Removal

Court approval for the removal of a child is considered the first judicial determination on behalf of the child. This determination or order is known by various names in the different counties across the state including, but not limited to:

1. Authorization to place

2. Authorization to pick up
3. Preliminary Protective order
4. Ex parte order
5. Emergency order
6. Pick-up order

Dependency

A dependent child means a child who:

1. Has been abused or neglected and is in need of protection of the court;
2. Has been placed for care or adoption in violation of law; or
3. Is without his parent, guardian, or legal custodian.

 A parent, guardian, or legal custodian's reliance on prayer or other religious nonmedical means for healing in lieu of medical care, in the exercise of religious beliefs, shall not be the sole basis for considering the child to be a dependent child; however, the religious rights of a parent, guardian or legal custodian shall not limit the child's access to medical care in a life-threatening situation or when the condition will result in a serious disability. The juvenile court has the authority to order medical care of a child without DFCS taking custody.

Legal Custodian

A legal custodian of a child is defined as:

1. A person to whom legal custody has been given by order of a court; or
2. A public or private agency or other private organization licensed or otherwise authorized by law to receive and provide care for a child to which legal custody of the child has been given by the court.

Verbal Orders

The issuance of a verbal order usually occurs because a judge/court is unavailable after regular office hours, on holidays, and weekends. When issuing a verbal order is the practice of a county's judge, and there is no acceptable alternative for getting a signed order for the child needing protection, the county department must have clearly written procedures that specify the immediate steps staff will follow in obtaining a signed order.

The written procedures should address:

1. Situations that demand the immediate protection of a child and for which the county will proceed with a verbal order;
2. Designated county staff who are authorized to request a verbal order from the judge;
3. SAAG involvement in preparing an order for the judge's signature on the first business day after issuance of the verbal order;
4. Case record documentation needed, including the date and time of all actions taken who was involved in each step of the process; and

5. Incorporation of these procedures into the written procedures developed by the local child abuse protocol committee.

Temporary Alternative to Foster Care (TAFC) Order

An order for TAFC may include one or more of the following:

1. A temporary order authorizing or continuing any voluntary agreement between the parent, guardian, or legal custodian and DFCS;

This order shall be based upon a finding by the court that continuation in the home would be contrary to the child's welfare. The finding shall be made on an individualized basis and shall be documented in the written court order.

2. A temporary protective order imposing conditions or limitations on the conduct of the parent, guardian, or legal custodian;
3. An order that DFCS investigate and report to the court whether removal is necessary; or
4. An order that the DFCS provide services designed to allow the child to remain safely in the child's home.

When TAFC is ordered by the court, the order shall remain in effect until modified by the court or until the court has held the PPH. Upon issuance of an order for TAFC, a PPH will be completed no later than 72 hours.

Authorization to Place or Authorization for Protective Custody

In some counties, a court official or Department of Juvenile Justice (DJJ) intake officer has the authority, delegated by the judge, to issue an authorization to place or for protective care. The document is signed by the person delegated this duty. The document can be given directly to the SAAG, SSCM, or other DFCS representative or it may be faxed to the DFCS office. This document is the agency's legal authority to hold a child.

A law enforcement officer may take a child into temporary custody when there are reasonable grounds to believe a child has run away or the circumstances are such that a child's health or welfare is in imminent danger unless immediate action is taken. A physician licensed to practice medicine in Georgia who is treating a child may take or retain temporary protective custody of the child, without a court order and without the consent of the child's parent, guardian, or legal custodian (see policy 20.10 Special Circumstances: Temporary Protective Custody of Child by Physician).

Superior Court Order

An order issued by superior court granting custody/placement authority to the county department sets time limits for the duration, specifies the custodian, and outlines the custodian's rights and duties. An order without time limits stands until another order is issued.

Superior court orders giving a county department custody/placement authority usually occur in connection with divorce proceedings. The placement may be time-limited while the parent, guardian, or legal custodians and/or others are being evaluated to determine the appropriate custodian. It is possible for the placement to be longer in duration if the county department is ordered to supervise, offer services to the parent, guardian or legal custodian or others and/or determine the appropriate custodian. The superior court is responsible for making the final decision about placement.

It may become necessary to consult with the agency's SAAG should the superior court order appear to be incomplete or have conflicting court requirements. Required findings specified in the Juvenile Code of the Official Code of Georgia may or may not be included in the court order. Additionally, the SAAG can provide guidance on meeting case plan and periodic review requirements when superior court is involved.

Disposition Orders

Any order of disposition shall contain written findings of fact to support the disposition and case plan ordered. Prior to making an order of disposition, the court shall consider the following:

1. Why the best interests and safety of the child are served by the disposition and case plan ordered, including, but not limited to:
 - a. The interaction and interrelationship of the child with his/her parent, guardian or legal custodians, siblings, and any other person who may significantly affect the child's best interests;
 - b. The child's adjustment to his/her home, school, and community;
 - c. The mental and physical health of all individuals involved;
 - d. The wishes of the child as to his/her placement;
 - e. The wishes of the child's parent, guardian, or legal custodian as to the custody of the child;
 - f. Whether there exists a relative or other individual who, after a study by DFCS, is approved to receive and care for the child; and
 - g. The ability of the parent, guardian, or legal custodian of the child to care for the child in the home so that no harm will come to the child.
2. The availability of services recommended in the case plan;
3. What alternative dispositions or services were considered by the court and why such dispositions or services were not appropriate;
4. The appropriateness of the placement or potential placement; and
5. Whether reasonable efforts were made to prevent the removal and to reunify the child unless reasonable efforts were not required. The court's findings should include a brief description of what preventive and reunification efforts were made and why further efforts could not have prevented or eliminated the need for removal.

An order of disposition in a dependency proceeding shall continue in force until:

1. The purposes of the order have been accomplished and DFCS is relieved of custody by the court; or
2. The court terminates the order; or
3. The dependent child turns 18 unless the child receives Extended Foster Care (EFC) services or continues to receive Independent Living services.

Supplemental Orders

A supplemental order adopting the permanency plan shall be entered following any permanency plan hearing and no later than 30 days after the court has determined that reunification efforts need not be made by DFCS. The supplemental order shall include a requirement that the SSCM, DFCS staff, and other representatives of the child provide the child with assistance and support in developing a transition plan that is personalized at the direction of the child and includes specific options on housing, health insurance, education, local opportunities for mentors and continuing support services, workforce supports and employment services and is as detailed as the child wishes, 90 days prior to the date the child turns 18.

Permanent Guardianship

If the court enters an order finding that reasonable efforts to reunify a child and family are not required and that TPR and adoption are not in the best interests of the child, the court may place the child with a permanent guardian.

Permanent guardianship orders shall:

1. Remain in effect until a child turns 18 years of age or becomes emancipated;
2. Not be subject to review by the court unless a petition to modify, vacate or revoke the guardianship is filed;
3. Establish a reasonable visitation schedule that allows the child to maintain meaningful contact with the parent, guardian, or legal custodians through personal visits, telephone calls, letters, or other forms of communication or restrictions on a parent, guardian, or legal custodian's right to visitation.

TPR Orders

An order terminating the parental rights of a parent shall be without limit as to duration and shall take away the parent and child's legal rights, powers, privileges, immunities, duties, and obligations with respect to each other except the right of the child to:

1. Receive child support from his/her parent until a final order of adoption is entered;
2. Inherit from and through his/her parent until a final order of adoption; and
3. Pursue any civil action against his/her parents.

The legal relationship between a child and siblings shall not be severed until the relationship is terminated by a final adoption order. Despite TPR, a relative's relationship for the purpose of placement and permanency remains intact until terminated by a final order of adoption.

A TPR order shall:

1. Contain written findings on which the order is based including the facts for determining that grounds for TPR exist and that TPR is in the best interest of the child;
2. Be conclusive and binding on all parties upon the date of entry;

- Grant custody of the child in accordance with Code section §15-11-321 (see policy 17.11 Legal: Termination of Parental Rights);
- Inform the parent(s) to use the services of the Georgia Adoption Reunion Registry, however, failure to include this shall not affect the validity of the judgment.

The court shall transmit a copy of every final order of TPR to the Adoption Exchange, State Adoption Unit within 15 days of the filing of the order.

- Request the SAAG review any agreement to mediate and any agreement reached during mediation, prior to signing the agreement.

All mediation agreements shall be presented to the juvenile court judge for approval and shall be made an order of the court unless, after further hearing, the court determines by clear and convincing evidence that the agreement is not in the best interest of the child.

Procedures

Social Services Case Manager

1. Staff any case referred to mediation with the County Director, Social Services Supervisor (SSS) and SAAG to determine:
 - a. The non-negotiable requirements of the dependency case.
 - b. Areas of flexibility for DFCS in terms of the mediation agreement.
 - c. Procedures for the SAAG's review of the agreement to mediate and the mediation agreement, prior to DFCS signing either agreement.
 - d. The next steps, including whether the SAAG should participate in mediation.

When necessary, the county departments are encouraged to have their SAAGs present at mediation.

2. Submit the agreement to mediate to the SSS, County Director and SAAG for review and approval, prior to signing.
3. Attend at least one mediation session.
4. Mediate in good faith, while keeping discussions and agreements consistent with the determinations made at the mediation staffing.

The county department cannot refuse to mediate. However, the county department can withdraw from mediation at any time and is not required to reach an agreement.

5. Consult with the SAAG during mediation, as necessary.
6. Submit the mediation agreement to the SSS, County Director and SAAG for review and approval, prior to signing.
7. Document the mediation process in the narrative of the Contact Detail in Georgia SHINES, including:
 - a. Dates of any mediation meetings.
 - b. All attendees at any mediation meeting.
 - c. The name of the mediator.
 - d. Discussions that occurred at mediation meetings.
 - e. The outcomes of mediation.

9. Stop participating in mediation any time the mediation process conflicts with non-negotiables identified by DFCS and re-staff the case with the County Director, SSS and SAAG to determine next steps.

Social Services Supervisor

1. Participate in a staffing with the SSCM, County Director and SAAG on any case referred to mediation.
2. Review and approve the mediation agreement.

Practice Guidance

Mediation

The court may stay a proceeding upon issuing a referral to mediation. Mediation is the proceeding in which a mediator facilitates communication between the parties concerning the matters in dispute and explores possible solutions to promote collaboration, understanding and settlement. Mediation shall occur as soon as possible, but no later than 30 days from the order referring the matter to mediation unless the timeframe is extended by the court. DFCS or any other party may withdraw from or terminate further participation in mediation at any time.

Mediator

A mediator is a neutral third party who attempts to focus the attention of the parties upon their needs and interests rather than upon their rights and positions. The mediator does not have authority to impose any particular agreement upon the parties or to recommend any particular disposition of the case to the court. The juvenile court shall appoint a mediator from a list of court approved mediators who are registered with the Georgia Office of Dispute Resolution to mediate juvenile court cases.

Agreement to Mediate

Prior to the parties signing an agreement to mediate, the mediator shall advise the parties of their right to have an attorney review the agreement reached during mediation. The agreement to mediate shall:

1. Identify the controversies between the parties.
2. Affirm the parties' intent to resolve such controversies through mediation.
3. Specify the circumstances under which mediation may continue.
4. Specify the confidentiality requirements of mediation and the exceptions to those requirements.

Codes/References

O.C.G.A. § 15-11-110 Continuance of a Hearing in Dependency Proceedings

Requirements

The Division of Family and Children Services (DFCS) will:

1. Request a continuance only when in the best interest of the child.
2. Ensure that no continuance interferes with the required court findings and timeliness of review and permanency plan hearings for Title IV-E.

Procedures

Social Services Case Manager

1. Participate in a staffing with the Social Services Supervisor (SSS) and Special Assistant Attorney General (SAAG) prior to requesting a continuance to:
 - a. Determine whether “good cause” to continue the case exists;
 - b. Discuss the implications of the continuance on the case and the child’s safety and well-being;
 - c. Determine the next steps to ensure the hearing is held as expeditiously as possible.
2. Notify the SAAG, prior to any continuance being granted, if the continuance would cause DFCS to be out of compliance with Title IV-E “reasonable efforts” findings, six-month review requirements or permanency plan hearing requirements.

If the continuance would prevent a reasonable efforts finding within the first 60 days of the child’s removal, the SAAG should request a hearing for the purpose of reviewing reasonable efforts.

3. Complete the following, if a continuance is granted that leads to a permanency plan hearing not being held within six months of a previous hearing:
 - a. Request the SAAG ask the court to schedule an immediate Judicial Citizen Review Panel (JCRP), if held in the county/circuit;
 - b. Contact the JCRP Coordinator to schedule a JCRP no later than the following (seventh) month if JCRPs are held in your county; or
 - c. Conduct a DFCS Panel Case Review (see policy 17.2 Legal: Case Review/Permanency Plan Hearings), if JCRPs are not held in the county/circuit.

4. Request the SAAG obtain the earliest possible date for the permanency plan hearing, if a continuance is granted that leads to a permanency plan hearing not being held within twelve months of a child's removal from the home or twelve (12) months from the previous permanency plan hearing.
5. Notify the Revenue Maximization (RevMax) Unit via the Notification of Change (NOC) and update the Legal Action and Outcomes Detail page in Georgia SHINES:
 - a. If a continuance is granted and delays reasonable efforts to prevent removal finding beyond sixty days of the child's removal from foster care;

 The child would not be eligible for IV-E funding during this foster care episode (see policy 9.5 Eligibility: Reasonable Efforts).
 - b. If a continuance is granted that leads to a permanency plan hearing not being held within twelve months of a child's removal from the home or at least every 12 months thereafter.

 The child loses IV-E reimbursability until a permanency plan hearing is held and a finding of "reasonable efforts to finalize the permanency plan" is made (see policy 9.5 Eligibility: Reasonable Efforts).

Social Services Supervisor

1. Conduct a staffing with the SSCM and SAAG prior to a request for a continuance.
2. Encourage the SAAG to ensure that the hearing and/or review timeframes comply with Title IV-E.
3. Ensure RevMax is notified of any continuances via the NOC.

Practice Guidance

Child's Interests

Upon request of an attorney for a party, the court may continue any hearing beyond the time limit in which it is required to be held unless the continuance is contrary to the interests of the child.

In considering a child's interests, the court shall give substantial weight to:

1. A child's need for prompt resolution of his/her custody status.
2. The need to provide a child with a stable environment.
3. The damage to a child of prolonged temporary placements.

Good Cause

Continuances shall be granted only upon showing of good cause and only for a period of time shown to be necessary by evidence presented at the hearing. Whenever any continuance is granted, the facts proving the need for the continuance shall be entered into the court record.

The following situations shall not constitute good cause for a continuance:

1. A stipulation between attorneys or the convenience of the parties.

2. Except as provided by judicial reviews governing attorney conflict resolution, a pending criminal prosecution or family law matter.
3. The need for discovery unless the court finds that a person or entity has failed to comply with an order for discovery.

 Public Law (PL) 93-247 Child Abuse Prevention and Treatment Act (CAPTA) of 1974
 PL 109-171 Deficit Reduction Act of 2005

Requirements

The Division of Family and Children Services (DFCS) will comply with State law and ensure the safety and well-being of children, parents and families when considering whether the public should have access to court proceedings.

i In the use of child welfare records in court proceedings, section 471 (a) (8) of the Social Security Act shall not be construed to limit the flexibility of a State in determining policies relating to public access to court proceedings to determine child abuse and neglect or other court hearings held pursuant to Title IV-B or Title IV-E of the Act, except that such policies shall, at a minimum, ensure the safety and well-being of the child, parents, and family.

Procedures

The Social Service Case Manager (SSCM) will:

1. Staff cases with the Social Services Supervisor (SSS) and Special Assistant Attorney General (SAAG) prior to any court hearing (see policy 19.6 Case Management: Supervisory Staffing).
 - a. Inform the SAAG if Protected Health Information (PHI) will be disclosed during the hearing (see policy 2.5 Information Management: Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act \(HIPAA\)).

- b. Discuss with the SAAG whether a motion should be filed to request for the hearing to be closed (See Practice Guidance: Filing a Motion to Close the Hearing). A motion can be filed to close a hearing if the following situations exist:
 - i. The allegation of the case involves a sexual offense.
 - ii. The presence of potential individuals is not in the best interest of the child based on the child's age or the nature of the allegations.
 - iii. There is a need to protect the privacy of the child, foster parent, caretaker or a victim of domestic violence.
2. Provide testimony and documentation to the court regardless of whether the hearing is open or closed. The following information should be presented in court:
 - a. PHI necessary to prove dependency;
 - b. Specific PHI ordered by the court;
 - c. Responses to questions on cross-examination; and
 - d. Responses to questions from the judge.
3. Maintain the confidentiality of the reporter's name and identity, unless ordered by the court.

Social Services Supervisor

1. Staff the case with the SSCM and SAAG prior to any court hearing.
2. Assist the SSCM in determining what to present when testifying in court.
3. Attend court hearings to provide guidance and support to the SSCM, as needed.

Practice Guidance

Filing a Motion to Close the Hearing

During the staffing with the SSS and SAAG, determine whether the SAAG needs to file a motion to request a closed hearing or to request certain individuals be excluded. Consideration should be given to the following:

1. The extent of disclosure necessary for the purposes of the court hearing with the goal of disclosing only that which is minimally necessary, if PHI is involved.

The subject of the PHI has a right to object to the disclosure of their PHI, making it necessary for the court to hold a hearing and make a ruling on the matter.

2. The age of the child, nature of the allegations and overall facts of the individual case.
3. The need to protect the privacy of any child, foster parent, caretaker or victim of domestic violence involved in the case.
4. Documentation in the record to support the decision regarding a motion to close the hearing.

Not all requests to close hearings or to exclude certain individuals will be granted; therefore, staff should be prepared to continue to provide documentation and testimony to the court.

Closing a Hearing or Excluding Individuals from a Hearing

The court may choose to close a court proceeding by issuing a signed order, which includes a finding that:

1. The case involves allegations of a sexual offense; or
2. Closing the proceeding is in the best interest of the child.

Rather than closing the hearing, the court may exclude certain individuals from the hearing on its own motion or by motion of any party, including the child who is the subject, if a finding is made that the person's presence would:

1. Be detrimental to the best interest of the child;
2. Impair the fact-finding process; or
3. Otherwise be contrary to the interest of justice.

Best Interest Determination Regarding Closing a Hearing

To make a determination around the best interest of the child, the court and DFCS should consider factors such as:

1. The age of the child;
2. The nature of the allegations;
3. The effect an open hearing will have on the court's ability to reunite and rehabilitate the family; and
4. Whether closure is necessary to protect the privacy of a child, foster parent, and/or other caretakers of a child or of a victim of domestic violence.

Codes/References

O.C.G.A. § 15-11-70 Risk and Needs Assessment Defined; Establishment of Family Treatment Court Division; Procedures; Fees; Acceptance of Grants or Donations

Requirements

The Division of Family and Children Services (DFCS) will:

1. Review court orders to determine whether the court has ruled that dependency is the result of the parent's, guardian's or legal custodian's substance abuse and the legal custody of the child cannot be transferred back to the parent, guardian, or legal custodian unless, the parent, guardian or legal custodian:
 - a. Undergoes substance abuse treatment and random drug screens and those screens remain negative for a period no less than 12 consecutive months; or
 - b. Successfully completes programming through a family treatment court division.

This requirement is applicable to any case where the child has been adjudicated dependent (including via a protective order) due to caregiver substance abuse, and the temporary legal custody of the child is transferred to another party, and the court further orders these provisions.

2. Engage the parent, guardian or legal custodian regarding the court ordered requirements as part of the case planning process.
3. Follow policy 19.26 Case Management: Case Management Involving Caregiver Substance Use or Abuse regarding provision and monitoring of substance abuse assessment and treatment services to parents, guardians or legal custodians.

Procedures

Social Services Case Manager

1. Engage the parent(s) in a discussion and full disclosure of the following:
 - a. The seriousness and implications of court requirements;
 - b. The importance of participation in and limited time available to obtain the required treatment, if ordered by the court;
 - c. The need for random drug screens, as applicable;
 - d. The consequences of not meeting court requirements, including impact on reunification with their child (see policy 10.22 Foster Care: Permanency Planning);
 - e. The services and supports available or planned to ensure he/she is successful in completing treatment and making behavioral changes.
2. Follow policy 19.26 Case Management: Case Management Involving Caregiver Substance Use or Abuse regarding providing case management services to parents, guardians or legal custodians.
3. Participate in family treatment court and ensure all recommendations are followed, if applicable.
4. Obtain an Authorization for Release of Information authorizing DFCS to receive the results of drug screens and other substance abuse assessment and treatment records.

5. Document the results of the drug screens in the narrative of the Contact Detail in Georgia SHINES and upload a copy into External Documentation in Georgia SHINES,
6. Participate in a staffing with the Social Services Supervisor (SSS), the Special Assistant Attorney General (SAAG) and other relevant county and regional staff to determine whether the case should be brought before the court for review, when the parent, guardian or legal custodian is non-compliant with substance abuse assessment or treatment services.

Social Services Supervisor

1. Review the case record in Georgia SHINES to confirm:
 - a. A substance abuse assessment was completed;
 - b. Treatment services have been implemented as recommended in the assessment;
 - c. Random drug screenings are occurring, when applicable;
 - d. Any court recommendations are followed, including any requirements from family treatment court, if applicable.
2. Conduct a staffing with the SSCM to:
 - a. Discuss the parent's/guardian's or legal custodian's participation and progress with services and/or treatment;
 - b. Determine DFCS' recommendations for any upcoming court hearings, including family treatment court hearings, if applicable;
 - c. Determine whether DFCS needs to request a court review due to non-compliance by the parent, guardian or legal custodian.

Practice Guidance

Dependency resulting from caregiver substance abuse presents significant challenges due to the amount of time a parent, guardian or legal custodian may need to sufficiently recover from their substance abuse coupled with the required time frames to achieve permanency for a child. Substance abuse treatment and recovery can be challenging and often involves relapse. Timely and effective services to address the substance abuse and underlying causes are paramount. The SSCM must work intensively with the parent to help them maintain focused on treatment and meeting the court's requirements to minimize the child's stay in foster care.

Family Treatment Court

Any juvenile court may establish a family treatment court division to provide an alternative to the traditional judicial system for the disposition of dependency cases and for assisting superior courts with criminal cases referred to such division under O.C.G.A. §15-11-15. The goal of a family treatment court division is to:

1. Reduce alcohol or drug abuse and addiction for respondents in dependency proceedings;
2. Improve permanency outcomes for families when dependency is based in part on alcohol or drug use and addiction;

3. Increase the personal, familial, and societal accountability of respondents in dependency proceedings; and
4. Promote effective intervention and use of resources among child welfare personnel, law enforcement agencies, treatment providers, community agencies, and the courts.

Each family treatment court division shall establish criteria which define the successful completion of the family treatment court division program.

Relapse Issues in Substance Abuse Cases

Relapse is defined as a falling back or sliding into a former state. Within the context of substance abuse, relapse is marked by a subsequent occurrence of drug use following a period of abstinence/sobriety. Relapse is an expected part of the recovery process. Relapse occurs in varying degrees, ranging from a single instance of drug use to an extended episode of bingeing that can last for several days. Relapse is most often triggered by physical, emotional and/or psychological cues in the environment (e.g., the smell and/or sight of the drug, a former hangout where the person used drugs, interaction with people with whom the person commonly used drugs, etc.). Signs of relapse include, but are not limited to:

1. Increasing lack of cooperation/avoiding behavior;
2. Deterioration in daily living activities;
3. Unexplained financial hardship;
4. Mood swings;
5. Depression, anger, anxiety, or paranoia;
6. Setting expectations that are too numerous or unrealistic;
7. Distancing from friends who are clean and sober; and
8. Re-establishing old relationships with drug-using acquaintances.

SSCMs should work with the family and treatment providers to develop a relapse plan that ensures the child's safety and well-being needs will be met. The SSCM must evaluate each occurrence of relapse individually, on a case-by-case basis. It may be necessary to request a subsequent assessment from a drug treatment provider with a recommendation of services needed. There are also times when it will be necessary to file a dependency complaint in juvenile court if the safety of a child cannot be ensured in the home or through other controlling safety interventions. If a child is not at imminent risk and/or safety is controlled through other means, the SSCM should evaluate the existing evidence of impending danger safety threats with the supervisor to determine whether court-ordered intervention is necessary for compliance with services. If the court is already involved, notification to the court of a relapse or of any significant changes to the case plan resulting from the relapse must occur.

Relapse Planning

Relapse planning involves the identification and development of a plan of action that the family agrees to follow in the event of a relapse. This may include outlining who will contact the DFCS case manager, participation in AA or NA, weekly telephone contact with an identified family member or friend, a temporary caregiving resource for the children, etc. The SSCM must discuss these plans with family members so that roles and responsibilities are clearly defined to ensure the safety of the child(ren) should relapse occur. Relapse planning should occur during DFCS involvement and prior to closing the case. Families should be engaged in relapse planning so they may continue to adjust the relapse plan as necessary when DFCS is no longer involved with the family.

The best predictor of whether a person will recover from an instance of relapse is the correct treatment intervention matched to the person’s stage of change. When there is no progress in other life areas (e.g., improved caregiver protective capacities or competency, financial stability, positive relationships, etc.), there is also a lack of necessary motivation to regain control over the addiction. To prevent the risk of relapse, address these factors as a part of case management activities with the caregiver regularly.

Private Vendors

Private vendors performing substance abuse screens and substance abuse assessments are bound by the confidentiality clause and Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act (HIPAA) provisions in their DFCS contracts. Private vendors are prohibited from revealing results of screens to anyone without a signed consent from the parent, guardian or legal custodian.

 Notice of and a right to be heard does not make the caregiver a party to the proceeding.

2. At least 72 hours in advance of a review or hearing, provide written notice of the date, time, place, and purpose of the review or hearing, including the right to be heard, to the caregivers of a child (i.e., foster or pre-adoptive parents, kin or other placement resources) by United States Postal Service (USPS) mail, e-mail, or hand delivery.

72 hours advance notice is not required for the preliminary protective hearings or emergency hearings, when such notice is not possible. When written notification cannot be provided, verbal notice shall be provided to the caregiver.

Procedures

Social Services Case Manager

1. Provide written notification to the child's caregiver of the hearing/review date and the caregiver's right to be heard.

Written notification must be provided via USPS mail, e-mail or hand delivery. When using e-mail transmission use reasonable and appropriate security measures to protect confidential information in accordance with policy 2.6 Information Management: Confidentiality/Safeguarding Information.

2. Provide verbal notification to the caregiver, when written notification cannot be provided due to a preliminary protective hearing or emergency hearing.
3. Document notification to the caregiver in the narrative of the Contact Detail page in Georgia SHINES within 72 hours of occurrence, including:

 - c. The caregiver's response to the notification.
 - d. Whether the caregiver plans to attend the hearing and if not, why not.
 - e. Explanation of the importance of the caregiver attending the hearing and the possibility of the caregiver being subpoenaed (see Practice Guidance: Caregiver's Right to be Heard)

Social Services Supervisor

1. Provide guidance to the SSCM to ensure timely notification is provided to the caregiver, prior to any hearing or review.
2. Review Georgia SHINES to verify timely notice has been provided.

Practice Guidance

Caregiver's Right to be Notified

Caregivers have the right to receive notice of hearings related to the children in their care. DFCS must support the court process by providing written notification to the caregivers to ensure their attendance and to coordinate the attendance of the foster child when appropriate. It is best practice to follow-up verbally with the caregiver by telephone or a face-to-face visit to ensure their understanding. In situations, such as Preliminary Protective Hearings, reasonable notice is required. When notice is received by DFCS less than 72 hours prior to the hearing date, verbal notification must be provided to the caregiver. If a verbal notification is given, concerted efforts must be made to speak directly with the caregiver. Concerted efforts involve making more than one contact, if necessary, and can include the following:

1. Calling the caregiver at all available contact numbers.
2. Leaving a detailed voicemail message.
3. Making a face-to-face visit.
4. Attempting to contact them at varying times throughout the day.

Caregiver's Right to be Heard

Caregivers (i.e. foster, adoptive, kin or guardian resources and other placement resources) have the right to be heard at hearings related to the children in their care. The caregiver's right to be heard at court hearings does not provide them the right to be made a party to the case; individuals who are parties to the case have the right to request an appeal, right to an attorney, and the right to call and cross-examine witnesses.

The SSCM must inform the caregiver that he or she may provide information to the court concerning the child's care and permanency plan. The SSCM must explain to the caregiver that the court is required to inquire about their view of the child's health, safety, well-being and service needs highlighting that this information may be provided to the court either through testimony or written documentation. The SSCM must consult with the SAAG to determine the method in which the caregiver will provide information to the court and the timeframe for submission.

The juvenile court is required to make specific findings of fact in its court order related to the caregiver's notice, attendance, testimony or documentary evidence. Such findings of fact shall include:

1. Whether the caregiver was provided notice of the hearing or review, including the method, and whether the caregiver expressed an interest in being heard at the hearing or review; and
2. If the caregiver is present specific information regarding the caregiver's views, including, but not limited to concerning the child's: Wellbeing, health and safety; Any changes the caregiver believes are necessary to advance the child's wellbeing, health and safety; The timeliness, necessity, and quality of services being provided to the child and caregiver; and a summary of documentation presented by the caregiver regarding the child's wellbeing, health, safety, including, but not limited to reports from physicians, counselors, psychologists, and teachers.

Juvenile Court Hearings

DFCS must ensure caregivers understand the judicial process as it relates to hearings. The SSCM must discuss with the caregiver the type of hearing that is to occur and the purpose of the hearing.

It is important to provide the caregiver with an overview of the hearing procedures and requirements of each respective hearing (see policy 17.1 Legal: The Juvenile Court Process). Juvenile Court hearings include Adjudication, Disposition, Case Plan Review, Permanency, Termination of Parental Rights and/or Judicial Citizen Review Panel.

When conducting the review to determine if a custodian continues to be qualified to provide care for the child, always assess the caregiver's protective capacity and child vulnerabilities to determine child safety, permanency and well-being. This includes reviewing all information from interviews with the family, and provided by collaterals to determine whether:

1. The child's health, emotional and behavioral needs being met.
2. The child's educational needs being met.
3. The child receives appropriate services when there are identified needs.
4. The child is thriving in the care of the custodian.
5. The living environment is safe, or if there are immediate threats or harm or emerging dangers.
6. There are competing needs within the family impacting the custodian's ability to continue to provide appropriate care for the child.

3. Engage the child in a discussion of the following:

- a. The name of the individual appointed as the CASA and/or GAL.
 - b. The duties and responsibilities of the CASA and/or GAL (See Practice Guidance: Duties and Responsibilities of a CASA and/or GAL).
 - c. CASA and/or GAL interactions with the child, including visits.

A CASA and/or GAL may only review records of a child for whom he or she is appointed. PHI of anyone other than the child in DFCS custody may not be provided to a CASA who is not a GAL.

6. Provide access to the DFCS case record and ensure the appointed CASA and/or GAL receives pertinent information regarding the child, as requested. DFCS staff must be physically present during the review as no CASA and/or GAL will be allowed unmonitored access to DFCS case records.

The names of reporters should be removed. Follow policy 2.5 Information Management and Documentation: Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act \(HIPAA\) regarding third-party Protected Health Information (PHI). PHI of anyone other than the child in DFCS custody may not be provided to a CASA not appointed as a GAL.

7. Provide copies of all case plans to the CASA and/or GAL.
8. Arrange for CASA and/or GAL to interview the child.
9. Invite the CASA and/or GAL to participate in case plan development, FTMs and case reviews (see policies 10.23 Foster Care: Case Planning, 19.3 Case Management: Solution Focused Family Team Meetings and 17.2 Legal: Case Review/Permanency Plan Hearings).
10. Notify the CASA and/or GAL of any significant changes in circumstances of the child's case (e.g. permanency plan, placement change, treatment, etc.).

Social Services Supervisor

1. Ensure a GAL is appointed for a child, prior to any dependency hearing.
2. Provide guidance to the SSCM on the collaboration and sharing of information with the CASA and/or GAL.

Practice Guidance

Court Appointed Special Advocate (CASA)

The Georgia CASA Program utilizes volunteers who are screened, trained and supervised in their role of advocating for the best interests of an abused or neglected child involved in dependency proceedings. About one-third of all Georgia counties have local CASA programs. There is a “Statewide Protocol” between DFCS and Georgia CASA. This protocol is designed to promote cooperation and coordination in working together around the needs of dependent children.

The role of a CASA in juvenile court dependency proceedings shall be to advocate for the best interests of the child. Before executing duties as a CASA and upon completion of all the requirements of an affiliate court appointed special advocate program, a CASA shall be sworn in by a judge of the Juvenile Court in the court or circuit in which he/she wishes to serve. A CASA shall not be assigned a case prior to being sworn in. The court may discharge a CASA when:

1. The CASA acted in a manner contrary to the child’s best interests;
2. The CASA has not appropriately participated in the case;
3. The court deems continued service as inappropriate or unnecessary; or
4. The CASA has acted in a manner contrary to the mission and purpose of the affiliate court appointed special advocate program.

The Department of Human Services (DHS) Personnel Policy Manual prohibits DFCS employees from serving on the Board of Directors of any agency that receives funds under a contract with the state. This prohibition applies to local CASA programs since the state organization has a contract with DHS. However, DFCS staff may serve in an advisory capacity of “liaison” to the Boards and Advisory Boards should there be such a position. The liaison will not be a voting Board member.

Attorneys and Guardians Ad Litem (GAL)

In any dependency proceeding, the court may appoint a GAL for a child who is a party to the proceeding if the child has no parent, guardian, or custodian appearing on the child’s behalf or if the interests of the parent, guardian or custodian conflict with the child’s interests, or in any other case in which the interest of a child requires a guardian. In dependency cases, an attorney or CASA or both, may be appointed as the child’s GAL. GALs who are not CASAs appointed as GALs do not have the same access to DFCS records as CASAs appointed as GALs. Thus, SSCMs should contact their SAAG when a non-CASA GAL requests access to records.

An attorney for an alleged dependent child may serve as a child’s GAL unless or until there is conflict of interest between the attorney’s duty to the child as the child’s attorney and the attorney’s opinion of the best interests of the child as GAL. A court shall appoint a CASA to act as GAL, whenever possible.

To comply with CAPTA, SAAGs will request that a GAL be appointed for all children in foster care via a motion at the preliminary protective hearing or in the dependency petition. While the GAL and DFCS share common goals in the safety, permanency, and well-being of the child, their perspectives differ in that GAL is child focused while the DFCS focuses on the child and the family, simultaneously.

Before appointment as a GAL, the individual shall have received training appropriate to the role as GAL which is administered or approved by the Office of the Child Advocate for the Protection of Children. For attorneys, pre-appointment GAL training shall be satisfied within the attorney's existing continuing legal education obligation and shall not require the attorney to complete additional training hours.

The court may remove a GAL from a case when:

1. The GAL acted in a manner contrary to the child's best interests.
2. The GAL has not appropriately participated in the case.
3. The court deems continued service as inappropriate or unnecessary.

Best Interest Determination

A CASA and/or GAL shall advocate for a child's best interests in the proceeding for which he/she was appointed. In determining a child's best interest, a CASA and/or GAL shall consider and evaluate all the factors affecting the best interests of a child based on a child's age and developmental needs. Such factors shall include:

1. The physical safety and welfare of the child, including food, shelter, health and clothing;
2. The mental and physical health of all individuals involved;
3. Evidence of domestic violence in any current, past or considered home for the child;
4. The child's background and ties including familial, cultural and religious;
5. The child's sense of attachments, including his/her sense of security and familiarity, and continuity of affection for the child;
6. The least disruptive placement alternative for the child;
7. The child's wishes and long-term goals;
8. The child's community ties including church, school and friends;
9. The child's need for permanence, including the child's need for stability and continuity of relationships with his/her parent, siblings, other relatives;
10. The uniqueness of every family and child;
11. The risks to entering and being in substitute care;
12. The preferences of the persons available to care for the child; and
13. Any other factors considered by the GAL to be relevant and proper to its determination.

Duties and Responsibilities of a CASA and/or GAL

Unless a child's circumstances render the following duties and responsibilities unreasonable, a GAL, at a minimum, shall:

1. Maintain regular and sufficient face-to-face contact with the child and, in a manner appropriate to the child's developmental level, meet with and interview the child prior to custody hearings,

- adjudication hearings, disposition hearings, judicial reviews and any other hearings scheduled;
2. In a manner appropriate to the child's developmental level, ascertain the child's needs, circumstances and views;
 3. Conduct an independent assessment to determine the facts and circumstances surrounding the case;
 4. Consult with the child's attorney, if appointed separately, regarding the issues in the proceeding;
 5. Communicate with health care, mental health and other professionals involved in the child's case;
 6. Review case study and educational, medical, psychological and other relevant reports relating to the child and the parents, guardians or legal custodians;
 7. Review all court related documents;
 8. Attend all court hearings and other proceedings to advocate for the child's best interests;
 9. Advocate for timely court hearings to obtain permanency for the child;
 10. Protect the cultural needs of the child;
 11. Contact the child prior to any proposed change in the child's placement and after changes in the placement;
 12. Request a judicial citizen review panel or judicial review of the case;
 13. Attend judicial citizen review panels concerning the child and if unable to attend, forward a letter to the panel outlining the child's status since the last citizen review panel and include an assessment of the DFCS permanency plan and treatment plans;
 14. Provide written reports to the courts and the parties on the child's best interests, including, but not limited to:
 - a. Recommendations regarding placement;
 - b. Updates on the child's adjustment to placement;
 - c. DFCS' and parent's, guardian's or legal custodian's compliance with prior court orders and treatment plans;
 - d. The child's degree of participation during visitations; and
 - e. Any other recommendations based on the best interests of the child.
 15. When appropriate, encourage settlement and the use of alternative forms of dispute resolution and participate in such processes to the extent permitted; and
 16. Monitor compliance with the case plan and all court orders.

The SSCM's responsibilities to the CASA and/or GAL are:

1. To arrange for the CASA and/or GAL to interview the child and all parties having knowledge of the child's situation.
2. To inform the foster parent or facility staff person that a CASA and/or GAL has been assigned to the child as soon as the identity of the CASA is known.
3. To immediately inform the CASA and/or GAL of the child's change in placement or any other significant change which could impact the CASA's and/or GAL's role or decisions.

4. To share pertinent information regarding the child with the CASA and/or GAL in a timely manner; at a minimum, contacts between the CASA and/or GAL and DFCS need to occur monthly.
5. To make the DFCS case record available for review in the DFCS office (after removing the names of reporters). Follow HIPAA policy regarding the release of third-party PHI.
6. To provide written notification for the CASA and/or GAL to attend and participate in case plan meetings and reviews.
7. To provide copies of all current case plans.
8. To share and discuss with each other case specific recommendations, written suggestions and findings that will be included in reports to be submitted to the court (reaching consensus is not required).

It is in the best interest of children and their families that collaboration occurs between DFCS and CASAs and/or GALs throughout the life of the case. Discussing the child prior to court hearings helps to prevent disputes that may impede the court process.

Requirements

The Division of Family and Children Services (DFCS) will:

1. File petitions for termination of parental rights (TPR) for children in foster care, when it is in the best interest of the child and in accordance with all applicable state and federal laws.
2. Adhere to the Indian Child Welfare Act (ICWA) notification requirements for termination proceedings and inform the court if there is reason to know a child is a member of a federally recognized Indian tribe; or eligible for membership in a federally recognized Indian tribe, and is the biological child of a member/citizen of a federally recognized Indian tribe (see policy 1.6 Administration: Indian Child Welfare Act \(ICWA\) and Transfer of Responsibility for Placement and Care to a Tribal Agency).
3. File a petition (or if such a petition has been filed by another party, seek to be joined as a party to the petition), when appropriate to terminate the parental rights of a parent(s):
 - a. Whose child has been in foster care under the responsibility of DFCS for 15 of the most recent 22 months. The petition must be filed by the end of the child's 15th month in foster care. In calculating when to file a petition for termination of parental rights, DFCS:
 - i. Will calculate the 15 out of the most recent 22-month period from the date the child entered foster care;
 - ii. Will use a cumulative method of calculation when a child experiences multiple exits from and entries into foster care during the 22-month period;
 - iii. Will not include trial home visits or runaway episodes in calculating 15 months in foster care; and
 - iv. Only applies the "15 out of 22 months" rule to a child once if DFCS does not file a petition because one of the exceptions applies.
 - b. When the court has determined the parent has subjected the child to aggravated circumstances (see policy 9.5 Eligibility: Reasonable Efforts);
 - c. Whose child has been determined by a court of competent jurisdiction to be an abandoned infant (as defined under State/Tribal law). The petition to terminate parental rights is made within 60 days of the judicial determination that the child is an abandoned infant; or

Under such circumstances, the petition to terminate parental rights is to be made within 60 days of a judicial determination that reasonable efforts to reunify the child and parent are not required.

- i. Murder (which would have been an offense under section 1111(a) of Title 18, United States Code, if the offense had occurred in the special maritime or territorial jurisdiction of the United States) or murder in the second degree of another child of the parent;
 - ii. Voluntary manslaughter (which would have been an offense under section 1112(a) of Title 18, United States Code, if the offense had occurred in the special maritime or territorial jurisdiction of the United States) of another child of the parent;
 - iii. Voluntary manslaughter of the other parent of the child;
 - iv. Aiding or abetting, attempting, conspiring, or soliciting to commit murder or voluntary manslaughter of another child of the parent;
 - v. Aiding or abetting, attempting, conspiring, or soliciting to commit murder or voluntary manslaughter of the other parent of the child; or
 - vi. A felony assault that results in serious bodily injury to the child or another child of the parent.
 - vii. When the parent or legal guardian has committed sexual abuse against the surviving child or another child of the parent; or
 - viii. When the parent or legal guardian is required to register with a sex offender registry under section 113 (a) of the Adam Walsh Child Protection and Safety Act of 2006.
4. At its discretion, may elect not to file or join a petition to terminate the parental rights of a parent if:
- a. At the option of DFCS, the child is being cared for by a relative that intends to be a permanent placement for such child in accordance with a permanency plan approved by the court and in a time frame that is consistent with the developmental needs of such child;
 - b. DFCS has documented in the case plan (which must be available for court review) a compelling reason for determining that filing such a petition would not be in the best interest of the individual child; or
 - c. DFCS has not provided to the family, consistent with the time period in the case plan, services that DFCS deems necessary for the safe return of the child to the home when reasonable efforts to reunify the child are required.
5. Concurrently begin to identify, recruit, process, and approve a qualified adoptive family for the child, when DFCS files or joins a petition to terminate parental rights.
6. Ensure the DFCS County Director/Designee approves and confirms in writing the decision to file TPR based on:
- a. The circumstances of the case;
 - b. Documentation of evidence; and
 - c. The goal of adoption being a viable permanent plan.
7. Use any of the following grounds outlined in state law, when filing a petition for TPR:
- a. The parent has given written consent to termination which has been acknowledged by the court or has voluntarily surrendered his or her child to DFCS for adoption;
 - b. The parent has subjected his/her child to aggravated circumstances;

- c. The parent has wantonly and willfully failed to comply with court-ordered support for a period of 12 months or longer;
 - d. The parent has abandoned the child;
 - e. A child is a dependent child due to lack of proper parental care or control by his or her parent, reasonable efforts to remedy the circumstances have been unsuccessful or were not required, such dependency is likely to continue or will likely not be remedied in the reasonably foreseeable future, and:
 - i. Returning the child to the parent is likely to cause serious physical, mental, moral, or emotional harm to the child or threaten the physical safety or well-being of the child; or
 - ii. Continuation of the parent-child relationship will cause or is likely to cause serious physical, mental, moral, or emotional harm to the child.
8. Refrain from accepting a parent's surrender of their rights to the child once a TPR petition has been filed unless the parent:
 - a. Consents to a judgment terminating his/her parental rights; and
 - b. Executes an act of surrender in favor of:
 - i. A third party, if all parties to the petition to terminate parental rights agree; or
 - ii. DFCS.
 9. Ensure the court appoints an attorney to represent the child in TPR proceedings. The court may also appoint this person as the Guardian ad Litem (GAL) or shall appoint a separate GAL.
 10. Prepare for, attend, and participate in TPR hearings.
 11. Make efforts to permanently place the child with kin following a TPR order if the individual is willing and found by the court to be qualified to receive and care for the child.
 12. Acknowledge that the parent(s) have 30 days from the day the termination order is filed in which to appeal.

 The person appealing a TPR decision must seek a discretionary appeal as there is no longer an appeal right in TPR cases. The decision to terminate parental rights stands if an application for a discretionary appeal is not filed within 30 days after the termination order (the order is signed by the judge and filed with the clerk of court) or a notice of appeal is not filed within ten days after the appellate court enters an order permitting the appeal. If the application for appeal is granted and the Notice of Appeal is filed timely, the juvenile court order stands until the appeal is resolved. The County Department continues with the legal right to the care and control of the child.

13. Acknowledge that a child may petition the court to reinstate parental rights if:
 - a. He/she has not been adopted after three years from the TPR date or date of voluntary surrender; and
 - b. The court has determined the permanency plan is no longer adoption.

 The petition may be filed prior to the three-year timeframe if the child and DFCS or licensed child-placing agency (with custody of the child) stipulates that the child is no longer likely to be adopted. A child 14 years of age or older shall sign the petition unless there is good cause why they should not.

Procedures

Social Services Case Manager

1. Monitor alerts and the Case Watch page in Georgia SHINES to ensure the TPR is filed timely or a compelling reason for not filing is documented.
2. Review the case record to ensure all relevant information is documented to support the filing including:
 - a. All contacts (telephone, email, written correspondence, and face-to-face contacts) with the parent(s), child, placement resource, kin, service providers, and other collaterals;
 - b. Parent-child visitation;
 - i. When visits were scheduled;
 - ii. Whether or not the visits occurred, where they occurred and the duration of the visits;
 - iii. Why visits did not occur and efforts to resolve barriers to visitation;
 - iv. The quality and quantity of interaction between the parent and child during visitation;
 - v. The degree of understanding and acceptance shown by the parent toward the child and the child's reaction to the parent; and
 - vi. The placement provider's description of the child's behavior after parent-child visits.
 - c. Referrals for services;
 - i. Dates and reasons for the referral;
 - ii. Participation by the parent(s) in services;
 - iii. Missed appointments and the reasons for missed appointments;
 - iv. Follow-up contact with the service providers;
 - v. Recommendations of the service providers;
 - vi. Progress made by the parent(s) including behavioral changes observed.
 - d. All efforts made to fulfill the case plan requirements and/or engage parents who are not complying with the case plan, including any diligent search efforts to locate an absent parent (see policy 19.20 Case Management: Diligent Search).
3. Determine, in collaboration with the Social Services Supervisor (SSS), if TPR is in the best interest of the child and the timeframe for filing the petition for TPR or documenting the compelling reasons for not filing the petition;

Consider the “15 out of 22 months” as the maximum length of time a child can be in foster care before mandated termination action takes place unless a compelling reason for an exception to filing for TPR is documented in the case plan.

4. Conduct a Family Team Meeting (FTM) or other family meeting (see policy 19.3 Case Management: Solution-Focused Family Team Meetings) to:
 - a. Discuss the decision to file a TPR petition and provide formal notification;

- b. Plan for permanency for the child; and
 - c. Inform the child and family about the process for reinstatement of parental rights if TPR is granted).
5. Discuss and document in the Case Plan in Georgia SHINES, the specific reason for not filing the TPR if the decision is not to file a TPR based on any of the following:
- a. The child is placed with a relative:
 - i. Where the child is placed;
 - ii. Length of time in the home;

 - viii. Permanency of the placement in accordance with the permanency plan approved by the court and in a time frame that is consistent with the developmental needs of the child;
 - ix. Potential for permanency through adoption or guardianship.

Placing the child with a relative does not preclude consideration of permanency through adoption or guardianship (see policy 10.22 Foster Care: Permanency Planning).

- b. The compelling reason(s) for determining that filing the TPR petition is not in the best interest of the child (see Practice Guidance: Exceptions to Filing for TPR).
 - c. Failure to provide services to facilitate reunification:
 - i. The specific reunification services not provided, but considered necessary for the child's safe return;
 - ii. The reason such services are delayed or have not been provided within the time frames outlined in the case plan;
 - iii. Steps to remedy the failure to provide services;
 - iv. If services are provided, the likelihood, it will bring about safe reunification within a specified time (indicate that time frame).
6. Check the Putative Father Registry to identify any possible biological fathers, who are not the legal father of the child, if not previously completed (see policy 11.2 Adoption: Putative Father Registry and Birth Certificates).
7. Prepare the Termination Packet:
- a. The information provided in the Termination Packet should allow the Special Assistant Attorney General (SAAG) to determine if:
 - i. The evidence will satisfy the grounds for TPR; and
 - ii. All requisite steps have been fulfilled to prepare the TPR petition.

- b. Submit the TPR Packet to the SSS for review and approval.
 - c. Submit the TPR Packet to the SAAG within 30 days of written approval from the County Director/Designee.
8. Staff with the SAAG to prepare for the TPR hearing, by reviewing:
- a. The evidence

 - e. Explanation of the importance of attending the hearing and the possibility of being subpoenaed (see Practice Guidance: Caregiver Testimony Dispositional Phase of TPR)
 - f. Whether he/she will present verbal or written testimony and/or documentation and if not, why not
10. Attend the TPR hearing and be prepared to testify.
11. Notify the Adoption Exchange, State Adoption Unit within twenty-four hours of a TPR of a child that fits the description of a Wait List child (see policy 11.4 Adoption: Wait List);
12. Update the Legal Action and Outcomes Detail page in Georgia SHINES;
-  The State Office Adoption Unit is notified in Georgia SHINES by a system-generated alert once the Legal Action and Outcomes Detail page is updated.
13. Obtain and review the TPR court order for accuracy and that it includes the required language and court-ordered recommendations (see policy 17.3 Legal: Court Orders and Placement Authority). Upload the court order to Georgia SHINES External Documentation.
14. Proceed with finalizing the permanency plan of adoption if TPR is granted and the parent(s) do not file an appeal within the required time frame (see policy 11.1 Adoption: Adoption Preparation).
15. When TPR is granted, and the parent(s) file an appeal:
- a. Offer brief supportive services to the parent(s);
 - b. Provide a list of community agencies that may be able to support the family during the appeal process;
 - c. Continue parent-child visitation when in the best interest of the child unless the court order states otherwise;

- d. Engage the family in adoption planning (see policy 11.1 Adoption: Adoption Preparation).
16. If a child requests to have parental rights reinstated:
- a. Explore the reinstatement with the child, GAL, placement resource, and the child's support team, including:
 - i. Whether the request meets the provision of the law for reinstatement of parental rights;
 - ii. The child's reason for wanting reinstatement;
 - iii. Other permanency options available to the child;
 - iv. Any contact between the child and parent(s) since TPR;
 - v. The impact on the child's safety, permanency, and well-being if parental rights are reinstated or if the parent chooses not to reinstate his/her rights;
 - vi. The current protective capacities of the parent(s) and the current child vulnerabilities; and
 - vii. The child's expectations of what will occur if parental rights are reinstated.
 - b. Inform the child his/her GAL will assist in filing a petition to reinstate parental rights;
 - c. Complete a Kinship Assessment on the parent(s) (see policy 22.3 Kinship: Kinship Assessment);
 - d. Participate in a staffing with the SSS and SAAG to determine DFCS' recommendations regarding reinstatement;
 - e. Attend and participate in any court hearings regarding reinstatement;
 - f. Provide transition services to the child and family when ordered by the court if reinstatement is granted.

Social Services Supervisor

1. Monitor the Georgia SHINES Case Watch page to ensure timely filing of TPR or a compelling reason for not filing is documented.
2. Review the case record to determine whether:
 - a. Reasonable efforts are being made to reunify the child and family or achieve an alternate permanency plan;
 - b. Sufficient evidence exists to support TPR and the recommended permanency plan to be considered by the court.
3. Conduct a supervisor staffing with the SSCM to determine whether TPR is in the best interest of the child (see Practice Guidance: Best Interests Determination).
4. Review the TPR Packet for accuracy and completeness:
 - a. If the TPR Packet is incomplete, return the packet to the SSCM indicating what information is required.
 - b. If the TPR Packet is complete, submit the packet to the County Director/Designee for review and approval.
5. Participate in the staffing with the SSCM and SAAG prior to a TPR hearing.

6. Provide guidance to the SSCM on how to prepare and testify at the hearing. Attend court hearings to provide guidance and support to the SSCM, as needed.
7. Review the TPR court order for accuracy and that it includes the required language and court-ordered recommendations (see policy 17.3 Legal: Court Orders and Placement Authority).
8. Ensure documentation is entered, court orders are uploaded, and the appropriate pages are updated in Georgia Shines within 72 hours of the occurrence.
9. Monitor appeal timeframes to ensure:
 - a. Timely achievement of the permanency plan if no appeal is filed;
 - b. Ongoing follow-up with the SAAG, if an appeal is filed.
10. Support the SSCM to ensure brief supportive services and continued visitation (when determined in the best interest of the child and not prohibited by court order) are provided to the parents, if the TPR is under appeal.
 -  If services to facilitate reunification were not provided, notify the County Director and Regional Director in writing.
11. Conduct a staffing with the SSCM to determine that it meets the provisions of the law and DFCS' recommendation if a child wishes to petition the court to reinstate parental rights.

County Director/Designee

1. Review the TPR Packet and make an approval determination.

Practice Guidance

Termination of parental rights is the most serious legal action DFCS can take regarding the parent/child relationship. A TPR order is without limit as to duration. Once issued and not overturned by appeal, the order is permanent. If the court commits the child to the permanent custody of DHS, the County Department has all the rights and responsibilities of the legal custodian, including the authority to consent to marriage, enlistment in the Armed Services, any surgical procedure or other medical treatment for the child, adoption.

When a mother's parental rights have been terminated (voluntary or involuntary), she no longer has the right or authority to sign an acknowledgment of paternity form or to consent to the granting of a petition of legitimation for the same child. When parental rights are terminated, there is the expectation that the child will achieve permanency through adoption. To make sure that agency efforts are directed toward achieving this outcome, both federal and state law require certain status reports, hearings, and case plan documentation as a way to provide judicial oversight of agency efforts to place the child in an adoptive home (see policy 17.2 Legal: Case Review/Permanency Plan Hearings and 17.1 Legal: The Juvenile Court Process).

Abandonment

Abandonment or abandoned means any conduct on the part of a parent, guardian, or legal custodian showing an intent to forgo parental duties or relinquish parental claims. Intent to forgo parental duties or relinquish parental claims may be evidenced by:

1. Failure, for a period of at least six months, to communicate meaningfully with a child;
2. Failure, for a period of at least six months, to maintain regular visitation with a child;
3. Leaving a child with another person without provision for his/her support for a period of at least six months;
4. Failure, for a period of at least six months, to participate in any court-ordered plan or program designed to reunite a child's parent, guardian, or legal custodian with his/her child;
5. Leaving a child without affording any means of identifying such child or his or her parent, guardian, or legal custodian and:
 - a. The identity of such child's parent, guardian or legal custodian cannot be ascertained despite diligent searching; and
 - b. A parent, guardian or legal custodian has not come forward to claim such child within three months following the finding of the child.
6. Being absent from the home of his/her child for a period of time that creates a substantial risk of serious harm to a child left in the home;
7. Failure to respond, for a period of at least six months, to notice of child protective proceedings;
or
8. Any other conduct indicating intent to forgo parental duties or relinquish parental claims.

Written Confirmation by the County Director/Designee

Confirmation in writing may include the County Director's/Designee's signature on a staffing form where the decision to file TPR is made; signature on the Legal Services Request to file TPR; or documentation by the County Director/Designee in the narrative of Contact Detail in Georgia SHINES.

Exceptions to Filing for TPR

The County Department must continue to develop and re-evaluate the child's permanency plan and follow permanency hearing requirements despite documenting a compelling reason for not filing TPR. Examples of compelling reasons for not filing TPR should be case-specific and may include:

1. A parent of the child is successfully participating in services that will make it possible for the child to safely return home;
2. Another permanency plan is better suited to meet the health and safety needs of the child. The following situations are examples of when an alternative permanency plan may be in the child's best interest:
 - a. The child is 14 years of age or older and objects to the TPR;

 Prior to accepting a child's objection, the court shall personally question the child in chambers to determine whether the objection is a voluntary and knowledgeable choice.
 - b. The child is 16 years of age or older and requests that emancipation be selected as the permanency plan;
 - c. The parent and child have a significant bond, but the parent is unable to care for the child because of an emotional or physical disability and the child's caregiver has committed to raising the child to adulthood and facilitating visits with the parent;

- d. The child is in a residential treatment facility that provides services designed to address the child's treatment needs and the court determines the child's needs could not be served in a less restrictive environment.
3. The child is living with a relative who is unable or unwilling to adopt, but who is willing and capable of providing the child with a stable and permanent home environment and the removal from this relative would be detrimental to the child's emotional well-being;
4. The court or Judicial Citizen Review Panel (JCRP), in a prior hearing or review, determined that DFCS did not make reasonable efforts to reunify the family;
5. The child is an unaccompanied refugee or there are international legal obligations or foreign policy reasons that would preclude TPR.

If a child is alleged or adjudicated to have committed a delinquent act and is also in foster care, the following would be additional compelling reasons for not filing for TPR:

1. The child's developmental needs require continued out-of-home placement for an additional number of months and his parent, guardian, or legal custodian has cooperated with referrals, visitation, family conferences, and therapy;
2. A child is uncooperative with services or referrals; and
3. The length of the delinquency disposition affects the permanency plan.

If reunification cannot occur within the time frame specified in the case plan, but it is not appropriate to abandon it as the permanency plan, reunification efforts may continue within a reasonable extension of time which is consistent with the child's developmental needs. The reasons why the continuation is needed and a projected reunification date should be clearly documented.

Termination Packet

The Termination Packet is designed to expedite the process of moving children to permanency. While the SAAG may request additional documents and/or case information, the Termination Packet should be completed with attachments as listed in each section, including, but not limited to:

1. Copies of any legitimation and/or adoption orders;
2. Copies of the executed voluntary surrender documents when a parent has voluntarily surrendered their rights to DFCS;
3. All case plans for the prior 18 months;
4. A copy of the birth certificate for each child;
5. Any additional information that will assist the SAAG in completing a petition to TPR.

The SAAG should prepare the termination petition and have it ready for verification and filing within 30 days of receipt of the completed Termination Packet. Any delays in receipt of the petition should be discussed with the SAAG. The DHS Office of General Counsel may need to be notified of repeated delays.

Petitions for TPR

A petition for TPR shall:

1. Clearly state that an order for TPR is requested;
2. State the statutory grounds on which the petition is based;
3. Set forth:
 - a. The facts that bring the child within the jurisdiction including a statement that it is in the best interests of the child and public that the proceedings be brought;
 - b. The name, age, date of birth, and residence address of the child;
 - c. The name and residence address of the parent, guardian, or legal custodian or if the parent, guardian, or legal custodian does not reside or cannot be found in the state, the name of any adult relative residing in the county or if none, the adult relative living closest to the court;
 - d. Whether the child is in protective custody and if so, the place of his/her foster care and the time the child was taken into protective custody; and
 - e. Whether any of the above information is unknown.

When a petition for TPR seeks termination of the rights of a biological father who is not the legal father and who has not surrendered his rights to the child, the petition shall include a certificate from the putative father registry disclosing the name, address and social security number of any registrant acknowledging paternity of the child or the possibility of paternity of a child of the child's mother for a period beginning no more than two years immediately before the child's birth. The certificate shall document a search of the registry on or before the date the petition was filed and shall include a statement that the registry is current to the date of the filing of the petition.

Seeking to be Joined as a Party to a Petition

Consult with the SAAG regarding how DFCS becomes "joined" as a party to a petition for TPR which has already been filed by another party on the child's behalf.

TPR Hearing

TPR hearings should be conducted within 90 days of the date the TPR petition is filed unless the court determines that just cause for a delay is shown. A TPR proceeding shall be commenced in the county:

1. That has jurisdiction over related dependency proceedings;
2. In which the child legally resides;
3. In which a child is present when the termination proceeding is commenced, if the child is present without his/her parent, guardian, or legal custodian; or
4. Where the acts underlying the petition to terminate parental rights are alleged to have occurred.

For the convenience of the parties, the court may transfer proceedings to the county in which the parent of a child adjudicated as a dependent child legally resides. If a proceeding is transferred, certified copies of all legal and social documents and records pertaining to the proceeding on file with the clerk of court shall accompany the transfer.

In all TPR proceedings, the standard of proof is by clear and convincing evidence. If no just cause for delay has been shown by a written finding of fact by the court, an order of disposition shall be issued by the juvenile court no later than 30 days after the conclusion of the hearing on the TPR petition. Once TPR has been ordered, the parent whose rights have been terminated is not entitled to be notified of any adoption proceeding or have the right to object to any adoption. The relationship between a child and his/her siblings shall not be severed until a final order of adoption. Despite TPR, a relative's relationship for the purpose of placement and permanency remains intact until terminated by a final order of adoption.

Caregiver Participation in Hearings

The juvenile court is required to make specific findings of fact in its court order related to the caregiver's notice, attendance, testimony, or documentary evidence. Such findings of fact shall include:

1. Whether the caregiver was provided notice of the hearing or review, including the method, and whether the caregiver expressed an interest in being heard at the hearing or review; and
2. If the caregiver is present at the hearing, specific information regarding the caregiver's views, including, but not limited to those concerning the child's: well-being, health, and safety; Any changes the caregiver believes are necessary to advance the child's wellbeing, health and safety; The timeliness, necessity, and quality of services being provided to the child and caregiver; and a summary of the documentation presented by the caregiver regarding the child's well-being, health, safety, including, but not limited to reports from physicians, counselors, psychologists, and teachers.

Evidence Standard and Best Interest in TPR Cases

DFCS' evidence must support its petition for TPR. The burden of proof is on DFCS to prove by clear and convincing evidence that the child is dependent and grounds for TPR exist. In considering TPR, the following factors are considered by the court:

1. Standard of Evidence - There must be clear and convincing evidence of parental misconduct or inability to care for the child; and
2. Best Interest of the Child - If the standard of evidence can be satisfied, then the court must determine that termination is in the best interest of the child.

In determining whether the child is without proper parental care and control, the court shall consider, without being limited to, the following:

1. A medically verifiable deficiency of the parent's physical, mental, or emotional health of such duration or nature as to render the parent unable to provide adequately for the child;
2. Excessive use of or history of chronic, un-rehabilitated substance abuse with the effect of rendering the parent incapable of providing adequately for the physical, mental, emotional, or moral conditions and needs of the child;
3. Conviction of the parent of a felony and imprisonment, which has a demonstrable negative effect on the quality of the parent-child relationship;
4. Egregious conduct or evidence of past egregious conduct of the parent toward the child or another child of a physically, emotionally, or sexually cruel or abusive nature;

5. Physical, mental, or emotional neglect of the child or evidence of past physical, mental, or emotional neglect of the child or of another child by the parent; and
6. Serious bodily injury or death of a sibling under circumstances that constitute substantial evidence that such injury or death resulted from parental neglect or abuse.

A parent's reliance on prayer or other religious non-medical means for healing instead of medical care in the exercise of religious beliefs, shall not be the sole basis for determining a parent to be unwilling or unable to provide safety and care adequate to meet his/her child's physical, emotional, and mental health needs.

In addition to the above considerations that a child is without proper parental care or control, the court shall consider, without being limited to, whether the parent, without justifiable cause, has failed significantly for a period of six months or longer prior to the filing of the petition for TPR to:

1. Develop and maintain a parental bond with the child in a meaningful, supportive manner.
2. Provide for the care and support of the child as required by law or judicial decree; and
3. Comply with a court-ordered case plan designed to reunite the child with the parent(s).

TPR shall be ordered when the court finds:

1. Any ground for TPR is proven by clear and convincing evidence; and
2. TPR is in a child's best interest.

Best Interest Determination in TPR Cases

At least 30 days prior to the fifteenth month a child has been in foster care and when the court deems it appropriate, the court shall review DFCS's determination that filing a petition to terminate parental rights would not be in the best interests of such child. Such a hearing may be in conjunction with other matters of the case. At such hearing, the court may appoint an attorney guardian ad litem, who may, after his or her own determination, file a petition to terminate parental rights on behalf of the child. The court in its sole discretion may make any additional rulings.

If any of the statutory grounds for TPR have been met, the court shall then consider whether TPR is in the child's best interest after considering the following:

1. The child's sense of attachments including his/her sense of security and familiarity, and the continuity of affection for the child;
2. The child's wishes and long-term goals;
3. The child's need for permanence including his/her need for stability and continuity of relationships with parents, siblings, and other kin;
4. Any benefit to the child of being integrated into a stable and permanent home and the likely effect of delaying the integration into the stable and permanent home environment;
5. The detrimental impact of the lack of a stable permanent home environment on the child's safety, well-being, or physical, mental, or emotional health;
6. The child's future physical, mental, moral, or emotional well-being; and

7. Any other factors considered to be relevant and proper to its determination (see Practice Guidance: Best Interest Determination in policy 17.1 Legal: The Juvenile Court Process).

If the court determines that a parent has subjected his/her child to aggravated circumstances because such parent has committed the murder of the other parent, the court shall presume that TPR is in the best interests of the child.

Custody of Child following Termination Proceedings or Surrender of Parental Rights

After TPR, the court shall determine if the placement is in the child's best interests and in accordance with the court-approved permanency plan. In determining which placement is in the child's best interests, the court shall enter findings of fact considering the following:

1. The child's need for a placement that offers the greatest degree of legal permanence and security;
2. The least disruptive placement for the child;
3. The child's sense of attachment and need for continuity of relationships;
4. The value of biological and familial connections; and
5. Any other factors the court deems relevant to its determination.

The court may consider any evidence, including hearsay evidence, that the court finds to be relevant, reliable, and necessary to determine the needs of the child and the permanency and custody of a child whose parents have had their parental rights terminated or who have surrendered their parental rights.

Caregiver Testimony Dispositional Phase of TPR

After TPR is granted, during the dispositional phase of such case, the court shall in making disposition consider the testimony of and evidence provided by a foster parent, caregiver, relative, or other individual in whose physical custody the child has resided for at least 12 months during a period ending not more than 90 days preceding the filing of the petition, provided that such individual expresses a desire and willingness to adopt the child. Such testimony and evidence may include evidence regarding the level of attachment and bonding between the child and caregiver; the child's health, safety, and well-being; and such other evidence the court may consider relevant to its disposition of the case. The court may in its discretion limit the scope of such evidence as it may deem relevant and material to the dispositional issues at hand.

Notice of Appeal

If an application for a discretionary appeal is filed and granted by the appellate court and a Notice of Appeal is timely filed, the termination order may be appealed to the Court of Appeals and may later be appealed to the Supreme Court. Both courts do not take testimony but render their decision on review of the court hearing. This is the reason it is critical to enter all the major points to support termination during the hearing. No new evidence may be entered when the case is under appeal.

The appeal of an order granting a petition to terminate parental rights shall stay an adoption proceeding related to the child who is the subject of the order until the order becomes by the conclusion of appellate proceedings or the expiration of the time for seeking such review. Except for proceedings in connection with an adoption, the court shall continue to conduct hearings and issue orders in accordance with Chapter 15 of OCGA while an appeal is pending.

If the termination decision is overturned, the Court of Appeals can determine who should have custody of the child when the court gives its decision. If the appellate decision is for the parent to have custody, this would supersede the temporary custody order of the juvenile court and would be put in effect by the juvenile court when the Court of Appeals remittitur (mandate) is received. A juvenile court judge may also change the temporary custody order in response to the Court of Appeals overturning a decision. The person or agency having custody of the child would depend upon the wording of the court orders. Consult with your SAAG and the Office of General Counsel for guidance in these situations.

Reinstatement of Parental Rights

Because termination of parental rights is the most serious legal action DFCS can initiate upon the parent/child relationship, it should not be done hastily and without clear consideration of the child's best interest. In the same regard, if a child wishes to have his/her parent's rights reinstated, the SSCM should assist the child in exploring what this means for the child and the impact it may have on the child's safety, permanency, and well-being. If the parents' circumstances have not significantly changed to where they are now capable of providing the proper care and supervision for the child, it is unlikely the court would reinstate the parental rights. The SSCM should explore all possible outcomes with the child including the possibility that the parent does not want their rights reinstated. If the child wishes to proceed with filing a petition to reinstate parental rights, the GAL should assist the child in filing a petition.

If it appears it is in the best interests of the child to reinstate parental rights, the court shall order that a hearing be held and shall cause notice to be served by US mail to DFCS, the attorney of record, the GAL (if any), the foster parents (if any) and the child's former parent's whose rights were terminated. The former parents and foster parents shall have a right to be heard at the hearing; however, they will not be made parties to the hearing and the hearing may be conducted in their absence. A child's motion shall be dismissed if their parent cannot be located or if the parent objects to the reinstatement.

The court shall grant the petition if it finds by clear and convincing evidence that the child is no longer likely to be adopted and that reinstatement of parental rights is in the child's best interests. To determine whether reinstatement is in the child's best interests the court shall consider, but not be limited to, the following:

1. Whether a parent whose rights are to be reinstated is a fit parent and has remedied the deficits outlined in the termination order;
2. The age and maturity of the child and the ability of the child to express their preference;
3. Whether the reinstatement of parental rights will present a risk to a child's health, welfare, or safety; and
4. Other material changes in circumstances that may have occurred that warrant granting the petition.

Public Law 95-608 Indian Child Welfare Act (ICWA) of 1978

Requirements

The Division of Family and Children Services (DFCS) will:

1. Consent to the voluntary surrender of parental rights only when adoption is a viable plan for the child.
2. Afford all rights under the Indian Child Welfare Act (ICWA) to any Indian child subject to a voluntary surrender of parental rights involving DFCS, to promote the stability and security of Indian Tribes and their families (see policy 1.6 Administration: Indian Child Welfare Act \(ICWA\) and Transfer of Responsibility for Placement and Care to a Tribal Agency).
3. Ensure each voluntary surrender of parental rights is knowing and voluntary.
 - a. Recommend that any parent considering voluntary surrender consult an attorney about their legal rights and the impact of the surrender.
 - b. Arrange for any parenting youth in DFCS custody to have an attorney present at the signing of the voluntary surrender of parental rights to be knowledgeable about their legal options and the impact of the surrender.

- c. Inform the Special Assistant Attorney General (SAAG) of the parents' desire to voluntarily surrender parental rights when the parent has a pending dependency case where they are represented by an attorney, to ensure the parent's attorney is properly notified. This will allow the attorney an opportunity to provide legal advice and be present at the signing of the surrender of parental rights.
 - d. Refrain from accepting a voluntary surrender of parental rights under the following circumstances:
 - i. The parent's capacity to make adequately considered decisions is diminished (e.g., because of mental impairment, the influence of medication, drugs or alcohol, or developmental disability).
 - ii. The parent is under duress, undue pressure or coercion to surrender parental rights.
 - e. Provide language assistance (interpretation and translation services) to the parents (legal and biological) identified as limited English proficient (LEP) and auxiliary aids for sensory impaired individuals.
4. Involve the mother, father and child (where appropriate) in the planning for voluntary surrender of parental rights.
 5. Inform the surrendering parent(s) prior to executing the voluntary surrender of parental rights:
 - a. Of their right to consult an attorney regarding the decision to surrender parental rights.

DFCS staff will not give legal advice about whether or not it is in the parent's legal interests to sign a voluntary surrender of parental rights.

- b. Of the impact of the voluntary surrender of parental rights.
- c. Of their right to revoke the voluntary surrender of parental rights within four days of executing (signing) the surrender.

For an Indian child, of their right to revoke the voluntary surrender of paternal rights at any time prior to a decree of termination or adoption.

- d. Of their financial responsibility to the child up until the final order of adoption.
 - e. The voluntary surrender of parental rights given by any biological or legal parent shall be binding regardless of whether the parent is a citizen of the United States, a resident of Georgia, or has reached the age of 18 years.
6. Execute the voluntary surrender of parental rights, within the following timeframes:
 - a. After the 24 hours waiting period after the birth of the child for the mother, legal father or any man who has executed a voluntary acknowledgement of paternity.

In extraordinary circumstances, a waiver of this policy can be obtained from the State Adoption Unit. The waiver may be obtained verbally but will be confirmed in writing from the State Adoption Unit.

- b. For putative father only, any time after the biological mother has executed a sworn statement identifying such person as the putative father of the unborn child via the Biological Mother's Affidavit Identifying Biological Father of Her Unborn Child.

- c. For an Indian child only, after a ten-day waiting period after the birth of the child (see policy 1.6 Administration: Indian Child Welfare Act \(ICWA\) and Transfer of Responsibility for Placement and Care to a Tribal Agency).

Any voluntary surrender given prior to, or within ten days after the birth of an Indian child shall not be valid.

7. Use the designated DFCS forms to execute the voluntary surrender of parental rights that clearly specify:

- a. The parent's right to revoke the surrender and the four-day timeframe for revocation.
- b. For an Indian child only:
 - i. The name and birthday of the Indian child;
 - ii. The name of the Indian child's Tribe;
 - iii. The tribal enrollment number for the parent and for the Indian child, where known, or some other indication of the child's membership in the Tribe;
 - iv. The names, address and other identifying information of the consenting parent or Indian custodian.

8. Properly execute the voluntary surrender of parental rights:

- a. Complete the forms in the presence of a DFCS representative, a notary public and an adult witness.

Voluntary Surrender of Parental Rights to a Third Party – Child in Temporary Custody of DFCS

When a parent of a child in the temporary custody of DFCS surrenders their rights to a third party for the purpose of adoption, DFCS will:

1. When DFCS agrees that the adoption by the third party is in the child's best interest, petition the Juvenile Court and request to be relieved of custody of the child and physical custody be placed with the prospective adoptive parent pending adoption finalization in Superior Court when the following has occurred:
 - a. The completion of an adoptive family evaluation by an evaluator that recommends placement of the child in the prospective adoptive home (see policy 11.24 Adoption: Independent Adoption-Family Evaluation For the Purpose of Adoption By a Third Party); or
 - b. An order being issued by the Superior Court authorizing placement of the child with the third party prior to completion of the home study.

that the custody order is vacated, or the adoption is finalized.

When a parent of a child in temporary custody of DFCS voluntarily surrenders their parental rights to a child to a licensed child placing agency (CPA) for the purpose of adoption DFCS will:

1. When DFCS has no basis for objection, negotiate a plan for transitioning the child from DFCS to the private agency and Petition Juvenile Court to be relieved of custody; or
2. When DFCS determines relinquishment to the CPA is not in the child's best interest, make a referral to the SAAG for consultation regarding the appropriate action to protect the best interest of the child.

DFCS is not required to transfer physical custody of the child to the CPA until such time that the custody order is vacated, or the adoption is finalized.

DFCS will acknowledge that a child shall have the right to petition the court to reinstate parental rights, following a voluntary surrender of parental rights, if the following circumstances exist:

1. The child has not been adopted, after three years from the date the parent(s) voluntarily surrendered their parental rights; and

The child's petition to reinstate parental rights may be filed prior to the three-year time-frame if the child and DFCS or licensed CPA (with custody of the child) stipulate that the child is no longer likely to be adopted.

2. The court has determined the permanency plan is no longer adoption; and
3. The child 14 years of age or older signed the petition (unless there is good cause why they should not).

See policy 17.11 Legal: Termination of Parental Rights for the complete guidelines on the reinstatement of parental rights.

Practice Guidance

Knowing and Voluntary Surrender

The mother, father and child (where appropriate) should all be involved in the planning for a voluntary surrender of parental rights. The SSCM should carefully consider the ability of the parents to understand all discussions related to voluntary surrender. The SSCM should ensure the parent is seeking to surrender their rights free of coercion or manipulation from any other person. If the parent is a minor child in DFCS custody, their attorney must be present during the signing of the voluntary surrender of parental rights. If the SSCM is uncertain about the parent's ability to make an informed decision, guidance should be sought from the Office of the General Counsel. A voluntary surrender of parental rights should not be taken if there is any doubt as to the competence of the parent. In this case, it will be necessary to go to court to terminate parental rights. If the parent wishes to express to the judge that he/she wants to voluntarily surrender parental rights, the judge could then incorporate this into a court order as the grounds for termination.

Executing a Voluntary Surrender

Careful attention must be given to using the correct forms for each parent (biological or legal) surrendering based on their relationship to the child. Using the incorrect form may invalidate the surrender. A voluntary surrender of parental rights that is not properly executed cannot be corrected by Juvenile Court. The court cannot determine rights were terminated based on the voluntary surrender of parental rights if the documents were incorrectly executed.

Adoption (Private Agency)

Adoption of a child through a child placing agency (CPA) licensed by the State of Georgia to place children for adoption or through the Interstate Compact on the Placement of Children from a licensed CPA in another state.

Biological Father

A male who impregnated the biological mother resulting in the birth of the child. He may or may not also be the legal father.

Child Placing Agency (CPA)

An agency that places children in foster and adoptive resource homes for individualized care, supervision and oversight. Child placing agencies are responsible for assessing the placement regarding the appropriateness of the room, board and watchful oversight that the prospective foster and adoptive families will provide. The CPA's employees and their foster and adoptive parents work as a team to provide a stabilizing and nurturing environment that promotes safety, well-being and permanency.

ICWA Protection for Parents and Indian Custodians

ICWA provides protections for parents or Indian custodians of an Indian child when voluntarily surrendering their parental rights. These protections include a ten-day waiting period after the birth of the child for the execution of the voluntary surrender of parental rights. Any consent given prior to, or within ten days after the birth of the Indian child shall not be valid. Where any parent or Indian custodian voluntarily consents to surrender their parental rights, such consent shall not be valid unless executed in writing and recorded before a judge or a court of competent jurisdiction and accompanied by the presiding judge's certificate that the terms and consequences of the consent were fully explained in detail and were fully understood by the parent or Indian custodian. The court shall also certify that either the parent or Indian custodian fully understood the explanation in English or that it was interpreted into a language that the parent or Indian custodian understood. DFCS may not assume physical or legal custody of the Indian child until the court records and certifies the voluntary surrender of parental rights. These protections also include the right to revoke the voluntary surrender at any time prior to a decree of termination or adoption. If consent is withdrawn, the Indian child shall be immediately returned to the parent or Indian custodian. See policy 1.6 Administration: Indian Child Welfare Act \(ICWA\) and Transfer of Responsibility for Placement and Care to a Tribal Agency for additional protections following adoption.

Legal Father

The Official Code of Georgia (O.C.G.A) defines a legal father as a male, who has not surrendered or had terminated his rights to the child, and who

1. Has legally adopted such child; or
2. Was married to the biological mother at the time such child was born or within the usual period of gestation, unless paternity was disproved by a final order; or
3. Married the legal mother after such child was born and recognized such child as his own, unless paternity was disproved by a final order; or
4. Has legitimated such child by final order [pursuant to O.C.G.A §19-7-22].

If a child was legitimated pursuant to O.C.G.A § 19-7-21.1 prior to July 1, 2016, the legal father of the child continues to be the legal father, despite the repeal of O.C.G.A. Section 19-7-21.

Legal Mother

The female who is the biological or adoptive mother of the child and who has not surrendered or had her rights to the child terminated.

Putative Father

The alleged or possible biological but not legal father. A putative father may or may not be a registrant of the putative father registry.

Statutory Overnight Delivery

The delivering entity is either the United States Postal Service or a commercial firm, such as United Parcel Service or Federal Express, engaged in the business of document or package delivery. That entity engages to deliver not later than the next business day after it receives the article. The sender receives from the entity a receipt acknowledging delivery, signed by the addressee.

Termination of Parental Rights

The legal process for severing the relationship between a child and his/her parents. The child loses all rights to the parent (and extended family), including the rights of inheritance. Sibling and extended family maintain relationship until a final order of adoption for the purposes of placement and visitation. Following a voluntary surrender of parental rights, DFCS will petition Juvenile Court to terminate parental rights and place the child in the permanent custody of DFCS for the purpose of adoption. This would apply when all parents (biological and legal) have voluntarily surrendered parental rights to DFCS. When one or more of the parents voluntarily surrendered his/her parental rights to DFCS and there is a remaining parent(s) who has not surrendered their parental rights, DFCS will include with the TPR petition of the remaining parent(s), the TPR of the surrendered parent(s).

Third Party

This is someone outside the home that is not in a caretaker role with the child(ren) in question.

Voluntary Acknowledgement of Legitimation

A voluntary declaration that the mother and biological father consent and agree that the relationship between the child and father shall be considered legitimate for all purposes under the law.

Voluntary Acknowledgement of Paternity

When both the mother and father have freely signed a voluntary acknowledgement of paternity and the acknowledgement is filed with the Putative Father Registry a legal determination of paternity is established, provided the acknowledgement is not rescinded within the 60-day rescission period.

Practice Guidance

Transfer of Jurisdiction to the Resident County of the Parent

When contemplating a transfer of jurisdiction, the judge considers whether such transfer accomplishes the intended outcome of reunification and/or is in the best interest of the child. It is not the intent of the statute to transfer legal jurisdiction and case management responsibilities every time a parent moves nor uproot children from stable settings to follow parents wherever temporary residence is established, unless reunification is imminent.

When transferring jurisdiction, the court has 30 days from the filing of the transfer order to provide the receiving court with certified copies of the following:

1. Adjudication order
2. Order of disposition
3. Order of transfer
4. The case plans
5. Other court documents deemed necessary.

The transferring court retains jurisdiction until the receiving court acknowledges acceptance of the transfer. Compliance with the transfer of jurisdiction terminates jurisdiction in the transferring court and initiates jurisdiction in the receiving court. If the court transfers jurisdiction, the receiving county department cannot refuse transfer of the case.

O.C.G.A. § 19-8-1 Definitions

O.C.G.A. § 19-8-9 Revocation of Surrender of Rights; Time limit; Effect of Voluntary Surrender of Rights by Legal Mother

Requirements

The Division of Family and Children Services (DFCS) will:

1. Verify whether the mother and alleged biological father of a child have voluntarily established paternity via the completion of a Paternity Acknowledgement (PA) Form.
2. Determine if the mother and/or biological father rescinded the PA Form prior to the earliest of the following:
 - a. The date of a support order;
 - b. Any other order adjudicating paternity; or
 - c. 60 days from the signing of the agreement.

After the 60-day rescission period, the signed PA Form may be challenged in court only based on fraud, duress or material mistake of fact, with the burden of proof on the person challenging the PA Form.

Procedures

Social Services Case Manager

1. Inquire if the father completed a PA Form at the hospital or birthing facility, the vital records office of the county where the child was born or the State Office of Vital Records.
2. Obtain a copy of the PA Form from the State Office of Vital Records and upload in External Documentation of Georgia SHINES, if the father acknowledges completing a PA Form.
3. Initiate Deoxyribonucleic acid (DNA) paternity testing if appropriate, if the alleged father has not signed a PA Form, in accordance with policy 19.23 Case Management: Paternity Testing.
4. Inform the father that he may file a petition of legitimation with the juvenile court when a dependency proceeding is pending, otherwise, the he may file in superior court (see policy 17.15 Legal: Legitimation).

Do not give legal advice to the father concerning legitimating a child.

Social Services Supervisor

1. Provide guidance to the SSCM regarding establishment of paternity for a putative father.
2. Assist the SSCM in obtaining a copy of the PA form, if necessary.

Practice Guidance

Biological Father

Biological father means a male who impregnated the biological mother resulting in the birth of a child.

Hospital Program for Establishment of Paternity

Except in the event of a medical emergency, prior to the birth of a child to an unmarried woman in a public or private hospital, the hospital that provides labor and delivery services shall provide to the mother and alleged father:

1. Written materials about administratively establishing paternity;
2. The forms necessary to voluntarily acknowledge paternity;
3. A written description of the rights and responsibilities of voluntarily acknowledging paternity, the difference between paternity and legitimation and the duty to support a child upon acknowledgement of paternity; and
4. The opportunity, prior to discharge from the hospital, to speak with staff, either by telephone or in person, who are trained to clarify information and answer questions about administratively establishing paternity and the availability of judicial determinations of paternity.

After the birth of a child to an unmarried woman in a public or private hospital, the hospital that provides labor and delivery services shall:

1. Provide the child's mother and alleged father if he is present at the hospital the opportunity to execute a PA Form if a notary public is available in the hospital;
2. File the signed PA Form with the State Office of Vital Records within 30 days of its execution, provided that such acknowledgement is signed at the hospital on or before the mother is discharged; and
3. Provide to the child's mother and alleged father copies of the signed PA Form.

Paternity Acknowledgement - State of Georgia

When both the mother and father have signed a voluntary acknowledgement of paternity in the presence of a notary public swearing or affirming the statements contained in the acknowledgement are true and such acknowledgement is filed with the State Office of Vital Records within 30 days of its execution and is recorded in the Putative Father Registry, it shall constitute a legal determination of paternity, but shall not constitute a legal determination of legitimation.

The Paternity Acknowledgement creates certain legal rights and responsibilities for the mother, father and child and should only be completed if the mother was not married at the time of conception, birth or any time in between. If the mother was married, paternity must be established through a court order. The PA is acceptable for establishing paternity unless the juvenile court requires paternity testing. The PA is also a sufficient biological connection when placing children with extended family of a biological father.

Once the PA is completed, it will be forwarded to State Vital Records where it will be entered Per the State Putative Father Registry. If both parents do not sign the PA prior to leaving the hospital or birthing facility, only the mother's and child's name will be entered on the birth certificate. A PA may be completed and signed later at the Vital Records registrar's office in the county where the child was born or the State Office of Vital. If completed at a later date, the birth certificate will be amended to enter the name of the father.

When a mother's parental rights have been terminated, either voluntarily or otherwise, she no longer has the right or authority to sign an acknowledgement of paternity form for the same child.

O.C.G.A. § 19-8-9 Revocation of Surrender of Rights; Time Limit; Effect of Voluntary Surrender of Rights by Legal Mother

Requirements

The Division of Family and Children Services (DFCS) will inform fathers about the legitimation process.

Procedures

When an alleged biological father expresses a desire to legitimate his child, the Social Services Case Manager (SSCM) will:

1. Determine whether the father has established paternity:
 - a. Ask the father if he completed a Paternity Acknowledgement (PA) Form at the hospital or birthing facility, the vital records office of the county where the child was born or the State Office of Vital Records;
 - b. Ask the father if paternity was established through the Division of Child Support Services (DCSS) or via a court order, if a PA Form was not completed;
 - c. Obtain copies of any PA Form from the State Office of Vital Records, verification of paternity from DCSS or any orders establishing paternity from the court and upload the documents into External Documentation in Georgia SHINES.
2. Determine whether it is appropriate to initiate Deoxyribonucleic acid (DNA) paternity testing in accordance with policy 19.23 Case Management: Paternity Testing.
3. Inform the father that he may file a petition for legitimation with the juvenile court when a dependency proceeding is pending, otherwise, the father may file in superior court;
4. Advise the father to contact his attorney (if one has been appointed) to assist the father in filing a petition for legitimation.

 Do not give legal advice to the father concerning legitimating a child.

Social Services Supervisor

1. Provide guidance to the SSCM regarding the legitimation process;
2. Assist the SSCM in obtaining copies of the PA form, verification of paternity or orders establishing paternity, if necessary.

Practice Guidance

Biological Father

Biological father means a male who impregnated the biological mother resulting in the birth of a child.

Legal Father

The Official Code of Georgia defines a legal father as a male, who has not surrendered or had terminated his rights to a child, and who:

1. Has legally adopted such child; or
2. Was married to the biological mother of such child at the time such child was born or within the usual gestation period, unless paternity was disproved by a final order of a court of competent jurisdiction; or
3. Married a legal mother of such child after the child was born and recognized the child as his own, unless such paternity was disproved by a final order of a court of competent jurisdiction; or
4. Has legitimated such child by a final order pursuant to O.C.G.A. §19-7-22.

 If a child was legitimated pursuant to O.C.G.A. § 19-7-21.1 prior to July 1, 2016, the legal father of the child continues to be the legal father despite the repeal of O.C.G.A. Section 19-7-21.1.

Legitimation

The biological father of a child (who is not the legal father) may file a petition for legitimation in the juvenile court of the county in which a dependency proceeding regarding the child is pending. If a dependency proceeding is not pending, then the biological father may file a petition in the superior court of:

1. The county of residence of the child's mother or person who has legal custody or guardianship of the child; or
2. The county of residence of the child or the biological father, if the child's mother, legal custodian or guardian resides outside the state or cannot be found in the state; or
3. In the county in which the petition for adoption is pending, if a petition for adoption of the child is pending.

 A legitimation petition may also include claims for visitation, parenting time or custody.

The court, upon determining paternity, may enter a decree that the child is legitimate, if a petition to establish paternity for purposes of obtaining child support is filed by DFCS and the father files a response asking for a decree legitimating the child.

When a mother’s parental rights have been terminated, either voluntarily or otherwise, she no longer has the right or authority to consent to the granting of a petition of legitimation for the same child.

A presumption against legitimation shall be created, if a court determines by clear and convincing evidence that the father caused his child to be conceived as a result of non-consensual sexual intercourse with the mother of his child or when the mother is less than 10 years of age.

i If there is a pending criminal proceeding, the court shall stay discovery in the legitimation action until completion of the criminal proceeding.

J.J. vs. Ledbetter Consent Order

Requirements

The Division of Family and Children Services (DFCS) will:

1. Grant an opportunity for a fair hearing (before the State/Tribal agency) to any individual whose claim for benefits under this plan is denied or not acted upon within reasonable promptness.
2. Grant an opportunity for an individual to have a Fair Hearing if the individual believes DFCS has denied or delayed a child’s adoptive placement when there is an approved family outside the jurisdiction (see policy 11.7 Adoption: Child Specific Recruitment Efforts).

3. Inform the individual in writing at the time of any DFCS action denying, reducing or terminating social services benefits or reasonable visitation that are not court-ordered. The individual has the right to request a fair hearing within 30 days of receiving the notification. The individuals' freedom to request a fair hearing is a right guaranteed to insure due process.
4. Not limit or interfere with an individual's freedom to request a fair hearing when the individual disagrees with DFCS' decision or feels DFCS has failed to act appropriately in carrying out its duties.

 All fair hearings shall be administered by the Office of State Administrative Hearings (OSAH) Administrative Law Judge (ALJ). If the individual does not agree with the initial adverse decision from the ALJ, the individual shall be allowed 30 days from the date of the adverse decision to appeal and request reconsideration. However, if the parent does not request reconsideration for review within 30 days of the date of the adverse decision, the initial ALJ decision shall become final.

Procedures

When the agency plans to take action on a case which will deny or delay placement of a child for adoption with an approved family outside the jurisdiction responsible for the child and/or deny, reduce or terminate a social service or visitation that is not court-ordered, the SSCM will:

1. Provide written notice to the individual via the Notification Form for Denial, Reduction or Termination of a Service or Inter-Jurisdictional Adoption. The written notification should include:
 - a. The individual's right to request a fair hearing with regard to the decision or change within 30 days;
 - b. Information on how to obtain a hearing; and
 - c. A statement that the individual may be represented by an authorized representative such as legal counsel, a relative, friend, or other spokesperson, or that he/she may represent himself/herself.
2. If the individual formally accepts the proposed decision/change, ask the individual to waive their right to request a fair hearing by signing the Waiver of Fair Hearings and implement the change.
3. If the individual requests a hearing, do not implement the proposed decision/change and promptly assist the individual in requesting and preparing for a fair hearing.
4. Forward all hearing requests within three business days to the DFCS Fair Hearing Coordinator by:
 - a. Email to DFCSfairhearings@dhs.ga.gov; or
 - b. Mail to:

DFCS Fair Hearing Coordinator
Office of General Counsel
47 Trinity Avenue SW
Atlanta, Georgia 30334

5. If the individual requests a hearing and an emergency threatens a child's health or safety, take emergency action to protect the child;

- a. Obtain approval from the County Director/Designee for the emergency action within two business days of the action;
 - b. Provide the individual with written notice of the emergency, reasons for the action and information about the individual's right to appeal within three business days of the action.
6. Upload copies of all forms/notifications in External Documentation in the GA Statewide Automated Child Welfare System (Georgia SHINES).

Whenever an individual disagrees with DFCS' decision/recommended change to deny or delay an inter-jurisdictional adoption or deny, reduce or terminate a social service or visitation that is not a part of a court-ordered case plan, the SSCM will:

1. Conduct a face-to-face meeting with the individual to review and try to resolve the situation. Include the Social Services Supervisor (SSS), other relevant county/regional staff and any party the individual wishes to invite;
2. If the issue is not resolved and/or the individual requests an appeal, process the appeal request in a timely manner, including:
 - a. Providing the necessary form - Request for Fair Hearing;
 - b. Explaining the time limits, including that oral requests for a hearing must be followed by a written request within 30 days of the Notification Form for Denial, Reduction or Termination of a Service or Inter-Jurisdictional Adoption; and, if necessary;
 - c. Facilitate the completion of the written request.
3. Accept a request for a fair hearing when the individual believes a change or decision has been made by DFCS without following the required procedural guidelines;
4. Upload all forms/notifications in External Documentation in Georgia SHINES within 72 hours of completion;
5. Submit the following forms to the DFCS Fair Hearing Coordinator within three business days of receiving the parent's written request for a hearing:
 - a. OSAH Form 1;
 - b. Subpoena Requests;
 - c. Request for Fair Hearing;
 - d. Notification Form for Change in Case Plan/Services;
 - e. Relevant narratives of the Contact Detail (information parents are unable to receive must be redacted);
 - f. Comprehensive Child and Family Assessment;
 - g. Case plans and case reviews;
 - h. Court orders;
 - i. Copies of foster care policies/procedures relied upon in reaching the action taken; and
 - j. Any other information pertinent to the case.
6. Contact the DHS Office of General Counsel to coordinate the legal representation for The County

- Department and obtain a determination concerning whether legal representation is required;
7. Determine (in consultation with the DHS Office of General Counsel) who should be present as witnesses at the hearing and what evidence/documents are needed to support the case;
 8. Complete the subpoena forms for all witnesses/documents and attach to the OSAH Form 1 when submitted to the DFCS Fair Hearing Coordinator;
 9. Make available any materials submitted to OSAH should the individual and/or the individual's authorized representative request to see them. A release of information must be obtained for non-agency material to be shared (e.g., psychological, medical records, etc.);
 10. Prepare and redact confidential information in the narratives of the Contact Detail so that only the material releasable to the individual can be read;
 11. Maintain contact with the individual and/or authorized representative and promptly report any changes in the individual's circumstances or any requests for postponement or continuance to the DFCS Fair Hearing Coordinator;
 12. Adhere to established OSAH hearing procedures for presenting all pertinent facts/circumstances and advancing any arguments in support of DFCS' action/decision being asserted for review by the parent.

If it is determined at the fair hearing on inter-jurisdictional adoption that DFCS is in violation of section 471 (a) (23) of the Social Security Act:

1. The Permanency Unit Director, within ten days of the decision, will arrange and conduct a meeting with the County Director, Regional Director, Foster Care Services Director and Office of General Counsel to determine if DFCS plans to exhaust additional legal remedies to appeal the fair hearing decision.
2. If DFCS does not desire to exhaust any additional legal remedies, DFCS will notify the appropriate ACF Regional Office of the findings within 60 days of the decision.
3. If DFCS desires to exhaust additional legal remedies:
 - a. The Office of General Counsel will provide guidance on whether and how to proceed with the appeal of the fair hearing decision;
 - b. After all appeals are completed, a final decision upholding the fair hearing officer's decision will be submitted to the Administration for Children and Families (ACF) within 30 calendar days of the final decision concluding the appeal process.

If the individual elects to withdraw the request for a fair hearing, the SSCM will:

1. Inform the individual the withdrawal must be in writing and can be submitted to the County Department or directly to OSAH;
2. Immediately forward any request for withdrawal to the DFCS Fair Hearing Coordinator;
3. If the individual withdraws the request prior to the County Department forwarding the completed "Request for Fair Hearing" to the DHS Office of General Counsel, forward both the form and withdrawal statement to the DHS Office of General Counsel;
4. If the individual withdraws the request after it has been submitted by DHS Office of General Counsel to OSAH, forward a summary to DHS Office of General Counsel which explains fully why the request is being withdrawn and how the agency will proceed;

5. Upload the withdrawal in External Documentation in Georgia SHINES within 72 hours.

Practice Guidance

As a result of the J.J vs. Ledbetter Consent Order, a parent may request a hearing whenever there is a disagreement with an agency decision to deny, reduce or terminate a social service or reasonable visitation (including transportation or other assistance regarding visitation). With respect to the denial, reduction or termination of a social service, the service is any which may be requested by or previously received by the parent. The service may be provided directly by DFCS staff or purchased/paid for by the County Department.

The appeal process for any individual is handled by an Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) with the Office of State Administrative Hearings (OSAH). The ALJ conducts the hearing and issues a decision that is binding upon DFCS. However, if the individual is not satisfied with the initial decision, the individual may appeal to the DHS Commissioner through the DFCS Fair Hearing Coordinator for a final administrative decision.

 When an individual disagrees with a decision or a service which is part of a court-ordered case plan (or a plan being submitted to become an order of the court), the appeal rights of the individual are exercised solely through Juvenile Court rather than through the OSAH administrative hearing process.

Counties should develop procedures to resolve differences without a hearing. The procedures should include how the County Department will take prompt action to resolve complaints beginning with the SSCM reviewing the situation with the parent. If the issue is not resolved locally and/or if the individual requests a Fair Hearing, the request should be processed in a timely manner.

Possible Reasons for a Fair Hearing

Some instances where an individual may request a fair hearing include, but are not limited to, the following:

1. A social service is denied, reduced or terminated;
2. Reasonable visitation (or transportation to visitation) is being denied, reduced or terminated;
3. A determination is being made that the individual must participate in a service as outlined in the case plan (not court-ordered);
4. The County Department has failed or is unable to provide/arrange certain services as specified in the case plan (not court-ordered);
5. A change in the case plan (not court-ordered) is being made;
6. The denial or delay of placement of a child for adoption when an approved family is available outside of the jurisdiction with responsibility for the child;
7. Failure by the State agency to advise potential adoptive parents about the availability of adoption assistance (AA) for children in foster care;
8. DFCS erroneously determined that the child was ineligible for Title IV-E benefits;
9. Relevant facts regarding the child were known by DFCS or the Child Placing Agency (CPA) and not presented to the adoptive parents prior to finalization of the adoption which impacted the AA decision;

10. Denial of AA based on a means test of the adoptive family;
11. Decrease in the amount of AA without the concurrence of the adoptive parents;
12. The adoptive family disagrees with the determination by the State that the child is ineligible for AA.

DFCS Fair Hearing Coordinator

DFCS Fair Hearing Coordinator is responsible for the following:

1. Reviewing the hearing request and determine if the issue is appropriate for appeal by OSAH;
2. Responding in writing to the requester if the appeal will not be processed any further;
3. Forwarding to OSAH the materials submitted by the County Department if a fair hearing needs to be held.

The Fair Hearing

The individual may have an authorized representative such as legal counsel, a relative, friend or other spokesperson, or he/she may represent himself/herself at the hearing. The individual and/or the authorized representative should have an adequate opportunity to:

1. Examine the releasable contents of the case record and all documents/records to be used by DFCS at the hearing at a reasonable time before the date of the hearing and/or at the hearing;
2. Present the case and establish all pertinent facts and circumstances;
3. Bring witnesses;
4. Advance any arguments without undue interference; and
5. Question or refute any testimony or evidence, including the opportunity to confront and cross-examine adverse witnesses.

Once rendered, the decision of the ALJ becomes effective immediately. However, if an adverse decision is issued, the individual has a right to a further appeal to the DHS Commissioner through the DFCS Fair Hearing Coordinator. The DFCS Fair Hearing Coordinator shall notify the individual and his/her legal representative of the final decision and of the individual's right to pursue a separate legal action for judicial review outside of DHS.

O.C.G.A. § 15-11-720 Conditions Under Which Emancipation May Occur

Requirements

The Division of Family and Children Services (DFCS) will:

1. Obtain parental consent for a 17-year-old youth in the temporary custody of DFCS who requests to enlist in the Armed Forces of the United States and DFCS determines enlistment is in the youth’s best interest;
2. Obtain consent from the Division Director, if the 17-year-old youth is in the permanent custody of DFCS.

 Emancipation occurs by operation of law during the period a minor is on active duty with the Armed Forces.

Procedures

When a youth who is 17 years of age and in DFCS custody wishes to enlist in the Armed Forces, the SSCM will:

1. Ensure the youth has had an opportunity to talk with appropriate recruiters from the Armed Forces to discuss his/her options and have his/her questions answered;
2. Ensure the youth has taken the Armed Services Vocational Aptitude Battery (ASVAB) test and received a score sufficient for entrance into the Armed Forces;
3. Conduct a face-to-face meeting with the youth, parents (if applicable), placement provider, youth’s support team, Independent Living Specialist (ILS), Court Appointed Special Advocate (CASA), Guardian Ad Litem (GAL), Social Services Supervisor (SSS) and County Director/Designee (if youth is in DFCS’ permanent custody) to discuss the youth’s desire to enlist in the Armed Forces including, but not limited to:
 - a. The youth’s reasons for wanting to enlist in the Armed Forces;
 - b. The knowledge/research the youth has regarding the Armed Forces;
 - c. The physical and mental health of the youth;
 - d. The maturity level of the youth;

- e. Any behavioral or delinquent issues the youth may have;
 - f. The parent's desires and concerns, if applicable;
 - g. The plan for the youth if prematurely discharged from the Armed Forces; and
 - h. How enlistment affects custody of the youth.
4. Assist the parents in understanding and providing necessary support for the youth's decision to enlist in the Armed Forces, if applicable;
 5. Document the discussion and determination of whether it is in the youth's best interest in the narrative of the Contact Detail in Georgia SHINES;
 6. Inform the juvenile court of the youth's desire to enlist;
 7. Obtain appropriate consent for the youth to enlist in the Armed Forces and upload a copy of the signed consent in External Documentation in Georgia SHINES.

Social Services Supervisor

1. Participate in the meeting to discuss the youth's desire to enlist in the Armed Forces;
2. Ensure the court is notified of the youth's desire to enlist;
3. Ensure appropriate consent for enlistment is obtained.

Practice Guidance

To enlist in the Armed Forces, a person must be at least 17 years of age (with parental consent) and 18 years of age (without parental consent). Other qualifications considered when enlisting include, but are not limited to^[2]:

1. Citizenship
2. Number of dependents
3. Credit and finances
4. Single parents
5. Applicants married to military members
6. Education
7. Drug and alcohol involvement
8. Criminal history
9. Height/weight standards
10. Medical/physical
11. Other miscellaneous criteria

Because enlisting in the armed forces is a serious commitment, it is imperative anyone considering enlistment is thoroughly educated on what it means to be in one of the armed forces. Each of the armed forces has its own criteria, so once a youth determines which branch of the armed forces he/she is interested in, the SSCM should help the youth learn as much as possible about the specific branch. This will help the youth make an educated decision about whether to enlist.

Chapter 18 Support Services to Preserve or Reunify Families

18.0 Introduction to Support Services to Preserve or Reunify Families

	Georgia Division of Family and Children Services Child Welfare Policy Manual
	Chapter:	(18) Support Services to Preserve or Reunify Families

Title IV-E of the Social Security Act §§ 431 (a) (1) and (2)
Public Law 96-272 Adoption Assistance and Child Welfare Act of 1980

Discussion

The Georgia Division of Family and Children Services (DFCS), through its' support services programs, provides an array of services designed to preserve or reunify families involved with or at risk of involvement with the child welfare system. The services include:

1. Early Intervention (EI)
2. Parent Aide
3. Prevention of Unnecessary Placement (PUP)
4. Homestead and Wrap-Around services
5. Promoting Safe and Stable Families
6. Childcare (provided by the Department of Early Care and Learning's (DECAL) Child and Parent Services (CAPS) program

Each program offers distinct types of services to form a child welfare continuum of services from prevention through permanency. Early Intervention services can help families before they reach the point of needing Child Protective Services (CPS) intervention. Once a case is opened for services, Parent Aide, PUP, Homestead and Wrap-Around services can provide support, education and counseling for families. PSSF provides an array of services throughout the child welfare continuum. DFCS, in partnership with the family, should determine which services are most appropriate to meet the family's needs. Eligibility for each service depends on the individual child and family circumstances as well as the programmatic and funding criteria of each program.

Most support services are purchased through community-based organizations and service providers. The services can be utilized on a continuum or in tandem as part of a family’s safety and/or case plan to strengthen the family’s capacity to provide care and protection of their children; and reduce the factors contributing to child abuse and neglect. DFCS’ partnerships with community-based resources is essential to ensuring that together families in need of early intervention or more intensive services can be provided with the most appropriate services within their community. It is important to note that service providers are mandated reporters and must report to DFCS suspected or known cases of child abuse or neglect during their interaction with families (see policy 3.24 Intake: Mandated Reporters).

Practice Guidance

The EI program is designed to provide Community-Based Prevention and Early Intervention services to afford children a safe, stable and supportive family setting by promoting the well-being of the family. Services build on and increase the strength and stability of families, increase parent confidence and competence in their parenting abilities and enhance family functioning to prevent or address child abuse and neglect. EI program staff provide parenting education and support to families through such groups, in-home visitation and provision of community services information.

EI services are short term and are offered at no cost to the family (see the COSTAR manual funding limitations and allowable number of visits). EI services are not used to keep children in unsafe environments or at risk of further maltreatment. If a family requires more than “brief” or early intervention, EI services may not be appropriate. EI services include:

1. Behavioral Modification/Management
2. Budgeting Skills
3. Communication Skills
4. Environmental Safety

Practice Guidance

The Georgia Division of Family and Children Services provide services to Georgia families through the work of the PSSF program to:

1. Develop a coordinated and integrated service system that builds on the strengths of families and communities.
2. Emphasize collaborative, community-based approaches, early identification of issues and the delivery of prevention, intervention and support services.
3. Prevent child abuse and neglect, protect children from further abuse, and promote permanency for children (and siblings when/as applicable) within their own families or with kinship or adoptive families when birth parents are not willing or able to do so.
4. Partner with Georgia families in strengthening themselves and remove barriers to child safety, permanency and well-being.

PSSF promotes easy access to child and family-centered services in communities across the state of Georgia to families at risk and in crisis in the areas of:

1. PSSF Family Support services are community-based prevention and early intervention services designed to prevent and reduce the risk of child maltreatment by promoting the well-being of the entire family, as well as supporting and retaining foster families, so they can provide quality family-based settings for children in foster care. PSSF Family Support services promote healthy development by helping caregivers to enhance their strengths and resolve problems that can lead to child maltreatment, developmental delays, and family disruption. All services are designed to build on existing family strengths, increase the stability of families, increase caregiver confidence and competence, increase protective capacities, enhance overall family functioning to prevent initial or repeat child abuse and neglect while ensuring child safety, and to maintain the ability of foster families to provide for the well-being of children in their care. PSSF Family Support services are provided to families who are at risk for CPS involvement to reduce risk and prevent child maltreatment and for the support and retention of foster families. This includes families:
 - a. Target Population
 - i. Not known to the child welfare agency
 - ii. Who have been the subject of a report of suspected child abuse or neglect who:
 1. Were assigned to Family Support
 2. Were screened out or were the subject of an unsubstantiated investigation
 3. Have prior CPS history (closed but referred for follow-up supports/services)
 - iii. Foster Families
 - b. Categories of services:
 - i. FSS – Prevention and Early Intervention Services (PEI)
 - ii. FSS – Home Visitation Services (HVS)
 - iii. PSSF Healthy Relationship & Co-Parenting Services (HMI)
 - iv. PSSF Supports & Services for Homeless Youth (SHY)
 - c. Service Duration: Duration is dependent on criteria established by proposed evidence-based strategy, practice or program model.
2. PSSF Family Preservation services are provided to families that have or have had DFCS involvement because of child abuse or neglect, child or parent behavioral challenges, or serious parent-child conflict. Provision of these services grows out of the recognition that the unnecessary separation of children from their families is traumatic, often leaving lasting negative effects. Families at-risk or in-crisis can be preserved and children safely maintained in their homes when families receive intensive support and therapeutic services to improve family functioning and stability. Services are family-focused and are designed to maintain children safely in their homes, prevent the unnecessary separation of families, and are offered as a safe alternative to out-of-home placement. PSSF Family Preservation services may also be provided to support families post-reunification to help prevent placement disruption.

Providers of PSSF Family Preservation services are required to coordinate services with DFCS and other agencies including mental health, substance abuse, education, child care, and employment services to provide families a comprehensive continuum of community-based supports, interventions and follow-up services responsive to individual and family needs. Services may be offered to families referred by DFCS, juvenile or family court, who are in crisis or at-risk of having a child removed from their home. PSSF Family Preservation services are provided to families to prevent removal of children from their homes, stabilize placement and/ or to prevent re-entry into foster care.

a. Target population

- i. Families who have or have had a substantiated investigation and/or a Family Preservation case to prevent repeat maltreatment and help these families maintain children in their homes safely.
- ii. Relative caregivers who are caring for children when their parents are unable to do so to support the safety, permanency and well-being of these children.
- iii. Foster parents and/or children in foster care to stabilize the placement and prevent disruption.
- iv. Families for whom reunification is the goal, to prepare for and sustain reunification.
- v. Families whose children have returned home from foster care to prevent repeat maltreatment and sustain permanency.
- vi. Children from families who have or have had a substantiated investigation and/or a Family Preservation case or are returning from foster care to improve educational outcomes.

b. Service Delivery Expectations: Services are short-term, intensive interventions to mitigate parent or child behaviors to prevent escalation of circumstances to the point of requiring removal of children from the home. Based on reasons for referral, service objectives identified at referral, or needs identified in a family assessment, service plan must be solution-based in addressing the needs of the target population to achieve the desired outcomes.

c. Assessment and Development of an Individual Service Plan: Families referred for services may have already undergone a comprehensive family assessment. Based on the results of that assessment, and the reason for referral, service objectives should be identified and an individualized service plan developed to meet the unique needs of the target population. If one is not available, or has not been conducted within the past 12 months, an assessment must be completed prior to or at the commencement of services utilizing a recognized assessment instrument effective in evaluating the strengths and needs of the identified target population to facilitate the development of an individualized service plan that addresses the circumstances that resulted in the referral and is responsive to the needs, goals and priorities of the family.

d. Categories of services:

- i. PSSF Placement Prevention Services (PPS)
- ii. PSSF Relative Caregiver/Kinship Family Services (RCS)
- iii. PSSF Crisis Intervention & Placement Stabilization Services (CIS)
- iv. PSSF Residential /Post Placement After-Care Services (RAC)

v. PSSF Substance Abuse Treatment and Recovery Support Services (STR)

vi. PSSF Educational Support Services (ESS)

3. PSSF Family Reunification Services are provided to ensure the strength and stability of family reunification. Services are provided when a youth or child has been removed from the care of their parents and for the 15-month period that begins on the date that the child returns home. Reunification is the most common goal for children and youth in out-of-home care as well as the most common outcome. While reunification is generally thought of as reuniting the children and youth in foster care with their families and reinstating custody to their parents or guardians, a broader definition that includes living with other relatives is sometimes used. The physical return of the child or youth to parents or caretakers may occur before the return of legal custody, as when the child welfare agency continues to supervise the family for some period of time. Reunification is considered achieved when both care and custody are returned to parents or guardians, and the child or youth is discharged from the child welfare system. The challenge for child welfare agencies is to achieve reunifications that are both timely and do not result in re-entry.

Safe and timely family reunification is the preferred permanency planning option for all children in Georgia state custody unless it is not in the best interests of the child. PSSF Family Reunification Services help to support positive consistent family relationships and prevent multiple re-entries into foster care. Family-centered values and practice, along with evidence-based practices, are the foundation of safe, timely reunification/permanency.

Efforts to assure safe and permanent reunifications for children are complicated because of the strict time frames set forth in the Adoption and Safe Families Act (ASFA) of 1997 and the complex and interrelated problems many families experience, such as substance abuse, domestic violence and mental illness. The degree to which families effectively maintain reunification is largely dependent upon the ability to connect families with timely, intensive and responsive supports and services during the time a child is in foster care and the first 15 months when a child returns home post-reunification.

Since the majority of children who leave foster care are reunified with their families, it is important to focus on practices that help achieve successful reunification. PSSF Family reunification services are intensive support services provided to a child to promote safe, appropriate, and effective reunification with their primary caregiver and provided to children during the 15-month period that begins on the date that the child returns home.

PSSF Family Reunification Services are provided to families to reduce the time in foster care, facilitate reunification, and sustain permanency for children, pre- or post- return of children to families from foster care or residential treatment. PSSF Family Reunification Services are provided to families whose children have a plan of reunification or an alternative concurrent permanency option.

a. Target Population

i. Families with children in foster care

ii. Families with court-ordered relative placement

iii. Families with children who have returned home from foster care for the first 15 months of the return home.

- b. Service Duration: During the time the child is in foster care and within the 15-month period that begins on the date the child returns home.
- c. PSSF Family Reunification Services includes the following categories of services:
 - i. Child and Family Advocacy (CFA)
 - ii. Supervised Family Visitation Services (SFV)

4. PSSF Adoption Promotion and Permanency Support (APS)

- a. Categories of services:
 - i. Adoption Promotion and Post-Permanency Services (APS): services are designed to encourage and support permanency for children through adoption, when adoption is in the best interest of the child or to facilitate permanency for children through relative guardianship and to prevent disruption or dissolution of those relationships. It is common for adoptive families to need support and services to prepare for and sustain adoption. Transition periods can be especially difficult for families who must also address child welfare-related issues such as separation and loss. Families who adopt children with special needs also face additional challenges that may be compounded by the child's past experiences of child abuse and neglect.
 - ii. Transition and Emancipation Support Services: Services are designed to help youth develop skills for independent living and establish meaningful adult connections while simultaneously working toward achieving permanency through reunification, adoption, or guardianship. Youth who are nearing the age of emancipation without an identified permanency resource may need additional supports and services to help transition and prepare for the opportunities and challenges of independent adult living. Without family supports and community networks to help them make successful transitions to adulthood, these young adults may experience very poor outcomes at a much higher rate than the general
- b. Target Populations:
 - i. Post Permanency Support
 - 1. Foster/adoptive children and youth, particularly those with special needs
 - 2. Foster, pre-adoptive and adoptive parents
 - 3. Relative caregivers
 - ii. Transition and Emancipation Support
 - 1. Youth age 16+ preparing for emancipation from foster care
 - 2. Youth age 18+, who have signed themselves back in for services
 - 3. Youth or young adults recently emancipated from foster care
- c. Service Duration:
 - i. Adoption Promotion and Post-Permanency Services: 3-6 months' pre-adoption or guardianship and up to 6-months post-adoption or guardianship.
 - ii. Transition and Emancipation Support Services: 6-9 months before exiting Foster Care and/or 6-9 months following emancipation, not to exceed 12 months
- d. Service Delivery Expectations: Adoption Promotion and Post-Permanency Services

- i. Services are designed to address issues related to separation and adjustment which may impair family functioning.
- ii. Adequate support is particularly critical for special needs adoptions where challenges and adjustments faced by families can be immediate and intense.
- iii. Post-permanency supports and services should help identify and address family issues which negatively impact family functioning and help stabilize and support families to prevent disruption.
- iv. Post-permanency services are geared toward normalizing the adoption experience, helping adoptive parents increase parent-child attachment and decrease family isolation by creating opportunities to connect with others in similar circumstances.

Practice Guidance

Prevention of Unnecessary Placement (PUP)

The goal of PUP services is to reduce risk factors contributing to child maltreatment in order to ensure the protection and safety of children. Imminent risk of placement or readiness for reunification of the children must be clearly documented in the case record. The PUP Program offers an array of support and intervention services. Through PUP, psychological or psychiatric assessments, substance abuse assessments, drug screens, and counseling services may be obtained from vendors who have the necessary skills and training to address the identified problems. PUP may also be used to help a family through a financial crisis with emergency rent, utilities or childcare.

Families are encouraged to contribute to the costs of needed services. A family's own contribution, financially or in-kind, toward part of the required PUP expenditures is highly recommended, particularly in long term services such as childcare or counseling. This encourages and promotes a commitment on the part of the caregiver(s) to participate in the case plan toward goal achievement and self-sufficiency. PUP funds should not be used if other resources (i.e., community resources, private insurance or Medicaid) exist or until other resources have been exhausted.

Risk of Imminent Placement

Risk of imminent placement is defined as the likelihood of removal of children from their parent or caretaker and placement of the children into an emergency shelter or foster care placement within 14 days without intervention.

Immediate Reunification

A child must be in a foster care placement, including a kinship placement, and be ready for reunification with parents, kin, guardians or non-foster care placement within 60 days of initiating PUP services.

Emergency Housing/Financial Assistance

PUP funds may be authorized for temporary shelter, food, clothing and related services required by families with children to cope with a temporary crisis situation which poses an imminent threat to the safety of the children (i.e., fire, eviction, unsafe housing, separation for the safety of children and family members, etc.). It is important to assess how the crisis arose and how the family plans to manage going forward when considering the authorization of PUP funds for emergency financial assistance (i.e. rent and utility payments). If the family's crisis is because of some unavoidable emergency, PUP can be helpful. If the family's difficulties are chronic and reflect a lifestyle of crisis, PUP should not be used without a documented plan of how the family will manage once PUP is utilized. The case record must reflect how the family will resume responsibility for payment of rent and utilities after this one-time assistance. All financial assistance is through vendor payments.

The emergency housing/financial assistance and temporary childcare components of the PUP Program are not to be used as a county "general assistance fund." These funds are provided as one support service among others as a part of the safety or case plan in an open child welfare case.

Past due rent, current rent and up to three months future rent can be paid once per family per fiscal year. Past utility bills, current utility bills and up to three months future utility bills may be paid once per family per fiscal year. Utility deposits may be paid once per fiscal year. When PUP funds are used to pay deposits for rent or utilities, the SSCM should include with the payment, a letter notifying the payee that the deposit should be returned to the County Department. Acceptance of this procedure by utility companies varies; however, SSCMs should still send the letter along with the payment. They should also notify the parent/caregiver that any deposits will need to be reimbursed to DFCS.

Minor home repairs, directly related to the risk of maltreatment, may be authorized. Repairs on rental property that are the responsibility of the property owner, landlord, and/or property Management Company are NOT allowable expenses under PUP.

Legal Fees for Guardianship of a Child

Minor legal services or nominal legal fees may be paid with PUP funds, if it is directly related to risk of placement or immediate reunification efforts.

Emergency Furniture

PUP funds can be used to purchase emergency furniture after all other community resources have been exhausted. All emergency furniture assistance must be paid to the vendor only. Examples of emergency furniture include mattresses, cribs, and major appliances, etc. to maintain or reunify children back in a stable home. Prior authorization from the supervisor is needed before using this service.

Emergency Clothing

PUP funds can be used to purchase emergency clothing after all other community resources have been exhausted.

Temporary Childcare Services

Temporary childcare services may be purchased for families when the unassisted, daily care of children by their family presents an unacceptable risk of continued maltreatment and/or placement. Types of temporary childcare include:

1. Group Day Care (State licensed, center-based day care for seven to eighteen children).
2. Family Day Care (State registered, approved family home day care for up to six children).
3. Day Care Center services (State licensed, center-based day care for nineteen or more children).

Childcare is often an ongoing need and PUP's time-limited services cannot meet this ongoing need. The safety or case plan should indicate how the family will assume the responsibility for the ongoing expense of day care. Childcare is for children under the age of 13, or under the age of 18, if there is a physical or mental disability. Childcare services are provided away from their own home for less than 24 hours per day. The exception to this is payment of emergency 24-hour childcare with an approved resource when a caretaker is hospitalized and has no other resources to meet this need. The childcare services must correct or prevent a situation that would lead to an out-of-home placement of one or more children. Other support services such as Childcare and Parent Services (CAPS) should be accessed before approving PUP for temporary childcare.

There is a maximum of six months of childcare services provided to each child per family per fiscal year.

Counseling

Counseling may be authorized for families when the provision of counseling services will help the family or individuals within the family resolve issues that contribute to the risk of maltreatment and out-of-home placement. Types of counseling services that may be utilized include, but are not limited to the following:

1. Individual
2. Child
3. Group
4. Family
5. Substance Abuse
6. Marital Counseling
7. Domestic Violence
8. Anger/Stress Management
9. Grief & Separation Management
10. Behavior Management
11. Trauma Focused Therapy

Counseling services through PUP are provided primarily to help with the effects of maltreatment and to strengthen the family's ability to resolve their problems through effective decision-making and coping skills. The counselor shall adhere to the professional code of ethics regarding responsibility to clients, integrity, and confidentiality, responsibility to colleagues, assessment instruments, research, advertising, and professional representation. Services must be provided by an approved contracted provider.

Authorizing payment for Individual ongoing counseling for a sexual abuse offender is prohibited. The cost of ongoing counseling for a sexual abuse offender is the offender's responsibility. PUP may be used to pay for the ongoing counseling of a sexual abuse offender, when the offender is a minor in the household, as a part of the reunification plan, and when such services will prevent the removal of other children from the home. All other resources to pay for treatment and counseling for the juvenile sex offender should be explored prior to use of PUP. Medicaid and private insurance should be used before the use of PUP funds.

Drug and Alcohol Screens

Safety/Enrichment Activities (children in the custody of DFCS only)

Enrichment programs promote the well-being of children by providing them with an experience that draws out their fullest potential and talents. Enrichment activities are often geared towards an educational experience that focuses on high abilities such as gifted programs and can span across the arts, humanities, and sciences. They help bolster academics and social interactions for children. These extra-curricular activities can include, but are not limited to:

1. Dance Classes

3. Sports
4. Band
5. Advanced Reading or Math courses

Funding for this service can also include purchase of materials needed for these classes (i.e. instruments, uniforms and equipment, supplies, etc.)

Practice Guidance

Parent Aide Services

The goal of the Parent Aide Program is to stabilize and help families in need of intervention by providing parenting education, training and support through in-home and group parenting education and referrals to community-based resources. Parent Aide services are a professional family support and prevention program available to any family with an open Family Preservation or, Permanency case. The services are most useful for cooperative parents who are experiencing stress and are open to learning new approaches to parenting. These services are not designed to address issues that require clinical intervention. Parent(s) who have chronically neglected, seriously injured, sexually abused, abandoned a child or have a mental illness or disability, often need more structured intervention than what is available through parent aide services.

The objectives of parent aide services are to strengthen the parent-child bond, reduce social isolation, build trust, teach appropriate discipline and help parents identify their children's needs and ways to respond to those needs. Other services may include emergency respite care, food and nutrition education (i.e., meal planning, advice on grocery shopping, meal preparation, safe food handling and sanitation), information on homemaking and budgeting topics, and assistance in accessing community resources.

Parent aides, using a team approach, work with case management staff with the goal of ensuring the safety and protection of children by improving parenting competency. Parent aides provide support to families by using positive reinforcement, being emotionally supportive and coordinating access to critical resources. The parent aide functions as a peer educator and mentor to the family and must possess skills that enable them to establish a trusting relationship with the client. Parent aides may also be used to provide emergency respite care for brief periods of time when deemed appropriate.

Role of the Parent Aide

There are many factors that contribute to the risk of child maltreatment. Research shows that knowledge of childcare and development, preparation for parenthood, and family and social supports are critical areas for successful parenting. A root cause of child maltreatment is often a lack of parenting knowledge and skills, low self-esteem and isolation. Parent aides target these and related topics to help reduce the risk of child maltreatment. Parent aide roles include teaching practical parenting knowledge and skills, providing resource information, helping parents become involved in support activities and providing occasional transportation. Their role does not include doing housework for parents, directly caring for children, consistently providing transportation, investigating complaints or making case management decisions or recommendations.

Although parent aides need to develop honest and trusting relationships with parents, they need to maintain professional objectivity and guard against becoming too emotionally involved with parents or disclosing too much of their own personal information. Parent aides are expected to adhere to a professional code of ethics regarding client contact and confidentiality.

Parent aides are not responsible for the protection of children in the same way that SSCMs are; however, they are mandated to report any suspected child maltreatment (see policy 3.24 Intake: Mandated Reporters). The role of the parent aide is always that of a professional working jointly with the Department and not as a CPS investigator. It is never appropriate for the County Department to request a parent aide to go out as the first responder to a family's home to assess a report.

Practice Guidance

The goal of Homestead services is to stabilize and help families in need of intensive therapeutic intervention to ensure a safe and healthy environment for the family. Homestead services provide intensive, crisis-oriented, in-home counseling in order to stabilize the family and ensure a safe and healthy environment for the children. This program attempts to meet the immediate crisis-oriented needs of families while also beginning to address the root causes of family dysfunction with therapeutic intervention strategies. The Homestead Program provides a comprehensive assessment, family support, counseling and crisis intervention to manage the risk factors contributing to child abuse and neglect. A family must have an open Family Preservation, Permanency or Adoption Child Welfare case to receive Homestead services.

The Homestead Program is the most intensive of the family preservation services provided to families where children are at risk of imminent placement or at high risk of maltreatment. It is an intensive, short-term (180 days), assessment and intervention service provided to eligible families to prevent unnecessary placement of children out of the home or provide for their immediate reunification from foster care. Not all out-of-home placements can be avoided. If a child is being seriously or deliberately maltreated, an out-of-home placement is required to assure safety. However, in many cases, Homestead services are successful in managing the risk factors in the home, thereby preventing unnecessary foster care placement of the children.

Homestead services are best matched to families in crisis and who require therapeutic or clinically oriented intervention. Homestead services have been successful with a variety of families with significant problems. Several common factors with these families include a desire and motivation to change and the emotional and intellectual capacities to benefit from counseling. Homestead Services can and should be used for cases that have been evaluated and found to be high-risk cases. Additionally, Homestead services can be used for children at imminent risk of placement or when a child is being reunified to his/her family. Homestead Services can be part of the reunification plan. Homestead services are provided in the family's home rather than through office visits to emphasize a systems approach and to ensure access to services. Immediate availability of the Homestead therapist and their services are an important part of the Homestead program. Homestead therapists are expected to possess the necessary skills to conduct thorough assessments and provide therapeutic intervention with families and their children. Homestead services shall not be used to keep children in unsafe environments.

Homestead Program Tenets

1. Family and Systems Based: The Homestead program is family centered and systems-based in its orientation. Family centered practice is a growing and changing field of social work practice. A systems approach entails taking a different perspective of a family, their children and the family's strengths and needs. A systems approach requires refocusing from "internal" causation of individual problems to multiple and interrelated strengths and needs within and between family members, the community and the environment in which they live. Family focused services target the entire family system and the environment rather than individual family members.

- a. A systems approach seeks to assess and understand both the behavior and the context in which that behavior occurs, including individual, family and environmental factors. A systems perspective should not diminish a parent's personal responsibility or leadership role in the family. It does view and try to assess a range of factors that correlate with the family's presenting problems. This perspective is firmly rooted in the belief that a child is best cared for and reared by his/her own family in their own home, when safety and protection can be insured.
 - b. If there is significant risk of maltreatment and the situation is not immediately correctable by providing Homestead services, then a temporary placement out of the home may be necessary. A child's safety is the primary goal of all child welfare services including family preservation services.
2. In-Home Service Provision: Homestead services are provided extensively in the family's home rather than through office visits and in-home service provision is an important part of the Homestead program. It is a physical reinforcement of the family centered systems philosophy that connects the worker to the family.
 3. Short-Term: Homestead services are short-term services that extend to a maximum of 180 days for imminent risk of placement cases. Homestead services may be used up to six (6) months or 180 days for immediate reunification. While a family may present many needs, Homestead's goal is highly specific in targeting those needs directly linked to preventing unnecessary foster care placements or effecting immediate reunification. The frequency of Homestead services may be adjusted to provide greater contact and support later in the service period. At the end of 180 days a family may have a number of ongoing or unfinished needs. The Homestead therapist must assist the family in connecting with a resource in the community who can address any long-term needs.
 4. Immediate Availability: Immediate availability of the Homestead therapist and their services are an important part of the Homestead program philosophy. This availability requires that therapists be easily accessible to their families and flexible in their work hours.
 5. Goal Specific: Homestead services are highly goal specific and focused. Homestead services are targeted to families with children at risk of imminent placement into foster care or ready for reunification from foster care. Intervention by the Homestead therapist should always be structured according to the goals identified through the initial assessment and should be consistent with the family's case plan.
 6. Crisis Intervention: Family crisis is at the core of Homestead services. It is a combination of factors within the family's life that create a level of crisis resulting in the imminent risk of placement of their children in foster care due to maltreatment, requiring immediate intervention. Parents and their children will also experience emotional and psychological stress as the result of reunification of the children from foster care; due to the effects that foster care disruption can create. Homestead services must be able to respond to family crisis as they arise and provide the family with strategies to manage future stress. See the COSTAR manual for timeframes related to crisis intervention.
 7. Low Caseloads: Low caseloads of the Homestead therapist are critical to the success of Homestead services from the perspective of allocating more time per family in resources.

8. Therapeutic Intervention for Change: Homestead services are intended to be helpful, supportive therapeutic interventions to assist in family change. At times, child welfare activities are centered on investigation or supervision of a family or are focused on controlling a situation or behavior and imply the use of the court or police. The Homestead services are not investigation services nor are they required or mandated. Parental choice prevails and coercive use of Homestead services is inappropriate.
9. Self-Sufficiency: Self-sufficiency, self-determination and independence for a family are uniform goals in the Homestead program. A Homestead therapist should steadfastly encourage a family's independence, self-sufficiency. Children are the responsibility of their parents. The Homestead program helps parents to help themselves and their children. A healthy, self-sufficient and financially independent family teaches those important standards to their children. Achievement and accomplishment are primary ways we gain mastery and confidence. Self-esteem, self-worth and identity are intimately connected to self-sufficiency and work. Our sense of self, feelings of security, self-respect, ability to give, and competency are all enhanced through increased self-sufficiency.
10. Empowering: Homestead services work to empower a family as it discovers and builds on its own strengths, skills, decision making, competency and independence. Homestead services seek to enhance and reinforce a family's autonomy, parenting skills, decision-making skills and independence.
11. Skills Building: Homestead services are designed to be family skill builders. Working with the entire family, Homestead services work to strengthen parenting, coping, family management and problem-solving skills.
12. Community Based, Culturally Sensitive: Homestead services are community based, accessible to and responsive to the families and the community they serve. Homestead services work cooperatively and in unison with child welfare, law enforcement, courts, mental health, community groups and churches as a responsible member and link in the social services network. Homestead services work to honor and respect culturally different views, beliefs, attitudes, values and systems in which families rear their children.
13. Trauma Informed: Just as many children in the child welfare system have experienced different kinds of trauma, many birth parents involved with child welfare services have their own histories of childhood and/or adult trauma. Untreated traumatic stress has serious consequences for children, adults, and families. Traumatic events in childhood and adolescence can continue to impact adult life, affecting an adult's ability to regulate emotions, maintain physical and mental health, engage in relationships, parent effectively, and maintain family stability. Parents' past or present experiences of trauma can affect their ability to keep their children safe, to work effectively with child welfare staff, and to respond to the requirements of the child welfare system (The National Child Traumatic Stress Network 2000).

Homestead includes but is not limited to the following services.

Inform the parent(s)/caregiver(s) who needs the childcare to indicate the following on the application:
 - a. That the children are a part of an open CPS case which will allow the CAPS staff to identify the caregivers' application as a priority when submitted through Gateway; and
 - b. The name of the childcare provider and the childcare rate on the Childcare and Parent Services (CAPS) Published Provider Rate Form. CAPS will pay no more than the CAPS approved rate (see Practice Guidance: Childcare Providers).

Eligibility for CAPS cannot be determined without a childcare application being received from the caregiver.

7. Provide guidance to the caregivers regarding what to expect while the referral is being processed and discuss the plan for ensuring the child's safety while the childcare application is being processed.

8. Explore other funding options if CAPS eligibility is not met, such as county funds, Prevention of Unnecessary Placement (PUP) funds, or Promoting Safe and Stable Families (PSSF) programs at www.pssfnet.com.
9. Update Georgia SHINES with any changes involving the child or caregiver receiving childcare services within 72 hours of the change. (See CAPs Referrals Georgia SHINES Job Aid).

Updating Georgia SHINES will NOT trigger any changes in Gateway. The SSCM must direct the caregiver to contact their DECAL case manager to notify them of any changes.

Social Services Supervisor

1. Discuss with the SSCM whether childcare services may control or mitigate child safety threats.
2. Provide guidance to the SSCM regarding exploration of free resources prior to the SSCM submitting a referral for CAPS.
3. Ensure that the child and caregiver meet the CAPS requirements.
4. Ensure that the SSCM submits the referral timely in accordance with policy 19.17 Case Management: Service Provision.
5. Ensure that the SSCM updates Georgia SHINES, as necessary, with any CAPS eligibility changes involving the child or caregiver.

Bright from the Start: Georgia Department of Early Care and Learning (DECAL)

Bright from the Start: DECAL is responsible for meeting the childcare and early education needs of Georgia's children. Among other things, Bright from the Start oversees the licensing and monitoring of all center-based and home-based childcare facilities, including investigating complaints of childcare programs and reports of unlicensed childcare. Childcare providers must register with Bright from the Start if they provide childcare services for more than two non-related children or more than six related children. For more information on Bright from the Start, visit their website at www.dec.al.ga.gov/BftS/About.aspx.

Childcare and Parent Services (CAPS)

CAPS is administered by the Georgia Department of Early Care and Learning. The CAPS program supports early education goals by assisting low income families with the cost of child care while they work, go to school or training, or participate in other work-related activities. The purpose of CAPS is threefold:

1. Provide access to high quality and affordable early learning environments for families who are considered low income.
2. Support DECAL's efforts in increasing positive school readiness outcomes.
3. Assist families in achieving and maintaining self-sufficiency by providing financial supports for child care costs.

Rates must not exceed the amount that the provider charges other customers who do not receive subsidies. Some examples of different types of childcare are full-time, night-time, weekend, before/after school, full-day service for school-age and part-time

Children eligible for CAPS must be a resident of Georgia both legally and physically. DECAL will only pay for childcare services provided within the state of Georgia. For exceptions (i.e., border agreements with surrounding states), please contact the Early Childhood Collaboration Unit at Early.childhood@dhs.ga.gov.

Childcare Providers

Childcare services may be purchased from formal or informal providers. Child safety and well-being should be the primary considerations when selecting a childcare provider.

1. Formal Providers: The formal providers are regulated and licensed by DECAL. Below are the major categories of formal childcare providers:
 - a. Family Child Care Learning Home: This is a program that operates in a private residential home less than 24 hours per day. The operator receives pay for providing care for three to six children under 13 years of age or 18 years of age if the child meets the criteria for CAPS special needs or court-ordered supervision.
 - b. Child Care Learning Center: This is a program operated by an individual or business entity recognized under Georgia law that receives pay for group care. It cares for seven or more children under 18 years of age for less than 24 hours per day.
 - c. Licensed-exempt Programs:
 - i. Programs owned and operated by any department or agency of state, county or municipal government (i.e. afterschool programs in public schools operated by public school systems, and programs operated by city or county park and recreation departments); and
 - ii. Day camp programs for children five years of age and older operated between school terms, whose primary purpose is to provide organized recreational, religious or instructional activities.
2. Informal Providers: Childcare services may be purchased from informal providers due to child safety concerns only in the following situations:
 - a. No other licensed care is available within a reasonable geographic area;
 - b. The need for care is during non-traditional hours when licensed care is not available; or
 - c. The child in care is determined to meet the CAPS program definition of children with disabilities.

Informal providers are not required to be licensed but must enroll with the CAPS program. Informal providers must be 21 years of age or older to receive payment through CAPS. Types of informal child care providers include the following:

- a. Relative Informal Child Care
 - i. Arrangements include child care that is provided by a caregiver who is related to the child by blood, marriage, or adoption, such as an aunt, uncle, grandparent, great-grandparent, or adult sibling.

- ii. The relative informal child care arrangement may take place at the relative's residence or in the child's residence.
- iii. The relative must not be included in the family unit.
- iv. If the relative cares for children for pay, the total number of children in care cannot exceed six. Of the children in child care, no more than two can be unrelated for pay.
- v. If the relative care is for more than six related children for pay (as described by Child Care Services licensing rules), they are required to obtain a license from DECAL.

Adult siblings that are informal providers must live in a separate residence from the eligible children receiving child care subsidies. For relative informal providers, a maximum of six children are allowed at the residence where care is provided.

b. Non-relative Informal Child Care

- i. Arrangements include care with individuals who are not related to the child by blood, marriage, or adoption.
- ii. The non-relative must provide care in his/her own residence and may not be a resident of the household of the children receiving care.
- iii. If the non-relative cares for more than two unrelated children for pay, s/he is required to obtain a license from DECAL.

Parental Authorities or adults acting in loco parentis are unable to receive subsidy payment for their own children.

CAPS Priority Cases

The Childcare and Parent Services (CAPS) program uses an eligibility model based on priority groups. Priority groups may be widened, narrowed, added, or removed based on available funding. Applications submitted for initial eligibility will be denied if the family does not meet eligibility for a priority group, even if other eligibility requirements are met. Applicants who are denied for not being in a priority group can appeal that decision only if they believe the determination was made in error. See DECAL CAPS Policy Manual Policy 7: Priority Groups. Priority group status is only required at initial eligibility determination and is not required at annual redetermination. The following is a list of the priority groups (in alphabetical order):

- Child Protective Services (CPS) and court-ordered supervision cases
- Children in Georgia Division of Family and Children Services (DFCS) custody
- Families experiencing domestic violence
- Families of children with disabilities
- Families of children enrolled in the lottery-funded Georgia's Pre-K Program
- Families participating in or transitioning from TANF
- Families who have experienced a natural disaster
- Families who lack fixed, regular, and adequate housing
- Families with very low income as defined by CAPS

- Grandparents Raising Grandchildren (GRG)
- Minor parents
- Need to protect

Eligibility for CAPS in CPS Cases

Children in CPS cases may be eligible for CAPS, if they meet one of the following criteria.

1. A child 12 years old or younger in an open CPS case lives in the home of the CPS parents/caregivers and the purpose of the childcare is to address safety threats due to a lack of supervision or childcare.
 - a. The caregiver(s) must meet the CAPS non-financial eligibility requirements (Georgia residency, child citizenship or qualified alien status, immunization, and identity) as prescribed in DECAL CAPS Policy Manual Policy 6: Eligibility Requirements.
 - b. The caregiver(s) must meet the CAPS income guidelines as prescribed in the CAPS Income Calculations Policy (DECAL CAPS Policy Manual Policy 8: Income Calculations).
 - c. The state-approved activity requirement may be waived by DECAL while the CPS case is open and through the 12-month eligibility period.
2. A child 12 years old or younger in an open CPS case moves to the home of a new resource caregiver(s) (i.e. relative, safety resource, kinship care (not in DFCS custody), fictive kin, family friend, etc.) due to a safety or supervision concern, and the purpose of childcare is to allow the new resource caregiver(s) to work, attend school or training.
 - a. The new resource caregiver(s) must meet the CAPS non-financial eligibility requirements (Georgia residency, child citizenship or qualified alien status, immunization, and identity) as prescribed in CAPS Eligibility Requirements Policy (DECAL CAPS Policy Manual Policy 6: Eligibility Requirements).
 - b. The new resource caregiver(s) must meet the CAPS income guidelines as prescribed in the CAPS Income Calculations Policy (DECAL CAPS Policy Manual Policy 8: Income Calculations).
 - c. The state-approved activity requirement may be waived by DECAL while the CPS case is open and through the 12-month eligibility period.

 When the child returns home, childcare services may continue provided that the child's parents/caregivers' income does not exceed 85% of the state median income (SMI) guidelines. The SSCM must notify DECAL of the change; however, the parents/caregivers will not need to apply for CAPS, if they meet the income guidelines.
3. A child 13 years old or older with a special need in an open CPS case who is the subject of a court order requiring supervision.
 - a. The family must meet CAPS income and residency requirements, but not the work activity requirement.
 - b. A family fee is assessed based on the family's income.
 - c. Children under court ordered supervision may receive CAPS services until the end of the month in which the child turns 18 years old.

Children who need to receive protective services but are not formally involved with CPS may qualify for the Need to Protect priority group as prescribed in DECAL CAPS Policy Manual Policy 7.15 Priority Groups: Need to Protect.

Georgia Head Start and Early Head Start Programs

DFCS is partnering with the Office of Head Start and local Head Start/Early Head Start agencies. Georgia Head Start and Early Head Start programs provide comprehensive early childhood and family development services to children from birth to five years of age. Early Head Start serves infants, toddlers (i.e. birth to under 3 years of age) and pregnant women and their families who have incomes below the federal poverty level. Head Start is a child-focused program and has the overall goal of increasing school readiness of young children from low-income families by enhancing their cognitive, social, and emotional development. Head Start programs provide a learning environment that supports children's growth in many areas, such as language, literacy and social and emotional development. Head Start agencies provide a range of individualized services in the areas of education and early childhood development; medical, dental and mental health; nutrition; parent involvement and family support.

There are numerous organizations, including school systems, community action agencies and universities that operate Head Start and Early Head Start programs in Georgia. All Head Start and Early Head Start programs must adhere to rigorous and comprehensive federal Program Performance Standards. To participate in Head Start and Early Head Start programs, families must meet the Head Start Family Income Eligibility Guidelines. However, children in foster care, homeless children, and children from families receiving public assistance (Temporary Assistance for Needy Families or Supplemental Security Income) are categorically eligible for Head Start and Early Head Start services regardless of income.

Every effort should be made to enroll children who are four years of age or younger in a Head Start (3-4 years old) or Early Head Start (0-2 years old) program. If the Head Start program does not operate during the summer, children should be enrolled in a licensed childcare facility during the summer months. Using these resources helps to promote early brain development in children and prepare them for entry into kindergarten, promotes safety by ensuring the children are in the view of mandated reporters, and provides regular respite for foster parents. Questions or inquiries related to Early Head Start and Head Start programs should be directed to the DFCS Early Childhood Collaboration Unit within the Well-Being Services Section at the state office.

Georgia's Pre-K Programs

Research confirms that students in Georgia's Pre-K Program, a nationally recognized, lottery funded pre-kindergarten program continue to exhibit positive outcomes through the end of kindergarten across all domains of learning. Georgia's Pre-K program is available in all 159 counties of the state. Children who are Georgia residents and are four years of age on September 1 of the current school year are eligible to attend Georgia's Pre-K Program during this school year. Pre-K programs usually operate on the regular school system calendar for the length of a typical school day. Pre-K Programs may be offered at local public schools or through private providers of preschool services. Every effort should be made to enroll children who are four years of age in Georgia's Pre-K program. For additional information about eligibility and enrolling a child in Georgia's Pre-K Program please visit the Enrolling in Georgia's Pre-K Program webpage.

Chapter 19 Case Management

19.1 Milestones of Solution Based Casework (SBC)

	Georgia Division of Family and Children Services Child Welfare Policy Manual
	Chapter:	(19) Case Management
	Policy Title:	Milestones of Solution Based Casework (SBC)
	Policy Number:	19.1	Previous Policy Number(s):	N/A
	Effective Date:	December 2016	Manual Transmittal:	2016-13

N/A

Requirements

The Division of Family and Children Services (DFCS) will organize casework and supervision according to the following four milestones of Solution Based Casework (SBC)^[1]:

1. Milestone 1: Building a Consensus (Sorting Out, Assessment)
2. Milestone 2: Getting Organized on Outcomes (Case Plan Outcomes)
3. Milestone 3: Specific ACTION Plans (Behavioral Change)
4. Milestone 4: Documenting and Celebrating

Procedures

Milestone 1: Building a Consensus

The Social Services Case Manager (SSCM) will:

1. Engage family members in a manner that creates partnerships to protect children.
2. Assess family dynamics/interaction and identify the family's current developmental stage(s).
3. Identify problems in a way that the family members will arrive at similar conclusions as DFCS (consensus building).
 - a. In what everyday situations does the family struggle when it comes to caring for their children?
 - b. How are problematic situations handled when things are going well within the family, and when things are not going well?
 - i. Search for exceptions to the problem.
 - ii. Separate intentions from actions (normalizing the family's struggle and externalizing the problem pattern).

- c. What personal issues does one or more parent have that makes caring for the children difficult?
 - d. What is the pattern of unwanted behavior? Track the sequence/history.
 - e. What skills do they have to manage their personal behavior issue(s)?
4. Discuss specific issues that affect safety/risk, permanency and well-being.
 5. Summarize with the family what needs to change before going on to planning for change.

Milestone 2: Getting Organized on Outcomes

The SSCM will:

1. In partnership with the family and supporting resources, write down the desired outcomes of DFCS intervention with the family.
2. Explain what will be happening within the family when the necessary safety behavior has been established or re-established.

Milestone 3: Specific ACTION Plans

The SSCM will:

1. Engage the family in understanding the critical skills basic to changing and managing human behavior:
 - a. Identifying high risk or difficult situations.
 - b. Identifying early warning signals.
 - c. Preventing high-risk situations.
 - d. Interrupting high-risk situations not avoided.
 - e. Escaping high-risk situations not interrupted.
2. Develop a case plan with the family that is solution focused and establishes family and individual level outcomes.
3. Help the family understand the benefit of writing down and keeping track of the tasks necessary to accomplish real lasting change. The explanation must make sense to the person(s) needing to change.

Milestone 4: Documenting and Celebrating

The SSCM will:

1. Help the family document their success step-by-step as they rebuild their lives so their actions eventually match their intentions. This will help the family and the court notice the change. Some examples for documentation approaches include:
 - a. Daily journal
 - b. Scaling feelings or accomplishments (e.g. assigning a number on a scale from 1 to 10)
 - c. Routine or chores chart

- d. Buddy report
 - e. Appointment calendar
 - f. Providers report specific to tasks
 - g. Observations from visitation
2. Help families document and celebrate new safety behavior to reinforce change and to monitor danger.
 3. Notice and celebrate change with families to help them increase their confidence in their ability to change. Some examples include:
 - a. Call a meeting with the family and its support team to make sure all participants hear about the good things that are happening.
 - b. Create meaningful rituals to mark a milestone of progress.

Practice Guidance

Solution Based Casework

Solution Based Casework (SBC) informs the Georgia DFCS practice model. SBC is family-centered and prioritizes the partnership with families as the foundation for engagement. Family engagement takes place with the understanding that situations resulting in the need for DFCS intervention is associated with the challenges of everyday life events that all caregivers face. SBC teaches families to manage the challenges in their lives and create self-sustaining changes. SBC helps families to recognize problematic patterns of behavior that lead to negative outcomes for their family members. Then, SBC helps families discover exceptions to the problematic behavior and develop prevention skills. Written plans for action are developed with families to focus on solutions to prevent/reduce the risk of further problematic behavior causing maltreatment. SBC encourages practitioners to believe that parents ultimately want the best for their children, even when the parents are not providing the appropriate level of care needed to support child safety and well-being.

Milestones of SBC

At the time of DFCS intervention, parents may feel overwhelmed by the struggles of everyday life and that they are being judged. Consequently, parents need help to see that they are not their problems; they are just people who have problems for which they need effective solutions. Therefore, it is important to help families believe that they can actually change unwanted behavior and achieve successful outcomes. The milestones of SBC help organize what should be accomplished at a particular point and time during the life of a case.

19.2 Family Developmental Stages and Tasks

	Policy Title:	Family Developmental Stages and Tasks
	Policy Number:	19.2	Previous Policy Number(s):	N/A
	Effective Date:	December 2016	Manual Transmittal:	2016-13

Codes/References

N/A

Requirements

The Division of Family and Children Services (DFCS) will engage families from the viewpoint that all families experience the following developmental or life stages^[2] and while in those stages families encounter common challenges:

1. Beginning Couple
2. Family with Infant/Preschool Children
3. School Age Children
4. Teenage Children
5. Launching
6. Post Parental/Elder
7. Blended Family

Procedures

Social Services Case Manager

1. Identify the developmental stage(s) of the family.
2. Describe the family's interaction around the various tasks associated with the family's developmental stage(s).
3. Describe the tasks that are challenging for the family and have led or may lead to difficult situations with children in the home.
4. Describe any cultural or health issues that impact the developmental stage and tasks of the family.
5. Help a family to identify times when the family was able to successfully manage the challenges of everyday life without demonstrating problematic behavior leading to negative outcomes (i.e. exceptions).

Practice Guidance

Solution Based Casework (SBC) is based on the idea that regardless of socio-economic status, all families face similar challenges and tasks in order to meet the needs of everyday life. Once it is understood how the circumstances that brought a family to the attention of DFCS are related to everyday life events, casework activities (e.g. case planning, service referrals, etc.) become more purposeful. Since human behavior is rooted in what one does every day, it seems logical for DFCS to help families look for solutions to problematic behavioral patterns within their everyday life events.

Everyday life events can be grouped into family developmental stages (e.g. Beginning Couple, Family with Infant/Preschool Children, School Age Children, Teenage Children, Launching, Post Parental/Elder, and Blended Family). Family developmental stages impact the normal life events and challenges that are specific to a family. Each family can experience multiple family developmental stages at one time and the stages can change abruptly. For instance, someone may be in a new relationship with an individual who has children from a previous relationship. Consequently, this family would be in the Beginning Couple stage as well as the Blended Family stage. The Blended Family stage encompasses a multi-generational or cohabitating relationship where one or both cohabitating partners have children from a previous relationship.

The charts below provide examples of family developmental stages along with associated tasks and challenges. The information contained in the charts is not intended to be all-inclusive. It provides examples of some specific everyday life tasks that could become difficult situations for any family. It is a family's interaction around such everyday tasks that leads to the emergence of safety threats and the need for DFCS safety interventions.

Thinking Developmentally

Supervisors should engage SSCMs to help them to think developmentally about the families. Begin discussions about families by identifying who is in the family or reviewing the family genogram. Pose questions that cause the SSCM to think about where a family is developmentally, based on the ages and relationship of the children and adults in the household. Below are examples of questions that might help the SSCM begin to think developmentally about the families they serve:

1. Based upon this family's developmental stage, what developmental issues might they be facing?
2. What specific everyday tasks seem to be difficult for this family to manage?
3. How do the individual family members contribute to the family's inability to successfully manage everyday family events (e.g. getting the children off to school each day, completing household chores)?

 - iv. Prior to a child exiting foster care.
 - c. At any point during the life of a case when a need to formally engage the family and their support system is identified.

A transition roundtable (TRT) is used in lieu of an FTM to support transition planning for youth with a permanency plan of Another Planned Permanent Living Arrangement (APPLA).

DFCS may conduct multipurpose FTMs by blending more than one FTM type into a single meeting. In such cases, the facilitator must be informed of the intent to blend the meetings to ensure that all relevant issues are addressed and appropriately documented.
3. Conduct FTMs in accordance with the FTM Standards of Practice (see Forms and Tools: FTM Standards of Practice).
4. Utilize FTM facilitators who have successfully completed Solution Focused FTM training.

The Social Services Case Manager (SSCM) assigned to the case may facilitate or co-facilitate the meeting.

5. Conduct interviews (in-person, virtually or by phone) with the family and their family team members prior to the FTM to prepare for what to expect and who will be present and explain how the FTM will benefit the family.

 - i. Discuss the specific information, DFCS is requesting to disclose to the meeting participants and the purpose(s).
 - ii. Request the individual's voluntary informed consent to authorize the sharing of confidential information and/or PHI during the meeting. If agreed, complete the Authorization for Release of Information (ROI) (FTM specific).
 - e. Ask about any sensitive issues which they would like the facilitator to be careful discussing in the meeting.
 - f. Discuss the logistics of the meeting (location, time, date, etc.).

Face-to-face preparation interviews shall occur when family dynamics pose safety concerns or the case circumstances exist to explore the benefits and risks (domestic violence/intimate partner violence (DV/IPV), addiction, untreated mental illness, and/or child sexual abuse)

6. Conduct separate FTMs when safety concerns are identified or a parent requests a separate FTM due to safety concerns.
7. Invite parents/legal guardians (custodial and non-custodial), children/youth and other family team members as agreed upon by the family to the FTM at least five calendar days prior to the FTM. Provide this notification in writing to the following when developing the case plan for a child in foster care.
 - a. Parent/guardian/legal custodian
 - b. Child 14 years or older in DFCS custody
 - c. Child's attorney

Procedures

Social Services Case Manager

1. Complete the FTM Referral Form and submit to the FTM Facilitator:
 - a. Submit the FTM Referral Form within required timeframes for adequate preparation time as outlined in County/Regional protocols.
 - b. Indicate the specific FTM type(s), including it is a multipurpose FTM.
 - c. Use the case transfer staffing documented in Georgia SHINES in lieu of the referral form when the transfer staffing was held within 30 calendar days.

If the SSCM is conducting the FTM a referral form is not needed.

2. Determine if the child/youth should attend the FTM and consider the following:
 - a. The child/youth's chronological age, developmental level, emotional stability.
 - b. Whether the subject matter could traumatize or re-traumatize the child/youth (i.e., sexual abuse).
 - c. The benefits and appropriateness of child/youth attendance.
 - d. For a child/youth receiving mental health treatment, consult the therapist regarding the most appropriate way that the child can be included.
3. Identify if any confidential information and/or PHI of the family (parent/legal guardian, minor child, and/or other individuals) that will require the parents/legal guardian authorization to discuss during the FTM. Information identified should be:

Non-negotiable issues that must be addressed including those required by law, ordered by the court and/or identified as a safety threat (present or impending danger) to a child.

- c. Engage family team members in the discussion exploring ways that they can assist in supporting outcomes and tasks related to child safety, permanency and wellbeing (see Practice Guidance: Role of Family Team Members);
- d. Ensure that the child/youth perspectives are heard in accordance with the FTM Standards of Practice; and
- e. Participate in the development or review of the case plan/family plan/transition plan/permanency plan and address any concerns with the achievement of plan outcomes and tasks (see policies 8.3 Family Preservation Services: Case Planning and 10.23 Foster Care: Case Planning).

If the assigned SSCM is facilitating the FTM, he/she is also responsible for completing the procedures outlined in the FTM Facilitator and Co-Facilitator section below.

The FTM Facilitator and Co-Facilitator will:

1. Prepare for the FTM by reviewing all available case information.
2. Conduct a staffing with the SSCM and Independent Living Specialist (ILS) (when applicable), discuss:

8. Provide guidance to the SSCM regarding next steps and any follow up needed after the FTM to ensure all outcomes, tasks, decisions are being addressed.

Practice Guidance

What is the Solution-Focused FTM

The FTM brings together family team members who in partnership create, modify and implement case plans/action plans, or make critical decisions regarding child safety, permanency, and well-being. Families must be fully engaged in the FTM process to ensure they are involved in decision-making. The goal of the FTM is to build consensus with the family about what needs to change to strengthen caregiver protective capacities and build natural supports that will sustain the family over time, and ensure child safety, permanency, and well-being. The Solution-Focused FTM format provides more flexibility by allowing preparation interviews to occur naturally as part of case management activities with the family, the structure of the FTM to be altered depending on stage of the case (i.e. in what Milestone), and to support SSCMs facilitating the FTM.

Who Can Facilitate a Solution-Focused FTM

All FTMs must be facilitated by an individual who has successfully completed Solution Focused FTM training. An FTM may be facilitated by the SSCM assigned to the case, or by a facilitator from a dedicated FTM Unit or county/regional assignment. A co-facilitator may also be utilized to assist in facilitating FTMs. In counties or regions where there are no formal FTM Facilitators, the SSCM may partner with a peer (another SSCM) to facilitate or co-facilitate each other's FTMs as needed.

Confidentiality

Ensuring privacy and confidentiality is necessary for building family trust and demonstrating respect for the family. Trust is enhanced by informing all team members of the expectations to maintain confidentiality and what information is mandated to be reported by law:

1. New allegations of suspected child abuse/neglect.
2. A belief that an individual intends to harm herself/himself.
3. A belief that a person intends to harm others.

HIPAA

DFCS staff, including interns and volunteers, shall comply with HIPAA. HIPAA establishes minimum federal standards for protecting the access, use and disclosure of Protected Health Information (PHI). Refer to the Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act (HIPAA) of 1996: TCA 37-3-105, 37-5-106 and policy 2.5 Information Management: Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act \(HIPAA\) for specific information regarding obtaining authorization for the disclosure of protected health information during a FTM.

Preparation for the FTM

Successful FTMs require careful preparation of the family team regarding the purpose, roles and expected outcome. This may occur as a natural part of the case management activities or through a formal preparation interview. An important goal of preparing for the FTM is to engage and empower families in planning and decision-making. As much of the work to prepare a family occurs as part of ongoing case management interactions, SSCMs may move less formally through FTM preparation as needed. Preparation may occur face to face, using virtual technology, or by phone, if needed. A more formal Preparation Interview may be done when determined to best meet the family's needs. In either case, the FTM Preparation Interview Guidelines should be used by the SSCM to ensure that the family is fully prepared and has the supports they need.

Preparation of the child/youth is just as important as preparing caregivers, regardless of whether their attendance to the FTM as children/youth have a unique perspective on their family circumstances. During the preparation process, provide age appropriate information regarding the purpose and goal of the process, the participants and their roles, and how the child/youth's perspective benefits the family. Learning about the FTM process and purpose may help them understand that people are working to help their family. When determining whether the child/youth should attend the FTM, involve their caregivers in the decision-making to demonstrate respect and empower them while also providing the opportunity to assess and promote increased parental capacity.

Family Team Members

Family team members play an important role in supporting the family through safety planning and case planning during DFCS involvement and beyond. The family team members include the primary family members as well as formal and informal supports identified and/or agreed upon by the family for participation in case planning and decision-making. Family circumstances are unique and, therefore, the composition of each family team will vary. Primary family members must always be included for it to be considered an FTM. While in most situations, these include caregivers, children/youth and other adults, the SSCM and FTM Facilitator should work closely with the family to explore and identify who they consider as their family for inclusion in the FTM. Family team members includes, but is not limited to:

1. Primary family members (parents, caregivers, child/youth)
2. Kinship caregivers
3. Foster parents, adoptive parents
4. Kinship resources (extended family, including maternal and paternal relatives, committed individuals with longstanding positive "family like" relationships with the child/family)
5. The Indian Tribe, if the child belongs to a Georgia tribe or federally recognized tribe.
6. Family Supports (friends, neighbors, religious or faith-based/spiritual leaders/supports)
7. Child Placing Agency (CPA), Child Caring Institution (CCI), or Psychiatric Residential Treatment Facility (PRTF) staff
8. CASA
9. GAL
10. Service providers (CCFA, wraparound, DV/IPV, violence, mental health, substance abuse)

11. DFCS staff (SSCM, SSS, Independent Living Specialist, Kinship Coordinators, Office of Financial Independence (OFI, etc.)
12. Professionals from formal systems, such as schools

Role of Family Team Members

1. Parents/Caregiver: Parents/caregivers (including noncustodial parents) are experts on their family's strengths and needs, therefore their participation in the FTM is vital. Caregivers must be engaged in decision making regarding what will work to ensure the safety, wellbeing and permanency for their children, therefore their active input in development of safety interventions, outcomes and tasks for the case plan is essential.
2. Children/Youth: The child's/youth's voice is critical in case planning and decision making and should be included as a part of the FTM process. This can be accomplished in several ways depending on the individual family circumstances:
 - a. Full or partial participation of the child/youth in the meeting (i.e., consider the emotional well-being of the child and whether they may be re-traumatized if present for the family story or other stages of the FTM).
 - b. Encourage the child/youth to identify persons who they would like to participate to the FTM either as a support or as his/her representative.
 - c. If the child cannot attend, ask him/her what issues he/she would like to have addressed (i.e., he/she may write a letter or make a list of things he/she would like to have discussed at the meeting.) Also, if there are critical decisions that will be made in the FTM, seek the child/youth's input regarding such decisions.
 - d. Invite someone who represents the child's best interest and who can serve as his/her support/advocate, such as a GAL or CASA.
3. Relatives (Blood, Marriage or Adoption) and Kin: Relatives and/or kin can assist in engaging, encouraging, and empowering the family as they work on case plan goals and remain a sustainable support system after DFCS has closed the case. Having relatives and/or kin involved in the FTM process often gives them information and insight about family dynamics and functioning that they may have been unaware of and provides them an opportunity to participate in decision-making process and support child safety, permanency and wellbeing outcomes.
4. Family Supports: Provide encouragement to the family as well as identify potential resources that may be available to help improve the family's challenging situation.
5. Foster Parents/Adoptive Parents: The placement resource provides valuable information regarding the child's adjustment and progress at home and school, as well as information regarding child vulnerabilities. This is also an opportunity for the placement resource to partner with the DFCS and family in case planning and visitation while also learning information that can be helpful should they become the permanent resource for the child.
6. CPA/CCI/PRTF: These providers play a key role in family engagement and service provision and must always be included in the FTM process. When a child/youth is placed with a CCI, CPA or PRTF, participation of their staff in the case planning and the decision-making process is critical, due to their consistent, ongoing and meaningful interactions with the caregiver and child/youth. CPA, CCI and PRTF staff should provide information regarding the child's adjustment to his/her placement and school, and treatment progress related to any identified child vulnerabilities.

7. Guardian Ad Litem (GAL): The GAL is appointed by the Court to protect the best interest of the child he/she represents. Therefore, they are an integral member of the family team and should be included in discussions that impact the child during the case planning process for children in foster care.
8. CASA: Gain first-hand knowledge of the work being done by the family and hear the family voice with the knowledge and wisdom gained from participating in services to provide valuable support for the family in court. Participation in the team allows the CASA to feel added confidence in supporting the team's recommendations to the court regarding permanency for the child.
9. Comprehensive Child and Family Assessment (CCFA) Provider: The CCFA provides an overview of the assessments conducted, identified needs/services, recommendations for the permanency plan or concurrent permanency plan, and other information required for the social study outlined in policy 10.23 Foster Care: Case Planning.
10. Independent Living Program Services: For youth eligible or involved in the Independent Living Program, the ILS can provide information regarding the Written Transitional Living Plan (WTLP) and/or Transition Plan progress.
11. Kinship Coordinators: For family's that have kinship caregivers, they can provide support through identifying resources and advocate to ensure these caregivers have what they need to support the child/youth.
12. OFI: OFI brings resources and information that can assist the family in meeting related outcomes and tasks. Some benefits to OFI participation are that they:
 - a. Bring a different perspective to the team.
 - b. Have specific knowledge to address individual cases/needs.
 - c. Are knowledgeable of the family make-up and support system.
 - d. Can answer questions and provide on-the-spot services to the family.
13. Service Providers/Community Partners: The FTM provides a unique opportunity for community and service providers involved with the family to help determine what advocacy or support the family needs to meet case plan outcomes. They can provide recommendations regarding treatment or can identify additional community resources that can further assist the family. They can discuss the level of progress made through service provision that have had a direct impact on safety or permanency outcomes.

Attorneys

While the FTM is not a legal meeting/hearing and there is no policy requirement to include or exclude attorneys in the FTM, there may be instances when caregivers make specific requests to have their attorney present at an FTM. A caregiver has the right to request and have his/her attorney present; however, he/she should be reminded that the FTM is not a legal proceeding, and the purpose of the FTM should be reiterated. The SSCM should invite the Special Assistance Attorney General (SAAG) to attend if the caregiver's attorney plans to attend the FTM. If other attorneys (i.e., the Guardian Ad Litem, Child Advocate, etc.) request to attend an FTM, the family must be informed of such requests for participation so that they can be included in the decision-making regarding the benefits of such participation. If any attorney is included in the FTM, the FTM Facilitator must ensure that adequate preparation is conducted with the attorney, informing them of the purpose of the meeting and that it is not a legal proceeding as well as the importance of adhering to the FTM model and what their role might be in the meeting.

Building Consensus in the FTM

A consensus-driven decision-making process does not necessarily imply unanimity. Consensus allows individuals' ideas and suggestions to be heard and considered during the FTM meeting. To help with building consensus^[3] during the FTM:

1. Affirm the common goal of ensuring child safety, permanency and well-being, and everyone's interest and commitment to this goal.
2. Validate the family's ability to develop and implement a plan that will address the concerns and what supports are available to help.
3. Emphasize family strengths, including having the family brainstorm on their strengths.
4. Encourage open and honest discussions, and creativity in generating solutions.
5. Manage expectations by predicting that discussions may become uncomfortable and get the families advice on how they can help when that occurs.
6. Be transparent regarding DFCS' role and responsibility, including non-negotiable issues related to child safety. However, emphasize how this aligns with the family's goal.

In the absence of consensus, DFCS must ensure that the non-negotiable issues related to child safety are included as a part of a safety plan and/or case plan.

Domestic Violence/Intimate Partner Violence (DV/IPV)

Cases involving DV/IPV can be complex and must be treated with appropriate care. The primary concern is the safety of the family team members. Adequate preparation is required with all participants to ensure that safety is not jeopardized. During the preparation interview, if DV/IPV issues are suspected or known, and the alleged maltreater is present proceed with care in the discussion of such issues so that family members' safety is not jeopardized. Have a separate discussion at another time with the alleged victim to ensure that safety issues are addressed. A community partner with expertise in DV/IPV or a DV/IPV liaison, including an expert in batterer's intervention, should be consulted and engaged for participation; and/or a co-facilitator with some specialized knowledge and skills may also be involved in the FTM. Explain to other professionals, such as attorneys, the reason for having separate FTMs, so that they understand what you are trying to accomplish, can assist the process and not interfere with it (see [Forms and Tools: Intimate Partner Violence \[Domestic Violence\] Guidelines & Protocol](#)). The SSCM/FTM Facilitator must address safety issues prior to the meeting by determining:

1. Whether conflict is likely and/or if there is an existing Order of Protection and potential violation of the provisions.
2. How the safety of the victim parent/child(ren), and other family team members will be assured.
3. What the victim parent believes will ensure his/her safety and that of the child(ren).
4. Having separate FTMs to allow the victim parent the ability to speak freely. When separate FTMs are held for safety reasons, they should be held on different days and at different locations.

Sexual Abuse

Careful thought and preparation is essential when dealing with sexual abuse to avoid traumatizing or re-traumatizing the child and family members and to ensure the safety of all participants. Deviation from the FTM model may be necessary in these situations. The alleged maltreater must never be present at FTMs concurrently with the victim child. The child must not attend the FTM in cases where the non-abusing parent may be blaming the child or does not believe the child. Utilize other participation methods such as obtaining information during the preparation interview or include the child's therapist or another representative to ensure the child's view is heard. The SSCM must consult with the SSS regarding the following:

1. What is the perspective of the non-abusing parent (i.e., do they support the child; are they blaming the child; do they believe the child; what has been their response to help the child)?
2. Who needs to be present at the meeting?
3. Should the maltreater be included or should a separate meeting be held with the maltreater?
4. Refer to the local Child Abuse Protocol regarding handling such cases;
5. How can the child's voice be heard when he/she are unable to attend the meeting (i.e., can he/she be interviewed during the preparation; can the child's therapist or other representative be included to ensure the child's view is heard)?
6. What are the specific issues that can be discussed? Consider if there are legal or therapeutic issues related to the abuse and the parameters. Consultation with law enforcement, forensic experts, the child's therapist, and the SAAG may be necessary to ensure that legal or therapeutic boundaries remain intact.

Although it may not be appropriate to discuss legal/therapeutic issues regarding the abuse of the child, there are additional issues that can be addressed, such as placement, school, diligent search, personal goals, interests, expectations, etc.

FTM Documentation

The FTM Facilitator and/or the SSCM must ensure that the documentation reflects the following:

1. Preparation for the FTM with participants.
2. Date, time, and purpose of the meeting.
3. List all those who attended and those who were invited and were not in attendance.

If the custodial or non-custodial parent was not present at the meeting, documentation must reflect efforts to engage/involve him/her; the specific reason he/she did not attend and/or whether there were other issues requiring him/her to be excluded such as safety concerns.

4. Any specific safety concerns that warranted separate FTMs, if applicable.
5. If child/youth is not present for the meeting, the specific reason he/she did not attend as well as their perspective (i.e., information from preparation interview, a representative, a letter or list of issues the child wanted to be heard, etc.).

6. Specific issues discussed, including the impact on safety, permanency and well-being.
7. A description of the family dynamics/interaction.
8. A detailed summary of the level of engagement of the family team.
9. Any exit strategies or alternative plans and activities identified for the family.
10. Meeting outcome, including critical decisions and/or plans, tasks identified for follow-up, persons' responsible, timeframes and observations.

Practice Guidance

Case transfer staffings are an opportunity to share and discuss information at any stage in the life of a case. This allows for a thorough assessment and analysis of family conditions and further ensures that the current DFCS intervention is meeting the family’s needs currently and will continue to meet the needs moving forward. Supervisors participate in case transfer staffing to provide guidance, approve current and proposed case management activities.

Many times, families frequently move from county to county. When this occurs, it is imperative that services and contact with the family are maintained as much as possible. As such, the County that has primary responsibility for the case should maintain the primary case management responsibilities in Georgia SHINES until it can be confirmed that the family has settled in another county. The primary county may request assistance from other counties in making contact with the family to confirm their residency, however, official case transfer should not occur until it is clear that the family will remain in their new residence ongoing. This may require keeping the case beyond the timeframes outlined for case transfer in the above procedures. Should this occur, the decision to maintain the case pending confirmation of the family’s residency in a new county should be documented in Georgia SHINES as a part of the Supervisory Staffing.

When disagreements between the sending and receiving county DFCS offices occur, the situation should be referred to the appropriate County Director(s), and when necessary Regional Director(s) for resolution. Under no circumstances should case management activities cease, or a family not be contacted due to county jurisdiction issues. When multiple counties or other states are involved with a family and jurisdiction is initially undetermined, a staffing must occur between the counties to develop and implement a plan to address child safety and the family’s needs pending jurisdiction resolution. Under no circumstances should the establishment of jurisdiction preclude the county in which the family resides from ensuring face-to-face contact and an assessment of safety. It is permissible to cross county lines while jurisdictional issues are resolved.

 - a. When conducting Multi-Disciplinary Team (MDT) meetings.
 - b. As a learning tool for developing practice skills as a team, when implementing Georgia's Practice Model with the Social Services Case Managers (SSCM) and Social Services Supervisor (SSS).

Procedures

Social Services Supervisor

1. Prepare to facilitate the Case Consultation and provide notification, at least 10 days in advance of the scheduled Case Consultation date, to the:
 - a. SSCM (legal and boarding);
 - b. Service providers/community partners;
 - c. Independent Living Program,
 - d. Court Appointed Special Advocate (CASA); and
 - e. Other professionals working in partnership with the family and DFCS.
2. Begin the Case Consultation meeting:
 - a. Introduce team members and the process to the team; and
 - b. Explain that the role of the group is to learn about the family and to brainstorm possible strategies and interventions to assist the child and family.
3. Use the Case Consultation Agenda by asking the six agenda questions:

 - i. Help the team get to know the family by introducing family members with a genogram.
 - ii. Identify the family developmental stages and tasks (see policy 19.2 Case Management: Family Development Stages and Tasks).

iii. Review the developmental challenges related to the everyday tasks that families face.

b. What family issues brought this case to the attention of DFCS?

(Draw a line on the flip chart and bubble the family level and individual level issues)

- i. What are the parenting or caregiving practices related to everyday life tasks that pose a threat to child safety and well-being?
- ii. Track the sequence of how the family goes about trying to accomplish these everyday life tasks.
- iii. What is working and what is not working.

 These answers will lead to family level issues or concerns. It is important to assess the issues or concerns of safety which will help to identify Family Level Outcomes (FLO).

c. What are the individual issues?

- i. What self-management issues do caregivers have that serve as barriers to resolve the problems in the family?
- ii. What do you know about the individual patterns of behaviors?

 These answers will lead to individual level issues or concerns; once assessed for the level of safety, they will inform the determination of Individual Level Outcomes (ILO).

d. What are the family's strengths and skills?

- i. What does the family do well? What is the family proud of? What gives the family a sense of self-worth and satisfaction?
- ii. How do these strengths help mitigate the family's problem?
- iii. Identify exceptions to the Family and Individual Level Issues or Concerns.

e. Do we have a consensus about direction?

- i. Identify the safety issues that would prevent the case from closing.
- ii. Identify and discuss the old plan (this is the way that the family was managing the everyday life task which cause safety issues or concerns) that was ineffective and what new plan(s) that will make the situation better.

f. Do we have action plans in place yet?

- i. Review and discuss the action plans to identify the tasks and to ensure that the tasks are behaviorally focused, S.M.A.R.T. (Specific, Measurable, Attainable, Relevant and Time-Limited) and can be documented to notice and celebrate change (see policy 19.14 Case Management: Action Plan).
- ii. Is the family and their support network keeping track of their successes?

 This step is only applicable when a case plan and action plan have been developed with the family.

4. Summarize the activities of the Case Consultation team and ensure that everyone is clear on the expectations and goals going forward.

5. Ensure that any documents provided at the Case Consultation are reviewed and uploaded into External Documentation in SHINES within 72 hours of the Case Consultation.

Practice Guidance

Solution Based Casework (SBC) posits that child safety and well-being are endangered when families cannot successfully manage the everyday life tasks associated with the stage of the family developmental cycle that family is currently functioning in. In order to create safe environments for children to thrive in, caregivers have to gain insight into how their thinking affects their feelings; which in turn, is manifested in their behaviors. Child welfare staff and community based providers must focus their approach on the family's strengths, competency and the times when the family was able to successfully meet the developmental needs of the child and family (problem exceptions). This empowers the family to work in partnership with child welfare staff and community based providers to address the challenges faced in their everyday life tasks in order to keep their children safe.

Family Composition

A genogram is an illustration of familial relationships over time. It is valuable for obtaining information about the family, assessing relationship dynamics and behavioral patterns, guiding intervention strategies and assisting families with insight into their familial connections.^[5] Genograms also help to identify family strengths and needs throughout generations.

The Case Consultation Team (CCT) must remain conscientious of the need to honor and respect culturally different views, beliefs, attitudes, values and systems in which families raise their children. Differences in parenting styles and practices should not necessarily be viewed from a deficit perspective, but should be assessed in context of the cultural norms of the family. What may be viewed as a deficiency in one culture may be regarded as a strength in another culture.

The CCT should give equal weight to the family's views on how to solve the problems of the family. The CCT should brainstorm ways to assist families in gaining insight into their beliefs and behavioral practices that place children in unsafe situations. This empowers families to develop new skills that they can maintain once they are no longer actively involved with the child welfare system.

Family Issues

It is important for CCT to identify the developmental stage that the family is currently in and the everyday tasks associated with the stage. All families, whether or not they are involved with the child welfare system, experience common challenges related to everyday life situations involving parenting (e.g. potty training, school attendance, dating, household rules, financial support, health issues and conflict). When these challenges pose a threat to the basic care and safety of children, then the child welfare system must intervene. The CCT uses the Social Services Case Manager (SSCM)'s work of tracking the sequence of events that brought the family to the attention of the child welfare system to gain awareness into what the family has tried that is working and what is not working. This will lead to the identification of Family Level Issues or Concerns. It is important to assess the issues or concerns for safety; which will help to identify Family Level Outcomes (FLO).

In situational domestic violence, the FLO is secondary to the Individual Level Outcome (ILO) because safety must be assured as the primary focus. FLO should not be completed on sexual abuse cases at all because sexually abusive behavior is not normalized as a component of managing the everyday family developmental stages, but is the result of uncontrolled personal behavior that victimizes a child.

Individual Issues

Just as many children in the child welfare system have experienced different kinds of trauma, many birth parents involved with child welfare services have their own histories of childhood and/or adult trauma. Untreated traumatic stress has serious consequences for children, adults, and families. Traumatic events in childhood and adolescence can continue to impact adult life, affecting an adult's ability to regulate emotions, maintain physical and mental health, engage in relationships, parent effectively, and maintain family stability. Parents' past or present experiences of trauma can affect their ability to keep their children safe, to work effectively with child welfare staff, and to respond to the requirements of the child welfare system^[6].

The CCT Team will assess the behavioral problems or patterns of behavior that the caregivers exhibit which impact the safety or well-being of the child(ren). Assess the identified Individual Level Issues or Concerns based on the safety to the child, in order to identify the Individual Level Outcomes (ILO). How does the adult in the home function in regards to daily life management and protective capacities? Assess the caregiver with the high risk behavior, as well as, any other adults in the home with caregiving responsibilities. Review the assessments/reports of other professionals related to the behaviors of the adults, such as mental health providers, law enforcement, and interviews with relatives or friends.

CASES (criminal activity; anger/control issues; substance abuse; emotional stability; and sexually abusive patterns is the acronym used to categorize the five major problems) that families present with when encountering the child welfare system.

Family Strengths and Skills

Assessing a family's strengths and skills is a continuous process, conducted jointly with the family, throughout the life of a child welfare case. The CCT should review and discuss the assessment of the family's strengths and skills that have been completed up to the point of the Case Consultation. Assess the ways in which the strengths and skills can be utilized to safely maintain the child in the family or to safely return the child to the family.

Consensus About Direction

Consensus centers on separating the intentions of the caregiver from the actions of the caregiver by normalizing the developmental challenges of the family and externalizing the problem behavior (while not minimizing it), so that the family and Social Services Case Manager (SSCM) can work together to address the problem behavior without the caregiver focusing on defending himself or herself against the stigma of the behavior.

Reviewing the family history is important; however, it must be assessed in the context of its impact on the current problem. The CCT will need to understand and recognize how the family has attempted to solve their problems in the past as stated in the family's language or narrative of the problem. Evaluate whether the family's language adequately assesses the old problematic behaviors and adequately addresses the new desired behaviors.

Practice Guidance

The Supportive Role of a Supervisor

Supervisors play an important role in increasing case manager motivation, job-related critical thinking, and decision-making skills, so that case managers can better serve children and families (Fisher, 2009; Lietz, 2010; Rzepnicki & Johnston, 2005)^[7]. Additionally, research has shown that there is a relationship between quality supervision and the case manager's increased capacity to define "next steps" and set limits in their cases (Banuch, 1999); which increased service provision (McGrew & Bond, 1997), led to stronger client engagement (particularly with resistant individuals) (Bibus, 1993), and improved goal attainment among clients (Harkness, 1995)^[7].

Building a Partnership

The SSS models how the SSCM should engage in partnership decision making with the family by engaging in partnership decision making with the SSCM. Just as the SSS listens to and elicits input from the SSCM to reach decisions, the SSCM listens to and elicits input from the family related to their developmental stage and their assessment of the challenges associated with that stage, as well as solutions to alleviate or reduce safety concerns accompanying the developmental stage.

In Solution Based Casework (SBC) partnering with families has additional meaning. It means to partner with families to establish safety for their children. Partnering with families is always the responsibility of the SSCM when working to achieve this goal. When partnering with families is difficult because of challenges or resistance, the SSCM must reassess his/her approach and practice strategies. The SSS plays a critical role in helping the SSCM reframe what is perceived as “family resistance” to refocus his/her approach in engaging the family and building partnership.

Using Georgia SHINES Information to Inform Decision Making

The SSS should review Georgia SHINES information (i.e. Case Watch, Alerts, Health Information, Record Checks, etc.) related to their programmatic area with the SSCM during the staffing. This information helps to inform practice through:

1. Assessing case management tasks and progress;
2. Assessing individual case progress;
3. Targeting service delivery; and
4. Providing feedback to the Social Services Case Managers (SSCM)

Making an Informed Decision

Making an informed decision is not based on assumptions but on the evidence obtained to support the decision being made^[8]. The combination of comprehensive information gathering, critical thinking, policy guidelines and partnership aids in making an informed decision. The principles related to informed decision making include the following:

1. Framing the question behind the decision
 - a. Was the question clearly defined before gathering information?
2. Finding sources of information
 - a. Have we spoken to everyone internally and externally with information related to the decision?
 - b. Have we reviewed data systems and documents that can provide supporting evidence?
3. Assessing the accuracy of information
 - a. How reliable and valid is the information that was obtained?
4. Assessing the applicability of information
 - a. Does the information apply to the current decision?
 - b. Does the information support or refute the concerns?
 - c. How does the information apply to the context of the family’s culture?
 - d. How current is the information that was obtained?
5. Assessing whether the information is actionable
 - a. Does the information require urgent or emergent action?
6. Determining if the information is adequate
 - a. Is the information comprehensive?

- b. Is additional information needed to make a decision?
- c. Does it support the decision that is being made?

Partnership Decision Making

The SSS must always staff the following situations with the SSCM:^[9]

1. When the SSCM is assigned an Initial Safety Assessment (ISA) and prior to the SSCM making contact with the child and family.
2. Modifications to assigned response times.
3. During contact with the child(ren) and family at the ISA to make a safety determination.
4. After contact with the child(ren) and family to make a track assignment.
5. Upon conclusion of the CPS investigation to make the maltreatment and safety determinations.
6. When a child(ren) is determined to be unsafe, which interventions will ensure the child(ren)'s protection in the least intrusive manner possible.
7. When developing, modifying or changing safety, family or case plans.
8. Before a child is placed in out-of-home care, and before a reunification recommendation is made.
9. When changing or modifying the placement arrangements or permanency goals.
10. At the point of case closure, to evaluate the family's progress toward achieving and maintaining behavioral changes for child(ren) safety and well-being.

After the SSCM and SSS have discussed the information that was gathered, they must weigh the evidence to reach a case decision or action. The available evidence should clearly support the decision. SSCMs should approach the monthly supervisor staffing with professional recommendations and next steps based on the evidence that they have obtained. The evidence that was obtained should be clearly documented in Georgia SHINES to support the recommendation.

Sometimes situations may arise that make it difficult for the SSS and SSCM to agree on a case decision or action when the evidence is equally weighted. In these situations, the SSS and SSCM should strive to reach consensus on the decision (i.e. request the perspective of another supervisor; jointly seek consultation from the county, regional or state office leadership; request a safety roundtable; etc.). The SSS and SSCM should present the evidence that supports their recommendation of the case decision or action. Ultimately, the agency's decision, along with the supporting evidence, should be documented in Georgia SHINES. SSCMs should never document disagreements with their SSS in Georgia SHINES. Most importantly, differences in opinions should never interfere with the safety or well-being of children or the needs of the family.

O.C.G.A. § 45-10-25. Exceptions to prohibitions on transactions with state agencies

Requirements

The Division of Family and Children Services (DFCS) will:

1. Make every effort to avoid even the appearance of a conflict of interest wherein a reasonable person would conclude from the circumstances that an employee's ability to perform official duties is compromised by personal interests. This also applies to individuals who have a business relationship with DFCS, including but not limited to the following:
 - a. DFCS contractors (e.g., parent aids, foster home development contractors, wrap-around providers, independent living providers, transitional living providers);
 - b. Treatment/service providers (e.g., therapists);
 - c. Owners, operators, employees, or contractors of a Child Placing Agency (CPA);
 - d. Owners, operators, employees, or contractors of a Child Caring Institution (CCI); and
 - e. Owners, operators, employees, or contractors of a Psychiatric Residential Treatment Facility (PRTF).
2. Require DFCS employees and individuals who have a business relationship with DFCS to disclose any potential conflicts of interest to DFCS prior to taking any action to become the caregiver for a child involved in an active DFCS child welfare case.
3. Allow DFCS employees and individuals who have a business relationship with DFCS to serve as temporary caregivers for children involved in an active child welfare case when they are relatives of the children.
 - a. Authorization of the caregiver arrangement must be obtained from the applicable supervising authority:
 - i. Regional Director (DFCS employees)
 - ii. OPM Director (CPA/CCI employees)
 - iii. Delivered Services Unit Director (employees of contractors)
 - b. Relatives who serve as foster parents shall serve as foster parents for an agency outside of their business area and/or relationships.

It is preferred that DFCS employees choose to serve as foster parents for a CPA rather than DFCS and the decision should be made in consultation with the applicable supervising authority (i.e., Regional Director, OPM Director, Delivered Services Unit Manager).

- c. Kinship Assessments on DFCS employees and individuals who have a business relationship with DFCS must be completed and approved by a DFCS county office or region outside of the employee/individual's area of responsibility as assigned by the Regional Director.

In emergency situations, an abbreviated Kinship Assessment (see policy 22.03 Kinship: Kinship Assessment) may be initiated by the legal county to facilitate immediate placement with a kinship caregiver, then referred to an outside DFCS county office for completion. Placement must be preapproved by the Director of the county where the child will reside (i.e., boarding county).

4. Allow DFCS employees and individuals who have a business relationship with DFCS to serve as temporary caregivers for children involved in an active child welfare case when they are fictive kin of the children.
 - a. Authorization must be obtained from the Division Director.
 - b. Fictive kin who serve as foster parents shall serve as a foster parent for an agency outside of their business area and/or relationships:
5. Restrict DFCS employees who work in a child welfare program area from serving as temporary caregivers for children involved in an active child welfare case when they are not relatives or fictive kin of the children.

Exceptions to this requirement may be granted by the Division Director.

6. Allow DFCS employees who do not work in a child welfare program area (e.g., OFI) and individuals who have a business relationship with DFCS to serve as foster parents. Authorization is required from the Regional Director.
7. Allow DFCS employees and individuals who have a business relationship with DFCS to serve as permanent caregivers (i.e., adoptive parents, permanent legal guardians) for children in DFCS custody.
 - a. If DFCS employees or individuals with a business relationship with DFCS have provided services to a child or the child's family as part of any child welfare case (open or closed), then authorization must be obtained from the Deputy Commissioner, Child Welfare and the Division Director.
 - b. If an individual was previously approved as a temporary caregiver for the same child, then no additional approval is needed to initiate the process to become a permanent caregiver.
8. Restrict caregivers from serving simultaneously as caregivers for DFCS and a CPA. Caregivers may only serve for one agency at a time.
9. Require DFCS employees and individuals who have a business relationship with DFCS to refrain from providing any case management or support services to or on behalf of any child or family involved in an active child welfare case when they are serving as a caregiver for such children.
10. Transfer all case management activities related to cases involving DFCS employees (in a caregiving role) to a DFCS county office or region outside of the employees' area of responsibility as assigned by the Regional Director. This includes all case contacts, reviews, staffing, supervision, etc.

Practice Guidance

Conflicts of Interest

A conflict of interest may exist when employees engage in activities that may financially or otherwise enhance themselves, members of their kinship circle, or individuals with whom they are personally or financially involved. Due to their knowledge, access to information, and ability to take certain actions in their official capacity as departmental employees, DFCS employees and its business associates can exercise influence in child welfare cases. That being the case, each has a duty to safeguard the trust placed in them by DFCS and the citizens of the state of Georgia. Therefore, none is permitted to make an improper profit from the exercise of their official duties and responsibilities. A conflict of interest may exist when no actual profit is made by an individual; the opportunity for profit or benefit alone may create the conflict.

A conflict of interest may arise from a circumstance or situation, and not an activity. Its elements are the opportunity for enhancement by a transaction, and opportunity to influence that transaction as an employee, business associate, service provider, etc.

A conflict of interest may also arise when a DFCS employee or business associate engages in an outside activity which, while not necessarily incompatible or inconsistent with official duties, is or becomes so extensive that it interferes with the proper and full-time performance of official departmental duties.

Reason for restrictions on who can serve as temporary caregivers

The reason for placing restrictions on who can serve as temporary caregivers for children involved in active child welfare cases is to reduce the potential for conflict-of-interest situations. These restrictions serve as a protection for all parties involved. To account for special situations, there is a mechanism for making exceptions to the restrictions on a case-by-case basis.

Reason for restrictions on who can serve as adoptive parents

DFCS employees and those who have a business relationship with DFCS encounter a lot of families during their career. Some of those encounters may involve participation in agency intervention that results in a child being removed from the custody of their family. For a DFCS employee or individual who has a business relationship with DFCS to later become the new family for such a child can have the appearance of impropriety. Real or imagined, such negative perceptions of the agency's work can produce conflict that detracts from the agency's mission. DFCS employees and those that partner with them to provide child welfare services know firsthand the importance of a child having consistent nurturing parental figures and family life. Consequently, it is only natural for such helping professionals to want to provide a stable, permanent home for a child whose family is unable or unwilling to do so. Therefore, DFCS and all its partners must take every precaution to promote transparency when it comes to personal involvement in the lives of the families they serve. This requires individuals to have open and honest dialogue with their leadership about their interest in adoption. It also requires individuals to have honest self-reflection about their feelings toward a child's family and their motives for adoption. To avoid the appearance of preferential treatment, prevent accusations of sabotage against co-workers, and to protect employee privacy, the adoptive process must not be handled by an employee's home office. Instead, it must be handled by an objective party with no motive other than to find the most appropriate family for a child in need.

2. Conduct a check of the GCIC database on adult household members as needed when providing Child Protective Services (CPS), including when assessing a voluntary kinship arrangement.
 3. Conduct a check of national and state crime information databases (as defined in section 534(f)(3)(A) of title 28, United States Code) utilizing electronic fingerprinting (Live Scan) on any prospective foster and adoptive parent before the applicant may be finally approved for placement of a child, regardless of whether foster care maintenance payments or adoption assistance payments are to be made on behalf of the child. This includes all adults (age 18 and over) residing in the home (permanently or temporarily) who have access to children placed in the home.
 4. Require a fingerprint-based check of national crime information databases (as defined in section 534(f)(3)(A) of title 28, United States Code) be conducted on any adult working in a child caring institution (CCI), including a group home, residential treatment center, shelter, or other congregate care setting where children in DFCS custody are placed (see policy 16.8 Room Board Watchful Oversight: Minimum Standards).
 5. Not approve any prospective foster or adoptive parent or claim Federal Financial Participation (FFP) for any foster care maintenance or adoption assistance payment made on behalf of a child placed in a foster home operated under the auspices of a Child Placing Agency (CPA) or on behalf of a child placed in an adoptive home through a private adoption agency if DFCS finds (in any case involving a child on whose behalf such payments are to be made), via a criminal records check conducted in accordance with the above requirement, that a court of competent jurisdiction has determined that the prospective foster or adoptive parent has been convicted of a felony involving:
 - a. Child abuse or neglect;
 - b. Spousal abuse;
 - c. A crime against a child or children (including child pornography); or
 - d. A crime involving violence, including rape, sexual assault, or homicide (but not including other physical assault or battery).
 6. Not approve any prospective foster or adoptive parent or claim FFP for any foster care maintenance or adoption assistance payment made on behalf of a child placed in a foster home operated under the auspices of a CPA or on behalf of a child placed in an adoptive home through a private adoption agency if DFCS finds (in any case involving a child on whose behalf such payments are to be made), via a criminal records check conducted in accordance with the above requirement, that a court of competent jurisdiction has determined that the prospective foster or adoptive parent, within the last five years, has been convicted of a felony involving:
 - a. Physical assault;

b. Battery; or

c. A drug or alcohol related offense.

7. Conduct a name-based CRC of the GCIC database on substitute caregivers providing routine care (more than once a week, usually at designated times) for children in DFCS custody.

A letter from the Department of Early Care and Learning (DECAL) issued within the previous 12 months stating that the substitute caregiver has received a satisfactory CRC determination may be accepted in lieu of a new CRC.

8. Conduct a fingerprint-based CRC of the NCIC database on substitute caregivers providing extended respite care (short-term unreimbursed respite care for longer than 72 consecutive hours) for children in DFCS custody.

9. Allow an exception to the fingerprinting requirement in case-specific situations for persons who are permanently physically incapable of providing fingerprint images or a double amputee. In such instances, a Criminal Justice Information Services (CJIS) Biographic Verification Request must be submitted via the OIG (see Practice Guidance: CJIS Biographic Verification Request).

This exception does not apply to persons who can be printed, but the quality of the fingerprints is poor.

10. Ensure that a fingerprint-based CRC is conducted at a minimum of every four years on each foster and/or adoptive parent and all adults in the household.
11. Use a fingerprint-based CRC only for the purpose for which it was originally intended^[11].
12. Ensure a CRC is conducted within 30 calendar days on any new household member 18 years of age and older, as well as any current household member who attains 18 years of age.

This includes youth in foster care who remain with the placement resource when they reach age 18.

13. Continue to be responsible for the security and integrity of Criminal History Records Information (CHRI) received before September 1, 2013.^[12]
14. Follow the following guidelines regarding dissemination of CHRI:

- a. Refrain from disseminating any CHRI outside of the Department of Human Services (DHS) or across state lines. This includes the individuals referenced in the CHRI.
- b. When CHRI is disseminated within DHS, the recipient must have successfully completed GCIC Security Awareness Training annually and have a current Georgia Crime Information Awareness Statement on file with his/her manager.
- c. When CHRI is disseminated within DHS, the sender must complete a secondary log that includes the date, time, GBI Transaction Control Number (TCN), the name of the individual referenced in the CHRI, the name of the recipient of the CHRI, and the reason the CHRI was disseminated.

Refer to Room Board and Watchful Oversight Minimum Standards for Child Placing Agencies and Child Care Institutions in policy 16.8 Room Board Watchful Oversight: Minimum

Standards for CRC procedures for Child Placing Agency (CPA) foster and adoptive homes and CCIs.

Practice Guidance

Criminal History Record Information (CHRI)

CHRI is information collected by criminal justice agencies on individuals consisting of identifiable descriptions and notations of arrests, detentions, indictments or other formal criminal charges and any disposition arising therefrom, including acquittal, sentencing, correctional supervision, and release (GCIC Council Rule 140-1-02). The following documents are considered CHRI:

1. Criminal history fingerprint cards;
2. Final disposition reports;
3. Record of Arrest and Prosecution ("RAP sheet"), including Live Scan responses; and
4. Criminal history information received from the OIG Background Investigations Unit (BIU).

Criminal Justice Information Services (CJIS)

The CJIS Division of the FBI provides a centralized database for storing and accessing criminal justice information. This includes all the data necessary for law enforcement agencies to perform their mission (e.g. biometric, identity, history, person, organization, property, and case/incident data).

CJIS Biographic Verification Request Process

A "CJIS Biographic Verification Request" is necessary when an FBI National fingerprint-based criminal background check is required, but the individual is permanently, physically incapable of providing fingerprint images or is a double amputee. The process is initiated after DFCS provides the required documentation to the EFT. The EFT reviews the submitted documentation to ensure it is complete, then forwards it to the OIG Background Eligibility Unit Manager. The OIG Background Eligibility Unit Manager then submits the documentation to the GCIC for approval and processing. The results of the biographic verification are returned to the OIG Background Eligibility Unit Manager who sends them to the EFT. The EFT then uploads the results into Georgia SHINES.

Destruction of CHRI

When no longer required, all documents containing CHRI must be destroyed to prevent access by unauthorized persons. Record destruction must be conducted in a secure manner under the supervision of authorized persons. The only GCIC approved method of disposal or destruction of CHRI is to shred it using a cross-cut shredder. The destruction of any CHRI must be noted in the CHRI log. The GBI #, FBI #, date, time, and name of person disposing/destroying the records must be specifically noted on the individual log sheet for each record.

DHS Office of Inspector General (OIG) Background Investigations Unit (BIU)

The OIG has Live Scan operators (i.e., Electronic Fingerprint Technicians) available across the state of Georgia to complete fingerprinting for DFCS.

Georgia Crime Information Center (GCIC)

The GCIC is the division of the Georgia Bureau of Investigation (GBI) that maintains the database that contains Georgia Criminal History Records Information (CHRI). It is the access point for federal CHRI. GCIC is responsible for ensuring compliance with both state and federal rules for the use, security, and dissemination of CHRI. Failure to abide by federal and state laws, rules, and regulations regarding access, use, and dissemination of information available via the Criminal Justice Information System (CJIS) Network may result in criminal prosecution by the GBI and/or administrative sanctions by the GCIC.

Managing CHRI

Each County Office should designate an agency representative to receive and safeguard the results of each records search. This designee must have successfully completed the required Security Awareness training and have a signed GCIC Awareness Statement on file with the County Office. CHRI must be kept in a secure location under lock and key. CHRI must be signed in and signed out when physically transferred to another DFCS office. The person receiving the CHRI at the other DFCS office must also have successfully completed GCIC Security Awareness Training and have a signed GCIC Awareness Statement on file in their home County Office. The person receiving CHRI from another DFCS office must document receipt on their log. During an audit, DFCS must be able to clearly show the tracking of CHRI as it changes location.

When a fingerprint-based CRC is requested, the results must be sent to the DFCS office whose ORI number was used on the request. After it is received and logged in at that office, the results may then be signed out to another office using the required security and integrity procedures.

National Crime Information Center (NCIC)

The NCIC maintains the database that contains national criminal history records information.

Originating Agency Identifier (ORI)

The ORI number is assigned by the FBI to non-criminal justice agencies (e.g., DFCS) authorized by Georgia and federal law to obtain a national criminal history records check. It is a unique identifier assigned to each County Office.

GCIC Security Awareness Training

GCIC Security Awareness Training provides employees with a working knowledge of federal and state regulations and laws governing the security and integrity of CHRI. New DFCS employees must complete the training within the first 60 days of employment. GCIC Security Awareness Training is provided in a video format taken via the computer-based training (CBT) platform. The training satisfies the GBI's compliance requirement with FBI policy. It includes a test that produces a certificate and a Georgia Crime Information Awareness Statement that must be signed and kept on file by an employee's department. GCIC Security Awareness Training is not required to review results from GCIC name-based criminal records checks.

 - b. The Child Abuse Screening Request Information Form completed and signed by agency representative.
2. Provide the safety screenings results to the requester.

Practice Guidance

Safety screenings are a significant component of the overall assessment process and can be initiated any time during the life of the case, including at Intake, Initial Safety Assessment, Investigation, Family Support Services, Family Preservation Services and Foster Care (Permanency or Adoptions). Information gathered from safety screenings increases DFCS' ability to ensure the safety of children. Safety screenings should not be considered simply as "check-off" items but used to provide critical information to determine a caregivers or prospective caregiver's protective capacity.

When gathering information about a family, assess whether or not expanded safety screenings are warranted. For instance, DFCS policy may only require checking child welfare records in other states pursuant to the Adam Walsh Child Protection and Safety Act when a person has lived outside of Georgia within the last five years. However, based on information gathered about a family, it may be determined that such a check is warranted on a person who lived in another state seven years ago. Best practice and professional judgment dictate going beyond minimum requirements when making safety assessments. For instance, a SSCM should carefully assess whether checking another state's CPS records is warranted for applicants who live in Georgia but work in another state. Such a situation may present itself more often in Georgia counties that border other states and have applicants who engage in commerce, school, work, or other activities of daily living in both states.

Safety Screening Databases

1. Board of Pardons and Parole

A database of offenders who have been released from confinement (prison) after he/she has served an appropriate portion of his/her prison sentence and will serve the remainder of the sentence in the community under state supervision and control. Generally, individuals included in this database are 16 years of age and older. The Board of Pardons and Parole database is available at papapps.pap.state.ga.us/parolesearch/search/searchPage.

2. CLEAR®

DFCS Family Locator Tool CLEAR® offers fast, efficient search technology that allows one to locate people and authenticate their identities. It verifies such essential personal information as name, current/previous addresses, social security numbers, telephone numbers, email addresses, and criminal history. CLEAR® reports may also include relatives, associates, neighbors, social media accounts and vehicle registrations.

CLEAR® reports contain personal identifiable information and should be kept confidential. CLEAR® reports cannot be uploaded in Georgia SHINES External Documentation as they may contain other persons' information, who are not associated with the case.

3. County Master Files - Legacy

County master files include services card files, services computer files, paper files and other files or logs the County Department used for case tracking. These records may also include information related to DFCS history that has been expunged as a part of DFCS record retention policy. The county department will conduct the screening of the County Master Files as this information is not available outside of the county offices.

4. Department of Corrections (DOC) Offender Query

This website maintains history on individuals who have been incarcerated in the Georgia prison system. Generally, individuals included in this database are 16 years of age and older. Website is: gdc.georgia.gov/offender-info/find-offender.

5. Gateway

An integrated computer system that records information and generates benefits to a group of individuals applying for or using OFI benefits (TANF, FS and Medicaid). Information contained include the names, addresses, birth dates, Social Security numbers, household composition, income, and employment information. This information can be used to assess a financial means of providing and verify self-reported information from the caregiver's Financial Statement for Resource Parenting.

6. Georgia Medicaid Management Information System (GAMMIS)

GAMMIS is used to determine if a child is receiving SSI, Medicaid, or services from Children's Medical Services. In addition, the information obtained from Georgia Health Partnership (GHP) can assist the user in obtaining well-being information and completing the Targeted Case Management (TCM) billing process. A User ID and password is required to access GAMMIS. Contact the County's security manager to obtain a User ID and password. The website is www.mmis.georgia.gov/portal/default.aspx.

7. Georgia SHINES

Georgia SHINES is the states automated child welfare information system implemented in June 2008. All child welfare case management information is recorded in the Georgia SHINES system and gives the user both historical and current information concerning a family, adult or child that is or has been involved with DFCS. The State of Georgia does not maintain a CAN registry; however, it conducts Georgia SHINES screening for CPS history.

8. IDS Online Master Index – Legacy System

IDS Online provides historical child welfare case information in Georgia prior to Georgia SHINES implementation. Once screened and the results are documented in Georgia SHINES, future reports involving the same individual will not require additional screening in this resource. IDS Online is available at idsonline.smipc.net.

9. IDS Placement Central – Legacy System

IDS Placement Central provided the physical location of all children in DFCS custody prior to Georgia SHINES implementation. IDS Placement Central also maintained a database of all providers caring for children in the custody of the DFCS. The information from this database may be helpful in making placement decisions by providing previous placement information for a child that may assist in identifying the needs of the child. Once screened and the results are documented in Georgia SHINES, future reports involving the same individual will not require additional screening in this resource. IDS Online is available at idsonline.smipc.net.

10. Out-of-State Child Abuse and Neglect (CAN) Registry

A child abuse and neglect registry is a centralized database of child abuse and neglect investigation records for the state. Registries assist in the identification and protection of abused and neglected children and are typically used to aid child welfare agencies in the investigation, treatment, and prevention of child abuse cases and to maintain statistical information for staffing and funding purposes. The type of information contained in central registries and length of time the information is held varies from state to state but usually includes the child's name and address; the name of the mother, father, or guardian; the name of any siblings; the nature of the harm to the child; the name of the alleged perpetrator(s); and the findings of any investigations.

11. Protective Services Data System (PSDS) – Legacy System

PSDS is a historical list of child abuse and neglect incidents in Georgia from the period of 1991 through January 01, 2003. This includes date reported, case name, case number and case determination. It is necessary to review the case information to determine if an individual is identified as a maltreater. PSDS is available at idsonline.smipc.net.

12. Sex Offender Registry

The sex offender registry is a database of individuals who has been convicted of a criminal offense against a victim who is a minor or any dangerous sexual offense; Georgia Bureau of Investigation (GBI) is the central repository for Georgia's Violent Sexual Offender Registry. The sexual offender records are entered on the registry by the Department of Corrections and State Board of Pardons and Paroles. The GBI enters the sexual offender records for the sexual offenders who relocate to Georgia from another state. The GBI Sex Offender Registry search option "all" compiles results from sexual offenders, sexually dangerous predators, and absconders; incarcerated offenders are excluded when location criteria is provided. The Georgia sex offender registry is available at state.sor.gbi.ga.gov/Sort_Public.

Georgia SHINES - Searches

1. Case Search

Case Search in Georgia SHINES is used to search for cases. Users can search for specific cases using Case ID, Case Name, Case Manager (name), facility name, stage type, and additional criteria. When the search criteria do not yield a match, perform another search using different criteria.

2. Foster/Adoptive (F/A) Homes Search

F/A homes search is used to search for a non-DFCS or DFCS foster or adoptive homes, Interstate Compact for the Placement of Children (ICPC) homes, and relative homes. In addition to completing the normal search parameters on an F/A home, a search should also be conducted using the provider's resource ID in Georgia SHINES which should identify any prior incidents involving the F/A home and the outcome of the investigation or policy violation assessment. Searches can also be conducted for homes that are in inquiry status.

3. Person Search

A person search is used to search for a person in any stage. A person search can be performed using any of the following identifying information:

- a. Date of birth
- b. Full name
- c. Partial first and last (only the first three letters are needed)
- d. Phonetic
- e. Address
- f. Social Security number
- g. Person ID
- h. CRS or Medicaid/MHN Number

Use the least amount of information and try multiple searches before determining a person does not exist in Georgia.

4. Resource Search

Resource search is used to search for resources in the Resource Directory. Resource search includes providers, law enforcement, hotlines/help lines, schools, mental and behavioral health facilities and home/other facilities. The resource search page provides the user with multiple methods to conduct a search for providers. Search options include name, specific identifiers, services provided and location.

Resources may have multiple contracts in Georgia SHINES. The user needs to review all matches to select the best resource that matches.

When a special investigation or policy violation assessment, analyze Patterns of the same types of child abuse allegations or policy violations in the placement resource; and the outcome of prior policy violations, sanctions and/or corrective action plans (CAP). See Practice Guidance: Additional Considerations in Special Investigations or Policy Violations Assessment.

4. Discuss history with the caregivers to obtain their perspective regarding the previous history, including correlation to current circumstances.

5. Document a summary of the analysis of DFCS history in Georgia SHINES:
 - a. Dates of reports, allegations, dispositions and overall outcomes of intervention;
 - b. A detailed description of how the historical information impacts the current assessment or decision; and

Social Services Supervisor

1. Ensure the SSCM has analyzed all in-state and out-of-state child welfare history obtained from the safety screenings.
2. Review the DFCS history to support decision making.
3. Ensure that the SSCM has discussed the child welfare history with individuals, when applicable.
4. Provide guidance to the SSCM regarding the consideration of history in decision-making.
5. Review Georgia SHINES to ensure that the analysis and consideration of the child welfare history is documented.

Practice Guidance

Why is History Important

History is often a predictor of future behavior and the information included in a family's DFCS history plays a significant role when making any decision concerning child safety during DFCS' involvement with a family. History on household members as children and as adults should be analyzed and considered during all decision points of a case. Research has found that caregivers who were abused as children is a predictor for the caregivers to abuse their own children.^[13] Also, a history of problems, such as, chronic and/or untreated substance use and mental health disorders are risk factors for future child maltreatment.

Reviewing and analyzing DFCS history can provide an abundance of information about a family and the level of intervention needed to assist the family with the challenges they are facing in everyday life tasks. Some of the information that can be gathered from a family's history includes, but is not limited to:

1. Family and caregiver strengths.
2. The family's cultural beliefs and values.
3. The underlying challenges that a family is currently facing.
4. The family's previous response to intervention and treatment strategies.
5. Support networks previously used to reduce or mitigate safety concerns, and the effectiveness of such supports.
6. Traumatic events affecting family members.
7. Coping skills used by the family to deal with traumatic events.
8. Identifying relatives, family supports, or any information to assist with locating a parent, family or youth who cannot be located or have moved to an unknown location.

A thorough analysis and deliberate consideration of the DFCS history of all caregivers and household members must be incorporated into decision-making throughout the life of a case.

Chronicity

When analyzing history, it is essential to consider the number of reports, reports that indicate progressively more serious concerns, reports with similar or the same concern, the type of maltreatment, etc. The chronicity of the maltreatment should be assessed when reviewing previous history. Chronicity is the frequency of the recurrence of maltreatment. Chronicity involves an assessment of the following areas:

1. Is there a history of sexual abuse of any family member as a victim or perpetrator? This includes both civil and criminal reports of sexual abuse in Georgia and other localities; regardless of the disposition or the role of the principles in those past reports.
2. Has there been a recent incident, or indication, of abuse (within last 6 months)? This question applies to any indication of abuse within the last 6 months and is not restricted to official agency reports. It may include statements from the child, family, community, professionals or others.
3. Has there been a prior child abuse investigation, regardless of finding? This includes any DFCS involvement in Georgia or in other states, regardless of the disposition.
4. Has any child been removed from the home by a protective service agency? This question applies to the court ordered removal of any child in Georgia or in other states. This also includes serious incidents in licensed foster/adoptive homes.
5. Has any prior incident resulted in a severe outcome? Indications of severe outcomes are those which require prompt medical attention; may require medical or psychiatric hospitalization; may endanger the child's life; may cause permanent functional impairment, death, or disfigurement; and, sexual intercourse or sexual acts performed with a child.

Discussing DFCS History with the Caregiver

The analysis and consideration of history provides additional evidence to support the safety and case determination and permanency decision. Obtaining the caregiver's perspective about the agency's previous involvement will allow DFCS to:

1. Gather additional information.
2. Clarify any inaccuracies in the information.
3. Assess the caregiver's ownership and honesty about past problems.

Caregivers who do not admit to having problem behaviors are less likely to work towards changing those behaviors. Knowing their perspective can assist in determining strategies for engagement and building partnership.

Additional Considerations in Special Investigations or Policy Violations Assessment

When analyzing DFCS case history, information regarding the approval and history of the placement resource (foster care kinship placement, foster of adoptive homes, Child Placing Agencies (CPA), Child Caring Institutions (CCI), etc.) must also be considered and includes:

1. Foster care stages for each alleged child victim in DFCS custody stages;
2. The foster or adoptive parents' case record (FAD);
3. Information on a kinship placement available; and
4. CPA/CCI resource information.

Practice Guidance

The purpose of a safety assessment is to determine the degree in which a child is likely to suffer maltreatment in the immediate future.^[14] A safety assessment does not only focus on proving or disproving the events and occurrences (incidents) associated with the maltreatment.

Through the collection and analysis of information a picture of the family and caregiver functioning is formed. The safety assessment process will:

1. Gather quality and sufficient safety related information about family conditions (family functioning).
2. Identify the presence of conditions or actions within the child's current living situation that represent the likelihood of imminent serious harm to the child (present or impending danger).
3. Determine if the child is vulnerable to safety threats.
4. Evaluate caregiver protective capacities to determine if a caregiver can and will protect a child from safety threats.
5. Examine how the identified safety threats are occurring within the family in order to determine what is required to effectively control them, if applicable.
6. Make a safety decision (safe and unsafe).

Gathering Safety Related Information

A safety assessment is totally dependent upon the quality and sufficiency of safety-related information known about the family. Four methods for gathering foundational information during a safety assessment are:

1. Analyzing DFCS history and evaluating the impact on the current circumstances.
2. Interviewing children, parents (custodial/non-custodial), caregivers, and current household members.
3. Observations of interactions between caregivers, children, and other household members and the physical conditions of the home environment.
4. Engaging collateral contacts (teachers, other professionals, family members, law enforcement, etc.) and obtaining relevant information (medical records, police reports, photographs, school records, etc.).

Conditions or Actions That Represent the Likelihood of Imminent Serious Harm to the Child Present Danger^[14] – Present danger is an immediate, significant, and clearly observable family condition, child condition, individual behavior or action, or family circumstance which is in the process of occurring and which obviously endangers or threatens to endanger a child and requires immediate action to protect.

“Immediate” means that the danger in the family is happening right before your eyes. You are in the midst of that which endangers or threatens to endanger the child. The dangerous family condition, child condition, individual behavior or acts, or family circumstances are active and operating. What might result from the danger for a child could be happening or occur at any moment.

“Significant” qualifies the family condition, child condition, individual behavior or acts, or family circumstances as exaggerated, out of control, and extreme. The danger is recognizable because what is happening is onerous, vivid, impressive, and notable. What you encounter or what is happening exists as the dominant matter that must be addressed immediately.

Present danger is “clearly observable” because what is happening or in the process of happening is totally transparent. You see and experience it in obvious ways. There is no guesswork. Here is a rule of thumb concerned with identifying present danger. If you have to interpret what is going on to be present danger... then it is likely not present danger. Usually when present danger exists because of extreme family conditions, a child's condition, individual behavior or acts, or family circumstances you will know even without conducting interviews. Of course, when Present Danger does exist, conducting interviews should proceed in accordance with good practice.

When judging present danger, there are a number of other concerns that you should consider. Understand that these additional areas of consideration do not represent present danger but help to qualify present danger situations:

1. Child is 0 - 6 Years Old: In all safety assessments, the age of the child is relevant. The ability to self-protect is fundamental when assessing child vulnerability. Young children are emphasized here because of the higher vulnerability factor and propensity to suffer from danger. Children under six years of age and socially isolated (not in school or day care etc.) who are injured must be assessed to be in present danger.
2. History of Reports: Within the context of judging present danger, a history of CPS reports on the family is important to consider. To judge present danger, it can be helpful to consider the number of reports, reports that indicate progressively more serious concerns related to family functioning, reports of the same nature as the current area of concern, and so forth.
3. The Family Situation Will/May Change Quickly: You may have information that describes a current circumstance occurring with the family which reveals exactly what is going on that could be considered as present danger. Because this situation could change rapidly, the opportunity to gather important information may be lost. In this sense, this influence does not necessarily constitute a present danger situation; however, it is pertinent in judging how intervention will proceed.
4. Services Inaccessible or Unavailable: This is a family circumstance which, in and of itself, is not a present danger situation. The issues could become a present danger situation when considered in relation to other negative family conditions, which demand access to services. For instance, if a service is unavailable or inaccessible for a child who has a life-threatening condition that requires medical intervention, a present danger circumstance may be applicable.
5. Accessible to a Threatening Person: This is another issue that must be considered in concert with other family conditions. It refers to a situation such as a single caregiver who is responsible for primary care of their child; however, the child may also be required to spend a significant amount of time with a secondary caregiver who isolates the child, exhibits threatening behavior toward the child or the primary caregiver, etc. This circumstance can be used to consider current accessibility as well as anticipated accessibility in the near future to the caregiver who is threatening to the child, such as when a child goes home from school or on weekends.
6. Family Isolated: This situation does not qualify as present danger just because a family may be isolated from others. Present danger must be considered along with what is actually occurring within the family in conjunction with geographic and social isolation.

Impending Danger^[15] refers to a child who is in a continuous state of danger due to a parent/caregiver's behavior, attitude, motives, emotions and/or situations posing a specific threat of severe harm to a child. These threats are negative family conditions that are out of control in the presence of a vulnerable child, and therefore likely to have severe effects on a child at any time in the near future. These threats are specific, observable and can be clearly understood and described in the assessment content. Impending danger safety threats have four distinct features:

1. Refers to threats to a child's safety that exist and are insidious but are not immediate, obvious, or active at the onset of DFCS intervention.
2. Refers to threats that eventually are identified and understood upon more fully evaluating and understanding individual and family conditions and functioning.
3. Refers to threats that reasonably will result in severe harm if safety intervention does not occur and is not sustained.
4. Family situations and behaviors must meet safety threshold criteria to qualify as impending danger safety threats.

The five criteria used to justify impending danger are:

1. Observable refers to family behaviors, conditions or situations representing a danger to a child that are specific, definite, real, can be seen and understood, and are subject to being reported and justified. The criterion "observable" does not include suspicion, intuitive feelings, difficulties in worker-family interaction, lack of cooperation, or difficulties in obtaining information.
2. Vulnerable Child refers to a child who is dependent on others for protection and is exposed to circumstances that he/she is powerless to manage. The child is susceptible, accessible, and available to a threatening person in authority over them. Vulnerability is judged according to age, physical and emotional development, ability to communicate needs, mobility, size and dependence, and susceptibility. This definition also includes all young children from 0-6 years and older children who, for whatever reason, are not able to protect themselves or seek help or protection from others.
3. Out of Control refers to family behavior, conditions or situations that are unrestrained, resulting in an unpredictable and possibly chaotic family environment that is not subject to the influence, manipulation, or within the family's control. Such out-of-control family conditions pose a danger and cannot be managed by anyone or anything internal to the family system.
4. Imminent refers to the belief that dangerous family behaviors, conditions, or situations will remain active, or become active, within the next several days or weeks. This is consistent with a degree of certainty or inevitability that danger and severe harm are possible, even likely outcomes, without intervention.
5. Severity refers to the effects of maltreatment that have already occurred and/or the potential for harsh effects based on the vulnerability of a child and the family, coupled with a behavior, condition or situation that is out of control. As far as danger is concerned, the safety threshold is consistent with severe harm. Severe harm includes such effects as serious physical injury, disability, terror and extreme fear, impairment, and death. The safety threshold is in line with family conditions that reasonably could result in harsh and unacceptable pain and suffering for a vulnerable child.

Impending Danger and the Danger Threshold Criteria

The danger threshold criteria must be applied when considering and identifying any of the impending danger safety threats. In other words, the specific justification for identifying any of the impending danger safety threats is based on a specific description of how negative family conditions meet the danger threshold criteria.

Risk to Safety Continuum: The safety threshold is the point at which a negative family condition (difficult family situation) goes beyond being concerning (risk) and becomes dangerous to a child's safety. Difficult family situations or negative family conditions that rise to the level of the safety threshold and become impending danger safety threats are, in essence, negative circumstances and/or caregiver behaviors, emotions, etc. that negatively impact caregiver performance at a heightened degree and occur at a greater level of intensity. Impending Danger is where "risk" crosses the safety threshold.

Child Vulnerability

Child vulnerability^[15] refers to a child's capacity for self-protection. Safety is only an issue when there is a vulnerable child in the family; if the child is not vulnerable to the identified threats, the child is safe. The following factors should be used to help judge child vulnerability:

1. Age

Children from birth to six years old are always vulnerable.

2. Physical Disability

Regardless of age, children who are physically handicapped and therefore unable to remove themselves from danger are vulnerable.

3. Mental Disability

Regardless of age, children who are cognitively limited are vulnerable because of a number of possible limitations: recognizing danger, knowing who can be trusted, meeting their basic needs, and seeking protection.

4. Provocative

A child's emotional, mental health and behavioral problems can be such that they irritate and provoke others to act out toward them or to totally avoid them.

5. Powerless

Regardless of age, intellect and physical capacity, children who are highly dependent and susceptible to others are vulnerable. These children are typically so influenced by emotional and psychological attachment that they are subject to the whims of those who have power over them. Powerlessness could also be observed in vulnerable children who are exposed to threatening circumstances that they are unable to manage.

6. Defenseless

Regardless of age, a child who is unable to defend him/herself against aggression is vulnerable. This can include children who are oblivious to danger. Children who are frail or lack mobility are defenseless and therefore more vulnerable.

7. Non-Assertive

Regardless of age, children who are so passive or withdrawn and are not able to communicate their basic needs are vulnerable. A child who cannot or will not seek help and protection from others is vulnerable.

8. Illness

Regardless of age, some children have continuing or acute medical problems and needs that make them vulnerable.

9. Invisible

A child who is not noticed and observed should be considered vulnerable regardless of age.

Child Vulnerability Summary

1. Child vulnerability is the first conclusion one makes when completing a safety assessment.^[15]
2. A judgment about child vulnerability is based on the capacity for self-protection.
3. Self-protection refers to being able to demonstrate behavior that:
 - a. Results in defending oneself against threats of safety; and
 - b. Results in successfully meeting one's own basic (safety) needs.
4. Child vulnerability is not a matter of degree. Children are vulnerable to threats of safety, or they are not.
5. Older children may also have characteristics that make them vulnerable to safety threats.
6. As a safety assessment concern, a child's vulnerability helps inform us about what must be done to manage threats and assure protection.

Caregiver Capacity

Caregiver Protective Capacities are personal and caregiving behavioral, cognitive, and emotional characteristics that can be specifically and directly associated with being protective of one's young. Protective capacities are personal qualities or characteristics that contribute to vigilant child protection and can be described as follows:

1. The characteristic prepares the person to be protective.
2. The characteristic enables or empowers the person to be protective.
3. The characteristic is necessary or fundamental to being protective.
4. The characteristic must exist prior to being protective.
5. The characteristic can be related to acting or being able to act on behalf of a child.

How Safety Threats Are Occurring with a Family

How safety threats are occurring within a family is evaluated to determine the need and kind of safety planning (i.e., in-home safety plan, out-of-home safety plan, or a combination of both) required to effectively control and manage threats to child safety. How safety threats are occurring within a family can be understood by breaking down the conditions associated with the safety threat and how the parts reveal the way the safety factor is manifested within the family during everyday life. There are six analytical questions that help break the safety threat down.

1. How long have conditions in the family posed a threat to safety?
2. How frequent or often does the family condition pose a threat to safety?
3. How predictable is the family condition or the safety factor? Are there occasions when either is more likely to be an active influence?
4. Are there specific times during the day, evening, night, etc. that might require “special attention” due to the way in which the family condition or the safety factor is occurring?
5. Do individual or family conditions or safety threats prevent a caregiver from adequately functioning in primary roles (i.e., individual life management and parenting)?
6. What is associated with, occurs at the same time, or influences the family condition or the safety factor?

Safety Decision (Safe or Unsafe)

The decision about whether a child is safe or unsafe is based on the evaluation of the family. The conclusion about safety is based on safety-related information, the identification of safety threats and an evaluation of the capacity of caregivers to protect. Safety informs and guides all decisions made throughout the life of the case, including removal and re-unification decisions.

Safety is not defined by determining the presence or absence of injuries. Safety is not subject to degree; a child is either safe or unsafe. A child is not somewhat safe or conditionally safe. The location of a child will not make a child safe. For example, just because a child is in a voluntary kinship arrangement, foster care, or living away from his/her primary residence, does not make the child “safe.” The governing question about child safety related to assessing safety is: Without intervention if this child were in his/her home would he/she be in a state of danger – would he/she be unsafe? The conclusion is not a suspicion; a general concern; an intuitive judgment.

Safe - Children are considered safe when there are no identified present danger situations or impending danger safety threats, or caregiver protective capacities are sufficient to control existing danger.

Unsafe - Children are considered unsafe when there is an identified present danger situation or impending danger safety threat, and caregiver protective capacities are insufficient to control existing danger.

7. Ensure a Safety Plan is maintained for as long as child safety threats exists. When Safety Plan protection strategies have been integrated into the case/family plan, it is not required to maintain a separate Safety Plan.
8. Ensure the Safety Plan is ended when the safety assessment determined the child is safe and confirm the family is aware they are no longer responsible for adhering to the Safety Plan.

Practice Guidance

A Safety Plan is a written arrangement between a parent(s)/legal guardian(s) and DFCS that establishes protection strategies or actions required to stop or prevent harm to the child. The Safety Plan is implemented and active as long as the child is determined to be unsafe. The Safety Plan specifies the safety threat, how the safety threat will be controlled using what actions, tasks, or services; who will participate in the actions, tasks, or services; and specification of time requirements.

Evaluate with the parent/legal guardian what option is best for the family, and what controls will be effective. Reaching a consensus with the parent/legal guardian around the protection strategies is an integral part of evaluating Safety Plan sufficiency since each family and each situation are different. What worked for one family may not work for another family with a similar situation. The alleged maltreater cannot serve as the one expected to provide the protection or relied on to follow through with the directives (i.e., Ms. Jones will not use physical discipline). The parent(s)/legal guardianship(s) role in the Safety Plan is limited to their assessed diminished capacity. A Safety Plan must:

1. Manage or control the safety threat(s) identified during the safety assessment using the actions and services described within the Safety Plan.
2. Have an immediate effect.
3. Include persons involved in the Safety Plan who are immediately accessible and available.

Safety Plans and Present Danger

A safety plan^[16] developed to address present danger is usually based on limited information and established during a period in which there is an active family crisis. The protection strategies must be immediate, short-term (until assessment is completed), and control the present danger identified.

Safety Plans and Impending Danger

The safety plan^[17] developed to address impending danger is usually based on a fuller understanding of family functioning. The protection strategies must be sufficient to control the impending danger identified.

Safety Plan Options

In-home Safety Plan: where the child remains in their home with protection strategies to assure a child safety.

1. The maltreating caregiver leaves the home;
2. A support person temporarily moves into the home;
3. A support person assumes partial or full-time child supervision (e.g., daycare, weekends);
4. A non-custodial parent (putative, legal, biological) assumes care of the child in their home; or
5. Services placed in the home or outside of the home but contribute to the child remaining in the home.

In-home Safety Plan criteria:

1. The parent(s)/legal guardian(s) are residing in the home which is an established residence.
2. The home environment is calm and consistent enough for protection strategies to have the necessary effect; and service providers and the safety support person(s) can be safe in the home.
3. The parent(s)/legal guardian(s) are:
 - a. Willing to participate in carrying out the Safety Plan within the home;
 - b. Accepting and recognize the need for the Safety Plan; and
 - c. Capable/possess the ability to implement the Safety Plan.
4. The availability of informal (family network) and formal (community/services) resources to assure child safety in the home.

If the circumstances do not meet the criteria for an in-home safety plan, an out of-home safety plan is required.

Out-of-home Safety Plan: An out-of-home Safety Plan is where the child is separated from the home and the safety threats.

1. The child(ren) is cared for outside of the home by a voluntary kinship caregiver; or
2. The child(ren) is placed in foster care.

Out-of-home Safety Plan criteria:

1. Safety threats are so extreme or occurring within the family in such a way to prevent in home child safety management.
2. A child is so provocative or out of control.
3. The nature of the home environment is so chaotic, unpredictable, or dangerous.
4. The parent(s)/legal guardian(s) are unwilling to accept an in-home Safety Plan option; are unwilling to accept people, resources or services that are available for a Safety Plan.
5. The parent(s)/legal guardian(s) willingness to accept an in-home Safety Plan option cannot be confirmed or relied upon.

Identifying and Assessing Informal and Formal Resources

When developing a Safety Plan, assist the family with identifying informal (family) and formal (community) resources that can support the Safety Plan:

1. Inquire about the family network:
 - a. Is there any resource (family, neighbors, and individuals in the community) within your family network that can help control the safety threat? How do you know if they are willing/able?
 - b. What is known about these resources? How can we find out?
2. Partner with the family to locate community service providers (see policy 19.17 Case Management: Service Provision)
3. Assess whether the resources are sufficient and available to control the safety threats, and meet the following criteria:
 - a. Be a responsible, physically, and cognitively adequate adult who must understand the dangers and accept that the dangers exist.
 - b. Be fully aware, committed, and capable of carrying out assigned task(s).
 - c. Be available, which means that he/she can begin providing the safety support the same day the Safety Plan is enacted.
 - d. Be accessible, which means near transportation and easily and immediately reachable.
 - e. Be trustworthy, willing to work with DFCS in a cooperative/collaborative relationship and willing to communicate regularly.
 - f. Understand the schedule, activities, and expectations that are established to ensure child safety.
 - g. In addition, support persons must have:

- i. A viewpoint towards the child that is appropriate and realistic.
- ii. An attitude about the child and family that is consistent with the facts.
- iii. An attitude toward the caregivers that is appropriate and realistic.
- iv. An availability to enter the home and to provide sufficient support to the family.
- v. A safe and stable home.
- vi. A history of being protective and providing acceptable care to children.
- vii. No active CPS case or a history that would exclude them from providing support.

Monitoring the Safety Plan

Safety Plans require uninterrupted oversight or monitoring to assure protection strategies to stop or prevent harm to the child are effective.^[18] Monitoring the Safety Plan requires a thorough knowledge of a family and the identified safety threats. Information obtained through purposeful contacts with the parent(s)/legal guardian(s), child, collaterals etc.; conducting safety assessments; and monitoring service provision is used to monitor the Safety Plan. Monitoring a Safety Plan includes:

1. Confirming all parties involved are adhering to the Safety Plan;
2. Evaluating if the Safety Plan is sufficient to control the threats to child safety; and
3. Assessing if the least restrictive Safety Plan option is being utilized to control safety threats.

Modifying the Safety Plan

Safety Plan modification is required when the safety assessment determines that the child continues to be unsafe despite the current Safety Plan. This means the current Safety Plan is not sufficient to control the threats to child safety and must be immediately modified to assure the safety of the child. The Safety Plan is also required to be modified if a less restrictive Safety Plan option can be used to manage the threats to child safety. A range of Safety Plan options exists, and the Safety Plan can be adjusted along that continuum based on the safety assessment. Modifying the Safety Plan from an out-of-home to an in-home option should be considered to accelerate a child's return home when child safety can be maintained. For example:

1. A transition from a voluntary kinship arrangement to the voluntary kinship caregiver residing in the child's home providing the safety supports.
2. Additional information on the parent/legal guardian is pending (medical or psychological evaluation), but the support person can provide the level of supervision required in the child's home until results are received.
3. The child is vulnerable due to a physical disability that requires constant medical care outside the home due to lack of access to medical supports. Medical supports subsequently become available for in home care and support for the child.

Safety Plan Confidentiality

The Safety Plan and information included in the Safety Plan is confidential and can only be shared with the parent(s)/legal guardian(s). Engaging with support persons who can assist with the Safety Plan is necessary to provide protection for a child but may also create a situation where confidential information can be unlawfully disclosed. Any information shared outside of the parent/legal guardian including with the school, support person, etc. is an unlawful disclosure.

When the disclosure of confidential information is necessary to implement the Safety Plan, the SSCM will reach a consensus with the SSS that the disclosure of such information is necessary and the specific information the parent/legal guardian will be requested to disclose to the support person to help assure child safety. Engage the parent/legal guardian and explain since they are willing to enter into a Safety Plan SSCM recognizes they would like to keep their child safe, but in order for the support person to be successful in fulfilling their role, confidential information would need to be shared. Explain to the parent/legal guardian:

1. DFCS responsibility in maintaining confidentiality and safeguarding information, including DFCS cannot share their information without their written consent.
2. The specific information DFCS is requesting to disclose to the support person(s).
3. He/she has the right to choose what information, if any, can be discussed and with whom the information can be discussed.
4. Supports persons sign a confidentiality agreement, however, they are not legally required to maintain confidentiality of your information.
5. The authorization is restricted to sharing information with the support person regarding the Safety Plan
6. He/she has the right to decline the request to share confidential information.
7. Declining to authorize disclosure, will not negatively impact his/her DFCS case.
8. He/she retains the right to withdraw the authorization at any time.
9. A new Safety Plan will be necessary if he/she does not consent to disclosure of the information.

When the parent/legal guardian agrees to the release of their confidential information to the support person, request the parent/legal guardian personally share the information with the support person. Inform that self-disclosure allows them to take control of the situation and is more likely to result in family buy-in. Describe the assistance the SSCM can provide the parent/legal guardian with the disclosure such as role playing, help framing the discussion, and/or being present at the time of disclosure.

When the parent/legal guardian agrees to the release of their confidential information to the support person but does not wish to personally share the information with the support, request the parent/legal guardian, complete an Authorization for Release of Information in accordance with policy 2.6 Information Management: Confidentiality/Safeguarding Information.

When the parent/legal guardian does not agree to the disclosure of their confidential information, sharing information with the support person is not permitted. When this occurs, the SSCM should consult with the SSS and re-engage the family to develop a new Safety Plan to ensure child safety.

Ending a Safety Plan

Ending the Safety Plan terminates the agreement between the family and DFCS that established the protection strategies to stop or prevent harm to the child. A Safety Plan should be ended following the completion a safety assessment that determined a child to be safe (see policy 19.11 Case Man- agement: Safety Assessment). Ending the Safety Plan is the process of communicating to the parent/legal guardian and support persons that they are no longer responsible for implementing the protection strategies outlined in the Safety Plan or Safety Plan Support Person Agreement. Ending a Safety Plan is critical as it can provide a family a sense of accomplishment and alleviate them of implementing protection strategies that can often be burdensome. While, Safety Plans are not valid beyond case closure, closing a case is not the equivalent of ending a Safety Plan and neither does it eliminate the need to end the Safety Plan.

Difference Between a Safety Plan and Case Plan

Safety Plans During Special Investigations

During a special investigation Safety Plans are limited to addressing safety threats related to a child in the legal custody of a:

1. DFCS foster or adoptive parent
2. Child placing agency (CPA) foster or adoptive parent
3. Kinship caregiver
4. Parent/legal guardian during a child death, near fatality, or serious injury (CD/NF/SI)

To address safety threats to a child in DFCS custody during a special investigation see Chapter 6: Special Investigations.

How to Tell When a Family Is Functioning Well

Observing and analyzing statements, behaviors, and interactions of family members leads to a better understanding of what is affecting a child's safety, permanency, and well-being. Characteristics and behaviors that demonstrate mutual caring, feeling secure, a sense of belonging, open communication, and making each person in the family feel valued are desired. Some questions to consider when determining whether a family is functioning well include:

1. Does the family have fun together despite their daily demands:
 - a. What activities do they do together;
 - b. What were they doing the last time they laughed together as a family; or
 - c. Does the family sit down to meals together.
2. Are there clear family rules that apply equally to all members:
 - a. Are family members' expectations of each other realistic, mutually agreed upon, and usually met; or
 - b. Are these rules flexible enough to adapt to a change in the family dynamics/situation
3. How does each caregiver spend individual time with the child(ren):
 - a. Do family members achieve their goals, and are their needs being met;
 - b. Do all the children in the home have the same opportunities to participate in extracurricular activities.
4. Is there genuine respect between the caregiver and children:
 - a. How do they demonstrate love, trust, and concern for one another;
 - b. Are love, trust, and concern shown the same way when disagreements occur; or
 - c. How does the family adapt to change (upset, unhappy, unphased).

Practice Guidance

What is an Action Plan?

An action plan is a strategic tool that supports the achievement of family and individual level outcomes and must be developed in collaboration with the family, age appropriate youth and their care team members. The action plan focuses on specific everyday life tasks that are challenging for the family or individual and provides a personalized, simplistic strategy for addressing those challenges to achieve the desired outcomes. The action plan is a fluid document that can be analyzed and modified to ensure the skills the family or individual learn are long-lasting.

Each FLO and ILO on the case plan must have an associated action plan targeting the most high-risk situations. For example, DFCS involvement is related to inadequate supervision and educational neglect with a caregiver who has identified substance abuse issues. Two FLOs will be developed with the family, one to ensure adequate supervision of the child(ren) and the other to ensure the educational needs of the children are met. Only one ILO will be developed for the caregiver to address substance abuse which is his/her underlying issue contributing to the maltreatment.

Action plans may primarily include tasks for the parents/caregivers; however, other members of the support team play an active role in supporting the family and may have clearly defined tasks on the action plan. When other members of the support team are given tasks on the action plan, it is imperative that they have participated in the development of the plan and/or agreed to complete these tasks. We should not accept a parent's/caregiver's statement that another individual has agreed to a task, but rather should gain agreement directly from that individual. Expectations of plan participants should be spelled out to ensure action plan success.

The Five Relapse Prevention Skills

Every action plan should utilize the five relapse prevention skills when addressing the everyday life situations that are challenging for the family. It is ideal to build a consensus with the family or individual on the identified high risk situations that need to be addressed; however, the family or individual may not always be at the point of accepting and acknowledging the high risk situations. In those instances, the SSCM may have to provide greater influence when identifying the high risk situations. When identifying early warning signals, the family or individual should be encouraged to identify specific thoughts, feelings, actions, and physical reactions that occur potentially leading up to harmful incidents.

Once the high risk situations and early warning signs are identified, the family or individual can better understand what strategies may prevent a high risk situation. Some prevention techniques may include:

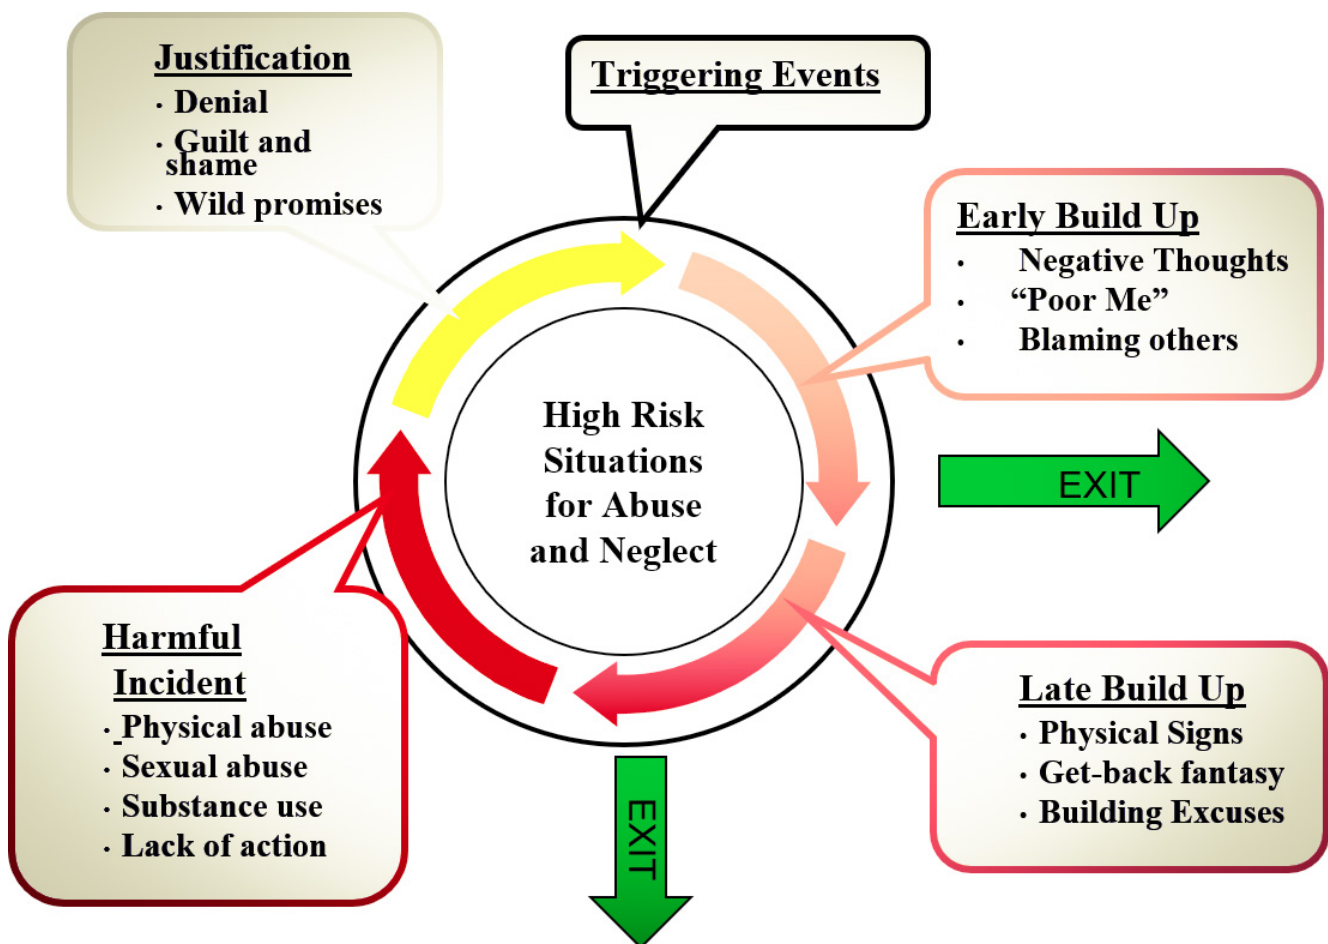

1. Relieving stress through exercise, sufficient sleep, prayer, etc.
2. Educating oneself about a specific problem (i.e. ADHD, available childcare resources in the community, available financial assistance, etc.).

3. Planning for the unexpected (i.e. unexpectedly having to work late, a sick child, car trouble, day-care is closed, etc.).

If unable to prevent or avoid the high risk situation, then the next step is to interrupt it. In order to interrupt the situation, the family or individual would need to be aware of their early warning signs to recognize that they are in a high risk situation. Steps would then need to be taken to stop the escalation into a harmful incident. For example, a caregiver may need to stop, take a deep breath, recognize what they are able to control and adjust accordingly. If unable to interrupt the high risk situation, the caregiver needs to escape it by walking away and allowing someone else to step in as caregiver.

Action Plan Destructive Behavior Cycle

Below is an example of an Individual Level Action Plan:

Ms. Jones 'Hands Free Action Plan' and Tasks:

High Risk / Difficult Situations:

I'm tired/overwhelmed from a hard workday and Johnny does not respond to repeated verbal instructions or redirection.

Early Warning Signs:

Feelings of frustration, tightening of the jaw, shouting.

Prevention Plan:

Attend counseling at ABC counseling to learn ways to control my frustration, especially with Johnny.

Keep a journal about times when I feel myself getting upset with Johnny and list the techniques used to calm myself.

Go to bed by 10:00 pm each weeknight to avoid becoming overly tired.

Praise Johnny whenever he follows the schedule and/or responds to my verbal commands.

Schedule regular “mommy time”.

Interrupt Escalation Plan:

I will walk away and take deep breaths until I feel calm enough to interact with Johnny in a non-physical manner.

If that doesn't work, I will look at my journal list of techniques and I will practice other ways to calm myself.

Escape Plan:

If I am unable to calm myself, I will contact my mother to have her come over to care for Johnny while I go to my friend Susan's house to discuss the situation and how I am feeling.

Indicator/Measure:

I will mark the following on the calendar:

1. An “x” for each time I am successful at calming myself.
2. A check on the calendar each night I go to bed on time.
3. A star for each day I praised Johnny for adhering to the schedule.
4. A smiley face for each day I took respite.

After each session with ABC counseling, I will write in my journal techniques learned to help me control myself when I feel frustrated by Johnny's behavior.

I will journal each time I have to walk away and take deep breaths.

If I have to use my escape plan, I will discuss these with my case manager, Ms. Smith and my counselor at ABC.

Safety Plan

I agree not to hit or spank my son no matter what happens.

If I need extra help, I will call my mom and Susan to come over and help like they said they would.

Practice Guidance

Collateral Contacts

Collateral contacts are individuals who can provide reliable information about a family and its functioning but are not meant to be personal character references. They can be a valuable resource in establishing the facts of the case, verifying information provided by parents, foster or adoptive parents, kinship caregivers and other caregivers, supporting case decision-making and measuring change throughout the life of a case. Regardless of case type, it is important to contact as many persons as necessary that have had direct observation of the child and/or family and can provide specific information regarding a child's safety, well-being and permanency, a caregiver's protective capacity and a family's functioning. A variety of information should be obtained from several collaterals to gain a clear picture of the family. Household members, non-custodial parents or other DFCS staff may provide valuable information; however, they are not considered collateral contacts.

DFCS is ultimately responsible for selecting which collateral contact(s) to engage based on the need to verify and assess child safety and well-being, caregiver protective capacities and overall family functioning. If a child is placed outside of the home (kinship caregivers, foster or adoptive parents) during an open case, it is important to contact collaterals to assess the parents and their family, as well as the out-of-home caregivers and their family. When a child is placed outside of the home, the child's safety in the current home must be assessed in addition to assessing the safety in the home the child is returning to.

Although many persons directly involved with a family can provide reliable and accurate information, that information may not be relevant to the current assessment or case circumstances. It is important when identifying collateral contacts to keep in mind the purpose of the information being sought. For example, if we are trying to verify the foster parent's statement that a child's injury occurred at the daycare, the most appropriate collateral would be with the daycare staff. It is also important to not allow personal biases to interfere with our informed decision-making. For example, a person who has a volatile relationship with the caregiver may provide information in a vindictive manner. However, this does not mean the information is invalid. The validity of the information needs to be assessed.

Mandated reporters often have a special knowledge of a child's situation and may be excellent collateral contacts. Reaching an accurate case determination and planning wisely for a child's safety needs are often best accomplished with the added knowledge and recommendations of mandated reporters. When a mandated reporter is contacted to obtain clarification or to provide additional information related to the intake report, this type of contact does not meet the criteria of a collateral contact.

Partnering with Collaterals

Partnerships are key in child protection. During any stage of a case, the SSCM should begin to establish partnerships with those individuals or entities who are a part of the child protection team in their area such as the schools, law enforcement, child advocacy centers, mental health, medical professionals, etc. These partnerships can assist the SSCM in obtaining needed information to assess and ensure a child's safety. It is important for an SSCM to be visible to the child protection team when trying to create a partnership. It is critical that the SSCM is responsive when these partners attempt to contact him/her. Being responsive and establishing trust is the basis for any good working relationship.

Although telephone contact and email are acceptable methods for contacting collaterals, it may be necessary for the SSCM to make face-to-face contact when collateral contacts are not responsive to other methods of contact. For example, if the SSCM has attempted to contact a medical doctor by telephone to no avail, the SSCM may need to go to the doctor's office and attempt a face-to-face contact with the doctor. The SSCM should be prepared to wait until the doctor is available and should bring other work to complete while waiting. It may also help if the SSCM accompanies the child to the medical professional occasionally, so the SSCM can foster the relationship with the doctor.

The SSS will:

Overcoming Barriers to Service Provision

The SSCM will:

1. Determine the nature of the barrier to service provision, prior to making a decision, by:
 - a. Assessing what is currently preventing services from being provided or implemented.
 - b. Discussing any service issues with the family and service providers.
 - c. Gathering and assessing the information provided by all individuals.
2. Identify if the barrier is a resource issue or an implementation issue by determining:
 - a. Is this service available within the county or region?
 - b. Does the family have access to services?
 - c. Does the family qualify for services that local providers are offering?
 - d. Is the family willing to engage with the service provider?
 - i. Are they scheduling and keeping appointments?
 - ii. Are they providing adequate contact information to providers?
 - iii. Are they allowing providers access to the home?
 - e. Does the family's availability conflict with the availability of the provider?
 - f. Are there other providers in the county that may be able to provide the same services?
3. Meet with the family and service provider to address and resolve any service barriers.
4. Develop a consensus with the family and service provider on case outcomes and the path to address the family's needs.
5. Explore the possibility of court involvement if unable to engage the family to overcome the barriers to service provision.
6. Participate in a supervisory staffing for feedback and case direction.

The SSS will:

1. When a barrier to service provision has been identified, prior to making a decision, ensure information is gathered and assessed to determine the nature of the problem.
2. During supervisor staffing, in conjunction with the SSCM, using information gathered identify if the barrier is a resource or implementation issue and provide guidance to overcome the barriers.

Staff Changes During Service Provision

The receiving SSCM will:

1. Prior to DFCS staff changes, review service notes to evaluate services and progress towards case plan outcomes with the current assigned SSCM and initiate a staffing to discuss case progress, barriers, etc.
2. Conduct a joint visit with the family, current SCCM if available and service provider to discuss:
 - a. Current services being provided to the family and any barriers.

- b. Expected outcome and timeline of service completion.
- c. Timeline for staff change to occur.
- d. Current contact information for the family and newly assigned SCCM.

Prior to any changes in providers (formal/informal), the SSCM will:

1. Discuss changes with the provider and any impact on service provision.
2. Implement services using guidelines above.
3. Ensure that all service notes/reports have been received, reviewed and uploaded into Georgia SHINES External Documentation from the outgoing provider.
4. Schedule a meeting with the family, current provider and newly assigned provider, when possible to facilitate a smooth transition for the family.

Conducting meetings with informal providers when there is a staff change may be challenging but should be completed when possible.

5. Assist the family in processing any feelings they may have around changing providers and building rapport with the new provider by:
 - a. Listening to the family's concerns.
 - b. Explaining the need for the change in service providers (i.e. promotions, resignations, expertise).
 - c. Reassuring the family of DFCS role in ensuring the change does not negatively impact service provision and case outcome.

Practice Guidance

Services are family-centered, community-based, and culturally competent activities that help achieve case plan outcomes and should be built around the specific developmental tasks that a family is having difficulty managing. The goal of services is to maintain children safely in their homes, ensure timely reunification when children must be removed from their families, and prevent the need for future child welfare involvement by fostering sustained behavioral changes. Services should be tailored to the individual and/or family and should always be focused on the attainment of outcomes.

Case Manager Role in Service Provision

Service provision begins with preparing the family to manage the difficult situations they are facing in their lives by engaging the family in a discussion of available service options that include, possible providers, community resources the family would like to utilize, formal providers contracted with DFCS, and in-home or out-of-home providers. It is necessary to engage the service provider to ensure that services identified in the case plan are provided to assist the family in meeting case plan outcomes. Every effort should be made to transition the family into services as smoothly as possible. Best practice is to complete an initial visit with the provider and family to establish the partnership between the two and discuss outcomes and expectations for service completion. Once services have begun, periodic discussion with the family and the service providers regarding the effectiveness of provided services toward outcome achievement, should occur.

Warm Hand-off

A warm handoff is a handoff that is conducted in person, between DFCS staff and the provider, with the family present. Warm handoffs can help to minimize communication breakdowns which can interfere with the timely and appropriate provision of services. It can also help to engage families and encourage them to ask questions, allow them to clarify or correct the information exchanged, and ultimately build relationships through transparent partnership.

Formal and Informal Services

Formal services are those provided by professional or trained employees or contractors and may be paid or unpaid. Informal services are services and supports provided by individuals/entities, such as extended family, friends, church or other organizations, etc.

Trauma Informed Services

Trauma may adversely impact child development and should be effectively minimized in a manner that does not cause additional trauma. To recover from trauma, children and families often require treatment delivered by skilled professionals. Trauma informed services are services that understand, recognize and respond to the effects of all types of trauma. Trauma-informed services “incorporate knowledge about trauma prevalence, impact, and recovery, in all aspects of service delivery, minimize re-victimization, and facilitate recovery and empowerment. Traumatic stress impacts children and families, many behaviors and responses that may seem ineffective and unhealthy in the present, represent adaptive responses to past traumatic experiences. Every child that enters foster care receives a trauma assessment that helps to identify traumatic experiences in their lives that may impact their physical and emotional wellbeing. SSCMs should inquire about whether services being sought from providers are trauma informed and make every effort to secure such services for children and families served.

Cultural Competence in Service Provision

Cultural competence refers to the process by which individuals and systems respond respectfully and sensitive to people of all cultures, languages, classes, race, ethnic backgrounds, religions, spiritual traditions, immigration status and other diversity factors (gender, sexual orientation, disability, profession) in a matter that recognizes, affirms and values the worth of individuals and families and protects and preserves the dignity of each. To provide culturally competent services one must identify and understand a family’s culture. A person’s culture is a combination of the attitudes and practices that ultimately shape the behaviors of individuals and groups of people. When culture is considered in service provision, the SSCM is knowledgeable about and skillful in the use of services, resources, and institutions available to serve multi-cultural individuals and make cultural appropriate referrals within both formal and informal networks.

Barriers to Service Provision

When the provision of services hit a roadblock in implementation, participation and completion we commonly refer to it as a barrier to service provision. It is important to assess barriers in each individual circumstance as there could be varying reasons. Overcoming barriers requires the commitment of the case manager as well as the involvement of service providers and families. Included below is a list of common barriers and possible solutions:

1. Lack of consensus: building a consensus with the family around services at the beginning of the case, including have a discussion around service options.
2. Relation issues: meet with the family and service provider to resolve conflict and redirect the focus to case plan outcome achievement.
3. Scheduling issues: prior to selecting a provider verify the family's and the provider's schedules are not in conflict.
4. Lack of local providers: research service providers outside of the family's community that may be able meet the identified need.

Practice Guidance

DFCS provides TCM services to all clients. TCM is defined as activities that will assist individuals in gaining access to services as well activities that assist in managing these services during a Family Preservation Services or Permanency (Foster Care) case. TCM services include nutritional interventions, behavioral interventions, substance abuse interventions and medical interventions. The direct medical services are defined as:

1. Nutritional Needs - discussion with WIC representatives; discussion with school and/or physician regarding child's special nutritional needs (i.e., child with diabetes, child diagnosed as failure to thrive, child with food allergies, etc.)
2. Behavioral Needs - discussion with psychiatrist regarding recommendations for medication management; discussion with psychologist/school counselor/provider regarding child's behavior.
3. Substance Abuse Needs - discussion with the substance abuse counselor regarding treatment of the child's or the parent's addiction; discussion with the provider regarding the child's or parent's compliance with the treatment plan.
4. Other Medical Needs - discussion with medical personnel regarding diagnoses, treatment and/or compliance with medication.

The direct medical services may be an identified need of a child and/or the family. The discussions above are examples of TCM services and are not all-inclusive.

TCM service delivery is synonymous with case management activities related to the identification of needs and case planning. Case plan goals should reflect TCM related goals. Case management activities and documentation should demonstrate a TCM client's referral and linkage to services. In addition, case management activities and documentation should reflect an assessment of the sufficiency of services and the progress related to enhancement of protective capacity to ensure the safety and well-being of a child.

TCM Documentation

TCM documentation should include the following:

1. Linkages to formal or informal supports such as a contracted service provider based on identified needs;
2. Monitoring and follow-up related to case plan goals/steps;

3. Case plan progress, including changes in caregiver protective capacity;
4. An assessment of the sufficiency of services being provided;
5. The provision of additional services, when applicable; and
6. An assessment of child safety and well-being.

Activities that are not TCM Services

The following activities cannot be performed or documented as TCM services:

1. Investigation, legislative advocacy or training;
2. Services provided while a child/youth is incarcerated, e.g., YDC (Youth Development Campus), etc.;
3. Activities related to determining IV-E Foster Care or Adoption Assistance eligibility or any action directed at gaining or collecting child support for the child;
4. Transportation of a caregiver, guardian, child or youth by a DHS/DFCS employee;
5. Any court related activity, including preparation of court reports or participating in the judicial proceedings (with the exception of developing the case plan with the client);
6. Administration of Foster Care, Adoptions or any type of preventive service (activities not pertaining to a specific client, such as education about child abuse prevention activities or recruitment of foster homes);
7. Providing employability services that enable clients to obtain employment through assessment, preparation, planning and job development;
8. Providing Family Support Services to a family;
9. Post-Adoption finalization services and family planning; and
10. Staffing of a case between DFCS staff.

TCM can only be indicated if the SSCM is staffing a case with an auxiliary service provider (e.g., mental health, daycare, teacher and family services worker).

11. Documentation or time spent completing paperwork.

TCM Client

A TCM client is defined as follows:

1. Family Preservation Services (FPS): The primary caregiver in the family who is receiving Family Preservation Services.
2. Permanency: The child who is receiving foster care services.

If a sibling group enters foster care, each child is identified as a separate TCM client. If part of a sibling group enters foster care and other siblings remain in the home in an active Family Preservation Services case, TCM services will be provided and captured during both Permanency and Family Preservation Services interventions.

3. Youth ages 18-21 participating in Extended Youth Supportive Services.

When a child in foster care reaches his/her 18th birthday and decides not to opt out of foster care, a new Consent to Receive Targeted Case Management Services Form must be signed by the youth as the TCM Client. The TCM eligibility date or beginning date for TCM services will be the date of the youth's 18th birthday.

TCM Eligibility

Clients receiving services in Family Preservation Services and Permanency (Foster Care) are eligible for TCM services. Clients are registered as TCM clients when the child is receiving CPS or Permanency (Foster Care) services necessary to protect them from abuse or neglect.

The first date of eligibility (the beginning date on the Consent to Receive Targeted Case Management Services Form) is determined as follows:

The SSCM shall sign the Consent to Receive Targeted Case Management Services Form if the caregiver consents but does not sign.

2. An accurate Consent to Receive Targeted Case Management Services Form is completed on each child in foster care. The child in foster care is identified as the client.
3. An accurately completed Consent to Receive Targeted Case Management Services Form must be uploaded in Georgia SHINES External Documentation.

- d. Review the genogram with the family members to ensure it accurately reflects their family tree. Make corrections as needed.
3. Document the development of the genogram with the family in Georgia SHINES. Upload the hand-drawn genogram into External Documentation.

4. Review the genogram with the family when the case progresses to each subsequent program area:
 - a. Ask the interviewee if there are changes to the family (i.e., births or deaths).
 - b. Confirm whether relationship status with spouse or partner remain the same.
 - c. Verify the household members and if there are new household members.
 - d. Ask if there are changes to, or additional natural helpers, friends, confidants, and unrelated committed individuals.

For cases progressing to foster care, if an approved provider will complete the CCFA, compare the genogram submitted with the CCFA and genogram in the case record and resolve any discrepancies with the family. If the CCFA will be completed by the SSCM, the current genogram will be reviewed with the family in conjunction with the completion of the CCFA.

5. Amend or update the genogram based on the review with the family. Review the updated genogram with the family members to ensure it accurately reflects their family tree.

The updated or amended genograms can be computer-generated.

6. Document the review of the genogram with the family in Georgia SHINES. Upload the amended or updated genogram (hand-drawn or computer generated) into External Documentation, if applicable.

Social Services Supervisor

1. Ensure that a genogram is completed for each family in each program area.
2. Review genogram(s) uploaded in Georgia SHINES External Documentation to confirm completion and accuracy (i.e., hand-drawn, at least three generations of maternal and paternal family, identifies household members and natural helpers, etc.).
3. Ensure the SSCM reviews, updates, and amends the genogram with the family in each program area.
4. Assist the SSCM with using the genogram to support case assessment, case planning, identification of support network for the family, diligent search, etc.

Practice Guidance

The construction of a genogram with the family is an important component of Georgia's Practice Model. The genogram is a visual representation of a child's current and extended family which is a useful tool that can support child welfare practice in various ways including:

1. Family engagement
2. Clarifying family relationships
3. Identifying household composition safety and family functioning assessments as well as case planning

4. Determining the family stage
5. Facilitating diligent search efforts
6. Identifying a potential voluntary kinship caregiver, placement resource, permanency resource, visiting resource, and/or support network
7. Providing critical information regarding a child's life history

Construction of the genogram should begin early in the life of the case as it is invaluable in clarifying and documenting family relationships. Completing the genogram with the family is an effective strategy for engaging the family as it encourages a more inclusiveness and provides an opportunity to demonstrate the SSCM's interest in the family. Embrace cultural differences when considering who is family. Kinship relationships should be respected based on the family's cultural values and emotional ties.

The genogram may also be used as a conversation-starter to explore additional information about culture, religion, ethnicity, behavioral and emotional relationship patterns, strengths, supports and everyday tasks that present challenges for individuals within the family. As more information emerges so does the relationship context.

The construction of the genogram should make sense to the family, or it can appear intrusive. Therefore, the SSCM should provide a clear explanation of the purpose, process, and symbols to the family. The diagram should be hand-drawn during face-to-face contact to promote family engagement. The genogram construction should always clearly reflect the name, age, gender, and relationship of family members over three generations; and must identify family members who comprise the household; and non-relatives and fictive kin identified as "family". During construction, inquire about other family members that may provide additional information to include in the genogram. A review of the hand-drawn genogram with the family is required for completion and accuracy.

If the hand-drawn genogram is converted into a computer-generated version, it should be clearly explained to the family it was created from the hand-drawn version developed with the family. Updates or amendments to the genogram (hand-drawn or computer-generated) must be made in partnership with the family. A review of the updated or amended genogram with the family is required for completion and accuracy. It should also be clearly documented that the genogram was reviewed with the family.

Practice Guidance

What is a Diligent Search?

Diligent search is efforts to identify and locate parents, relatives or other persons who have demonstrated an ongoing commitment to the child and may be considered as a placement resource and/or support while the child is in foster care. Whenever possible, children should be placed with relatives as it minimizes trauma for the child, maintains familial and cultural connections, and increases contact with parents and siblings. Additional benefits include decreasing the number of placement disruptions, reducing the amount of time the child spends in foster care and making reasonable efforts to finalize expediting permanency.

Information gathering about absent parents, relatives, and the family support network begins during the CPS phase of the case and continues if the child is placed in foster care and continues throughout the life of the case. Timely identification of relatives and fictive kin increases the likelihood of making sound placement decisions. Diligent search efforts should immediately begin when a child enters foster care. It requires pursuing every lead and responding rapidly to every indication of familial interest. Diligent search efforts are not complete when the report is submitted and approved by the Court. When a relative is identified through the diligent search process, it is important to immediately engage him/her to provide timely notification and emphasize the need for him/her to respond timely to DFCS regarding their interest and willingness to provide a permanent home for the child. If the relative does not demonstrate their interest and willingness to provide a permanent home for the child within six months of the Diligent Search Notification, the court has the option to excuse DFCS from considering the relative as a placement resource. When this occurs, it is essential that DFCS staff review all applicable court orders to determine whether the court used their discretion to excuse the consideration of a relative. See policy 10.4 Foster Care: Selecting a Placement Resources Practice Guidance: Placement Selection for additional assistance regarding situations in which relatives come forward within the six months timeframe and period for completing an assessment will fall after the child has been placed with a foster parent for 12 months.

Who is a Relative of the Child?

Relative of the child is a person related to the child by blood, marriage, or adoption, including the spouse of any of those persons even if the marriage was terminated by death or dissolution. Relatives include:

1. Maternal and paternal grandparents
2. Great grandparents
3. Uncles and aunts
4. Nieces and nephews
5. Siblings, including siblings that are related through a putative father
6. First cousins and first cousins once removed (a parent's cousin)

Who is a Fictive Kin?

Fictive kin means a person who is not related to the child by blood, marriage, or adoption but who prior to his or her placement in foster care is known to the family, has a substantial and positive relationship with the child, and is willing and able to provide a suitable home for the child. There is no comprehensive list of such persons but may include the following.

1. Godparents
2. Neighbors
3. Close family friends
4. Spiritual advisors or congregation members
5. Person defined as a relative of a refugee child
6. Domestic partner or former domestic partner of the child's parent if the child had a relationship with the former domestic partner prior to coming into care
7. Adoptive parent of a child's sibling
8. Legal or biological parent of a child's half sibling
9. Person defined as a relative by the child's tribe if the child is an American Indian/Alaska Native child under the ICWA or is in the legal custody of the tribe
10. Others identified by the child or family

Who are Other Committed Persons?

Other persons are individuals identified by the child or the family that have an emotional significant relationship with the child includes but are not limited to:

1. Previous neighbors
2. Teachers
3. Scoutmasters
4. Previous foster parents
5. Parents of friends of the child, with whom such child has resided or had significant contact

Who is a Sibling of a Child?

A child's sibling is an individual with whom a child shares one or both parents in common by blood, adoption, or marriage, even if the marriage was terminated by death or dissolution. Such an individual shall still be considered a sibling of the child following termination of parental rights (TPR) up until a finalized adoption occurs. Such an individual shall also still be considered a sibling of the child following the death of their common parent(s).

Initiating a Diligent Search

The SSCM assigned to the child's foster care case has the primary responsibility for conducting the diligent search. Once the child is removed, the search intensifies. The CPS and Permanency SSCMs share in the responsibility of obtaining relevant information and documenting the search efforts in Georgia SHINES. Interviewing the parent and the child are key activities to beginning a diligent search. Diligent search is also required for a child who enters foster care as a result of Voluntary Placement Agreement (VPA).

Diligent Search and Significant Safety Issues

The contact requirement is waived with any non-custodial/absent parent, relative, fictive kin, and other committed individuals when it may cause a significant safety issue for the child or parents. Each situation will be assessed with SSS to determine if there is reasonable evidence of domestic violence (intimate partner violence) or child abuse and reason to believe that contact will result in safety concerns for the child or family. When assessing whether contact with a non-custodial/absent parent will result in safety concern, the SSA will be included. Consult with the SAAG regarding the decision. Clearly document the decision in Georgia SHINES.

Parents/Legal Custodian Engagement

A child entering foster care is a traumatic event which impacts the lives of all involved. There may be times when the SSCM will need to engage the parent/legal custodian about diligent search during their first encounter. The parent/legal custodian may be emotionally overwhelmed and may not trust DFCS and is defensive in his/her response to DFCS' urgency in obtaining relative information. The parent/legal custodian may prefer not to involve their family for fear that relatives may not approve of their circumstances. This is an opportunity for the SSCM to build rapport by having an honest conversation with the parent/legal custodian explaining diligent search, the purpose of a diligent search, and the urgency is of conducting it timely. Also, explain that specific information about the circumstances that precipitated the child entering care cannot be disclosed to family and other individuals, however, family can be informed that the child is in foster care. Terms should be explained in a manner that the parent/legal custodian can understand and answer any questions he/she may have. Ask the parent/ legal custodian his/her placement preferences if reunification is no longer an option. The SSCM should be empathetic and nonjudgmental about the parent's/legal custodian's feelings. Inform the parent/legal custodian they will be asked to testify under oath about absent parent(s), relatives, fictive kin, and other committed individuals. Re-engage the parent(s)/legal custodian at each contact for additional information about relatives, friends, fictive kin, and other committed individuals that could support the child and family while their child is in foster care. Ongoing communication with the parent/legal custodian regarding who was located and contacted, and the next steps is also necessary to build a partnership and overcome any barriers.

Child Engagement

Children want their voices to be heard and input in the changes occurring around them. A child should be involved in the diligent search process and the decision-making when age and developmentally appropriate. The diligent search process should be explained to the child in a manner that he/she can understand and answer any of his/her questions. Engage the child in identifying relatives and other important people in his/her life and provide the benefits of finding family to support the child while in foster care. Keep the child informed on who was located and contacted and the next steps.

Contacting Identified Persons

All identified persons should be contacted whether in the state of Georgia or out of the state. When contacting identified persons, it is important to provide the reason for the communication. Take into consideration the person may be unaware of the family's child welfare involvement or the child is out of the home and may become emotional. The SSCM should discuss the different options that the person can play in the child's life while in foster care to demonstrate his/her interest and willingness to provide a permanent home if reunification is not possible, for example:

1. Providing care for the child while in foster care by becoming a kinship caregiver or foster parent;

2. Visiting with the child (i.e., summer vacation, weekends, holidays); and
3. Providing additional support (i.e., transportation, maintaining regular contact with the child, participating in case planning activities).

Communication is important in managing expectations about the potential outcomes. The SSCM should be clear about his/her intentions, the six-month timeframe of being considered a permanent resource for the child, and not make promises he/she cannot keep. Always ask about additional relatives, friends, fictive kin, or other supportive persons in the parent or child lives. Be sure to provide the SSCM's contact information if he/she has additional questions or information. Following the initial contact, provide the Diligent Search Notification to relatives or parents of a sibling of the child where the parent has legal custody of the sibling outlining the services available to the individual if he/she decides to become a resource. The SSCM should encourage the persons timely response.

The SSCM should follow up on every potential lead and document the results. When individuals have been identified as a possible resource for the child or the family, it is important to maintain contact to provide updates even if there is no progress to report. A person may be ruled out due to CPS history or criminal history, he/she should be promptly notified of the determination and informed of any role he/she can play in the child's life while in foster care. Some persons may not be emotionally ready to become involved in the case and may need some additional time to consider his/her options. It is important to periodically revisit persons who at one point may have declined as feelings change over time.

Absent Parents

Parents help children understand who they are, their family, culture, and heritage. When a parent is absent or missing from a child's life, the child is in essence missing a piece of him/her self. It is important for a child to maintain contact with both parents. When a child is removed from the custody of either one parent or a legal custodian, diligent search efforts must include a search for the absent parent(s). This includes inquiring about the absent parent(s) with the parent/legal custodian from whom the child was removed, the child, relatives, and other persons contacted while conducting a diligent search. Sometimes a parent/legal custodian will not reveal the identity of the absent parent(s) or only identify the absent parent by first name or proclaim no knowledge about the absent parent's location. The parent/guardian may have a number of reasons he/she will not provide this information which may include fear that absent parent(s) may seek or be granted legal custody, they had a problematic relationship that he/she wishes to leave in the past, or the absent parent has not played a role in the child's life. The SSCM should acknowledge and normalize the parent's/legal custodian's feelings about the situation. However, it should not impact DFCS' due diligence to locate an absent parent, unless there is family violence, and it imposes a significant safety issue for the child or parent. Keep in mind an absent parent may not be aware of DFCS involvement or the circumstances that precipitated the involvement. Also, an absent parent may not be aware that he/she even has a child. Even vague information that you receive may help you locate the absent parent.

Other sources of information used to identify and locate absent parents are the following:

1. Child's birth certificate can provide the following:

- a. Mother's maiden name
 - b. Mother's marital status at the time of birth
 - c. The identity of the father.
2. Putative Father Registry is a list of names of men who have acknowledged paternity of a child by completing the Paternity Acknowledgement form or have indicated the possibility of paternity without acknowledging paternity of the child (see policy 11.2 Adoptions: Putative Father Registry & Birth Certificates).
 3. Military branches of services can be contacted if the individual is believed to be in the military or recently discharged from the military.
 4. Federal Parent Locator service documents new hire information and can locate persons in the county where they are presently working.
www.acf.hhs.gov/programs/cse/newhire
 5. Federal Bureau of Prisons Inmate Locator website can be used if information indicates that an absent parent is currently incarcerated in a federal prison.
www.bop.gov/inmateloc
 6. U.S. Immigration and Customs Enforcement (ICE) public website can be used if the individual is reported as detained for deportation outside the United States. Information required to process an inquiry includes:
 - a. The detainee's first and last name; and
 - b. The country of birth; or
 - c. The detainee's A-Number (the nine-digit identifying number that is assigned to a person during immigration benefits or enforcement proceedings) and/or
 - d. A date of birth for the detainee, if available.

Documenting Diligent Search Efforts and Results in Georgia SHINES

Documenting diligent search provides a road of DFCS efforts to locate supports for the child while in foster care and leaves a clear picture for the next SSCM partnering with the family. All persons identified during the diligent search process must be added to the Person Detail page. A person can be added at any stage in Georgia SHINES.

The Contact Detail Page is used to document each contact made related to a diligent search. “Diligent search” should be selected as one of the purposes of the contact. Document the discussion and outcome of the discussion with each relative regarding the diligent search notification and their interest and willingness to become a placement resource, visitation resource and to provide a permanent home for the child. Also, document on the Contact Detail Page any barriers and reason that the individual was not selected as a placement resource. The contacted person and the date of the contact prepopulates onto the Diligent Search Report. Failure to select diligent search as a purpose of the contact, will result in the information not prepopulating onto the Diligent Search Report.

The Diligent Search Information page captures the responses from each contact with absent parents, relatives, fictive kin, and other committed persons, including their interest and willingness to become a placement or visitation resource and/or provide a permanent home for the child. The page should be completed for each contact entered on the Contact Detail page where “diligent search” was selected as the purpose of the contact. Decisions not to contact an absent parent, relative, fictive kin or other committed persons should also be recorded on the Diligent Search Information page. The Diligent Search Information page is where the Diligent Search Notification should be emailed or launched and printed to be physically mailed. Continuously update the Diligent Search Information page, as persons are identified and contacted, and as previously contacted persons are re-engaged. Information entered on the Diligent Search Information page is prepopulated to the Diligent Search Report.

The Diligent Search Report is comprised of all contacts entered on the Contact Detail page where “diligent search” was selected as the purpose of the contact and all information entered on the Diligent Search Information page. Review the Diligent Search Report prior to submitting for court review to ensure accurateness and thoroughness.

Practice Guidance

Protective Service Alerts

A Protective Services Alert is a tool that DFCS uses to notify other staff when a parent, family or youth with an open case cannot be located. The goal of a Protective Services Alert is to immediately notify staff who may come in contact with a person/family with an active alert of the need to address unresolved safety concerns. A Protective Service Alert is activated via the Protective Service Alert page in Georgia SHINES. The Protective Service Alert Page is used to document and track any person that may have moved to an unknown location, cannot be located, absconded or run-away during the course of an ISA, FSS, INV, FPS, Foster Care, and Adoption. The Protective Service Alert will display in read-only format on the Person Detail page when there is an active alert on a person. Only users with the appropriate security profile are permitted to disable or modify an existing Protective Service Alert for a person. Reasonable efforts must be exhausted prior to the closure of a case involving a family that DFCS is unable to locate during any stage of involvement.

USPS Address Information Request

As soon as it is suspected that a parent, family or youth cannot be located or has moved to an unknown location, send the United States Postal Service Address Information Request form to the USPS to determine if a change of address was submitted. This information should be requested early in the process of conducting efforts to locate a parent, family or youth to prevent a delay in case disposition or a lapse in case management activities. For the quickest response from the USPS adhere to the following guidelines:

1. Complete and submit a United States Postal Service Address Information Request form for each adult you are attempting to locate.
2. Address the envelope to the POSTMASTER with the city, state and zip code of the last known address of the parent, family or youth.
3. Include a prepaid DFCS self-addressed envelope with the United States Postal Service Address Information Request form. Add to the DFCS self-addressed envelope the SSCM's name, title and any other information needed to ensure proper routing of the returned letter to the SSCM. These envelopes should be available in the Office of Family Independence (OFI).

Upload to Georgia SHINES External Documentation a copy of the United States Postal Service Address Information Request form sent to the USPS and received from the USPS.

CLEAR®

CLEAR® offers fast, efficient search technology that allows one to locate people and authenticate their identities. The CLEAR® search includes information from all three credit reporting agencies, Equifax®, Experian®, and Transunion® so the record is updated with a current address every time there is an application for credit. The CLEAR® search may provide the following:

1. Current or previous addresses and a timeframe for each address
2. Social Security Numbers
3. Telephone Numbers
4. Identity of Spouse
5. Criminal History
6. Marriages and/or divorces
7. Licenses held
8. E-mail addresses
9. Social Media accounts/pictures
10. Public wish lists (such as Amazon)
11. Vehicle Registrations
12. Description of Vehicles owned
13. Relatives
14. Associates (for all prior addresses)
15. Neighbors

 CLEAR® reports contain personal identifiable information and should be kept confidential. CLEAR® reports cannot be uploaded in Georgia SHINES External Documentation as they may contain other persons' information, who are not associated with the case.

Additional Search Options

Based on case circumstances additional focused searches may be warranted. For example, if a parent or youth has a history of mental illness and hospitalizations, the search will include area mental health hospitals and facilities. If a parent or youth has a history of criminal behavior and repeated incarcerations, the search should include local city and county jails.

 - b. Verify that regular communication is occurring with law enforcement and NCMEC.
 - c. Review the missing child's/youth's case record in Georgia SHINES to verify efforts to locate the child/youth have been documented.
6. Initiate staffings with the County Director/Designee at a minimum of every 90 days (if the child/youth remains missing) to discuss ongoing efforts to locate the child/youth.

When the Child/Youth is Located

The SSCM will:

1. Make face-to-face contact with the child/youth within 24 hours of their return to determine factors that contributed to the child/youth being missing, the child's/youth's experiences while absent from care, and to assess whether the child/youth is at risk or is a victim of sex trafficking (see Practice Guidance: Interview with a Child/Youth Previously Missing).
 - a. If the child/youth is in another county or state, request a courtesy contact be made by a state child welfare agency in the county or state where the child/youth is located.
 - b. Take or obtain a current picture of the child/youth to document the child/youth's appearance at the time of return and upload it into Georgia SHINES External Documentation.
 - c. If the results of the assessment suggest a child/youth is a victim of sex trafficking or at risk of being a victim of sex trafficking, follow the procedures outlined in the Human Trafficking Case Management Statewide Protocol (see Forms and Tools) to ensure that the youth receives appropriate screening and services.
2. Notify law enforcement immediately.
3. Notify NCMEC immediately via the Hotline Number, 800-THE-LOST (800-843-5678).
4. Notify the parent and the placement resource (if a child/youth is in foster care) within 24 hours.
5. Deactivate the Protective Services Alert in Georgia SHINES immediately, but no later than the following business day.
6. Notify the DFCS Missing Children Team within 24 hours.
 - a. Update the Placement Information page in Georgia SHINES by end dating the Runaway placement event.
 - b. When the SSS approves the change to the Placement Information page, Georgia SHINES will automatically send a notification to the DFCS Missing Children Team.
7. Notify the juvenile court, GAL, CASA, and any other entities actively assisting DFCS with the search for the previously missing child/youth no later than the following business day.
8. Arrange for or request the caregiver obtain a medical examination of the child/youth within 48 hours of the child/youth's return based on information revealed during the assessment of the child and/or duration of the child being missing. In CPS cases, the parent is responsible for obtaining the medical examination.

9. Submit a new IV-E application in Georgia SHINES when a missing child/youth returns to foster care.

New determinations of all eligibility factors, including judicial determinations of “contrary to the welfare” and “reasonable efforts”, are required if the child/youth returns to foster care after six months as this is considered a new placement episode for IV-E purposes.

10. Make every effort to place children/youth previously missing from foster care in the same placement they were in prior to becoming missing, when appropriate (see policy 10.4 Foster Care: Selecting a Placement Resource).
11. Refer the child/youth and family for appropriate services to address identified issues related to the child being missing/runaway, other identified at-risk behaviors including but not limited to being at risk or a victim of human trafficking (see policy 19.17 Case Management: Service Provision).
12. Develop or update the written Youth Runaway Prevention Plan (see Practice Guidance: Runaway Prevention Plan).
13. Visit the child/youth more frequently (weekly or more often as needed) to work with the child/youth and caregiver(s) to stabilize their relationship and to address the factors that led to the runaway episode and prevent further disruption. Make efforts to coordinate visits with service providers or child placing agencies/child caring institutions (CPA/CCI) staff, if applicable.
14. Document all case management activities and updates in Georgia SHINES within 72 hours of occurrence.

The SSS will:

1. Ensure face-to-face contact with the child/youth is made within 24 hours of their return.
2. Ensure the appropriate parties are notified that the child/youth has been located in accordance with the policy timeframes.
3. Ensure the following are completed in Georgia SHINES:
 - a. The Protective Services Alert is deactivated in accordance with the policy timeframe.
 - b. A new IV-E application is submitted (if the child/youth return to foster care).
4. Collaborate with SSCM to develop a Youth Runaway Prevention Plan for the located children/youth.

Practice Guidance

Missing Children/Youth

The term missing means that the whereabouts of the child/youth is unknown. The term “runaway” is used by DFCS to refer to youth whose whereabouts are unknown to their caregiver and there is a reasonable suspicion that the child/youth has absconded from their place of residence, and preliminary efforts to locate the child/youth have yielded no results. However, it is important to remember that just because a child/youth is missing does not mean the child/youth ran away. Children/youth may go missing for a number of reasons and it is important to determine why they are missing to improve efforts to locate them and prevent future episodes. In all instances, a comprehensive search must be made by the caregiver and DFCS to locate missing children/youth.

Missing children/youth are at great risk of victimization and exploitation. They usually do not perceive the inherent risks or see themselves as potential victims. Because of the potential dangers to the child/youth, a runaway/missing child/youth episode is a major event that requires intensive intervention and safety planning. When children/youth in foster care are missing, the issues that brought the children/youth into care need to be adequately addressed with the parent/caregiver before DFCS intervention is concluded, regardless of the location of the child/youth. DFCS does not seek to be relieved of custody based on the child/youth being missing.

DFCS has formed a Missing Children Team to manage the tracking of missing children/youth in foster care. The Team is comprised of representatives from several sections within the State Office, field operations, and the Georgia Bureau of Investigations. Since the team is notified that a child/youth is missing or located via Georgia SHINES, it is extremely important that the Placement Information Page be completed timely whenever a child/youth is determined to be missing or has returned from being missing. Doing so will ensure accurate accountability for children/youth.

Interview with the Caregiver When a Child/Youth is Missing

If a child/youth is missing, the SSCM should explore the following issues with the caregiver:

1. Has the child/youth ever run away before, for how long, and where did the child/youth go?
2. Did the child/youth express a desire to run away, go to a specific place, or see a specific person?
3. Did the caregiver observe any cues that the child/youth was planning to run away?
4. Who is the child/youth permitted to visit? Where (neighborhood, home, school)? Are the parents of the child/youth's friends known by the placement provider?
5. What are the rules of the residence concerning allowable areas for the child/youth to be without first securing caregiver permission?
6. Has the child/youth started any new friendships, or "hanging out" with new people?
7. Have there been any changes in the child's/youth's behavior? What are the changes?
8. Are there issues being experienced by the caregiver that may have contributed to the child/youth running away?
9. Who are the child's/youth's friends? Is their contact information known to the caregiver?
10. What steps can be taken to avoid future occurrences of running away?

Endangerment Indicators for Runaway Youth

These are conditions or behaviors that, in conjunction with the child/youth's absence from an environment known to be safe, severely compromise the child/youth's safety. This includes one or more of the following:

1. The child/youth has been or is believed to have been abducted.
2. The child/youth is age 13 or younger.
3. The child/youth has one or more health/mental health conditions that will place the child/youth at serious harm without required treatment.

4. The child/youth is pregnant and/ or parenting, and the offspring is believed to be with the child/youth.
5. The child/youth has a physical or developmental disability/delay that impairs the child/youth's ability for self-care.
6. The child/youth has a substance abuse problem.
7. The child/youth was previously the victim of human trafficking or sexual exploitation.
8. The child/youth is in a potentially life-threatening situation.
9. The child/youth is believed to be with people who could endanger the child's/youth's welfare.

Law Enforcement Reporting

Some law enforcement jurisdictions may not be inclined to accept a missing person report for a specified number of hours or may not timely enter the report into the NCIC database. However, Federal law requires that law enforcement take a report on a missing child/youth and that there be no wait time to take the report. Furthermore, Federal law requires a report of a missing child/youth to be entered within two hours of receipt into the State law enforcement system and the NCIC computer networks. The report must also be made available to the Missing Children Information Clearinghouse within the State or other agency designated within the State to receive such reports. Therefore, if told there is a wait time, DFCS staff should reference 34 U.S.C. § 41308 (State requirements for reporting missing children). Seek assistance from the SSS and Special Assistant Attorney General (SAAG) if there is concern that a law enforcement agency is inappropriately handling reports of a missing child/youth.

When notifying law enforcement of a missing child/youth, the following information shall be provided:

1. The child's/youth's full name, aliases and nicknames, age, date of birth, social security number, and driver's license number (if applicable).
2. A description of the child/youth [i.e., height; weight; hair color; eye color; skin color; braces; clothes worn; book bag; hat; shoes; contact lenses; eyeglasses; dentures; gold or silver teeth; any impairments (physical, hearing, vision, speech); moles; scars; body piercings; or tattoos].
3. Physical or psychological conditions, developmental delays, or any condition that may affect the ability of the child/youth to respond to environmental dangers.
4. Other factors of endangerment, such as age, hazardous location, medical needs, disability, etc.
5. Medications or history of suspected substance abuse.
6. Recent photograph of the child/youth.
7. A copy of the most recent court order granting legal custody of the child/youth and other relevant facts about the child's/youth's custody status.
8. Type of missing episode (e.g., runaway, family abduction, non-family abduction, etc.).
9. Where, when, and with whom the child/youth was last seen.
10. Possible method of travel (e.g., car, bicycle, public transportation, or on foot).
11. Names and addresses of foster parents (if applicable), birthparents, relatives, former foster parents (if applicable), and friends; Locations and activities the child/youth is known to frequent.

12. Any suspected destinations; and any prior disappearances and outcomes.

National Center for Missing and Exploited Children (NCMEC)

As the national clearinghouse on missing and exploited children issues, NCMEC is uniquely positioned to provide significant and continuous support to state agencies that are searching for children missing from their care. NCMEC provides an array of resources, including case management, poster distribution, technical assistance to law enforcement, and analytical support. Every report of a missing child receives a prompt response from NCMEC's case management staff who coordinate directly with all case workers, social workers and/or law enforcement agencies involved to provide resources to help safely locate the missing child. Reporting all children missing from care to NCMEC is not just a best practice, but also a legal requirement.

Searching for a Missing Child/Youth

1. Physically look for the child/youth.
 - a. Search the last place the child/youth was seen and the immediate surrounding area.
 - b. Go to the child's last placement to interview/re-interview other children/youth at the child's/youth's placement to determine if the child/youth shared any plans or contact information for other friends. Inquire about the child's/youth's use of cell phones or social media.
 - c. Go to the homes of the child's/youth's friends and family, including extended family.
 - d. Check regular hang outs and any place frequented by the child/youth and leave messages at these places.
 - e. Go to emergency shelters and homeless youth programs.
 - f. Check food pantries.
 - g. Check with juvenile detention if it is a child/youth who is missing and jails if it is a young adult.
 - h. Check with hospitals.
 - i. If the child/youth is a victim of sex trafficking or at risk of being a victim of sex trafficking, check clubs.

Always keep worker safety in mind during any search. Supervisors should always be informed of where staff are going. Staff should not go alone to unfamiliar or potentially dangerous places. Ask for law enforcement assistance as needed.

2. Use the internet (subject to DHS/DFCS policies on use of the internet and social media).
 - a. Check Facebook, Twitter, and other social media sites. Facebook can be contacted for an IP address to assist in locating the child/youth.
 - b. Reach out to family and friends who have positive relationships with the missing child/youth to allow viewing of the content and consider asking these individuals to post messages.
 - c. If the missing child/youth is a victim of sex trafficking or at risk of being a victim of sex trafficking, check known escort sites, such as www.bedpage.com and www.onebackpage.com, and check ads.

- d. Google the child's/youth's phone number in case the number is in an ad.
3. Use the telephone.
 - a. Call the child's/youth's phone number or have someone he or she trusts call from their phone.
 - b. Utilize voicemail, text messaging and other messaging to communicate to the child/youth the need to return or go to a safe place (e.g., police station, fire department, hospital, etc.).
 - c. Use the phone's GPS system to try and determine a location.
4. Access others for assistance.
 - a. Reach out and maintain contact with those who know the child well (parents, other care-givers and friends). Ensure they understand the legal obligation to notify DFCS should the child/youth contact them (if the child/youth is in foster care).
 - b. Always consider confidentiality when determining who to contact and what information to share.
 - c. Maintain regular contact with law enforcement agencies and the NCMEC to provide any new information regarding the child's/youth's possible whereabouts and to receive updates on their efforts and progress made to locate the child/youth.
 - d. Contact the child's/youth's probation officer (if applicable) for any updated information.

Interview with a Child/Youth Previously Missing

In-person contact with a previously missing child/youth in foster is required within 24 hours of their return to determine factors that contributed to the child/youth being missing, the child's/youth's experiences while absent from care, and to assess whether the child/youth is at risk or is a victim of sex trafficking. The interview should be conducted in a manner which demonstrates empathy and concern, while also communicating to the child/youth that their safety is the primary concern. The SSCM will explore the following:

1. Why did the child/youth run away? (Explore what they expected to accomplish by running away)
2. What led up to the decision to run away?
3. Who was with the child/youth when the child/youth ran away?
4. Was he/she encouraged to run away? If so, by whom?
5. Where did the child/youth go? (List all the places)
6. What were all the places the child/youth visited while away?
7. Who were some of the people the child/youth visited or stayed with while away and what is the child's/youth's relationship with them?
8. How did the child/youth survive while away (e.g., food, clothing, shelter, hygiene, money)?
9. Did the child/youth engage in any risky behaviors (e.g., sexual activity, substance abuse)?
10. Was the child/youth the victim of a crime while away? If so, is a referral to law enforcement needed?
11. What was the best thing about being away?

12. What was the worst thing about being away?
13. What did the child/youth miss the most while away?
14. What would have stopped the child/youth from running away?
15. What services/supports did the child/youth need while being away?
16. What were some of the reasons the child/youth returned?
17. Has the child/youth thought about leaving again since being back?
18. What can be done to prevent the child/youth from running away again?
19. What advice would the child/youth give another youth who was thinking of running away?

Youth Runaway Prevention Plan

A runaway prevention plan is a method of addressing circumstances and situations that might lead to a runaway episode or a recurrence of runaway behavior. The plan is a written document which helps to promote clarity and accountability. To be more effective, the runaway prevention plan should be developed collaboratively with children/youth, their caregivers and others working with the children/youth. After all, if children/youth are not committed to the plan, the plan will not work. The plan needs to be realistic, positive, and based on a child's/youth's strengths which will increase the chances of success. While circumstances change, the plan should be reviewed regularly to determine if it remains applicable to current circumstances.

19.23 Paternity Testing

	Georgia Division of Family and Children Services Child Welfare Policy Manual

	Policy Title:	Paternity Testing
	Policy Number:	19.23	Previous Policy Number(s):	N/A
	Effective Date:	March 2023	Manual Transmittal:	2023-02

Codes/References

N/A

Requirements

The Division of Family and Children Services (DFCS) will:

1. Initiate deoxyribonucleic acid (DNA) paternity testing, when appropriate, to determine/ verify biological fathers and paternal relatives, to inform and/or support child welfare decision making regarding safety planning, case planning, placement, and permanency.

DNA paternity testing provides scientific evidence of paternity by comparing the genetic markers from the child’s DNA with those of the alleged father. DNA testing may be initiated whenever a biological father cannot be conclusively identified by other methods, and establishment of paternity is needed to support safety planning, case planning, placement, and permanency.

2. Refer individuals for DNA paternity testing:
 - a. When ordered by court;
 - b. To identify/verify biological relationships for placement and permanency for children in foster care, or termination of parental rights (TPR);
 - c. During family preservation services, if needed (e.g., to identify paternal relatives such as grandparents, or to identify biological fathers if paternity may be in doubt);
 - d. To prevent the placement of a child into foster care;
 - e. Other situations, as needed.
3. Complete a service authorization to initiate DNA paternity collection and testing.
4. Use only approved vendors for DNA paternity testing.
5. Obtain a court order to:
 - a. Conduct DNA paternity testing for incarcerated alleged parents.
 - b. Use available DNA samples from the medical examiner, funeral home, coroner, etc., if a DNA sample from an alleged parent is not available (e.g., due to them being deceased).
6. Determine, on a case-by-case basis, whether to initiate a family case study when a DNA sample is not available from an alleged parent:

- a. Consult with the Contract Director and/or the Regional Webmaster before initiating a family case study as each family circumstances are unique.
- b. Family case studies are not recommended for uncooperative parties, such as a father refusing to have the DNA paternity test. In these situations, a petition to the court to order the DNA paternity test may be appropriate.

A family case study is done by testing two or more biological family members of the alleged parent, as well as the mother of the child.

7. Document all requests for DNA paternity testing and results in Georgia SHINES within 72 hours of occurrence.
8. Adhere to confidentiality and Health Insurance Information Portability and Accountability Act (HIPAA) provisions outlined in policies 2.6 Information Management: Confidentiality/Safeguarding Information and 2.5 Information Management: Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act.

Procedures

Social Services Case Manager

1. Initiate DNA paternity testing:
 - a. Complete a service authorization:
 - i. Date service authorizations to allow a minimum of 30 days if collection will be done by a DFCS staff.
 - ii. Date service authorizations to allow a minimum of 90 days if collection will be done through a vendor.
 - b. Email the request for DNA collection and testing to the DNA Collector. Attach a copy of the approved service authorization to the email.

All collections require a valid updated service authorization.

- iii. Use funding source PUP (see policy 18.3 Support Services to Prevent or Reunify Families: Prevention of Unnecessary Placement \(PUP\) and the COSTAR Manual).
- iv. List all parties needing testing in the persons referred section; and
- v. Obtain approval from the Social Services Supervisor (SSS).

The DNA collection and testing request must be made directly to the Regional Webmaster rather than the DNA Collector for an incarcerated alleged parent, an alleged parent being deceased, or out-of-state requests.

- c. If the alleged parent is incarcerated, email the request for DNA collection and testing to the Regional Webmaster. Include the following:
 - i. An approved service authorization dated with a minimum of 90 days of coverage;
 - ii. A court order for paternity testing collection on the incarcerated alleged parent;

- iii. The Inmate Number and prison contact, if available.
- d. If the alleged parent is deceased and a DNA sample is needed from the medical examiner, funeral home, or coroner's office, etc., e-mail the request for DNA collection and testing to the Regional Webmaster. Include the following:
 - i. An approved service authorization dated with a minimum of 90 days of coverage;
 - ii. A court order authorizing the testing vendor to collect the sample from the named facility.

If a DNA sample for a deceased alleged parent is not available from above sources, consult with the Regional Webmaster or Contract Director to determine the appropriateness of initiating a family case study.

- e. If the alleged parent or family member lives in another state (out-of-state requests):
 - i. Email the request for DNA collection and testing to Regional Webmaster. Include an approved service authorization dated with a minimum of 90 days of coverage;
 - ii. The Regional Webmaster will arrange for the DNA Collector to conduct DNA collection and testing for the child in Georgia.

Consult with the Regional Webmaster for paternity testing from other countries.

- 2. Provide the child and parents timely notification of their DNA collection appointment(s).
- 3. Upon receipt of the DNA paternity test results from the Regional Webmaster:
 - a. In conjunction with the SSS, review the results to determine how the results impact case decision making.
 - b. Discuss the results to the alleged parent.
- 4. Document all requests for DNA paternity testing and results in Georgia SHINES:
 - a. Upload the results to External Documentation within 72 hours of receipt.
 - b. If paternity is established:
 - i. Select Paternity Established Checkbox in Person Detail;
 - ii. Change the relationship from Putative to Biological Father.

Establishing paternity through DNA paternity testing does not mean that the child has been legitimated. Refer to policy 17.15 Legal: Legitimation for the legitimation process.

The DNA Collector will:

- 1. Collect DNA samples.

Samples may be collected at the DFCS office, the individual's home, or the court. Consider collector safety when determining location for sample collection.

- 2. Follow guidelines for submitting pictures, including:
 - a. On a blank sheet of paper:

- i. Write the individual's full name, date of birth, date, and obtain the signature of the individual being tested;
 - ii. Place DNA Collectors initials.
 - b. Have the individual hold the paper to take the picture;
 - c. Take a picture with an approved camera.
3. Update records of collection and shipment to the vendor on the Well-Being Paternity SharePoint website.
 4. Share DNA collection and testing information with the Regional Webmaster via Well-Being Paternity SharePoint site or email.

DNA collectors may be any DFCS staff identified by the county, including but not limited to SSCMs and Office Support staff. However, to avoid any perception of conflict of interest, the child's parent and/or guardian or assigned SSCM cannot serve as the DNA collector.

The Regional Webmaster will:

1. Schedule collections for incarcerated alleged parents, deceased alleged parents, out-of-state request with approved DNA vendors.
2. Order all DNA supplies.
3. Provide the SSCM and SSS the DNA paternity test results.
4. Process invoices.
5. Initiate family case studies with the Contract Manager, as needed.
6. Review and update the DFCS Well Being Support Services SharePoint site to reflect any changes to the DNA Collection process, such as changes to DNA Collectors.
7. Track DNA collector activity, including missing DNA specimens.
8. Serve as a resource for DNA Collectors and county staff on DNA paternity testing concerns.

Social Services Supervisor

1. Provide guidance to the SSCM regarding when and how to seek DNA paternity testing.
2. Review the service authorization to ensure it is accurate, completed timely and allows for the appropriate coverage time based on the case circumstances prior to approval.
3. Consult with other county/regional leadership where appropriate, or in accordance with any established county/regional protocols.
4. Ensure referrals to DNA Collectors and Regional Webmaster are completed timely and according to the established processes.
5. Ensure that the SSCM requests court orders when needed for DNA paternity testing.
6. Participate in family case study consultations.
7. Review paternity testing results with the SSCM, including discussing how the results impact case decision making.

Practice Guidance

DNA Paternity Testing

The most common DNA paternity sample type is a “buccal swab”. This sample is collected using a cotton swab that is gently rubbed on the inside of the cheek. Blood samples are also acceptable and are always done by the vendor.

At-home paternity tests, such as Ancestry.com, 23&Me, etc., are not considered legal evidence of paternity and are not used or accepted as evidence of paternity by DFCS.

Family Case Study

While a family case study is not as accurate as the traditional father-child DNA testing method, it can still be used to determine paternity with a high degree of accuracy. The more family members that are tested the more accurate the results will be.

DNA Collectors

Each county is expected to have a minimum of two staff trained as DNA collectors, though counties may have as many DNA collectors as needed. To identify the current DNA Collector, the SSCM may request a current DNA Collector Directory from their Regional Webmaster or the Contract Director. DNA collection is also conducted by a vendor when warranted by case circumstances and coordinated with Regional Webmaster.

Regional Webmasters

The Regional Webmasters work closely with the Contract Director to coordinate most aspects of DNA collection and testing. They serve as a resource for the DNA Collectors, as well as SSCMs and SSSs. The Regional Webmaster in conjunction with the Contract Director monitors and supervises the DNA collection and testing work of the DNA Collectors.

Well-being Paternity Testing SharePoint Site

The Contract Director manages a SharePoint site for DNA Collectors and Regional Webmasters to provide a resource for DNA collection and testing, and to be a central data point for use by DNA Collectors and Regional Webmasters to record and monitor all DFCS DNA collection and testing activities.

- b. The appropriateness of filing a dependency complaint based on a comprehensive assessment of the family's functioning and child safety.

4. Identify whether parents/guardians/legal custodian with moderate to high risk substance or alcohol use needs meet the minimum eligibility criteria for FTC participation (refer to the MOU in the applicable FTC jurisdiction) including:

- a. A pending dependency petition or open Permanency case.

5. File a dependency complaint/petition in the juvenile court within the appropriate jurisdiction in consultation with the Special Assistant Attorney General (SAAG) and recommend FTC services for families impacted by parent/guardian/legal custodian substance use and dependency concerns.

 If there is an existing dependency action before the court such as a protective order or open foster care case, it may not be necessary to file a new dependency complaint/petition for FTC. County staff should consult with their SAAG to determine whether to file an amendment to the existing dependency action, as appropriate.

6. Discuss with eligible parents/caregivers the benefits and requirements of FTC participation, including that it is voluntary.

7. Ensure, in partnership with the FTC team, the following occurs:

- a. A referral for a substance or alcohol use assessment for parents/caregivers or other adult household members is conducted by appropriately trained and qualified professional staff using standardized assessment tools.

and qualified professional staff.

- c. A “warm hand-off” is used to connect the parent/guardian/legal custodian or other adult household members with service providers. When a warm hand-off is not possible, work with the parent/guardian/legal custodian to identify a responsible party to assist him/her with making and keeping appointments. Confirm that the responsible party has agreed to assist (see Practice Guidance: Warm Hand-off).
- d. The creation of coordinated substance and alcohol use disorder treatment plans and case plans for parents/guardians/legal custodians, children and/or other household members that is supported through court order which includes, as appropriate:
 - i. Clinical treatment when the assessment indicates the need for clinical treatment interventions (i.e. detoxification, crisis intervention, treatment planning, substance use counseling and education, prenatal care, medical care, mental health services and pharmacotherapy).
 - ii. Clinical supportive services (i.e. life skills training, parenting and child development education, employment readiness, housing support, legal services).

- f. The coordination of drug screens to assess/monitor progress and recovery goals:
 - i. The drug screen can be used as a tool to initiate a discussion with parents/guardians/legal custodians regarding positive screens and how that fits in with their goals, retaining or regaining custody of their children, and re-evaluating the treatment and case plans to make adjustments to enable the caregiver to overcome a lapse or relapse. Also refer to Practice Guidance: Obtaining Drug Screens for Parents/Caregivers in Treatment in policy 19.25 Case Management: Drug Screens.
 - ii. Parents/guardians/legal custodians in Medication Assisted Treatment (MAT) programs will have positive drug screens for the medications used to treat the alcohol or substance use disorder (see Practice Guidance: Commonly Used Medications for Medication Assisted Treatment and Forms and Tools: Know Your Rights: Rights for Individuals on Medication Assisted Treatment).
- g. The commencement of treatment services occurs within 30 days of a parent/guardian/legal custodian being determined eligible for the program unless documentation includes a compelling reason that treatment could not begin (i.e., incarceration, illness, lack of a provider, etc.) and the plan to ensure family safety and well-being.

DFCS staff must initiate any services needed to address child safety and well-being concerns until the commencement of services through FTC.

- h. A celebration of the parents/guardians/legal custodians’ progress towards their recovery goals.

8. Refer infants prenatally exposed and other children in the home under the age of three to Children 1st/Babies Can't Wait for a developmental screening in accordance with policy 19.28 Case Management: Children 1st and Babies Can't Wait.
9. Provide to the FTC, upon request, access to all records relevant to the treatment of the parent/guardian/legal custodian participating in the FTC as authorized by state and federal law (see policies 2.6 Information Management: Confidentiality/Safeguarding Information and 2.5 Information Management: Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act).

12. Incorporate applicable assessments and court orders into the case plan.
13. Provide all case management activities needed to mitigate child safety concerns and make reasonable efforts to prevent removal, reunify the child or finalize the permanency plan throughout the oversight of the FTC (see policy 9.5 Eligibility: Reasonable Efforts and Practice Guidance: Reasonable Efforts).
14. Adhere to confidentiality and HIPAA provisions outlined in policies 2.6 Information Management: Confidentiality/Safeguarding Information and 2.5 Information Management: Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act. Practice Guidance

FTCs^[21] are a collaborative effort of the court, child welfare, substance use disorder treatment systems, and community partners. No single system or set of workers has the authority, capacity, resources, or skills to respond to the array of challenges faced by families affected by substance use disorders, but collectively, multiple systems and agencies do have those capacities and skills. To formalize the family treatment court partnership, a MOU with each partner is developed that outlines each agency's role, responsibilities, duties, and tasks. Agencies participating in the FTC must maintain ongoing communication with the FTC. Depending upon the FTC jurisdiction, SSCMs may be required to provide weekly reports and/or attend court hearings weekly or every two weeks. Additionally, agencies are required to participate in continuing interdisciplinary education to promote effective planning, implementation, and operations.

Family Treatment Court Division (O.C.G.A. §15-11-15)

The goal of a family treatment court division is to:

1. Reduce alcohol or drug abuse and addiction for respondents in dependency proceedings;
2. Improve permanency outcomes for families when dependency is based in part on alcohol or drug use and addiction;
3. Increase the personal, familial, and societal accountability of respondents in dependency proceedings; and
4. Promote effective intervention and use of resources among child welfare personnel, law enforcement agencies, treatment providers, community agencies, and the courts.

Family Treatment Court Services

3. FTC's will provide a validated assessment normed to the target population, including substance abuse and risk of recidivism/criminogenic needs.

Warm Hand-off

Alcohol and substances cause significant changes in brain chemistry, which can affect a person’s mood, thinking, behavior and perception, making it difficult for them to follow through on scheduling and keeping appointments. Therefore, it is essential that the SSCM assist or identify a responsible party to assist the caregiver with making and keeping appointments.

Full Disclosure / Informed Consent

The SSCM is responsible for disclosing all significant information about FTC to parents/caregivers including the implications of participation. The SSCM should also explain that the benefits of participating are to assist him/her with evaluating their physical, psychological and social well-being, as well as, evaluating progress in substance use treatment and recovery services. When discussing FTC participation, the SSCM should avoid using statements that can be perceived as coercive or punitive. Individuals have the right to choose whether to participate in FTC. Three conditions must be met before a decision can be considered fully informed:

1. Capacity: The parent/guardian/legal custodian can make rational decisions.
2. Comprehension: Information must be provided in a way that the parent/guardian/legal custodian understands, including language and words the parent/guardian/legal custodian understands. The parent/guardian/legal custodian should be asked to repeat her/his understanding of the information, so it is assured things were fully understood and fill in whatever gaps exist.
3. Voluntariness: Implies that the parent/guardian/legal custodian is free to make this choice and is acting without any coercion.

Reasonable Efforts

A parent's/caregiver's enrollment and participation in the FTC does not relieve DFCS of its legal responsibility to make reasonable efforts throughout case management to prevent removal, reunify families, and to finalize permanency. Due diligence in the provision of individualized services goes beyond referral and requires support of the parent/guardian/legal custodian and family, monitoring engagement, adjustment of services as needed, and constant communication between provider and SSCM. At each dependency hearing, the SSCM will be required to testify to reasonable efforts made. It is essential that case management activities continue throughout the oversight of the treatment court. The parent/guardian/legal custodian and family should only benefit from the collaboration of systems designed to connect accountability with treatment. Refer to policy 9.5 Eligibility: Reasonable Efforts for additional information.

4. Request parents/guardians/legal custodians in active cases to complete a minimum of two random drug screens per month to provide evidence of success, monitor recovery goals and evaluate progress in treatment.

Drug screens can be obtained through coordination with Family Treatment Courts (FTC), Department of Community Supervision (DCS), Department of Behavioral Health and Developmental Disabilities (DBHDD), other government entities, medical facilities, health-care providers or substance use treatment facilities/providers. Procedures

Drug Screens in Active Cases

The Social Services Case Manager (SSCM) will:

1. Consult with the Social Services Supervisor (SSS) to:
 - a. Discuss how the drug screen fits into the overall case assessment, case planning or for court related requirements (see policy 19.24 Case Management: Family Treatment Court).
 - b. Determine the drug screen method based on the case circumstances, i.e., hair follicle, urinalysis, breath (see the Forms and Tools: Pros and Cons of Different Specimen Sources).

- c. Determine the type of drug screen panel based on case circumstances, allegations, and purpose.
- d. Identify the most appropriate vendor or facility to perform the drug screen.

Whenever possible, appropriate and with a valid Authorization for Release of Information, the results of random drug screens should be requested and/or shared across systems (i.e. Family Treatment Court, Department of Behavioral Health and Developmental Disabilities, Department of Community Supervision, Department of Public Health, other government entities, medical facilities, healthcare providers or substance use treatment facilities/providers, etc.) to avoid duplication of services while promoting a more integrated and effective approach to recovery services for the parent/guardian/legal custodian or other household members.

2. Complete and obtain supervisory approval for the service authorizations in Georgia SHINES when using DFCS contracted drug screen providers.

Prevention of Unnecessary Placement (PUP) funds may be authorized to pay for drug screens when no other payment sources are identified i.e., private health insurance, Medicaid etc. (see policy 18.3 Support Services to Preserve or Reunify Families: Prevention of Unnecessary Placement \(PUP\)).

3. Engage the parent/guardian/legal custodian or other individual to build consensus regarding the need for a drug screen:

- a. Explain the purpose of the drug screen including case assessment, case planning, assessing progress in treatment and recovery, and/or ordered by the court.
- b. Inform him/her of the behavioral and environmental indicators that support the drug screen request (see Practice Guidance: Observing and Documenting Behavioral and Environmental Indicators of Substance Abuse in policy 19.26 Case Management: Case Management Involving Substance Abuse or Use).
- c. Provide full disclosure regarding drug screens (see Practice Guidance: Full Disclosure / Informed Consent), including:
 - i. Drug screens are only one part of a comprehensive family assessment;
 - ii. Drug screens are voluntary unless ordered by the court;

Drug screens ordered by the court or included in a court approved case plan are not considered voluntary.

- iii. They have the right to refuse the drug screen;
- iv. The implications of not submitting to the drug screen; and
- v. The benefits of the drug screen in supporting their treatment and recovery.
- d. Explore what the drug screen is likely to reveal to allow the opportunity for self-disclosure and engage in the discussion around further assessment and/or treatment, as applicable.
- e. Gather information about any prescription medication and over the counter drug use.
- f. Provide information about the drug screen procedures (i.e. vendor, location, date, time, method, etc.).

- g. Obtain the individual's signature on:
 - i. The drug and/or alcohol screen referral form, if applicable.
 - ii. The Authorization for Release of Information form to obtain the results of the drug screen and to share with other agencies working in partnership with the caregiver and DFCS, as applicable.
 - h. If consensus cannot be reached regarding the need for and benefits of the drug screen:
 - i. Explore the reason for declining the drug screens.
 - ii. Explore any fears and anxiety regarding the drug screen. (i.e., fear of the child being removed, etc.)
 - iii. Consult with the Social Services Supervisor (SSS) regarding the impact on case assessment, case planning, assessing progress in treatment and recovery, and/or legal requirements.
4. Obtain a copy of the drug screen results from the provider/facility.
- a. Review the results of the drug screen with the SSS and discuss how the results of the drug screen fits within the comprehensive family assessment, case planning and/or court ordered requirements.
 - b. Review the results of the drug screen with the parent/guardian/legal custodian or other individual tested within 48 hours of receipt and discuss how the results impact the comprehensive family assessment, case planning and/or court ordered requirements.

To maintain partnership and open communication with caregivers or other individuals screened, avoid using judgmental terms such as “clean” or “dirty” when discussing the results of the drug screen. The professional and appropriate terminology is “positive” or “negative”.

- c. If the drug screen is positive:
 - i. Provide an opportunity for the parent/guardian/legal custodian or other individual to explain the results.
- ii. Use consensus building techniques to encourage the parent/guardian/legal custodian or other individual to continue working on their individual level outcomes (ILO) as part of the action plan.
 - iii. If not reached previously, build consensus regarding the opportunity for intervention; or the need to update the treatment plan if the caregiver is already receiving treatment.
 - iv. Consult with the substance abuse treatment provider to review the relapse prevention plan to reassess the array of services and interventions for parents/caregivers or other individuals currently in treatment.

It is important to determine if the positive drug screen and other behavioral indi-icators represent a lapse or a relapse to ensure the appropriate modification to the relapse prevention plan (see Practice Guidance: Lapse vs. Relapse).

- v. Consider a modification of the frequency of the drug screens.
 - vi. Assess the need for an alcohol and/or drug assessment for parent's/caregiver's not receiving treatment in accordance with policy 19.26 Case Management: Case Management Involving Substance Abuse or Use.
- d. If the drug screen is negative:
- i. Acknowledge and celebrate the parent's/guardian's/legal custodian's or other individual's accomplishment when the negative screen and other indicators support behavioral changes.
 - ii. Offer continued support and encouragement for their continued work on their individual level outcomes (ILO) as part of the action plan.
5. Provide notification to the court when drug screens are court ordered or are part of a court approved case plan.
 6. Document all activities in Georgia SHINES within 72 hours of occurrence, including the discussion with the parent/guardian/legal custodian and/or other individuals regarding the need for the drug screen, his or her decision, and the results of each drug screen. Upload a copy of the drug screen results and any other relevant forms (referral, ROI, etc.) into Georgia SHINES External Documentation.

The Social Services Supervisor (SSS) will:

1. Discuss with the SSCM how the drug screen fits within the comprehensive family assessment, case planning, etc.
2. Conduct a supervisor staffing with the SSCM to:
 - a. Determine the drug screen method base on the case circumstance, i.e. urinalysis, hair follicle, breath (see the Forms and Tools: Pros and Cons of Different Specimen Sources).
 - b. Determine the type of drug screen panel based on circumstances, allegations and purpose.
3. Assist the SSCM in identifying the most appropriate vendor or facility to perform the drug screen.
4. Approve service authorizations in Georgia SHINES prior to referring the parent/guardian/legal custodian or other individual for a drug screen for DFCS contracted drug screen providers.
5. Provide guidance to the SSCM to determine next steps when consensus cannot be reached regarding the need for drug screens.
6. Discuss the results of the drug screen and how next steps for case management interventions based on the overall assessment.
7. Ensure that the SSCM has document all activities into Georgia SHINES within 72 hours of occurrence.

Drug Screens for Prospective Caregivers (Foster, Adoptive, Kinship)

The SSCM will:

1. Consult with the SSS to:

- a. Ensure that all primary and secondary prospective caregivers undergo drug screening within the 12 consecutive months prior to final approval of the Initial Family Evaluation (IFE).
- b. Determine the type of drug screen panel and identify the most appropriate vendor or facility to perform the drug screen.

At a minimum, prospective caregivers are to be screened for marijuana/cannabinoids (THC), cocaine, amphetamines/methamphetamines, opiates, ecstasy, and phencyclidine (PCP). The drug screen must be conducted and signed by a qualified health professional or laboratory.

2. Engage the prospective caregiver regarding the purpose and process of the drug screen:

- a. Discuss with him/her that the drug screen is needed as a part of the caregiver evaluation process to support approval decision-making related to the care and/or placement of a child.
- b. Provide information about the drug screen procedure (i.e. vendor, location, date, time, method, etc.).
- c. Explore and document prescribed and over-the-counter medications.
- d. Obtain the individual's signature on:
 - i. The drug and/or alcohol screen referral form, if applicable.
 - ii. The Authorization for Release of Information form to obtain the results of the
 - iii. drug screen and to share with other agencies working in partnership with the caregiver and DFCS, as applicable. Obtain a copy of the drug screen results from the provider/facility.

3. Consult with the SSS regarding the drug screen results and how it fits within the evaluation of the prospective caregiver.

- a. Disqualify prospective caregivers who decline to consent to a drug screen, this includes any household member required to submit to drug screen as part of the evaluation.
- b. Disqualify prospective caregivers with positive drug screens for any illegal drug or misuse or abuse of legal drugs.
- c. If the drug screen is positive for legal drug (medication), the healthcare provider must provide a statement indicating:
 - i. The healthcare provider has prescribed medication to the prospective caregiver that would result in a positive screen for the substance indicated on the drug screen results; and
 - ii. The levels indicated on the drug screen result is in accordance with administering the medication as prescribed.

4. Document all activities in Georgia SHINES within 72 hours of occurrence, including the discussion with the caregiver or their household member regarding the need for the drug screen, his/her decision, and the results of each drug screen. Upload a copy of the drug screen results and any other relevant forms (referral, ROI, etc.) into Georgia SHINES External Documentation.

Practice Guidance

Drug Screens

Drug screening refers to the use of various biologic sources, such as urine, saliva, sweat, hair, breath, blood, and meconium to determine the presence of specific substances or their metabolites in an individual's system. Timing is a crucial factor in drug and alcohol screening. The amount of time a drug remains in the body is dependent on a variety of factors including the amount of drug taken and the metabolism of the individual. A negative drug screen result does not always mean there are no drugs present in the person being tested, it means there are not drugs present in the sample tested above the cut off limit. There is no form of screening that can absolutely guarantee that an individual is not using drugs. A provider or facility's drug screening procedures should differentiate between legitimate therapeutic drug use and illegal drug use or misuse. The screens should rule out legal medications that individuals use for legitimate medical reasons before declaring a drug screen result to be positive. A Medical Review Officer (a licensed physician who reviews and interprets lab results) can assist with interpreting the results.^[25] For a list of commonly abused drugs and their effects see Forms and Tools: Commonly Abused Drugs & Their Effects.

Covered entities [under federal disability rights laws] are not prohibited from drug testing designed to ensure that a person who formerly engaged in the illegal use of drugs is no longer currently engaged in the illegal use of drugs. In other words, federal disability rights laws do not prohibit a covered entity from conducting drug testing.^[26]

Using Drugs Screens in Case Assessment and Case Planning

Social Services Case Managers have the opportunity to collect relevant information about family functioning, make informed decisions, and take timely and appropriate action to safeguard children, when a caregiver is unable to do so. Drug and alcohol use may impair a parent/guardian/legal custodian's judgment and therefore interfere with their ability to provide proper care and control of their child. Drug screens should not be approached with a focus on trying to "catch" a parent/guardian/legal custodian using drugs or alcohol. Rather, it should be used as part of the comprehensive assessment process to help the parent/guardian/legal custodian identify whether he/she is developing or has an alcohol or substance use problem, and whether they need treatment or how are progressing in treatment. This approach will encourage parents/caregivers to be honest about their substance or alcohol use including lapses or relapses in their recovery and seek assistance. Further, the use of the drug screen may help staff to identify the condition(s) that may be impacting the caregiver's parental functioning. However, drug screens alone do not provide sufficient information for making decisions about the disposition of a case (i.e. substantiating allegations of child abuse or neglect, child removal, family reunification or termination of parental rights).

When determining whether a child is in present or impending danger due to the parent's/guardian's/legal custodian's substance abuse it is important to use a combination of screening and assessment processes that include a family functioning assessment, collaboration with substance abuse treatment providers and medical professionals, clinical instruments, random drug screens, self-reports, and observations of behavioral indicators^[27] (see policy 19.26 Case Management: Case Management Involving Substance Abuse or Use).

Appropriate Uses for Drug and Alcohol Screens^[28] include:

1. As one component of a case assessment when there are indicators that substance and alcohol use is a contributing factor to maltreatment;
2. To assist a parent/guardian/legal custodian in their readiness for treatment interventions;
3. When substance and alcohol use is a contributing factor in maltreatment and the parent is not participating in a substance abuse treatment program;
4. To provide positive reinforcement and to monitor parents, particularly in early recovery.

Obtaining Drug Screens for Parents/Caregivers in Treatment

When a parent/guardian/legal custodian is actively participating in a substance or alcohol treatment program and in compliance with their treatment plan that includes random drug screening, the SSCM should coordinate with the substance or alcohol treatment provider to obtain the drug screen results.

Lapse vs. Relapse

There is a difference between having one slip and having a relapse.^[29] A lapse represents a temporary slip or return to a previous behavior that one is trying to control or quit (usually a onetime occurrence). A relapse represents a full-blown return to a pattern of behavior that one has been trying to moderate or quit altogether. The SSCM should assess the positive drug screen along with other indicators (such as a change in behavior or appearance, missed appointments, failure to through, etc.) to determine the potential impact on the child's safety (see policy 19.26 Case Management: Case Management Involving Substance Abuse or Use).

Full Disclosure / Informed Consent

The SSCM has the responsibility to disclose all significant information^[30] about drug screens to parents/caregivers including the implications of completing drug screens such as the drug screen may be presented as evidence if legal action is necessary. Also, the SSCM should explain the benefits of completing drug screens such as to assist with evaluating their physical, psychological and social well-being and evaluating progress in substance abuse treatment and recovery. When requesting a drug screen, avoid using statements that can be perceived as coercive or punitive. Statements to avoid include: "If you don't agree to testing, I'll have no choice but to remove your children", or "I'll limit your visitation with your children".

Unless drug screens are mandated by court order or other legal requirements, individuals have the right to choose whether to participate in the drug screens. Three conditions must be met before a decision can be considered fully informed:

1. Capacity: The individual can make rational decisions.
2. Comprehension: Information must be provided in a way that the individual understands, including language and words the individual understands. The individual should be asked to repeat her/his understanding of the information, so it is assured things were fully understood and fill in whatever gaps exist.
3. Voluntariness: Implies that the individual is free to make this choice and is acting without any coercion.

Urine Toxicology Detection Periods for Different Substances

Most substances of abuse can be detected for approximately 2 to 4 days, the higher the dose taken and the more frequently the substance has been used over an extended time, the more likely that it will be detected.^[32] Although substances are excreted at various rates, they accumulate in the body with continued use. Whereas a single use of cocaine may be detectable in urine for only a day or less, continued daily use is likely to be detectable for 2 to 3 days following its discontinuation. Chronic use of such drugs as marijuana, PCP, and benzodiazepines may be detectable for up to 30 days, whereas alcohol remains in the system for 24 hours or less. Realistically, it may be difficult to detect illicit substances in most clients who stop all use for several days before a drug screen. An accurate profile of a client's substance use over more than a few days requires both urine test results and a good retrospective history.

Substance	Typical Urine Detection Period
Amphetamine or methamphetamine	2–4 days
Barbiturates
Short-acting—Secobarbital	1–2 days
Long-acting—Pentobarbital	2–4 days
Phenobarbital	10–20 days
Benzodiazepines
Therapeutic dose	3–7 days
Chronic dosing	Up to 30 days
Cocaine	1–3 days
Cannabinoids/THC
Casual use	1–3 days
Daily use	5–10 days
Chronic use	Up to 30 days
Ethanol (alcohol)	12–24 hours
Opioids (e.g., codeine, morphine)	1–3 days
Methadone	2–4 days
Propoxyphene	6–48 hours

Requirements

The Division of Family and Children Services (DFCS) will:

1. Assess whether parent/guardian/legal custodians' and other adult household members' substance or alcohol use impacts family functioning and child safety throughout the life of DFCS involvement with a family (see policy 19.13 Case Management: Family Functioning Assessment).
 - a. Screen all parent/guardian/legal custodian(s) and other household members when substance and/or alcohol use is alleged, suspected or confirmed to adversely impact family functioning (see Practice Guidance: CAGE Questionnaire).
 - b. Conduct drug screens to assess and monitor substance use.
 - c. Refer the parent/guardian/legal custodian(s) and other adult household members for a substance use disorder assessment when substance or alcohol use is suspected or confirmed.
 - d. Engage collateral contacts to assess the impact of substance and alcohol use on the parent/guardian/legal custodian(s) protective capacities and child safety and monitor participation in the recovery supported services.
2. Seek guidance from the DFCS Child Welfare Regional ADA Coordinator when needed, to determine whether parent(s), guardian(s), or legal custodian(s) with a history of alcohol and/or substance use disorders may qualify as individuals with a disability under the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) and other federal and state laws. The DFCS Statewide ADA Coordinator is also available as needed.

Refer to the following policies for further information: MAN3600: ROOT:ada-section-504.pdf; MAN3700: ROOT:civil-rights.pdf; 1.4 Administration: Non-Discriminatory Child Welfare Practices; 1.5 Administration: Americans with Disabilities Act \(ADA\)/Section 504 and Reasonable Modifications. Refer also to Practice Guidance: Considerations for Substance Abuse and Specific Populations: ADA and Substance Use Disorders.

3. Assess and address the health and substance use disorder needs of infants, parent/guardian/legal custodian(s) and family members when prenatal abuse has been alleged or confirmed to develop a plan of safe care:
 - a. Conduct a purposeful contact with the mother and infant at the hospital (if the infant has not been discharged) or at the family's home (if the infant has been discharged) in conjunction with the timeframe assigned for the Initial Safety Assessment (see policy 4.2 Initial Safety Assessment: Conducting the Initial Safety Assessment and 4.3 Initial Safety Assessment: Purposeful Contacts During the Initial Safety Assessment).

 - g. Develop a Plan of Safe Care to address the health and substance use disorder needs of the infant and affected family or parent/guardian/legal custodian in accordance with policy 19.27 Case Management: Plan of Safe Care for Infants Prenatally Exposed to Substances or a Fetal Alcohol Spectrum Disorder \(FASD\).
4. Work collaboratively with providers to support the parent/guardian/legal custodian(s) in accessing clinical treatment and supportive services based on the recommendations from the substance and/or alcohol use assessment. Coordinate and maintain regular contact with providers to ensure timely access to services and a continuum of services.
 5. Refer and coordinate services with family treatment courts (see policy 19.24 Case Management: Family Treatment Court) or dependency drug courts, as applicable to the standards of the jurisdiction.
 6. Develop a relapse plan collaboratively with the family, substance and/or alcohol use providers, medical providers, and other providers.
 7. Seek court intervention when there is parent/guardian/legal custodian substance or alcohol use, and child safety cannot be assured.
 8. Review court orders to determine if there are specified case plan requirements related to the parent/guardian/legal custodian's substance use.

If a child is adjudicated as a dependent child and the dependency is found by the court to have been the result of substance abuse by his or her parent, guardian, or legal custodian and the court orders transfer of temporary legal custody of such child, the court shall be authorized to further order that legal custody of such child may not be transferred back to his or her parent, guardian, or legal custodian unless such parent, guardian, or legal custodian undergoes substance abuse treatment and random substance abuse screenings and those screenings remain negative for a period of no less than 12 consecutive months; or, successfully completes programming through a family treatment court division (see policy 19.24 Case Management: Family Treatment Court and 17.7 Legal: Dependency Resulting from Substance Abuse for specific requirements and procedures to follow in such cases).

 - b. The parent/guardian/legal custodian completes a substance abuse assessment and treatment recommendation(s) to mitigate any safety concerns identified; and a relapse plan that addresses child safety is in place.
 - c. Document justification of the following if the parent/guardian/legal custodian does not complete recommended substance abuse assessment and/or treatment recommended:

- i. Confirmation from multiple sources (formal and informal) that:
 1. The parent/guardian/legal custodian's substance use does not have an impact on child safety and parent/guardian/legal custodian protective capacities;
 2. The parent/guardian/legal custodian can meet the needs of the child(ren) on an ongoing basis.
 - ii. A relapse plan is in place that address child safety.
 - iii. Juvenile Court intervention is sought when it is determined that the parent/guardian/legal custodian is continuing to abuse substances and cannot ensure the safety of the child(ren);
 - iv. The Social Services Administrator or County Director/Designee has provided approval for case closure.
11. Adhere to confidentiality and HIPAA provisions outlined in policies 2.6 Information Management: Confidentiality/Safeguarding Information and 2.5 Information Management: Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act.  - iii. The development or modification of the relapse plan to ensure the safety of the child should a relapse occur;
 - iv. The lack of progress or failure to participate in treatment;
 - v. Additional supports needed to sustain and support the parent/guardian/legal custodian as he/she continues his/her recovery.
13. When the parent/guardian/legal custodian is not willing to submit to substance and alcohol use assessments and/or comply with treatment recommendations.
 - a. Explore the reasons for him/her not wanting to participate in services including any ambivalence (see Forms and Tools: Motivation Through the Stages of Change and Responding to Parent/Guardian/Legal Custodian Resistance).

- b. Make every effort to build consensus regarding:
 - i. How the parent/guardian/legal custodian's substance use impacts child safety and family functioning;
 - ii. The benefits of treatment and any other recommended services, if applicable.
 - c. Determine the capacity of the parent/guardian/legal custodians and other family members to protect and meet the needs of the children in the home.
 - d. In conjunction with the SSS, make a child safety determination in accordance with policy 19.11 Case Management: Safety Assessment and take the necessary steps to ensure child safety (see policy 19.12 Case Management: Safety Plan & Management), including seeking court intervention, when appropriate (see policy 17.1 Legal: The Juvenile Court Process).
14. During monthly supervisor staffings discuss the parent/guardian/legal custodian's progress on their recovery goals and any changes in family functioning and child safety (see Practice Guidance: Recovery, Recovery Supports, and Cultural Awareness and Competency).
15. Consider case closure when:
- a. The parent/guardian/legal custodian demonstrates:
 - i. He/she can remain substance free evidenced by the successful completion of the substance and alcohol treatment plan and negative drug screens.
 - ii. Psychosocial behaviors associated with the recovery process; and
 - iii. Behaviors that indicate his/her ability to ensure the safety of the children.
 - b. Collaterals confirm that the parent/guardian/legal custodian exhibits protective capacities that can mitigate safety threats to the children.
16. Ensure that prior to case closure the family is connected to services to support recovery and that a viable relapse plan is in place (see Practice Guidance: Transition Planning, Aftercare and Recovery Services).
17. Ensure that prior to closure of any case that involves parent/guardian/legal custodian substance use, and the parent/guardian/legal custodian(s) does not complete a recommended substance use disorder assessment and/or the treatment (see Practice Guidance: Closing a Case When SUD Treatment Recommendations Are Not Followed).
- a. Thoroughly evaluate the family conditions to ensure that the parent/guardian/legal custodian is able to adequately meet his/her child(ren)'s basic needs.
 - b. Discuss the following with the substance abuse assessor and/or substance abuse treatment provider:
 - i. Individual areas of the assessment recommendations or treatment that the parent/guardian/legal custodian did not successfully complete;
 - ii. Results of any recent drug screens, if applicable;
 - iii. What impact not completing the assessment or treatment recommendations have on the parent/guardian/legal custodian's protective capacities and his/her ability to provide for the safety and well-being needs for the child(ren);

- iv. The potential for relapse; and whether a relapse plan was developed;
 - v. Any other specific concerns related to the parent/guardian/legal custodian and their ability to care for his/her child(ren).
- c. Contact professional and personal collaterals to gather information related to the parent/guardian/legal custodian's ability to provide adequate care and protection for the child(ren). Confirm any behavioral or psychological changes observed.
 - d. Interview the child(ren) (as age and developmentally appropriate) and other household members to discuss the parent/guardian/legal custodian's behavior when in the home;
 - e. Observe the interactions between the parent/guardian/legal custodian and the child(ren) and other household members, and observe home conditions to evaluate indication of ongoing substance use/abuse;
 - f. Discuss and evaluate the relapse plan with the parent/guardian/legal custodian and his/her support system that is identified in the plan to confirm willingness to participate and the viability of the relapse plan.
 - g. Determine if the children are safe in accordance with policy 19.11 Case Management: Safety Assessment.
 - h. Staff with the SSS to discuss next steps based on the assessment of the parent/guardian/legal custodian in accordance with policy 19.6 Case Management: Supervisor Staffing.
 - i. Staff with the SSA/CD if the SSS and SSCM determine that case can be closed based on resolution of all safety concerns. Document the results of the staffing in Georgia SHINES to include:
 - i. The basis for determination that all safety issues have been addressed including justification of the decision to close the case without the parent/guardian/legal custodian completion of the substance abuse assessment or treatment recommendations in Georgia SHINES.
 - ii. The SSA/CD approval of the decision to close the case.
 - iii. Actions needed if the case cannot be closed due to child safety concerns.
 - j. Complete a Legal Action Request as necessary to obtain Juvenile Court assistance and oversight, if the information obtained from collateral contacts, interviews and observations of family members indicate that substance use/abuse issues still exist, and the parent/guardian/legal custodian is unwilling to cooperate with substance abuse assessment/treatment.
18. Document all activities in Georgia SHINES within 72 hours of occurrence including:
- a. Any observed or reported behavioral changes that indicate enhanced parent/guardian/legal custodian protective capacities and family functioning, or lack thereof;
 - b. The parent/guardian/legal custodian's protective capacities related to their recovery goals and family functioning;
 - c. Upload to External Documentation, signed ROIs, referral forms, substance use disorder assessment, treatment reports, Plans of Safe Care, etc.

Social Services Supervisor

1. Analyze and discuss with the SSCM the assessment of family functioning to determine how to proceed. This includes review the assessment to ensure that it is consistent with the discussions with the SSCM. Provide guidance regarding the assessment findings and strategies the SSCM can use to motivate the parent/guardian/legal custodian to participate in treatment.

2. Discuss recommendations by the parent/guardian/legal custodian, SSCM, substance use treatment provider, and applicable medical provider, to reassess or modify the treatment plan.
3. Ensure that the health and substance use disorder needs of infants, parent/guardian/legal custodian(s) and family are assessed and addressed in the Plan of Safe Care when prenatal abuse is identified.
4. Discuss during the monthly staffing case progress, barriers to progress, case management tasks and progress, collaborative service delivery, and client response to targeted interventions (see policy 19.6 Case Management: Supervisor Staffing). Review Georgia SHINES case documentation and External Documentation to evaluate progress.
5. Discuss strategies to motivate parent/guardian/legal custodian(s) who are resistant to complete a substance use assessment or participate in treatment.
6. Provide guidance when intervention by Juvenile Court is needed to assure child safety.
7. Ensure that prior to case closure the following occurs:
 - a. A comprehensive staffing with the SSCM.
 - b. The case record documentation indicates that the parent/guardian/legal custodian has made behavioral changes that support child safety.
 - c. The parent/guardian/legal custodian has completed the recommendations of the substance use assessment.
 - d. Approval for case closure from the SSA or County Director/Designee when the parent/guardian/legal custodian did not complete a substance use disorder assessment or the treatment.
8. Review and ensure all documentation completed and assessments/reports received from providers, ROIs, referral forms and plans of safe care are uploaded to External Documentation in Georgia SHINES within 72 hours of receipt.

Practice Guidance

Substance Use Disorders

Substance use disorders (SUDs)^[35] affect the family unit and all individual members. Parent/guardian/legal custodian substance use increases the likelihood that a family will experience^[36] financial problems, shifting of adult roles onto children, child abuse and neglect, inconsistent parenting, violence and disrupted environments. Children of parents with SUDs have a significantly higher likelihood of developing substance use problems themselves. The Diagnostic and Statistical Manual of Mental Disorders, Fifth Edition (DSM-5), defines SUD as mild, moderate, or severe to indicate the level of severity, determined by the number of diagnostic criteria met by an individual. SUD occur when the recurrent use of alcohol and/or drugs causes clinically and functionally significant impairment, such as health problems, disability, and failure to meet major responsibilities at work, school, or home. A diagnosis of SUD is based on evidence of impaired control, social impairment, risky use, and pharmacological criteria. SUD can be applied to nine classes of drugs^[37]: tobacco, cannabis, inhalant, stimulants, opioids, alcohol, hallucinogens, sedatives, (including hypnotics, and anxiolytics), and other/unknown substances.

Trauma and SUDs

Trauma is a common experience for adults and children and is especially common in the lives of people with mental and SUDs.^[38] The Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration (SAMHSA) describes individual trauma as resulting from "an event, series of events, or set of circumstances that is experienced by an individual as physically or emotionally harmful or life threatening and that has lasting adverse effects on the individual's functioning and mental, physical, social, emotional, or spiritual well-being." For this reason, the need to address trauma is an increasingly important part of the healing and recovery process for individuals with SUD. Seeking substance abuse treatment programs that are sensitive and responsive to the needs of trauma survivors and offer trauma-specific intervention is critical.

Cultural Awareness and Competency

Cultural competence describes the ability of an individual or organization to interact effectively with people of different cultures.^[39] This means drawing on community-based values, traditions, and customs, and working with knowledgeable people from the community to plan and, implement services and activities. Individuals, families, and communities that have experienced social and economic disadvantages are more likely to face greater obstacles to overall health. Supporting recovery involves working with the individual to be responsive and respectful to the health beliefs, practices, and cultural and linguistic needs of diverse people and actively address diversity in the delivery of services.

Substance Use Screening and Assessment

1. CAGE Questionnaire: Best practice dictates asking parents/guardians/legal custodian(s) about their substance use to screen for alcohol or other substance abuse. The screening can indicate whether a full SUD assessment/evaluation is necessary. Screens should be brief and include questions about unintended use and/or desire to end use, as well as regarding consequences of use or concerns about consequences. One well-known screening tool is the four-questions:

C – Have you ever felt the need to cut down on your drinking or drug use?

A – Have you ever felt annoyed by people criticizing your drinking or drug use?

G – Have you ever felt bad or guilty about your drinking or drug use?

E – Have you ever had a drink or used a drug first thing in the morning to steady your nerves or get rid of a hangover (eye-opener)?

Scoring: If the answer is "yes" to one or more questions, the parent/guardian/legal custodian should receive a formal SUD assessment.

"Yes" to one or two questions may indicate alcohol and drug-related problems.

"Yes" to three or four questions may indicate alcohol and drug dependence.

This is a quick screening tool that should be used in conjunction with other information and observations. Answering "no" to all questions does not rule out the possibility of an alcohol or drug-related problem.

2. Helpful Questions when Assessing for Substance or Alcohol Use:

- a. What is the type of substance used, addicted to or abused?

- b. Is the drug prescribed or non-prescribed?
 - c. Did the parent/guardian/legal custodian use/abuse the substances during pregnancy;
 - d. What drugs were administered to the mother during labor and delivery if the case involves an infant alleged to have been prenatally exposed to substance abuse?
 - e. If prescribed, was the level within normal limits of prescribed use?
 - f. What was the level of the substance in the parent/guardian/legal custodian's and/or child's blood or urine? (Review medical reports/test results, if applicable.)
 - g. Are there any withdrawal symptoms an infant may be experiencing related to prenatal drug exposure or a diagnosis of a FASD?
 - h. Describe any facial abnormalities, growth deficiencies, skeletal deformities, organ deformities, or central nervous system handicaps that may accompany a diagnosis of a FASD.
 - i. What is the frequency of use?
 - j. What is the location(s) of the parent/guardian/legal custodian during substance use/abuse?
 - k. Are there drugs (legal or illegal) in the home? If so, where are they located?
 - l. How does the parent/guardian/legal custodian's use, or addiction impact his/her ability to protect a child and to ensure the safety, permanency and well-being needs of a child are being met?
 - m. What is the parent/guardian/legal custodian's level of functioning when using substances?
 - n. Has the parent/guardian/legal custodian ever experienced black outs?
 - o. What is the parent/guardian/legal custodian's plan to address the substance use/abuse/addiction, including plans to ensure the child's safety, permanency and well-being?
 - p. Does the parent/guardian/legal custodian make impulsive decisions that place the children in unsafe situations due to substance use, abuse or addiction?
 - q. Is the parent/guardian/legal custodian currently intoxicated and unable to perform basic parent/guardian/legal custodian duties?
 - r. Do the children have access to the drugs?
 - s. Are the children aware of the substance use/abuse, and if so, are they impacted by the substance use, abuse or addiction?
 - t. Were the children present when/where the parent/guardian/legal custodian was using the substances?
 - u. How well are the children supervised? Are they left alone for extended periods of time?
 - v. Are there any medical or mental health diagnoses for the caretaker that may be impacted by the substance abuse, use, or addiction?
 - w. Is there a relapse plan in place?
3. Observe Behavioral and Environmental Indicators of Substance Abuse: Observing and documenting behavioral and environmental indicators (red flags, warning signs) of substance use as part of the assessment of family functioning and child safety is important in all child welfare program areas. These indicators provide critical information that can support case assessment and findings, as well as consensus building with parent/guardian/legal custodian(s) regarding the need for or continuation treatment or other services. The indicators include, but is not limited to (also refer to Forms and Tools: The Effects of Substance of Abuse on Behavior and Parenting):

- a. Slurred speech, dilated pupils, glassy or red eyes, weight loss;
- b. Shaking/tremors, deterioration of general physical health or appearance (e.g., significant weight loss, lack of concern for physical hygiene), impaired motor coordination;
- c. Changes in behavior, secretive behavior, inconsistent or erratic behavior (e.g., missed appointments, missed work), unusual behavior (e.g., restlessness, aggressiveness);
- d. Changes in sleep patterns, sleeplessness;
- e. A significant loss of interest in daily living responsibilities, demonstrated by significant changes in the condition of the home or condition of the child e.g., cleanliness, organization);
- f. Problems with relationships, becoming distant from loved ones;
- g. Unexplained or sudden financial problems;
- h. Unusual smells, such as alcohol or marijuana;
- i. Unusual marks on the arms, legs, or lips such as skin lesions or bruises from needle injections;
- j. Drug paraphernalia observed in the home.

4. Documenting Behavioral and Environmental Indicators of Substance Abuse: The SSCM should clearly document the specific indicators observed and how the indicators demonstrate the parent/guardian/legal custodian's ability to protect his/her child(ren). The SSCM should also make every effort to get other corroborating evidence of substance use, including, but are not limited to:

- a. Statements from collaterals who believe that alcohol and/or other substance use or abuse is present in the home (preferably mandated reporters when possible);
- b. Statements from the child(ren);
- c. Observations made by family members; or
- d. Police reports documenting arrests or calls to a home.

5. Assessing Neonatal Abstinence Syndrome^[40]: Neonatal abstinence syndrome (NAS), formerly known as "withdrawal symptoms, may occur when a pregnant woman takes drugs such as heroin, codeine, oxycodone (OxyContin), methadone or buprenorphine. Because the baby is no longer getting the drug after birth, the withdrawal may occur as the drug is slowly cleared from the baby's system. Symptoms may appear within a few hours of birth to 14 days after birth, and depend on the type of substance used, length of time used, etc. Symptoms generally include blotchy skin coloring (mottling), diarrhea, excessive crying or high-pitched crying, excessive sucking, fever, hyperactive reflexes, increased muscle tone, irritability, poor feeding, rapid breathing, seizures, sleep problems, slow weight gain, stuffy nose, sneezing, sweating, trembling (tremors), vomiting.

6. Drug Screens: See policy 19.25 Case Management: Drug Screens

7. SUD Assessment^[41]: The assessment defines the nature of the SUD, determine a diagnosis, and develop specific treatment recommendations. SUD assessments may be administered by a physician or clinician. Essentially, it involves a series of questions which help identify warning signs of substance abuse, frequency of use (i.e., daily, monthly, or yearly) or duration of use (i.e. how long abuse may have occurred). It may also involve an exploration of person's personal history of substance abuse, health history, family history of substance abuse, age, and mental health disorders.

8. Assessing Levels of Drinking:

- a. Moderate Drinking: According to the Dietary Guidelines for Americans, moderate drinking is up to 1 drink per day for women and up to 2 drinks per day for men.
- b. Binge Drinking: SAMHSA defines binge drinking as drinking 5 or more alcoholic drinks on the same occasion on at least 1 day in the past 30 days. The National Institute on Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism (NIAAA) defines binge drinking as a pattern of drinking that produces blood alcohol concentrations (BAC) of greater than 0.08 g/dL. This usually occurs after 4 drinks for women and 5 drinks for men over a 2-hour period.
- c. Heavy Drinking: SAMHSA defines heavy drinking as drinking 5 or more drinks on the same occasion on each of 5 or more days in the past 30 days.

Recovery

SAMHSA's working definition of recovery is a process of change through which individuals improve their health and wellness, live self-directed lives, and strive to reach their full potential. Recovery is built on access to evidence-based clinical treatment and recovery support services for all populations. The following major dimensions support a life in recovery:

1. Health: overcoming or managing one's disease(s) or symptoms, such as abstaining from use of alcohol, illicit drugs, and non-prescribed medications (if an addiction) and, for everyone in recovery, making informed, healthy choices that support physical and emotional well-being.
2. Home: having a stable and safe place to live.
3. Purpose: conducting meaningful daily activities, i.e., a job, school volunteerism, family caretaking, creative endeavors, and the independence, income, and resources to participate in society.
4. Community: having relationships and social networks that provide support, friendship, love, and hope.

Other factors that impact recovery are:

1. Hope: the belief that these challenges and conditions can be overcome is the foundation of recovery. A person's recovery is built on his or her strengths, talents, coping abilities, resources, and inherent values. The SSCM can encourage recovery by through services addresses the whole person, including community, peers, friends, and family members.
2. Resilience: an individual's ability to cope with adversity and adapt to challenges or change. Resilience develops over time and gives an individual the capacity not only to cope with life's challenges but also to be better prepared for the next stressful situation. The process of recovery is highly personal and occurs via many pathways including clinical treatment, medications, faith-based approaches, peer support, family support, self-care, and other approaches. Recovery is characterized by continual growth and improvement in one's health and wellness that may involve setbacks. Because setbacks are a natural part of life, resilience becomes a key compo-ment of recovery.

Recovery Supports

Recovery support is provided through treatment, services, and community-based programs by behavioral health care providers, peer providers, family members, friends and social networks, the faith community, and people with experience in recovery. Recovery support services help people enter and navigate systems of care, remove barriers to recovery, stay engaged in the recovery process, and live full lives in communities of their choice. Recovery support services also include access to evidence-based practices such as supported employment, education, and housing; assertive community treatment; illness management; and peer-operated services. Recovery support services may be provided before, during, or after clinical treatment or may be provided to individuals who are not in treatment but seek support services.

Detoxification

The process by which the body clears itself of drugs, is designed to manage the acute and potentially dangerous physiological effects of stopping drug use. Detoxification alone does not address the psychological, social, and behavioral problems associated with addiction and therefore does not typically produce lasting behavioral changes necessary for recovery.

Substance Use Treatment Services

1. Outpatient Treatment programs vary in the types and intensity of services offered.^[42] Such treatment is more suitable for people with jobs or extensive social supports. Other outpatient models, such as intensive day treatment, can be comparable to residential programs in services and effectiveness, depending on the individual patient's characteristics and needs. Some outpatient programs are also designed to treat patients with medical or other mental health problems in addition to their drug disorders. The levels of outpatient treatment are as follows:
 - a. Early Intervention Services: A precursor to treatment. They are designed for adults or adolescents who are at risk of developing a SUD but do not display any diagnostic criteria to be admitted to rehabilitation. During early intervention, treatment focuses on the risk factors that predispose the person to addiction and educates them about the negative repercussions of drug misuse.
 - b. Level I: Requires attendance to regularly scheduled meetings and allows individuals to carry on with their routine while receiving face-to-face services with addiction or mental health professionals. It is ideal for people who have jobs or a strong support system at home. Level I care includes evaluation, treatment and recovery follow-up services. It addresses the severity of the individual's addiction, helps implement behavioral changes and ameliorates mental functioning.
 - c. Level II.1: Intensive outpatient treatment can accommodate medical, psychiatric and psychopharmacological consultation, medication management and 24-hour crisis services. The program provides support services such as counseling and education on mental health, substance use, childcare, vocational training and transportation.
 - d. Level II.2: Partial hospitalization is like Level II.1 however psychiatric and medical services are provided directly along with laboratory services.
2. Residential Treatment (Level III and IV): Level III provides intensive 24 hours a day, generally in non-hospital settings. Treatment is highly structured with activities designed to help residents examine damaging beliefs, self-concepts, and destructive patterns of behavior and adopt new, more harmonious and constructive ways to interact with others. Level IV offers 24-hour medically directed evaluation, care and treatment, including daily meetings with a physician. The facilities are usually equipped with the resources of general acute care or psychiatric hospitals and offer substance abuse treatment that addresses co-occurring disorders. Treatment focuses on stabilization and preparation for transfer to a less robust level of care for continued monitoring.

3. Individualized Drug Counseling focuses on reducing or stopping illicit drug or alcohol use and addressing related areas of impaired functioning, such as employment status, illegal activity, and family/social relations, as well as the content and structure of the patient’s recovery program. Through its emphasis on short-term behavioral goals, individualized counseling helps the individual develop coping strategies and tools to abstain from drug use and maintain abstinence.
4. Group Counseling capitalizes on the social reinforcement offered by peer discussion to help promote drug-free lifestyles. When group therapy either is provided with individualized counseling or is formatted to reflect the principles of cognitive-behavioral therapy or contingency management, positive outcomes are achieved.
5. Treating Criminal Justice-Involved Drug Users and Addicted Individuals: Individuals who abuse drugs are under legal mandate to stay in participate in intervention and treatment prior to, during, after, or in lieu of incarceration.
6. Family Treatment Court Common Characteristics: From Family Dependency Treatment Court: Addressing Child Abuse and Neglect Cases Using the Drug Court Model
 - a. Focus on the permanency, safety, and wellbeing of children and the needs of the parents.
 - b. Provide early intervention, assessment, and facilitated access to services for parents and children in a holistic approach.
 - c. Develop comprehensive case plans that address the needs of the entire family system.
 - d. Provide enhanced case management services and monitor progress.
 - e. Schedule regular meetings to facilitate the exchange of information and coordinate services for the family.
 - f. Increase judicial supervision of children and families.
 - g. Promote individual and systems accountability.
 - h. Ensure legal rights, advocacy, and confidentiality for parents and children.
7. Self-Help, Peer Support, and Consumer Groups: See Forms and Tools
8. Medication Assisted Treatment (MAT): MAT is the use of medications to treat alcohol or opioid dependence, in combination with counseling and behavioral therapies, to provide a “whole-patient” approach to the treatment of SUDs.^[43] In the treatment of addiction to opioids such as heroin and prescription pain relievers that contain opiates, the prescribed MAT medication operates to normalize brain chemistry, block the euphoric effects of alcohol and opioids, relieve physiological cravings, and normalize body functions without the negative and euphoric effects of the substance used.^[43] (See below for information on ADA and Substance Use Disorders).

Commonly Used Medications for MAT^[44]

Medications for Alcohol Dependence	Medications for Opioid Dependence
1. Naltrexone: (ReVia®, Vivitrol®, Depade®)	1. Methadone: Methadose®, Dolophine®
2. Disulfiram: (Antabuse®)	2. Buprenorphine: (Subutex®)
3. Acamprosate: (Campral®)	3. Buprenorphine/naloxone: (Suboxone®)
	4. Naltrexone: (ReVia®, Vivitrol®, Depade®)

Talking to Children about Parental Substance Use

The SSCM’s role may include talking with a child about his or her parent’s substance use. The discussion will depend on the individual circumstances and when appropriate will include:

1. That addiction is a disease. Your parent is not a bad person; he or she has a disease. Parents may do things that are mean or stupid when they drink too much or use drugs.
2. You are not the reason your parent drinks or uses drugs; you did not cause this disease and you cannot stop it.
3. You are not alone. In fact, there are millions of kids whose parents are addicted to substances; some are in your school.
4. You can talk about the problem. You don’t have to feel scared or ashamed or embarrassed. Find someone you can trust. Most towns have groups of kids that meet and talk, such as “Alateen.” A counselor, teacher, foster parent or other adult you trust may be able to help you find one of these groups. (The child welfare worker can provide support as well.)
5. Use the 7Cs^[45] of addiction developed by the National Association for Children of Alcoholics to help children understand that addiction is not their fault.
 - a. I didn’t Cause it
 - b. I can’t Cure it
 - c. I can’t Control it
 - d. I can Care for myself
 - e. By Communicating my feelings
 - f. Making healthy Choices
 - g. By Celebrating myself

Enhancing Motivation of Parents/Guardians/Legal Custodians

Motivation to change and motivational interventions go hand-in-hand with readiness to change and the change process.^[46] During the process of recovery, it is helpful for parent/guardian/legal custodian(s) with substance and alcohol use to know that relapse is part of the process and is not viewed as treatment failure. The SSCM, substance abuse counselor, and significant persons in the life of a substance-abusing parent can promote and support motivation to change (see Forms and Tools: Motivation Through the Stages of Change).

Considerations for Substance Abuse and Specific Populations

1. Co-Occurring Disorders (COD)^[37]: People with CODs have at least one diagnosable mental illness along with one or more SUD (SAMHSA/CSAT, 2013; TNCODC, 2013). They typically have more episodes of relapse, inpatient hospital visits, emergency room visits, and higher rates of chronic diseases. People with a mental health issue are more likely to experience SUD than those without a mental illness. People with COD are best served when screening, assessment, and treatment planning are integrated, i.e., both substance use and mental health disorders, each in the context of the other, are addressed. It is important to:

- a. Show acceptance and understanding.
 - b. Assist him/her in clarifying the nature of the problem.
 - c. Indicate to him/her that they will be working collaboratively with him/her, the family, the medical providers, and substance treatment providers.
 - d. Demonstrate empathy and willingness to listen to how him/her defines the problem.
 - e. When necessary, help to solve some external problems immediately and directly.
 - f. Genuinely foster hope for positive change (SAMHSA/CSAT, 2013b).
2. Men: Men have unique needs that impact their engagement in SUD treatment and the child welfare system. Men tend to use alcohol and drugs more frequently and in greater quantities than women. It is important that treatment takes into special consideration the unique treatment needs of men and understanding of male psychological development and trauma. Substance abuse treatment programs for men should be both gender-responsive and trauma-informed. To reduce resistance to entering treatment^[47]:
- a. Establish rapport and trust from the start.
 - b. Initially discuss neutral subjects (i.e., hobbies, work) to reduce feelings of anxiety with the help-seeking process.
 - c. Understand as much as possible what circumstances prompted help-seeking.
 - d. Creatively engage in a discussion of his life and situation.
 - e. Acknowledge common fears related to relationships, health, abandonment, career, and financial issues.
 - f. End each interaction with a clear plan of what will happen next.
 - g. Discuss any concerns related to their privacy.
3. Women: Women may respond to substances differently, e.g., they may have more drug cravings and are more likely to relapse after treatment. Women who are victims of domestic violence are at increased risk of substance use. Women with SUDs are more likely to have partners that have a SUD. Getting or retaining women in treatment is often arduous because women are usually the primary caregiver for their children and/or other family members, they are fearful they will lose their partner or custody of their children and/or be perceived as a bad parent. Cultural issues may also interfere in a woman's help-seeking behavior. It is important to explore cultural issues to gain an understanding and work within the context of the individual and family to engage them in services. Services that need to be available for women include: medical services, health promotion, psychoeducation, gender-specific needs, cultural/language needs, life skills, family/child-related services, comprehensive case management, mental health services, disability services, and staff/program development (SAMHSA, 2013).
4. Pregnant Women and Post-Partum^[36]: Substance use during pregnancy can result in health concerns and risks for the woman, unborn fetus and newborn. Pregnant women with SUDs have priority admission status for SUD services in Substance Abuse Prevention and Treatment block-grant funded programs. Intervention and treatment considerations for pregnant and post-partum women include:

- a. Developing a plan of safe care for families with infants affected by prenatal exposure
- b. Ask about and listen to her fears
- c. Explore options to access treatment and recovery, including MAT (see Practice Guidance: Additional Considerations for MAT)
- d. Linkage to the appropriate medical services, nutrition and other supports
- e. Screening for intimate partner violence
- f. HIV testing and early intervention/prevention
- g. Mental health screening including pregnancy-related mood and anxiety disorders
- h. Feelings regarding pregnancy, possible grief and loss counseling
- i. Preparation for parenting (or alternatives), concerns with other children/family/ fathers
- j. Addressing economic needs
- k. Supports to address discrimination/ stigma related to pregnancy and substance use.
- l. Screening for post-partum depression

The American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists (ACOG) recommends "agonist pharmacotherapy" or MAT as the gold-standard therapy for pregnant women with opioid use disorders (ACOG, 2017). Abrupt discontinuation of opioid use during pregnancy can result in premature labor, fetal distress, and miscarriage. Additionally, pregnant women who stop using opioids and subsequently relapse are at a greater risk of overdose and death. Because NAS is treatable, MAT is typically recommended by treatment providers over abstinence or withdrawal. To minimize the stigma of infants that are born prenatally exposed, the International Drug Policy Consortium reports that "Newborn babies are NOT born 'addicted' and referring to newborns with NAS as 'addicted' is inaccurate, incorrect, and highly stigmatizing. Using pejorative labels places these children at substantial risk of stigma and discrimination and can lead to inappropriate child welfare interventions. Mischaracterizing MAT as harmful and unethical contradicts the efficacy of MAT and discourages the appropriate and federally recommended treatment for opioid use disorders." MAT has been positively associated with parents regaining custody of their children.^[48]

5. Older Adults/Elderly^[49]: Due to an increase in the number of grandparents caring for their grandchildren, SSCMs may encounter older parent/guardian/legal custodian(s) with substance and/or alcohol use disorders frequently. While the current proportion of older adults with SUDs is low compared with the general population, a growing number of older adults are at risk for hazardous drinking, prescription drug misuse, and illicit substance use and abuse. When assessing older adults about substance use consider:
 - a. A more supportive, nonconfrontational approach than more assertive styles of assessment and intervention.
 - b. Many older adults, and even their families, view alcohol use as being their "one last pleasure," creating a complex picture of substance use in late life.

- c. The identification of problematic substance use with older adults can be difficult because of overlapping symptoms with medical disorders.
 - d. A non-stigmatizing approach along with direct questions about drinking, prescription medication, and illicit drug use.
6. Veterans^[50]: Veterans often encounter challenging experiences during their service and some turn to substance use to cope with those experiences (SAMHSA/CBHSQ, 2015). In addition, many veterans have a co-occurring mental health disorder. Post-traumatic stress disorder (PTSD) and SUD tend to co-occur very frequently in veterans. One of the most prevalent substance use problems for military personnel is alcohol use. Strategies for promoting positive outcomes with veterans should include educating them about their substance(s) of choice and how it affects the body. It may also be necessary to educate the veteran about the impact of substance use on treatment and the ability to achieve treatment goals.
7. ADA and Substance Use Disorders^{[51] [52] [53] [54]}
- a. Individuals with a History of Substance and/or Alcohol Use Disorders: Individuals with a history of alcohol and/or SUDs may qualify as individuals with a disability under the Americans with Disabilities Act and other federal and state laws. Casual substance use is not protected if it does not substantially limit one or more of an individual's "major life activities".
 - b. Rehabilitation: Federal disability rights laws protect individuals who "have successfully completed a supervised drug rehabilitation program and are no longer engaging in the illegal use of drugs," or "have otherwise been rehabilitated successfully and are no longer engaging in such use," or "are participating in a supervised rehabilitation program and are no longer engaging in such use," or "are erroneously regarded as engaging in such use but are not engaging in such use." For example: A father seeking reunification with his children has successfully completed a SUD treatment program, and random screens indicate he is no longer engaged in the illegal use of drugs. The father, under these circumstances, may be protected under federal disability rights law.
 - c. Current Use of Drugs: Current drug use means the illegal use of drugs occurred recently enough to justify a reasonable belief that a person's drug use is current or that continuing use is a real and ongoing problem. Whether someone is currently using drugs illegally is decided on a case-by-case basis. Federal disability rights laws do not protect someone who is currently engaged in the illegal use of drugs when the covered entity acts on the basis of that use. For example: A newborn exhibiting withdrawal symptoms resulting from prenatal exposure to cocaine is removed from his mother based on the mother's recent use of the drug. The mother, under these circumstances, may not be protected under federal disability rights laws because of her use of an illegal drug. The illegal use of drugs means:
 - The use of drugs;
 - The possession or distribution, of which is unlawful under the Controlled Substances Act;
 - The illegal use of drugs may include using a controlled substance which is not prescribed to the individual;
 - Misuse of a controlled substance; or
 - Using a controlled substance obtained by a fraudulent prescription.

- d. MAT and ADA: An individual's receipt of MAT taken under the supervision of a licensed healthcare professional is not the illegal use of drugs. A parent/guardian/legal custodian use of MAT should not be discouraged in assessment and case planning activities unless otherwise recommended by a SUD treatment professional (see the Forms and Tools: Know Your Rights: Rights for Individuals on Medication-Assisted Treatment for the applicable federal laws that prevent discrimination against individuals in recovery using MAT. Information related to child welfare systems can be found on page 12).^[44]

It should not be assumed that a parent receiving MAT poses a threat to a child based on assumptions that the MAT participants are likely to relapse, are unable to care for themselves, or are likely to be associated with crime. Decisions related to child safety should be based on:

1. An individualized assessment of the individual with a disability based on reasonable judgment that relies on current medical knowledge or the best available objective evidence to ascertain the nature, duration, and severity of the risks to the child;
2. The probability that the potential injury to the child will actually occur; and
3. Whether reasonable modifications of policies, practices, or procedures, or the provision of auxiliary aids and services will mitigate the risk.

If an individual receives MAT for an opioid use disorder and is also currently engaged in the illegal use of drugs, the individual is not protected by Section 504, or the ADA, in most circumstances. Also, if the individual misuses their MAT prescription, the illegal use of drugs may have occurred.

Lapse vs. Relapse

There is a major difference between having one slip and having a relapse. A lapse represents a temporary slip or return to a previous behavior that one is trying to control or quit (usually a onetime occurrence), whereas a relapse represents a full-blown return to a pattern of behavior that one has been trying to moderate or quit altogether (Marlatt & Donovan, 2005).

Relapse and Relapse Planning

Within the context of substance abuse, relapse is marked by a subsequent occurrence of drug use following a period of abstinence/sobriety. Relapse is an expected part of the recovery process and occurs in varying degrees ranging from a single instance of drug use to an extended episode of binging. Relapse is most often triggered by physical, emotional and/or psychological cues in the environment (e.g., the smell and/or sight of the drug, a former hangout where the person used drugs, interaction with people with whom the person commonly used drugs, etc.). Signs of relapse include, but are not limited to:

1. Increasing lack of cooperation/avoiding behavior;
2. Deterioration in daily living activities;
3. Unexplained financial hardship;
4. Mood swings;
5. Depression, anger, anxiety, or paranoia;
6. Setting expectations that are too numerous or unrealistic;

7. Distancing from friends who are clean and sober; and
8. Re-establishing old relationships with drug-using acquaintances.

The best predictor of whether a person will recover from an instance of relapse is the correct treatment intervention matched to the person's stage of change (see Forms and Tools: Stages of Change). When there is no progress in other life areas (e.g., improved parent/guardian/legal custodian protective capacities or competency, financial stability, positive relationships, etc.), there is also a lack of necessary motivation to regain control over the addiction. A relapse plan should be in place to address these factors as a part of case management activities. Relapse planning involves the identification and development of a plan of action that the family agrees to follow in the event a relapse occurs, and may include but is not limited to:

1. Outlining who will contact the SSCM
2. Participation in AA or NA
3. Weekly telephone contact with an identified family member or friend
4. A temporary caregiving resource for the children

It is essential to discuss these plans with family members so that roles and responsibilities are clearly defined to ensure the safety of the child should relapse occur. Relapse planning should occur during DFCS involvement and prior to closing the case. Families should be engaged in relapse planning so they may continue to adjust the relapse plan as necessary when DFCS is no longer involved with the family.

Each occurrence of relapse should be evaluated individually, in partnership with the parent/guardian/legal custodian, substance and alcohol treatment providers and medical providers. It may be necessary to request a SUD assessment with a service recommendation. There are also times when it will be necessary to file a dependency complaint in juvenile court or use other safety interventions if the safety of a child cannot be assured in the home. If a child is not at imminent risk and/or safety is controlled through other means, it is important to evaluate the existing evidence of impending danger safety threats to determine whether court-ordered intervention is necessary. If the court is already involved, notification to the court of a relapse or of any significant changes to the case plan resulting from the relapse must occur.

Evaluating Progress Towards Recovery and Case Plan Outcomes

While recovery is a long process, child welfare involvement with a family is time limited, therefore, the SSCM and treatment providers must work collaboratively to provide timely services, while continuously supporting and evaluating parent/guardian/legal custodian progress towards recovery goals.^[55] Some indicators of progress are:

1. Attends and stays engaged in a substance abuse treatment program or aftercare.
2. Participates in community recovery support groups.
3. Achieves a period of abstinence.
4. Has established a pattern of negative results from drug tests.
5. Complies with the safety plan and case plan.
6. Has a relapse plan in place.

7. Is achieving parenting goals and demonstrating behaviors indicative of enhanced protective capacity.
8. Visits their children consistently and displays increased parental responsibility and bonding with children (if applicable).
9. Has changed past substance-abusing behaviors and has developed a network of sober, abstinent family members and friends.
10. Demonstrate financial self-sufficiency, if applicable.
11. Has no new reports of abuse/neglect or criminal activity, if applicable.
12. Takes prescribed psychotropic medications correctly (if applicable).

Transition Planning, Aftercare and Recovery Services

When a parent/guardian/legal custodian has demonstrated progress in meeting treatment objectives, it is important that the SSCM, parent/guardian/legal custodian, and treatment provider examine whether the family is ready for transition. Transition planning involves an assessment of the individual's ongoing recovery plan. It includes defining when and under what circumstances the child may be safely reunited with the parent/guardian/legal custodian. The transition plan for the return of the child parallels the substance abuse treatment provider's plan for continuing care. Continuing care services are essential to sustaining treatment success, child safety and family well-being. They give the family an opportunity to anchor new behaviors and practice drug-free living and relapse prevention techniques. Without aftercare services and community supports, relapse rates can be high, even after periods of long sobriety during treatment. Continuing care includes clinical treatment and community support for both the parent/guardian/legal custodian and the children who have been separated from the parent/guardian/legal custodian. These supports can address individual needs identified in the parent/guardian/legal custodian's relapse prevention plan and treat any issues related to trauma, loss, separation and reunification.^[56] The development and implementation of the prevention plan helps build a supportive net around the parent/guardian/legal custodian and his or her family to encourage sustainable recovery.

Closing a Case When SUD Treatment Recommendations Are Not Followed

When a parent/guardian/legal custodian is non-compliant with a SUD assessment or treatment recommendations during DFCS involvement, there must be a thorough examination of the circumstances surrounding the non-compliance prior to case closure. Substance abuse professionals are ethically bound to inform a client of all treatment options and the nature and extent of the services as well as the client's right to refuse these services. However, DFCS must also ensure that the parent/guardian/legal custodian understands that his or her right to refuse services may have an impact on how DFCS manages their case.

If a parent/guardian/legal custodian does not disclose a problem or is unwilling to change, treatment is unlikely to succeed. However, keep in mind that a parent/guardian/legal custodian's initial unwillingness to cooperate with treatment recommendations may stem from feelings of guilt about the substance abuse and defensiveness about the SUD assessment process itself. It's important not to confuse a parent/guardian/legal custodian's attitude toward intervention as a complete refusal to cooperate with SUD treatment and attempt to re-engage the parent/guardian/legal custodian differently to build a consensus around how his or her substance use, or abuse has an impact on the child. If consensus cannot be achieved with complying with SUD assessment or treatment recomrecommendations, initiate a staffing with the SUD assessor and/or treatment provider to discuss the recommendations that the parent/guardian/legal custodian is unwilling to follow. If any of these recommendations impact child safety, or a parent/guardian/legal custodian's ability to care for or protect the child in any way, then juvenile court intervention must be sought and the DFCS case may not be closed.

In cases where the SUD assessment recommendations are individually related to the parent/guardian/legal custodian and it is demonstrated that there is no impact on child safety, DFCS may consider closing a case. The closure decision can only occur however after a careful and thorough review of the circumstances surrounding the assessor's recommendations and a formal staffing to discuss what has not been followed by the parent/guardian/legal custodian. Additionally, administrative oversight and approval must be completed and documented regarding the decision to close the case without a SUD assessment and treatment recommendations being followed by the parent/guardian/legal custodian.

Situations in which DFCS closes a case without a parent/guardian/legal custodian completing a SUD assessment or treatment recommendations should be extremely rare. In most cases in which treatment recommendations have not been followed Juvenile Court intervention should be sought prior to a recommendation for case closure.

Practice Guidance

Plan of Safe Care

The Child Abuse Prevention and Treatment Act (CAPTA) requires that healthcare providers identify and make referrals to child protective services of infants affected by prenatal drug exposure including Fetal Alcohol Spectrum Disorder (FASD), and that “plans for safe care” be developed for infants, mother and their family members. A Plan of Safe Care is a process that involves a multi-agency partnership with families to develop a written plan for families affected by prenatal exposure to substances and/or alcohol, that:

1. Ensures the safety and well-being of infants following release from the care of healthcare providers;
2. Addresses the health and substance use disorder treatment needs of the infant and affected family or caregiver;
3. Ensures the provision of services to address the identified needs of the infant, family and caregiver;
4. Monitors the plan to ensure services are addressing the identified needs.

The Plan of Safe Care incorporates into one document the plans from various agencies providing services to the family, such as the child welfare assessment, hospital discharge plan, substance use treatment case plan and prenatal care plan to address the medical, behavioral, developmental, social and emotional well-being of the family. Coordinated services to the family ensures timely access to a continuum of care, minimizes barriers to accessing care, improves infant and maternal outcomes, and facilitates identification of the family's overall needs and engagement into the appropriate services.

When is a Plan of Safe Care Required

The Plan of Safe Care is required when a healthcare provider has identified that an infant has been affected by substance abuse; or withdrawal symptoms resulting from prenatal drug exposure; or a Fetal Alcohol Spectrum Disorder. This identification may occur during any stage of DFCS involvement, including at birth, or later during the infant's development and/or as symptoms manifest. DFCS may develop the Plan of Safe Care prior to the birth of an infant, if child welfare is providing services due to other children in the home and the family agrees.

While prenatal exposure may include cases with child maltreatment (prenatal abuse) not all cases requiring a Plan of Safe Care involve maltreatment. Some examples of cases involving prenatal exposure with no allegations of maltreatment are as follows:

1. The infant is prenatally exposed resulting from the mother's use of prescribed medication for an illness. The mother is following her medication and treatment plan, as verified by her healthcare provider.
2. The infant is prenatally exposed resulting from the mother being given prescribed medication during the delivery process.
3. The infant is prenatally exposed due to the mother's participation in a Medication Assisted Treatment (MAT) program for a substance use disorder. The mother is in compliance with her medication and treatment plan, as verified by the substance treatment provider and her healthcare provider.

Prenatal Exposure – Affected

An infant "affected" by prenatal exposure to substance use means:

1. The infant is experiencing symptoms of withdrawal, or exhibiting harmful effects in his/her physical appearance or functioning due to exposure to substances (legal or illegal); or
2. The infant has tested positive for the presence of a substance or a metabolite thereof in his/her body, blood, urine or meconium; or
3. The infant has symptoms of a Fetal Alcohol Spectrum Disorder; or
4. The mother testing positive for illegal substances at the birth of the infant; or
5. The mother testing positive for prescription drugs due to misuse at the birth of the infant; or
6. The mother self-disclosed at the birth of the infant a substance or alcohol use problem and use during pregnancy.

Prenatal Exposure and Infant Development

The full impact of prenatal substance exposure depends on several factors, including: the frequency of use during pregnancy, timing, the type of substances used by pregnant women, co-occurring environmental deficiencies, and the extent of prenatal care (AIA, 2012). The effects of parental substance use disorders on a child can begin before the child is born. Research suggests powerful effects of legal drugs, as well as illegal drugs on prenatal and early childhood development (HHS SAMHSA, 2014). Maternal drug and alcohol use during pregnancy have been associated with premature birth, low birth weight, slowed growth, and a variety of physical, emotional, behavioral, and cognitive problems (AIA, 2012; National Institute on Drug Abuse [NIDA], 2011).

Fetal alcohol spectrum disorders (FASD) are a set of conditions that affect an estimated 40,000 infants born each year to mothers who drank alcohol during pregnancy (Prevention First, n.d.). Children with FASD may experience mild to severe physical, mental, behavioral, and/or learning disabilities, some of which may have lifelong implications (e.g., brain damage, physical defects, attention deficits) (National Organization on Fetal Alcohol Syndrome, 2012). Research suggests that some of the negative outcomes of prenatal exposure can be improved by supportive home environments and positive parenting practices (NIDA, 2011). Symptoms of FASD can include facial abnormalities, growth deficiencies, skeletal deformities, organ deformities, central nervous system handicaps and behavioral problems. These symptoms can have lifelong implications for children who were exposed to alcohol in the womb; however, some FASD children who receive special education and adequate social services are more likely to reach their developmental and educational potential than those who do not receive those services. FASD diagnostic conditions include:

1. Type I: Fetal Alcohol Syndrome with confirmed maternal exposure.
2. Type II: FAS without confirmed maternal exposure.
3. Type III: Alcohol-related birth defects (ARBD)
4. Type IV: Alcohol-related neurodevelopmental disorder (ARND).

Neonatal Abstinence Syndrome

Neonatal abstinence syndrome (NAS)^[57], formerly known as “withdrawal symptoms, may occur when a pregnant woman takes drugs such as heroin, codeine, oxycodone (OxyContin), methadone or buprenorphine. Because the baby is no longer getting the drug after birth, the withdrawal may occur as the drug is slowly cleared from the baby’s system. Symptoms may appear within a few hours of birth to 14 days after birth, and depend on the type of substance used, length of time used, etc. Symptoms generally include but is not limited to, blotchy skin coloring (mottling), diarrhea, excessive crying or high-pitched crying, excessive sucking, fever, hyperactive reflexes, increased muscle tone, irritability, poor feeding, rapid breathing, seizures, sleep problems, slow weight gain, stuffy nose, sneezing, sweating, trembling (tremors), vomiting.

Prenatal Exposure and Child and Adolescent Development

Children and youth of parents who use or abuse substances and have parenting difficulties have an increased chance of experiencing a variety of negative outcomes (Felitti et al., 1998; HHS, 1999; Stanton-Tindall et al., 2013) including: poor cognitive, social, and emotional development, depression, anxiety, and other trauma and mental health symptoms, physical and health issues, and substance use problems.

Parental substance use can affect the well-being of children and youth in complex ways. For example, an infant who receives inconsistent care and nurturing from a parent engaged in addiction-related behaviors may suffer from attachment difficulties that can then interfere with the growing child's emotional development. Adolescent children of parents with substance use disorders, particularly those who have experienced child maltreatment and foster care, may turn to substances themselves as a coping mechanism. In addition, children of parents with substance use issues are more likely to experience trauma and its effects, which include difficulties with concentration and learning, controlling physical and emotional responses to stress, and forming trusting relationships (Staton-Tindall et al., 2013).

Considerations for Developing and Implementing Plans of Safe Care

When developing, and implementing the Plan of Safe Care, consider the following:

1. The post-partum period is a time of “unique vulnerability” for the mother due to:
 - a. Increased stress associated with motherhood, infant care, sleep deprivation
 - b. Limited social support and resource availability
 - c. Increased financial demands
 - d. Pain and physical recovery from delivery
 - e. Physiologic transition from pregnant to non-pregnant state
2. Alcohol and substances cause significant changes in brain chemistry, which affects a person's mood, thinking, behavior and perception. It can be difficult for a person to follow through on scheduling and keeping appointments; therefore, it is essential that Social Services Case Managers assist families with making and keeping appointments or identify a responsible person to assist the family.
3. The mother's or father's child welfare-related history that indicates unresolved substance use disorders related to a prior case of child abuse or neglect;
4. Any prior abuse and/or neglect reports related to substance use and response to agency intervention or substance abuse treatment;
5. Whether any siblings have been prenatally exposed to substances or have been exposed in the home or family environment;
6. Evidence of co-occurring mental health concerns that may affect immediate parenting capacity such as post-partum depression and substance use;
7. The mother's willingness to seek treatment and parenting instruction;
8. Family environmental challenges due to parental substance use disorders; and
9. Access to sufficient income/resources, employment, and lack of access to a medical home can all interact with substance use disorders, and could impact the infant.

f. Their ability to meet the care and protection needs of the infant and any other children living in the home.

Monitoring the Plan of Safe Care

Ensuring the services identified in the Plan of Safe Care is implemented is critical to assuring the ongoing health and substance abuse needs of the infant and family. The Plan of Safe Care will address actions and services for the infant and family's needs that support the family achieving long-term recovery. Therefore, the needs must be incorporated into the case plan if the case is transferred to Family Preservation Services or Foster Care to ensure ongoing monitoring. If the family does not continue child welfare services with DFCS, another individual or agency must be identified to monitor the plan of safe care. This could be the medical provider, Babies Can't Wait or other providers already involved with the family and who can obtain information to monitor the plan.

Plan of Safe Care vs. Safety Plan

A Plan of Safe Care is different from a safety plan aimed at addressing present or impending danger situations that have already occurred.^[58] A safety plan is designed to control safety threats and have an immediate effect, and stays in effect as long as the threats to child safety exist and the family remains unable to provide for the child's safety."^[60] The Plan of Safe Care moves beyond the immediate safety factors to the ongoing health, treatment and well-being needs of the infant and family. Therefore, it can remain in effect even when a comprehensive assessment indicates there is no need for child welfare services or after the termination of child welfare services.

Five-Point Intervention Framework

Since many Substance Exposed Infants (SEI) are not identified prenatally or at birth, an approach that addresses all stages of development for the affected child is critical. Most previous work related to SEIs has focused on pregnancy and the birth event. However, a more comprehensive view is needed that takes multiple intervention opportunities into account, beginning with pre-pregnancy and continuing throughout a child's developmental milestones. The framework^[61] around which this report is organized asserts that there are five major timeframes when intervention in the life of the SEI can reduce the potential harm of prenatal substance exposure:

1. Pre-pregnancy: This timeframe offers the opportunity to promote awareness of the effects of prenatal substance use among women of child-bearing age and their family members;

2. Prenatal: This intervention point encourages health care providers to screen pregnant women for substance use as part of routine prenatal care and make referrals that facilitate access to treatment and related services for women who need those services;
3. Birth: Interventions during this timeframe incorporate testing newborns for substance exposure at the time of delivery;
4. Neonatal: Developmental assessment and the corresponding provision of services for the newborn as well as the family at this intervention point, immediately after the birth event, are the emphasis; and
5. Throughout childhood and adolescence: This timeframe calls for ongoing provision of coordinated services for both child and family.

Requirements

The Division of Family and Children Services (DFCS) will:

1. Refer children to Babies Can't Wait (BCW) via Children 1st for a developmental screening, assessment if they meet the following criteria:
 - a. Any child under the age of three involved in a substantiated Investigation, prior to the conclusion of the Investigation;
 - b. Any child under the age of three with a suspected or diagnosed developmental delay, physical impairment, or disability, prior to the conclusion of the Investigation or Family Support Services.

- c. An infant prenatally exposed to substances, to support the development of the Plan of Safe Care (see policy 19.27 Case Management: Plan of Safe Care for Infants Prenatally Exposed to Substances or a Fetal Alcohol Spectrum Disorder).
- d. All children in foster care under five years of age, as part of the Health Check, within 10 calendar days of entering foster care.

Under five years old means the child has not reached their 5th birthday.

A new referral is not needed if the child was referred during the Investigation, however, follow up with Children 1st is needed to determine the results of the screening.

2. Reassess child development on an ongoing basis and re-refer children under the age of three for BCW services who were initially determined ineligible for BCW services when there's a suspected or diagnosed developmental delay, disability or physical impairment after the initial ineligibility. Refer to Forms and Tools: Developmental Milestones for Children age 0-5.
3. Obtain and review the developmental screening and assessment and incorporate the recommendations into the case plan, if appropriate.
4. Discuss the screening/assessment and any recommendations with the caregiver, including their ability to meet the needs of the child and any identified barriers. Ensure the following occurs:
 - a. Provide a copy of the recommendations to the caregivers of children in the custody of DFCS.
 - b. Assist the caregiver with developing a plan to overcome any barriers.
 - c. Assess the plan each month to determine progress towards goals.
5. Invite the BCW/Children 1st representative to any relevant meetings involving the child receiving BCW services, including but not limited to the Multidisciplinary Team Meetings (MDT), POSC meeting, Family Team Meeting (FTM), placement change meeting(s).
6. Monitor the provision of BCW services by maintaining monthly contact with the service coordinator/developmental specialist or BCW/Children 1st representative.
7. Upload all assessments and other documentation to Georgia SHINES within 72 hours of receipt.

Procedures

Investigation or Family Support Services Social Services Case Manager

1. Determine whether a child meets the criteria for a BCW referral as outlined in the above Requirements and in conjunction with the Social Services Supervisor (SSS).
2. Discuss the following with the caregiver:
 - a. The child meets the eligibility criteria for a referral to BCW;
 - b. DFCS is required to refer the child to BCW when they meet the criteria;
 - c. The criteria for referral and eligibility;
 - d. BCW services are voluntary;

- e. The benefits of BCW services for the child and family;
- f. The referral process;
- g. The screening and evaluation process;
- h. The services provided through BCW;
- i. The importance of the caregiver’s participation in the development of the Individualized Family Service Plan (IFSP), the six-month review, and the annual evaluation of the IFSP to ensure timely and appropriate developmental services.

3. Complete the Children 1st Screening and Referral Form in Georgia SHINES:

- a. Complete the application in its entirety to facilitate the screening and evaluation process;
- b. Engage the caregiver to assist in responding to specific questions regarding the child and reconcile any inconsistencies in information.
- c. Ask the caregiver to sign the Authorization for Release of Information Form-BCW Specific (ROI-BCW) and the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act (FERPA) Consent Form to allow DFCS to assist in monitoring the provision of services offered through Children 1st or BCW;

The SSCM cannot sign the ROI-BCW or the FERPA form when a child is in foster care. The release must be signed by the surrogate (foster parent or other approved placement resource).

- d. If a case is being transferred to Family Preservation Services (FPS) or Foster Care, include the name of the assigned FPS or Foster Care SSCM on the Children 1st Screening and Referral Form.
- e. Review the Children 1st Screening and Referral Form to verify all pertinent sections of the form are completed.

4. Submit the Children 1st Screening and Referral Form, ROI-BCW, and the FERPA forms to the Children 1st District Coordinator as outlined in the protocol between DFCS and the local county health department in the county where the child resides.

Submit the referral to Children 1st regardless of the caregiver’s willingness to participate in the program or his/her cooperation in completing the form.

5. Contact Children 1st to confirm receipt of the Children 1st Screening and Referral Form.

6. Obtain the Status of Eligibility letter from Children 1st. If the letter is received by the referring SSCM after the case has been transferred to another program area, forward to the letter to the assigned primary SSCM.

Children 1st will provide DFCS a copy of the IFSP and Status of Eligibility (SOE) within 60 days of the date of the referral to Children 1st.

7. Review the Status of Eligibility letter to determine the recommendations from Children 1st. The letter will provide one of the following recommendations:

- a. The child is eligible to receive BCW services, and the child has been referred to BCW.

BCW will provide DFCS with an Acknowledgement Letter within three days of the referral, if Children 1st refers the child to BCW and the ROI-BCW of information and FERPA are approved and signed by the caregiver or surrogate.

- b. The child is not eligible for BCW services; however, the child is eligible to enroll in Children 1st.

Children 1st will request the consent of the caregiver or surrogate to conduct the Maternal and Child Health (MCH) Assessment and enroll the child in Children 1st as needed.

- c. The child is not eligible for BCW services and no further services are needed

8. Document the following in Georgia SHINES:

- a. Whether the child meets the criteria for referral to BCW via Children 1st, as outlined in the requirements above. Be specific in documenting if the referral is based on suspected or diagnosed developmental delays, disability or physical impairment; prenatal exposure to substances or an FASD; and/or involves a substantiated investigation; or whether the child is in foster care and under the age of 5;
- b. The discussion with the caregiver regarding the Children 1st referral and screening results;
- c. The date the Children 1st Screening and Referral Form was faxed or mailed to Children 1st.
- d. Upload a copy of the Status of Eligibility form, the assessment from Children 1st and BCW, and the IFSP in External Documentation.

Foster Care or Family Preservation Services Social Services Case Manager

- 1. Contact the Children 1st representative within 72 hours of the case transfer to verify that the Children 1st Screening and Referral Form was received.
 - a. If the referral was not received by Children 1st:
 - i. Complete another referral in Georgia SHINES and fax to Children 1st. Ensure that the caregiver information such as name, address and phone number is included on the referral form; and
 - ii. Attach a copy of the order granting DFCS custody (if applicable) and the ROI-BCW form (signed by the caregiver or surrogate).
 - b. If the referral was received by Children 1st:
 - i. Obtain the status of the referral and meeting schedules;
 - ii. Provide the Children 1st representative with updated caregiver contact information (name, address, telephone);
 - iii. Fax or mail Children 1st a copy of the order granting DFCS custody (if applicable); and
 - iv. Fax or mail the ROI-BCW form signed by the caregiver or surrogate.
- 2. Notify the Care Coordination Team (CCT) of the referral to BCW via the Amerigroup Notification Form (E-form).
- 3. Inform and encourage caregiver participation in the development of the IFSP, the six-month review, and the annual evaluation of the IFSP to ensure the timely and appropriate provision of developmental services for the child. Collaborate with caregivers to address issues that may impede their ability to attend IFSP meetings, such as arranging transportation, if this is an issue.

4. Obtain the schedule and participate in all IFSP meetings.
5. Obtain copies of evaluations/reports and the IFSP from BCW.
6. Ensure that the caregiver has signed the ROI-BCW and FERPA forms to facilitate information sharing.
7. Encourage and monitor the caregiver's adherence with all IFSP recommendations.
8. Ensure recommended services are in place, including any recommendations for agency or caregiver follow up.
9. Invite the BCW/Children 1st representative to case planning, FTMs, MDTs and placement change meetings, relevant case conferences/staffings, etc.
10. Notify BCW/Children 1st, Care Coordination Team (CCT) and the Revenue Maximization Specialist (RMS) within 24 hours of placement changes involving a child receiving BCW services:
 - a. When a family meeting occurs prior to the placement move, invite the BCW/Children 1st representative to the meeting;
 - b. Whenever there are placement changes, a new ROI-BCW and FERPA must be completed and signed by the new caregiver/surrogate and submitted to the Children 1st or BCW program; and
 - c. When the SSCM changes, or transfers to other program areas, and at case closure.
11. Modify the case plan/action plan based on the following:
 - a. Identified needs/services from the BCW evaluation;
 - b. Progress made related to BCW service goals; and
 - c. Any other identified needs and services if the child was not eligible for BCW services.
12. Monitor service provision/progress by maintaining monthly contact with the Children 1st or BCW representative working with the child/family.
13. Reassess child development on an ongoing basis to determine if any indicators of developmental delays or physical impairment were manifested later in the life of the case. See Forms and Tools: Developmental Milestones for Children 0-5.

For many children who enter foster care, indicators of developmental delays or other manifestations of trauma may not emerge for six months or more after the initial placement.

- a. Make another referral to Children 1st via the Children 1st Screening and Referral Form, by completing the form in Georgia SHINES and faxing/ mailing to Children 1st when developmental delays are suspected or identified:
 - i. Clearly document on the referral form that the case is being re-referred;
 - ii. Specify the reason for re-referral, including the developmental delays suspected or identified since initial referral; and
 - iii. For children in foster care include the name, address and contact information for the new caregiver/surrogate and attach a copy of the court order, ROI-BCW, and FERPA forms signed by the new caregiver/surrogate.

14. Document the following information in Georgia SHINES:
 - a. Referral dates and child's Status of Eligibility (SOE) for BCW services;
 - b. Children 1st/BCW recommendations and referrals for services to address identified needs;
 - c. Other identified needs and referrals for services to address these needs if the child is not eligible for BCW services;
 - d. Participation in relevant meetings, ongoing follow-up, and monitoring of services; and
 - e. Upload copies of BCW evaluations/reports and IFSPs to External Documentation.

Social Services Supervisor

1. Ensure that all children who meet the eligibility criteria are referred to Babies Can't Wait.
2. Ensure the Children 1st Screening and Referral Form is completed in Georgia SHINES and review it for accuracy and completeness prior to submission.
3. Ensure that the child's caregiver signed the Authorization for Release of Information Form-BCW Specific (ROI-BCW) and the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act (FERPA) Consent Form before the provision of services.
4. Ensure the Children 1st Referral Form, ROI-BCW, and the FERPA forms are submitted to the Children 1st District Coordinator based on the protocol between DFCS and the local county health department in the county where the child resides.
5. Verify the following:
 - a. The date the Children 1st Screening and Referral Form was faxed or mailed to Children 1st.
 - b. The SSCM contacted the Children 1st District Coordinator to confirm receipt of the referral form.
 - c. DFCS received a copy of the IFSP and Status of Eligibility (SOE) within 60 days of the date of the referral to Children 1st.
 - d. DFCS received an Acknowledgement Letter within three days of the referral, if Children 1st referred the child to BCW.
 - e. The completion of the Maternal and Child Health (MCH) Assessment by the caregiver, if the child is ineligible for BCW, but eligible to enroll in Children 1st and enroll the child in Children 1st.
 - f. The Status of Eligibility letter was forwarded to the primary SSCM, if the case was transferred to another program or SSCM.
6. Ensure the documentation identifies the specific reason for the referral to BCW (i.e. observed and/or reported developmental delays, a diagnosed disability, physical impairment, prenatal exposure to substances or an FASD, and/or involves a substantiated investigation).
7. Ensure the SSCM is assessing child development on an ongoing basis to determine if any indicators of developmental delays or physical impairment were manifested later in the life of the case.
8. Ensure a new referral to BCW is made when concerns are identified related to the developmental milestones for children 0-5.
9. Ensure all documents are uploaded to Georgia SHINES within 72 hours of receipt.

Practice Guidance

Notifications of Children's 1st Referrals and Updates to Amerigroup, Rev Max, and DCH for Children in the Custody of DHS

Amerigroup Notification Form (E-Form)

DFCS communicates with Amerigroup, Rev Max, and DCH utilizing an electronic notification form (E-Form). It is the primary means for communicating information about a member enrolled in Georgia Families 360. The E-Form must be completed and sent to Amerigroup, Rev Max, and DCH within 24 hours of a youth entering foster care. It should be completed thoroughly to include demographic information, medical information, placement information, the identified CCFA provider and other referrals (e.g., Babies Can't Wait). The E-Form is also used to report updates such as placement changes, a youth exiting care, etc. If there is information not available at the time of the initial referral to Amerigroup, submit an E-Form (update) as soon as the information is obtained. Accurate and timely communication with Amerigroup is vital to the Medicaid eligibility determination and the assignment of a CCT and service providers. Important decisions regarding the assignment of primary care providers and referrals are made based on the information submitted on the E-Form.

Babies Can't Wait

Babies Can't Wait (BCW) is Georgia's statewide interagency service delivery system for infants and toddlers with developmental delays or disabilities and their families. The Georgia Department of Public Health (DPH) is the lead agency administering the Babies Can't Wait (BCW) Program in Georgia. DPH ensures:

1. Services are provided in accordance with federal guidelines.
2. Families have access to the services that are needed to enhance their child's development.
3. Training is available to ensure that professionals who work with children and families have up to date information.

BCW serves Georgia children from birth up to their third birthday, regardless of income, who meet one of the following criteria:

1. Have a diagnosed physical or mental condition which is known to result in a developmental delay, such as blindness, Down syndrome, or Spina Bifida; or
2. Have a diagnosed developmental delay confirmed by a qualified team of professionals.

For children in foster care referred to BCW, the BCW Service Coordinator will contact the foster/surrogate parent for consent and conduct an assessment. The BCW Service Coordinator will also develop a primary service provider (PSP) team that includes the SSCM and the CCT. The PSP team will:

1. Have the licensed provider on the primary service provider team submit the prior authorization request to the CMO to conduct a full developmental evaluation.
2. Develop the IFSP to identify services.
3. Send SOE letter to DFCS within 60 days of the BCW referral notifying DFCS that services will be provided.

4. Send IFSP evaluation report to DFCS.

BCW will notify DFCS in writing if a caregiver of a child declines participation with the BCW process and procedures and will provide the reason given by the caregiver for refusal of services.

Children 1st

Children 1st is a Georgia Department of Public Health program which promotes the healthy development of young children [birth to five years old] and assures that they arrive at school healthy and ready for success.

Children 1st is the single point of entry to a statewide collaborative system of Public Health and other prevention-based programs and services. This system helps caregivers provide their young children with a healthy start in life. It allows at-risk children to be identified early and gives them a chance to grow up healthy and ready for school. Children 1st collaborates with local hospitals, pediatricians and other health care providers, schools, community-based organizations and other agencies to ensure the healthy development of newborns and young children.

Children 1st completes developmental screenings and refers families to other public health programs, including Babies Can't Wait (BCW). If a child is found ineligible for BCW, DFCS refers the child back to Children 1st for appropriate monitoring and follow-up. Informed written consent from the parent or legal guardian is required.

What Happens After DFCS Makes a Referral to Children 1st

Category 1 Referral

1. When Children 1st receives a referral from DFCS, they request a faxed copy of the most current standardized developmental screening results (if DFCS has one on file) within 24 hours of receipt of the referral.
2. The Children 1st referral completed by DFCS is sent to BCW within two business days of when criteria are met.
3. The referral is sent to the next staffing of the Birth to Five Review Team (BCW, Children 1st, 1st Care, Children's Medical Services (CMS), and Universal Newborn 1st Care (formerly known as High-Risk Infant Follow-Up). This is a nurse case management service provided through Children 1st that is designed to provide services to infants who are very low birth weight or are low birth weight and have medical/health conditions.

Hearing Screening and Intervention Coordinator (UNHSI) to Determine the Most Appropriate Public Health Program Referral(s)

Category 2 Referral

1. The Developmental Specialist or other trained DPH staff will initiate contact with the family within three business days.
2. Once contact has been made with the family, a home visit will be scheduled to gain consent to screen the child's development using the appropriate Ages and Stages Questionnaire (ASQ-3)^[62] or the Ages and Stages Questionnaire Social and Emotional (ASQ-SE)^[63].

3. If the screening indicates possible developmental delays, then Children 1st will send the referral along with the ASQ-E or ASQ-SE to BCW within two business days.
4. If the screening indicates that the child is age appropriate or in the monitoring zone, the Children 1st Developmental Specialist or Registered Nurse will offer to enroll the child in Children 1st and complete the Maternal Child Health Integrated Assessment.

Developmental Delay

Developmental Delay is a chronological delay in the appearance of normal developmental milestones achieved during infancy and early childhood, adjusted for prematurity in one or more of the following areas: cognitive, physical (including vision and hearing), communication, social/emotional and adaptive.

Developmental delays may be caused by organic, psychological or environmental factors. For example, if most children crawl by eight months of age and walk by the middle of the second year, then a child five or six months behind schedule in reaching these milestones may be classified as developmentally delayed regarding mobility.

Disability

A disability means a child has a diagnosed physical or mental condition that has a high probability of resulting in a developmental delay (e.g., Down syndrome, autism, cerebral palsy).

Early Intervention Services

Early intervention services are interventions designed to meet the developmental needs of children age birth to three who have or are at risk of developmental delays. Developmental services are provided in several areas, including physical, cognitive, communication, social-emotional and adaptive functioning. Caregivers of children receiving early intervention services receive education and support to assist them in understanding and enhancing their child's development.

Individualized Family Service Plan (IFSP)

The IFSP is a written plan for providing early intervention supports and services to eligible children/families. It is developed jointly by the family, service coordinator and other appropriate, qualified personnel providing early intervention services. The IFSP is based on a multi-disciplinary evaluation and assessment of the child and the strengths and needs of the child's family. The IFSP includes developmental outcomes, strategies, activities and services necessary to meet the IFSP outcomes, to enhance the development of the child, and to meet the special needs of the child.

Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA)

IDEA includes specific provisions to ensure that all children with disabilities have a "parent" to act on their behalf. Per Section 602(23) of the IDEA of 2004, a parent is:

1. A natural, adoptive or foster parent of a child (unless a foster parent is prohibited by state law from serving as a parent).
2. A guardian (but not the state if the child is a ward of the state).

3. An individual acting in the place of a natural or adoptive parent, including a grandparent, step-parent or another relative with whom the child lives or a person who is legally responsible for the child's welfare.
4. An individual assigned to be a surrogate parent, in accordance with Babies Can't Wait Standards.

Physical Impairment

A physical impairment is defined as a dysfunction of the musculoskeletal and/or neurological body systems, which affects the ability of an individual to move or coordinate movement. This includes one or more of the following body systems: neurological, musculoskeletal, sensory organs, respiratory (including speech organs), cardiovascular, reproductive, digestive, genital, urinary, hemic and lymphatic, skin and endocrine. A physical impairment on its own does not make a child eligible for BCW, but if there is a significant developmental delay due to the physical impairment then the child may be eligible.

Plan of Safe Care and Prenatal Exposure to Substances

The Child Abuse Prevention and Treatment Act (CAPTA) requires that healthcare providers identify and make appropriate referrals to DFCS of infants affected by prenatal drug exposure or a Fetal Alcohol Spectrum Disorder; and that "plans for safe care" (safety, family and case plans that promote health and well-being) be developed for infants and families.). This identification of affected may occur during any stage of DFCS involvement, including at birth, or later during the infant's development and/or as symptoms manifest. The Plan of Safe Care that is created will address actions and services to address the infant's and family's needs, and these needs must be incorporated into the case plan/action plan when developed. The developmental screening by Children 1st is an important component of the assessment of needs for infants and determining services needed as part of the development and implementation of the plan of safe care.

See policy [19.27 Case Management: Plan of Safe Care for Infants Prenatally Exposed to Substances or a Fetal Alcohol Spectrum Disorder \[FASD\]](#).

Surrogate Parent

A surrogate parent is an individual who has been appointed to represent a child in all matters related to BCW early intervention services. A surrogate parent's responsibility is to ensure that the child is provided with appropriate early intervention services under Part C of IDEA. The surrogate parent has the right to make decisions relating to the development and implementation of the child's IFSP, including evaluation, assessment, ongoing provision of services, annual evaluations and periodic reviews and any other rights established under Part C regulations. Appointment as a surrogate parent does not mean the surrogate parent has authority over care and maintenance, financial support of the child, custody of the child, foster home placement or any other matters that are not directly related to BCW early intervention services.

The surrogate parent must always act in a manner that he/she believes is in the best interest of the child. A surrogate parent is not liable to the child for damages that result from any act or omission in representing the child in decisions relating to participation in early intervention. The surrogate parent would be liable for gross or willful acts of negligence or misconduct.

A surrogate parent shall not be an employee of the state lead agency or other state agency and shall not be any person or any employee of a person providing early intervention services.

A surrogate parent must:

1. Be a citizen of the United States, a resident of the state of Georgia and above the age of 18.
2. Have no interest that conflicts with the interests of the child represented.
3. Have sufficient knowledge and skill to ensure adequate representation of the child.
4. Have time and desire to become involved in the early intervention process.
5. Possess an understanding of the cultural and linguistic background of the child he/she represents.

Activities performed by a surrogate parent include:

1. Visiting the child and observing the child's development and environment, as appropriate.
2. Attending the child's evaluations and assessments as appropriate.
3. Participating in the development of the child's IFSP.
4. Participating in the development of the annual IFSPs and reviews.
5. Reviewing the child's BCW record to become familiar with the child and as needed.
6. Exercising independent judgment in pursuing the child's interests within early interventions.
7. Representing the child within the BCW Early Intervention System.

A surrogate must be appointed to ensure that the rights of eligible children are protected if:

1. No parent can be identified in accordance with Section 602(23);
2. After reasonable efforts, the whereabouts of the parent cannot be discovered; or
3. The child is a ward of the state pursuant to Georgia state law.

A surrogate parent can be assigned to a child in foster care once that child is in DFCS custody and before the court has terminated parental rights. In Georgia, a foster parent may be appointed as a child's surrogate parent since there is no conflict of interest between the foster parent and child since the foster parent has the requisite knowledge and skills to adequately represent the child. Foster parents are not deemed employees of DFCS, but rather DFCS agents.

If a foster parent meets the criteria, he or she may be considered the parent and there is no need for the appointment of a surrogate parent. When there is a foster parent, the BCW Coordinator is still responsible for ensuring that a copy of the court order stating that DFCS has legal custody of the child is maintained in the BCW record. The DFCS SSCM is responsible for providing a copy of the juvenile court order appointing DFCS as temporary legal custodian of a child to BCW each time a child is referred to BCW.

When a foster parent serves as the parent, the foster parent has the authority to sign the IFSP and all related documents, forms and releases. The DFCS SSCM should sign the IFSP document as a participating team member (not the parent) and should participate in the development and implementation of the IFSP. If a foster parent is unwilling to serve as the parent, a surrogate parent must be appointed. When the surrogate and foster parent are different, the ultimate decision related to the provision of BCW early intervention services is determined by the surrogate parent.

A person acting in the place of a parent, such as a grandparent or a stepparent with whom the child lives or a person who is legally responsible for the child’s welfare, may be considered the child’s parent under IDEA. Before assuming a grandparent or relative is the “parent” under IDEA, the BCW Coordinator must interview the person and document that the child lives with the individual and that this person is responsible for the child’s day-to-day care. It is understood that any time there is someone acting in the place of the parent and if the parent returns, all rights immediately revert to the parent (as long as the parental rights have not been terminated through the court system). A person whose role is a caregiver and whose contact is only incidental (e.g., babysitter, childcare worker) cannot assume the responsibility of a parent.

Significant Developmental Delay

A significant delay is identified through the informed clinical opinion of the Multi-Disciplinary Team (MDT). A delay is considered significant when it interferes with the child’s ability to achieve expected developmental milestones of cognitive, communication, adaptive, physical, social, or emotional development. These delays are so significant that ongoing development for the child is compromised. Secondary delays relative to the initial delay are also likely to occur (e.g., because of significant delays in expressive communication, social skills with peers are jeopardized). Criteria include identification of deficits in skills that are prerequisite to or instrumental in accomplishing later developing skills or functional tasks that would be expected of peers who are developing typically. If the use of standardized diagnostic measures is deemed appropriate, a score of two standard deviations below the mean in one of the five developmental domains or at least 1.5 standard deviations below the mean in two or more of the five developmental domains constitutes a significant delay through the informed clinical opinion of the MDT.

Investigations: Conducting an Investigation).

-  When allegations of child abuse are reported regarding a child in a hospital in County A and it is determined that the primary caregiver resides in County B, the SSCM in County B (where the primary caregiver resides) shall be assigned. However, when distance precludes County B from making an immediate response, the SSCM in County A will be responsible for making face-to-face contact with the child to assess safety (see policy 3.1 Intake: Receiving Intake Reports). Communication must occur between the SSCM in County A and County B to ensure a coordinated response.

2. Contact the hospital social worker prior to or upon arrival at the hospital to:
 - a. Notify the social worker of arrival;
 - b. Obtain additional case information from the hospital;
 - c. Coordinate the face-to-face interview with the alleged victim child at the hospital to conduct the safety assessment;
 -  If there's an impending discharge, it may be necessary to request the hospital delay discharge of the victim child until the SSCM arrives to assess the situation.

3. Consult with the treating physician regarding the health and safety concerns of the child. Ask if the illness or injuries are a result of child abuse and obtain relevant documentation.
4. Respond to the hospital's/facility's social worker inquiry about DFCS' plan to ensure a safe discharge. Request the hospital adjust the discharge plan when the child is medically cleared, and safety concerns related to the discharge plan are identified.
5. When informing parent(s)/caregiver(s) at the hospital or facility that their child will be removed from their legal custody and care:
 - a. Notify and coordinate with medical staff in advance, to allow them to make needed preparations to ensure the safety of all patients, families and staff, when possible.

 - e. Provide or arrange for supervision for the child/patient with behavioral issues. A contracted provider may be used to ensure appropriate supervision of the child, when applicable.
 -  The medical hospital will not provide supervision for children with behavioral issues, however, if a child is in a treatment facility supervision should be provided.

Discharge Planning for a Child in Foster Care

The SSCM will:

1. Begin discharge planning at the time of admission. Identify placement options as soon as the child enters the hospital or treatment facility considering any special medical or behavioral health needs the child may have, when applicable (see policy 10.4 Foster Care: Selecting a Placement Resource).
2. If the child has special medical or behavioral health needs, arrange for or ensure that the placement resource and any other designated caregivers of the child complete any needed training to appropriately address the child's condition prior to the discharge.
 -  The hospital or treatment facility may also request that a secondary caregiver be trained to care for the child.
3. Have a solid plan for transitioning the child from the hospital or treatment facility to an approved placement setting, including arranging transportation and obtaining any medication the child may need post-discharge.

 - c. Share the child's health information with the placement resource and document that it was shared.
3. Document all activities in Georgia SHINES within 72 hours of occurrence. This includes updating Contacts and Summaries, the Health Detail and uploading health records to External Documentation. Include the following information:
 - a. Discharge planning activities and documents;
 - b. Recommendations from the hospital or treatment facility regarding needed services and supports the child may need to be successful.

Practice Guidance

Coordination with Caregivers During Hospitalization

Caregiver involvement is essential throughout the hospitalization to ensure information-sharing, success of treatment, appropriate post-hospital placement and provision of aftercare services. The SSCM should use every opportunity to gather information on the child and their caregiver while the child remains in the hospital. Ensure that sufficient time and opportunity is given to observe and evaluate the parent-child relationship. Observe the interaction between the child and the caregiver. Observe the caregiver's response to the child, and their attention to the needs of the child. Assess the child's vulnerability and parental capacity to maintain the child's safety upon discharge from the hospital.

Coordination with Hospitals when Children are in Foster Care

When children in foster care require short-term, specialized hospitalization services to manage critical or immediate health or behavioral needs, it is important that DFCS staff is available and responsive to the hospital and treatment team providing care to the child. In some cases, family members are not available to participate in treatment and support activities. Consequently, DFCS has the responsibility to fill in the gaps and ensure full engagement in the treatment process.

Collaboration with hospitals and healthcare providers ensures a seamless continuum of care for the child. Upon admission of a child to the hospital, the SSCM should coordinate with medical staff, participate in treatment when appropriate, and begin discharge planning in advance of the anticipated discharge date. Delay in planning can result in a disruption to the continuum of care for the child. Ensuring an appropriate placement option is available upon the child's release from the hospital is essential for a smooth transition from the hospital/treatment facility to the placement. Because a hospital setting is not intended to serve as a placement for a child, no child should remain in a hospital setting beyond the time that is medically necessary.

Care Coordination Treatment Unit (CCTU)

The CCTU is a DFCS State Office team responsible for the facilitation and management of high-end, complex cases and system navigation of youth in foster care. CCTU empowers DFCS, its youth, families, and partners through education and collaboration; ensuring a holistic and systematic approach to address the behavioral, emotional, medical, and therapeutic needs of Georgia's youth. CCTU was established to ensure the proper continuum of services were coupled with the identification of the most appropriate and least restrictive placement for children with "high-end" needs in foster care. Children considered in this population are identified as having severe medical, emotional, behavioral, psychiatric and developmental disorders. The CCTU staff are distinct professionals with a diverse array of clinical expertise and child welfare backgrounds which allows the ability to engage intensive practice guidance and consultation to field staff, inpatient treatment facilities and Room Board Watchful Oversight (RBWO) contracted providers on cases that require a meticulous level of insight to navigate the complexities within our state systems, policies and regulations. The CCTU operates on a 24/7 schedule, including weekends and holidays. Specific functions of the CCTU includes:

1. Placement Intervention/Guidance
2. Emergency Response and Assistance
3. RBWO Program Designation Assessments
4. PRTF & Acute Hospitalizations
5. Emerging/Dependent Adults with Intellectual and/or Developmental needs, Severe Mental and Behavioral Health
6. Severe Medically Fragile
7. Physical Health Hospitals
8. Technical Assistance, Training and Development
9. Data Tracking and Trend Analysis
10. Care Coordination & Service Consultation (healthcare services, medical interventions, clinical treatment)
11. Community Based Services Consultation, and System(s) Navigation
12. Monitoring of inpatient behavioral/physical health facilities DFCS entries and exits
13. Stakeholder Engagement

CCTU Staff include:

1. Behavioral Support Specialist (BSS) provides oversight and consultation of behavioral management issues for children in the custody of DFCS. Also, guides field staff in the identification of appropriate placement resources for children categorized as high-end with complex needs. In addition, provides additional support and oversight to RBWO providers to ensure that children are benefitting from therapeutic interventions and moving towards less restrictive placements.
2. Therapeutic Support Specialist (TSS) are licensed professionals with the ability to engage the field in intensive practice guidance and consultation on cases that require a meticulous level of insight to navigate the complexities within our state systems, policies, and regulations. Responsible for immediate and on-going assessment of medical necessity, treatment, and discharge planning of inpatient admissions to psychiatric residential treatment facilities, crisis stabilization units, and other acute inpatient behavioral or physical health facilities.

As soon as a child with no transitional placement resource identified is admitted to a hospital, the SSCM should make a referral to CCTU for discharge planning/placement assistance. CCTU will assist in coordinating services within the community, locating an appropriate placement for the child and can support hospital personnel in contacting Regional and/or County staff.

1. County staff should contact their Regional TSS to inform them of the inpatient admission and need to assist in hospital coordination of their child and submit a Universal Application with any other supplemental documents for assignment to the BSS Team if placement guidance is needed through GA+SCORE. The referral submission portal is located on the GA+SCORE website www.gascore.com under the State Office CCTU Link. The information will be triaged and assigned to a BSS for review and assist with placement efforts.
2. Hospital staff may email cctu.support@dhs.ga.gov for assistance in contacting regional and county staff, and for assistance in coordinating discharge planning if county personnel are unresponsive. The email should include:
 - a. The point of contact (phone number, email address) and brief synopsis of the referral
 - b. The child's first and last name, date of birth and County

Wellness Programming, Assessment and Consultation (WPAC) Unit

The WPAC Unit partners with child welfare staff to provide practice support, consultation, tracking and quality monitoring of physical and moderate behavioral health needs of children and youth in foster care and family preservation. Wellness Specialists work closely with the designated CMO and other community-based healthcare providers to ensure timely and comprehensive care coordination.

WPAC should be contacted when the SSCM has difficulty obtaining medical care and treatment following hospital discharge, or in coordinating services with Amerigroup. Contact WPAC at: health-matters@dhs.ga.gov.

Discussion

As the designated child welfare agency in Georgia, the Division of Family and Children Services (DFCS) is legally mandated to investigate reports of known or suspected instances of child abuse; including physical or mental injury, sexual abuse or exploitation, or negligent treatment/maltreatment under circumstances that indicate the child's health or welfare is threatened. Federal and state laws also identify other distinct conditions that must be evaluated, addressed, or are allowable under the law related to child welfare that DFCS manages. These unique situations as classified a special circumstance.

Types of Special Circumstances

There are two types of special circumstances; the first of which includes no allegations of maltreatment. These assessments are not considered Child Protective Services (CPS) investigations and there is no maltreatment finding. These include:

1. Child Withdrawn From Public School: This assessment is limited by the law to determining whether the school withdrawal was to avoid educating the child when the child has not attended school for a period of 45 days or more and there is no record of a Home Study Program Declaration of Intent Form filed with the Georgia Department of Education (GaDOE).

2. Juvenile or Superior Court: Generally, these situations include a request by the court for DFCS to evaluate a home, assess family dynamics, conduct interviews, etc. These requests could be a result of DFCS filing a petition with the court or a private dependency case.
3. Child in Need of Services (CHINS): When a child is identified as in need of care, guidance, counseling, structure, supervision, treatment, or rehabilitation due to certain behaviors or conditions and adjudicated as a CHINS by juvenile court, DFCS may be ordered to complete an assessment of family functioning, provide services, take custody of the child, or become a plan manager for an unrestorably incompetent youth.
4. Safe Place for Newborns: This law provides an opportunity for mothers in crisis to safely relinquish their newborn babies to designated locations where the babies are protected from endangerment; providing mothers with an alternative without fear of being prosecuted for abandonment or neglect. DFCS is required to assume physical and legal custody of the newborn within six hours of an intake report meeting Safe Place for Newborns criteria.
5. Infants Prenatally Exposed to Substances: Infants identified as affected by prenatal exposure to substances are assessed for any health and developmental needs along with an assessment of the health and substance use disorder needs of parents and their families. Following identification of needs, a Plan of Safe Care is developed and implemented with the family to address child and family well-being.
6. Voluntary Placement of a Child in Foster Care: DFCS may recognize that a family is experiencing a short-term crisis unrelated to safety or maltreatment, and at its discretion provide foster care services through the use of a Voluntary Placement Agreement for a period of 90 calendar days without a court order. An assessment of family functioning is completed to inform the case plan addressing the need for placement (permanency) and well-being.
7. Voluntary Surrender of Parental Rights: DFCS may, at its discretion utilize a voluntary surrender of parental rights when a parent wishes to place their child, who is not in foster care, for adoption. Prior to accepting a voluntary surrender of parental rights DFCS must fully disclose to the parent(s) about the impact of the decision; explore alternative plans, determine whether adoption is a viable plan for the child, and examine the parent's ability make an informed decision about a voluntary surrender.
8. Short Term Emergency Care (Emergency or Illness): When a parent has an emergency or illness requiring immediate care and supervision of a child, DFCS may provide emergency care and supervision to the child without a court order for a period not to exceed seven calendar days through the use of Short Term Emergency Care.

The other types of special circumstances are situations containing allegations of maltreatment and are therefore required to be completed as a CPS Investigation in accordance with policy 5.1 Investigations: Conducting an Investigation. These include:

1. Short Term Emergency Care-Human Trafficking (Labor or Sexual Servitude): DFCS may provide emergency care and supervision to any child without seeking a court order for a period not to exceed seven calendar days when the child is a victim of human trafficking (labor or sexual servitude) under certain circumstances. Prior to executing a STEC for a human trafficking situation DFCS must determine that the circumstances meet the specific criteria for this type of special circumstance. In addition, as human trafficking is a form of maltreatment an investigation must be active or previously conducted concerning the human trafficking allegations.

2. Temporary Custody of a Child Taken by a Physician Without a Court Order and Without Parental Consent: A physician may take temporary protective custody a child without a court order or parental consent when he/she has reasonable cause to believe that the child is in a circumstance or condition that presents imminent danger to the child’s life or health as a result of suspected abuse or neglect; or he/she determines there is reasonable cause to believe that the child has been abused or neglected and there is not sufficient time for a court order to be obtained for temporary custody of the child before the child may be removed from the presence of the physician. DFCS must assume physical custody of the child within six hours of the physician taking custody and begin assessing the circumstances or conditions that present an imminent danger to the child’s life or health as a result of suspected abuse.

 8. Refer the issue to the local school system if it is determined that truancy is the reason for the child not attending school.
 9. Conclude the assessment:
 - a. Upon verifying that the child is being educated;
 - b. Upon verifying that a Home Study Program Declaration of Intent Form has been filed with GaDOE; or
 - c. The parent(s) fails to demonstrate that the child is being educated and a new report alleging educational neglect was made to CICC in accordance with policy 3.24 Intake: Mandated Reporters.
 10. Submit the Special Circumstance Child Withdrawal from Public School to the SSS for approval with 45 calendar days from the receipt of the intake report.

This assessment is not an investigation. Maltreatment codes will not be identified, and the allegation detail page will not generate.

Social Services Supervisor

1. Make a determination in consultation with the SSCM as to whether the absences/withdrawal of a child(ren) from school was to avoid educating the child(ren).
2. Ensure the assessment is terminated immediately upon confirming a valid Home Study Program Declaration of Intent Form has been filed with the GaDOE.
3. Ensure truancy issues are reported to the local school system.

Practice Guidance

Assessment of School Withdrawal and Absences

This assessment is limited by the law to determining whether the school withdrawal was to avoid educating the child. Therefore, the SSCM should restrict information gathering to determining if the parent(s) is purposely avoiding educating the child. Georgia law requires that students attend a public or private school or participate in a home study program from their sixth to their 16th birthday. Public kindergarten is available in every school system, but it is not mandatory. Georgia law allows alternatives to public school education. Although public school is the most frequently utilized method for educating children there are various ways of educating a child, such as home study programs, online schooling, or private school. The SSCM should conclude the assessment when it has been determined and verified that the parent(s) is educating the child(ren). In addition, if at any point during the assessment it is verified that the parent has filed a Home Study Program Declaration of Intent Form with the GaDOE the assessment should be terminated immediately. Examples of verification to validate a child is being educated may include:

1. The parent(s) presenting a copy of a Home Study Program Declaration of Intent Form to home-school a child that has been filed with the GaDOE.
2. Confirming the child has been re-registered and is attending a public or private school.
3. Registration in an online study program.

 If child abuse becomes known or suspected during the assessment, make a new report in accordance with policy 3.24 Intake: Mandated Reporters.

Georgia Home Study Program Requirements

Parents who teach their children at home are required by law to submit to the Georgia Department of Education an annual Home Study Program Declaration of Intent Form within 30 days after establishment of a home study program and by September 1st annually thereafter.^[1] In the event that a child is withdrawn from a public school without a declaration filed and that child stops attending a public school for a period of 45 days, the school is required to refer the matter to DFCS to conduct an assessment in order to determine whether the withdrawal of the child from school was to avoid educating the child. The parent(s) can locate the GaDOE Home Study Program Declaration of Intent Form online:

1. Home Study Program Declaration of Intent Form \(Online Submission\)
2. Home Study Program Declaration of Intent Form \(Printable Form\)

When a Home Study Program Declaration of Intent Form is filed online the parent is provided a unique numeric key that serves as confirmation of the electronic filing of the Home Study Program Declaration of Intent Form. When filing a paper version of Home Study Program Declaration of Intent Form via mail or in-person the parent(s) is not provided verification of the filing. Verification can only be obtained by contacting GaDOE.

Practice Guidance

The CHINS law in Georgia was created in an effort to acknowledge that certain behaviors or conditions occur within a family or school environment that indicate a child is experiencing serious difficulties. The goals of the law are to:

1. Intervene with services and corrective actions to protect the child from making choices that can have a negative impact on his/her future and protect the integrity of the child's family.
2. Make family members aware of their contributions to their family's problems and to encourage them to accept the responsibility and participate in any program of care ordered by the court.
3. Provide a child with a program of treatment, care, guidance, counseling, structure, supervision, and rehabilitation to assist in becoming a responsible and productive member of society.
4. Ensure the cooperation and coordination of all agencies having responsibility to supply services to any member of a family referred to the court

A CHINS is defined as:

1. A child adjudicated to be in need of care, guidance, counseling, structure, supervision, treatment, or rehabilitation and who is adjudicated to be:
 - a. Subject to compulsory school attendance and who is habitually and without good and sufficient cause truant (having 10 or more days unexcused absences in the current academic year) from school;
 - b. Habitually disobedient of the reasonable and lawful commands of his or her parent, guardian or legal custodian and is ungovernable or places himself or herself or others in unsafe circumstances;
 - c. A runaway defined as a child who, without just cause and without the consent of his or her parent, guardian, or legal custodian, is absent from his or her home or place of abode for at least 24 hours;
 - d. A child who has committed a status offense applicable only to a child;

A status offense means an act prohibited by law that would not be an offense if committed by an adult.

- e. A child who wanders or loiters about the streets of any city or in or about any highway or any public place between the hours of midnight and 5:00 a.m.;
 - f. A child who disobeys the terms of supervision contained in a court order which has been directed to such child who has been adjudicated a child in need of services; or
 - g. A child who patronizes any bar where alcoholic beverages are being sold unaccompanied by his or her parent, guardian, or legal custodian or who possesses alcoholic beverages.
2. A child who has committed a delinquent act and is adjudicated to be in need of supervision but not in need of treatment or rehabilitation

When a parent, caregiver or other figure in a child’s life reaches out to the court for help with a child, it is often out of desperation because other interventions have not been successful. Failing to thoroughly assess the child and family functioning to determine the root causes leading to the unwanted behaviors/situations may result in services being unsuccessful or further court/agency involvement.

Documenting a CHINS (No Maltreatment)

CHINS (No Maltreatment) cases are documented solely on the Family Functioning Assessment in Georgia SHINES. For each purposeful contact or collateral contact conducted during the assessment complete the Contact Detail page and state in the narrative “see Family Functioning Assessment.” A description of the purposeful contact is not required. Information gathered during the assessment will be organized in the FFA and analyzed to form conclusions and recommendations. This method of documenting is similar to a psychological evaluation, which is a summary of information gathered from a multitude of sources (interviews, observations, tests, etc.), that informs the conclusion and treatment recommendations, however the report does not include a description of each individual contact.

Practice Guidance

Georgia's safe haven law, the Safe Place for Newborns Act of 2002, provides an opportunity for mothers in crisis to safely relinquish their newborn babies to designated locations where the babies are protected. The purpose of the law is to protect newborns from endangerment by providing mothers an alternative to abandonment. The Act shields the mother from prosecution for abandonment or neglect if the following requirements are met:

1. The newborn baby must be no more than 30 days old; and
2. The newborn is left in the physical custody of a paid or volunteer agent, employee, or member of the staff who is on duty at a medical facility, fire station, or police station.

The mother is not required to provide identification upon leaving the newborn at an approved safe haven location; however, if she is willing, the individual receiving the newborn should obtain her name and address. The Act also has provisions for the medical facility, fire station, and police station to notify DFCS at the time the newborn is left. Upon notification, DFCS shall take physical custody of the child within six hours. Upon taking physical custody, DFCS shall promptly bring the child before the juvenile court.

Safe Place for Newborns – When is Diligent Search Applicable?

The Safe Place for Newborn Act allows the mother, if willing, to provide her name and address to the Safe Haven provider. When the mother discloses her information, anonymity does not apply and DFCS is required to conduct a diligent search in accordance with policy 19.20 Case Management: Diligent Search. For example, a mother gave birth in the hospital and left the infant at the hospital; anonymity does not apply because she disclosed her information to the hospital during registration. When the mother does not willingly provide her name and address, to the Safe Haven provider she is considered “anonymous”. The mother has the right to remain anonymous and DFCS should make no further efforts to determine her identity. In this circumstance, DFCS is unable to conduct a diligent search due to the lack of information, and this must be clearly documented in the case record.

Practice Guidance

Exposure to substances has the potential to cause a wide spectrum of physical, emotional, and developmental problems for infants. The harm caused to the child can be significant and long-lasting, especially if the exposure is not detected and the effects are not treated as soon as possible.^[2] The Child Abuse Prevention and Treatment Act (CAPTA) includes provisions to address infants prenatally exposed to substances, requiring states to implement a Plan of Safe Care to address the infant's well-being needs once identified as affected. In 2016, Comprehensive Addiction and Recovery Act (CARA) reframed how states are required to deal with prenatal exposure to substances, ensuring infants exposed to any type of drug, legally prescribed or used illegally, are assessed, and provided services through a Plan of Safe Care.

The purpose of Special Circumstances Infants Prenatally Exposed to Substances (No Maltreatment) is to assess the impact of prenatal exposure on the infant's health and development, as well as the needs of the mother and other family members to develop the Plan of Safe Care. Special Circumstances deals exclusively with infants' prenatal exposure to substances that were legally prescribed and used by the mother during pregnancy. These assessments do not include prenatal abuse (i.e., use of illegal substances during pregnancy) or have indicators of child abuse. Examples of Prenatal Exposure with No Maltreatment:

1. The infant is prenatally exposed resulting from the mother's prescribed medication for an illness and the mother is complying with her medication and treatment plan, as verified by her healthcare provider; or
2. The infant is prenatally exposed resulting from the mother's participation in a Medication Assisted Treatment (MAT) program for a substance use disorder and the mother is complying with her medication and treatment plan, as verified by the substance treatment provider and her healthcare provider.

The family should be engaged in a manner that builds consensus around their needs and encourages their participation in recommended services. It is important to explain to the parent(s) that this assessment is not to penalize the mother for using prescribed medications during pregnancy but to develop a plan that aids in identifying and addressing the infant and mother’s current and future well-being needs; and will include a collaborative effort between multiple agencies and supports such as Babies Can’t Wait (BCW), the pediatrician, family members, etc. For further information on the Plan of Safe Care see policy 19.27 Case Management: Developing a Plan of Safe Care for Infants Prenatally Exposed to Substances or a Fetal Alcohol Spectrum Disorder \(FASD\).

Practice Guidance

DFCS may recognize that a family is experiencing a short-term crisis unrelated to safety or maltreatment, and at its discretion provide foster care services through the use of a VPA for a period of 90 calendar days without a court order. The VPA may be extended once, under limited circumstances, for an additional 90 days. DFCS is under no obligation to accept the request for a voluntary placement when it is determined not to be in the child's best interests, maltreatment exists, or the child is deemed unsafe.

Prior to accepting a request for a VPA, the SSCM must make reasonable efforts to prevent the removal of the child from his/her home. This includes exploring the reasons the parent is requesting the placement, efforts made to mitigate the need for placement, kin who are available to provide support care, and any services DFCS could provide that may alleviate the need for placement.

Once executed, the VPA gives DFCS the same rights and duties as an order from the court granting DFCS temporary custody of the child. Therefore a Family Functioning Assessment is required to inform the case plan addressing the need for placement (permanency) and well-being. While the child is in DFCS' custody under the VPA, the parent, guardian, or custodian, is allowed to submit a written request for the child to be returned to their custody.

Voluntary Placements Involving Indian Children

When a parent requests to voluntarily place an Indian child in foster care DFCS must comply with, and afford all rights under the Indian Child Welfare Act (ICWA). This includes making active efforts to prevent removal, notifications to the child’s Tribe, and selection of a placement resource. In addition, a VPA involving an Indian child must be recorded and certified by the judge or the court in order to be considered valid. For more information on the requirements for a VPA involving an Indian child see policy 1.6 Administration: Indian Child Welfare Act \(ICWA\) and Transfer of Responsibility for Placement and Care to a Tribal Agency.

Practice Guidance

DFCS is legally authorized to provide emergency care and supervision to a child without seeking a court order for a period not to exceed seven calendar days when there is an emergency or illness involving the person having physical and legal custody of the child that renders them unable to provide care and supervision; and the child is not at imminent risk of child abuse other than the risk of being without a caregiver. Once executed, the STEC authorization gives DFCS the same rights and powers regarding the child as the parent, guardian or legal custodian including the authority to consent to medical care.

The request for STEC (emergency or illness) may only be accepted from the following legally authorized individuals:

1. Parent(s), guardian, or legal custodian
2. Law enforcement officer
3. Emergency personnel employed by a licensed ambulance provider
4. Fire rescue personnel
5. Hospital administrator or designee

At any point, during the seven calendar days STEC period, the parent, guardian, or legal custodian may authorize a designated caregiver. A designated caregiver is a person who has agreed to assume care and supervision of the child during the emergency or illness. The parent, guardian, or legal custodian may designate whomever he/she wishes as a caregiver. While the aforementioned individuals are legally authorized to request a STEC (Emergency or Illness), they are not legally authorized to designate a caregiver for the child. When the parent, guardian or legal custodian designates a caregiver and there is reason to believe their cognitive ability is compromised, consult with the treating physician to confirm competency, and request the physician complete the Physician Confirmation of Capacity of Physical & Legal Custodian section of the Emergency Care and Supervision of Child Without a Court Order (Authorization)/(Termination).

Immediately following executing STEC agreement, DFCS is responsible for initiating contact with the designated caregiver to determine their willingness and ability to assume physical custody of the child. During contact, the SSCM should be observing for any obvious signs of psychological, emotional, or intellectual limitations that could impair their ability to care for the child (e.g., mental impairment, the influence of medication, drugs, or alcohol). Confirmation of the designated caregiver's identity must be obtained by reviewing and making a copy of a valid picture identification. The STEC (Emergency or Illness) agreement must be terminated prior to releasing the child to the designated caregiver. When there are concerns about the designated caregiver's ability to provide care and supervision, consult with the SSS to determine next steps.

Terminating the STEC, relieves DFCS of all responsibility for the child. Terminate the STEC, by completing the Emergency Care and Supervision of a Child Without a Court Order (Termination) form. The STEC must be terminated, when either of the following occurs:

1. The parent, guardian, legal custodian, or designated caregiver assumes care and supervision of the child; or
2. DFCS filed a dependency petition in Juvenile Court seeking temporary legal custody of the child.

Time Limits for Short Term Emergency Care

STEC is allowable by law for up to seven calendar days. When the legal custodian or designated caregiver is unable to assume care and supervision of the child within seven calendar days of executing the STEC (emergency or illness) agreement, DFCS must seek temporary legal custody of the child (see policy 17.1 Legal: The Juvenile Court Process). DFCS must also make a new report to the CICC to initiate an investigation.

Practice Guidance

DFCS is legally authorized to provide emergency care and supervision to any child without seeking a court order for a period not to exceed seven calendar days when the child is a victim of human trafficking (labor or sexual servitude) and one or more of the following circumstances apply:

1. The child's legal residence is outside of Georgia and contact with the state's child welfare agency will be or has been initiated for transfer of custody or contact has been made with the parent(s) to regain physical custody of the child.
2. The child is a national of another country (someone other than a U.S. citizen or U.S. permanent or temporary legal resident alien) and contact will be initiated with the consulate where the child has citizenship to facilitate the child's return to his/her country of origin.
3. There is concern that the child will return to the human trafficking situation and a secure facility is required and will be available within seven calendar days.

Any person who has knowledge of the human trafficking and has reason to believe it's true can make a request for STEC (Human Trafficking). However, prior to executing a STEC (Human Trafficking) DFCS must determine the circumstances meet the criteria for a Special Circumstance STEC (Human Trafficking). Human trafficking is a form of maltreatment; therefore, an investigation must be conducted within the Special Circumstance Short Term Emergency Care (Human Trafficking) unless there is an active or previously conducted investigation concerning the human trafficking allegations. The investigation is not required to be concluded or substantiated to determine the child is a human trafficking victim; the child's or law enforcement's confirmation is sufficient to qualify the child as a victim for the purposes of STEC (Human Trafficking).

Once executed, the STEC (Human Trafficking) agreement gives DFCS the same rights and powers regarding the child as the parent, including the authority to consent to medical care. At any point, during the even calendar day STEC period, the legal custodian may authorize a designated caregiver. A designated caregiver is a person or facility who will assume care and supervision of the child. The legal custodian may designate whomever he/she wishes as a caregiver of the child. The child can be released to the person having custody at the time the child was taken into DFCS custody or the designated caregiver, at any time during the seven days STEC period. Upon releasing the child terminate the STEC (Human Trafficking) agreement by completing the Emergency Care and Supervision of a Child Without a Court Order (Termination) form to relieve DFCS of custody and all responsibility for the child.

When the parent(s), designated caregiver (person of facility), or child welfare agency in the state of the child's legal residence is unable to assume care and supervision of the child within seven calendar days of executing STEC (Human Trafficking) agreement, DFCS is required to file a dependency petition in Juvenile Court seeking temporary legal custody of the child (see policy 17.1 Legal: The Juvenile Court Process).

STEC Human Trafficking/Child is a Resident of Another State

When DFCS accepts a STEC (Human Trafficking) when the child is resident of another state contact should immediately be made with the state's child welfare agency to arrange for the transfer of custody or with the child's parents to regain physical custody of the child.

STEC Human Trafficking/Child is a Foreign National of Another Country

When DFCS accepts a STEC (Human Trafficking) when the child is a foreign national contact should immediately be made with the consulate where the child has citizenship in accordance with policy 10.01 Foster Care: Placement of a Child to arrange for the transfer of custody to repatriate the child.

STEC Human Trafficking/Secure Facility Required

For DFCS to accept a STEC (Human Trafficking) request when there is concern that the child will return to the human trafficking situation, the designated caregiver must be a secure facility where the child has a confirmed acceptance or is expected to be enrolled within seven calendar days. However, at any time during the seven calendar days the legal custodian can request the child be returned to him/her or to a designated caregiver (person of facility). During the seven days, actively work with the parent in accordance with the Human Trafficking Case Management Statewide Protocol to enroll the child in the designated secure facility.

6. Notify the parent(s) of the court's decision to place the child in DFCS custody, when applicable.
7. File a dependency petition in Juvenile Court after the preliminary protective hearing if there is a continued belief that the child's life or health is in danger as a result of suspected abuse.

Procedures

Social Services Case Manager

1. Review the intake assessment and thoroughly evaluate all information gathered including:
 - a. The name of the physician taking custody and the time it occurred.
 - b. The circumstances that presented imminent danger to the child.
 - c. The child's current location and condition.
 - d. Whether Juvenile Court authorized for the child to be placed into DFCS custody.

Follow the procedures outlined in 5.1 Investigations: Conducting an Investigation if juvenile court does not grant legal custody of the child to DFCS subsequent to a physician taking temporary protective custody of a child without a court order and without parental consent.

- e. The presence of maltreatment.
 - f. The physician's efforts to contact the parent(s) to notify of the decision to take the child into protective custody.
2. Contact the reporter, and/or physician when clarification and/or additional information related to child safety and the allegation(s) of maltreatment is needed.
3. Consult with the Social Services Supervisor (SSS) to discuss the information gathered, next steps, and any immediate needs of the child that may impact his/her placement in foster care.
4. Take physical custody of the child:
 - a. Within six hours of receipt of the intake report indicating the child has been placed in DFCS custody when the child remains in the physical custody of the physician.

A child who meets the requirements for inpatient admission can be retained in a hospital, other medical institution, or facility until the child is medically ready for discharge.

- b. Immediately when a child was brought before the court by a law enforcement officer and placed in DFCS custody subsequent to a physician taking custody of the child without a court order and without parental consent.
5. Arrange for a placement in accordance with policy 10.1 Foster Care: Placement of a Child.
6. Notify the parent(s) of the court's decision to place the child in DFCS custody, and the date and time of the preliminary protective hearing.
7. Conduct an Investigation in accordance with policy 5.1 Investigations: Conducting an Investigation.
8. Request the Special Assistant Attorney General (SAAG) file a dependency petition in Juvenile Court after the preliminary protective hearing if there is a continued belief that the child's life or health is in danger as a result of suspected abuse in accordance with policy 17.1 Legal: The Juvenile Court Process.

Social Services Supervisor

1. Review the intake assessment and conduct a staffing with the assigned SSCM prior to the initial contact to discuss:
 - a. The circumstances that presented imminent danger to the child
 - b. Allegations of child abuse
 - c. The child's current location and condition
 - d. Legal status of the child (DFCS or parental custody)
 - e. Plan to respond immediately or within six hours
 - f. Strategies for engaging the parent(s) (see policy 5.2 Investigations: Purposeful Contacts During an Investigation)
2. Ensure physical custody of the child is taken:
 - a. Within six hours of receipt of the intake report indicating the child has been placed in DFCS custody when the child remains in the physical custody of the physician; or
 - b. Immediately when a child was brought before the court by a law enforcement officer and placed in DFCS custody subsequent to a physician taking custody of the child without a court order and without parental consent.
3. Provide guidance to the SSCM in arranging a placement for the child in accordance with policy 10.1 Foster Care: Placement of a Child.
4. Provide oversight of the investigation in accordance with policy 5.1 Investigations: Conducting an Investigation.

Practice Guidance

A physician taking temporary protective custody a child without a court order and without the consent of the child's parent guardian, or legal custodian must:

1. Have reasonable cause to believe that the child is in a circumstance or condition that presents imminent danger to the child's life or health as a result of suspected abuse or neglect; or
2. Determine there is reasonable cause to believe that the child has been abused or neglected and there is not sufficient time for a court order to be obtained for temporary custody of the child before the child may be removed from the presence of the physician.

This special circumstance contains allegations of maltreatment, therefore, in addition to the requirements and procedures detailed within this policy an investigation must be conducted within the Special Circumstance Temporary Protective Custody of Child by Physician. An investigation is conducted on assigned Special Circumstance Temporary Protective Custody of Child by Physician when a physician takes protective custody of a child without a court order and without parental consent regardless of the court's decision to grant custody of the child to DFCS or to allow custody of the child to remain with the parent(s).

Discussion

Georgia Division of Family and Children Services (DFCS) strives to provide services and resources to keep children in their homes with their families whenever possible. When children cannot remain safely with their parents, DFCS recognizes that children thrive best in kinship care and through its Kinship Continuum prioritizes placement with kinship caregivers as the preferred and best option for children.

Kinship care is the full-time care and nurturing of a child by a relative or fictive kin (an individual with a significant connection to the child, such as a close family friend). Kinship relationships should be respected based on the family's cultural values and emotional ties. Research shows that kinship care reduces trauma to the child by maintaining family bonds, connections, traditions, a sense of belonging, and identity for the child. Further, kinship care increases placement stability and permanency for children and creates an opportunity to strengthen the family.

DFCS's Kinship Continuum includes voluntary kinship arrangements to prevent children from entering foster care, and kinship foster care placements when children must enter foster care. DFCS makes diligent efforts to identify and locate relatives or committed individuals who has a significant relationship with the child who can safely care for them while parents receive treatment and services.

While the goal for children in kinship care is to safely return home with their parents, kinship caregivers are encouraged to support the goal of a safe return home but remain willing to provide a permanent home if children cannot return home. Kinship caregivers can assist families by providing safe, loving environments for the children, being positive role models for the parents, and generally supporting the families through difficult times.

It is important for DFCS staff to understand the family dynamics and relationships and provide full disclosure so that everyone is aware of all aspects of the process to support positive outcome for children and families.

Kinship (Kin)

Kin includes relatives and fictive kin. A relative is someone defined by blood, marriage or adoption, including the spouse of any of those persons even if the marriage was terminated by death or divorce. Fictive kin is a person who is not related to the child by blood, marriage, or adoption but who prior to his or her placement in foster care is known to the family, has a substantial and positive relationship with the child, and is willing and able to provide a suitable home for the child. Kinship caregivers may include:

- Grandparents
- Siblings
- Extended family members
- Tribal members
- Godparents
- Anyone with a “family like” relationship with the child

Voluntary Kinship

Voluntary Kinship serves as the foundation of Kinship Care. The purpose of voluntary kinship is to serve as a safety and crisis intervention modality that works to stabilize the family dynamic and utilizes the Solution Based Casework tenants (“natural helpers”) and practices to address the identified safety threats leading to the need for temporary out of home placement via an out of home Safety Plan.

Kinship Foster Care

Kinship foster care may become necessary if safety threats cannot be mitigated via an in-home safety plan, voluntary kinship, or if the condition for return were not met within the 90-day voluntary kinship arrangement. Kinship caregivers typically are motivated by a desire or obligation to step in at a critical moment to meet the caregiving needs for a specific child when a biological parent/caregiver is unable. A growing body of research confirms that, in most circumstances, kinship foster care is the best option when children cannot live with their own parents. Several studies have found that children in kinship foster care are better able to adjust to their new environment and are less likely to experience behavioral problems and psychiatric disorders than those in the general foster care population. Finally, children in kinship foster care experience fewer school disruptions than children in non-kin foster care, and their sense of identity and self-esteem is reinforced.

Kinship Assessment

Child safety is paramount when identifying kinship caregivers. It is vital for all frontline staff to ensure that children are being placed in a home that will meet the child’s needs for safety, permanency, and well-being. The Kinship Assessment is an evaluation of the kinship caregiver(s), the home environment and the capacity of the kinship caregiver(s) to safely meet the needs of the children.

Kinship Coordinators

Kinship Coordinators partner with kinship caregivers to identify needs of the caregivers and children that would impact the kinship caregivers' ability to provide adequate care for the child(ren). They assist kinship families in identifying and locating resources within their local community, and work to close gaps and/or delays in service delivery to kinship caregivers.

Requirements

The Division of Family and Children Services (DFCS) will:

1. Request a parent/legal guardian consider a voluntary kinship arrangement, when it is determined that an out-of-home safety plan is necessary to control safety threats that can be resolved or mitigated within 90 calendar days.

A voluntary kinship arrangement shall not be considered in situations involving chronic and/or severe abuse or neglect issues. Such situations should be addressed with juvenile court intervention.

2. Inform the parent(s) or legal guardian(s) who are considering utilizing a voluntary kinship:
 - a. An out-of-home safety plan to address current safety threat(s) must be completed prior to the child entering the home of the voluntary kinship caregiver.
 - b. The decision to allow a child to stay with a kinship caregiver is a voluntary option and is not legally binding.
 - c. Consensus must be reached on the specific circumstances or behaviors that must exist for the child to be safely returned home.
 - d. The recommended parent-child contact during the voluntary kinship arrangement.

- e. The parent/legal guardian remains financially responsible for their child.
 - f. The parent/legal guardian must enter into a Voluntary Kinship Arrangement Agreement with the agency.

3. Complete a Kinship Assessment to assess the suitability of the voluntary kinship caregiver(s) to temporarily care for a child(ren) and to assess the physical home environment, prior to the child entering the home.

The Kinship Assessment should only be completed following the child entering the kinship caregiver's home if the voluntary kinship arrangement was established in an emergency.

4. Notify the Regional Kinship Coordinator of the voluntary kinship arrangement.
5. Provide full disclosure to the kinship caregiver(s) within 48 hours of the child entering their home to explain the kinship caregiver's roles and responsibilities, service provision, financial and non-financial supports, and available options.
6. Conduct a Kinship Caregiver Needs Assessment within three calendar days of the Kinship Coordinator's initial contact with the kinship caregivers to identify services or supports needed to successfully care for the child(ren) during the voluntary kinship arrangement.
7. Provide or arrange for individualized services to address identified needs based on the developmental challenges the family is experiencing in their everyday lives, within 72 hours of identifying the need.
8. Conduct a family meeting within 7-10 business days of the child entering the voluntary kinship caregiver's home to build consensus on the roles and responsibilities of the kinship caregivers, parents/legal guardians and DFCS.
9. Initiate family preservation services (FPS) when it is determined that the case circumstance require additional DFCS interventions, or the voluntary kinship arrangement will extend beyond the investigation timeframe.
10. Conduct purposeful contact(s) with the parent, voluntary kinship caregiver and the child every 14 calendar days while the child remains in the voluntary kinship caregiver's home.
11. Monitor service provision by engaging formal and informal providers at a minimum bi-weekly to assess the sufficiency of the services to address the identified need(s) and progress toward meeting the conditions of return.

A formal Family Team Meeting (FTM) may not be needed if the family is progressing well and it appears that the child will return home safely within 90 days.

16. Prior to the expiration of the Voluntary Kinship Arrangement Agreement conduct a case evaluation to determine if safety can be managed in the home of the parents/legal guardians:
 - a. When safety can be managed in the home, terminate the voluntary kinship agreement; or
 - b. When safety cannot be managed in the home, initiate legal intervention.

When necessary to expedite legal intervention to ensure the safety of the child DFCS may seek a temporary alternative to foster care (TAFC) order in accordance with policy 17.1 Legal: The Juvenile Court Process.

17. Terminate the voluntary kinship arrangement within 90 days of the child(ren) entering the kinship caregiver's home.
18. Convene a FTM at any time, while the child remains in a voluntary kinship caregiver's home to resolve issues or concerns (see policy 19.3 Case Management: Solution-Focused Family Team Meetings).

10. Maintain communication with the SSCM.

Practice Guidance

Kinship Care

The fulltime care and nurturing of a child by someone who is related to the child by family ties or by a significant prior relationship connection, including:

- Grandparents
- Siblings
- Extended family members
- Tribal members
- Godparents
- Stepparents
- Anyone with a “family like” relationship with the child

Some situations that may result in a voluntary kinship care arrangement could be, but are not limited to:

1. An immediate safety threat to a child currently exists, and safety cannot be ensured in the home while services are provided.
2. Allegations of abuse or neglect by the parent(s) exist, but evidence is not sufficient to take the child into DFCS custody; however, child safety cannot be assured while the allegations are being assessed.
3. Parent(s) decide voluntarily to have their child live with relatives while the parents receive treatment for substance abuse or mental health.

Kinship Care Consideration

It is often the best circumstance for a child in need of care to be placed with someone whom, he/she has an existing relationship. When children cannot remain safely with their parents, care provided by kin is preferred to maintain family connections and minimize trauma to the child. When considering a voluntary kinship arrangement, the SSCM has a vital role in helping the parent(s)/legal guardian(s) in determining if the use of a voluntary kinship is a viable option for their family by explaining what is and what to expect during a voluntary kinship arrangement.

The SSCM, in collaboration with parents, should identify potential kin who can safely care for the child while parents receive services to help them address the issues that brought the child to the attention of child welfare and render them unsafe in the home. Factors to consider in identifying potential voluntary kinship caregivers:

1. Who would the parent most want to care for the child?
2. Who does the parent most often turn to in time of crisis?
3. Who has cared for the child in the past when parents were unable to?
4. With whom does the child have a close relationship?
5. Who does the parent feel most comfortable with sharing confidential information?
6. Voluntary kinship caregiver's relationship to the child and length of involvement with the family.
7. Description of the voluntary kinship caregiver's involvement with the family, i.e., provided care for the child and/or parent, assisted the family through crisis, provided moral support, member of church or community organization, neighbor, etc.
8. Whether the voluntary kinship caregiver ever resided in the home with the parent or child and, if so, how long and when.

A voluntary kinship arrangement should not be considered in situations involving chronic and/or severe child maltreatment. Such situations should be addressed with court intervention. In addition, a voluntary kinship caregiver should not be used when the safety threat cannot be mitigated or resolved within 90 calendar days or less. Circumstances that may require more than 90 days to resolve the safety threats should be staffed with the Supervisor and the SAAG consulted to determine the need for legal intervention. When voluntary kinships are utilized improperly, it can have a negative impact on the family, and result in the unnecessary placement of a child into foster care.

Out-of-State Voluntary Kinship Caregivers

DFCS shall not support the use of out-of-state voluntary kinship caregivers unless an Interstate Compact on the Placement of Children (ICPC) border agreement exists between the county and the other state. See policy 15.8 Interstate Compact on the Placement of Children: Border Agreements.

Non-Custodial Parents and Voluntary Kinship Caregivers

Non-custodial parents (absent parents, biological fathers, putative fathers, legal fathers, or biological mothers who do not reside with their child) are not voluntary kinship caregivers. The parent/legal guardian can elect to have a non-custodial parent care for their child in lieu of a voluntary kinship caregiver. Non-custodial parents providing care for their child is not a voluntary kinship arrangement. Under these circumstances, DFCS still has the responsibility to ensure child safety in the non-custodial parent's home. This includes conducting safety assessments and developing an in-home safety plan with the non-custodial parents to address identified safety issues and strategies (example: how long the child will reside with the non-custodial parent, custodial parent contact, access to the maltreater, etc.) (see policy 19.12 Case Management: Safety Plan & Management).

When the Parent/Legal Guardian Moves In

When a parent/legal guardian moves into the home of the voluntary kinship caregiver, it is no longer a voluntary kinship arrangement. When this occurs, terminate the voluntary kinship arrangement in Georgia SHINES and conduct a safety assessment to evaluate child safety (see policy 19.11 Case Management: Safety Assessment) to determine if a new or updated safety plan is needed.

Conditions for Return

Conditions for return are written statements related to the safety (present or impending dangers) and risk issues identified that justified implementing an out-of-home safety plan. These statements describe what needs to occur before the child(ren) can safely return to their home and are specific to a parent/legal guardian and/or the home environment. Statements must include:

1. The safety concerns and diminished caregiver protective capacities that created the need for the child(ren) to reside out of the home;
2. The specific conditions and circumstances required for the safe return of the child (based upon the type and degree of change that is needed);
3. How the changes will be implemented to achieve the safe and successful resolution of the safety concerns and the child(ren)'s return home; and
4. The parent(s)/legal guardian(s) response to intervention and willingness to make the changes necessary for the child(ren) to return home.

Parent-Child Contact Recommendations

The parent-child relationship should be protected and can be strengthened throughout a child's time in the home of a voluntary kinship caregiver by ensuring parents are fully encouraged and supported to participate in parenting activities and decisions. When considering parent-child contact during the voluntary kinship arrangement, safety is paramount. However, it is necessary to also consider the benefits of quality time children spend with their parents. The least limiting option necessary to ensure child safety should be recommended. In rare circumstances, DFCS may need to recommend no parent-child contact during a voluntary kinship arrangement to ensure child safety. These instances should be limited in duration, resolved quickly and safety assessed frequently to determine if parent-child contact can resume.

7-10 Day Family Meeting

The 7-10 day family meeting allows the family and kinship caregivers to build consensus on the roles and responsibilities of the kinship caregivers, parents/legal guardians and DFCS during the voluntary kinship arrangement. Individuals who play a role in supporting the family during Voluntary Kinship Arrangement should be included in the 7-10 day family meeting:

1. Parent(s)/legal guardian(s)
2. Investigations and Family Preservation SSCM
3. Voluntary kinship caregiver(s)
4. Kinship Coordinator

5. Service provider(s)
6. Child (if age appropriate)

While preparing for and conducting the 7-10 day family meeting, adhere to confidentiality and protected health information (PHI) laws. See policy 19.3 Case Management: Solution-Focused Family Team Meetings for procedures for preparing the family and their family team members for the meeting. This includes exploring if disclosure of confidential information and/or PHI is relevant to addressing child safety and necessary for the purpose of the meeting and obtaining informed consent prior to disclosure.

The family meeting should:

1. Define the roles and responsibilities of all the kinship caregivers and discuss the requirements of the out-of-home safety plan;
2. Develop a plan with the parent and the voluntary kinship caregiver(s) to ensure the minimal disruption to the child's life and the child's needs are being met, including parent-child contact (if applicable);
3. Identify who is responsible for transporting the child to and from school, how medical needs will be addressed and any other well-being concerns;
4. Further explore the voluntary kinship caregiver's capacity to continue the care of the child on a temporary basis;
5. Explain the parent/caregiver remains financially responsible for the child while in the care of the voluntary kinship caregiver(s);
6. Clearly articulate that the child is not in DFCS custody;
7. Discuss alternative safety responses, including foster care or an in-home safety plan.

Kinship Caregiver 45th Day Meeting

The Kinship Caregiver 45th day meeting assists the SSCM, family and kinship caregivers in ensuring that the case is progressing as needed to return the child(ren) home within the 90-day timeframe. The meeting should be used to discuss:

1. The parent(s)/legal guardian(s) progress toward meeting the conditions of return;
2. Any additional safety threats that exist;
3. Barriers to returning the child home within the 90-day timeframe;
4. Families' progress with services;
5. The voluntary kinship caregiver's willingness to be a placement resource, if the child enters foster care; and
6. Next steps to ensure permanency for the children.

The case manager and supervisor must be honest and transparent with the family about the status of their case and the likelihood of them meeting the 90-day timeframe. The 45th day kinship caregiver meeting should be heavily focused on resolving or mitigating the safety threats that exist and prevent the child(ren) from returning home within the 90-day time frame.

The 45th day meeting may be conducted in conjunction with the initial FPS FTM if all areas are addressed.

Addressing Barriers and/or Lack of Progress in Voluntary Kinship Care

Barriers are defined as circumstances that prevent the parent/legal guardian(s) from obtaining the conditions of returns. When barriers arise, they should be thoroughly evaluated, including determining how the barriers impact safety. Engage the family, voluntary kinship caregivers, and service providers regarding the barriers and how it is impacting the parent(s)/legal guardian(s) from obtaining the conditions of return. Hold an FTM with the family, supervisor, Kinship Coordinator and the voluntary kinship caregiver to develop a plan to overcome the barrier(s). Some barriers may not be able to be addressed immediately. In addition, some barriers may require court interventions to allot time for the family and permanency for the children. If it is determined that court intervention is needed, make every effort to discuss within the FTM.

Multiple Voluntary Kinship Caregivers

In cases, involving large sibling groups it may be necessary to have multiple voluntary kinship caregivers. If multiple kinship caregivers are needed ensure the Kinship Assessment is completed for each voluntary kinship caregiver. Invite each voluntary kinship caregiver to the family meeting and ensure that communication with each caregiver is maintained during the voluntary kinship arrangement. There may also be times when a child has to be moved to another voluntary kinship caregiver during the 90-day time frame. If this occurs a family meeting should be convened to ensure everyone is clear on the expectations and timeframe for the kinship placement. A kinship assessment must be completed for the new voluntary kinship caregiver.

The 90-calendar day timeframe for a child to be in a voluntary kinship caregiver is calculated cumulatively from the date the initial voluntary kinship arrangement went into effect and does not begin again when/if a child has to be moved to another voluntary kinship caregiver. Under no circumstances should a child be in a voluntary kinship arrangement beyond 90 calendar days.

Kinship Coordinator

The Kinship Coordinators partner with kinship caregivers to identify needs of the caregivers and children that would impact the kinship caregivers' ability to provide adequate care for the child(ren). Following the Kinship Caregiver Needs Assessment, the Kinship Coordinator will partner with the SSCM to provide or arrange individualized services to address the identified needs. This includes providing kinship caregivers with information about how to access health care for the child, financial support and public benefits, legal assistance, emergency services, etc. and/or linking the kinship caregiver with community services such as support groups and counseling. In addition, kinship caregivers are provided information on the court system, including the different types of hearings, court procedures, and the kinship caregiver's role in any court proceedings. The Kinship Coordinator's involvement begins at the initiation of out-of-home care with a kinship caregiver and continues until the voluntary kinship arrangement is no longer needed or through the continuum if the child must enter foster care and is placed in a foster care kinship resource.

Full Disclosure

Full disclosures will be provided to the voluntary kinship caregiver by the Kinship Coordinator when the child(ren) enters the home of the kinship caregiver.

1. Explain the role and responsibilities of a voluntary kinship caregiver.
2. Ensure that the kinship caregiver is willing to maintain the child(ren)'s safety and well-being.
3. Identify the role the kinship caregiver(s) has in assisting the parent(s)/legal guardian(s) in achieving the conditions for return.
4. Explain agency terms and definitions (i.e. kinship caregiver, TAFC, conditions for return), including DFCS requirement to abide by HIPAA) and confidentiality standards.
5. Explore the available services.
6. Inform of legal options and financial support.
7. Advise how to access the Kinship Navigator Program.
8. Explore short term and long-term implications for caring for a child(ren) who is unable to live with their parent(s)/legal guardian(s).
9. Provide the Kinship Pathway to help kin caregivers navigate DFCS.
10. Advise decisions will be made in partnership with the family based upon individual needs of the child(ren) and family, while considering safety, permanency, and well-being.

Although full disclosure is the discussion with the kinship caregiver, information will also be provided in writing to the kin caregivers via the Kinship Pathways. The kinship caregiver(s) will sign the Disclosure Statement Form acknowledging the discussion and receipt of the written information. The Kinship Coordinator will provide subsequent updated full disclosures when the permanency plan changes (i.e. non-reunification, adoption) or there is change in the kinship caregiver's role (i.e. a kinship placement caregiver that transitioning into a kinship foster parent).

Kinship Caregiver Needs Assessment

Kinship Caregiver Needs Assessment is a conduit to facilitate a discussion with the kinship caregivers regarding the tangible needs they will require to successfully care for the child(ren). The Needs Assessment assists the parent, kinship caregivers, case manager, and community providers to accurately identify what services and supports would be needed to strengthen the out-of-home arrangement. The Kinship Caregiver Needs Assessment is an ongoing evaluation that is child and caregiver focused. Every kinship caregiver will have different needs based on their parenting experience and skills, prior knowledge of the child, and community resource knowledge. It should be expected that the identified needs of the kinship caregiver will change throughout the agency involvement.

Power of Attorney

The Power of Attorney (POA) is a legal agreement between the parent(s)/legal guardian(s) and the voluntary kinship caregiver that enables the voluntary kinship caregiver to act in the parent's place on behalf of the child. A POA is used to support the voluntary kinship caregivers during a voluntary kinship arrangement, in instances where the parent is not readily available or accessible to exercise their parental authority such as registering the child in school and authorizing medical care or treatment.

Prior to initiating the voluntary kinship arrangement, the SSCM will inform the parent(s)/legal guardian(s) of the option of entering into a POA with the voluntary kinship caregiver. The parent(s)/legal guardian(s)' decision to enter into the POA is their own and they should be encouraged to consult an attorney about any concerns prior to initiating the POA. If the parent(s)/legal guardian(s) wish to establish a POA, inform the parent(s)/legal guardian(s) the following:

1. The parent(s)/legal guardian(s) and voluntary kinship caregiver is responsible for completing the POA.
2. The parent(s)/legal guardian(s) and voluntary kinship caregiver need to file the POA in the probate court of the county where the child resides.
3. The voluntary kinship caregiver must maintain an original POA as proof of their authority to make decisions of behalf of the child.
4. A copy of the POA needs to be provided to the DFCS SSCM.
5. The parent(s)/legal guardian(s) has the right to dissolve the POA.

The POA does not terminate the parent's legal authority/right or dismiss DFCS involvement.

Practice Guidance

Kinship Care

Kinship care is the full-time care and nurturing of a child by a relative or someone with a significant emotional connection to the child, such as a close family friend, when parents are not able to provide care. Kin includes:

- Grandparents
- Siblings
- Extended family members
- Tribal members
- Godparents
- Stepparents
- Anyone with a “family like” relationship with the child

When out-of-home care is needed, kinship care is the preferred option because it can reduce trauma and help children maintain family bonds, a sense of belonging, and their identity. Research shows that children benefit from kinship care in many ways. Kinship care can reduce the trauma that children may have previously endured and the trauma that accompanies parental separation by providing them with a sense of stability and belonging in an otherwise unsettling time. Kinship care has the following benefits:

- Connections with a child’s birth family, extended family, siblings, and community—bonds that are essential to well-being
- Minimize trauma
- Preservation of cultural identity
- Increase the chances the siblings will remain together
- Placement stability compared to children in other out-of-home care arrangements

Prospective kinship caregivers should be provided all the information on the child’s needs and situation to allow the prospective caregiver and DFCS to make the best possible placement decision for the child.

Success of Placement with Kinship Caregivers

The success of placement with a kinship caregiver(s) can be positively impacted by:

1. The extent of kin caregiver’s preparation for meeting the child(ren)’s needs.
2. The accuracy of their kin caregiver’s perceptions of the requirements for managing the child(ren) and his/her needs (i.e., medical, physical, emotional, educational, and/or behavioral issues).
3. The open communication and information sharing between the DFCS, the family and kinship caregivers.
4. Their kin caregiver’s familiarity with and commitment to abide by the agency’s requirements regarding children in out-of-home placements.

Placement with a kinship caregiver(s) may not be appropriate when:

1. Child abuse has been substantiated on the kinship caregiver.
2. Unsatisfactory criminal records checks are received.
3. Safety concerns are identified.
4. They are unable to meet the on-going needs of the child(ren).
5. Parental interference in the placement would negatively affect the child(ren).
6. They are not willing to accept the placement.
7. They are openly or passively hostile or negative toward the parents, child(ren) or DFCS.
8. They are unable or unwilling to protect the child(ren) from risks or harm from others.
9. They are unable or unwilling to comply with agency or court ordered visitation plans or outcome of reunification.

Kinship Coordinator

The Kinship Coordinators partner with kinship caregivers to identify needs of the caregivers and children that would impact the kinship caregivers' ability to provide adequate care for the children. Following the Kinship Needs Assessment, the Kinship Coordinator will partner with the SSCM to provide or arrange individualized services to address the identified needs. This includes providing kinship caregivers with information about how to access health care, financial support and public benefits, legal assistance, emergency services, respite etc. and/or linking the kinship caregiver with community services such as support groups and counseling. In addition, kinship caregivers are provided information on the court system, including the different types of hearings, court procedures, and the kinship caregiver's role in any court proceedings. The Kinship Coordinator's involvement begins at the initiation of out-of-home care with a kinship caregiver and continues until the kinship arrangement or placement is no longer needed.

Full Disclosure

Full disclosures will be provided to the voluntary kinship caregiver by the Kinship Coordinator when the child(ren) enters the home of the kinship caregiver.

1. Explain the role and responsibilities of a voluntary kinship caregiver.
2. Ensure that the kinship caregiver is willing to maintain the child(ren)'s safety and well-being.
3. Identify the role kinship caregiver(s) has in assisting the parent(s)/guardian(s)/legal custodian(s) in achieving the conditions for return.
4. Explain agency terms and definitions (i.e. kinship caregiver, TAFC, conditions for return), including DFCS requirement to abide by Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act (HIPAA) and confidentiality standards.
5. Explore the available services.
6. Inform of legal options and financial support.
7. Advise how to access the Kinship Navigator Program.
8. Explore short term and long-term implications for caring for a child(ren) who is unable to live with their parent(s)/guardian(s)/legal custodian(s).

9. Provide the Kinship Pathway to help kin caregivers navigate DFCS.
10. Advise decisions will be made in partnership with the family based upon individual needs of the child(ren) and family, while considering safety, permanency, and well-being.

Although full disclosure is the discussion with the kinship caregiver, information will also be provided in writing to the kin caregivers via the Kinship Pathways. The kinship caregiver(s) will sign the Disclosure Statement Form acknowledging the discussion and receipt of the written information. The Kinship Coordinator will provide subsequent updated full disclosures when the permanency plan changes (i.e. non-reunification, adoption) or there is change in the kinship caregiver's role (i.e. a kinship placement caregiver that transitioning into a kinship foster parent).

Kinship Needs Assessment

Kinship Caregiver Needs Assessment is a conduit to facilitate a discussion with the kinship caregivers regarding the tangible needs they will require to successfully care for the child(ren). The Needs Assessment assists the parent, kinship caregivers, case manager, and community providers to accurately identify what services and supports would be needed to strengthen the out-of-home arrangement. The Kinship Needs Assessment is an ongoing evaluation that is child and caregiver focused. Every kinship caregiver will have different needs based on their parenting experience and skills, prior knowledge of the child, and community resource knowledge. It should be expected that the identified needs of the kinship caregiver will change throughout the agency involvement.

Tips for Supporting Kinship Caregivers

The following Tips should be considered when placing a child with Kin/ Fictive Kin Caregivers:

1. Ensure the caregiver is informed and supported throughout the kinship assessment and foster home evaluation process.
2. Maintain regular contact with the regional kinship coordinator and the resource development staff to assist with kinship placements.
3. Ensure the safety screens are completed prior to initiating a home assessment.
4. Inform the caregiver of the timeframes and keep them abreast of any delays.
5. Work with the caregiver to get forms or other information that may be needed to expedite the process.
6. Proactively address any barriers to the foster care kinship placement or foster home evaluation approval process.
7. Consideration should be given to approving the Abbreviated Kinship Assessment and the Subsidy Application simultaneously to ensure continuity of approval dates.

Kinship Assessments Across County Lines

Practice Guidance

Structured Analysis Family Evaluation (SAFE) Home Study Components

The SAFE Home Study is a placement document, an investigation, a psychosocial evaluation, and a clear written report. It has four components:

1. Information Gathering Tools - These tools support the Home Study Report and are designed to prompt the HSP to ask questions not provide answers:
 - a. Questionnaire 1 (Q1) - It is completed by each applicant and covers eight areas of family history and functioning (i.e., Personal History; Parenting Practices; Personal and Family Values; Health; Support System; Work; Family Relationships; Marital/Partner Relationship).
 - b. Q1 Harvesting Sheet - It is used to review the Prospective Caregiver Application, Q1 and other documents submitted by applicants. It helps organize information to provide a complete overview of each applicant's specific issues, behaviors, or events that should be addressed in upcoming home study interviews.
 - c. Questionnaire 2 (Q2) - It contains the sensitive and critical questions that need to be addressed in a home study (i.e., problem issues/behaviors; personal alcohol consumption; personal legal/illegal drug usage; family substance abuse; history of sexual, emotional, or physical victimization; child abuse allegations/convictions; family violence and crime; family sexual perpetrators; domestic violence; mental illness). Each applicant is interviewed privately and individually (one-on-one) immediately after the administration of Q2. Due to the sensitive and complex nature of these topics, this can be a very emotionally charged interview.
 - d. Reference Letter - It was designed to enable the HSP to obtain more complex information about applicants for analysis and follow-up. After receiving the SAFE Reference Letter, the HSP should speak with each reference to gather more information and seek clarification of anything in the letter. Other than indicating they received the required references, the HSP should not mention the individual references specifically in the narration of the SAFE Home Study Report. Issues raised by references should be addressed with applicants. Any issues that merit a SAFE Desk Guide Rating of 3, 4, or 5 should be discussed in the Psychosocial Evaluation Section of the SAFE Home Study Report without revealing sources.
2. Structured Analysis - SAFE has identified 70 Psychosocial Factors that research has demonstrated to be necessary for safe and effective parenting whether through adoption, kin, or foster care. The Psychosocial Inventory (PSI) and SAFE Desk Guide allow the HSP to systematically analyze information gathered during the home study process, as well facilitate a clear and uniform identification of specific family strengths and issues of concern. The PSI and Desk Guide are grouped into the following nine sections: History; Personal Characteristics; Marital/Partner Relationship; Children/Others Residing/Frequently in the Home; Extended Family Relationships; Physical/Social Environment; General Parenting; Specialized Parenting; and Adoption/Foster Care Issues.

The PSI is designed to look at a person's history of issues, concerns, behaviors, and events and determine how they affect the person's current functioning and ability to parent. The PSI strives to help the HSP determine whether an applicant can parent, and if so, who they can parent. Only one PSI is used per family and is completed after each home study visit. The SAFE Desk Guide is a severity scale that indicates the potential seriousness of an issue, behavior or event experienced by an applicant.

The PSI and SAFE Desk Guide contain research-based factors that support safe and effective family functioning and the ability to parent. The factors are rated on a scale of 1 to 5 and marked on the PSI. The ratings represent the following: 1=Exceptional Strength; 2= Strength; 3=Concern; 4=Serious Concern; 5=Extremely Serious Concern. A rating of 2 is the default rating until proven otherwise. A rating of 2 may also be used early in the home study process when the HSP does not have enough information to rate a factor. In other words, it can function as the "I don't know" rating until more information is gathered. A completed home study report should not have an abundance of "2" ratings which is not indicative of a thorough assessment. Any psychosocial factor that merits a rating of 3 (Concern), 4 (Serious Concern) or 5 (Extremely Serious Concern) must be specifically addressed in the Home Study Report. As more information is gathered during the home study interview process, a rating may move to a more serious rating, but not in reverse.

As soon as possible following each home study visit, the HSP should mark the applicable SAFE Desk Guide ratings on the PSI. Entering the ratings while the visit is still fresh in one's mind prevents one from forgetting issues of concern or confusing them with other studies. A different symbol is used to mark the ratings on the PSI for each home visit. For example, the symbol used to mark the rating for the first home study visit is a backward slash, whereas the symbol used to mark the second home study visit is a forward slash. The SAFE Desk Guide ratings should reflect everything the HSP knows up to that point. After each interview, the HSP submits the PSI to the Supervisor for review and feedback. The final SAFE Desk Guide Rating is made after the last home study visit and must be made with a high degree of confidence based on the HSP and the SAFE Supervisor's professional assessment.

3. Home Study Report – The narrative is designed to assist the HSP in focusing on the issues of concern within a family that will or could impact its ability to care for a child placed in the home. A home study should be specific to the applicant. The HSPs should use behaviorally specific language and avoid repeating the same thing throughout the study. There are six sections to a SAFE Home Study Report:
 - a. Non-narrative reporting required by the agency (i.e., general information; contact information; household demographics; medical/school reports; safety screening and criminal records history results; confirmation statements; attachments and verifications)
 - b. Motivation, Profile and Lifestyles of Applicants
 - c. SAFE Psychosocial Evaluation

- d. Conclusions and Placement Considerations
- e. Signatures and Approvals
- f. SAFE Psychosocial Inventory Results

This page should be removed when the SAFE Home Study Report is shared with applicants.

- 4. Compatibility Inventory - This is an optional matching tool designed to facilitate successful placements. This tool helps the HSP determine the willingness and ability of an applicant to parent children with certain issues and behaviors.

Home Study Interviews

The home study interview is the foundation of the home study process. The various gathering tools used with the SAFE model support the interviews and help the HSP develop questions for the applicants. HSPs learn more from applicants when applicants are interviewed at home where they are most comfortable. During interviews, HSPs should avoid using standardized questions and rushing ahead with their own agenda. Instead, the HSP should seek a natural, organic flow of communication with applicants. HSPs should trust their instincts but must be mindful of their own biases. HSPs must also remain keenly aware of non-verbal communication which guides about 80% of human interaction. No interview should take longer than an hour and a half. It is unlikely that any party will remain as alert as they need to be for longer than that period of time. Home visits should be no closer or further than a week apart because applicants need time to process the information covered between visits, but not so much time that they begin to lose information.

The initial visit to during which the Caregiver Home Inspection Safety and Compliance Checklist is completed should not be confused with a Home Study Interview. These are two different things and should not be done at the same time. The home inspection is authoritative and regulatory whereas the home study interview is collaborative and transparent. The more interviews a HSP has with an applicant, the more comfortable the HSP will be about recommending approval or denial. SAFE recommends a minimum of four interviews (three meetings) to complete an acceptable home study report. Depending on the circumstances, more than four interviews may be required. HSPs should prepare a plan for which interviews will be conducted during each visit such as the following:

Home Study Visit 1 (1st Interview)

- This is an introductory interview to develop the relationship between the HSP and the applicants.
- SAFE Questionnaire 1 (Q1) is discussed.

Home Study Visit 2 (2nd and 3rd Interview if it is a two-parent home)

- The HSP administers SAFE Questionnaire 2 (Q2), and it must never be out of the sight or control of the HSP.
- This is a one-on-one history interview. The purpose is to examine issues, behaviors, and events that affect or could affect the applicant's current functioning or ability to parent and how the applicant has resolved those issues. The focus is on past patterns of behavior.
- The HSP observes all applicants while they complete Q2. The applicants are instructed not to talk or discuss the questionnaire. When Q2 is completed, the HSP immediately interviews each applicant separately and privately. No children or other adults should be in the home when Q2 is administered. If others must remain in the home, they should not be in an area near where Q2 is being administered. The HSP must be skilled and prepared to handle sensitive and complex issues and work with emotionally charged situations.

- Q2 interviews should be no longer than 45 minutes each. However, due to their complexity, additional one-on-one/history interviews might be necessary before the marriage or support interview.

Home Study Visit 3 (4th Interview)

- This is a marriage or support interview.
- The family and others residing or frequently in the home can be interviewed at this time. The number of interviews performed will depend on the number of individuals involved.
- The HSP should examine the applicants' relationship with a focus towards the strength and dynamics of their marriage/partnership. For single applicants, the focus should be on their support systems.

Mitigation

Within the SAFE model, mitigation is where the HSP balances the truth (Final SAFE Desk Guide Ratings) and Justice (the HSP's clinical analysis of how those issues affect an applicant's current functioning and ability to parent). Mitigation is a fact or series of facts that exist to support the decision to mitigate an issue/behavior/event and must be corroborated by outside sources (e.g., other family members, professionals, clinicians). The HSP does not use the SAFE Desk Guide during the mitigation process. Mitigation is applied to all Final SAFE Desk Guide Ratings of 3, 4 and 5. Mitigation always focuses on current functioning or ability to parent rather than what happened in the past. The goal is to capture how the applicant's ability to parent is presently affected. Mitigation results in a mitigation rating using the SAFE severity scale. The mitigation rating should reflect the HSP and their supervisor's professional assessment (supported by evidence) of whether a Final SAFE Desk Guide Rating of 3, 4 or 5 is warranted based upon how an applicant is currently affected by the issue, behavior, or event. The mitigation rating is handwritten into the blank column to the right of all the Psychosocial Inventory factors with a final SAFE Desk Guide Rating of 3, 4 or 5. The three choices in mitigation are as follows:

1. Sustain: The issue/behavior/event is not resolved.
2. Reduce: The applicant has a degree of resolution, but the issue/behavior/event still affects their current functioning or ability to parent.
3. Erase: The issue/behavior/event is totally resolved and does not affect the applicant's current functioning or ability to parent.

Who is qualified to complete the SAFE Home Study?

SAFE Certified DFCS staff, SAFE Certified CPA Resource Development staff, or contractors may qualify as a SAFE Home Study Practitioner (HSP) able to complete the Initial Family Evaluation. Private contractors must meet the following criteria:

1. Certification in the SAFE model.
2. A minimum of a bachelor's level of education in Social Work, Counseling, Psychology, or a related field.
3. Ability to understand and implement the philosophy and conceptualizations inherent in pre-service training.
4. A functional understanding of the agency's mission.
5. Ability to provide thorough, well-written home studies with supported recommendations.

The SAFE Home Study Practitioner Skills Assessment can be used to help supervisors assess their Home Study Practitioners' foundational skills (engagement and forensic interviewing skills; analytical and evaluation skills; and writing skills).

Reimbursement of Expenses

If approved, applicants may be reimbursed for certain expenses incurred during the approval process. The guidelines are in Field Fiscal Services' COSTAR manual located at ffs.dhs.ga.gov/ffs/manuals/costar/index.php.

The Division of Family and Children Services (DFCS) will:

1. Complete a comprehensive, written, Structured Analysis Family Evaluation (SAFE) Update regarding the overall quality and functioning of each approved caregiver every two years, prior to the expiration of the home’s current approval period, and under the following circumstances:
 - a. There are significant changes in a household that impact the caregivers’ ability to meet the Safety and Quality standards (SQS) and the issues of concern cannot be adequately addressed through an addendum to the most recent Family Evaluation (see policy 14.14 Resource Development: Family Evaluation Addendums).
 - b. Previously approved caregivers request to return to service within five years of a voluntary closure.
2. Ensure all components of the SAFE Update follow the SAFE model (see Practice Guidance: Updating a SAFE Home Study).
 - a. The SAFE Update must be completed by a home study practitioner (HSP) who is certified in the SAFE model. The HSP may be a certified DFCS staff member, Child Placing Agency (CPA) staff member or approved contractor.
 - b. The SAFE Update process must be supervised throughout by a supervisor who is certified in the SAFE model and has successfully completed the SAFE Supervisor Training.
 - c. All home study interviews must be conducted in the applicant’s home.
 - d. Each household member must be interviewed.
 - e. Obtain input from children not currently placed in the home but were household members at some point during the previous approval period, when practical and appropriate.
 - f. The SAFE Update must include a recommendation for re-approval or disapproval and the signature of the final approving authority.
 - i. The final approving authority must be a SAFE certified DFCS County Director/Designee or CPA Director/Designee.

- ii. The date the SAFE Update is signed by the final approving authority is the official date of approval for the re-evaluation.
 - iii. If the SAFE Update is not approved timely, the foster home status must be changed from full approval status in Georgia SHINES accordingly (see policy 14.15 Resource Development: Household Approval Status).
3. Afford qualified individuals with disabilities an equal opportunity to participate in or benefit from the DFCS foster care and adoption programs (see policy 1.5 Administration: Americans with Disabilities Act \(ADA\)/Section 504 and Reasonable Modification).
4. Evaluate applicants and their household members compliance with the SQS. Review any waiver of non-safety standards previously approved for the home and determine if they are still appropriate, have expired, or need to be modified.
5. Perform applicable safety screening of all adult household members.
6. Conduct a fingerprint-based criminal records check (CRC) on all caregivers and adult household members in accordance with policy 19.8 Case Management: Criminal Records Checks. This includes household members who reached age 18 during the re-evaluation period.
7. Obtain information from the primary and secondary caregivers regarding their health.
 - a. If primary or secondary caregivers (as applicable) have any medical, cognitive, or other condition that will affect their ability to care for a child, or a chronic medical condition, then they must be medically re-evaluated during each re-evaluation period until the condition is controlled.
 - b. If primary or secondary caregivers (as applicable) do not have any medical, cognitive, or other condition that will affect their ability to care for a child, or a chronic medical condition, obtain an attestation affirming this information.
8. Request primary and secondary caregivers undergo drug screening at any time there is reasonable suspicion of substance misuse (see policy 19.25 Case Management: Drug Screens). Caregivers shall not be approved if positive results are reported for any illegal drug.
9. Evaluate primary and secondary caregivers' financial stability.
10. Verify that primary and secondary caregivers have completed the required amount of continued parent development.
11. Verify that primary and secondary caregivers have current certification in First Aid, including cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR), for the ages of the children in placed in their home.
12. Suspend completion of a SAFE Update on caregivers who are the subject of an active Policy Violation Assessment or Child Protective Services (CPS) Investigation. If no disposition has been reached by the time the SAFE Update is due, then the home shall be moved to 'unapproved' status until a decision can be made regarding the future approval status of the home.
13. Review the Caregiver Child Safety Agreement with the caregivers and obtain their signatures as confirmation of the review.
14. Review the Confidentiality and Privacy Standards Agreement with caregivers and obtain their signatures as confirmation of the review.
15. Restrict the use or disclosure of information concerning caregivers and their household members, including maintaining the privacy of protected health information (see policies 2.5 Information Management: Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act \(HIPAA\) and 2.6 Information management: Confidentiality/Safeguarding Information).

Practice Guidance

What is the purpose of the SAFE Update?

The assessment of an approved home is an ongoing process between DFCS/CPA and caregivers. A SAFE Update may be completed at any time during an approved home's one-year approval period but is usually completed just prior to the expiration of the current approval period. The key purpose of the SAFE Update is to utilize information gathered during the approval term to determine if a home continues to be a safe and suitable environment for the placement of children in foster care and meets Safety and Quality Standards. Information gathered from various sources (e.g., in-home consultation, feedback from caregivers, case managers, children placed in the home, documentation, safety screening, training logs) is used to conduct a holistic review of the caregiver and household.

SAFE Update Approval Period

No home shall have more than 24 months of approval. If a SAFE Update is completed within 30 calendar days of the due date, then the approval period (starting month to ending month) will remain the same as it was previously. If the SAFE Update is completed more than 30 calendar days early or late, then the approval period must change

Who is qualified to complete the SAFE Update?

4. A functional understanding of the agency's mission.
5. Ability to provide thorough, well-written home studies with supported recommendations.

22.6 Waiver of Non-Safety Approval Standards for Kinship Foster Homes

 Georgia Division of Family and Children Services Child Welfare Policy Manual
Chapter:	(22) Kinship
Policy Title:	Waiver of Non-Safety Approval Standards for Kinship Foster Homes
Policy Number:	22.6	Previous Policy Number(s):	N/A
Effective Date:	November 2024	Manual Transmittal:	2024-09

Codes/References

Title IV-E of the Social Security Act, Section 471(a)(10)
Public Law (PL) 110-351 Fostering Connections to Success and Increasing Adoptions Act of 2008

Requirements

The Division of Family and Children Services (DFCS) will:

1. Allow waivers of non-safety standards in kinship foster family homes for specific children in care on a case-by-case basis.
 - a. Standards related to safety may not be waived (see policy 14.1 Resource Development: Safety and Quality Standards for details regarding approval standards).

- b. Commonly waived non-safety standards include, but are not limited to income, sleeping arrangements and completion of pre-service training within 120 days after foster home approval (see Practice Guidance: Commonly Waived Non-Safety Standards).
 - c. Waiver approval must be obtained from the Regional Director/Designee for DFCS foster family homes.
 - d. Waiver approval must be obtained from the Office of Provider Management (OPM) Director/Designee for private agency foster family homes.
 - e. Waiver approval must be documented in Georgia SHINES.
2. Require kinship caregivers to have the protective capacity to meet the safety and well-being needs of each child in their care.
 3. Review and document the continuing appropriateness of each approved waiver during the annual re-evaluation of the foster family home.

Procedures

DFCS Caregiver Recruitment and Retention Specialist / Child Placing Agency Resource Development Staff

1. Determine the need for the waiver of any non-safety standard and how the safety and well-being of the child(ren) will be maintained if a waiver is approved;
2. Submit waiver requests to the Regional Director/Designee. CPA providers will submit waiver requests to their designated Resource Developer.
3. Notify the applicant once a final decision has been made on whether to approve their home.
4. Document the waiver of non-safety standards on the Contact Detail page in Georgia SHINES; and
5. Upload the approved/denied waiver into External Documentation in Georgia SHINES.

Regional Director/Designee or OPM Director/Designee

1. Review the waiver request and all applicable documentation; and
2. Approve or disapprove a waiver request within five business days of receipt.

Practice Guidance

Commonly Waived Non-Safety Standards

1. Income: Consider flexibility regarding the income verification process. Assess how the kinship caregivers are currently maintaining sufficiency. For example, if they are showing an income deficit, ask them about other resources to meet the family needs (e.g., a grandmother or other kin who lives in or out of the home who helps financially)
2. Sleeping Arrangements: Consider flexibility for potential kinship caregivers who may have limited living space which could result in situations such as rooms other than bedrooms being used as sleeping spaces, a child over the age of one sharing a bedroom with an adult, or more than three children sharing a room. The circumstances of each of these situations must be carefully assessed considering the background and history of the children involved.

- 3. Pre-service Training: Consider flexibility regarding the timeframe in which kinship caregivers must complete pre-service training. If kinship caregivers are unable to complete pre-service training prior to initial approval as a foster home, they may be allowed to complete pre-service training within 120 days after initial approval.

Other non-safety standards not identified above may be considered for a waiver but must be reviewed and documented in the waiver request. Approval by the Regional Director must be obtained prior to foster home approval.

Requests for Waivers

Requests for waivers of non-safety standards must be considered on an individual case-by-case basis and should indicate its applicability to a specific child or sibling group. Multiple non-safety standards may be included in one waiver, but each standard must be individually justified. Waivers must be approved (signed and dated) before the kinship caregiver can receive full approval status. The Regional Director/Designee may request a State Office review to help determine the appropriateness of a waiver request. Requests for such a review should be sent to the office of the State Placement and Permanency Director via the state waiver mailbox: dfcs-waivers@dhs.ga.gov. The Regional Director/Designee or CPA Resource Developer/Designee should keep track of approved waivers including each non-safety standard being waived and the date of the approval.

Post-Waiver Monitoring

After a waiver of a non-safety standard has been approved, the DFCS Caregiver Recruitment and Retention Specialist (CRRS)/CPA Resource Development team must ensure the ongoing monitoring of the home addresses the standard that was waived. This is to ensure no child's safety or well-being is adversely affected and to assess the continued appropriateness of the waiver.

IV-E Eligibility

A kinship foster home for which a non-safety approval standard is waived will be considered to have full approval status if it satisfies all other approval requirements. Consequently, title IV-E eligible placements may be reimbursable through title IV-E.

Practice Guidance

Things to consider when evaluating relatives as potential adoptive resources

DFCS values family continuity and this is supported by allowing children to remain with relatives whenever it is possible and appropriate to do so. Nonetheless, relatives must be thoroughly evaluated to ensure they can provide a safe, stable, and nurturing home for children transitioning out of foster care. DFCS wants to make sure the relatives are physically, financially, and mentally able to provide a permanent home for the child. It is also important to consider the physical and mental condition of the child to assess whether the child's needs can be adequately met with the relatives. DFCS must also consider the ability of the relatives to handle any potential interference from the child's biological parents in the management of the child. This can be challenging with relative adoptions because they may frequently encounter the biological parents at family events and gatherings.

Requests to waive pre-service training

Requests to waive pre-service training must relate to a specific relative placement that meets the criteria in requirement 1 of this policy section. Waiver requests will be considered for applicable relative placements on a case-by-case basis. Waiver requests should be submitted in writing to the State Permanency Connection Section Director/Designee.

Confirmation Statements

Confirmation Statements are statements within the body of the written evaluation confirming that results, documents, or visual inspections (as applicable) were conducted and deemed satisfactory. Each of the following confirmation statements should be included in the narrative or indicated as not applicable:

1. Citizenship/Legal Residence: A copy of birth certificate, naturalization papers, US passport, or Permanent Resident Alien Form ("Green Card") has been provided.
2. Driver's License and Insurance (If applicable): The relatives have a valid State of Georgia driver's license and proof of insurance in order to transport children.
3. Marital Status: The relatives' marital status is declared to be married or single.
4. Smoke Alarms: Functioning smoke alarms are present on each level of the home
5. Fire Extinguisher: A functioning ABC rated fire extinguisher is present in the home.
6. Carbon Monoxide Detector: A functioning carbon monoxide detector is located on the sleeping level(s) of the home.
7. Home Environment: The home was observed to be clean and free of hazards and provides a livable atmosphere.

8. Immunizations: All household members under 18 years of age are current with immunizations unless an exception applies (see policy 14.1 Resource Development: Safety and Quality Standards).
9. Pet Inoculations: (Name/Breed/Type pet) has been inoculated for rabies as required by state law.
10. Firearms: All firearms are secured (list location and how secured); or there are no firearms in the home.
11. Gas Heaters: Gas heaters are vented to avoid fire and health hazards.
12. Unvented Fuel-Fired Heaters: All unvented fuel-fired heater are equipped with an oxygen depletion safety shut off or there are no unvented fuel-fired heaters in the home.
13. Swimming Pools: In-ground and above ground swimming pools are secured as required by policy or there are no swimming pools on the property.
14. Water/Sewage: The utility bills were reviewed, and the home is on county/city water and/or sewage system; or the home does not use the county/city water and/or sewage system, and an approved environmental inspection has been completed.
15. References The minimum number of required references was received and were acceptable.

 - iii. The whereabouts of the child and/or the caregiver becomes unknown;
 - iv. The child is on runaway status for 30 days or longer;
 - v. The child is not enrolled and participating in a public or private school system, registered home study program or accredited GED course;
 - vi. The child's monthly income, excluding the child's wages, is equal to or exceeds the amount of the subsidy.

The Social Security Administration (SSA) considers the subsidy programs as income to the child; therefore, the child is rarely eligible to receive both. Any subsidy paid will need to be reported to the SSA and the child's benefits from SSA will be reduced and/or eliminated.

12. Terminate subsidy payments when any of the following occurs:

a. For ERR:

- i. The payment has been suspended for at least three months;
- ii. The child dies;
- iii. The parent moves into the caregiver's home or is caring for the child;

 This includes any legal or putative parents.

- iv. The child is no longer living with the caregiver;
- v. The caregiver has become approved as a foster home and the foster care per diem has been initiated.
- vi. The caregiver has not completed the requirements for foster family home approval within 120 days of the child's placement in the home, and the delay in completing the approval requirements was caused by the caregiver ERR should also be terminated (see Practice Guidance: Enhanced Relative Rate).
- vii. Maltreatment is substantiated against the caregiver and the child is removed from the home;
- viii. The whereabouts of the child and/or caregiver remain unknown for at least three months;
- ix. The child is on runaway status for 90 days or longer;

 Reinstatement requires a justification and Regional Director approval.

- x. The child is incarcerated for 90 days or longer or will not be released from incarceration until after his/her 18th birthday (reinstatement requires a justification and Regional Director approval);
- xi. The child is returned to the parent, guardian or legal custodian;
- xii. The child marries;
- xiii. The child reaches their 18th birthday. If the child has reached their 18th birthday and is still enrolled and participating in a public or private education program, registered home study program or accredited GED course, ERR payments will terminate when the child reaches his/her 19th birthday.

b. For SG or NRSF:

- i. The payment has been suspended for at least three months;
- ii. The child dies;
- iii. The parent moves into the caregiver's home or is caring for the child;

 This includes any legal or putative parents.

- iv. The child is no longer living with the caregiver;

- v. Maltreatment is substantiated against the caregiver and the child is removed from the home;
- vi. The whereabouts of the child and/or caregiver remain unknown for at least three months;
- vii. The child is on runaway status for 90 days or longer;

 Reinstatement requires a justification and Regional Director approval.

- viii. The child is incarcerated for 90 days or longer or will not be released from incarceration until after his/her 18th birthday (reinstatement requires a justification and Regional Director approval);
- ix. The child is returned to the parent, guardian or legal custodian;
- x. The child's income, excluding the child's wages, is equal to or greater than the subsidy;

 The Social Security Administration (SSA) considers the subsidy programs as income to the child; therefore, the child is rarely eligible to receive both. Any subsidy paid will need to be reported to the SSA and the child's benefits from SSA will be reduced and/or eliminated.

- xi. The child marries;
- xii. The child reaches their 18th birthday. If the child has reached their 18th birthday and is still enrolled and participating in a public or private education program, registered home study program or accredited GED course, SG/NRSG payments will terminate when the child reaches his/her 19th birthday.

 Any of these circumstances require prompt notification to the legal county's Regional Accounting to ensure action is taken to terminate ERR/SG/NRSG.

13. Reinstate terminated subsidies upon the approval of the County Director. Additional approval is required as follows:

- a. The Regional Director shall approve the reinstatement if the child was on runaway or incarcerated longer than 90 days.
- b. The State Office Placement and Permanency Section shall approve reinstatement when a child is returned to the caregiver after a child abuse allegation/investigation.

 The County Department shall conduct a staffing with the Field Program Specialist and State Office Placement and Permanency Section prior to returning the child to a caregiver and reinstating the subsidy when the child was removed subsequent to a child abuse allegation/investigation.

14. Recoup overpayments from caregivers as follows:

- a. Negotiate a recoupment or repayment agreement with any caregiver who receives an overpayment of ERR, SG or NRSG within five business days of knowledge of the overpayment;
- b. Consult with the State Office Placement and Permanency Section for consideration of a referral to the Department of Human Services (DHS) Office of General Counsel for further action including possible legal proceedings:

- i. When the caregiver refuses to enter a Recoupment/Repayment Agreement;
 - ii. When the caregiver misses a total of two monthly payments;
 - iii. When the caregiver fails to comply with the terms of the recoupment/repayment agreement;
 - iv. Anytime fraud or abuse is suspected.
15. Document all case management activities related to the financial and non-financial supports in Georgia SHINES within 72 hours of occurrence, including uploading supporting documents in External Documentation.
16. Designate an individual to manage the ERR/RCS/SG/NRSG case record, monitor payments, and complete the required subsidy reviews (see Practice Guidance: Maintaining Records for Subsidies).
17. Ensure ongoing review of all subsidies (ERR/RCS/SG/NRSG) in accordance with policy 22.9 Kinship: Subsidy Review.

Practice Guidance

Financial Supports

Federal and state funds that support the financial programs available for the placement or permanency of children in DFCS custody. Because of constraints with these funding streams, it is imperative that SSCMs are good stewards of these funds. Caregivers should be thoroughly assessed to determine their appropriateness as well as the supports they will need to properly care for the child. The family’s circumstances should be monitored to ensure continued eligibility for the programs. When it is determined that a caregiver is no longer eligible to receive the financial support provided, the SSCM must act expeditiously to ensure the financial assistance ceases and that any overpayments are repaid.

Temporary Assistance to Needy Families (TANF)	A federally funded grant program that provides monthly financial assistance to needy families so children may be cared for in their own homes. The caregiver must follow the application procedures established by the agency’s Office of Family Independence (OFI) and meet all eligibility requirements, including being a specified relative. Refer to the TANF Policy Manual: Chapter 1300.  If a caregiver is approved for another subsidy, OFI must be immediately notified to stop TANF payments. A caregiver may only receive one financial subsidy at a time.
Food Stamps/Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program (SNAP)	A federally funded grant program that provides monthly benefits to low-income households to help pay for the cost of food. The caregiver must complete and submit an application for SNAP to the Office of Family Independence for eligibility review. See Food Stamps Policy Manual: Chapter 3000.
Foster Care Per Diem	A monthly financial payment received by approved foster family homes for a child in foster care in Georgia. The amount of the per diem is based upon the child’s age and changes accordingly. A caregiver may receive the foster care per diem after completing all the requirements for becoming an approved foster family home (see policy 14.0 Resource Development: Introduction to Resource Development).
Initial or Annual Clothing Allowance	Children in DFCS custody are eligible to receive an initial and annual clothing allowance as outlined in the COSTAR Manual.

Sibling Incentive	A Sibling Incentive (SI) is paid for each sibling in addition to the per diem, if eligible. To be eligible, the siblings must be placed together in groups of three or more in a foster family home (including kinship foster home). The SI continues as long as the siblings remain together; at least three or more siblings remain in the same foster home; or the sibling group achieves permanency. Refer to the COSTAR Manual for more information.
Adoption Assistance	Refer to policy 12.0 Adoption Assistance: Introduction to Adoption Assistance for detailed information on adoption assistance.
Supplemental Security Income (SSI)/ Retirement, Survivors, Disability Insurance (RSDI)/Child Support	An application must be submitted to the Social Security Administration (SSA) and/or the Division of Child Support Services (DCSS) to become the payee for a child in DFCS' custody receiving SSI/RSDI, or child support. DFCS receives the benefit payments while the child is in DFCS custody. The funds are used to meet the child's needs. As subsidy payments and SSI are both federally funded, a child is ineligible to receive funding from both programs. Any DFCS subsidy payment will be reduced dollar for dollar against the SSI. SSI payments may not be sent from DFCS directly to the caregiver (see Field Fiscal Services' Administrative Policies and Procedures manual Financial Section II: 2400 Restricted Funds regarding the distribution of SSI funds received on behalf of a child).  If permanent guardianship is transferred from DFCS to a caregiver, the SSCM notifies the SSA and request that payee responsibility be transferred to the new legal guardian. A copy of the notification should be given to the caregiver and a copy placed in the subsidy file.
Prevention of Unnecessary Placement (PUP)	See policy 18.3 Support Services to Preserve or Reunify Families: Prevention of Unnecessary Placement and COSTAR Manual for eligibility and services provided through PUP.

Subsidy Programs: ERR, SG, NRSB, RCS

These are financial supports for a child in foster care placed with an approved kinship caregiver or transferred to the permanent guardianship of an approved caregiver to help defray basic expenses that otherwise may jeopardize the child's opportunity to experience stability and permanence. Payments must be used for the child's needs or expenses, such as clothing, special dietary needs, medical and dental care, special educational needs not covered by P.L. 94-142, childcare expenses, extracurricular activities, mental health services/counseling. The monthly subsidy payments are less than the basic foster care per diem for the child's age. A caregiver may not receive a subsidy and foster care per diem in the same month. Initiation of a subsidy should not result in a break in financial payments for meeting the needs of the child, Medicaid coverage, or childcare services.

Timely approval of the caregiver's home is necessary to ensure safety of the child and for the caregiver to have the necessary financial supports to help meet the child's needs.

 Parents (biological, legal, putative, adoptive, stepparents, etc.), are not eligible to receive these subsidies. Caregivers from whom the child was removed and placed in foster care (removal home), are also not eligible to receive these subsidies. See COSTAR Manual for more information on the Subsidy Programs

Enhanced Relative Rate (ERR): UAS Code 542, 548	Provides an initial monthly financial payment to assist with the basic care of a child in Georgia DFCS custody placed with a caregiver who meets the TANF degree of relationship, while the caregiver completes the foster family home approval process. ERR payments follow a rate/age schedule. ERR payments must be terminated prior to receipt of the Foster Care Per Diem. ERR may be terminated if the caregiver fails to complete the foster home approval process within 120 days of the child being placed in their home.  Prior to the termination of ERR due to the caregiver not completing the requirements for foster home approval within 120 days of the child’s placement in their home, the SSCM, SSS, and Kinship Coordinator should make efforts to address barriers that may be causing the delay. If a viable solution cannot be reached, other kin caregivers should be explored. If the County determines that it is in the best interest of the children to remain with the current caregiver, despite not completing the foster home approval process, a final decision regarding the continuation of the foster care placement and ERR shall be obtained from the Regional Director or Designee. In order to remain a placement resource, the full Kinship Assessment will need to be completed and approved.
Subsidized Guardianship (SG): UAS Code 552	A monthly financial payment that follows a rate/age schedule. SG payments are initiated after non-reunification is granted, the child has been placed with the caregiver who meets the TANF degree of relationship, for at least six months under DFCS supervision, and permanent guardianship is transferred to the caregiver. Only children who achieved permanency via a permanent guardianship from Georgia DFCS custody are eligible for SG. Other eligibility criteria and restrictions apply.  Policy prior to August 1, 2014 allowed for caregivers to receive either an enhanced subsidized guardianship for relative caregivers (ERSG). If the ERSG (type and amount) was initiated prior to August 1, 2014 payments will continue to be available upon renewal, continued eligibility and funding availability.
Non-Relative Subsidized Guardianship (NRSG): UAS Code 550	A monthly financial payment that follows a rate/age schedule. NRSG payments are initiated after non-reunification is granted, the child has been placed with the caregiver for at least 6 months under DFCS supervision, and permanent guardianship is transferred to the caregiver. Only children who achieved permanency via a permanent guardianship from Georgia DFCS custody are eligible for NRSG. Other eligibility criteria and restrictions apply.  Policy prior to August 1, 2014 allowed for eligible caregivers to receive or an enhanced subsidized guardianship for non-relative caregivers (ENRSG). If the ENRSG (type and amount) was initiated prior to August 1, 2014, payments will continue to be available upon renewal, continued eligibility and funding availability.
Relative Care Subsidy (RCS)/Enhanced Relative Care Subsidy (ERCS): UAS Code 553	RCS/ERCS was available prior to January 1, 2014, for relatives providing a permanent placement for children in DFCS custody through a permanent custody. Effective January 1, 2014, RCS/ERCS shall no longer be selected as a financial option for relatives as state law no longer recognizes “live with a fit and willing relative” as a permanent placement for children. Children receiving the subsidy prior to January 1, 2014 shall continue to be eligible to receive it as long as all other eligibility criteria are met and funding continues to be available.

Non-Financial Supports

Formal or informal services that are crucial in addressing the child’s needs, support caregiving, facilitate or preserve the placement, and support permanency for children in DFCS custody. The SSCM should discuss with caregivers, the availability and eligibility criteria of services available to them and the children in their care.

Childcare and Parent Services (CAPS)	Refer to policy 10.16 Foster Care: Childcare and Early Education
HeadStart or Early HeadStart	Refer to policy 10.16 Foster Care: Childcare and Early Education
Respite Care	Refer to policy 14.18 Resource Development: Supervision of Children

Supplemental supervision or other alternative supervision	Refer to policy 14.18 Resource Development: Supervision of Children
Mental or behavioral health services	For the child, kinship caregiver or household member
Parent Aide	Refer to policy 18.4 Support Services to Preserve or Reunify Families: Parent Aide Services
Homestead	Refer to policy 18.5 Support Services to Preserve or Reunify Families: Homestead
Wrap-Around Services	Refer to policy 18.6 Support Services to Preserve or Reunify Families: Wrap-Around Services
Promoting Safe and Stable Families (PSSF)	Refer to policy 18.2 Support Services to Preserve or Reunify Families: Promoting Safe and Stable Families (PSSF)
Medicaid or other medical coverage	Refer to policy 9.2 Eligibility: Applying for Medical Services at Initial Entry and Exit
Emergency Assistance and Referrals	Assistance to facilitate or maintain the placement determined by the SSCM/Kinship Coordinator assessment. Assistance may include clothing, food, furniture, utility assistance or other basic items
Training/educational support	Support the child, caregiver or household member

TANF Specified Degree of Relationship

To receive ERR or SG, the relative must meet the TANF degree of relationship criteria. The following relationships meet the requirement:

1. Grandparent (up to great-great-great)
2. Sibling (half, whole, step)
3. Aunt/uncle (up to great-great)
4. Niece/nephew (including child and grandchild of niece/nephew).
5. First cousin
6. First cousin once removed (the child of a first cousin)

This includes the spouse of any person named in the above group even after the marriage is terminated by death or divorce, unless the child is born after termination of the marriage. The spouse of a stepparent or the spouse of a stepsibling is not within the specified degree of relationship.

To establish a child's relationship to a paternal relative, paternity must first be legally established. Verification of the degree of relationship must be documented in Georgia SHINES.

Staffing of Removal Related to Child Abuse Allegation/Investigation

The staffing must determine the appropriate permanency plan for the child and that all child safety and well-being issues have been addressed to solidify the placement prior to returning the child to the caregiver and reinstating the subsidy payment. Document the staffing in Georgia SHINES. If the staffing determines that continued subsidy would be appropriate, complete a new agreement to reinstate the subsidy payment. If the subsidy renewal is due or past due, immediately complete the renewal process.

Maintaining ERR/RCS/SG/NRSG Case Records

The case record/Georgia SHINES must contain the following:

1. The signed application and agreement and all renewal forms.
2. The non-reunification and permanent guardianship order.
3. Notification to discontinue TANF and/or transfer the payee of the child's income (SSI, RSDI or child support) to the caregiver.
4. Documentation of six and 12-month subsidy reviews including required home visits with separate interviews with the caregiver and children.
5. Copies of any subsidy termination notifications.

Practice Guidance

Subsidy Review and Renewal Assessment

Subsidy reviews are conducted to ensure the child and caregiver continue to meet the eligibility criteria to receive a subsidy payment as well as to determine whether the caregiver continues to be qualified to provide care for the child. During the subsidy review process, observation and/or an understanding of the family's involvement in completing the everyday tasks is essential in providing insight into the family's parenting practices, strengths and areas for continued caregiver development. The subsidy review process also provides the opportunity to determine whether the family may have additional needs through which offering community supports may be critical to maintain and stabilize the home and consequently prevent re-entry of the child into foster care.

When assessing the caregiver to determine whether they continue to be qualified to provide care for the child, parental capacity and child vulnerabilities must be assessed to assure the child's safety, permanency and well-being. Also determine the following:

1. What are the current developmental stages of the family?
2. What tasks are associated with the developmental stages, i.e. waking to feed an infant; getting children off to school; disciplining teenagers; etc., and what is the involvement of the family in completing the tasks?
3. What are the challenges the family is having in meeting the daily tasks? Are there competing needs within the family, impacting the caregiver's ability to continue to provide appropriate care for the child?

4. How are the child(ren)'s health and medical needs being met?
5. How are the child(ren)'s emotional needs being met?
6. How are the child(ren)'s educational needs being met?
7. What services have the caregiver sought for the child when there are identified needs? What services are needed to ensure daily tasks are completed?
8. Who cares for the child in the caregiver's absence?
9. Describe how the child is thriving in the care of the caregiver.
10. Is the living environment safe? Are there immediate threats of harm or impending dangers?
11. Does the caregiver continue to meet eligibility requirements for ERR, RCS, SG or NRSRG?
12. What information was provided by collateral contacts (health provider, school officials, etc.) regarding child vulnerabilities and parental capacity?

Practice Guidance

Guardianship in CPS

Guardianship in CPS is limited in its use to cases with demonstrated chronic parental absence, chronic un-rehabilitated parental concerns, and a history of caretaking for the children by the proposed guardian. Before pursuing guardianship through probate or juvenile court in CPS cases reasonable efforts must be made to maintain the family unit and prevent the unnecessary removal of the child from the home.

Guardianship

Guardianship refers to a legal relationship in which a person is given responsibility by the court for the care of a minor, thereby becoming a guardian. The appointment of a guardian vests them with the power to:

1. Take custody of the person of the minor and establish the minor's dwelling in the state
2. Give consent or approval for medical care
3. Exercise powers necessary to provide adequately for the support, care, education, health, and welfare of the minor.
4. Participate in or bring legal actions on behalf of the minor
5. Execute a surrender of rights to enable adoption of the minor
6. When specifically granted by the court, consent to the minor's marriage or receive compensation from estate of the minor for services rendered to the minor

The granting of temporary guardianship of a minor does not permanently terminate the parental rights of the parents. Guardianship may give the parent the opportunity to maintain parental contact and provide child support and other family connections. Juvenile court has concurrent jurisdiction with probate court to grant permanent guardianship. Probate may transfer contested temporary (or permanent) guardianship issues to the juvenile court.

Juvenile Court - Guardianship

1. Permanent Guardianship:

- Required Legal Findings

- a. Child must be adjudicated as a dependent child
- b. Reasonable efforts to reunify the child with parents detrimental or parents have consented to permanent guardian
- c. Termination of paternal rights or adoption is not in child's best interest
- d. Proposed permanent guardian can provide a safe home
- e. Appointment of permanent guardian is in child's best interest

- Establish a reasonable visitation schedule which allows the child to maintain meaningful contact with his or her parents through personal visits, telephone calls, letters, or other forms of communication or specifically include any restriction on a parent's right to visitation.

- May enter an order of support against the parent

2. Temporary Guardianship

- Required Legal Findings

- a. Juvenile Court may hear a contested temporary guardianship matter only upon a transfer from probate court.
- b. Any such appointment shall be made pursuant to the same required legal findings as probate court.

Probate Court - Guardianship

1. Permanent Guardianship:

- Required Legal Findings

- a. Minor has no natural guardian, testamentary guardian, or permanent guardian

2. Temporary Guardianship:

- Required Legal Findings

- a. Filed by a person with physical custody (i.e. third party caring for a child after a parent has left the child in their care)
- b. Guardianship is determined to be in the child's best interest.
- c. A statement of parental consent or a statement of circumstances giving rise to the need for the guardianship appointment

- If a natural guardian of the minor files a timely objection to the establishment of the temporary guardianship, the court shall dismiss the petition.
- If a natural guardian files a timely objection to the selection of the petitioner as temporary guardian, the court shall hold a hearing to determine who shall serve as temporary guardian.
- If a parent who is not a natural guardian files a timely objection to the establishment of the temporary guardianship or to the selection of the petitioner as temporary guardian, the court shall hold a hearing to determine all matters at issue.

Natural Guardian

The natural guardian(s) of a minor is/are the parents, if living, or the parent(s) having legal custody of the minor if the parents are divorced or were never married.

Testamentary Guardian

Testamentary guardian is a person named in a will to act as a guardian.

Practice Guidance

Temporary Custody to a Third Party in CPS

Prior to pursuing temporary custody to third party in CPS, reasonable efforts must be made to maintain the family unit and prevent the unnecessary removal of the child from the home through FPS prior to filing a dependency petition in juvenile court recommending temporary custody be granted to a third party. In addition, to justify this decision to pursue temporary custody a Case Evaluation must demonstrate that:

1. There has been insufficient progress in meeting case plan outcomes or conditions for return.
2. An approved Kinship Assessment on the proposed third party custodian shows a history of care-taking for the child and the ability to adequately support the child.
3. Additional considerations based on the age of the child/youth were factored in prior to the decision.
4. There is a clear understanding that this option is limited in its use to cases that do not involve chronic or severe child abuse and when it is likely the safety issues can be resolved in less than 90 calendar days.

When the court grants temporary custody to a third party, DFCS must recommend to the court that the parent/legal custodian participates in services through a court ordered FPS case plan to address the dependency issues. If the case plan is court ordered, the oversight of the court will assist in guiding the case toward resolution. Additionally, DFCS will participate in ongoing reviews and other court hearings subject to the court ordered case plan. When DFCS determines that the parent/legal custodian cannot or will not resolve safety issues, or is not making sufficient progress within the initial review period, DFCS has the option to pursue additional court intervention recommending a modification of the disposition and a different permanency option for the child. DFCS remains obligated to provide services to a family until the court determines it is no longer required; when this occurs, a more permanent option for the child such as adoption or permanent guardianship may be a more appropriate for the family.

Situations When Temporary Custody to a Third Party Is Not Appropriate Situations in which custody may not be appropriate, include but are not limited to:

1. Chronic and severe physical or sexual abuse cases.
2. Serious mental health or intellectual functioning issues that cannot be resolved.
3. Serious substance abuse situations with chronic relapse histories or the need for long-term treatment.
4. Long term incarcerations.

Temporary Custody to a Third Party

Finding a child dependent and granting temporary custody to a third party does not terminate the parental rights of the parents. Granting temporary custody to a third party, gives the legal third party custodian the right to:

1. Physical custody of a child,
2. Determine the nature of the care and treatment of such child, including ordinary medical care, and
3. Provide for the care, protection, training, and education and the physical, mental, and moral welfare of such child, subject to the conditions and limitations of the order and to the remaining rights and duties of such child's parent or guardian.

Juvenile Court-Temporary Custody to a Third Party

1. Required Legal Findings

- a. Child must be adjudicated as a dependent child
- b. Reasonable efforts to maintain the family unit and prevent the unnecessary removal of the child from the home
- c. Proposed third party custodian can provide a safe home
- d. Transfer of custody is in the child's best interest

2. Dispositions: The court may make any of the following orders of disposition or a combination of those best suited to the protection and physical, emotional, mental, and moral welfare of a child adjudicated as a dependent child:

- a. Permit the child to remain with his/her parent, guardian, or legal custodian subject to conditions and limitations as the court prescribes, including supervision as directed by the court for the protection of the child (i.e. protective order, court ordered case plan).
- b. Grant or transfer temporary legal custody to:

- i. Any individual, including a biological parent, who is found to be qualified to receive and care for the child, provided that priority for placement is given to an adult who is a relative or fictive kin;
- ii. An agency or other private organization licensed or otherwise authorized by law to receive and provide care for the child; or
- iii. An individual in another state with or without supervision pursuant to the requirements of Interstate Compact on the Placement of Children (ICPC).

3. The court has the authority to:

- a. Prescribe conditions and limitations to the temporary legal custody including, but not limited to:
 - i. Establishing a reasonable visitation schedule which allows the child to maintain meaningful contact with his or her parents through personal visits, telephone calls, letters, or other forms of communication or specifically include any restriction on a parent's right to visitation;
 - ii. Issuing orders to control the behavior of the parent/legal custodian and the proposed third party custodian (protective order); and
 - iii. Ordering temporary child support to be paid by that parent or any person legally obligated to support the child.
- b. Return of physical custody of a child adjudicated as a dependent child to his/her parent, guardian, or legal custodian subject to conditions and limitations the court may prescribe, including, but not limited to, supervision for the protection of such child.

Evaluation of the Proposed Third Party Custodian

When there is current voluntary kinship arrangement and the child is being cared for by kin caregivers, prior to DFCS recommending temporary custody to a third party or subsequent to the court granting temporary custody to a third party, the voluntary kinship assessment shall be amended to include:

1. A formal discussion and assessment of the proposed third party custodian's ability to ensure the safety and provide continued care for the child.
2. A detailed evaluation of the proposed third party custodian's financial ability to provide for the child in addition to other household members.
3. A review and consideration of the child's medical coverage if custody is granted to the third party custodian.

It is important to explore this issue thoroughly if temporary custody to a third party is being considered. If the child is currently receiving Medicaid as a part of the parent/legal custodian's eligibility benefits, upon transfer of custody to the third party custodian, the third party custodian will become responsible for continued health insurance coverage. If the third party custodian wishes to obtain Medicaid for the child, he/she must meet Medicaid eligibility criteria.

4. History of positive examples of the third party acting in a caregiving role.

Case Closure

When a court ordered case plan is recommended by DFCS but not ordered by the court and custody is granted to a third party, DFCS must ensure that all reasonable efforts are exhausted to provide FPS to the parent/legal custodian on a voluntary basis prior to a case being closed. Only after engagement efforts have been exhausted and when a consensus about how to achieve the best outcome is unable to be achieved, may the case be closed with County Director approval.

IV-E Eligibility

To be eligible for IV-E funding, a child must, among other criteria, be removed from the home of a specified relative as the result of a voluntary placement agreement or judicial determination that the continuation in the home would be contrary to the child's welfare. The federal statute allows a six-month period of time during which the child can live with an interim caregiver (i.e. voluntary kinship arrangement) and still be eligible for IV-E funding. The removal can be "constructive" (non-physical, paper, or legal) or a physical removal (see policy 9.3 Eligibility: Applying for Initial Funding).
